Meddwr, s. m.—pl. meddwyr (meddu—gwr) A man who commands; a possessor.

Meddwr, s. m.—pl. meddwyr (meddw—gwr) A man who intoxicates; a man who gets drunk.

Meddwn, s. m. dim. (meddw) A drunkard.

Meddyd, v. a. (medd) To express, to speak.

Ni ellir derwydd, medd derwydd.

It is impossible to make a druid, says a druid. Adage.

A ni ddugogonaf, cyn fy nymedd, Brython dros Saeon; Brithwyr a'i medd.

And I will force, before my affliction, the Britons over the Saxons; the Variegated Men say it. Myrddin.

Meddyffr gwyr a ommeddyd, Mab y Cricwas Ennwyd.

Quoth the men who were refused, the miser's son of Enns art thou. Guio y Glyn, i H. Ddu.

Meddydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (medd) A mead-brewer

Meddydd, ei sawd yw, o'r pan dddechreu o'f waelur cerwyn fodd o'i rym o'i hawl o'i ei phob, dwyn y dyn a wael y cam.

The mead-brewer, his protection is, from the time when he begins to make a tub of mead until he ties its covering over the top of it, conducting away the person that does the wrong. Welsh Laws.

Meddyg, s. m.—pl. f. on (medd) A physician, a doctor, a surgeon. Meddyg y bugel, or meddyg mair, ploughman's spikenard.

Nid meddyg ond amser.

There is no physician like time. Adage.

Gorwn meddyg meddyg enaid.

The best physician is the physician of the soul. Adage.

Meddyg a ddyly wneuthur meddyginiaeth rad i'r a fo yn y llyd, ac i'r teulu.

The doctor ought to perform a gratuitous cure to such as shall be in court, and to the family. Welsh Laws.

Meddygadwy, a. (meddyg) Curable, remediable.

Meddygni, s. c. (meddyg) That cures, or heals.

Meddygawl, a. (meddyg) Curative, medicinal.

*Fod e'n hawl feddygawl fyd
 A gynawys i'w fod gwyd i*

As it is a portion of a healing world, may it be offered for me to have thee? D. ab Gurlym.

Meddyges, s. f.—pl. f. au (meddyg) A doctress;
 the violet; meddyges ddu, common figwort;
meddyges felen, saffron crocus; meddyges las, selfheal; meddyges lwyd, betony.

Meddygyfa, s. m. (meddyg—bys) The ring finger

Meddygiad, s. m. (meddyg) A making a cure.

Meddygineth, s. m. (meddyg) Medicine; the applying a remedy.

Meddygin, a. (meddyg) Curative, medicinal.

Meddyginiaeth, s. m.—pl. f. au (meddygin) Physic, medicine, remedy, or cure.

Meddyginiaeth yafyd ffonawd dda.

The remedy for a fool is a good stroke. Adage.

Meddyginiaeth rhuddell, deuddeg celinauw; meddyginiaeth lly-sian wrth chwydd pedair celinauw.

A remedy of red saive is twelve pence; a remedy of herbs applied to a swelling is four pence. Welsh Laws.

Meddyginiaethad, s. m. (meddyginiaeth) A making a cure; the applying a remedy.

Meddyginiaethawl, a. (meddyginiaeth) Belonging to the healing art; medicinal.

Meddyginiaethu, v. a. (meddyginiaeth) To perform a cure; to apply a remedy.

Meddygiad, s. m. (meddyg) A making a cure.

Meddyglyn, s. m.—pl. f. oedd (meddyg—llyn)

Hydromel, a kind of medicinal drink: the wild carrot; also called moron y maes.

Meddyglys, s. m. (meddyg—llys) Woundwort.

Meddygu, v. a. (meddyg) To make a cure; to apply a remedy.

Lies pawb pan feddygu.

It is the benefit of all when a cure shall be made. Adage.

Meddygyn, s. m. dim. (meddyg) That heals: also the violet, otherwise called y grinllys, crath unnos, and y feddyges: meddygyn menyw, common feverfew.

Meddylfryd, s. m.—pl. f. au (meddwl—bryd) The affection, or bent of the mind.

Meddylgar, a. (meddwl) Mindful, thoughtful; thinking, musing, contemplative.

Nid meddylgar ond serchawg;

Nid serchawg ond cerddgar.

None is thoughtful but the lover; none is a lover but who is fond of music. Adage.

Meddylgarwch, s. m. (meddylgar) Thoughtfulness
Meddyliad, s. m. (meddwl) A thinking, a supposing Meddyliaw, v. a. (meddwl) To think, to mind; to intend, to purpose; to imagine, to suppose.

Anwywyras yw gwr a feddylio cael medd i'w lafar y cyhausaf ared dir, o'i bydd ei gwedy han.

Irrational is the man who thinks to have to reap the produce of the harvest upon his land, if he shall not have sown. Morchawg Crywddred.

Heddwyl yw'r byd—

Mal mael ddali, o meddyliwn.

Transitory is the world, like the leaves of May, did we but think.
Mer. ab Rhys.

Meddyliawg, a. (meddwl) Thoughtful, musing.

Meddyllied, v. (meddwl) To think; to suppose.

Meddyliwr, s. m.—pl. meddyliwr (meddwl—gwr)
 A thinker; a supposer.

Meddysg, s. m. (medd—ysg) A transformed state, that is transformed. A Transformed.

Mef, s. m. (me—ef) That is puffed out, smooth, or lubricous.

Mefi, s. m.—pl. mefiaw (mef) A filthy breaking out; nastiness; a polluted state; disgrace, scandal.

Ni ddylir maeddu gwraig, samyn o dri achawg; sef, am roddi peith ni ddylir; ac gaffel gwr arall genddi; ac am ddyano med ar fari ei gwr.

A wife ought not to be beaten but for three causes: that is, for giving away what she should not; for finding another man with her; and for winking disgrace on the beard of her husband. Welsh Laws.

O well gochel medd na'i ddini.

Better to avoid disgrace than to revenge it. Adage.

Hir weddwadwd i fel.

Long widowhood to disgrace. Adage.

Aghwanegid medd mawrair.

The disgrace that is boasted is augmented. Adage.

Medd i'r llygoden un-twl.

Bad luck to the mouse with one hole. Adage.

Meflad, s. m. (mefl) A rendering polluted; a disgracing, a scandalizing; a becoming disgraceful.

Ni waent eu dynu, cyd trwy meflad;
Nid of eu defaid bod yn galed.

They will not take them, if it be through disgrace; it is not in their nature to be hard. Taliesin, M. Dinbych.

Meflawl, a. (mefl) Tending to pollute; of a disgraceful nature.

Meflaidd, a. (mefl) Somewhat disgraceful.

Meflan, v. a. (mefl) To render polluted; to render or become disgraceful.

Ys drwg y geiniawg y fello ei pherchen.

Bad is the penny that disgraces its possessor. Adage.

Mefledig, a. (mefl) Polluted; disgraced.

Mefethiant, s. m. (mefl—methiant) A disgraceful defect.

Tri mefethiant gwr, bod yn arglwydd drwg, a bod yn ddryg-gerwr, a bod yn llibuwr yn nadlau.

The three shameful defects of a man, to be a bad master, and to be a bad lover, and to be a driveller in debate. Welsh Laws.

Mefliad, s. m. (mefl) A polluting; a disgracing; a becoming disgraceful.

Meflu, v. a. (mefl) To pollute; to disgrace; to be polluted; to be disgraced. Mae y plentyn gwedi meflu ei hun, the child has befouled himself

Ys mia fedawr o'r grynbeuedd,
Gweryd i'r gwag-feldid os gwagboddod.

If I am disgraced from the disputation, the poetsasters will be relieved by their empty boast. Ph. Brydydd.

Meflwr, s. m.—pl. meflwyr (mefl—gwr) A disgracer; a disgraceful man.

Mefwriaeth, s. m. (meflwr) A disgraceful act.

Tri meflwriaeth mach y sydd; gwadu ei fechni, ac of yn fuch; ac addel ei fechni, ac na all ei chymhell; a diebryd mach gwodi rhodder.

There are three disgraceful acts of a ball: denying his suretyship, and he a ball; and giving his suretyship without being able to perform it; and the frustration of ball after it is given. Welsh Laws.

Mefus, s. pl. aggr. (mef) Strawberries.

Fy enw—
A'i gwefus mai mefus mair.

My nymph with her lip like the scarlet strawberries. Bede Addron.

Mefusen, s. f. dim. (mefus) A strawberry.

Mefuswydd, s. pl. aggr. (mefus—gwydd) Strawberry plants.

Meg, s. f. (my—eg) That takes in or contains; a fetter. Y feg fawr, a large old fetter, kept at Dinas Mawddwy.

Megai, s. c.—pl. megelon (mag) The glow-worm.

Megawl, a. (meg) Relating to the utterance.

Megiad, s. m. (meg) An uttering, or expressing.

Megidydd, s. m. (mag) One who nourishes.

Megin, s. f.—pl. t. au (meg) A pair of bellows.

Mae o auddi mwy ynnof
Nog yn nghau meginau gof.

There is within me of breath more than in the hollow of the bellows of a smith. D. ab Gwilym.

Meginaw, v. a. (megin) To work bellows.

A'i anadl diadlam dwrn
Yn meginau mwg annwfn.

And his deep unreturning breath blowing the infernal fume. W. Wyn.

Meginiad, s. m. (megin) A working of bellows.

Meginwr, s. m.—pl. meginwyr (megin—gwr) One who works, or blows bellows.

Megitor, sup. (magu) To be nourishing.

Megitor en gwir hwy hir alanas.

Their sincerity nourished a lasting feud. Myrddin.

Megyn, s. m. (mag) A nursing, a rearing.

Megys, conj. (meg—ys) As, in the manner, in the state; in the same manner, like as, so as. Megys cynt, as formerly.

Mehefin, s. m. (me—hefin) The month of June.

Mehin, s. m. (me—hin) Fat, grease, lard.

Mehinaidd, a. (mehin) Like lard, fat, or grease.

Mehinaw, v. a. (mehin) To become fat or greasy.

Mehinawg, a. (mehin) Abounding with lard.

Mehinawr, a. (mehin) Abounding with lard.

Mehinen, s. f. dim. (mehin) The leaf of fat.

Meia, v. a. (mai) To take the field; to go out to war; also to go a maying.

Meiad, s. m. (mai) A taking the field; or a going out to war; a maying.

Meiaeth, s. m. (mai) A making a campaign.

Meiaw, v. a. (mai) To make a campaign.

Meiawd, s. m. (mai) A making a campaign.

Meiawg, a. (mai) Of the field; champion.

Tri thri nododd,
Atgor ar henedd,
A marchr meiwawg,
Cymhwyr teibionwg.

Thrice three protections, recurring to the native country, are a steel used to the field, perfect for travelling. Taliesin.

Meiawl, a. (mai) Belonging to open country.

Meibionain, s. pl. dim. (mab) Little children.

Meibionos, s. pl. dim. (mab) Little children.

Meichai, s. c.—pl. meichelon (mach) A surety.

Goron meichai diweldwrydd.

The best surety is innocence. Adage.

Meichiad, s. m. (mach) A bailing; a being surety

Meichlau, a. (mach) Sureties, or bail.

Meichlaw, v. a. (mach) To give bail; to become a bail, or surety.

Gorng ei walth,
A fuch y fuchdath.

He has completed his work, that bails the journey of a surety. Adage.

Meichlawg, a. (mach) Having surety, or bail.

Meichlawl, a. (mach) Relating to suretyship.

Meidr, s. m.—pl. meidron (maid) A measure, or limit; also a lane, or road. Dyfed.

Mae ar weindogion gwynnodi anghyfyddus, a chymus ynt-oedd, ag sydd wedi mynd te hwt i bob meidr a saf.

It is incumbent upon ministers to reconcile differences, and to settle disputes, which are gone beyond every rule and order. Ar. Gwyn.

Meidrad, s. m. (meidr) A comprehending, a bringing within limit; a meting.

Meidradr, s. m.—pl. t. on (meidr) A meter.

Meidradydd, s. m.—pl. t. on (meidr) A meter.

Meidraeth, s. m. (meidr) Measurement.

Meidraw, v. a. (meidr) To reduce to measure, rule, or limit; to mete.

Meidrawl, a. (meidr) Belonging to measure; being within measure, or comprehended; limited.

Meidredig, a. (meidr) Comprehended; limited.

Meidriad, s. m.—pl. meidriad (meidr) One who is able to effect, or to accomplish.

Meidroldeb, s. m. (meidrawl) The state of being within measure, or comprehension; finiteness.

Meidrollder, s. m. (meidrawl) Finiteness.

Meidroledd, s. m. (meidrawl) Comprehensiveness, comprehension, capacity.

Meidroll, v. a. (meidrawl) To bring under measure; to bring within comprehension; to limit.

Meidrolrwydd, s. m. (meidrawl) Finiteness.

Meidryw, s. m.—pl. t. on (maid) That is separate, or solitary; a hermit.

Meidwyfod, s. f. (meidw—bod) A hermitage.

Meidyn, s. m. dim. (maid) A point of separation; a small space; a point of time; a moment.

Meidda, v. a. (maidd) To collect or go a begging for curds and whey.

*Byddi yn—
Caws, yta, gwisgo'n ghir,
Cica, a meiddo, meiddir.*

Then will be collecting cheese, collecting curds, and fairly begging whey; collecting herbs, and collecting curds and whey, it is said.

Meiddaidd, a. (maidd) Curdled like whey; serous

Meiddawg, a. (maidd) Abounding with whey.

Meiddelddrwydd, s. m. (meiddaidd) A curdled state.

Meiddiad, s. m. (maidd) A breaking or curdling; a forming a cliff.

Meiddion, s. pl. aggr. (maidd) Curds and whey.

Meiddioni, v. (meiddion) To turn curds and whey

Meiddlyd, a. (maidd) Wheyish; curdled.

Meiddlydrwydd, s. m. (meiddlyd) A curdled state.

Meiddlydu, v. n. (meiddlyd) To become curdled.

Meiddlyn, s. m. (maidd—lyn) Whey drink.

Meiddogrwydd, s. m. (meiddawg) A curdled state

Meiddyn, s. f. (maidd) The limit of a plain; a cliff; a range of mountains.

Meidd, s. m. (mai) The state of being plain.

Meifod, s. f.—pl. t. an (mai—bod) A champaign dwelling; a summer habitation.

Meifon, s. pl. aggr. (maf) Berries that grow in claster; raspberries; also called gwyfon, qsan, and mafon.

Meigen, s. f.—pl. t. au (maig) A sudden turn; a recess, or nook.

Meigad, s. m. (maig) A turning suddenly; a happening, or befalling.

Meigiaw, v. a. (maig) To turn suddenly, to happen

Meigiawl, a. (maig) Of a sudden turn.

Meigr, s. m. (maig) A sudden start; terror.

Meigrad, s. m. (meigr) A starting suddenly.

Meigrav, v. a. (meigr) To start out suddenly.

Meigrva, s. m. (meigr) A sudden start, terror; also the megrim, or vertigo.

Meilian, s. f. (mai—ian) A field yoke, or a yoke with four oxen.

Meiliad, a. m. (mail) A holding together; a putting in a bowl; a filling with a bowl.

Meiliaid, s. f.—pl. meillieidian (mail) A dishful, the fill of a platter; a bowlful.

Meiliannawl, a. (meiliant) Tending to uphold.

Meilianna, v. a. (meiliant) To uphold.

Meiliant, s. m. (mail) An upholding.

Meiliar, s. m. (mail) That makes a bound or start.

Meilaw, v. a. (mail) To hold up, to sustain; to put in a bowl; to raise liquids with a bowl.

Meilawg, a. (mail) Having a structure.

Meilawr, s. f. (mail) A habitation, a dwelling.

Cyrchid dedwydd ei feilawr.

Let the prudent resort to his dwelling. Adage.

Meiliedig, a. (meiliad) Being put together, constructed, or built up.

Meiliedyn, s. m. dim. (meiliad) A small bowl.

Meilierydd, s. m. (meiliar) The sky-lark.

Meiliorn, s. m. (mèl—orn) A transgression.

Meiliornad, s. m. (meiliorn) A transgressing.

Meiliornol, v. a. (meiliorn) To transgress.

Meiliornus, a. (meiliorn) Transgressing.

Meiliwr, s. m.—pl. meilwyr (mèl—gwr) A transgressor.

Meilon, s. pl. aggr. (màl) Powder, dust; flour.

Meilon grydd, blawd grydd, word dust.

Meiloni, v. a. (meilon) To reduce to powder; to become dust, or powder.

Meilwn, s. m.—pl. meilwnau (mèl) The small of the leg; also called Ueilw.

VOL. II.

Meilyn, s. m. dim. (mèl) A loop, or eye. Crucyn a meilyn, bach a dolon, crook and eye.

Meilyndorch, s. f.—pl. meilyndyrch (meilwn—torch) A sashoon.

Meilynwig, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (meilwn—gwisg) A sashoon, also called arfeilyn.

Meillion, s. pl. aggr. (mall) Clover; trefoil. Meillion gwynion, mail gwynion, meillion Olwen, the white-flowered meadow trefoil; meillion corniawg, Spanish trefoil; meillion tair-dalen, mellicot; meillion y gors, buckbeans; meillion cedenaug, traed yr ysgyfarnog, hare's cummin; meillion cochion, red trefoil, or purple-wort;

marc-feillion, cultivated clover.

Meillionaid, a. (meillion) Like trefoils.

Meillionawg, a. (meillion) Having trefoils.

Meillionawl, a. (meillion) Like the trefoils.

Meillionen, s. f. (meillion) A trefoil. Meillionen felen, kidney vetch, or ladies' finger; meillionen gorniaug, yellow medick; meillionen y gors, marsh-trefoil; meillionen gragenawg, heart medick; meillionen Olwen, Dutch clover; meillionen y ceirw, common melilot.

Podair meillionen wen a fyddai yn ei hol, pa ffordd bynag y delai, ac am hysg y geirw hi Olwen.

Four white trefoils would spring up in her track, which ever way she might come, and therefore she was called Olwen.

H. Cusack—Meillionen.

Meillioni, v. n. (meillion) To produce trefoils.

Meilyn, s. m.—pl. meillod (mail) A lean old ruin.

Meinad, s. m. (meinân) A making slender, exile, fine, or delicate.

Meinawl, a. (meinân) Tending to make slender.

Meinân, v. a. (main) To make slender, or fine.

Meinawl, a. (main) Of a fine or slender make.

Meinciad, s. m. (mainc) A placing benches.

Meinciaw, v. a. (mainc) To fix benches.

Meincwely, s. m.—pl. t. au (mainc—gwely) A settle-bed; a sofa.

Meindeg, a. (main—teg) Delicately fair.

Meinder, s. m. (main) Exility, slenderness.

Meindilos, a. (main—flos) Delicately pretty.

Meindlws, a. (main—tlws) Delicately pretty.

Meindra, s. m. (main) Exility, slenderness.

Meindwf, s. m. (main—twf) A slender growth.

a. Of a slender growth.

Meinddydd, s. m. (main—dydd) A fine day.

Meinedd, s. m. (main) Exility, slenderness.

Meingan, s. f. (main—can) That is delicate and fair; an epithet for a beauty.

Tra gweno meingan, clipia gwan.

Whilst the fair one smiles, snatch a kiss. Adage.

Meingil, s. m. (main—cil) A close corner.

Meinholi, v. a. (main—holi) To examine narrowly, to scrutinize.

Meinholiad, s. m. (main—holiad) A narrowly examining; a strict examination.

Meiniad, s. m. (maen) A stoning; a petrifying.

Meiniawg, a. (maen) Of stone, or stony.

A golo cer manro meiniawg

Gelyniad Saeon idianawg.

And bury close to the stony bench the Saxon fore cited in silk.

Lt. P. Moch, i Llywelyn 11.

Meiniles, s. f. dim. (main) A little delicate animal.

Meinin, a. (maen) Of stone, stony. Ty meinin, ty maen, ty ceryg, a stone house.

Gwelaf ffinnu gwal felin

Baradwys Gwent—

And I perceive the stone wall of the paradise of Gwent.

Guto y Glyn.

Meinir, s. f. (main—ir) That is of delicate growth, an epithet for a handsome woman.

2 U

Meinlals, s. m. (main—lals) A shrill voice.
Meinoeth, s. f. (main—oeth) A fine night.
Meinoled, s. m. (meisawl) Exility, slenderness.

Bychedodd meinoled.

Slenderness is lillleness.

Adage.

Meinoles, s. f. dim. (meinawi) An epithet for any delicate young animal, such as a heifer.

Meinns, a. (main) Slender, delicate; tiny.

Mawredus, feinns, fen yd ferall crair,

Mor wea ei bengair moli ei heagid!
Magnificent and delicate, deemed a precious relic, so white for her above her shoe! Ior. Fychan.

Gogoneddus Fair! war, waddus, feinns farnon!

Glorious Mary! gentle, virtuous, and delicate queen!

D. Ddu o Blieddu.

Meinnsaw, v. a. (meinns) To render fine, or delicate; to become slender, fine, delicate.

Meinwaith, s. m. (main—gwaith) Nice work.

Meinwar, a. (main—gwar) Delicate and gentle, delicate and meek; delicately mild. s. f. That is delicately mild.

Dy far, feinwar Ffynwy,

Ar a'rh gar: ni fu far fwy.

Thy fire, Myrwan, delicately mild, is on him who loves thee:
never was there fire more severe. H. ab Einion Llygth.

Meinwedd, s. f. (main—gwedd) A delicate aspect

Meinweddald, a. (meinwedd) Of a delicate aspect

Meinweddawg, a. (meinwedd) Of a fine aspect.

Meinwen, a. (main—gwen) Delicately fair. s. f. That is delicately fair.

Meinwyn, a. (main—gwyn) Delicately white.

Meinwyr, a. (main—gwyrr) Delicately chaste.

Pefr feinwyr, the fair one delicately chaste.

Meinyn, s. m. dim. (maen) A lump of stone.

Meipen, s. f. dim. (maip) A single turnip.

Meiriawl, a. (mer) Thawing, dissolving.

Meiriolad, s. m. (meiriawl) A thawing.

Meirioli, v. n. (meiriawl) To thaw, to dissolve; the same as dadmeru and dadleithiau.

Meiriolus, a. (meiriawl) Tending to thaw.

Meirion, s. m. (mar) That moves about; a looker; a dairyman; tops of hemp.

Meirionis, s. f.—pl. t. au (meirion) A female who superintends; a house-wife; a dairy-woman; also, an epithet for a woman, or matron; and sometimes used, in a bad sense, for a concubine.

A morwyn eto a meirionis,

And a virgin yet had a matron. Iolo Goch, i Fair.

Offeiriad—

Pop un, heb na llun na lles,

Ofir lwn, a'f feirionis.

The persons, every one, without form or benefit, very worthless, in company with his girl. Dr. S. Cent.

Meirioni, s. m. (meirion) A superintendency; the office of a keeper, or one who has custody.

Meirionig, a. (meirion) Tending to guard, or to watch. Drych meirionig, a scarecrow.

Mai drych, o gwn edrych heb,

Meirionig ym yw'r wyneb.

Like a staring phis to me, if I know the appearance of any one, is the face. Guto y Glyn.

Meirwys, s. f.—pl. t. od (merwys) The ousel.

Aellau mawr, feli y meirwys,

A phennau bagiau'r au bys.

Large eyebrows, like the ousel, of the same form as the heads of crooks. Llwyddu, i adorch.

Meirydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (maer) A mayor.

Meiryddion a chyngellorion a ddylyant gyweiriau'ny wind, a gwneuthur ei dadiau.

Mayors and chancellors are bound to establish order in the country, and to administer its laws. Welsh Laws.

Meisgyn, s. m. dim. (masg) A moth; otherwise called gwyffyn.

Meisiad, s. m. (mais) A devising, an invention.

Meisiaw, v. a. (mais) To invent, to device.

Ceddo meiso mewa mawg;

Cassu dawa, ymgyrcy dig.

Attempting to invent to music; hating grains, bringing up anger. Edm. Fy.

Meisiawd, s. m. (mais) An invention, a device.

Meisiawg, a. (mais) Full of invention.

Meisiawl, a. (mais) Inventive, devising.

Meisiedig, a. (mais) Invented, devised.

Meisiwr, s. m.—pl. meiswyr (mais—gwr) A deviser, or inventor.

Meistr, s. m.—pl. iaid (maist) A master.

Ni wna'f estron yn feistri;

Ni wna'f chwech ym a wna'ch chw.

I will not make masters of strangers; half a dozen you do for me what you would do. H. Daf.

Meistrad, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (meistr) A master.

Meistrawl, a. (meistr) Masterly; master.

Meistres, s. m.—pl. t. au (meistr) A mistress.

Meistrolaeth, s. m. (meistrawl) Mastership, mastery; authority, dominion.

Meistrolaethu, v. a. (meistrolaeth) To exercise mastership; to domineer.

Meistrolaethus, a. (meistrolaeth) Magisterious.

Meistrolodd, s. m. (meistrawl) Mastery.

Meistroll, v. a. (meistrawl) To act magisterially, to bear sway, to domineer; to be master.

Meistrolrwydd, s. m. (meistrawl) Mastery.

Meistrolus, a. (meistrawl) Having mastery.

Meityn, s. m. (meidyn) A point of separation; a small space; a space of time. Fy yf yme et y meityn, I have been here a good while.

Meithder, s. m. (maith) Extensiveness; distance.

Meithdra, s. m. (maith) Extensiveness; distance.

Meithedig, a. (maith) Being rendered tedious.

Meithiad, s. m. (maith) A rendering tedious.

Meithiaw, v. a. (maith) To render tedious.

Meithiw, a. (maith) Extensive; tedious.

Meithni, s. m. (maith) Extensiveness, tediousness.

Dew y'r Drindad—

Un Dew a thri, meithni mawr.

God is the Trinity, one God and three, great the comprehension. G. Horethwy.

Meithrin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (maeth—triu) Nurture.

Meithrin, triuwr, at raiid gwy a'rhau,

Meithrin erodwr; a'rhau,

Meithrin y coed o'rh raiid; a'rhau,

Meithrin, maeth y'r coed!

A fosterer, a manager, in time of need the greatest teacher, who nourishes his creatures; the nourishment of the body from the bounty would be had; nourish, and feed the soul. H. D. ab Ior.

Meithrin, v. a. (maeth—triu) To nourish, to rear, to bring up, to educate.

Onawd o egin meithrin das.

From the small shoots a rick is reared. Adge.

Fwy wyr truan mab wrth ffaithia!

Who knows the fate of a child when rearing him! Llywarch B.

Meithrinaeth, s. m. (meithrin) The act or office of nurturing.

Meithrinaw, v. a. (meithrin) To nourish, to rear, to bring up, to educate.

Meithrinawl, a. (meithrin) Nurturing.

Meithrinedig, a. (meithrin) Nurtured, educated.

Meithrines, s. f.—pl. t. au (meithrin) A female who nurtures, or brings up.

Meithrinfa, s. f. (meithrin) A seminary.

Meithringar, a. (meithrin) Nurturing, fostering.

Meithriniad, s. m. (meithrin) A nurturing.

Meithrinwr, s. m.—pl. meithrinwyr (meithrin—gwr) A man who nurtures, or brings up.

Meithrinwraig, s. f.—pl. meithrinwraigedd (meithrin—gwraig) A woman who nurtures.

Meithrinydd, s. m.—pl. a. ion (meithrin) Nurturer.
Meithrinyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (meithrinydd) A woman who nurtures, or brings up.

Meithyn, s. m. dim. (meath) A swarming, a swarming —Orddd.

 Meib meithyn Llywelyn Hafredd.

Orddd., the darling son of Llywelyn with the ruddy blade.
D. Meithyn.

Meiwr, s. m.—pl. meiwyrr (mai—gwr) A man of the field; a warrior.

Cae meiwyrr heb ryddid.

Oidion are men of the field without liberty. Caeu.

Meiwn, s. m. (mai—gwyn) Thorn-apple.

Mel, s. m. (me—el) Honey. Mel y cwn, mel- sugr; mel y cefn, woad; mel y gwennydd, marsh lousewort; also called melang y cwn.

Dorthinab, mai gorseon y mel, a fydd yn ianf.

Wisdom, like the best of the honey, will be at the bottom. Adage.

Mel, s. m. (my—mel) That bounds, starts, or jets.

Melw, v. a. (mel) To gather honey.

Adar a bodant, gwyrn a feint,
Fygod a nodant, prydol a' melant;
Fol path a gwelid i gwynall a' borthant;
Qud cler, ac oedion, a lhadron difwylant.

The birds do fly, the bees collect honey, the fishes swim, reptiles crawl; every thing doth travel to procure its sustenance, except the miser, and laborer, and worthless thief. Buall Beirdd.

Melld, a. (mel) Abounding with honey.

Melidd, a. (mel) Of the nature of honey.

Melain, a. (mel) Abounding with honey.

Melaint, s. m. (melain) A being full of honey.

Melard, s. m. (mel) A collecting of honey; the state of being like honey; sweetness.

Melawg, a. (mel) Having honey. Y felaug, the honey-mistle; melawg y borfa, pasture lousewort

Meldardd, a. (mel—tardd) Mellifluous, mellifluent

Meldwyn, a. (mel—dwyn) Melliferous.

Melen, s. f. (of melyn) Yellow; tawny.

Melengr, s. f. (melen—cu) The dyer's weed.

Melenog, s. f. (pl. t. od (melen)) A linnet.

Melenydd, s. f. (melen) Hawk-weed; also called gwelchlys, and llysiaw yr hebarg.

Melfoch, s. pl. aggr. (mel—moch) Honey swine.

Golythob o gig melfoch.

Stakes of the flesh of bears. li. Peredur—Mabinogion.

Melgan, s. f. (mel—can) A honey song.

Melgawod, s. f. (pl. t. ydd (mel—cawod)) Honeydew

Melged, s. f. (pl. t. ion (mel—ced)) A honey tibat: the sea beet.

O Ddolefer melged a gafai; pedair tanell o fel, pedair mu ya mhob tynell, dwy grenad yn mhob mu, llwyth deurr ar dro-edl yn mhob gram.

Four Dolefers he obtained a tribute of honey: four tuns of honey, four tubs in every tun, two plectrums in each tub, and the head of two men on a pole in every platter. Welch Lwys.

Melgorn, s. m.—pl. melgyrn (mel—corn) A cell of a honeycomb; a honeycomb; also an abscess containing matter like honey.

Ellen gyda ebylln chwyn
Macgryn yn gwastr melgyrn.

Ellen along the boiling boundary of Melgorn squeezing the honey-comb. li. ab Guilynn, i li. Ddu.

Melgranc, s. m. (mel—cranc) An abscess containing thick honey-like matter; also called melgorn.

Melin, s. f. (pl. t. au (mal)) A grinding mill.

Ue o ddi madygrnyddi Ynys Prydain: Coel ab Cynllin ab Caradog ab Bran, a wneith melin rhod ac olwyn gyntaf i geuedi y Cymry.

One of the three useful inventors of the Isle of Britain: Coel ab
Cynllin ab Cynog ab Bran, who made a mill turning by wheel first for the nation of the Cymry. Trioedd.

Melion gwyl, yn mlaen gwyl!
Dy grynch a's dag i'w gorohwy!

The windmills, at the approach of a festival thy assembly will bring them into work. M. ab Rhys.

Melina, s. m. (melin) A going to mill.

Melion thawd ei gwyaos.

His supper is the beggar's going to mill. Adage.

Melina, v. a. (melin) To go to mill.

Dodwch un a'i march—
At gwilio ordiollog dda,
Fai longydd, i felina.

Give me either a horse, or a mare very lazy and good, that is quiet, for to go to mill. G. ab Ll. Fychan.

Melinaw, v. a. (melin) To grind in a mill.

Melinwr, s. m. (melin—gwr) A miller.

Melinydd, s. m. (pl. t. ion (melin)) A miller.

Melinyddes, s. f. (melinydd) A female miller.

Melodi, s. m. (melawd) A dulcified state.

Melota, v. a. (melawd) Honey-gathering.

Melotai, s. f. (melawd) The mallow, or honeyer.

Melred, s. m. (pl. t. ion (mel—rhet)) Mellifluous

Melrediad, s. m. (melred) A flowing of honey.

Melsaig, s. m. (mel—saig) A sweet repast.

Gwell mearg yn rhod no melsaig yn echwyn.

Better a free repast on scorns than a honey-feast on trust. Adage.

Melugn, s. m. (mel—ugn) The lousewort.

Melu, v. a. (mel) To make honey; to honey.

Melus, a. (mel) Of the nature of honey; sweet.

Melusaw, v. a. (melus) To honey; to sweeten.

Melusader, s. m. (melus) Sweetness, lusciousness.

Melwaith, s. m. (mel—gwaith) Mellification.

Melwawd, s. m. (mel—gawd) Honeyed utterance; sweet praise; melody.

Melwi, v. a. (malw) To extend out glibly.

Melwlawg, a. (melwi) Of a gilding nature.

Melwin, s. m. (mel—gwin) Honey wine.

Melwioges, s. f. (melwlawg) A snail; but mostly called malwen, and malwoden.

Melwith, s. m. (mel—gwith) Honey-dew.

Melwr, s. m. (pl. meiwyrr (mel—gwr)) A man who collects honey, a dealer in honey.

Melwraidd, s. m. (mel—gwraidd) Liquorice.

Melyen, s. f. dim. (malw) A snail; also called maluen, melwioges, and mostly maluen.

Melyn, s. m. (pl. t. ion (mel)) Yellow. Melyn yr eithin, the gold-hammer, a bird so called; Mel- yn y gwaf, winter gillyflower; melyn y gwau- wyn, the pilewort; also called Milfyw.

Melyn, a. (mel) Yellow, of a yellow hue; tawny.

Côyr melyn, bees wax; maroch melyn, a light bay horse; Ar y melyn, of a yellowish hue;

melyn yr eithin, or melyn y twynau, common tor-mentil; melyn y gwaf, wild wall-flower; me- lyn y gwauwyn, pilewort.

Iraw llaw ag eil melyn.

To grasp a hand with yellow nails.

Adage.

Melnyach oedd pen Olwen no blodau y banadl; gwynach oedd ei chawd no dystyrch tbn.

The head of Olwen was yellower than the blossoms of the broom; whiter was her skin than the spray of the yew.
li. Cuthwch—Mabinogion.

Melnyaidd, a. (melyn) Somewhat yellow.

Melnyawg, a. (melyn) Abounding with yellow.

Melnyawg y waw, dyer's greenweed.

Melynder, s. m. (melyn) Yellowness.

Melyndra, s. m. (melyn) Yellowness.

Melynddu, s. m. (melyn—du) A yellowish black,
 a tawny colour. a. Tawny, reeky.

Melyndduaw, v. a. (melynddu) To make tawny.

Melynedd, s. m. (melyn) A yellowness.

Melynell, s. m. (melyn) A yellow hue.

*Chae march melynell,
Cauwallt y dydd wrt
Fy march melyngau
Cyfred a gwylan.*

Six steeds of yellow hue, than those a hundred times better is my cream-coloured steed, swift as the sea mew. Taliesin.

Melyneuraidd, s. m. (melyn—enraid) Golden-rod.

Melynfæen, s. m. (melyn—maen) Brimstone.

Melyngan, s. m. (melyn—can) A yellow white.
a. Of yellowish white; cream-coloured.

Melyngoch, s. m. (melyn—coch) A yellow red, orange red. a. Of an orange red.

Melyni, s. m. (melyn) Yellowness; jaundice.

Melyniad, s. m. (melyn) A making yellow.

Melynlas, s. m. (melyn—glas) A yellowish blue.
a. Of a yellowish blue.

Melynlas march Cauwallawn ab Bell.

Yellow-grey the steed of Cauwallawn son of Bell. Trïoedd.

Melynlilai, s. m. (melyn—llai) A yellowish dun colour. a. Of a yellowish dun.

Melynllywd, s. m. (melyn—llwyd) A yellowish brown. a. Of a yellowish brown.

Melynllys, s. f. (melyn—llys) Celandine.

Melynog, s. m. (melyn) That is of a yellow colour; a mulatto; the linet; also called llinos felen, and melenog.

Melynu, v. a. (melyn) To make yellow, to grow yellow.

Melynus, a. (melyn) Tending to be yellow.

Melynewellt, s. m. (melyn—gwellt) Sweet scented vernal grass.

Melynwyl, s. m. (melyn—wy) The yolk of an egg

Melynwyn, s. m. (melyn—gwyn) A yellowish white, a straw-colour. a. Of a yellow white.

Melynydd, s. m. (melyn) Long-rooted cat's ear.

Melys, s. m. (mel) A sweet. a. Sweet, dulcet.

Gwestha mel i brynn peth melys.

Selling honey to buy a sweet thing.

Adage.

Melysai, s. c. (melys) That has sweetness.

Melysaidd, a. (melys) Somewhat sweet.

Melysawg, a. (melys) Abounding with sweet.

Melysawl, a. (melys) Of a sweetening quality.

Melysder, s. m. (melys) Sweetness; gratefulness

Melysdra, s. m. (melys) Sweetness, lusciousness.

Melysodd, s. m. (melys) Sweetness, lusciousness.

Melysi, s. m. (melys) Sweetness, lusciousness.

Melysiad, s. m. (melys) A sweetening, dulcification

Melysiannawl, a. (melysiant) Delicious.

Melysiannu, v. a. (melysiant) To dulcify.

Melysiant, s. m. (melys) Dulcification.

Melysig, a. (melys) Fond of sweet things.

*Gwac fardd, o ddyn gwiw, a fai
Felysig am fel oesi.*

Woe to the bard, an excellent wight, who should be voluptuous with respect to the honey wine. H. ab D. ab I. ab Mlys.

Melysigrwydd, s. m. (melysig) Fondness of sweets

Yr arallwddles Gwnehter a'm gnosdai yn y lle goruchaf; ac ar fy naau yntia ydd oeddi Melysigrwydd a Meiddwedd yn einioedd.

*The lady Frality placed me in the most eminent seat; and on each side of me Voluptuousness and Drunkenness were sitting.
Merchamg Cwyrddrad.*

Melysrwydd, s. m. (melys) Sweetness, sweet taste

Melysu, v. a. (melys) To sweeten; to grow sweet

Melyswedd, s. f. (melys—gwedd) A sweet aspect

Mell, s. m. (my—ell) That shoots out. that is sharp.

Melldith, s. f.—pl. t. ion (mall—tith) A curse.

Rhoddaidd iddo felddith ei fam, I will give him his mother's curse; melldith eu mamau, cursed of their mothers, reprobates.

Melldithiad, s. m. (melldith) A malediction.

Melldithiaw, v. n. (melldith) To curse; to blaspheme, to swear.

Melldithlawg, a. (melldith) Full of cursing.

Melldithlawl, a. (melldith) Cursing; blasphemous

Melldithiedig, a. (melldithiad) Being cursed.

Melldithiwr, s. m.—pl. melldithiwr (melldith—gwr) A carser; a blasphemer.

Melldithrwydd, s. m. (melldith) Cursedness.

Melli, s. m. (mall) Softness, insipidity; a blight.

Mellini, s. m. (mall) Softness; insipidity; a blight.

Mellt, s. pl. aggr. (mell) That be darting, or bolting; lightning. Cynneu mellt, golcneu mellt, taflu mellt, cynneu dreigiau, cynneu gwrthion, to lighten, or to shoot lightning.

Melltaidd, a. (mellt) Of the nature of lightning.

Melltawg, a. (mellt) Abounding with lightning.

Melltau, a. (mellt) Belonging to lightning.

Mellten, s. f. dim. (mellt) A lightning, a thunderbolt.

Melltenaidd, a. (mellten) Like a thunderbolt.

Melltenawl, a. (mellten) Flashing as lightning.

Mellteniad, s. m. (mellten) A flashing of lightning.

Melltenn, v. a. (mellten) To lighten, to flash.

Melltiad, s. m. (mellt) A flashing of lightning.

Melltiaw, v. a. (mellt) To dart lightning.

Melltig, a. (mellt) Struck by lightning, blasted.

Melltigaid, a. (melltig) Accursed, cursed. Melltigaid dlynod, cursed beasts.

Melltigaw, v. a. (melltig) To curse; to make accursed, to blaspheme.

Melltigawl, a. (melltig) Cursing; blaspheming.

Melltigedig, a. (melltig) Cursed, blasted.

Melltigedigawl, a. (melltigedig) Tending to blast.

Melltigedigrwydd, s. m. (melltigedig) Accursedness.

Men, s. m. (me—en) An active principle.

Men, s. f. (mutation of man) A space, a place; a where. adv. Where, at what place.

Men yd las Trahakarn yn Ngharnfynydd.

Where was killed Trahakarn on the mountains of Carn.

Adage.

*O chlyw iu iach lawen
Uchod ei fod yn ei fen.*

If in health and spirits thou shouldst hear of his being dead in his place. G. ab Dyfan.

Mae yw midian, mae yw mae.

An enclosure is a field, a place is a spot. D. Eyd.

Men, s. f.—pl. t. i (my—en) A wain, a cart.

Eyd gwlchio y fen hi a ddwg ei llwyd.

Though the cart creaks it carries its load. Adage.

Mennai, s. f. (men) An open box; a tumbrel.

Celrwn a menai, cerbydau a dal pob an: Mennai, cerbydau a dal heb ardderchafael, oed uchaw yw, with men on gwaith iach.

A tab and a box, a penny is the value of each; a box is worth a penny without advancement, and that is by reason that it has no cover. W. ab Iwan.

Menaid, s. f.—pl. meneidiau (menaid) Cart-load.

Mendy, s. m.—pl. t. au (men—ty) A cart house.

Mened, s. f. (men) That is intellectual.

Menedig, a. (men) Being made intelligent.

Menediw, a. (mened) Of an intellectual nature;
happy, or blessed.

Cara! Gaerwys fan, fenediw deitli.

I love the nymph of Caerwys, of blessed accomplishments. Gwethin.

Menest, s. f. (men—est) The act of serving.

Menestr, s. m.—pl. t. i (menest) One who serves or waits upon; a servitor; a cupbearer.

Gorrwn biesi eidd; bid feneistr pob drud;

Gair teulu yn ygw; Gnaed gwaughywir air tua.

*Glith-ring the top of the lly; let the servitor be bold; the son of a tribe prevails; familiar to the faithful a broken word.
Llywarch Hu.*

*Dywallaw ei feneistr, no fy nagrau,
Corn can enibuddi yn aglyddu.*

Replenish thou, cupbearer, seek not thy death, the hero was houver in the banquet. O. Cyfion.

Menestrawl, a. (menestr) Serving, waiting.
Menestriad, s. m. (menestr) A serving, attending, or waiting upon.
Menestru, v. a. (menestr) To serve, or to wait.

Am bydd Ygeuwin yn gorwystyn;
 Am borth Wyrff yn Menyn menestru.

Around the gates of Ygeuwin conquering; around the gate of Wyrff in Men performing attendance. Gm. Dygheddiang.

Meni, s. m. (men) A carting, a carrying in a cart.
Meniad, s. m. (men) A carrying in a cart.
Menasr, s. m. (men—sær) A cart-wright.
Menty, s. m. dim. (mant) A thin small lip.
Mëu, v. a. (man) To make an impression, to imprint, to work upon, to effect.

Gwired yn ddr yd fela.

Truth is certain to have effect.

Adage.

Rhoed Daw yw a wne—yn lawen harn, ac ystyriaeth; ac yn wne, ac yn talam ar y geion, yn gyfawna ddiwch foddwl.

The gift of God is genius, correcting the judgment and the imagination; and working upon and inclining the heart to a just and a pure thought. Barddas.

Meaw, s. m. (men) The seat of intellect, or soul.
Meawad, s. m. (menw) Intellection; a rendering happy or bleated; a becoming happy.
Menwawl, a. (menw) Intellectual, intellectual, tending to happiness or bliss.
Meuwedig, a. (menw) Being rendered intellectual, bleated.

Un a dei meruwedigio teyrnedd yays Prydain. Brau Fendigaid ac Llyr Llanthorn, a ddysgwys gynaf dydd yn Nghrist i genedi y Cymry a Ewrope, i y b efo salh mlyddu yn ugwyl ei fab Cerdwag.

One of the three sovereigns of the Isle of Britain who conferred blessing, Brau the blessed son of Llyr of barbarous speech, who first brought the faith to Christ to the nation of the Cymry, from Rome, where he had been seven years an hostage for his son Cerdwag. Treudd.

Meawi, v. a. (menw) To render intellectual.
Menwin, a. (menw) Intellectual, intellectual, of a happy or bleated nature.
Menwr, s. m.—pl. menwyr (men—gwr) A carter.
Menwyd, s. m.—pl. t. au (menw) Source of intelligence, intellect, happiness, bleatedness.

Dafydd fab Owain, bryf an-fryd a tbi;
 Yth ddaer-dart awydyd
 Cae curid cerddorion fawdyd;
 O'n trydyr trydydd hael byd.

David the son of Owain, may I be of the same mind with thee; thy highly aspiring mind odious is a restraint on the intellect of minstrels; in our song thou art the third generous one of the world. Gm. Ryfel.

—Dafydd
 Fab Medawg fydder fawdyd diorchudd;
 Fab Merchedd fudd fudd ei ddwydd.

David the son of Medawg, of benign intellect unobscured, the son of Merchedd, of superb benefit his restoration. Bledwyn Fydd.

Ehwy dy cerryd
 Yn ethafodd byd,
 Arthur gadwryd,
 Menwyd Medrawd.

Thy dread is gone to the ends of the world, with the might of Arthur, the talent of Medrod. Gwalchmai, v. F. ab Merchedd.

Lary Einawyn lluchddawn, llochgordd feirddion fab Cynon, clod hawyd.
 Gweth Elenion of splendid gift, thou wouldst cherish bards, thou son of Cynon, famed for intellect. Cynddelw.

Llunharodd i fardd efenwyd.

Unrestricted to the bard his talent. Cynddelw.

Menwyddaid, a. (menwyd) Of intellectual tendency; tending to happiness.
Menwydaw, v. a. (menwyd) To render intellectual; to cause happiness, or bliss; to gladden.
Menwydawg, a. (menwyd) Abounding with intellect; full of happiness, or bliss.
Menwydawl, a. (menwyd) Intellectual; tending to happiness, joy, or bliss; gladdening.
Menwyddedd, s. m. (menwyd) A state of happiness.
Menwyddiad, s. m. (menwyd) A causing happiness, the enjoying of happiness.

Menwydig, a. (menwyd) Enjoying happiness.

Tri menwydigion Daw, gwr, hoddwr, a thrugwr.

The three blessed ones of God, the meek, the peaceful, and the humble. Barddas.

Menwydus, a. (menwyd) Intellectual, intellectual; of a happy or bleated nature.

Manwydusaw, v. a. (menwydus) To render intellectual, or intellectual; to become intellectual; to render happy; to become happy.

Menwyn, s. m. (menw) Gift of the mind; talent.

Gwrd faw gwr, gwrdffar, faw fawyn,
 Ef gwr, fal gwr, yn addwyn.

Of ardent loud shout, ardently wrathful, of great talent, he executes, like a man, bravely. Cynddelw, v. argt. Rhys.

Dan yd run ei rad i roddion byd,
 Balch ei fawyn, belch ei faw.

When he distributes his bounty to the sojourners of the world, proud his talent, proud his attendants. Gwalchmai, v. Nedru.

Menyd, adv. (man—yd) To the place where.

Menyg, s. pl. (maueg) Gloves. Menyg ellylon, or menyg y llwynog, and menyg mair, purple fox-glove; menyg y gog, bladder campion.

Menygawg, a. (menyg) Having gloves, gloved.

Menygwr, s. m. (menyg—gwr) A glover.

Mëyn, s. m. dim. (mân) A mark, or spot.

Mëyniad, s. m. (mëyn) An imprinting.

Mëynmu, v. a. (mëyn) To imprint; to dot.

Mër, s. m.—pl. t. au (my—er) That is dropped off or parted; a particle; that is received.

Mer, s. m.—pl. t. ion (me—er) The marrow.

Mëral, s. f.—pl. mërion (mer) A gutter, a drain.

Mëraidd, a. (mer) Like marrow; marrowy.

Mëraagwrn, s. m. (mer—agwrn) A marrowbone.

Mërawg, a. (mer) Abounding with marrow.

Mërawl, a. (mër) Falling, dropping, or distilling.

Mërawr, s. m. (mer) That drops, or falls down.

Mërch, s. f.—pl. t. ed (my—erch) A woman, a young woman; a daughter.

Ywfan am orochest, er mwyn mërched;
 Nid beth o'i fawen oeth, er ei sythod;
 Mewn orochest, er mwyn mërched;
 Nid beth o'i fawen oeth, er ei sythod.

Striving in a feat, for the sake of women; before him no arrow flew, however swift; nor, in another quarter, the stone down the steep; nor the course of the wind not so swift. Gm. Taw.

Merchaid, a. (merch) Feminine, womanlike.

Merchan, s. f. dim. (merch) A little woman.

Mërched, s. pl. (merch) Women, daughters.

Mërchedaidd, a. (merched) Somewhat effeminate.

Mërchedd, s. m. (merch) Femininity, womanhood.

Mërcheta, v. a. (merched) To go after girls.

Mërchetwr, s. m. (merched—gwr) A wencher.

Mërchin, a. (march) Rising, or towering.

Mërching, a. (merchin) Rising, or towering.

Mërchyn, s. m. dim. (march) A little horse; a nag.

Mërchyr, s. m. (march) Mercury. Dydd Mërchyr, Dyw Mërchyr, Wednesday.

Mërdrain, s. pl. aggr. (mër—drain) Dog-briars.

Mërdwfr, s. m.—pl. mërdwyfroedd (mer—dwfr) Stagnant water.

Mëred, s. m. (mer) A particle, or a drop.

Mëredig, a. (mëred) Being dropped; stupefied.

Piau y gwr rhaco? Mëredig, a wyr, ych! Dros y byd y gwy, pan yw Cwr Ydyddaden Bencwr yw.

Whose the candle yonder? Stupefied are ye, O men! Over the world it is known, for that it is the candle of Ydyddaden Bencwr. H. Culhwch—Mabinogion.

Mëredigaeth, s. m. (mëredig) A flattening, a deadening; a making dull, or stupid.

Mëreiddiad, s. m. (mëraidd) A becoming marrow.

Mëreiddiaw, v. n. (mëraidd) To become marrow.

Mërf, a. (mër) Insipid, flat, tasteless.

Mërfaidd, a. (mërf) Somewhat flat, or insipid.

Mërfdra, s. m. (mërf) Insipidity, flatness.

Merfodig, a. (merf) Being made flat or insipid.
Merfodd, s. m. (merf) Insipidness, flatness.
Merfiad, s. m. (merf) A making flat or insipid.
Merfa, v. n. (merf) To become insipid or flat.
Merhelyg, s. m. (mer—helyg) Yellow willow.
Meriad, v. m. (mër) A rendering flat, a stilling; a becoming flat, or dull; a dropping, a distilling.
Meris, s. m.—pl. t. iau (mër) That drops, trickles, or effuses.

Llafar meriniâu gwyniaŷ gwreidd.

Load the effusions of the passions of women. Phyllip Brydydd.

Merinaw, v. n. (merin) To drop, to fall in drops.
Merinawl, a. (merin) Falling in drops, dropping.
Meriniad, s. m. (merin) A falling in drops.
Merion, s. pl. aggr. (mer) Drops; drippings.
Merl, s. m.—pl. t. od (mer) A little horse, a pony.
Merlen, s. f. dim. (merl) A mare of stunted growth.
Merlyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. od (merl) A horse of the small mountain breed, a pony.
Merlynaldd, a. (merlyn) Like a mountain horse.
Merlys, s. m.—pl. t. iau (mër—llys) Asparagus.
Merllyl, a. (mër) Insipid, dull, flat, tasteless.
Merlydrwydd, s. m. (merlyd) Flatness, insipidity.
Merilyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (mër—llyn) A pool.
Merolaeth, s. m. (merawl) Flatness, insipidity; moisture, humidity; mustiness.
Meroli, v. n. (merawl) To be falling, or dropping; to become flat, soft, or humid.
Meroren, s. f. dim. (merawr) That trails; a tail.
Merth, s. m.—pl. t. au (my—erth) An exhausted state; a necessitous state.

Mi bydd rwydd yd na bo merth.

There will be no prosperity but there will be adversity. Adag.

Merthadwy, a. (merth) Capable of being exhausted, or racked with pain.
Merthawl, a. (merth) Exhausting, racking.
Merthedd, s. m. (merth) An exhausted state.
Merthi, s. m. (merth) A state of exhaustion.
Merthiad, s. m. (merth) An exhausting; a racking.
Merthin, a. (merth) Tending to wear out.
Merthrwydd, s. m. (merth) An exhausted state.
Merthu, v. a. (merth) To exhaust, to wear out.
Merthus, a. (merth) Tending to exhaust; racking.
Merthyr, s. m.—pl. t. on (marth) That is made plain or laid open; a plain or clear spot; a martyr. Dyn wedi dydddef merthyr creulawn, a person who has suffered a cruel wound.
Merthyaeth, s. m. (merthyr) A martyrology.
Merthyrail, s. c. (merthyr) One who martyrs.
Merthyrawl, s. m. (merthyr) A martyring.
Merthyrawl, a. (merthyr) Relating to martyrdom.
Merthyrdawd, s. m. (merthyr) Martyrdom.
Merthyredig, a. (merthyr) Being martyred.
Merthyrriad, s. m. (merthyr) A martyring.
Merthyrolaeth, s. m. (merthyrawl) Martyrdom.
Merthyr, a. a. (merthyr) To martyr. Darfu y ci ei ferthyr yn erchyll, the dog did tear him terribly. Mon.
Merthyrwr, s. m.—pl. merthyrwyr (merthyr—gwr) One who martyries.
Mere, v. n. (mër) To drop, or to distil.

Ni chyllid o gammawn yn i ferai waed.

He would not retreat from conflict until blood should drop. Anonim.

Merw, a. (mer) Tingling, or pricking.
Merwadd, a. (merw) Somewhat tingling.
Merwin, s. m. (merw) A tingling, a pricking, occasioned by a cold.
Merwinad, s. m. (merwin) A tingling.

Merwinaw, v. a. (merwin) To tingle, or to prick.

Pontyfent llyluu eu llyfau athrawon, gae fad eu chlust y merwinaw.

They shall collect together to themselves teachers, for that their ears shall be tingling. 2 Timothy, t. 2.

Merwinawd, s. m. (merwin) A tingling.
Merwinawl, a. (merwin) Tending to tingle.
Merwindawd, s. m. (merwin) A tingling.
Merwindeb, s. m. (merwin) A tingle, a pricking.
Merwinedig, a. (merwinad) Being tingled.
Merwinedd, s. m. (merwin) A tingling state.
Merwydd, s. pl. (mer—gwydd) Mulberry trees.
Merwydden, s. f. (merwydd) A mulberry tree.
Merwys, s. m.—pl. t. od (mer—gwy) The eagle, or the blackbird.

Llew merwys yn fwl mawrion.

Of the colour of the blackbird being large eagles. Y. Alad, i phlain ddu.

Môr fad a'r merwys ydydd.

So goodly as the eagle art thou. T. Alad.

Nid un gwynion don merwydd.

Not one will contend with the note of the blackbird. D. Rhabar.

Meryd, v. a. (mër) To drop, or to distil.
Merydd, s. m. (mër) That is flat, or low; that is flaccid, drooping, or sluggish; a wet place; a plash; a slug; a sluggard; a harder; also the sea matweed; otherwise called workag, and merydd y mor.

Tro wadd ein bechedd o bechedd merydd.

Turn the course of our life from slothful sin. D. Dda, Aor Mar.

Gwadd merydd yn mor.

A plash is usual in the plain. Adag.

Mle Tachwedd tuchan merydd.

In the month of November the sluggish grants. Anonim.

Merydd, a. (mër) Being flat, or low; being flaccid, or sluggish; humid, moist. Pechedd merydd, a slothful sin; card merydd, a rupture; dufr merydd, stagnant water. Rhafein ferydd, sluggish Rome.

Cad yn Iwerddon, dirion drefydd, Can a'i canu ni fe ferydd.

A battle in Ireland, of pleasant towns, such as beheld it could not be sluggish. Rhys.

Brofedd yr wybr ferydd A wneith iei dori dydd.

The braying of the humid sky made us to break up the day. D. a Gwyl.

Nid un gwaet af fwrdd: nid un gwaet ferydd—a'r cyfyll.

Not of the same cost his table; not of the same waste than is the miser. Y. Alad.

Meryddawl, a. (merydd) Of a humid nature.
Meryn, s. m. dim. (mer) A drop, or a particle.
Meryswydden, s. f. (mer—gwydd) The medlar tree.

Meryw, s. pl. aggr. (mer—yw) Juniper wood; also called eithnyw.

Mai marwor, neu rador yw Ym, o diria o'r meryw.

Like the embers, or more it is to me, of the fire of the juniper. W. Middleton, P. 126.

Gedrian, fel llymion merthau cawr, Ynglyd a marwawr meryw.

Words like the sharp arrows of agilest warriors, joined to the embers of juniper. Edm. Fry, P. 126.

Merywen, s. f. (meryw) Common juniper.

Ely yn gorwedd, ac yn cygan daa y ferywen, wela angel i ffyddol ag ef.

He lying down, and sleeping under a juniper tree, beheld an angel stand before him. i Elyw, th. 4.

Mes, s. pl. aggr. (my—es) A portion, a meal; mast, or acorns. It is a common tradition that this fruit, as well as fern roots, was a substitute for bread, amongst the Britons.

Mesa, v. a. (mes) To gather acorns or mast.
Mesawg, a. (mes) Abounding with acorns.
Mesawl, a. (mes) Of the nature of acorns.
Mesbren, s. m.—pl. t. au (mes—pren) An acorn tree, or the acorn bearing oak.

Myan traglew, May Row mynawer, Macnus wedi mein-gau felch mesbren.

A person brave to excess, the courteous lion of the plain, in the white capulans after the fine sleek steeds of the acorn tree.
Cynddylu, m. l. pl. Cynddylu.

Mesen, s. f. dim. (mes) An acorn, one acorn.
Meseng, s. f. dim. (mesen) A small acorn.
Mesfrain, s. m.—pl. mesfrainian (mes—braint)
 The privilege of acorns, or pannage.
Mesglyn, s. m. dim. (maeg) a shell, or a hull.

Rhaid trefi y mesglyn cyn cael y cernwllyn.

It is necessary to crack the shell to get the kernel. Adage.

Mesig, a. (mes) That may be chewed, or eaten.
Mesigaw, s. a. (mesig) To masticate; to eat.

*Affalon beren biborig
 Metyn ei macen, nid maen a'i mesig.*

Sweet apple-tree full of shoots, yellow its fruit, which the multitude shall not chew. Merdin.

Mesobr, s. m. (mes—gobr) A pannage due.

Sef yw mesobr, o calf gwr foch yn ei roed, o'r pummed dydd cry gur! Ffiangel hyd y pummed dydd wedi culan gansf, llydded y ddaig o boyst.

A pannage means this, if a man finds swine in his wood, from the 4th day before the feast of Saint Michael until the 15th after the calend of winter, let him kill the teeth of them. Welsh Laws.

Meswig, s. m. (mes—wig) A meal of acorns.

Gall meswig o'm coll fy hys, so gollwg o gall'au.

Sweeter an acorn meal from my own pearch, than an honey repeat from the parlor of another. Adage.

Mest, s. m. (mes) A portion of food or a meal.

Mestyg, s. m. (mest) What is chewed.

*Hyd ddaigau gwan gyfng.
 Rhedw meddylly meles eu mestyg,
 Meles agnus, angylauag ei faw!
 Ei fawred ni ddiwyg.*

The spirital leader of vigorous heroes, whose masticatory was the sweet intoxicating spiced-plant, ministers of death, unswallowed was it that he should die! his death cry shall not be wanting.
Cynddylu, m. O. Cynndylu.

Mesur, s. m.—pl. t. au (mes—ur) A measure; a rule; a metre; a tune. Mesur haul, the setting forth a cause, in law; o ferur cam a cham, step by step: Mel y mae yr adar man yn lori mesurau! how the little birds are pouring out strains!

Nid oes un mesur yn golyf cymaloch awyrlloant ar yr aenlo, se yr eiddyn, no'r bannu ar y gyfdeidd llo.

There is no measure that demands a more accurate diversity of the accents, and the paces, than the verses on the smooth metric.
Bardd.

Mesur, v. a. (mes—ur) To allot a share; to mete.

Mesurawl, a. (mesur) Measurable, mensurable.

Mesuraw, v. a. (mesur) To allot a measure.

Mesurawl, a. (mesur) Relating to measure.

Mesurwedig, a. (mesur) Being measured.

Mesurwedigaeth, s. m. (mesurwedig) Measurement.

Mesurawg, s. f. (mesur) The science of mensuration; geometry.

Mesurawgl, a. (mesurawg) Geometrical.

Mesuren, s. f. (mesur) A canon of measure.

*Scrion awdar mesuren,
 Bardd Brytys—*

Scrion the author of proody, the bard of Brutus. D. Benwyn.

Mesuriad, s. m. (mesur) Measuring; marjorum.

Mesuriath, s. m. (mesur) Mensuration.

Mesuriant, s. m. (mesur) Admeasurement.

Mesurwr, s. m. (mesur—gwr) A measurer.

Mesurydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mesur) A measurer.

Mesuryddawl, a. (mesurydd) Mensural.

Mesuryddiaeth, s. m. (mesurydd) Mensuration.

Mesyrr, s. m. (mes) That is a portion or meal.

Mesyryd, s. m. (mesyr) Pannage food; the last quarter, or autumn.

*Ystraw pur i fyw, porfeydd ychyd,
 Yd, hraws mesyryd, mes lwydd,
 A'r pyg irion o'r afonydd.*

A fair scheme to live, pastures together, corn, the fruit of autumn, the most of luxuriant woods, and the fresh fishes out of the rivers. T. Alad.

Mettel, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (med—tel) Metal.

*Glow addid glow osodau
 Rhyfel wyt, y mettel mau.*

The brave wheel of the bright assembly of war aridion, my trusty mettel. D. ab Gwilym, y m. giddyf.

Mettelaid, a. (mettel) Like metal, metallic.

Mettelawg, a. (mettel) Abounding with metal.

Metteleiddiad, s. m. (mettelaid) A turning like metal, a becoming as metal.

Metteleiddawl, v. a. (mettelaid) To turn to metal

Mettelid, s. m. (mettel) A turning to metal.

Metteln, v. a. (mettel) To turn to metal.

Metteln, a. (mettel) Of the nature of metal.

Mettelwr, s. m.—pl. mettelwyr (mettel—gwr) A metallurgist, a worker of metals.

Mettelwriaeth, s. m. (mettelwr) Metallurgy.

Mettelydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mettel) Metallurgist.

Mettelyddiaeth, s. m. (mettelydd) Metallurgy.

Mettelyn, s. m. dim. (mettel) A piece of metal.

Moth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (my—eth) A fail; a miss.

*Pam y gwnaeth a'i feth fethion burch ddiidfaith;
 Pa wath ddiidfaith addaw eiddon!*

Why made he that reared thee the abortions of a barren cow; what a turn of the truth of language to promise a breast!
M. Dwygwg.

Methadwy, a. (meth) Failable; perishable.

Methawl, a. (meth) Failing, abortive, missing.

Methdaith, s. f.—pl. methdeithian (meth—taith)

A fruitless journey.

Gward mynych awn i methdaith.

There will be a frequent let us go to a fruitless journey. Adage.

Methdal, s. m. pl. t.—ion (meth—tal) Nonpayment

Methdaliad, s. m. (methdal) A nonpayment.

Methdaliaw, v. n. (taliaw) To miss fire.

Methdaliad, s. m. (triniad) A mismanagement.

Methedig, a. (meth) Being failable; infirm; decayed, decrepid, invalid, unsuccessful. Meth- edigion, invalids.

Methedigaeth, s. m. (methedig) A state of falling.

*A hwynt a'i llyr trun a wnaeth
 O'u methedigaeth allan.*

And then by his word he drew out of their over.
Edm. Frys, Pt. 107.

Methenw, s. m.—pl. t. au (meth—enw) A misnomer

Methenwl, v. a. (methenw) To misname.

Methfaanach, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (meth—faanach)

A bankruptcy.

Methfrawd, s. f.—pl. methfrodau (meth—brawd)

A fallacious judgment or sentence.

Methgais, s. m. (meth—gais) A falling attempt.

Methgoel, s. f. (meth—goel) A misbelief.

Methgylawriad, s. m. (cyflawniad) A nonperformance; a nonfulfilment.

Methiad, s. m. (meth) A falling, a missing.

Methiannawl, a. (methiant) Tending to fail.

Methiannu, v. n. (methiant) To become failing.

Methiannus, a. (methiant) Of fallible nature.

Methiannusaw, v. n. (methiannus) To become fallible; to prove abortive; to become perishable

Methiannusurwydd, s. m. (methiannus) A state of failing; abortiveness; perishableness.

Methiant, s. m. (meth) A failure, a defect; decay

Ig ar blentyn cyflant, ar henddyn methiant.

A hiccup on a child is a strengthening, on the old man debility.
Adage.

Methiantus, a. (methiant) Of a fallible nature.
Methineb, s. m. (meth) A failure, a missing.
Methl, s. m.—pl. methilion (meth) A foil, or defeat; an embarrassment, or perplexity.

*Erdorchawg ddaflhawg o Deyfaant ragor
 Rhag ygor euraidd,
 Ni bu fedd, i d be fethiant,
 Ni bu fagawd methl Morgant.*

*Who wore the golden wreath more seemly than Did he of Devon, at the hostile camp?
 With steeds not pampered as for vain parade
 Was Morgant, never foiled, nor apt to fail.
 Cynddelw, i ddafl O. Gwynedd.*

Methledd, s. m. (methl) Embarrassment.
Methliad, s. m. (methl) An embarrassing, a deceiving; an entangling.
Methlig, a. (methl) Tending to embarrass.
Methlu, v. a. (methl) To embarrass, to entangle.

Or gwrthwyneba neb fara yr ysgand llyu, rhoddent eu daa wyal yn llaw y brein; ac o methl yr ysgand llyu, difarnedig fydd ei air: a thaled werth ei ddaflw'r brein.

If any one shall controvert the sentence of the judge of the palace, let the two give a pledge in the hand of the king; and if the judge of the palace shall be foiled, his word shall be of no force; and let him pay the price of his tongue to the king.
Welsh Laws.

Methlus, a. (methl) Embarrassing, entangling.
Methlwr, s. m.—pl. methlwyr (methl—gwr) An embarrasser; one who ensnares.
Methloed, s. m. (meth—oed) Decline of life.
Methloedran, s. m. (methloed) Decline of age.
Methu, v. n. (meth) To fail; to miss; to become abortive; to miscarry; to decay. Methu beichlogi, to miscarry of a child.
Methwr, s. m.—pl. methwyr (meth—gwr) A failer, a misser, a miscarrier.
Meuad, s. m. (man) A taking to one's self.
Meudwy, s. m.—pl. t. od (man—twy) That is self-governed, or self-corrected: a hermit.
Meudwyad, s. m. (meudwy) A recluse life.
Meudwyaeth, s. m. (meudwy) A life of a hermit.

*Gwrthawd coron ffurthlon fraeth,
 A dewla y feudwyaeth.*

Refusing a crown prosperous and elegant, and choosing the hermit life.
H. Daf, i Gyneg.

Meudwyaid, a. (meudwy) Like a hermit.

*Bwyd y macwy meudwyaid
 Berw hollt, bera o'r haid;
 Ei ddlaed, gnaid ddeirin,
 Y dwr gwyn.*

The food of the self-correcting youth the rock sphamre, bread of the barley; his drink, fair diving, the crystal water.
L. G. Colki, i I. Fyddidwr.

Meudwyaw, v. n. (meudwy) To live as a hermit.
Meudwyawl, s. m. (meudwy) Hermitical.
Meudwyes, s. f.—pl. t. au (meudwy) A hermitess.
Meudwyfan, s. f. (meudwy—man) A hermitage.
Meudwyfod, s. f. (meudwy—bod) A hermitage.
Menedig, a. (meuad) Being taken to one's self; being possessed; possessed; rich.

Rhag Prydain wledig—Llyngosodd menedig.

Before the sovereignty of Britain were Scots enriched. Taliesin.

Menedd, s. m. (man) Possession, or inheritance.

Nid menedd ond aswyn Dau.

There is no wealth like the blessing of God.
Adage.
*Bardd hardd eblaeth, bardd all methl-fach medd,
 A menedd merchogwaeth.*

A hard handsome and comprehensive, a bard greatly nourished by mead, and the talent of chivalry.
Cynddelw, m. Bledwyn Ferdd.

*Llywydd gwir, a thir, yn ei threfud;
 Llywydd gwledd, a medd, a meuedd mad.*

May air and earth give prosperity in his habitation; prosperous be the feast, and the mead, and the goodly possession.
Llywelyn Ferdd, i Ddewyn.

*E'm enghera!—
 A'i ar rhudd, a'i fudd, a'i fessedd.*

He would present me with his ruddy gold, and his benefit, and his possession.
L. P. Mech.

*Can digones Dau an ddafl ferdd,
 Yn ddafl, yn ddafl,
 Gwr a'n gwaeth a'i gwledd am ddafl
 Trugardd, cyn meudd mablen.*

Since God has accomplished our feeding short life is beauty, its splendor, may he that made us cause it to be for us in hurry, before the inheritance of the tomb.
(Cynddelw.)

Meufedd, s. m. (man—medd) Self-possession.
Mew, s. m. (my—ew) A mew, a cat's cry.
Mewiad, s. m. (mew) A mewing, a crying as a cat.
Mewian, v. a. (mew) To mew, to cry as a cat.
Mewn, prep. (me—wn) Within, in; adv. Within.
in. Dos mewon pryd, go in time. Pryd sy mewon?
who is within? And i mewon, let him go in.

Dy fydd a'i h godwedd; ac an hyn ymde mewon hoddwech, a mewyadlun sylfawr lonyddwech.

Thy faith hath preserved thee; and therefore depart in peace, and enjoy perfect tranquillity.
Merchawg Cwmpwrdd.

Mewnawl, a. (mewn) Inward, internal.
Mewnoldeb, s. m. (mewnawl) Internality.
Mewyd, s. m. (me—gwyd) Idleness, laziness.

*Ni weryd mewyd mliwrtheth:
 Gur a'n gylt ni a gwerddweth,
 Gwledd ff, gwledd ymdd.*

Idleness will not excuse warfare: He that holds as with providence, may he behold, then I shall be beholden.
Cynddelw.

Mewyda, v. a. (mewyd) To idle, or to lounge.
Mewydaidd, a. (mewyd) Somewhat idle, or lazy.
Mewydaw, v. a. (mewyd) To act idly: to be idle.
Mewydawl, a. (mewyd) Of an idle tendency.
Mewydedd, s. m. (mewyd) Idleness, laziness.
Mewydrwydd, s. m. (mewyd) Idleness, laziness.
Mewydus, a. (mewyd) Of an idle disposition.
Mewydnaw, r. (mewydus) To become lazy.
MI, s. m. r. That is in or identic. pron. Me. It is also used adverbially, as the agent in the first person of verbs. Mi wn, for gwn, I know.

Gware mi trech.

The game of I conquer.

Adage.

Gwell mi gilleu noch efe a laddwyd.

Better is I fled than he has been slain.

Adage.

Ennill mi hwa a choillt mi hn.

To gain the honour of saying I attacked, and lose I triumphed.
Adage.

*Mi, ym fedd, wyf diamryson
 O'r prif feirdd, ym prif gyfyllion.*

I, in my principle, am without strife with the chief bards, my chief of friends.
L. P. Mech.

Miar, s. f.—pl. mieri (my—iar) A bramble.
Miaren, s. f. (miar) A briar; a bramble; miaren y Berwyn, or miaren Drywan, mountain bramble.

Cynt y gwmp dar no miaren o ffaen y gwyd.

Sooner will the oak fall than the bramble before the wind.
Adage.

Mic, s. f.—pl. t. ion (mig) A hoot; spite, or pique. Dra fic, out of spite; a fic i m., out of spite to one: Gware mic yng uddiawg, the play of hide and seek.

*Caet oedd raid—
 Cyffion, or mic i offera.*

I was necessary to have confession, in spite, to be.
L. ab H. ab I. ab G. ab Gwata.

Micas, s. m. (mic) Bread steeped in any liquid.
Miciad, s. m. (mic) A hooting; a spitting.
Miciaw, v. a. (mic) To hoot; to spite; to be piqued.
Micws, s. m. ddm. (mic) That shoots out; spray.
Micws diaed, the froth of liquor.
Mich, s. f. (my—ich) A squeal, or a squeak.
Michdan, v. a. (mich) To squeal, or to squeak.
Mid, s. m.—pl. mitian (my—ld) An enclosure, or a hem round; a list, or place of combat; also a shallow vessel, a maid. Llonsid mid o gwern, a maid-full of ale. a. Champaign.

Yn addaf tangwyl colldd
Addaf, yd hootw law yn dydd mid.

In the habitation of peace those wouldst keep a habitation, though those hast been brave in the day of the field. Tallies.

Chaf wyd—
Call araf walk, colli'r sd.

Those art hurt, those discreet and gentle hawk, for losing the field. D. Ll. Mathen.

Midded, s. m. (mid) The state of being enclosed, hemmed in, or surrounded.

Middad, s. m. (mid) An enclosing, or hemming in.

Middan, s. (mid) Belonging to the field or list.

Middan, s. f.—pl. t. an (mid—llan) An enclosed plain, or area; a list for tournaments.

Gwasd rochw rhag marchwyr middan.

Host is the car before the knight of the field. Cynddalo.

Midd, s. m.—pl. t. an (my—idd) An enclosed place.

Middi, s. m. (midd) A pit or pool in a river, where fish resort to. Llynyn middi, llynyn enwrio, llynyn pysgota, a fishing-line.

Mieraw, s. (miar) Abounding with brambles.

Mieri, s. pl. aggr. (miar) Brambles, briers.

Cae myllwyr mieri.

The rams dislike the briers. Adagr.

Mieriaw, s. (mieri) Abounding with briers.

Mieriallwyn, s. m.—pl. t. i (mieriell—llwyn) A bramble bush.

Mieriell, s. f. (mieri) A bramble, a brier.

Mieria, s. (miar) Of the bramble; brier.

Mieriallwyn, s. m.—pl. t. i (mieriell—llwyn) A bramble bush.

Mig, s. f.—pl. t. ion (my—ig) A hoot; spite; pique; animosity. Mig ymguddiau, the play of hide and seek, the seeker being hoodwinked, and the other crying out mig, or hoop.

Idd pŵyl yn guddio.

Idd chware, a chwaren mig.

I am privately courting her, like playing at ho-pee. G. B. L. ad Ll. Ffynon.

Mig, s. (my—ig) Hooting, hooping. Dylfennig, a hooting owl.

Migedd, s. m. (mig) A hooting; spitefulness.

Migen, s. f.—pl. t. au (mig) That oozes; a boggy place; also a bad ulcer, with holes or cavities.

Migad, s. m. (mig) A hooting; a spiting.

Migain, v. a. (mig) To make a hooting.

Gwyth gwet gwylid migain.

Impetuous the wind meeting the woods. Llywarch Hen.

Migaw, v. a. (mig) To hoat; to spite.

Mia'n y byd gyd agyrbach.

Dy hawer, a hawer's march.

It is intended when a spiting takes place, to wounding thee, and to hoat the horse. D. Ll. Def. ad Ouch.

Migawl, s. (mig) Hooting; spiteful.

Migwr, s. m.—pl. migwyr (mig—gwr) A hooter.

Mign, s. c.—pl. mignedd (mig) A bog, a quag.

Lle ni bydd pŵyl a fidd mign.

Where there shall not be a quag there will be a stone. Llywarch Hen.

Mignad, s. m. (mign) A turning to a bog.

Mignaw, v. n. (mign) To become a bog.

Mignawg, s. (mign) Abounding with bogs.

Mignawl, s. (mign) Boggy, or quaggy.

Mignedd, s. m. (mign) Boggy, quaggy.

Mignen, s. f. dwn. (mign) A bog, a quag.

Mignad, s. m. (mign) A becoming boggy.

Migawern, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (mign—gwern) A boggy meadow.

Migus, s. (mig) Hooting; full of spite, despiteful, malicious.

VOL. II.

Migusaw, v. a. (migus) To act spitefully; to become spiteful, or malicious.

Migusodd, s. m. (migns) Spitefulness; malice.

Miguswydd, s. m. (migns) Spitefulness.

Migwern, s. f. (mig—gwern) A boggy meadow.

Migwrn, s. m.—pl. migwrnau (mig—gwern) A joint, or knuckle; the ankle joint, the ankle.

Gwell migwrn o wr go mynydd o wrig.

Better a sprig of a man than a mountain of a woman. Adagr.

Migwyn, s. m. (mig—gwyn) White bog-moss.

Migymguddiau, v. a. (mig—ymguddiau) To play at hide and seek.

Migyrnawg, s. (migwrn) Having knuckles; large-knuckled; having large ankle joints.

Migyrniad, s. m. (migwrn) The growing out of a knuckle, or ankle.

Migyrnu, v. n. (migwrn) To grow out as a knuckle, or ankle.

Mil, s. m.—pl. t. od (mi—il) A living agent; an animal, a beast.

Gores un mil march.

The best of any one animal a horse. Adagr.

Gores un anifail bewch; gores un ygrubd dafad.

The best of any animal is a cow; the best of any beast is a sheep. Adagr.

Gwae y mil ni wyl ei berchen.

Miserable the animal that perceives not his owner. Adagr.

Yr awg—

Glanaf un mil a luanwyd.

The salmon, the cleanest animal that was formed. D. ad Gwilym.

Mil chwyrdd yw mai wylwyrwyt.

A beast quick as the wind of heaven. J. Tew Hen, i fwrch:

Mil, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (my—il) A thousand. Deg-can-mil o floedd, ten hundred thousand of thousands.

Milaid, s. (mil) Of an animal nature.

Coadorth fild y ydd gyt o rithwys mo mi: mi af yn gyfarwydd rhagoch yno.

There is an animal species which has appeared before me: I will go as a guide before you there. H. Culuch—Mabinglon.

Milaidd, s. (mil) Like an animal, brutish.

Milain, s. m. (mil) That is of the nature of an animal; a brute, a villain.

Gwasd mab tŷr yn fild.

The son of the hard-dealer is generally brutish. Adagr.

Ou gwrthod, llw'r gwyn.

Was a'i feyn gwynau.

Cal i' fild ardygath.

A fo gwrthod ei gynneddau.

The hue of the foam, albeitest thou refuse a youth with his yellow locks, thou shalt have a villain bound to the plough, who may be of worse qualities. Gw. Tew.

Milain, s. (mil) Full of the nature of an animal or beast; brutish; cruel; froward, sullen, stubborn.

Gwynt o'r dwymin, gelya milain.

Wind from the East is an inveterate foe. Adagr.

Ni ba fwy lladron—

No gwreiddid Llondin garabetolach.

No gwr un fowc garulieinach.

No gwr Cae.

Never were there greater thieves; nor the women of London more voracious; nor men of the same kidney more stubbornly brutish than the men of Chester. L. G. Cethi.

Milan, s. m. (mil) A brutish or stubborn one.

Milast, s. f.—pl. mileist (mil—gast) A greyhound bitch.

Milawg, s. (mil) Having the nature of a beast.

Milawr, s. m. (mil) That is relating to; one who is military, a warrior.

Milcanmil, s. m.—pl. milorion (milcant—mil) A hundred millions.

Milcanfed, s. m. (milcant) A hundred thousandth part. a. Hundred thousandth part.

Milcant, s. m. (mil—cant) One hundred thousand
2 X

Milcerdd, s. m. (mil—cerdd) A millepede.
Mildraethawd, s. m. (mil—traethawd) Zoology.
Mildraethodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mildraethawd)
 A zoologist, or one who describes animals.
Mildraethodyn, s. m. (mildraethawd) A treatise on zoology.
Milddail, s. f. (mil—dail) Common, or milford yarrow; also called lysian y gwaelin, milfyd, milfydd, and minfel.
Miled, s. m. (mil) An animal of the chase.

*Nid wyf enhydd, miled at chadwaf,
 Ni allaf ddarymdd;
 Tra fo da gas gog caued:*

I am no hunter, I keep no animal of the chase; I cannot move about: as long as it seems good to the cuckoo let her sing.
Llynwarch Hen.

Miledawr, s. m.—pl. miledorion (miled) One who chases an animal; one who is military.
Miledd, s. m. (mil) Brutishness; animal nature.
Mileiddlaw, v. n. (millaidd) To become brutalized.
Mileindref, s. f.—pl. t. i (milain—tref) A township, under villain socage tenure.
Mileingar, a. (milain) Of a ferocious nature.
Mileingarwch, s. m. (mileingar) Ferociousness.
Mileiniad, s. m. (milain) A brutalizing.
Mileiniaw, v. n. (milain) To become brutish, or cruel; to be obstinate; to persist firmly.
Mileinig, a. (milain) Brutish; ferocious.
Milfed, s. f. (mil) A thousandth. a. Thousandth.
Milfedawl, a. (milfed) Millesimal.
Milfedran, s. f. (milfed—rhan) Thousandth part.
Milfli, s. f. (mil repeated) A thousand thousands,
 or a million.
Milfwydd, a. (mil—blwydd) Millennial.
Milfwyddawl, a. (milfwydd) Millennial.
Milfwyddiant, s. m. (milfwydd) Millennium.
Milfyd, s. f. (mil—byd) The figwort.
Milfyw, s. f. (mil—byw) Pilewort; also called y fronwyns, melyn y gwaenwyn, gwenith y ddair, llygad Ebrill, llygad y ddyniaued.
Milgi, s. m.—pl. milgwn (mil—ci) A greyhound.

Cenue milgi a morwyn at chelf eu mwys a'u moco.

A greyhound cub and a maid shall not be enjoyed by those who rear them. Adage.

*Gnotach nad milgwn tynti,
 Ond gwaith, neu gwaithau gwynt.*

Probably they are not greyhounds, but hawks, or messengers of the wind. Gule y Glyn.

Milgialld, a. (milgi) Like a greyhound.

Ardal dwyn hoerwl Dinmlwy—Milgialld ei gwyr yn mhob tramwy.

The deep tranquil region of Dinmlwy, like the greyhound, its men in every course. Ll. F. Meek.

Milhanes, s. m.—(mil—hanes) Zoology.
Milhanesydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (milhanes) Zoologist Milhiast, s. f.—pl. milleist (mil—gast) A grey-bound bitch.

Ni cheif milhiast groen ar ei ennil, oni bydd hi yn dorawg o ligi a canillodd groen.

A greyhound bitch shall not obtain a skin though she should win it, unless she is with pups from a greyhound, which has won a skin. Cyfritha Bely.

Nitplyg, s. m. (mil—plyg) A thousand-fold.
Milred, s. f.—pl. t. ion (mil—rhed) A millepede.
Milrith, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mil—rith) A fetus.
Milrym, s. m. (mil—grym) The woodsage.
Miltir, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mil—tir) A mile.
Miltroed, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mil—troed) Millepede.
Miltroediawg, a. (miltroed) Of a thousand feet.
Millas, a. (mil) Of an animal nature, brutal.
Milwaith, s. m. (mil—gwaith) A thousand times.
Milwr, s. m.—pl. milwyr (mil—gwr) A warrior.

Gorchestion milwyr drygu am y gorra.

The exploits of warriors are, who can cause the greatest evil. Adage.

Milwraidd, a. (milwr) Warrior-like; warlike.
Milwri, s. m. (milwr) A warrior's life; warfare.
Milwriad, s. m.—pl. milwriad (milwr) One who commands a thousand men; a colonel.
Milwriadaeth, s. m. (milwriad) A colonelship.
Milwriaeth, s. m. (milwr) Warfare, or war.

*Cymeral cyngor rydd a'i wydd, pa wodd yd ymladdys ag eu gwydd; a pha anawdd i hoddys i gaffael y tir; ac yno y daethodd Boli, pentraen Cawallion, a thryswag of dorymest;
 a thwy cyngor y gwr hwas y gweydd pob peth yn y dorymest.*

He took counsel with his select men, in what manner they should fight with their enemies; and by what means they should hinder their having a landing; and thereupon came Boli, the head of the family of Cawallion, and the leader of his army; and through the advice of that person every thing was conducted in the kingdom. Gr. ab Arthur.

Milwriaethawl, a. (milwriaeth) Relating to a military life; relating to warfare.
Milwriaethiad, s. m. (milwriaeth) The acting a military character.
Milwriaethu, v. a. (milwriaeth) To act a military character.
Milwriaethus, a. (milwriaeth) Respecting a military character.
Milwriaw, v. a. (milwr) To carry on warfare.
Milwrus, a. (milwr) Warrior-like; militant.
Milwydd, s. m. (mil—gwydd) Camomile.
Milyn, s. m. dim. (mil) A little animal.
Mill, s. f.—pl. t. ion (my—ill) The violet.

Mor berallid a'r mill.

As fragrant as the violet.

Adage.

Millfeillion, s. pl. (mill—meillion) White trefol.
Miltir, s. f.—pl. t. odd (miltir) A mile. Miltir
Ffreinig, a French mile.

Measures Dyfnwal with hyd groen hadd: tri hyd y groen hadd yn y foffedd; tair modfedd yn fied y balf; tri fied y balf yn y droedfedd; tair troedfedd yn y can; tri cham yn y said; tri naid yn y tir; a mil o dir, neu o ryma a was fflitir.

*Dyfnwal measured by the length of a barley corn: the three lengths of a grain of barley in a thumb breadth; three inches in the breadth of the palm; the three breadths of the palm in a foot;
 three feet in a pace; three paces in a leap; three leaps in a furlong;
 and a thousand furlongs or ridges make a mile.* Welsh Law.

Millyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. ion (mill) A violet.
Min, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mi—in) A margin, a brink, or edge; a sharp edge; the lip, or mouth, in poetical language. Min nŷs, the edge of night, the evening twilight; min y ffordd, the way side; yn min, hard by.

Byw wrth fin y cleddyf.

Living by the edge of the sword.

Adage.

Minawd, s. m. (min) A making an edge.
Mincoca, v. a. (mincog) To pop with the lips.
Mincocaeth, s. m. (mincog) A popping of the lips.
Mincog, s. m. (min—cog) A pop with the lips.
Mindag, s. f. (min—tâg) The lampas.
Minddu, s. m. (min—du) A black edge. a. Black-edged; black-lipped. Minddu manddl, children's play, wherein one turns his face away from another, who lifts up one or two fingers, and the first guesses at the number.

Mined, s. m. (min) An edging, or an edge.
Minedd, s. m. (min) Edginess, the edge part.
Minfel, s. m. (min—mél) The honey of the lip;
 the yarrow.

Minfelys, a. (minfel) Sweet-mouthed; dainty.
Minfin, a. (min repeated) Edge to edge; lip to lip; kissing.

*Oedd helich gwelich gwelid ei wairn:
 Oedd clywd cleddyfau fân.*

Heroes were dute to seeing his host; sword's edge to edge was heard. D. Bonfron, i Sgwyrth ll.

Minfys, s. m. (min—blys) Daintiness of mouth.
Minfysig, a. (minfys) Dainty-mouthed.
Minfysigrwydd, s. m. (minfysig) Epicureanism.

Minfwich, s. m. (min—bwich) A bare lip.
Minfychawg, a. (minfwich) Having a bare lip.
Minfug, a. (min—fug) Of a deceitful lip.

*A'n gwas ahyddus gwanthiat, minfug
 —y dywedant.*

*And their lips also sattered, with a deceitful lip they speak.
 W. Middleton.*

Mingam, a. (min—cam) Wry-mouthed.

*Lle'r ydoedd yn mhob gobant
 Elyllion mingelmaen gant.*

*Where in every little hollow were a hundred wry-mouthed spirits.
 D. ab Gwilym.*

Mingamiad, s. m. (mingam) A making a wry mouth, a making a grimace.

Mingamau, v. v. (mingam) To make a wry mouth, to make grimaces; to mock.

Mingamwr, s. m.—pl. mingamwyr (mingam—gwr) One who makes grimaces.

Mingeimiad, s. m.—pl. mingeimaid (mingam) One who makes grimaces.

Mingrach, a. (min—crach) Scabby-mouthed.

Mingras, a. (min—cras) Having parched lips; saucy-mouthed.

Mingrased, s. m. (mingras) The parchedness of the lips; pertness.

Mingrech, s. m. (mingrach) Scabbiness of lips.

Mingrwn, s. m.—pl. mingryniwn (min—crwn) A mullet, a fish so called. a. Having a round mouth.

Mingrych, a. (min—crych) A puckering the lips.

Mingrychu, v. a. (mingrych) To pouch the lips.

Mingryniad, s. m.—pl. mingryniad (mingrwn) A mullet; also called mingrych, and hyrddya.

Mingryau, v. a. (mingrwn) To draw or pouch the mouth together.

Gwelun dyfyn o farfoned yn ymionel; rhai yn mingrynu; rhai a heidr yn tyne eu haelis; rhai yn ymro; rhai yn clydio eu bwyntiau.

*I could see a party of coquettes primming themselves up; some screwing up the mouth; some with irons pulling their eyebrows;
 some tuckering themselves; some patching their faces.
 Ellis Wyn, B. Cwsg.*

Miniad, s. m. (min) An edging; a sharpening.

Minial, v. a. (min) To move the lips, to osculate.

Minialed, s. m. (minial) The motion of the lips; osculation.

Minialu, v. a. (minial) To move the lips.

Miniawg, v. a. (min) To make an edge, or margin; to sharpen; to make an impression; to utter from the lips.

Rhy agter ydyw nad oedd lymryn o ddaloni yn minio arnynt.

*It is too evident that there is not a particle of good having effect on them.
 H. Calkins—Maltington.*

Miniawg, a. (min) Having an edge, or margin; sharp-edged, sharp. Cledysf dau-fniawg, a two-edged sword.

Mniedig, a. (miniad) Being made into an edge.

Minllym, a. (min—llym) Sharp-edged; keen.

Minnan, comp. pron. (mi—tau) Me also, I also; and me, and I; me then, I then.

Dydwlaent wrtho;—Berth ydd ynt heunawr. Ni bo berthach byn y boch chwi no minnan!

*They said to him: herdsman, thou art rich. Never may you be richer than I then!
 H. Calkins—Maltington.*

Mintag, s. f. (min—tag) The lampas.

Minws, s. m. dim. (min) The lip or mouth, in fond language.

—Per enna llyw:

Fond mwy penodol minws.

*The sweet pretty mouth; how kind the discourse from her lip.
 D. ab Gwilym.*

Miod, s. pl. aggr. (mi) Fritters, little cakes. Bara miod, manchet bread.

Mir, s. m. (my—ir) That is fair or bright; the aspect, look, or visage.

Mir, a. (my—ir) Of a fair aspect; comely; fair.

Mir arglwyddes, a handsome lady.

Mirach, s. m. (mir) A good quality, a virtue.

Miraid, a. (mir) Somewhat comely or fair.

Mirain, a. (mir) Of a fair aspect; comely; fair.

*Lleu arth yn y gyfarthia;
 Lleu nerth gwyf, cryf aerfa;
 Lleu hywel weyn fab Owain;
 Lleu gwr mirain uch morfa;*

*A bear was slain in the toll; the strength of men, the eagle of slaughter was cut off: slain was fair Hywel the son of Owain: a handsome man has been slain above the strand.
 Peryf ab Cerdfor.*

Miraint, s. m. (mir) Pleasantness of aspect.

Mire, s. m. (mir) The aspect, the visage.

Mirainber, a. (mirain—per) Pleasantly sweet.

Mirainbryd, s. m. (mirain—bryd) A beauteous aspect, or of a fair countenance.

Mireindawd, s. m. (mirain) Handsomeness.

Mireindeb, s. m. (mirain) Comeliness, beauty.

Mireinder, s. m. (mirain) Comeliness, beauty.

Mireindra, s. m. (mirain) Comeliness, beauty.

Mireinedd, s. m. (mirain) Comeliness, beauty.

Mireiniad, s. m. (mirain) A rendering comely or handsome; a growing handsome.

Mireiniadd, a. (mirain) Rather handsome.

Mireiniannawl, a. (mireiniant) Tending to make comely or beautiful.

Mireiniannu, v. a. (mireiniant) To make comely or beautiful; to become comely.

Mireiniannus, a. (mireiniant) Of a comely or beautiful nature.

Mireiniant, s. m. (mirain) A making comely or beautiful; a becoming comely.

Mireinrwydd, s. m. (mirain) Comeliness, beauty.

Mireinwch, s. m. (mirain) Comeliness, beauty.

*Drosg yw yn dryced am bachedd,
 Am galed amgeidd am aur,
 A mireinwch byd a'i eirhydded.*

*It is miserable to us how evil our condition, in hard tolling for gold, and the glory of the world and its honour.
 G. ab Gurgenus.*

Miriad, s. m. (mir) A rendering comely.

Miriannawl, a. (miriant) Relating to the aspect.

Miriannu, v. a. (miriant) To render comely, or of a fine aspect; to become comely.

Miriannus, a. (miriant) Of a comely aspect.

Miriannusaw, v. a. (miriannus) To render of a comely aspect; to become handsome.

Miriant, s. m. (mir) Beauty of countenance.

Mis, s. m.—pl. f. oedd (my—is) The catamenia; also the length of that period; a month.

Misawl, a. (mis) Monthly, menstrual.

Misawr, s. m. (mie) That is of the month.

Misglwyf, s. m. (mis—clwyf) The menses.

Misglwyfedd, s. m. (misglwyf) Menstruousness.

Misglwyfus, a. (misglwyf) Menstruous.

Misgwaith, s. m. (mis—gwaith) A month's space.

Misi, a. (mie) Nice, delicate, dainty.

Misyriad, s. m.—pl. misyriaid (misawr) That is of the age of one month.

O fab misyriad.

Of a child that is of a month old. Numbers 18. 61.

Mit, s. m.—pl. f. iau (mid) A shallow vessel, or cooler, to hold liquor in.

Miw, s. m. (mi) The shedding of feathers, or mewing of birds.

*Penyd droes ennys y sydd;
 Am ei beudd miw beunydd.*

*Penance there is for a while; for his penance daily in a woe.
 Ieu. Dediacya, i Arbog.*

Miwall, a. (miw) Smooth, sleek, or glossy.

Ceilloglwylych clog miwall.

*The cock ousel with the glossy cloak. D. ab Gwilym.
 2 X 2*

MO, s. m. r. That is forward or advanced; present; that tends to enlarge; that is more.

Mo, pron. (mo, s.) It; him, or he, idiomatically applied to persons. Dyna fo, there it is; fo honid fy marw, it was asserted that I had died.

*Dyn kusan bodd ridd yno;
Gwas id nod fyf faw lo!*

A young man were necessary to be there: woe to her, that I am not him! D. of Gwilym.

Mo, prep. (mo, s.) Of concerning, more of; from. It is used to give emphasis to negatives; as Ni chet mo ym, mo yth, mo ei; or ni chet mo'm, mo'th, mo'i, thou shalt not have that of mine, or my, thy, his, her, or it; mo yn, mo gch, mo en; or mo'n, mo'ch, mo'n, that of ours, or our, your, their:—Ni chet mo hwn, thou shalt not have this.

Moc, s. m. (my—oc) A mock, or mimic.

Mochiad, s. m. (moc) A mocking, or mimicking.

Mochlaw, v. s. (moc) To mock, to imitate.

Mochwr, s. m.—pl. mocwyr (moc—gwr) Mockers.

Moch, s. pl. aggr. (mo—och) Swine, or pigs.

*Y newid dydd cahan gwaif y mac llyn fr pencyddd fyned
i hely moch coed; ac o hely llyd galan mie Tachwedd y dyly efe fod yn eu hely hwy.*

The ninth day of winter it is right for the chief huntsman to go to hunt the wood swine; and from thence to the first of December he shall continue hunting them. Welsh Laws.

Möch, a. (my—och) Ready, quick, apt; early.

Möch dyg newt mab hwyd.

The young of the duck soon learns to swim. Adage.

Ni möch ddol medderydd.

A slaggard will not soon revenge a disgrace. Adage.

Mocha, v. a. (moch) To litter pigs. Hwch focha, a sow with pigs.

Mochalidd, a. (moch) Like swine, hog-like.

Mochawr, s. m. (moch) That is like a swine.

Mochddwyre, s. m. (moch—dwyre) A quick rise or elevation; an early rise.

Mochddwyrain, v. a. (mochddwyre) To rise up quickly; to be rising early.

Mochddwyrëawg, a. (mochddwyre) Quickly-rising

Mochddwyrëawg hwn haf dyffatin

Mwri llafur adar, myr' hwar hia.

Thou early-rising summer sun, hasten the melodious song of birds, the happy season of joy. Gwalesthai.

Am Fochtan yn fochddwyrëawg.

Around Mochtan early-rising.

Mochelld-dra, s. m. (mochalld) Swinishness.

Mochelldiad, s. m. (mochalld) A becoming swinish.

Mochelldiaw, v. a. (mochalld) To act swinishly, to become swinish.

Mochelldrwydd, s. m. (mochalld) Swinishness.

Mochi, v. a. (moch) To wallow as swine, to commit sodomy.

Mochiad, s. m. (moch) To wallow like swine.

Mochlan, v. a. (moch) To be as a pig, to grunt.

Mochlys, s. m. (moch—lys) Common nightshade.

Mochnant, s. m.—pl. mochnentydd (moch—nant)

A swift brook, or torrent.

Mochriw, s. f.—pl. t. an (moch—rhiw) A steep shelving ascent.

Mochwraidd, s. m. dim. (moch—gwraidd) Sowbread

Mochysgall, s. m. (moch—ysgall) Common sow-thistle.

Mochyn, s. m. dim. (moch) A pig. O, y mochyn brwt! Oh, thou dirty pig! Mochyn bychan, the badger; otherwise called broch, and pryf llwyd.

Pen llytha, cynffon mochyn, a chi wodi ei grogi, a waant gystal pob ag a welwyd criod yn uffern.

A frog's head, a pig's tail, and a dog that has been hung, will make no good a pope as was ever seen in hell. Adage.

Mochynalld, a. (mochyn) Like a pig, or piggyish.

Mochynelld-dra, s. m. (mochynalld) Pigritude.

Mochynelldrwydd, s. (mochynalld) Hoggyishness.

Mochyria, v. a. (mochawr) To grunt like a boar after the sow; also to brim, or to go to hear.

Nid iawn daly bodd an amwr yn mochyrta.

It is not proper to catch the hours at any time in going after the swine. Welsh Laws.

Mochyriad, s. m. (mochawr) A grunting.

Mochyriaw, v. a. (mochawr) To grunt like a boar; to procreate as the swine.

Mod, s. m.—pl. t. an (my—od) A circle, a turn; a motion; an enclosure.

*A't mylit a gyrchell fr mod,
A chyl ychell.*

And the weathers I gathered into the fold, babbles three oxen. Syr Lewis Hiradwy.

Modbren, s. m.—pl. t. an (mod—pren) A stirrer, a stick used in stirring any thing boiled.

Modfedd, s. f.—pl. t. i (bodfedd) The space of the thumb; an inch.

Crystal modfedd a milltir o ddian.

An inch is as good as a mile of escape. Adage.

Modfeddig, s. f. (modfedd) A single inch.

Modfeddu, v. a. (modfedd) To measure inches.

Modrwy, s. f.—pl. t. an (mod—rwy) A ring.

Modrwy cidding, the jealous one's ring, an epithet in droll language; lys y fedrwy, the ring finger.

Modrwyad, s. m. (modrwy) A forming into a ring; a circling; a patting on a ring.

Modrwyalld, a. (modrwy) Like a ring; curly.

Modrwyaw, v. a. (modrwy) To form into a ring; to form ringlets, or to curl.

Modrwyawg, a. (modrwy) Having rings; in ringlets; circling.

O leader llyw amgwrn, llyn dyrwyng.

Be led by gylchwy yn fodrwyng.

From the splendour of the leader of conflict, the equibale palmer, there was the gold-encompassed mead circling. Molier, m. G. of Cymru.

Modrwyawl, a. (modrwy) Annular; curly.

Modrwyedig, a. (modrwyad) In ringlets, curled.

Modrwyen, s. f. dim. (modrwy) A little ring.

Modrwyfil, s. m.—pl. t. od (modrwy—fil) A hard, an eff; also called modrwyen, genus geog.

Modrwyig, s. f. dim. (modrwy) An annulet.

Modrwyogrydd, s. m. (modrwyawg) Curfiness.

Modrwywr, s. m.—pl. modrwywyr (modrwy—gwr) A dealer in rings.

Modrwydd, s. m. (modrwy) A dealer in rings.

Modryb, s. f.—pl. modrybedd (mod—rhyb) An aunt; also an epithet for a matron, equivalent to dame and mistress in English. The diminutives of it, in fond language, are Boba, Boda, and Bodo. Ewythr a Modryb, terms of respect, used in some parts, equivalent to Master and Mistress.

En-llun modryb dda.

A good aunt is a second mother. Adage.

Modrydaf, s. m.—pl. t. an (mod—rhydaf) A centre to range round; a rallying point; a standard; a stock of bees.

Mis Awst modrynwag morfa, Lloeg gwenyn, llyn modryda!

The month of August white with foam is the sea shore, llyn the bees, full the stock also. Adage.

Cymhwylaf fy naf,

Cymwry fodryd,

Cymwry cellydd,

Ry warch Celi.

I will make mention of my chief, the rallying point of the Welsh, the best informed Welshman whom the Symonion One has made. L. F. Moch, i Llewelyn I.

Milwr, milwyr fodrydaf,

Modaw law-ddawg, llyr na!

A warrior, the rallying point of warriors, the ready-handed Madog, the mild chief. L. F. Moch.

Pe golliff, fedryddi crogwr!

Why soughtest thou me, thou blood-stained raving-point? Ph. Brydydd.

Mai medra moedrydd yr lath.

Like shooting at the deer in covering. LL. P. Moth.

Medur, s. m. (moed—ur) That encompasses; a defence; a protector; a sovereign.

*Mur medur, Rynidur rhwyf law,
Mae ym meduri dy gwlaf.*

The rampart of defence, the ruler in time to come, it is in my mind to seek thee. D. Benfras.

*Nend gwan Wynedd fan fen yd erydd cur;
Nend gwael am fedur eglur ogyd.*

Is not lofty Gwynedd palisad, where affliction assails; is it not brought low by the loss of a protector, of manifest security. G. Iddo & Arfon, m. Sir G. Iddyd.

*Egin bladdog, ein medur,
Ni chilloedd dim a chloedd dur*

The offspring of bladdog, our protector, no power has put to fight with the blade of steel. Guto y Glyn.

Modd, s. m.—pl. t. fon (my—odd) A mode, mean, or way to do a thing; a manner, form, or fashion. Pe foedd y gwael hynt? how wilt thou do that? Nid oes gwynt ddim modd i'w wneyd, thou hast no means at all to do it; mae ganddo ddigon o foddion, he has a sufficiency of riches.

Tri modd a ddysg buddid Tays Fydaia: addysg llafar, can, a ddew, wrth fraint goraeidd.

The three means of instruction of the herds of the Isle of Britain: oral instruction, song, and custom, according to the privilege of a conversation. Burddas.

Moddidd, a. (modd) Modish, formal, mannerly.

Moddwl, a. (modd) After a mode, means, or manner; agreeable to form; formal.

Moddedig, a. (modd) Being reduced to form.

Moddedigath, s. m. (moddedig) Conformation.

Moddgar, a. (modd) Agreeable to form.

Moddgarwch, s. m. (moddgar) Mannerliness.

Moddiannawl, a. (moddiant) Conductive.

Moddiannu, v. a. (moddiant) To render as a means

Moddiannu, a. (moddiant) Conductive.

Moddiannaw, v. a. (moddiannu) To render as a means, to become conductive.

Moddiawl, s. m.—pl. moddiannu (modd) A mean

Moddiawl, v. a. (modd) To bring to a form, manner, or mean; to conduce.

Moddus, a. (modd) After a form, or manner; formal; mannerly; decent.

Modduswydd, s. m. (moddus) Mannerliness.

Moedd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (my—oedd) Height.

Moeddaw, a. (moedd) Highly raised. v. f. An eminence. A hill in Caerinion is so called.

Moeddyn, s. m. (moedd) A high projection. A hill in Ceredigion is so called.

Moel, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (my—oel) A heap, or pile, conical hill, a towering hill with its top smooth, or void of rocks and woods. Mesur moel, a measure that is heaped; mesur heb foel, a measure without a heap, or a strike:—Moel Eilan, Moel y Mawr, Moel y Fawr, Moel Hael, Moel Stabed, Moel Wynion, Moel y Gelluan, Moel Llwydgarth, y Foel Goch, y Foel Las, mountains so called in Wales.

Mi chodir y moel o'r wâl ei enwydd.

The hill will not be believed unless his brine be perceived. Adage.

Moel, a. (my—oel) Towering, or piled up; bare, bald; bald-headed. Gwr moel, a bald man; cidion moel, a beast without horns.

Pe bai cyrn ar ben pob fol, go gutt rian yn dda am ddangwys yw moel.

If there were horns on the head of every fool, thou wouldst get a good sum of money for shearing a bald head. Adage.

Moelidd, a. (moel) Tending to rise up, or to appear bald; somewhat bald.

Moeluen, s. f.—pl. t. au (moel—uen) A bald pate

Moelder, s. m. (moel) Bareness, baldness.

Moeldes, s. m. (moel—tê) The clear sunshine.

Moeldesawd, s. m. (moeldes) The being in the clear sunshine.

Moeldesota, v. a. (moeldesawd) To frisk about, as cattle do, owing to hot weather.

Moeldra, s. m. (moel) Bareness, baldness.

Moelldwrn, s. m.—pl. moelldyrneu (moel—dwrn)

A naked fist, a closed fist.

Moelldyrnfedd, s. m. (moel—dyrnfedd) The measure of the naked fist; a hand breadth.

Moelodd, s. m. (moel) Bareness, baldness.

Moelffon, s. f.—pl. moelffyn (moel—ffon) Spatula

Moelhwntian, v. a. (moel—hwntian) To drive to and fro upon the water, without sails or rudder

Moeli, v. a. (moel) To heap, to pile; to make bald, or bare; to grow bald, to be bared.

Moeli clustiau, to draw the ears close to the head.

Moeliad, s. m. (moel) A making bald, or bare.

Moelni, s. m. (moel) Bareness, or baldness.

Moelron, s. m.—pl. t. laid (moel—rhon) A seal, or sea-calf.

Moelyn, s. m. dim. (moel) A bald pate. Des i fyny y moelyn, go up thou bald head.

Moelystawd, s. f. (ystawd) A bare elevated space.

Moelystota, v. a. (moelystawd) To seek the exposed places, as cattle do in hot weather; to leap, or frisk, as cattle do, owing to the heat.

Moes, s. f.—pl. t. au (my—oes) Civility; conduct, behaviour, manner. Dyn da ei foes, a man of good conduct; moesau da, good morals.

Moes, ym cyfrith.

Manners, then law.

Moes mab yn ol ei macer.

The behaviour of a child is as he is educated. Adage.

A glywedi a gant iddoes;

Gwr gwar bygar ei dnoes;

Gores cynneddi cadw moes!

Hast thou heard what idleness; a mild man of amiable life: the best quality is to preserve morals? Engl. y Glywed.

Moesa, v. a. (moes) To give, or to confer; the imperative of which is only used: Moesa glywed, let me hear; moesoch i wifnyd, come let us go

Gwell, "more law," na "moes fam."

Better, "give hand," than "give mother." Adage.

Melys! moes eto.

Sweet! give me some more. Adage.

Moesaddysg, s. f. (moes—addysg) The doctrine of morality; ethics.

Moesaidd, a. (moes) Of a moral tendency.

Moesawg, a. (moes) Mannerly, complaisant.

Mae ym faldid y'm cur, o'm cadid wrthaw

I'w wrthab arddafel;

Nid blidd coed, coll ei afael,

Namwyn blidd moes moesawg heol.

To me there is a wolf that loves me, from having me by him to take a part in his dignified discourse; not a wolf of the woods, of feeble grasp, but a wolf of the field courteous and liberal. Cynddelw, i. Rhyd.

Moesawl, a. (moes) Ethical, moral; civil.

A fo moesawl a fydd oesawl.

He that is moral will be aged. Adage.

Moesddysg, s. m. (moes—dysg) Doctrine of ethics

Moesi, v. a. (moes) To practise morality.

Moesogaeth, s. m. (moesawg) Ethology.

Moesolaeth, s. m. (moesawl) Morality.

Moesoldeb, s. m. (moesawl) Morality.

Moesolder, s. m. (moesawl) Morality.

Moesolodd, s. m. (moesawl) Mannerliness.

Moesoli, v. a. (moesawl) To become moral.

Moesolrwydd, s. m. (moesawl) Mannerliness.

Moeswyp, a. (moes—gwyp) Of fair deportment. Moeswyp deulu, a family of splendid manners.

Moeth, s. m.—pl. f. au (my—oeth) That is soft, nice; blandishment; a delicacy, a dainty.

Moethawl, a. (moeth) Yielding blandishment.

Moethedig, a. (moeth) Being used tenderly.

Moethen, s. f. dim. (moeth) A dainty one.

Moethi, v. a. (moeth) To treat kindly or nicely.

Moethiad, s. m. (moeth) An using blandishment.

Moethineb, s. m. (moeth) That yields pleasure.

Tri moethineb crëion: darpar Daw; a cêir gwa a fo cyflawn i bawb; ac a allo cariad at bawb ei harfer.

The three pleasures of a christian: the providence of God; what may be done consistent with justice to every body; and what love to all can permit to be used. Bardas.

Moethus, a. (moeth) Delicate; nice; dainty.

Nid moethus ond belu.

There is nothing so nice as the marten. Adage.

*Moethusach mewu maeth leo,
Wy' ar ei fwrdd, a'i aur fo,
Mo'r prug yn wngw bell'r mor;
No Dafydd ar fford i'or;
No mab mam ar ei fammaeth;
No merch ar ei dyfion maeth.*

More dainty, down there, in my food I am, at his table, and of his gold, than the fish amidst the brine of the sea; than Dafydd at the board of i'or; than a mother's child at his nursing breast; than a maid with her cherished suitors. L. G. Cock.

Moethusaidd, a. (moethus) Somewhat nice.

Moethusaw, v. n. (moethus) To become nice.

Moethusder, s. m. (moethus) Blandishment; luxury, delicacy of living.

Moethusdra, s. m. (moethus) Blandishment; luxury, delicacy of living.

Moethusrwydd, s. m. (moethus) Luxuriousness.

Moethyn, s. m. dim.—pl. f. ion (moeth) A luxurious person.

Mohonof, pronom. prep. (mo—honof) From me, or from out of me. Mohonof, mokonot, mokono, mokoni, from out of me, thee, him and it, from out of her; mokonom, mokonoch, mokonynt, from out of us, you, them.

Moi, v. n. (mo) To throw out; or to cast; to foal

Moi o'r gaeac ar ebawl mawr teledw.

The mare foaling of a large beautiful colt. Mabinogi.

Mol, s. m. (mo—ol) What is concreted; the congealed humour, gum, or thick matter collected in the eyes.

Molach, s. f. (mawl) Slight or faint praise.

Molachiad, s. m. (molach) A praising slightly.

Molachu, v. a. (molach) To praise slightly.

Molachus, a. (molach) Apt to praise; flattering.

Molad, s. m. (mawl) Commendation, praise.

Moladwy, a. (mawl) Commendable, praiseworthy

Molafon, s. m. (mol—afon) River concretion; an epithet amongst the miners, for porphyry; also called Mwlafon.

Molaid, a. (mol) Full of concretions; full of particles, or spots; dappled.

Meirch—

*Yn mbob lliw ceiniwlw cor ryfsgald dyn;
Yn felys, yn folad.*

Steeds of every fair excellent colour, which a man can wish; some yellow, and dappled. L. F. Moch.

Molawd, s. m. (mawl) Commendation, praise.

*Ef o'r barth neod gwarth gwaredwyd;
Gward folawd fal y derllydwyd.*

From his territory was not disgrace kept away; the song of praise as it was poured out. Cynaddellu, m. E. ab M. ab Iddon.

Molawg, a. (mol) Abounding with concrete matter; gummy. Y frech folawg, y frech wen, the small pox.

Mold, s. f.—pl. f. iau (mol) A mould.

Moldiad, s. m. (mold) A moulding; a kneading.

Moldiaw, v. a. (mold) To mould, to knead. Moldiaw toes, tylinaw toes, to knead dough.

Moldiedig, a. (moldiad) Moulded; kneaded.

Moldiwr, s. m.—pl. moldwyr (mold—gwr) One who moulds; one who works, or kneads.

Moled, s. f.—pl. f. au (mo—lled) A piece of cloth, forming a part of a woman's dress, to cover the head and shoulders; a maffier; a kerchief. Moled Olsen, great bindweed.

Moledig, a. (molad) Praiséd; commendable.

Balch pob moledig.

The commendéd is proud.

Adage.

Llawer o'r dydd a dreulid yn ymadd, canys y gwyr dewraf a motedica's ddaugoynt eu dehenodd pob o'r gylid.

Much of the day was spent in fighting, for the men who were the most brave and most famous were vying in their dexterity with one another. Gr. ab Artur.

Molediw, a. (molad) Laudable, praiseworthy.

Molediwrwydd, s. m. (moleidiwr) Laudableness.

Moledd, s. m. (mawl) Praise, eulogy; worship.

Moleddiad, s. m. (moledd) Commendation.

Moleddu, v. a. (moledd) To commend, to praise.

Moleddus, a. (moledd) Commendable, laudable.

Moli, v. a. (mawl) To praise; to adore.

*Nen ni orag Dew, wryd Benll Gwyr,
Bun lle beirdd yd foh,
Tris olys, traw argyfydd,
Traul meddgyrn, teyrn fal ti!*

Shall these not be formed of God; soul of Benll Gwyr, loud the voice of bards to praise thee, the foe of conflict, death of sleep, the waste of mementos; a prince like thee! G. Ryd.

Y ddalar—

Derchafed, moledd molianusaf.

Let the earth exalt, let it praise the most worthy of adoration. D. Dda, Mordred.

Mi ei mawl i melyn eidda.

I will worship her with the yellow-blossomed furze. H. ab Owen.

Moli, v. n. (mol) To concreate, to generate gum. s. m. Concrete matter; gum. Moli yn y llygwr, gum in the eye.

Moliad, s. m. (mol) A concretion; a yielding gum

Moliannawl, a. (moliant) Panegyric.

Moliannawr, s. m.—pl. moliannawron (moliant) A panegyrist; a praiser.

Moliannedig, a. (moliant) Made an object of praise

Moliannedigaeth, s. m. (moliannedig) The act of praising; commendation.

Moliannu, v. a. (moliant) To praise, to adore.

Moliannus, a. (moliant) Commendable.

Nid moliannus ond cydudeb.

There is nothing so laudable as concord. Adage.

Moliannusaw, v. a. (moliannus) To render praiseworthy; to become an object of praise.

Moliannusrwydd, s. m. (moliannus) The state of being praiseworthy; adorableness.

Moliannwr, s. m.—pl. moliannwyr (moliant—gwr) A praiser.

Moliannydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (moliant) A praiser.

Moliant, s. m. (mawl) Praise; adoration.

Moliant gwedi marw.

Praise after death. Adage.

Moliator, ger. (moliad) In praising, in lauding.

*Odidd traethator,
Mawr moliator.*

Seldom making recital, great in praising. Taliesin.

Molitor, sup. (moli) To be praised or lauded.

Ysmyl Rydderch, roddodd nar melyn, Molitor yn mbob gwlad.

To me there is Rhydderch, the bestower of ruddy gold, who is praised in every country. Elin. ab Gwgana, i Llywelyn II.

Moloch, s. m. (mol—och) Tumult, uproar. Gwr egniol foloch, a man of vehement roar; moloch ddragon, the tumultuous leader.

*Trwy y Mhrydya,
Ac emyl ar gychwyn,
Rhag llyon llychlyn
A llynges drom droch,
A Brython ar foloch.*

A rumour in Scotland, and sails on the way before the floods of the Baltic, and a fleet, heavy and terrifying, and Britons in a tumult.

Taliesin.

Molochain, a. (moloch) Full of uproar, or riot.
Molochi, v. a. (moloch) To raise a tumult; to disquiet, to molest; to be tumultuous, or riotous.

*Gwyr ciod-rod, llawged, lloegr foloch;
Gwyr wrth war, bygar, how-gurdd holl.*

The same-spread huminary, of bounteous hand, disquieting lloegr; mild to the mild, amiable, fond of the spirit's song.

G. ab M. ab Dafydd, i Oronwy.

Molochiad, s. m. (moloch) A causing an outrage, riot, or tumult; a disquieting, a molesting; a becoming outrageous.

Molad, s. m. (mawl) Panegyric, or eulogy.

Trengid golod, ni threngid molod.

Wealth may perish, fame will not perish.

Adage.

*Addwya gwr y sydd a'i gwna cyman
Molodd, a molod, ac adar ben.*

A pleasant town there is, which is made social, by mead-drinking, and prudence, and good birds.

Taliesin, M. Dindych.

Ni welso foid am ged.

He saw no eulogy for treasure.

Bloddyn Fydd.

Molwr, s. m.—pl. molwyr (mawl—gwr) A praiser
Molwyn, s. m. (mol—gwyn) That breaks out; that foams.

Molwynad, s. m. (molwyn) A foaming, a spraying
Molwynaw, v. a. (molwyn) To foam, to spray.

Molwynawg, a. (molwyn) Abounding with foam. It has been used as a cognomen; as Rhodri, Molwynawg, and Meilyr Molwynawg.

His Awst molwynawg morfa.

The mouth of August foamy the sea shore.

Aacwin.

Moll, s. f. (my—oll) That surrounds, closes upon, or includes; that extends round.

Moll, a. (my—oll) Surrounding, closing upon, or extending round; close, or sultry. March ffoen-foll, a horse with a distended nostril, or a snorting horse; hin foll, close weather.

Mollaid, a. (moll) Tending to close round.

Mollawg, a. (moll) Stretching or closing round.

Molledig, a. (moll) Being included or closed in.

Molledigaeth, s. m. (molledig) The act of including, or taking in.

Molli, v. a. (moll) To include, to take in.

Molliad, s. m. (moll) A stretching round.

Mollt, s. m.—pl. myllt (moll) A mutton; a wether.

Mollt e babwyr, corn e babwyr, a handful of stript rushes, such as are used for candles.

Mollwyn, s. m.—pl. t. od (moll) Mutton. Cig mollwyn, mutton flesh; gwyr mollwyn, suet.

Mon, s. f. (mo—on) That is a separate body, or individual; an isolated one, or that is separate; a point; a centre. It is an epithet sometimes used for a cow; it is also the name by which the Isle of Anglesea is called in Welsh; and for the sake of distinguishing it from Mon Aw, the Mon of the Water, or the Isle of Man, it is sometimes called Mon Fynydd, or Mon of the Mountain: And, from that idea the small islet near the Isle of Man, came to be called the Calf of Man.

Mon mam Cymru.

Mon the mother of Wales.

Adage.

Cerddorion hyd Fon Fynydd

Dros hwn yn prydern sydd.

As far as Mon of the Mountain, the minstrels are regretting him.

L. G. Calk.

Y sawl a blaen yr henfon ymaelod yn ei chynffon.

He that owns the cow of progression let him take hold of her tail.

Adage.

Monad, s. m. (mon) A rendering a separate body, an isolating; a becoming isolated.

Mones, s. f.—pl. t. od (mon) A sulky female.

Moni, v. a. (mon) To swell out, to fill; to render sulky, sullen, or displeased; to become sulky, or somewhat displeased. Mae efe yn moni wrth ei fwyd, he quarrels with his victuals.

Moniad, s. m. (mon) A sulking; a growing sullen

Monig, a. (mon) Sulky, sullen, ill-natured.

Monoch, s. pl. aggr. (mon) Entrails, guts.

Monochen, s. f. dim. (monoch) A small gut, or entrail; a pudding; a sausage.

Monof, pronom. prep. (mon—of) Of me. Monot, of thee; mono, of it or him; moni, of her;

monom, of us; monoch, of you; monynt, of them

Monw, a. (mon) That is identified or joined with Monwent, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mon—gwent) A sepulchre, or burying place; a church yard.

Monwes, s. f.—pl. t. au (monw) The bosom.

Monwesawl, a. (monwes) Belonging to the breast

Monwesiad, s. m. (monwes) A bosoming.

Monwest, v. a. (monwes) To put to the bosom.

Monwys, s. pl. aggr. (mon—gwys) Anglesea people.

Monwysion, s. pl. (monwys) Anglesea people.

Monyn, s. m. dim. (mon) One who is sulky.

Efe a wrnach e fannethod

Llawer un anllw a'r od;

Minnan sydd fai monyn;

Nen fal brawd moci, heb yr au.

He made mothers of many a one of the same hue as the snow; and I am like a quick chap, or like a bald friar, without obtaining one.

Sir D. Trewer.

Mop, s. m.—pl. t. iau (my—op) A maukin.

Mopa, s. m. (mop) A maukin; a mop.

Moppren, s. m.—pl. t. i (mop—pren) A baker's maukin; also called mopa.

Mor, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mo—or) That is infinite, or boundless; that is in motion, flowing, or fluctuating; the sea. Y Mor Heli, the briny sea; y Mor Tawch, the hazy sea, the German Sea; y Mor Marw, the Dead Sea; Mor Udd, the British sea.

Mor ansefydlawg a'r mor.

As full of motion as the sea.

Adage.

Y don—

Caer Gwdlon myr, longwyr lid.

The wave, galaxy of the seas, the hatred of mariners.

Gr. Gryg.

Hil Bardam—

O For Tawch, gwasthant ferw tost.

Offspring of Bardam, from the Hazy sea, thou hast raised a severe target.

Dr. S. Com.

Mor, s. m.—pl. t. au (mo—or) That is incessantly moving, or fluctuating; time; also an ant, or emmet.

Môr, adv. (my—or) How, so, as; how much, so much; how greatly. Môr a sonied am dani, what a deal has been said about her; môr lawen, as merry; môr dda, so good.

Môr hylith a der hyd sbent.

As gliding as water along a trough.

Adage.

Môr oedd gyfrin fyrd cyrd Crydwen;

Môr elisau eu dwys yn ei dyrwen.

How mysterious were the ways of the songs of Crydwen; how great the necessity of producing them in her smiling mood.

Cyneddelw.

Aer ac arian

Môr a'u difant

Eu dibenydd.

Gold and silver how those who squander them do perish.

Taliesin.

*mon: f. monon . . .
L. r. m. m. m.*

Morfalwen, s. f. (mor—malwen) A sea snail.
Morfalwod, s. pl. aggr. (mor—malwod) Sea snails.
Morfan, s. m.—pl. t. au (mor—man) A sea shore.
Morfbar, s. m. (mor—bar) The rage of the sea.
Morfarch, s. m. (mor—march) A sea horse.

Ymarfer a was morfarch
 O fôl hwa.

The sea horses do accustom themselves to prouling him.
G. Ll. ab D. ab E. Llyglin.

Morfil, s. m.—pl. t. od (mor—mîl) A sea animal;
 a sea fish of the larger kind; a whale.

Ymorfil, gwymach oedd ei chnawd nog ecbdyrwyddig agwra morfil.

Ymorfil, whiter was her skin than the polished bone of the sea-horse. Gr. ab Arthur.

Morfin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mor—mîn) Sea brink.

Fred omdeddyr y morfin!
 A'i helyngodd gwedi gwis,
 Ffynnon fencetr mor telwin.

Be secured the sea brink! after wine, the attendant of the spring let in the spreading sea. Gwyddno, i G. Gwalawd.

Morfbaid, s. m.—pl. morfeiddiau (mor—blaidd)
 A sea wolf, the basc.

Morfoch, s. pl. aggr. (mor—moch) Grampuses.

Morfochyn, s. m. (morfoch) The grampus.

Morforwyn, s. f.—pl. t. ion (mor—morwyn) A mermaid, a siren. Esgid morforwyn, a mermaid's shoe, a kind of a pod of a sea plant, of a square form. In British tales, the mermaid is fancied to carry a glass in one hand, and in the other a comb, with which she combs her beautiful hair; and that she weeps during the summer, for fear of the frost of winter.

Mae rhian ar y mor hallt
 A chub, a drych, gwych ei gwallt,
 A wyl yr haf ar sei rhos
 Rhag ola y rhew gasafos.

There is a maid on the briny sea with a comb and a glass, splendid in her hair, who weeps away the summer, on the verge of the month, in dread of the frost of a winter night.

Bede Aerdrum.

Mae o'n y wallt em wir Non
 Ar freuan 'r morforwynion.

There is of the same hair as round the shoulders of Non on the breast of the mermaids. D. Nanner.

Morfran, s. f.—pl. morfranod (mor—bran) A cormorant; also called mwlfran.

Morfwydr, s. f.—pl. morfwydrau (mor—brwydr) A sea-fight.

Morfwyn, s. pl. aggr. (mor—brwyn) Rushes that grow on sea marshes; also called tastfwyn, and barf-fwyn.

Morfwynen, s. f. (morfwyn) The sea rush.

Morfwch, s. f.—pl. t. od (mor—bwch) Sea cow.

Morwyd, s. m. (mor—bwyd) Marine food, or substance in the sea serving fish for food.

Morwyd fydd en cnawd,
 Fydd pan yw meidym.
 Pan yw gwanwg pysg.

Their flesh shall be marine food, until it is transformed, when fishes shall contain it. Tellicin.

Morgad, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mor—cad) A sea-fight.

Morgamias, s. f.—pl. t. au (mor—camias) An estuary.

Morgant, s. m. (mor—cant) A sea brink. It is a very common proper name of men, of which Pelagius has been given as a translation.

✓ Morgannwg, s. f. (morgant) Glamorganshire.

Morgareina, s. pl. (mor—carai) Sea-lacer.

Morgaseg, s. f.—pl. morgesyg (mor—caseg) A sea breaker.

Morgath, s. f.—pl. t. od (mor—cath) A skate, a ray; also a hollow roaring of the sea, denoting foul weather. Morgath arw, cath arw, cath bigawg, the thornback; morgath lfn, the smooth skate.

VOL. II.

Morgeintach, s. m. (mor—ceintach) A sea-fight.

Morgelyn, s. m. (mor—celyn) Sea-holly, eryngo.

I wellth y cyhawd: cymer sodd y morgelyn, a ddd yu dwym yn y glust.

To improve the hearing; take the juice of the sea-holly, and put warm in the ear. Medd. Myddfol.

Morgerwyn, s. f.—pl. t. i (mor—cerwyn) A gulf.

Morgi, s. m.—pl. morgwn (mor—ci) A sea dog;
 the dog fish; the shark. The varieties are Morgi gwyn, ci brych, ci coeg, the shark; penai, morgi glas, the lesser rough hound.

Morgranc, s. m.—pl. t. od (mor—cranc) The crab-fish; otherwise called cranc.

Morgrug, s. pl. aggr. (mor—crng) A hill of ants, or ant hillock; ants.

Morgrugyn, s. m. dim. (morgrug) A pismire.

Morgrwydr, s. m. (mor—crwydr) A roving by sea.

Morgwydrad, s. m. (morgrwydr) A roving by sea.

Morgrwydrwr, s. m.—pl. morgrwydrwr (mor-grwydr—gwr) A sea-rover.

Morgudyn, s. m. (mor—cudyn) A polypus.

Morgylllell, s. f.—pl. morgylllell (mor—cyllell)

The calamary, or razor-fish.

Morgymmlawdd, s. m. (mor—cymmlawdd) The boisterousness of the sea, the raging of the sea.

Pa beth bynag a ferio morgymmlawdd i dir, megis tor llong, neu feirw bynag, y brenin blefydd.

Whatever shall be cast by a sea tempest to land, such as a shipwreck, or dead bodies, the king shall claim. Welsh Laws.

Morgynhwrf, s. m. (mor—cynhwrf) The agitation or tumult of the sea.

Morgynnull, s. m. (mor—cynnnull) The flow tide of the sea.

Morhaig, s. f.—pl. morheigiau (mor—haig) A shoal of living things in the sea.

Morhaig mad gynydd cyhoedd.

A conspicuous sea shoal of goodly increase. Tellicin.

Morhedydd, s. m. (mor—hedydd) The sea-lark.

Morherw, s. m. (mor—herw) A sea-roving.

Morherwa, v. a. (morherw) To rove by sea.

Morherwad, s. m. (morherw) A roving by sea.

Morherwr, s. m. (mor—herwr) A sea-rover.

Morherwriaeth, s. m. (morherwr) The life of a sea-rover.

Morheag, s. pl. aggr. (môr—beag) The sea-rushes, or mat-rushes; also called merydd.

Morhocys, s. pl. aggr. (mor—hocys) The sea tree;
 marshmallows.

Morhwch, s. f.—pl. morhychod (mor—hwch)
 The dolphin; a grampus.

Moriad, s. m. (mor) A going by sea; a sailing.

Moriaw, v. a. (mor) To lead a sea-faring life.

Morion, s. pl. aggr. (mor) Ants or emmets.

Morionen, s. f. dim. (morion) An emmet, an ant.

Moriwr, s. m.—pl. morwyr (mor—gwr) A seaman.

Morladrad, s. m. (mor—ladrad) Piracy.

Morladradaidd, a. (morladrad) Piratical.

Morladradawl, a. (morladrad) Piratical.

Morladrata, v. a. (morladrad) To commit piracy.

Morian, s. f.—pl. t. au (mor—glân) A sea brink.

Cedwyr o du myr, o du morlas,
 Uchel yu cadw eu rhyfel, nid ymgelan'.

Warriors by the side of waters, by the side of the sea shore, highly supporting their war, they will not conceal themselves.
Llywelyn Fardd.

Morlas, s. m. (mor—glas) Sea-green colour.

Morleidr, s. m.—pl. morliadron (mor—lleidr) A pirate.

Morleisiad, s. m.—pl. morleisiad (mor—gleisiad)
 The whiting pollack.

Merlo, s. m.—pl. t. i (mor—llo) A sea-calf, a seal.

Morlwh, s. m. (mor—llwh) The spray of the sea; vapour rising from the sea.

Morlwys, s. pl. (mor—llwy) Scarvy-grass.

Morlyffant, s. m.—pl. morlyffaint (mor—lyffant) The devil-fish; also called lyffant y mor.

Morlyswen, s. f. (mor—lyswen) A conger eel.

Morlyswod, s. pl. (mor—lyswod) Conger eels.

Mornaut, s. m.—pl. mornentydd (mor—nant) A sea brook, a small channel on a flat shore into which the tide runs; a small estuary; also called moryd, morgamlas, and camlas.

Morneidr, s. f.—pl. mornadroedd (mor—neidr) A sea snake.

Mornodwydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (mor—nodwydd) The needle-fish, or girrrock.

Moron, s. pl. aggr. (mo—rhon) Such plants as have a single tapering root; carrots. Moron cochion, llysiaw cochion, carrots; moron gwyaion, llysiaw gwyddelig, pannas, parsneps; moron me lynton, moron yr allman, moron ffrainc, skirrets; moron y maes, wild carrots; moron y moch, pannas y moch, wild parsneps; moron y meirch, or efwr, cow-parsnep.

Moronen, s. f. dim. (moron) A single one of the moron plants. Moronen felen, a skirret; moronen iwen, pannasen, a parsnep; moronen bigang, prickly samphire; moronen y dwfr, water parsnep.

Morony, s. m. dim. (moron) A single one of the moron plants.

Mortais, s. f.—pl. mortaisiau (mor—tais) A mortise

Morteisiad, s. m. (mortais) A mortising.

Morteisiaw, v. a. (mortais) To make a mortise.

Morwaneg, s. f.—pl. t. au (mor—gwane) A wave of the sea. Rhygyr morwaneg, the violence of the sea-wave.

*Dug morwaneg deg o ddi gaeaf
Llys hawr Leon Gaur, llau gwawr gwmpaf.*

A fair sea-wave from the region of winter took the floor plot of Leon the Worthy, surge of brightest dawn.

G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Morwennol, s. f.—pl. morwennoliaid (mor—gwennol) The sea swallow, the sand-martin.

Morwerydd, s. m. (mor—gwerydd) A beach where the sea breaks; a sea-shore.

Morwiall, s. pl. aggr. (mor—gwiall) Grass-wreck.

Yn y lle y gwelw dyllus a morwiall.

In the place be saw drift and sea-wreck.

Morwialen, s. f. (mor—gwialen) Sea-girdle and hangers.

Crynu mai y-forwialen.

Trembling like the sea-girdle.

Adams.

Morwiber, s. f.—pl. t. od (mor—gwiber) The sea-dragon, or river.

Morwr, s. m.—pl. morwyr (mor—gwr) A seaman.

Morwregys, s. m. (mor—gwregys) Sea-belts.

Morwrieth, s. m. (morwr) Seamanship.

Morwys, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mor—gwyf) A bubble.

Morwyfiad, s. m.—pl. morwyfiad (morwyf) A bubbling of water.

Morwyn, s. f.—pl. t. ion (mor—gwyn) A virgin, a maid; a damsel; also a clothes-horse. Morwyn ystafell, a chambermaid; llawforwyn, a handmaid.

Morwynaid, a. (morwyn) Virginlike, maidenly.

Morwynain, a. (morwyn) Maidenly virgin.

*Lle drwg, y'ng hollus drain
Y mac'r enaid morwynain.*

An evil place, in the recesses of thorns the pure soul is confined.

Morwyn ab Rhys.

Morwynaw, v. n. (morwyn) To become a virgin.

Morwynaw, a. (morwyn) Belonging to a virgin.

Morwyndawd, s. m. (morwyn) Virginity.

Morwynig, s. f. dim. (morwyn) A little maid.

Morwynwraig, s. f.—pl. morwynwraigedd (morwyno—gwraig) A virgin wife, a married virgin, a betrothed maid.

Sef yw morwynwraig, gwraig gwdd ei rhoddi i wr, a hithau heb gyfeirio at ei enw, ac yn forwyn.

A virgin-woman is a woman after she has been given to a husband, and she without being yet slept with, and being a maid.

W. ab Iwan.

Morwyrd, s. m. (mor—gwyrd) Sea green colour.

Morwys, s. pl. aggr. (mor—gwys) Bubbles, bubblings.

Morwysiad, s. m.—pl. morwysiad (morwys) A bubbling.

Morwysia, v. a. (morwys) To bubble up.

Mory, s. m. (mor) The time or day coming, the morrow, to-morrow. adv. To-morrow. It is mostly used with the article, as y fory, the morrow, or with a prefix, as efory, to-morrow.

Arwyd o fedw llyon

Y fory a gaf dan ffig yn;

Amddwyrdd a chadwdd;

A hithau hawr fellydd hwl!

Observed with green blades to-morrow I shall receive, beneath the branches of the ash; a white covering shroud around me, and a veil of the lively folds of summer!

R. ab Gwynn.

Moryd, s. f. (mor) A small channel of sea water running into a marsh.

Morymdaith, s. m. (mor—ymdaith) A voyage or travel by sea.

Morymdethlaw, v. a. (morymdaith) To travel by sea, to go a voyage by sea.

Morymdeithydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (morymdaith) A traveller by sea.

Moryn, s. m. dim. (mor) A sea or wave that breaks over any thing.

Morysbail, s. f. (mor—ysbail) Spoilation by sea.

Morysbeiliaw, v. a. (morysbail) To spoil by sea.

Morysbeiliwr, s. m.—pl. morysbeiliwyr (morysbail—gwr) A spoiler by sea; a bucaneer.

Morysgyfaint, s. m. (mor—ysgyfaint) The kelp-neumon.

MU, s. f.—pl. t. on. A buik, or mass; a measure of capacity; a mound.

Tusell yw pedwar mu; ac yn mhob mu y bydd dwy rheid.

A tun consists of four mounds; and in every mound there shall be two tubs.

W. ab Iwan.

Much, s. m. (mu—nch) A black, or gloom.

Muchlad, s. m. (much) A blackening, a lowering.

Muchlain, a. (much) Of a black hue; gloomy; frowning, lowering.

Ban ymadrawd gyrr gwedd muchlain cad;

Nid ei ddeugie ymgyd Owain.

*At the discouraging of men with the frowning aspect of both,
there was no receding of the shield of Owain.*

Taliesin.

Muchiant, s. m. (muchlain) Blackness of hue; gloominess; a frowning; a lowering.

Muchiant, s. m. (much) A blackening, a rendering of a jetty black; a frowning, a lowering.

Muchudd, s. m. (much) A jet black; jet.

*Y'ng hithau ydychen ydychen
Echwyd a muchudd cymyngogier.*

In the city of the Quadrangle of the strongly guarded tow, the twilight and the gloomy jet mix together.

Taliesin.

Ei gwallt hithau a'i dwysel ddech oeddynt be'r muchudd.

Her hair also and her eyebrows blacker were they than the jet.

H. Fordyce-Mabington.

Muchuddaid, a. (muchudd) Like jet, black as jet.

Muchuddawl, a. (muchudd) Of a jetty black.

Mud, s. m. (my—nd) A removal, a pass, a move, a change of residence; what is moved, as goods, or furniture; also a mew, a term in falconry.

Y penabwydd, yr ynn ddeio yr hwyd yn mod yn i dyno allan, ad ddythi aeth i'w o hawl, nany'n i'w o'i gydwyrddogion.

The chief falconer, from the time when he shall put the hawk in a mew until he shall take it out, shall not be obliged to answer to any one as to a suit of law, except to one of his brother officers.

Welsh Laws.

Mud, a. (my—nd) Expressing by motion, or signs; mute, dumb.

Mir y bydd y mud yn warch y bydd.

Long will the dumb be at the gate of the deaf. Adage.

Ceased full drol of crotty.

Perished in his that belittles a dumb crotty. Adage.

Mir mynydd, gwyn Mawr dur; Mud crynau y Mawr.

Many mountains, white the top of the oak; mute is the dew of the hillside.

Mudadwy, a. (mud) That may be moved, movable.

Mudai, s. c.—pl. mudeion (mud) A remover.

Mudair, a. (mud) Transmuted, changed.

Bwgebalet yr gwrth bobog cyn mud, a thra bo ya y mud; gwddi be mudair, a gwyn, o bydd bron i'w ddydd, panti a dal.

She secure peace to the value of a hawk before mewing, and whilst it is in the mew; when it shall have become changed and white, it belonging to a king, a pound is its value. Welsh Laws.

Madan, s. m.—pl. f. od (mud) A mnte.

Madanneth, s. m. (mudan) A mnte state.

*Uda'r wyf—
Am y dyn o'i madanneth.*

I am waiting for the fair one on account of her husband. D. ab Edmwnd.

Mudanaid, a. (mudan) Like a mute, dumb.

Mudaness, s. f.—pl. f. od (mudan) A female mnte.

Mudann, v. n. (mudan) To become a mute.

Mudaw, v. a. (mud) To remove, to change an abode, to move; to carry to another place.

*For aye, an etiau all'm gwedd,
Dda chyl' gan ddyw y mudiad
I'm ymman a Rhun, nid rhydd fy mod
Yn mudaw am reueidd.*

The congenial chief, he will not let me appear to have a single want, notion of beauty: when I repair to Gwynedd: of the same epithet as Rhun, it is no wonder I should be removing to obtain wealth. Lt. P. Meek, & R. Grog.

Mudaw, a. (mud) Belonging to a removal, or change of place; movable.

Mudedig, a. (mud) Being moved, or removed.

Mudes, s. f.—pl. f. od (mud) A female mnte.

*Dyn—
Dy fodes yn dudedig.*

Grant thy dumb female to be possessed of tongue. D. ab Edmwnd.

Mudfa, s. f. (mud) A remove, a removal.

*Mudfa oedd dda ddyw calen,
Sle bwl llawr o dai o dda.*

A removal was good on new year's day, when his houses were fully stored with fire. Tra. Uygudd Mawr.

Mudiad, s. m.—pl. f. au (mud) A removing, a changing place; a conveying; conveyance.

Mudiant, s. m. (mud) A removal; a moving.

Muding, s. f. (mud) A seat of changing; a mew.

Mudh, s. m.—pl. f. ian (mud—hwy) A changing colour; a motley colour.

Mudsein, s. f.—pl. mudseiniol (mud—sein) A mnte sound; a mute letter.

Mudseiniad, s. f.—pl. mudseiniad (mud—sein) That is mute of sound, a mute letter. The mutes, the lythyrenau mud, or mudion, are these—h, f, p, ff, c, ch, g, ng, d, dd, t, th.

Mudw, a. m. (mud) That is moving or wandering.

Mudwg, s. m. (mud) A state of removing or changing.

Mudygawr, a. (mudwg) Greatly transforming.

*O llyb o llyb a blaedd fawr a ddaed,
A ddaed yn llybawr;
Mawr mawr mudygawr,
Eda o'n ddaed, cda cerddawr.*

From amidst his feather cloak a great outcry he would give, be that was laid in January; heir of the greatly transforming mew, a bird clad of a hundred wings, a beautiful songster.

Cynddra, yr eirio.

Mul, a. m.—pl. f. od (my—nl) An ass. Bastardd mul, a bastard ass, or a mule.

Mul, a. (my—nl) Bashful, or modest; simple.

*O'r mellos, gwyf doethion gyt
Y mawr a gawmodyn.*

Of youths, the wise of yore did the most modest praise.

H. Cae Llyng.

*Mab ni char gormodd storad,
Maf o'r dorch, mawr o dal.*

A child who loves not excess of talk, modest he is and wise like his sire. H. Cae Llyng.

Mulaidd, a. (mul) Of a bashful disposition.

Mulaw, v. n. (mul) To become bashful; to be abashed, ashamed or thmkl.

Muldra, s. m. (mul) Bashfulness, or modesty.

Muleiddiaw, v. n. (mulaidd) To become bashful.

Mules, s. f.—pl. f. od (mul) A she ass.

Parasut iddo farchogaeth ar fules y brenin.

They caused him to ride upon the she ass of the king.

1 Kings, i. 41.

Mulfran, s. f.—pl. f. od (mul—fran) A cormorant; also called morfran.

Nid gwrth o'n mulfran.

Nothing goodly but a cormorant. Adage.

Mulwion, a. (mul—gwrion) Bashfully innocent, simply innocent; stupid.

Mulyn, s. m. dim. (mul) A hddle or young ass.

Mun, s. f.—pl. f. au (mu—un) That is capable of forming; an epithet for a hand.

*Mwnal a ranal, wrth rdd, i'w hwn;
A mwy o'i ddwyfyn i'w mudiad.*

Money he would distribute, when necessary, to many one; add more out of his two hands to the destitute. L. O. Llydd.

Munaid, s. f.—pl. muneidiaw (mun) A handfl.

Muned, s. f. (mun) That helps, or extends aid, an epithet for a hand.

*Maf mwd a'r fawr fawr,
Gwawr nefolus, garallus.*

Let not the golden handed slender maid, of heavenly aspect, take a perfect churl. D. ab Edmwnd.

Muneidiaw, v. u. (munaid) To deal out a handfl.

Muner, s. m.—pl. f. oedd (mun) One that conducts; a ruler, or director. Muner Nef, the ruler of heaven.

Ardwy cadernyd menwyl muner.

The support of prowess is the pleasure of the sovereign.

Gwarchmai.

*Gwarchmai, o'n llw red, o'n Mawr o'r a'r;
Fy mawr, uhl mawr uhl fy ngwyl.*

Gentles, my fancied treasure, little me at a word; my Lord, not much were for me to have my sight! Gwarchmai.

*Mawr ror mawr a'n
Glas gwawr gwyl darguen.*

Is not the blue stone the lodging of the leading chief; the truth clad in a plate of steel. G. ab M. ab Uygudd.

Munerawd, s. m. (muner) A maintenance; a conducting, or regulating.

*Munerawd y mawr fy mawr,
Mawr y mawr Llythyrenau mawr;
Mawr gormod fy mawr.*

The beauty of the dead is my enjoyment, as in the life of the race of Llythyrenau, the sons of Rhun; not too much my work for thee. Lt. P. Meek, & Llythyrenau.

Munerawl, a. (muner) Maintaining, upholding.

Muneru, v. a. (muner) To maintain, to uphold; to conduct, to rule, to regulate.

*Nid muner na fawr, na fawr;
Mawr ddaed a'n mawr a'n mawr.*

Him, nor the mighty, nor the fortunate shall rule; the mighty even shall not conduct; the found in battle. Gwarchmai.

Munad, s. m.—pl. t. iau (mun—ad) A gesture, or motion of the body; a nod, or beck; imitation; an antick trick. Tori munndiau ar bren, to cut figures upon wood; mae hi yn llawn munndiau, she is full of anticks.

Meinir a wyr y munud.

The fair one knows the trick. D. ab Gwilym.

Munndiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (munud) A making a gesture, a beckoning; a mimicking; a playing antick tricks.

Munudiaw, v. a. (munud) To make a gesture; to beckon; to mimic; to play antick tricks.

Munudiwr, s. m.—pl. munudiwyr (munud—gwr) One who makes gestures; a beconer.

Munudydd, s. m. dim. (munud) A gesture; a beck

Mur, s. m.—pl. t. iau (mu—r) That is firm, fixed, or established; a wall, a rampart. ✓ Lat. murus

*Madawg mur mawrwyd;
Madawg, cyn bu baid,
Bu ddilys oiryoedd,
O gamp, a chymwedd.*

Madog the bulwark of happiness. Madog, before he was in the grave, was the tower of strength of games and of courtesy.

Taliesin.

*Mor tawch a dyr muriau'r tŷ,
A'r mellt a lyg yr alltydd.*

The spreading sea will break the fence of the land, and the lightnings will burn up the towering cliffs.

Dr. S. Crad.

Mur, s. (mu—ur) Firm, fixed, or established.

Merdd, s. m. (mur) A foundation, or base.

Murddyn, s. m.—pl. t. od (murdd) The rains of a building; a toft.

Murddynaldd, s. (murddyn) Like a toft; ruinous

Murddynu, v. a. (murddyn) To make a toft; to reduce to a ruin.

Murganllaw, s. f.—pl. t. iau (mur—canllaw) The battlement of a wall.

Margraidd, s. m. (mur—craidd) A powerful and ardent principle; a firm violence, or ardency.

*Seinleidd ei gloddyf yn mhen mamau;
Murgraidd oedd; moked ei mab Gwyddneu.*

His sword sounded on the loins of mothers; he was mighty violence; let the son of Gwyddneu extol him.

Ascurin.

*Trindawd trwygydd
A orau alltydd,
A gweli alltydd;
Addaf yn gellfidd;
A gweli Adda,
Y gorau Efa;
Yr Israel bendigaid
A orau murgraidd.*

The eternal Trinity made the element; and after the element, Adam wonderfully; and after the goodly Adam, he made Eve; the blessed Israel the mighty spirit made.

Taliesin.

Muriad, s. m. (mur) A fixing, establishing, or determining; a walling, a building a wall.

Muriaw, v. a. (mur) To fix, to establish, to determine; to wall, to build a wall.

Muriawg, a. (mur) Having a limit, or fence; walled, having a wall.

Muriawl, a. (mur) Tending to establish, or to determine; belonging to a wall, mural.

Muriedig, a. (muriad) Fixed, determined; having a wall, or rampart; walled.

Muriwr, s. m.—pl. murwyr (mur—gwr) One who fixes, or establishes; one who builds a wall.

Muriysian, s. pl. aggr. (mur—llysian) Pelitory of the wall; also called murfeyn, and murlys.

Murn, s. m.—pl. t. au (mur) A stoppage, obstruction; a foul deed; murder.

Murniad, s. m.—pl. t. an (murn) A stopping, or obstructing; a harming; a murdering.

Gwyn ei fydd i gyd yn gall a faruo Furniad truan anghall.

All blessed be he who shall discreetly judge the oppression of the simple wretch.

W. Middleton.

Murniaw, v. a. (murn) To stop, to obstruct; to harm; to murder.

Y faruo—

Murniad i, mae murn iol.

The bramble, it did harm to me, I bear the mark.

D. ab Gwilym.

Murniaw pen fyddol fel llydrod.

Stopping on the high ways like thieves. I. D. Rago.

Murniawl, a. (murn) Tending to obstruct; tending to harm; murdering.

Murniedig, a. (murniad) Being waylaid.

Murniwr, s. m.—pl. murnwyr (murn—gwr) One who stops, or obstructs; an assassin.

Ni ellir fy ngalw yn dad fch, mawr yn farniwr creduon.

I can not be called a father to you, but a cruel oppressor.

Cyd. Eulys ac Aelis.

Murs, s. m. (mur) That is stiff, nice, or prim.

Mursawg, s. m. (murs) Being trimmed up.

Mursen, s. f.—pl. t. od (murs) A coquette.

Mursen fydd o wr fal o wring.

There may be a coquette of a man as well as of a woman.

Adage.

*Telgwalth y dydd mawr, brenhith
Dduw yn y ly.*

Three times will a coquette say, be God's blessing in the house.

Adage.

*Pan fydd gwian gan farsen,
Y bydd gw i bob cawnen.*

When the coquette is possessed of wool, there will be a gown for every stalk.

Adage.

Mursenaidd, a. (mursen) Somewhat affected, or over-nice; coquettish, effeminate.

Mursendawd, s. m. (mursen) Affectation, coyness; quaintness; coquetry.

Murseneidd-dra, s. m. (mursenaidd) Coquetry.

Murseneiddiad, s. m. (mursenaidd) A rendering, or becoming coquettish; effemination.

Murseneiddiaw, v. a. (mursenaidd) To become affected, coy, or coquettish.

Murseneiddrwydd, s. m. (mursenaidd) Coquetry

Murseniad, s. m. (mursen) A becoming coquettish

Mursenu, v. (mursen) To behave affectedly, coyly, or coquettishly; to be coy, or coquettish

Mursogen, s. f. dim. (mursawg) One that is trimmed up; one who is coquettish.

*Tywyll ben mawrogen Nal,
Taw o'r nen, rhad Dew arnal;*

The darkly covered doll of May, thick from the top, brown's blessing be upon it.

D. ab Gwilym, i federn.

Mursyn, s. m. dim. (murs) A slightly one; a top.

Murwyll, s. m. (mur—gwyll) Wild wall-flower.

Mus, s. m. (my—us) Constrained motion, or jerk

Musg, s. m. (mus) A difficulty of motion.

Musgr, s. m. (musg) That is sluggish, or slow.

Musgrell, s. m. (musgr) That moves with labour; that is helpless. a. Having a difficulty of action; slow, sluggish, drawling, hobbling.

Daw a byrth i fsgrell.

God will provide for the helpless one.

Adage.

Mai corol gwrail fsgrell.

Like the distaff of a hobbling woman.

Adage.

Musgrelledd, s. m. (musgrell) Laborious motion; sluggishness; helplessness.

Musgrell, s. m. (musgrell) Laborious motion; sluggishness, helplessness.

Nid methiant ond musgrell.

It is not a defect short of helplessness.

Adage.

Musgrelliad, s. m. (musgrell) A rendering slow, sluggish, or helpless; a becoming helpless.

Musgrellni, s. m. (musgrell) A laborious motion; a halting, or hobbling; helplessness.

Musgrells, v. a. (musgrell) To render of laborious motion; to become helpless.

Musgrellyn, s. m. dim. (musgrell) One that moves with labour; a hobbling person; a hobbler.

MW, s. m. r. That is forward, upon, or about.

Mwcan, s. c. dim. (mwz) A cloud of fog.

Mwci, s. m. (mwg) Fog; a sprite, or goblin.

Mwcog, s. pl. (mwg) Hips; also called egroes.

Mwcwg, s. m. (mwg) Burnet rose.

Mwch, a. (my—wch) Hasty, swift, or quick.

Mwch barn pob shed.

Hasty the judgement of every fool.

Adage.

Mwchiad, s. m. (mwch) A hastening onward.

Mwchiaw, v. a. (mwch) To hasten; to be quick.

Mwchlaw, v. a. (mwchwl) To jumble, to mix; to daub with a variety of things.

Mwchliad, s. m. (mwchwl) A jumbling, a mixing.

Mwchnaw, v. a. (mwchwn) To jumble together.

Mwchwl, s. m. (mwch) A jumble, a mixture; that is full of transitions, a term for a kind of musical composition.

Mwchwn, s. m. (mwch) A jumble, or a mixture.

Mwd, s. m.—pl. mydau (mw—wd) An arch, a vaulted roof; a roof, a ceiling.

Mwdr, s. m. (mwd) That rises or springs up.

Mwdran, s. m. (mwdr) Washbrew, a sort of food, made by boiling water thickened with a soured infusion of oatmeal, and sweetened to the taste: it is also called brithdwyw.

Mwdwl, s. m.—pl. mydylan (mwd—wl) A round stack, cock, or heap.

Mwdd, s. m.—pl. myddi (mw—wdd) An arch; a spring; a cove; also lucky, or fortune.

Cerddedid cerw—

Cryno fel mwdd, carnewel main.

Of the pace of a stag, compact like an arch; the pale-hoofed slender one.

T. Aled, i farch.

Mwg, s. m. (mw—wg) Smoke, fume. Mwg y ddaiar, fumitory; mwg y perthi, hedge-fumitory: Mwg-jag, confusedly, in a huddle.

Arwydd drwg mwg yn niffath.

Smoke in a huddle is a sign of mischief.

Adage.

Mwgan, s. c. (mwg) A puff or cloud of smoke.

Mwgyschiad, s. m. (mwg—yschiad) A smoke-drying

Mwgyschu, v. a. (mwg—yschu) To smoke-dry.

Mwgwd, s. m. (mwg—wd) A blind, a mask.

Gwara mwgwd y dull, chwara mwgwd yr iair, the play of blind-man's buff.

Medd a ddioig y mwgud.

Mead will pull off the mask.

Adage.

Mwl, s. m.—pl. t. od (mw—wl) A concrete; a mass, a lump. Mwled a cherys llathraidd, lumps and well-shaped stones, say, the mason's.

Mwiwch, s. m. aggr. (mwl) Refuse; sweepings.

Mwiwg, s. m. aggr. (mwl) Refuse; sweepings.

Mwiwg mawn, the small or refuse of peat.

Cais yn y mwiwg.

Seek in the sweepings.

Adage.

Mwlyn, s. m. dim. (mwl) A concrete; a mass.

Mwl, a. (mw—wl) Close, warm, or sultry. Tywedd mwl, hin foll, sultry weather.

Mwn, s. m.—pl. mynnan (mw) That rises up as a spire; that stretches out, the upper part of the shaft of a weapon next to the head; a neck.

Owneir anafidrowi ol faint, a thair frawd o wned yn rhedeg o'r mwn byd y llawr.

A spear of immense size, and three streams of blood running from the neck to the ground.

H. Peredur—Nebingion.

Mwn, s. m. aggr. (mw—wn) Separate body, mass, or particle; mine, ore of metal. Mwn aur, gold mine; mwn arian, silver mine; mwn efydd, copper mine; mwn plwm, lead mine; gwath mwn, mine work; tull mwn, a mine shaft.

Mwnai, s. m. aggr. (mwn) Money, or coin.

Mwnaid, a. (mwn) Like mine, like ore.

Mwnawg, a. (mwn) Abounding with ore.

Mwnawl, a. (mwn) Belonging to mine or ore.

Mwndill, s. f. (mwn—dill) A spatule, a stirrer; a ladle; also called modbren.

Mwndir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mwn—tir) Land abounding with mine.

Mwndlws, s. m.—pl. nyndlysau (mwn—tlws) A neck ornament; a necklace.

Mwndorch, s. f.—pl. myndyrch (mwn—torch) A collar, a wreath for the neck.

Mwnglawdd, s. m.—pl. mwngloddiau (mwn—clawdd) A mine pit or shaft.

Mwngloddfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mwnglawdd) A mine pit, a mine shaft.

Mwngloddiad, s. m. (mwnglawdd) A mining.

Mwngloddiaw, v. a. (mwnglawdd) To make a mine pit or shaft; to mine.

Mwngloddiwr, s. m.—pl. mwngloddwyr (mwn—glawdd—gwr) A miner.

Mwnt, s. m.—pl. mynnau (mwn) That rises up; a heap, or mound; a mount, a mountain; one hundred thousand. Ar y mynnau, on the hills. Brecon.

Deg myrdd yn y mwnt.

Ten myriads in the hundred thousand.

Mwnwg, s. m. (mwn) That shoots out as a spire; a neck. Pen-dra-mwnwg, headlong.

Mwnwgl, s. m.—pl. mynyglan (mwnwg) The neck. Mwnwgl y troed, the instep of the foot.

Cyd ag y gwelais Eilidyr o'r rhedeg a orug, a myned ddwyllaw mwnwgl iddaw, a rhoddi llawer o gusanus iddaw.

As soon as Eilidyr saw him he ran, and went with his hands round his neck, and gave him many kisses.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Mwnws, s. pl. dim. (mwn) Small particles; dross, refuse, dust, pelf, riches.

Mwng, s. m.—pl. myngoedd (mwn) A mane.

Mwngial, v. a. (mwng) To speak from the throat; to mutter, to speak indistinctly.

Mwngial, s. m. (mwng) A speaking from the throat; a muttering, a murmuring.

Cerdd waunml fu'r mwngial mas.

A flighty song was that muttering of mine.

D. ab Gwilym.

Mwr, s. m. (mw—wr) That tends to fall, or lap.

Mwri, s. m. (mwr) A crumbling freestone.

Mwri, a. (mwr) Crumbling, friable. Tir mwri, a loose crumbling soil.

Mwrllwch, s. m. (mwr—llwch) A thick vapour.

Dyred yn nes stynt, ehai yr angel, ac a'm cipiai drwy lawer o fwrllwch diffaith, oeddi yn codi o'r ddinas.

Come nearer to them, said the angel; and he snatched me through many a noxious exhalation, which were rising out of the city.

Ellis Wyn, B. Cwg.

Mwrn, s. m. (mwr) Sultry or close weather.

Mwrn, a. (mwr) Sultry, close, or warm.

Murnaw, v. a. (mwrn) To become sultry.

Mwrnder, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Mwrndra, s. m. (mwrn) Sultry heat, sultriness.

Mwrnedd, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Mwrth, s. m. (mwr) That tends forward.

Mwrthwyl, s. m.—pl. t. ion (morth—wyl) A hammer—the same also in Coromandel.

Gwell an dyrnaud a'r ordd no dan a'r mwrthwyl.

Better one stroke with the mallet than two with the hammer.

Adage.

Mwrthwylid, s. m.—pl. t. an (mwrthwyl) A hammering; using a hammer.

Mwrthwylaw, v. a. (mwrthwyl) To hammer.

Mwrthwylidig, a. (mwrthwyl) Being hammered

Mwrthwylwr, s. m.—pl. mwrthwylwyr (mwrthwyl)—gwr A hammerer; a hammer-man.

Mws, s. m. (mw—ws) That shoots out; an effluvia

Mws, a. (mw—ws) Of a strong scent, rank.

*Ciliau yn wrth f'm gwrthol,
I'r drws, a'r ci mws i'm oi.*

I suddenly retreated back out of door, and the stinking dog after me. D. ab Gwilym.

Mwsg, s. m. (mws) The muscus, or musk.

Mwstardd, s. m. (mws--tardd) The mustard.

Mwsug, s. m. (mws) Moss. Mwsug gwyn, white moss; also called miguys.

Mwsugl, s. m. (mwsug) Moss, under all its varieties, except the lichen and the sorts growing upon stones which are called cân.

Mwswn, s. m. (mws) Moss; same as mwsug.

Mwth, s. m. (mw—with) That has velocity.

Mwth, a. (mw—with) Rapid, fleet, quick, nimble.

Nant mwth, a rapid brook; meirch mwthion, fleet horses.

*Gochawn marchawg mwth, moled Gwion,
O ddralw ddylaw addaw, doethaw Dou.*

We shall have a swift horseman, of Gwion's fame, a leader of fair promise, wise as Dou. Taliesin.

Mwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (mw) That is vast or large; that is dark or black.

Mwy, a. (mw) Additional; also used for the comparative mynach, more, greater, larger. adv. More; again; henceforward. Mwy dymunaw nag aur, more desirable than gold.

Guan y gormes mwyl gerbron y glawder lleist.

Feble is the greatest tyranny in the presence of the smallest courage. Adage.

*Dy far, ddiuwr fydwyr,
Ar a'rh gar; ni fo far fwy.*

Thy ire, Myrwan delicate and slender, is on him who loves thee; there never was greater ire. H. ab Einion Llygliu.

Cyd ddal caried cadwyr, Cywir, his mynegir mwy.

Moderately cherishing a concealed love, sincere, mwy, shall not be told. D. ab Gwilym.

Mwyhad, s. m. (mwyhau) An augmenting.

Mwyhawl, a. (mwyhau) Augmenting, increasing.

Mwyach, a. (mwy) More, greater, bigger. adv.

More, again, henceforward.

Mwynch ni elwir dy saw di Jacob.

More thy name shall not be called Jacob. Genesis 32. 26.

Mwyad, s. m.—pl. t. au (mwy) An increasing.

Mwyadawl, a. (mwyad) Tending to increase.

Mwyadn, v. a. (mwyad) To augment, to increase.

Mwyaf, a. (mwy) Greatest, biggest, largest; most. Yn fwyaf, gan mwyaf, mostly, in the greatest degree.

Tri lle y bydd y mwyaf o Ddew: lle mwyaf he a'i caru; y mwyaf a'i car; a lleiaf o'r huan.

The three instances where there will be the most of God: where he is the most sought; where he is most loved; and where there is the least of self. Berddau.

Mwyald, s. pl. (mwyad) Consecrated wafers.

Ni chweri mwyald ar fo.

The mass will not be sung on a retreat. Llefrud.

Pader a mwyald bendigald.

The pateroster and blessed wafers. Ymdd. Arthur a Lliudol.

Mwyalch, s. f.—pl. t. od (mwy—alch) An oasel. It is called guyalch, and aderyn da.

Genau mwyalch ac arch blaidd.

The mouth of a blackbird with the request of a wolf. Adage.

Mwyalchen, s. f. dim. (mwyalch) The oasel. Mwyalchen y dufr, y frowen, brownen y dufr, the water oasel; mwyalchen y graig, the rock oasel.

Mwyar, s. pl. aggr. (mwy) The class of berries, growing in clusters, called acini; so called from their dark hue. Mwyar y perthi, or mwyar duon, blackberries; mwyar berwyn, mwyar danyson, mwyar gwenith, mwyar y ddair, cloud-berries, mwyar freinig, mwyar Mair, mulberries; mwyar y brain, bilberries.

Mwyara, v. a. (mwyar) To gather berries.

Mwyarawl, a. (mwyar) Of the nature of berries.

*Y ffa fwyant olwy,
Fawaldid hwn o fwyaldid wy.*

The mouth of berry bar, very delicate, and of tender look. Gwynn Owein.

Mwyaren, s. f. (mwyar) A single berry.

Mwyariad, s. m.—pl. mwyariad (mwyar) A negro; a Moor.

Mwyân, v. a. (mwy) To augment, to enhance, to increase; to be increased, to grow bigger.

Myaf mwy wyt ti, abai Gwrtheyrn, o blant Cwreus; ac ai allir frenin o yran o'rh frodyr, mor yst i'wneid; a ma o'rh wad di yn frenin; a mwyhau dithon ffrind.

The eldest son art thou, said Gwrtheyrn, of the children of Cwreus; and not one of thy brothers can be king, for they are so young; no I will make thee king; then do thou call me brother. Gr. ab Idris.

Mwyâwr, s. m. (mwyân—gwr) An augmenter.

Mwyd, s. m. (mwy) That is swelled or puffed up; that is moistened, soaked, or steeped.

Mwyddidd, a. (mwyd) Somewhat moistened.

Mwydaw, v. a. (mwyd) To moisten, to soak, or to steep; to become moist, or damp.

Mwydawl, a. (mwyd) Tending to moisten.

Mwyddedig, a. (mwyd) Macerated, imbrued.

Mwydedd, s. m. (mwyd) A moist state, humidity.

Mwydiad, v. a. (mwyd) A moistening, a soaking.

Mwydion, s. pl. aggr. (mwyd) The soft parts, crumbs, or pith, of any thing. Mwydion bara, the crumb of bread; mwydion y ddolwr, puff-bell

Mwydionaid, a. (mwydion) Like soft pith, pithy

Mwydionawg, a. (mwydion) Abounding with pith

Mwydionl, v. a. (mwydion) To become pithy.

Mwydionllyd, a. (mwydion) Full of pith.

Mwydioury, s. m. dim. (mwydion) The pith.

Mwydle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mwyd—lle) A fetlock.

Mwydwr, s. m. (mwyd—gwr) A soaker.

Mwydydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mwyd) A soaker.

Mwydyn, s. m. dim. (mwyd) A pith, a crumb.

Mwyedig, a. (mwyad) Augmented, enhanced.

Mwyedigaeith, s. m. (mwyedig) Augmentation.

Mwyedigaw, v. a. (mwyedig) To augment.

Mwyeri, s. pl. aggr. (mwyar) Briers, brambles.

Mwyfwy, a. (mwy repeated) More and more.

Mwyg, s. m. (mwy) That is soft or puffed.

Mwygl, a. (mwyg) Tepid, sultry, warm; the same as mull, murn, gwygl.

*Meigen Rys—
'Mogel di, mwygl yn dy foot.*

Rhys of Meigen, take thou care, thy foot is warm. Ll. ab Gwilym.

Mwyglad, s. m. (mwygl) A growing sultry.

Mwyglaw, v. a. (mwygl) To make warm, or mild, to become warm, or sultry; to grow lukewarm.

Mwygled, s. m. (mwygl) Tepidity; sultriness.

Mwyglen, s. f. dim. (mwygl) A wanton weach.

Mwygliad, s. m. (mwygl) A growing sultry.

Mwyll, a. (mwy) Soft; tender, emollient.

Mwyn, s. m. (mwy) Enjoyment, fruition, use, or benefit; profit, advantage.

Nid mwynod mwyn arian.

There is no mine except mine that is gold. Adage.

Mi bydd i feddyg mwyn o waiaent.

The doctor shall have no advantage from what they do. Talmis.

Mwyn, a. (mwy) Tender, kind, mild, gentle, courteous, affable. Dynion mwyonion, fairies.

Gair mwyn a wna y ddadl yn gadarn.

A mild word will make the argument strong. Adage.

Cant mwyn mab y ty.

A hundred times kind the son of the house. Adage.

*Main drail rials, gair Gymraeg;
Mwyn forwyn hun-dwys, hoesddygn gyrtig.*

A slender elegant lady, whose Welsh is polished; a kind mild smiling sleep away; the severe torment of health! Carnodyn.

Mwyniad, s. m. (mwyn) An enjoying; fruition.

Mwyniawl, a. (mwynau) Tending to enjoyment.

Mwyniadd, a. (mwyn) Of a tender or kind nature

Mwynair, a. (mwyn—gair) A kind word.

Mwynas, s. f.—pl. t. au (mwyn) Kindness.

Mwynasiad, s. m. (mwynas) A doing a kindness.

Mwynasau, v. a. (mwynas) To do kindness.

Mwynau, v. a. (mwyn) To enjoy, to make use of; to take the benefit of.

*Yn ho gŵil a ddaidd,
Daw, Pw fyndda dauon heddi!*

Instead of anxiety and vengeance, God, send peace to be enjoyed. H. D. ab Iŷan.

Mwynawl, a. (mwyn) Tending to enjoyment.

*Mwynaw, gwaredaw y gair raddau;
Mwynau hawl mawr, cefir mawr mawr.*

The courteous, the gentle one of the exalted ranks; the inviting heavenly title, my praise shall be obtained. J. y Coad.

Mwynawr, s. m.—pl. mwynawyr (mwynau—gwr) One who enjoys, an enjoyer.

Mwynbell, a. (mwyn—pell) Extendedly enjoyed

*Cyran, dargan derwyddon dy ddaw;
Mi dyddir a fryddon.
Anaw cyranu cerddorion
On odd well, odd mwynbell Moet*

Cyran, the druid foretold he shall be coming; there has come of the Britons the complaining lay of minstrels for one more excellent, the far-enjoyed chief of Moet! L. P. Meek.

Mwynder, s. m.—pl. t. au (mwyn) Tenderness, kindness; gentleness; affability; enjoyment.

Nid mwynder odd merch.

There is no tenderness but in a woman. Adage.

*Cymer trwy mwynder, tra fych;
Dod ran o'r da a driesych.*

Accept, through enjoyment, whilst thou art; give a part of the possession that thou dost manage. S. Tudur.

Mwyndra, s. m. (mwyn) Tenderness, kindness; gentleness; affability, enjoyment.

Mwynddyn, s. c.—pl. t. ion (mwyn—dyn) A tender, kind, or courteous person.

Mwynedig, a. (mwyn) Being enjoyed, or used.

Mwynedd, s. m. (mwyn) Kindness, courtesy.

Mwyneddas, a. (mwynedd) Full of tenderness.

Mwyneddi-dra, s. m. (mwynaidd) Tenderness.

Mwyneddiadd, s. m. (mwynaidd) A becoming of a kind or tender nature.

Mwyneddiaw, v. a. (mwynaidd) To become pleasing, kind, tender, or affable.

Mwynen, s. f. dim. (mwyn) A pleasing one.

Mwynfawr, a. (mwyn—mawr) Greatly kind.

*Mwynfawr gorchmawr a gorchmawr,
Mawr fab Gwlad, gryn ddarogau.*

A greatly courteous prisoner they brought away, Mawr the son of Gwlad, the object of predilection. O. Cyfeillwng.

Mwyniannawl, a. (mwyniant) Tending to enjoyment, or fruition.

Mwyniannu, v. a. (mwyniant) To render an enjoyment; to enjoy.

Y rhai ond yni yn cyffwrdd bywyd yma—ond hwi alliddeueth, ac yn wyllygar i; mado ag of i ffordd i iya y breula hawli, y gallant mwyniannu cyfawnder o lawenydd.

Those who do not count this life more than like a state of exile and willing to come out of it to go into the court of the heavenly king, shall get to enjoy fulness of pleasure.

Merchug Gwyddard.

Mwyniannus, a. (mwyniant) Tending to enjoyment; tending to please.

Mwyniannusaw, v. a. (mwyniannus) To render of a tendency to enjoyment.

Mwyniant, s. m.—pl. mwyniannau (mwyn) Benefit, use, or profit derived; enjoyment.

Cymer mwyniant y peth sy gwynt, oia bo y cyfwrdd yn bingaw y diawl am lai wo aroddu chreolion.

Take the enjoyment of what thou hast, whilst the miser is paying the devil for less than the skin of a lion. Adage.

Mwynlan, a. (mwyn—glan) Courteously fair.

Mwynwr, a. m.—pl. mwynawyr (mwyn—gwr) A kind or affable man.

Mwynyn, s. m. dim. (mwyn) A kind one.

Mwys, s. f.—pl. t. au (mwy) That has capacity, or that comprehends; that has latitude of import, a pun; also a kind of covered basket, pannier or hamper; also the quantity contained in such vessel. Mwys o ygedain, a mense, or five-score of herrings.

Un o'r tri thlws ar ddeg—Mwys Gwyddno Gwan Hir; bwyd i ungwr a roid yddi, a bwyd i gannwr a goid yddi pan egorid.

One of the thirteen varieties: the basket of Gwyddno Longbank; the victuals for one man being put in it, victuals for a hundred men would be found in it when opened. Chwedlloren.

Mwys, a. (mwy) Comprehensive; enveloped; mysterious; ambiguous; ingenious, witty; elegant; also, of the nature of a pun, or of a double meaning. But the last sense arose from mistaking false for true wit; and hence gair mwys, in popular language, is a pun; of which the following part of an englyn, where An, a woman's name, and a negative particle, is the gair mwys, may serve as an example.—

*An-fryn, an-ddwyn, an-ych, an-lunaid,
An-lana' lle delych.*

Mwysai, s. c.—pl. mwysaion (mwys) A punster.

Mwysaid, a. (mwys) Of a latitude of import; of the nature of a pun; ambiguous, oracular.

Mwysair, s. m.—pl. mwysairiau (mwys—gair) A word of double meaning; a pun.

Mwysaw, v. a. (mwys) To be of capacity; to have latitude of import, to pun.

Mwysawg, a. (mwys) Having capacity; having latitude of import; of a double meaning.

Mwysder, s. m.—pl. t. au (mwys) That is comprehensive; an ambiguity, a mystery.

Mwysdro, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mwys—tro) A quibble

Mwysdroad, s. m. (mwysdro) A punning.

Mwysdroi, v. a. (mwysdro) To quibble, to pun.

Mwysciraig, a. (mwysair) Full of punning.

Mwyth, s. m.—pl. t. au (mwy) That is smooth, soft and puffed up; a fulness of humours; a fever. Y cryd a mwyth, the ague and fever, or intermitting fever; y mwyth briith, briith y gwanwyn, the military fever.

Cadw a—

*Rhag pwenau clwysu, rhag clafyd a mwyth,
Rhag methiant ac alydd.*

Keep me from the pains of wounds, from disease and fever, from debility, and from adversity! H. D. ab Iŷan.

Mwyth, a. (mwy) Puffed up, soft, sleek; tender.

Castell Mathrafal, mwyth weria wythawg,
Da peithawg posh eithia
O'u gywya, cynoern byddin;
Nid uch wyneb heb uw'i llin.

The castle of Mathrafal, of a pampered ferocious multitude, in black and cleanly burnt from thy attack, those dependance of a host: no one's face is higher than his knee.

Li. P. Moch, i G. ab H. ab Owain.

Mwythach, s. m. (mwyth) The state of being puffed up, or pampered.

Mwythian, s. c. dim. (mwyth) Any soft tender substance, a tender shoot, a cartilage, a gristle.
Mwythaw, v. a. (mwyth) To puff up, to make smooth; to mollify, to soften; to become puffed up; to grow soft; to have a fever.

Mwythawg, a. (mwyth) Puffed up, pampered.

Mwythawl, a. (mwyth) Emollient, softening.

Mwythedig, a. (mwyth) Being mollified.

Mwythedd, s. m. (mwyth) Emolliency, softness.

Mwythiad, s. m. (mwyth) A mollifying.

Mwythiant, s. m. (mwyth) Softness, blandishment

Mwythig, a. (mwyth) Puffed up, bloated.

Mwythigaw, v. a. (mwythig) To become puffed up or bloated; to swell with humours.

Mwythl, s. m. (mwyth) That has a tendency to puff up or to make sleek.

Mwythlan, s. c. dim. (mwythl) One that is puffed up, or pampered.

Mwythlawn, a. (mwyth) Puffed up, pampered.

Mwythlen, s. f. dim. (mwythl) A soft pampered female, one that is plump.

Mwythus, a. (mwyth) Puffed up, sleek, pampered, delicate, nice.

Nid mwythus ond hela.

None delicate but the marrow.

Adage.

Mwythusaw, v. n. (mwythus) To become delicate, or nice, to pamper.

Mwythusder, s. m. (mwythus) Delicateness.

Mwythusdra, s. m. (mwythus) Delicateness, softness, effeminacy, a pampered state.

Mwythiad, s. m. (mwythus) A rendering puffed up, sleek, or soft, a pampering.

Mwythusrwydd, s. m. (mwythus) Pamperedness.

MY, s. m. r. That is, that is present; that is in agency. It is a prefix in composition.

My, pron. (my, s.) It is mutable into fy, in which form it most frequently occurs. My hun, my hunan, myself; mi fy hun, I myself.

Pan gefais fy maeidd gan adfyd, mi wybum fod fy neall yn golltanu ychydig.

When I got buffeted by adversity, I knew that my understanding was becoming a little enlightened.

Murcham Cwyddred.

Myanafu, v. a. (anafu) To maim, or to hurt.

Mychawl, a. (mwch) Of a rapid or quick motion.

Mychedyn, s. m. dim. (mwch) A sun beam.

Mychlad, s. m.—pl. mychiaid (moch) Swineherd.

Ewawg mychlad o'i forh.

A swineherd is proud of his swine.

Adage.

Llawen mychlad pan fo gywnt.

Glad the swineherd when there is wind.

Adage.

Mychw, s. m. (mwch) Motion stopped or reflected

Mychweg, a. (chweg) Lascious, very sweet.

Mychwegrwydd, s. m. (mychweg) Lasciousness.

Mychwin, a. (mychw) Reflected as to motion.

Myd, s. m. (my—yd) A circular enclosure.

Hael Arthur, myd anghudd am rodd;

Hael Rhydderch am sar fudd;

Hael Mordaf; hael mawring Nudd;

Haeluch, gredfiolech Gwafudd.

Generous was Arthur, of unceasing readiness in giving; generous was Rhydderch as to the gold treasure; generous was Mordaf; generous the magnificent Nudd; more generous, more good-natured is Gwafudd.

Li. P. Moch.

Mydadwy, a. (mwd) That may be arched.

Mydaidd, a. (mwd) Like an arch, archwise.

Mydawl, a. (mwd) Belonging to an arch.

Mydedig, a. (mwd) Camerated, arched over.

Mydedd, s. m. (mwd) The state of being arched.

Mydeddawg, a. (mydedd) Having curvatures.

Mydeyrn, s. m.—pl. t. on (teyrn) A sovereign.

Mydiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (mwd) Cameration.

Mydiant, s. m. (mwd) Cameration, an arch.

Mydr, s. m.—pl. t. an (myd) A metre. Mydr awl, blank verse.

Mydraeth, s. m. (mydr) Versification.

Mydraethawl, a. (mydraeth) Versifying.

Mydraethiad, s. m. (mydraeth) Versification.

Mydraethu, v. a. (mydraeth) To compose verse.

Daeth y cyfryw drywyllt ac ofweryddmydraethu, a dal lryddid.

There be come in one such perfectly wild and uncontrolled versifying, and such blind poetizing.

Ed. Dafydd.

Mydraethydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mydraeth) A versifier, a maker of metres.

Mydawl, a. (mydr) Metrical; rhythmical.

Mydriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (mydr) A versifying.

Mydrin, a. (mydr) Composed in metre.

Mydrwr, s. m.—pl. mydrwyr (mydr—gwr) A versifier, a maker of verses.

Mydrydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mydr) A versifier.

Mydryddiad, s. m. (mydrydd) A versifying.

Mydryddiaeth, s. m. (mydrydd) Versification.

Tri anhegog mydryddiaeth: colofa, cyngau madd, ac awil.

The three indispensable of versification: feet, compass, and rhyme.

Barddon.

Mydryddu, v. a. (mydrydd) To versificate.

Wrth fydryddu cerdd—drychred y bardd ac roddu yn gwyddu y cyfryw fuan ag a foud ry sonachygg ac anwastad, ac anghydwysu herwydd cyhydded.

In versifying a piece, let the poet see that he do not couple together such verses as shall be too dissimilar, and unequal, and incompetent, with respect to length.

Barddon.

Mydu, v. a. (mwd) To arch, to vault, to make an arched roof, or ceiling.

Mydum, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tum) A gesture; mimicry. Gwneud mydumiau, to make wry faces.

Mydw, s. m. (myd) Aptitude; fluency.

Gwyr oedd gur gorffod gorffyn,

Gwedi mydw a medd gorenwya.

He knows the attack of the overbearing malicious man, after the fluency of discourse, and the ah, hly-foaming mood.

Cynadola, i'r cryf. Rhys.

Mydwal, a. (mydw) Of aptitude to proceed.

Mydwaledd, s. m. (mydwal) Flow of expression.

Myr fydwaledd hawddgar.

Fair is the amiable speech.

Sigs. Cyfrillawg.

Dowredd mydwaledd a dawn,

El ryw fo oedd rhod ei felfr,

A chwn, gwelen, ac cleirch.

The spirit of eloquence and talent, his nature was to give away his steeds and dogs, as we perceive, and his swans.

B. Brynallu.

Mydwr, s. m.—pl. mydwyr (mwd—gwr) One who forms an arch, or ceiling.

Mydwrdd, s. m. (my—dwrdd) A tumult.

Mydylan, s. c. dim. (mwdwl) A small stack.

Mydylawg, a. (mwdwl) In the stack, cocked.

Mydylad, s. m. (mwdwl) A making stacks.

Mydylw, v. a. (mwdwl) To make stacks, to cock.

Mydylwr, s. m.—pl. mydylwyr (mwdwl—gwr)

One who makes stacks, or mows.

Mydylw, s. m. dim. (mwdwl) A small stack.

Myddi, s. f.—pl. t. an (mwdwl) A boghead.

Myfi, pron. (my—mi) I, me, myself.

Myfiath, s. m. (myfi) Egotism, a talking of self.

Myfiaw, v. a. (myfi) To egotize, to talk of self.

Myfinau, pron. (minnau) I also, I likewise.

Myfiwr, s. m.—pl. myfiwyr (myfiaw—gwr) An egotist, or one who talks of himself.

Myfydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (myfi) An egotist.

Myfyr, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (myr) The action of the mind; muse, study. Myfyr Elias, the study of Elias, in Monia; Glyn y Myfyr, a vale in Denbighshire.

Myfyr, a. (myr) Contemplative, thoughtful.

Myfyrwdd, s. m. (myfyr) Contemplation.

Myfyrwyll, s. m. (myfyr—pwyll) A contemplative mind. a. Of a thoughtful turn of mind.

*Cyddyddan fyfyrwyll o fri
Cedwynawg, cyddyddawg lla.*

Creddeban with a mind reverend of honour, the one of chains, the forward one of war. Llywarch Hen.

Myfyrdawd, s. m.—pl. myfyrdodau (myfyr) Meditation, or contemplation.

This cyddawd cyddawg fyfyrdawd: a dychion fod, a ddyni fod, ac ydd llydd o fod.

The three foundations of just thinking: that is possible to be, that ought to be, and that is beautiful it should be. Berddas.

Myfyrdodawl, a. (myfyrdawd) Contemplative.

Myfyrgar, a. (myfyr) Contemplative, cogitative.

Myfyrgarwch, s. m. (myfyrgar) Studiosness.

Myfyriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (myfyr) Cogitation, contemplation; a contemplative.

Myfyriadawl, a. (myfyriad) Contemplative.

Myfyriaeth, s. m. (myfyr) Cogitation.

Mai myfyriaeth oed jayriaeth.

There is no contemplation without consideration. Adage.

Myfyriannawl, a. (myfyriant) Cogitative.

Myfyriannu, v. a. (myfyriant) To cogitate.

Myfyriannus, a. (myfyriant) Cogitative.

Myfyriannusaw, v. a. (myfyriannus) To become contemplative or thoughtful.

Myfyriant, s. m. (myfyr) Cogitation.

Myfyriaw, v. a. (myfyr) To contemplate, to meditate, to cogitate, to muse, to study.

Myfyriawl, a. (myfyr) Contemplative.

Myfyriedig, a. (myfyriad) Contemplated.

Myfyriedigawl, a. (myfyriedig) Contemplative.

Myfyrioldch, s. m. (myfyriawl) Studiosness.

Myfyriwr, s. m.—pl. myfyrywyr (myfyr—gwr) A contemplator, a speculator.

Myfyrias, a. (myfyr) Apt to contemplate.

Myg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (my—ig) That is of great space, or grand; that is solemn or holy.

Beadigaid fyfyr Ye'r noddyg.

A blessed solemnity is the activity. Dr. Ferdd.

Myg, a. (my—yg) Being of great space, or grand; reverential, respectable; honoured; holy; solemn; glorious.

Mygarogl, s. m.—pl. mygaroglaen (myg—arogl) Holy incense.

Mygaw, v. a. (myg) To perform a solemnity.

*Gorddyfons, mygla maglad llywth Cadfor
Goser y ghafor a gar gieldad.*

I have been sanctuous, I have honoured the edification of the tribe of Cadfor, on the coast of the blue sea, which the salmon loves. Llywelyn Ddu.

Mygawd, s. m. (mwg) A rising of smoke, steam, or vapour; suffocation.

Mygaw, a. (mwg) Famous, smoking, smoky.

Mygr, s. m. (myg) That is reverent, or solemn.

Mygdarth, s. m.—pl. t. an (mwg—tarth) Vapour, exhalation, fog; famigation.

Mygdarthiad, s. m. (mygdarth) A throwing out vapour; a famigating; a burning of incense.

Mygdartha, v. a. (mygdarth) To burn incense.

Myged, a. f. (myg) Grandeur; reverence, honour, solemnity; glory.

VOL. II.

*Neud odyw!—gwanar cordeidd cyrdd fydd:
Gwas o'i fydd yn naa gwedd!*

Is he not gone! the inspired regulator of the solemnity of song: was it me that he is gone to regions where I may not behold him!
Ph. Brydd.

Myged, a. (myg) Grand; respected, honoured, solemn, glorious.

*I Ddew ydd anghaf, naaf, eu nodd,
Rodd-fydd ri!*

I will entreat a refuge for them of God the Father, the Lord of glorious gift.

Mygedawg, a. (myged) Respected, revered.

*Y digona gwyrchyr Gwiliawg
Elywod Gairneth fawr fygedawg.*

The heroic Gwallog achieved exploits equal to those of Castruth great and glorious. Melgan.

Mygedawl, a. (myged) Having respect; honorary. Gradd fygedawl, honorary degree.

Mygedig, a. (myged) Respected, revered.

Mygedorth, s. f. (myged—gorth) A funeral pile.

*Yn Llongborth gwelais i fygedorth,
A gwyr yn goddef anghorth,
A gorffod gwedd gorthorth.*

In Llongborth I beheld a solemn pile, and men suffering privation, and in a state of subjection after excess of friction.
Llywarch Hen.

Cornau, march meibion Elifer Gogoroddawr, a ddw arnaw Gwrth, Feredur, Ddawdd Fyr, a Chyfeiryn Druag, i edrych ar fygedorth Gweddolau yn Arderydd.

Cornau, the horse of the sons of Elifer with the great retinue, carried Gwrth, Feredur, Ddawdd Fyr, and Chyfeiryn the Stambler, to see the funeral pile of Gweddolau in Arderydd. Triodd.

Mygfa, s. f.—pl. mygfeydd (mwg) That suffocates; a suffocation.

Mygfaen, s. m.—pl. mygfeini (mwg—maen) Brimstone; also called llongfaen.

Mygliad, s. m. (mwg) A smoking; a suffocation.

Mygiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mygliad) A smoker.

Myglyd, a. (mwg) Apt to smoke, or smoky.

Myglydrwydd, s. m. (myglyd) Smokiness.

Myglys, s. m. (mwg—llys) Tobacco.

Mygod-darth, s. m. (mygawd—tarth) Vapour, or exhalation.

Mygod-darth cylch Mai goedydd.

Vapour surrounding the woods of May.

D. ab Gwilym, 1791.

*Mygod-darth am ei geden
Y gwrthion aeth gych a'r nen.*

Vapour round his shaggy coat, the sparks flew up as high as heaven. R. Iorwerth.

Mygodfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mygawd) An asthma.

Mygodorth, s. f. (mygawd—gorth) An oppression of wind; flatulency.

Cwmle, tŷri mygodorth, a gwared dolur, a llongfaen croth a wraut.

The cummin will break the flatulency, and relieve pain and heat in the womb. Nodd. Myddful.

Mygr, a. (myg) Majestic, grand, glorious.

*Glyw a'm rhodd—
Mairch ar seirch yn garcharorion,
Mairch gerdded, mygr gydded gairdion.*

A chief will present me with steeds upon oats kept prisoners, of extensive career, splendid, of equal pace and powerful.
Cynddelw.

*Carañ owa Pal forehen lodd,
A golygion llywyr hirwyr ei grudd;
Carañ elion mygr.*

I love the nightingale of May, abstracting the morning sleep, with languid eyes and aspect long and pale. GweliAmor.

Mygraid, a. (mygr) Of a majestic, grand, or splendid aspect.

Mygrawl, a. (mygr) Tending to make majestic, grand, or splendid; beauteous; glorious.

Mygredd, s. m. (mygr) Majesty, grandeur; glory.

Mygrfalch, a. (mygr—balch) Majestically proud.

Mygriad, s. m. (mygr) A rendering majestic, grand, or splendid; a rendering glorious.

Mygru, v. a. (mygr) To render majestic, grand, or splendid; to make of glorious appearance.

2 Z

Mygrwawr, s. f. (mygr—gwawr) A splendid ray.
Mygrwedd, s. f. (mygr—gwedd) A majestic, or splendid aspect.

Mygu, v. a. (mwg) To make smoke, to smoke; to smother, to stifle, to stop the breath; to smoke, or to rise in smoke.

Mygwr, s. m.—pl. mygwyr (mygu—gwr) A smoker
Mygydawl, a. (mwgwd) Being blindfolded.

Mygydiad, s. m. (mwgwd) A blindfolding.

Mygydn, v. a. (mwgwd) To blindfold, to blind.

Myhar, s. m. (har) The male of sheep, a ram.

Myharan, s. m.—pl. myheryn (myhar) A male sheep, a ram; also called hwdd. Llygaid myheryn, limpets.

Myharan, tair dafad a dai; an am bob caill iddo, ac un yn He ei gorph ei hun.

A ram is of the value of three ewes; one for each of his teats, and one in lieu of his own body. Welsh Laws.

Myhefin, s. m. (hefin) The month of June.

Myher, s. f.—pl. myhyr (her) An attack.

*Gwirawd a'r gwithfyn gerth syr a lleuad,
Gan rwyf i'w rhudd fyhr.*

With liquor we are pilled by the light of stars and moon, by a chief of beauty, of ruddy onset. Cynddelw, t. O. Gwynedd.

Myhun, pron. (my—hun) Myself. It is mutable into fyhun, in which form it mostly occurs in construction.

*E ddaeth i'm cyrchaw
Gwedi fy nghroaw;
Y' nghrog yn greuad
Myhun i'm gwaiad.*

He came to fetch me after I was crucified; being crucified and covered with blood, myself to deliver me. Armes dyddbrawd.

Myhunan, pron. (myhun) Myself, me myself.

Myldardd, s. m. (mwl—tardd) That is pervaded with grains, or particles. Maen myldardd, the porphyry.

Myllaidd, a. (mwl) Of a sultry or hot tendency.

Mylliad, s. m. (mwl) A growing sultry or hot.

Mylln, v. n. (mwl) To become sultry or warm.

Myllyn, s. pl. aggr. (mwl) The violets.

Myllynen, s. f. dim. (myllyn) A violet.

Mym, s. m. (my—ym) That is incipient.

Mympwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (myni—pw) Opinion, humour, good pleasure.

Mympwyaeth, s. m. (mympwy) Opinion.

Mympwyaw, v. a. (mympwy) To exercise an opinion, humour, or pleasure.

Mympwyawl, a. (mympwy) Opinionative.

Mympwyedd, s. m. (mympwy) Opinability.

Mympwyoldeb, s. m. (mympwyawl) Opinionativeness, a state of opinion.

Mymryn, s. m.—pl. t. au (mym—rhyn) An atom, a mite; the smallest particle, the least that may be. Ni fyddi fywryn haws, thou wilt not be a bit the nearer.

*Bychanaf, o'r bychenyd,
Yn Hu Gadarn, fe'i barn byd;
A mysaf, a naf i ni,
Un coelwyn, a'n llaw celi;
Ysgafn ei deith, ac esged;
Mymryn tes glwynn ei glud,
A mawr ar dir, a moroedd,
A mysaf a gaf ar goeidd;
Mey no'r bydodd, marbelwn
A march graell'r mawr hael hun.*

The smallest, should he be compared with small, is the Mighty Hu, the world doth judge; also the greatest, and lord over us, and our God of mystery. Light is his course and swift; a particle of lucid sunshine is his car; And, great on land and seas; and the greatest whom I shall manifest find; yea greater than the world; let us beware of mean indignity to this greatly bounteous one. Rhys Brydydd.

*Ni wna i hi eriof faint
Y mymryn, gwenddyn gwyddaint.*

She would not do on my account the least little, the white-teethed fair one.

Myn, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (my—yn) Will, desire.

Tri chysfald pob gwaith; modd, modyr, a myn.

The three necessities towards every work: power, knowledge, and will. Adys.

Myn, s. m.—pl. t. od (my) A kid, a young goat.

Myn, adv. (myn, s.) By the will of, by. Myn dyn!

By heavens! Myn fy llaw! By my hand!

Myn fy ffydd! By my faith! Myn diawl! No diable! Myn y nos! By the night!

*Myn dyn! pan oeddem ein dau
Lawenaf: ddyn ael wnaid!
Taro a wnaeth, terwyn oedd,
I rast taran.*

By heavens! when we two were fullest of joy: the symbol via brown eyebrows: the rumbling of thunder violently struck a mid-air shock. D. of Gwynedd.

Mynach, s. m.—pl. t. od (mwn) A separate body, or individual; a monk; a pillar, or supporter in a building, as the post of a tent, or booth, and the four corner posts of a mill frame.

Somi Daw a mynach mawr.

To deceive God with a dead man. Adys.

Mynachaeth, s. m. (mynach) Monachism.

Mynachawl, a. (mynach) Monachal, monastic.

Mynachyn, s. f.—pl. t. au (mynach) A female recluse, a nun.

Mynachlog, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (mynach—log) A monastery, a covenant.

Mynachlogaidd, a. (mynachlog) Monasterial.

Mynad, s. m.—pl. t. an (myn) A willing, a desiring; volition; demand.

Mynadwy, a. (mynad) That may be willed, desired, desirable, demandable.

Mynag, s. f.—pl. t. on (myn) That is uttered, declared, or spoken; a report, or recital.

Arwacaf i leidr ei fyang.

A warrant for a thief is his own declaration. Adys.

Mynai, s. c. (myn) One who wills or desires.

Mynaid, a. (myn) Like a young goat.

Mynan, s. c. dim. (myn) A young kid.

Mynas, s. f. (myn) A menace, a threat.

Mynasiad, s. m. (mynas) A menacing.

Mynasu, v. a. (mynas) To menace, to threaten.

Deaf Corineus, arian drol bywall deudhwy yn ei law, ac i mynasu ei gyrcio a'r fyang; ac yna y deudhwyd cydymuniad rhyngddynt.

Corineus advanced, brandishing a two-edged battle-axe in his hand, and menacing to strike him with the ear; and thence some friends came between them. Gr. of Arthur.

Mynaswr, s. m.—pl. mynaswyr (mynas—gwr) A menacer, a threatener.

Mynasydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mynas) A menacer.

Mynaw, v. a. (mwn) To penetrate; to stretch or extend out.

Mynawg, s. m. (myn) One who exercises his will; one who has his own will.

*Rhedaint gorwydd; rhydd pob trach;
Cyng mynawg marchogeth.*

Fleet is the steed; clear is every strand; the fancy of the best minded one is chivalry. Idyll.

*Nid wyf fynawg bla:
Ni chwadaid.*

I am no harassing high-minded one; I will not loath— Idyll.

Mynawg, a. (myn) Willing, or desirous; ready to do; courteous, civil. Gwr mynawg, a courteous man; mynawg fonedd, courteous nobility; mynawg weidd, a benign aspect; mynawg fawcwyd, a benign state of bliss.

Mynawl, a. (myn) Relating to the will.

Mynawyd, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (mynaw) That penetrates; an awl. Mynawyd y bugel, y drowedd the crane-bill.

Mwyn, s. m. (mwy) Enjoyment, fruition, use, or benefit; profit, advantage.

Nid mwyn ond mwyn arfaint.

There is no mine except mine that is gold. Adage.

Mi bydd i faddys mwyn o waiaint.

The doctor shall have no advantage from what they do. Talmia.

Mwyn, a. (mwy) Tender, kind, mild, gentle, courteous, affable. Dynion mwynion, fairies.

Gair mwyn a wna y ddadl yn gadarn.

A mild word will make the argument strong. Adage.

Cast mwyn mab y ty.

A hundred times kind the son of the house. Adage.

*Mala fraid rind, gair Gynmraeg;
Mwyn forwyn hun-dwy, hœn ddyg gŷter.*

A slender elegant lady, whose Welsh is polished; a kind maid driving deep away; the severe torment of health! Carnodyn.

Mwyniad, s. m. (mwyn) An enjoying; fruition.

Mwyniawl, a. (mwyniawl) Tending to enjoyment.

Mwynidd, a. (mwyn) Of a tender or kind nature

Mwynir, a. (mwyn—gair) A kind word.

Mwynas, s. f.—pl. t. an (mwyn) Kindness.

Mwyniad, s. m. (mwynas) A doing a kindness.

Mwynas, v. a. (mwynas) To do kindness.

Mwynu, v. a. (mwyn) To enjoy, to make use of; to take the benefit of.

*Yn lle goshia ddaidd,
Daw, Pw fynyda daufon hedd!*

Instead of anxiety and vengeance, God, send peace to be enjoyed. H. D. ab Ifon.

Mwynawl, a. (mwyn) Tending to enjoyment.

*Mwynaw, gwaredmaw y gair raddan;
Mwynawl hawl nefaw, cedir mawl maw.*

The courteous, the gentle one of the exalted rank; the inviting heavenly stile, my praise shall be obtained. D. y Coad.

Mwynawr, s. m.—pl. mwynawyr (mwynau—gwr) One who enjoys, an enjoyer.

Mwynbell, a. (mwyn—pell) Extendedly enjoyed

*Cym, dderogon derwyddon dy ddaw;
M dyddio o Fryllon.*

*Awaw cymau cerddorion,
Un oed well, oed mwynbell Most*

Cymau, the druids fore-tell he shall be content; there has come of the Britons the complaining lay of minstrels for one more excellent, the Jern-jewell chief of Moos! L. P. Moch.

Mwyned, s. m.—pl. t. an (mwyn) Tenderness, kindness; gentleness; affability; enjoyment.

Nid mwyned ond merob.

There is no tenderness but in a woman. Adage.

*Cymer trwy fwynder, tra fych;
Dod ran o'r da a drinych.*

Accept, through enjoyment, whilst thou art; give a part of the possession that thou dost manage. S. Tudur.

Mwynra, s. m. (mwyn) Tenderness, kindness; gentleness; affability, enjoyment.

Mwynydd, s. c.—pl. t. ion (mwyn—dyn) A tender, kind, or courteous person.

Mwynedig, a. (mwyn) Being enjoyed, or used.

Mwynedd, s. m. (mwyn) Kindness, courtesy.

Mwyneddus, a. (mwynedd) Full of tenderness.

Mwynidd-dra, s. m. (mwynidd) Tenderness.

Mwyniddiad, s. m. (mwynidd) A becoming of a kind or tender nature.

Mwyniddiaw, v. n. (mwynidd) To become pleasing, kind, tender, or affable.

Mwynen, s. f. dim. (mwyn) A pleasing one.

Mwynfawr, a. (mwyn—mawr) Greatly kind.

*Mwynfawr gorchymur a gorchymur,
Mwyr fab Grahaid, gryn ddarogau.*

A greatly courteous prisoner they brought away, Mwyr the son of Grahaid, the object of predilection. O. Cyfellowg.

Mwyniannawl, a. (mwyniant) Tending to enjoyment, or fruition.

Mwyniannu, v. a. (mwyniant) To render an enjoyment; to enjoy.

Y rhai ond ym yn cyfrif y bywyd yma—ond lai allmarch, ac yn wyllygar i ymudo ag i ffordd i ym y trwm hawl, y gallant mwyhannu cyfawnder o lawydd.

Those who do not count this life more than like a state of exile and willing to come out of it to go into the coast of the heavenly king, shall get to enjoy fulness of pleasure. Marchant Crwydded.

Mwyniannus, a. (mwyniant) Tending to enjoyment; tending to please.

Mwyniannusaw, v. a. (mwyniannus) To render of a tendency to enjoyment.

Mwyniant, s. m.—pl. mwyniannan (mwyn) Benefit, use, or profit derived; enjoyment.

Cymer fwyntaw y peth y gwynt, tan b y cyfadd yn blingaw y dawl aml lai no chroen chroen.

Take the enjoyment of what thou hast, whilst the miser is saying the devil for less than the skin of a fox. Adage.

Mwynlan, a. (mwyn—glan) Courteously fair.

Mwynwr, a. m.—pl. mwynawyr (mwyn—gwr) A kind or affable man.

Mwynyn, s. m. dim. (mwyn) A kind one.

Mwys, s. f.—pl. t. an (mwy) That has capacity, or that comprehends; that has latitude of import, a pun; also a kind of covered basket, pannier or hamper; also the quantity contained in such vessel. Mwys o ysgedain, a measure, or five-score of herrings.

Un o'r tri thlwa ar dder—Mwys Gwyddo Garna Hlr; bydd i ungwr a roid yddi, a bydd i gawwr a gold yddi pan egorid.

*One of the thirteen rarities: the basket of Gwyddo Longbank;
the victuals for one man being put in it, victuals for a hundred men would be found in it when opened. Chwedlon.*

Mwys, a. (mwy) Comprehensive; enveloped; mysterious; ambiguous; ingenious, witty; elegant; also, of the nature of a pun, or of a double meaning. But the last sense arose from mistaking false for true wit; and hence gair mwys, in popular language, is a pun; of which the following part of an englyn, where An, a woman's name, and a negative particle, is the gair mwys, may serve as an example.—

*An-fryn, an-ddwyn, an-ych, an-lunaid,
An-lana! lle delych.*

Mwysai, s. c.—pl. mwysaion (mwys) A punster.

Mwysaid, a. (mwys) Of a latitude of import; of the nature of a pun; ambiguous, oracular.

Mwysair, s. m.—pl. mwysairiau (mwys—gair) A word of double meaning; a pun.

Mwysaw, v. n. (mwys) To be of capacity; to have latitude of import, to pun.

Mwysawg, a. (mwys) Having capacity; having latitude of import; of a double meaning.

Mwysder, s. m.—pl. t. an (mwys) That is comprehensive; an ambiguity, a mystery.

Mwysdro, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mwys—tro) A quibble

Mwysdroad, s. m. (mwysdro) A punning.

Mwysdroi, s. a. (mwysdro) To quibble, to pun.

Mwyscrlawg, a. (mwysair) Full of punning.

Mwyth, s. m.—pl. t. au (mwy) That is smooth, soft and puffed up; a fulness of humours; a fever. Y cryd a mwyth, the ague and fever, or intermitting fever: y mwyth brith, brith y gwanryg, the military fever.

*Cudd a—
Rhug pwanu clwysu, rhag clyed a mwyth,
Rhug mwyth ac alyd!*

Keep me from the pains of wounds, from disease and fever, from debility, and from adversity! H. D. ab Ifon.

Mynw, v. a. (myn) To exercise the will; to obtain sway; to obtain, to have; to seek, to procure; to insist, to will. A fgni di beth? Wit thou have some? Mynw, I will have.

Ni fgn pan'gso, al chalfpan fno.

He that will not (have) when he may
When he will (have) he shall have any.

Adage.

Perchen tir dleifedd o'i gorff a ddechawu briodoli et dir f'r neb y myno.

A proprietor 'of land without help of his' body can appropriate his land to whomsoever he chooses.

Welsh Laws.

Y fgn a all a fno,
A byw o wan, al na bo;
Ni ddichon meddgon mai
Ym einloes, ood tra mynal.

The fair that can do what she pleases, whether a poor wight is to live, or that he shall not; the physicians of May will not be able to preserve my life, but whilst she chooses.

Bede Brwyallys.

Mynud, s. m.—pl. t. iau (myn) That is courteous, or social.

Gnawd oth cryr yu mlaen dar,
Ac yu nghyfyrd gwyr llachar:
Glowg fynydd ar a gar.

Common is the eagle's nest in the top of the oak, and in the assembly house violent men: the eye of the fond one is on whom he loves.

Llywarch Hen.

Mynud, a. (myn) Courteous; social; fond.

Ef yn llafar, ef yn fad, ef yn fynydd
Ef yn wrdd, ef yn ddred, pan dremyn droe dud.

He is eloquent, he is dumb, he is courteous, he is ardent, he is bold when he takes a glance over the land.

Twlstein, f'r gwynl.

Mynud wrth folod, wrth llwyr ba gwdd,
Bu gorddwy ar Allmyr;
Ceddyr wryd, bryd Bran fab Llŷr,
Cedaw, mrynawli cryr.

Attention to praise, to warriors he was violent, he was a ruler on the foreign war; might of body, with the mind of Bran son of Llŷr, a boundless and fierce eagle.

D. Llaegwrn Mew.

Mynudaw, v. a. (mynud) To act kindly, or civilly; to become kind or civil.

Mynudawl, a. (mynud) Of courteous disposition.

Mynudedd, s. m. (mynud) Courteousness.

Mynudrwydd, s. m. (mynud) Courteous deportment or behaviour; civility.

Mynudwr, s. m.—pl. mynudywr (mynud—gwr) A man of courteous manners.

Mynudyn, s. m. dim. (mynud) A gesture, a deportment, or conduct.

Mae yn dy gura fwyd dyn
Ar ei gair a'i mynodyn.

She loves thee above all men, in her word and her deportment.

T. Ll. D. ab Hywel.

Mynw, s. m. (mwn) That has action; a person; a body.

Mab Cedfor, cad ormail—
Mynw iŵn, tremid y dygrych,
Maengau:—

The son of Cedfor, the tyrant of the battle, with a body of the hue of the wave, his approach to the stone covering has been seen:

Cynddelw.

Yn myw myw arhes barches beirddiow;
Yn muchedd gwledig gwlad orchorddow,
Gorddyfwas udduudd budd a berthow.

In life when a man his bosom was the refuge of bards; in the existence of the sovereign of the superior regions, he bequeathed to them profit and riches.

Cynddelw, m. Ced. ab Madawg.

Rhy dafw ym rhywyl—
Deiw yu petrch a meirch myrr hydath
Mynw eilon, mai gwylion goddath.

I will repay to my chief as he shall treat me with fair steeds impatient for the course, with body of the blind skimming like the sprit of the conflagration.

Cynddelw.

Mynw, a. (mwn) Quick, active, apt.

Maeloging mynwawr, mynw ryfod i gud;
Myrr deulid, daldid ood;
Angudd udd ordidwy bypod
Angudd fawdd angblawdd aughlod.

Maeloging greatly kind, for war was quick
To rise; the splendid leader was a wolf
To tear; not hid his rank in bold career
Of wild commotion, to prevent disgrace.

Cynddelw, m. t. O. Gwynedd.

Mynwâr, s. f.—pl. mynwâr (mwn—gwar) A collar; a collar of draught harness.

Mynwâr, a. (mynw) Corporeal; perasat.

Gweled yu myned mynwâr dddiddia
Gwyl gyfarchidat, yn chof amthaw,
Gorogwyn Mab Duw.—

The corporeal principles were seen to be going on the festival of the ascension, doubt not the memorial, the Son of God ascended.

Stn. ab Gwderham.

Mynwed, s. f. (mynw) Fellowship, company.

El dirchion f'chreidid ar fud,
A'i sar rhudd, a'i fudd, a'i fynydd.

His favours scattered amongst suitors, with his ready gold, his bounty, and his society.

Ll. P. Meek, i E. Gwyn.

Mynwen, s. f.—pl. t. au (mynw) A sepulchre.

Rhaid yu weithian
Al addid f'fai ydwy, wen,
Al fannedd ei f'r fynydd.

It is necessary at length, either to explain my condition to thee, fair maid, or the grave will become my dwelling:

R. Dda.

Mynwennawl, a. (mynwent) Monumental.

Mynwent, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (mynw) A sepulchre, a grave, a church-yard, a burial place.

Cyn plig Rodri rwydd eger, yu Mab, Mynwentydd be braenar.

Before Radri was made to bend by the prospect for, in Meek, the burial grounds were a fallow.

Ll. P. Meek.

Mynwes, s. f.—pl. t. au (mynw) The bosom.

Gwas a fo'n't fedi yu ei fynydd.

Woe to such as carries his disgrace in his bosom.

Adage.

Mynwesawl, a. (mynwes) Belonging to the bosom.

Mynwesiad, s. m. (mynwes) A putting to or in the bosom.

Mynwesau, v. a. (mynwes) To put to the bosom.

Mynwor, s. f.—pl. t. as (mwn—gwr) A collar; a collar belonging to draught harness.

Aur melyn am awys mor
Tiedd man tros ei mynwor.

Like yellow gold round the foam of the sea are the delicate treasures over her collar.

D. ab Gwilym, i walli Marfud.

Myny, s. m. (mwn) That rises or ascends. With the preposition i, to, it forms adverbs; as i fyny, upwards, up, aloft: Awa i fyny, we will go up. In Gwent, mynydd is used.

Mynych, a. (mwn) Frequent, often. Yn fynych, frequently. adw. Frequently, often.

Bach a mynych fwyd, bach ac anfwych ddidd.

Little and frequent eating, little and infrequent drinking.

Adage.

Alfai gell i gi mynych ydd a iddi.

Should a dog have a chamber he would often go into it.

Adage.

Mynychawl, a. (mynych) Frequentative.

Mynychedig, a. (mynych) Being frequented.

Mynychedd, s. m. (mynych) Frequency.

Mynychiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (mynych) Iteration, a rendering frequent; frequentation.

Mynychrwydd, s. m. (mynych) Frequentness.

Mynychu, v. a. (mynych) To frequent; to iterate.

Ac efelly y bu yn mynychu stel drwy yubaid muth mynodd, heb wybod o neb, eith ei anwyllid ohera oedd yu ei gwarchod.

And in that manner he was frequenting to her during the space of seven years, without any one knowing, except his own confidential friends who were guarding her.

Or. ab Arthur.

Mynychwedd, s. f. (mynych—gwedd) A variety of forms, or appearances. a. Of many forms.

Mynychwedd arall
Mewn meddgyrta brall;
Moddgar halli hwyll moddgar.

Variety of attendance with mead in buffalo horns, handsome the service exciting praise.

Elision offered.

Mynychwr, s. m.—pl. mynychwyr (mynych—gwr) A frequenter.

Mynychydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (mynych) A frequenter.

Myryd, s. m. (mwn) That is a small part or particle; a minute.

Myrydd, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mwn) A mountain. I fyrydd, upwards. See mysy.

Gwell angheawg mor sog angheawg myrydd.

The neccoments at sea is better than the neccoments of the mountain. Adogr.

Rhydd o'r blaen oedd y farnor,
O'r rhydd y myrydd a'r mor.

Free therefore was the country, if free the mountains and the sea. G. ab I. Tm.

Mynyddawg, a. (mynydd) Mountainous, hilly.

Mynyddawl, a. (mynydd) Of the mountain.

Mynydd-dir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mynydd—tir) Mountain ground.

Mynyddiad, s. m.—pl. mynyddiaid (mynydd) A mountaineer, or inhabitant of the mountains.

Mynyddig, a. (mynydd) Mountainous, hilly.

Mynyddwr, s. m.—pl. mynyddwyr (mynydd—gwr) A mountaineer, or man of the mountain.

Mynyddyn, s. m. dim. (mynydd) A small mountain

Mysyglawg, s. f. (mwnwgl) The quinsy; the woody nightshade, or bitter-sweet.

Mysyglw, s. m.—pl. mynygldlysau (mwnwgl—tws) A neck ornament.

Mynygdorch, s. f.—pl. mynygldyrch (mwnwgl—torch) A collar or wreath for the neck.

Mysyglwag, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mwnwgl—gwag) A neck-kerchief; a neck-cloth.

Mysy, s. m. dim. (myn) A little he kid.

Myngawg, a. (mwng) Having a mane; maned.

Nis crows oed egrud rhag ysgwn,
Nis ddaigw myngawg, na myngawn.

Nor the headless, nor the proud will collect treasure; nor a boar, with long mane, nor be that is cropt. Cynddelw.

Myngawn, a. (mwng—twn) Having a cropt mane

F'm rhoddes o fethc—
Llawn dda, a dda, a myngawn melyn.

He gave me of steeds, some black, and dda, and mane-cropt yellow ones. Gwalech m. i.

Myngyn, s. f. dim. (mwng) The crest of a horse.

Myngfras, a. (mwng—bras) Thick-maned.

Metech with myngfras
Y dda morddwyd myngwas.

Swift and thick-maned steeds under the thigh of the splendid Aurwin.

Myngial, s. m. (mwng) A gutteral manner of speaking.

Myngialu, v. a. (mwngial) To speak gutterally.

Myngialus, a. (myngial) Gutterally speaking.

Mynglaes, a. (mwng—llaes) Having long mane.

Mynglwyd, a. (mwng—llwyd) Grey-maned.

Mynglyd, a. (mwng) Being of the throat. Siarad yn fnyglyd, to speak indistinctly, or thickly.

Myngus, a. (mwng) Of the throat, gutteral. Dyn myngus, a person who speaks indistinctly, mutteringly, or through the nose.

Myngwen, a. (mwng—gwen) White-maned.

Myngwyn, a. (mwng—gwyn) White-maned.

Myr, s. m. (my—yr) That is essential, or pure; that is intellectual. a. Essential, pure, or holy.

Myr awda, colofn cyfyrnala,
Myr moddgyr moddgyr bethala.

A bold person, a towering column, the spirit of meadhouse is the sovereign of Bethala. Cynddelw, i O. Cyfyllingw.

Mair forwynnald mor addwynnald;
Mair gylawnnald myr gylawnnald.

Mary chaste of nature so benign; Mary all complete in holy perfection. I. ab R. ab I. Llwyd.

Myr, s. pl. aggr. (mor) That is infinite, and fluctuating: an aggregate of floods, or the sea, also ants, or emmets.

Llhwad fy ngheddawd fy nghyd ord dydd;
Llofrudd fy neuudd yn awr echydd;
Lleufer ebyr myr morfydd dylun,
Pau lhwych huan ar faw fyrydd.

My companion in my day's stigmatisation bade my mare to flow; the spoiler of my checks in the evening hour: the first is bright like the light over the gulfs of the sea amidst the surrounding shores, when the sun illumines the lofty mountain. for. Ffychan.

Myrath, s. m. (myr) Purity, or essence.

Myrdwyn, s. m.—pl. t. an (myr—twn) An ant-hillock.

Myrdd, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (myr) Infinity; a myriad; or ten thousand. Mil-can-myrd, a hundred thousand myriads.

Gwell eu hael na myrdd o aer.

Better is one sun than a myriad of stars. Adogr.

Caeth fyryd o feirddion eu lles
O foil Rodri ryddion.

A myriad of bards will find their benefit from praising Rodri the magnificent. Lt. P. Moch.

Myrdded, s. m. (myrdd) One of a myriad. a. Belonging to one out of a myriad.

Myrddiwn, s. m.—pl. myrddiwnau (myrdd) A million.

Myrddiwned, s. m. (myrddiwn) A millionth. a. Millionth.

Myred, s. m. (myr) That is pure or essential.

Myredd, s. m. (myr) A pure or essential state.

Myriad, s. m. (myr) A making pure or fair.

Myriawl, a. (myr) Of essential nature.

Myrion, s. pl. aggr. (myr) Ants, or emmets.

Gwneuthur mynydd o dwnpath myrion.

To make a mountain of the ants' bill. Adogr.

Myrionen, s. f. dim. (myrion) An emmet.

Myrnder, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Myndra, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Myrnedd, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Myrniad, s. m. (mwrn) A growing sultry.

Myrniaw, v. n. (mwrn) To become sultry.

Myrierid, s. pl. aggr. (myr—iar) Pearls.

It' huan fy ngherdd nag ef ad
Mai huan rhag moch myrierid.

The spreading of my songs before thee, be it not like casting pearls before swine. Lt. P. Moch.

Myrieriden, s. f. dim. (myrierid) A pearl.

Myrwyrydd, s. m. (myr—gwyrydd) A cause of motion; distraction; delirium.

Myrwyf myrwyrydd
Molawd Daw Ddofydd.

I am agitator of the palace of God the renovator. Taliesin.

Mit oes yn cadw oes, a moes, a mynydded
Llwyth Mariad mawreddus eu morwrydd.

There is no one supporting life, and manners, and courtesy, of the tribe of Mariad dignified their cause of agitation. Gw. Brycheiniaw i Ddewi.

Pradd fydd yn myrwyrydd mor
Y lling a gollo ei hangor.

Dismal will be in the tumult of the sea the ship that should lose its anchor. W. Llwyn.

Myrydd, s. pl. aggr. (myr) The sea rushes.

Mysangu, v. a. (sangu) To trample, to tread.

Caerusalem a fysegrir tan draed.

Jerusalem will be trampled under feet. W. Solisbur.

Mysawr, s. m. (mws) That is of strong scent.

Mysg, s. m. (my—ysg) The midst, the middle.

Yn mys, ar fysg, i fysg, amongst.

Trydydd Arianlle Ynys Prydain a elai pan Gaswallawn fab Beli, a Gwagwynwyn a Gwanar, melfion Lluf fab Nwyfre, ac Arianrod ferch Beli eu mam; a'r gwr hyn o Erch a Heledd pan hanoedd yst; ac aethyt yda Chawallawn eu hwythr ar fysg y Cymraidd o'r ynys hon: Sef lle y mae y gwr hyn yn Nwagwynyn.

The third silver host of the Isle of Britain went with Gaswallawn son of Beli, and Gwagwynwyn and Gwanar, the sons of Lluf son of Nwyfre, and Arianrod, daughter of Beli, their mother: and those men were natives of Erch and Heledd; and they went with Gaswallawn their uncle amongst the Cymraids out of this island: Where those men dwell is Gwagwyn.

Mysgaid, a. (mysg) Mixt, or compound.
Mysgawl, a. (mysg) Tending to mix; compound.
Mysgedig, a. (mysg) Being mixed or blended.
Mysgedd, s. m. (mysg) The state of being mixed.
Mysgi, s. m. (mysg) A mixed state; confusion.

Gwryd ardderchwng marchwng mygi.

The exalted manliness of the knight of tumult. Ancurin.

Mysgiad, s. m. (mysg) A mixing, a blending.
Mysgiwyth, s. m. (mysg—llwyth) A mixed race.
Mysgu, v. a. (mysg) To mix, to mingle, to blend.
Mysorig, a. (mysawr) Yielding a stench. Wy mysorig, an addle egg.

Myswrn, s. m.—pl. mysyrnau (swrn) Any small edged tool, or instrument.

Myswynog, s. f.—pl. t. au (swynog) A farrow cow, a cow that has passed a season without calving, and has milk through the winter.

Mysygan, s. f. (sygan) Soft expression.

Mysygandawd, s. m. (mysygan) Fond language.

Mysygannu, v. a. (mysygan) To use soft language.

Mysyglawg, a. (mwsawl) Having moss, mossy.

Ni bydd maen mysyglawg o'i fynydd drafod.

A stone will not be mossy that is frequently turned. Adage.

Mysygliad, s. m. (mwsawl) A gathering of moss.

Mysyglu, v. a. (mwsawl) To gather moss.

Y maen a dreigla ni fynydd.

The stone that rolls no moss will gather. Adage.

Mysyniad, s. m. (mwswn) A gathering of moss.

Mysynllyd, a. (mwswn) Apt to gather moss.

Mysynu, v. a. (mwswn) To gather moss.

Maen a dreigla ni fynydd.

A stone that rolls will gather no moss. Adage.

Myth, a. (my—yth) That pervades; that infects; a miasma.

Mythder, s. m. (mwrth) Swiftmess, velocity.

Mythdra, s. m. (mwrth) Swiftmess, velocity.

Mythiad, s. m. (mwrth) A giving swiftmess.

Mythiad, s. m. (mythl) A rendering torpid.

Mythlu, v. (mythl) To make torpid; to canker.

Mythnu, v. a. (mwrth) To give swiftmess.

Mythl, s. m.—pl. t. ion (myth) The state of being pervaded, or infected

Llywyr gwast a wyf gwyl gwast,
 Myddi cerych gael weithi arast!

I am quite wretched with the life of disappointment, that the coldly torturing canker should find a way to spoil them! D. ab Gwilym, 6^r fathwr.

Mywyllan, s. pl. aggr. (gwyl) Vigils, or eves of holidays.

Pan ddaw y garawyo,
 Mai y daw mywyllan dywyo.

When lent shall come as the lacustrine vigils come. M. ab Rhys.

Myw, s. m. (my) That has activity, motion, or life; an ant, or emmet.

Mywion, s. pl. aggr. (myw) Ants, pismires; also called grugiaid, morion, myr, and myrion.

Pan fo'r mywion mewu clyd lletty,
 Heb na gwyt, na gwaw l'w dryg,
 Ceir y ceillor rhesiyn yafyd
 Gwddi rhyne a mawr o awryd.

When the ants are in warm lodging, with neither wind nor rain to hurt them, the silly grasshopper will be found still and dead to the cold. Engl. Howdd et Helyer.

Mywionyn, s. m. dim. (mywion) An ant, emmet.

Oni well d'r mywionyn,
 A'r secullyd gellug rhesiyn;
 Pan fo'r naill yn cywain adre—
 Bydd y llall bob o'i arno.

Doest thou not see the ant and the idle grasshopper; when the one is carrying home, the other is void of care. Engl. Howdd et Helyer.

Mywyn, s. m. (gwyn) Pith; also called marydion.

Mywynaid, a. (mywyn) Like pith; pithy.

Mywynawg, a. (mywyn) Abounding with pith.

Mywynt, s. m. (mywyn) The pith, or core.

N.

NA, s. m. r. A cessation of concomitancy, or a negation of proceeding with; that implies a negative or denial; a no.

Gwell na no gas oddeudl.

A we is better than a false promise. Lleford.

Fy llysfam a dyngwys i'm na chaffwyl wraig byth byd na chaffwyl Olywen.

My mother-in-law did swear to me that I should not ever have a wife until that I should have Olywen.

H. Culhwch—Mabonogion.

Na, conj. Nor, neither; either. Dyma beth heb na dechreu na diwedd, here is a thing without either beginning or end. It is used before a word with a consonant initial.—Na'm, nor my; na'ih, nor thy; na'i, nor his, nor her; na'n, nor our; na'ch, nor your; na'u, nor their: Contractions of na ym, na yth, na ei, na cin, na eich, na eu. Na ym caser, may I not be hated.

Ni fwy cariad ei wala,
 Na'i ddangaws i llaw lu.

Love will not have itself concealed, nor its being shown to a crowd of people. D. ab Gwilym.

Na, adv. No, not, with imperative verbs, and in answering interrogatories, when governed by a verb with a consonant initial. Na ladd, thou shalt not kill: A fu hi gno? Has she been there? Na fu, or na ddo, not been, not taken place, or she has not been. It is equivalent to that, or that not, in wishing; as, Na bwasid ti yao! O that thou hadst been there!

Na choll dy hen-fordd er dy ffordd newydd.

Loose not thy old way for the sake of thy new way. Adgr.

A fu ei ddoethach hyd Fon!
 Na fu un i nef i Einlon!

Has there been one wiser than him from here to Mon! there has not been one: heaven to Eilon! L. G. Cuth.

Nabod, s. m.—pl. t. au (na—bod) Cognizance.

Nabod, v. a. (na—bod) To know, to recognize.

Celfydd tafod hawdd ei nabod.

A tongue artist is easily known. Adgr.

Wrth en gwrthredoedd uss'
 Y mae nabod drwg a da.

By their nearest works they are to be known, the evil and the good. T. Ll. D. ab Hywel.

Nabodaeth, s. m. (nabod) Cognition, cognizance.

Nabodiad, s. m. (nabod) Cognition, a knowing.

Nabyddadwy, a. (nabyddu) Cognoscible.

Nabyddiad, s. m. (nabyddu) Cognition.

Nabyddiaeth, s. m. (nabyddu) Cognizance.

Nabyddu, v. a. (nabod) To recognize, to know.

Nabyddid fined fy mro,
 Wb! o'r hin o'r wybr heno!

Let her know how afflicting my condition, be! what weather from the firmament to-night! D. ab Gwilym.

Mid wrth faint ei lloerdydd
Y nabyddir dyn dodeddus.

Not by the magnitude of his discomure in the virtuous man to be known. T. Ll. D. ab Hywel.

Nabyddus, a. (nabyddu) Cogniscitive.

Nao, conj. (na) Nor, neither; either. It is used before words, with vowel initials, as na precedes those with consonant initials.

Nac, adv. (na), not, in negative imperatives, and in negative answers; than, in phrases of comparison; and that, or, oh that, in expressions of wishing. It is used before words with vowel initials for NA, which precedes consonant initials. Nac amhau, doubt not.

Gwell nac hog addaw ni wabydd.

Better is a denial than to promise what will not be done. Adage.

Naca, v. a. (nac) To make a denial, to deny.

Nacâd, s. m. (naca) Abnegation, a refusal.

Nacâwl, a. (naca) Belonging to denial, negative.

Nacû, v. a. (naca) To refuse, or to deny.

Modd yr awd—

A drehuola a fu fas;

A rodola a fu fas;

A grola a gollas;

A nacola cydd fm coll.

With the soul—what I have wanted has been mine; what I have given is mine; what I saved I have lost; what I refused is to condemn me to perdition.

Nacûs, a. (naca) Apt to deny; denying.

Nacâwr, s. m.—pl. nacâwyr (naca—gwr) A refuser, a denier.

Nacwy, a. (nac) Tending to deny; negative.

Yr Wer adwyer, odd nacwy o serch,
Unlawn horedder lercu o Nacawdy.

To the Lord he she bellowed, that was negative of love, the upright and brightly fair maid of Nacawdy. Refugn.

Nach, s. m.—pl. neichiau (na—ach) That is obstructive. Brys-neichiau cad, the sudden efforts of battle.

Nad, s. f.—pl. t. au (na—ad) A shrill cry, a howl; clamour, noise. Taw a dy nadau drwg, have done with thy angry cries.

Nad, s. m. (na) A conditional negative or no. adv. That, that not. It is used before words with vowel initials. O, nad elai hi yno! O, that she would but go there! Pan nad oeddwn yno, when that I was not there.

Och wy, nad actant yn wreiddod.

Ho on the men, that they are not become women. Adage.

Och Ddew Tad, o chaddiwyd hi,
Nad oeddwn amdo iddi.

Oh! God the Father, since she has been covered over, that I had not been a shroud for her. D. Nanmer.

Nadael, v. a. (nad) To hinder, to obstruct. Nad iddi fyned, hinder her from going; nadais iti dalu, I hindered thee from paying.

Nadawl, a. (nad) Tending to hinder, obstructive.

Nadel, v. a. (nad) To hinder, to obstruct.

Nadiad, s. m. (nad) A hindering, or obstructing.

Nadredd, s. pl. aggr. (nadr) Snakes, adders.

Nadreddawg, s. (nadredd) Abounding with snakes.

Nadu, v. a. (nad) To utter shrill cries, to howl.

Nadwr, s. m.—pl. nadwyr (nad—gwr) One who utters shrill cries, a screamer.

Nadr, s. f.—pl. t. odd (nad) A snake.

Nadd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—add) That is whole, complete, or entire; that is formed, wrought or worked; that is cut or chipt.

Nadd, a. (ny—add) That is complete or whole; wrought, or worked. Careg nadd, a stone that may be wrought, or a free stone.

Pa beth a wrad—
O gofyn feru-ddya y fust
Mann nadd yr byn ni wyddost!

What wilt thou do if a rattling chap of boasting should ask about the artificial part, the which thou dost not know! Edm. Pryi, i W. Cywael.

Naddadwy, a. (nadd) Capable of being wrought into form; capable of being hewn.

Naddawl, a. (nadd) Relating to a working or hewing into form; hewing; sculpturing.

Dydwad iai—hanes y beirdd;
Pa wyr fu ar gerdd gu gynt
Naddawl athrawon iddynt.

Declare to me the history of the bards: what men were, of the lovely song of yore, instructive teachers to them. Edm. Pryi.

Naddedig, a. (nadd) Being wrought or worked into form; hewn, cut, or chipt.

Naddedigaeth, s. m. (naddedig) The act of working into form; the act of chipping.

Naddfaen, s. m.—pl. naddfeini (nadd—maen) A stone that may be worked; free stone; hewn stone.

Coetes—
Ieman ran rwydd, dy difeth,
Naddfaen, a gwynalch, falch fath;
Neb ni chyst y rhyw byst byth.

Ieman, of liberal parts, bore the expence of a substantial house, of wrought stones, and white wash, proud the plan; no one will ever bear the cost of similar pillars. Hillyn.

Naddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (nadd) A working into form; a cutting, hewing, or chipping.

Naddiad dy foch nadd yn rhyw.

The cutting of thy cheek let it be cut close. Adage.

Naddial, v. a. (nadd) To be cutting or chipping.

Naddiaeth, s. m. (nadd) The practice or art of hewing into form.

Naddiaeth befr ni ddaw o'th ben,
Er neb, ond mydr anyben.

No fairly formed subject will come out of thy lips, for the sake of any body, but a drawing verse. Edm. Pryi.

Naddiant, s. m. (nadd) The act of working into form; the state of being wrought.

Naddion, s. pl. (nadd) Chippings, shreds, lint.

Naddo, adv. (na—do) Not done, not taken place.

Naddu, v. a. (nadd) To work or cut into form; to hew, to cut, to chip.

Awa i weryll y Stryald: o cadwant hwy ni n fyw, byw fyddwn; ac os naddant ni, byddwn feirw.

Let us go into the camp of the Stryans: if they will preserve us alive, we shall live; and if they will cut us off, we shall die. S. Trefredyn.

Naddwr, s. m.—pl. naddwyr (nadd—gwr) One who works or cuts into form; a hewer, a chipper.

Naf, s. m.—pl. neifon (ny—af) That embraces or comprehends, a forming principle; one that forms, or constructs, a creator; the Lord.

Pwyll a'm cyfeiryd,
O'r crenawdr, o'r cyd
O'r Mab, o'r Ybryd,
O'r Iawndryd fti;
O'r Drindawd Undawd, un dra a mi,
Un dra dragareddu, unedd ofrt;
Under dair person,
Uch archengyllos,
Undonlon neifon,
Nerth heb draungi.

Reason informs me of the Creator, of the junction of the Son, of the Spirit, of the rightly conceived pre-existence: of the Triune Unity, one in kindred with me, one excelling in merry, of universal glory; three persons in one fairly joined, higher than archangels, creators one in attributes, of power without end. Gwalchmai.

Nafawl, a. (naf) Relating to formation; being wrought or formed.

Nafiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (naf) An operation.

Dwg y rhord ar dy grair
Dyfad heb nafad nfair.

Fairly has been bestowed on thy jewel a growth without the operation of a hand. H. ab D. ab I. ab Rhy.

... o'leig i m. nadd (nadd) nodd

Na ddifia na nafa neb,
Gochel wreuther creitondub.
Destruct not, cut not any body, beware of doing a cruelty.
Nor. Tala.

Nag, s. m. (na) A negative; a denial.

Gwell nag nog addaw ni wneir.
Better a refusal than to promise what will not be done.
Adage.

Gwell nag no dau eddwid.
A denial is better than two promises.
Adage.

—Cair gweled
Nad da mynych nag am gied.
It shall be seen that a frequent denial of a boon is not good.
Llynorch Hen.

Nag, conj. (na) Nor, neither; either. It is used before words with vowel initials.

Nag, adv. (na) No, not; that, o that. It is used before words with vowel initials. Nag ê, no not, not it, it not, or not so; nag ydyw, nag yw, it is not; nag oes, there is not; nag of, I will not go; nag wyf, I am not; nag yst, thou art not; nag yw, he she or it is not; nag ym, nag ydym, we are not; nag ych, nag ydych, ye are not; nag ynt, nag ydynt, they are not.

Car y dyn da, ac nag aghar y dyn drwg.
Love the good man, and do not hate the bad man. Adage.

Nage, s. m. (nag—e) A negative, to answer particular questions. adv. Not that, not so, no. Nagu, v. a. (nag) To refuse, to deny; to hinder.

Crist culwydd—
O'm rhag lles neges na'm nagwy.
Christ the gracious one, of my craved earnest of good do not deny me. Cyddelw.

Nai, s. m.—pl. neiaint (na) That separates or branches of; a nephew.

Nid diwyd heb nai.
Not adherent without a nephew. Adage.

Naid, s. f.—pl. neidiau (na—ld) A recess; a withdrawalment; a refuge, or sanctuary; a leap, or jump.

Gresyn oedd na chaf groes naid,
I gyntuili da ring enaid!
It was a pity that he should not have a cross of refuge, to accumulate good for the soul! D. Llwyd.

Athraw in' oili, aeth i'r naid,
Oedd iwan: oeh na ddywaid.
A teacher to us all, who is gone to the refuge, was iwan—also, that he speaks not. G. D. Ycham.

Bwrw naid i'r wybr a wna!
Ar hyder yr ehadai.
He would give a bound towards the sky in confidence that he should fly. T. Alld, i farch.

Naill, pron. (nall) One of two, one or the other; one. Ar y naill tx, on one side; naill ai hwn, ai hwna, at hwna, either this person masculine, or that one present, or that one absent.

Y naill weawyn a ladd y llall.
The one poison will destroy the other. Adage.

Naill, conj. (ny—ail) Either, else, or.

Naill ai liwynog ai llwyn rhodyn.
Either a fox or a lump of fern. Adage.

Nain, s. f.—pl. neinoedd (ny—ain) Grandmother.

Nais, s. m.—pl. neisiau (ny—ais) A band, or tie, the being trimmed, dressed, or made elegant.

Naith, s. m.—pl. neithion (na—ith) That is past or completed; that is given; troth, faith.

Nall, pron. (ny—all) One of two; one. Nall ac y llall, one and the other. Gwent.

Nam, s. m.—pl. t. an (na) A mark, or stigma; a defect, fault, blemish, or malum; an offence, or sin; an exception.

Yn nghyweithas nam na'm bo myced.
Into the company of iniquity may I not be going. L. P. Med.
Gwnarthuq nam, a rhyfodd rhyf.
We committed a fault, and wonderful it was. Ellid Hen.

Oui cheidw Dew ring nam,
Fe diriglyf farch lle triga'n fann.
If God do not keep against a fault, the daughter will make a slip where the mother slips. Adage.

Nam, conj. (na) Except, but, save, only.

Nam mudi pl ddyrddio o ffar fidi.
Only seven there proceeded not from Char fidi. Tala.

Named, conj. (nam) Except, but, save. Named un, except one; named f, except me.

Namiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (nam) A making a mark, making a defect, a blemishing, an exception.

Namu, v. a. (nam) To stigmatise; to render defective; to except.

Namwy, v. a. (nam) To make exception.

Namwyn, conj. (nam) Except, but, save.

Namwyn Daw nid oes daria.
Except God there is none that knows the future. Llynorch Hen.

Namyn, s. m. (nam) An exception. conj. Except, but, save.

Ni thag namyn oedd.
An objection will not check a messenger. Adage.

Nan, s. m. (na) Something distinct; a what. adv. What, what now, now. Wela nan, well what now, or well what do you want.

Nant, s. m.—pl. nentydd (nan) A hollow formed by water, a ravine; a mountain torrent, a brook. It enters into the composition of a great many names of places.

Ac yw nant yllid yllid yllid.
And in the brooks were muddy tongue. D. of Gwilym.

Gwar yw nannu'r hyd y ddol,
A drol yw eu gweled.
Gentle are the brooks along the dale, and charming it is to see them. W. D. T.

Nar, s. m.—pl. t. edd (ny—ar) That is forward; that is abortive; a dwarf, a puny thing; an apt.

O fedredd, O nar, O orthyl, O yafyd, O fel tralloddy: yr y yr awr hon y mae dy ystafelloedd gwythion!
Oh fifth, Oh thou puny thing, Oh thou miscreant, Oh thou mad one, Oh distracted simpleton! where are now thy splendid apartments! Marchion Cynffwrdd.

Naraidd, a. (nar) Abortive, dwarfish, or puny.

Nareiddiad, s. m. (naraidd) Dwarfishness.

Nareiddiaw, v. n. (naraidd) To become dwarfish.

Nareidrrwydd, s. m. (naraidd) Dwarfishness.

Naru, v. n. (nar) To be abortive, to become puny.

Nas, adv. (na—ys) That not, may not. It is of the same force with na; but when used, it preserves to the initial of the word that follows its radical power; as, nas delo moni, for na ddelo moni, that she come not.

Nid tylawd ond nas cyaro.
He is not poor but that does not enjoy. Adage.

Bychan y tal cyngor gwraig, ond gwas i'r nas cyaro.
A wife's advice is of little worth, but was to the husband that will not take it. Adage.

Naw, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ny—aw) That is up or ultimate; that limits; nine, or the number nine.

a. Nine.
Tri chaled byd: maeu celfi, dar saw gwynt, a choleu mudi criuwas.
The three hard things of the world: a flint stone, and now times heated, and the heat of the sun of Africa. Extemp.

Y tri saw awbeng: saw ton y wellgi, saw radd y pot, a saw aw lymp.
The three peculiar winds: the wind waves of the ocean, the vent orders of heaven, and the nine months of gestation. T. med.

Mynd, s. m. (mwn) That is a small part or particle; a minute.

Mynydd, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mwn) A mountain. I fyngdd, upwards. See myny.

Gwell anghenawg mor nof anghenawg mynydd.

The neighbourhood at sea is better than the neighbourhood of the mountains. Adage.

Rhydd o'r blaen oedd y farnor,
On rhydd y mynydd a'r mor.

Free therefore was the country, if free the mountains and the sea. G. ab I. Teu.

Myyddawg, a. (mynydd) Mountainous, hilly.

Myyddawl, a. (mynydd) Of the mountain.

Myydd-dir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mynydd—tir) Mountain ground.

Myyddiad, s. m.—pl. mynyddiad (mynydd) A mountaineer, or inhabitant of the mountains.

Myyddig, a. (mynydd) Mountainous, hilly.

Myyddwr, s. m.—pl. mynyddwyr (mynydd—gwr) A mountaineer, or man of the mountain.

Myyddyn, s. m. dim. (mynydd) A small mountain

Mynglawg, s. f. (mwnwgl) The quinsy; the woody nightshade, or bitter-sweet.

Myngldiws, s. m.—pl. myngldiwsan (mwnwgl—tw) A neck ornament.

Myngldorch, s. f.—pl. myngldyrch (mwnwgl—torch) A collar or wreath for the neck.

Mynglwag, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (mwnwgl—gwag) A neck-kerchief; a neck-cloth.

Myngw, s. m. dim. (myng) A little he kid.

Myngwg, a. (mwng) Having a mane; maned.

Nu crawn oed eugod rhag ysgwn,
Nu thalawg myngwg, na myngdwn.

For the headless, nor the proud will collect treasure; nor a hair, with long mane, nor be that is cropt. Cynnddelw.

Myngdwn, a. (mwng—twm) Having a cropt mane

Fm rhoddes o ffrich—
Llawr da, a dwg, a myngdwn melyn.

He gave me of steeds, some black, and dun, and mane-cropt yellow ones. Gwatches i.

Myngw, s. f. dim. (mwng) The crest of a horse.

Myngfwr, a. (mwng—bras) Thick-maned.

Meirch muth myngfwr
Y dan morddwyd myngwys.

Swift and thick-maned steeds under the thigh of the splendid youth. Aneurin.

Myngial, s. m. (mwng) A guttural manner of speaking.

Myngialu, v. a. (mwngial) To speak gutturally.

Myngialus, a. (myngial) Gutturally speaking.

Mynglaes, a. (mwng—llaes) Having long mane.

Mynglwyd, a. (mwng—llwyd) Grey-maned.

Mynglyd, a. (mwng) Being of the throat. Sierad yn fynglyd, to speak indistinctly, or thickly.

Myngus, a. (mwng) Of the throat, guttural. Dyn myngus, a person who speaks indistinctly, muttering, or through the nose.

Myngwen, a. (mwng—gwen) White-maned.

Myngwyn, a. (mwng—gwyn) White-maned.

Myr, s. m. (my—yr) That is essential, or pure; that is intellectual. a. Essential, pure, or holy.

Myrw oeth, colina cyfyrnais,
Myr moddyr mawddyrn bechalin.

A bold person, a towering column, the spirit of meadthorns is the sovereign of Bechalin. Cynnddelw, i O. Cyfelliung.

Mae forwynydd mor addwynydd;
Mae gylfawydd myr gylfawydd.

Many chance of nature so benign; Many all complete in holy perfection. I. ab R. ab I. Llwyd.

Myr, s. pl. aggr. (mor) That is infinite, and fluctuating; an aggregate of floods, or the sea, also ants, or emmets.

Llŷdau fy ngheddau fy nghyd oed dydd;
Llofrudd fy neuudd yn awr echydd;
Lleufer rhyr myr morfeydd dylan,
Pau llewyd huan ar fas fyngdd.

My companion in my day's designation bade my muse to flow; the spoiler of my cheeks in the evening hour; she that is bright like the light over the gulf of the sea amidst the surrounding shores, when the sun illumines the lofty mountain. Ior. Fyfean.

Myraeth, s. m. (myr) Purity, or essence.

Myrdwyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (myr—twyn) An ant-hillock.

Myrdd, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (myr) Infinity; a myriad; or ten thousand. Mil-can-myrd, a hundred thousand myriads.

Gwell un haol na myrdd o ser.

Better is one sun than a myriad of stars. Adage.

Caeth fydd o freiddlon eu lles
O foli Rodri rydder.

A myriad of birds will find their benefit from praising Rodri the magnificent. Ll. P. Moch.

Myrddfed, s. m. (myrdd) One of a myriad. a. Belonging to one out of a myriad.

Myrddiwn, s. m.—pl. myrddiwnau (myrdd) A million.

Myrddiynfed, s. m. (myrddiwn) A millionth. a. Millionth.

Myred, s. m. (myr) That is pure or essential.

Myredd, s. m. (myr) A pure or essential state.

Myriad, s. m. (myr) A making pure or fair.

Myriawl, a. (myr) Of essential nature.

Myrion, s. pl. aggr. (myr) Ants, or emmets.

Gwneuthur mynydd o dwnpath myrion.

To make a mountain of the ants' bill. Adage.

Myrionen, s. f. dim. (myrion) An emmet.

Myrnder, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Myndra, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Myrnedd, s. m. (mwrn) Sultriness, closeness.

Myrniad, s. m. (mwrn) A growing sultry.

Myrniaw, v. a. (mwrn) To become sultry.

Myrierid, s. pl. aggr. (myr—iar) Pearls.

It' has fy nghedd nag ef id
Mae heur moch myrierid.

The spreading of my songs before thee, be it not like casting pearls before swine. Ll. P. Moch.

Myrieriden, s. f. dim. (myrierid) A pearl.

Myrwerdd, s. m. (myr—gwerdd) A cause of motion; distraction; delirium.

Myrwyf myrwerdd
Molawd Daw Ddofydd.

I am agitator of the peace of God the renovator. Taliesin.

Mil oes yn cadw oes, a mow, a mynydd
Llwyth Mawr mawreddus eu merwerdd.

There is no one supporting life, and manners, and courtesy, of the tribe of Mawr dignified their cause of agitation. Gw. Brychriawg i Ddraig.

Prudd fydd yn myrwerdd mor
Y llong a golio ei hangor.

Dimel will be in the tumult of the sea the ship that should lose its anchor. W. Llwyn.

Myrydd, s. pl. aggr. (myr) The sea rushes.

Mysangu, v. a. (sangu) To trample, to tread.

Caernewen a fyeogr tan draed.

Jerusalem will be trampled under feet. W. Solitary.

Mysawr, s. m. (mws) That is of strong scent.

Myg, s. m. (my—ysg) The midst, the middle.

Yn mysg, ar fysg, i fysg, amongst.

Trydded Arianna Yng Prydain a elai gan Caswallawn fab Beli, a Gwynwynn a Gwanar, merthion Llŷd fab Nwyfre, ac Arrianrod ferch Beli eu mam; a'r gwr hyn o Erch a Heledd gan hynedd yst; ac aethynt gyda Caswallawn eu hawythr ar fysg y Ceinwald o'r yns hon: Seif lle y mae y gwr llyng yn Ngawgwyn.

The third silver host of the Isle of Britain went with Caswallawn son of Beli, and Gwynwynn and Gwanar, the sons of Llŷd son of Nwyfre, and Arrianrod, daughter of Beli, their mother; and those men were natives of Erch and Heledd; and they went with Caswallawn their uncle amongst the Cumbrians out of this island: Where those men dwell is Gasconne. Trioedd.

Nawsoli, v. a. (nawsaw) To temper; to soften.
Nawsolrwydd, s. m. (nawsaw) Temperateness.
Nawsyllt, a. (naws—gwyllt) Of a wild disposition, of a furious nature; passionate.
Nawter, s. f. (nawd) Nature, quality; habit, or custom. Mac ynol ryw nawter ddwrg, thou hast got some bad habit. Sil.
Nawtur, s. f. (nawd) Efficient principle; nature.
NE, s. m. r. A state of going or passing, a hue.
Ne, conj. (ne, s.) Or, otherwise, else, either.

Ne i afaith tan uffern.

Or to the influence of the fire of hell.

B. Ddyl.

Nëad, s. m. (ne) An opening to let out.
Neb, pron. (ne—eb) Whatever, any, any one, none, somebody, any body, nobody. a. Any, some, none.—Y neb a elo, whosoever that goes.

*Dyn ni wna daloni i neb
Ydyw un & dau wyneb.*

A man that would not do good to any is the one with a double face.

*Ni roe neb, ac ni rown i
Seron bren er ei sori.*

D. ab Gwilym.

There would not be given by any body, and I would not give a chip, though he were affronted.

Gr. Grgg.

Nebawd, s. m. (neb) Any body, nobody.
Nebdyn, s. m. (neb—dyn) Any person, any one.
Nebie, s. m. (neb—lle) Any place, no place. adv. No place, no where.
Nebpell, s. m. (neb—pell) Any distance. adv. At no distance, not far.
Nebryhw, s. m. (neb—rhyw) Any kind. adv. Of any sort; not any sort.
Nebun, s. m. (neb—un) Any one, somebody; nobody.

*Nid mór ddiarheb nebun
I'n gwlad ni a hi ei hun.*

Not so famous any one in our country as she herself.

D. ab Gwilym.

*Hoen ffyr, da ddwrg, nid oedd un,
Hauw w'br, a hi nebun.*

Brightly bloom of health, of good instruction, there were not one, luminary of the sky, and she nobody.

D. ab Gwilym, t. Angharad.

Nedd, s. f.—pl. nydd (ny—edd) That forms a whirl or turn; a small diangle or hollow; a place where any thing rests; also nits on the hair.
Neddai, s. f. (nadd) That works into form.
Neddair, s. f. (nedd) The hollow of the hand, the grasp of the hand; the hand.

Pen a borthaf i'm neddair, Eryr echwydd, oedd ni gair!

A head I bear in my hand of the eagle of the country, who was and will not again be had!

Llywarch Hm.

*A'i neddair, f'auwyl-grair fwy
Y nythodd fedw yn adolwyn.*

With her hand my kind dear jewel has elegantly entwined the birch.

D. ab Gwilym.

Neddawg, a. (nedd) Abounding with smalls, whirls, turns, or rests; abounding with nits.
Nedden, s. f. dim. (nedd) A single nit.
Neddyt, s. f. (nadd) A tool for cutting or working into form, and adze.

*Tyfad heb naddid neddyt,
Ty, ar an piler y tyf.*

A growth having not the operation of the adze; a house, upon one pillar it rises up.

D. ab Gwilym.

Nef, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ny—ef) A limit of a course, a turn, place of rest, a hollow, heaven.
Ty yn y nef, the house in the hollow; there are places so called.

A ranodd nef a gafas.

He that has distributed has obtained heaven.

Adagr.

Pump tywarchen y dydd; scf, delar, dwfr, tan, awyr, a nef; ac o'r pedair cystal pob defnydd difwyd; ac o'r nef Duw, a phob bywyd, a bywydawl; ac o ymgyd y pomp hyn pob peth, a bywydawl, a bywydawl y bo.

Five elements there are; that is to say, earth, water, fire, air, and the heaven: and out of the four first comes every luminous matter; and of the heaven God, and all of life, and living; and from the conjunction of these five come all things, or animals, or inanimate they be.

Berides.

Pan ddyfo Trindawd—

*Lia nef amdanu,
Llithr llydan ato,
Cyrrad a cherddorion,
A chathiau egyptia,
Dyrchafant o feddau—y mewn.*

When the Trinity shall come, surrounded by the host of heaven, pressing to him an extensive throng, with the songs of minstrels, and the hymns of angels, out of the graves the dead shall rise.

Taliesin.

Nefair, s. f. (nef) An epithet for the opening or grasp of the hand; a hand.

Nefawl, a. (nef) Heavenly, celestial.

Nefawr, a. (nef) Of a celestial nature.

Nefed, s. m. (nef) An expansion.

Nefliw, s. m. (nef—lliw) A cerulean. a. Of a cerulean hue.

Nefoedd, s. pl. aggr. (nef) The heavens.

*Ar first mawr gawr digoliant
Nifer o'r nefoedd a sythiant.*

At the great force of the shout of triumph numbers from the heavens shall fall.

D. Nefawr.

Nefolaidd, a. (nefawl) Heaven-like, heavenly.

Nefoldeb, s. m. (nefawl) Heavenlyness.

Nefolder, s. m. (nefawl) Heavenlyliness.

Nefoledd, s. m. (nefawl) A heavenly state.

Nefoleiddrwydd, s. m. (nefolaidd) Heavenlyness.

Nefolfryd, a. (nefawl—bryd) Heavenly-minded.

Nefolfrydedd, s. m. (nefolfryd) Heavenly-mindedness, a heavenly state of mind.

Nefoll, v. a. (nefawl) To render heavenly; to canonize; to become heavenly.

Nefoliaeth, s. m. (nefawl) A heavenly state.

Archaf i ti

Dwysawl nefoliaeth

A diwedd perffiaith

Fenrhaf th pob rhad.

I crave of thee a heavenly state divine, and a perfect end, the sovereignty of every grace!

D. ab Gwilym.

Nefoliannu, v. a. (nefoliant) To render heavenly; to celestify; to become heavenly.

Nefoliannus, a. (nefoliant) Of a tendency to render celestial.

Nefoliant, s. m. (nefawl) Celestification.

Nefolrwydd, s. m. (nefawl) Heavenlyliness.

Nefolus, a. (nefawl) Of a celestial nature.

Nefwy, s. m. (nef) A heavenly state.

Nid wy a'm nodowy

Amgylch balch nefwy;

Ynail rin y dydd fwy,

Gwawr gyrr Goroway.

They shall not be protecting me around the high heaven; there is a virtue that is more excellent, the light of the men of Goroway.

Taliesin.

Nefyd, s. m. (naf) A performance, what is wrought or formed.

Safyd wrth nefyd gwrthun

Yn dy lawl, dy faru dy has.

Thou wouldst stand by an absurd performance, in thy passion, thy own judgement.

Edo. Fyfe.

Neg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—eg) That is not open; that is not possible.

Neges, s. m.—pl. t. un (neg—es) An errand, or message; business.

A el llys heb neges dued a'i neges gaeo.

He that goes to court without an errand let him return with an errand in his possession.

Adagr.

Cenad hwyr drwg el neges.

A late messenger is upon a bad errand.

Adagr.

Negesa, v. a. (neges) To go on errands.

Negrasai, s. c.—pl. negescion (neges) One who goes on errands; a messenger.

Negesau, s. pl. aggr. (neges) Errands, messages.

Nenlad, s. m. (naill) A varying, a diversifying.
Nenllaw, v. a. (naill) To vary, to diversify.
Nenllawg, a. (naill) Diversified, varied.
Neilliedig, a. (neilliad) Being diversified.
Neilliedigaeth, s. m. (neilliedig) The being diversified or varied.
Neilllogaeth, s. m. (neilliawg) A variation.

Coler cynnal y cyfryw neilllogaeth yn yr un banas yn mhob arall o'r pennillfau.

Be it remembered that such diversity is to be maintained in the same verse in every other one of the stanzas. Burdan.

Neilllogi, v. a. (neilliawg) To diversify.

Oo o golofa adlaw y dwy y dyfyr, a rhai o'i banas o byny yn neilllogi ar ereill, coler cynnal y cyfryw neilllogaeth.

If the song is derived from a secondary canon, and some of those verses varying from others, it is to be remembered that such diversity is to be maintained. Burdan.

Neina, s. f. dim. (nain) A grandmammy.

Neirhiad, s. m. (nerth) A strengthener.

Fy Naw, fy neirhiad, fad rad rann.

My God, my supporter, freely dispensing grace.

Gw. Brycheiniawg.

Gwan wyf, ym nerthwyl fy neirhiad.

Feeble am I, may my supporter support me.

Y Brawd Madawg.

Neislad, s. m.—pl. t. an (nais) A kerchief.

Neislaw, v. a. (nais) To wrap with a band; to deck, to dress up; to trim up nicely.

Neithiad, s. m. (naith) A passing, completing.

Neithiaw, v. a. (naith) To pass, to complete.

Neithawl, a. (naith) Tending to perfect.

Neithiawr, s. m.—pl. neithioran (naith) A state that is completed or confirmed; complete-meat; a wedding; a wedding feast, in some parts, which is kept on a sixth day after the wedding, generally the following Sunday, when the guests bring presents to the newly married couple: The term Neithioran has been used for the Characteristics of Theophrastus.

Neithiora, v. a. (neithiawr) To bring to completion; to keep a marriage festival.

Neithiorawg, a. (neithiawr) Having a marriage or wedding feast.

Neithiorawl, a. (neithiawr) Tending to complete; relating to marriage solemnity.

Neithiori, v. a. (neithiawr) To render complete; to consummate a marriage solemnity.

Neithiorwr, s. m.—pl. neithiorwyr (neithiawr—gwr) One who consummates.

Neithiwr, s. m. (naith—hwyr) The evening past, or last night. adv. Last night, yesterday evening.

Neithyr, prep. (eithyr) Except, unless.

Nemawr, s. m. (nam) A few in number. adv. Not many; scarcely, hardly.

Nemof, pronom. prep. (nam) Except of me. nemof, except of thee; nemo, except of him; or it; nemi, except of her; nemom, except of us; nemoch, except of you; nemont, except of them.

Ei droedd ni dreisir nemoch.

His transgression will not be curbed except of you.

Cyddelan.

Nemor, s. m. (nam—or) An exception of extent, of quantity, or number. adv. Not many; scarcely.

Nēn, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ny—en) The inside top of a vault or canopy; the ceiling, roof, or top; a roof; a vault, or canopy; the heavens.

*Ynfaell Cyddylan, ys lywyll ei nen,
 Gwedy Gwen gyweithydd;
 Gwas ni was di ar dybydd.*

The hall of Cyddylan, its roof is dark, after Gwen the supporter; Woe that what shall come to it will produce no good! Llywarch Hen.

Nenawl, a. (nen) Appertaining to a vault, roof or ceiling.

Nenawr, s. f.—pl. nenorau (nen) An upper story, or garret.

Nenbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (nen—pren) The upper roof beam in a building.

Nenfw, s. f. (nen—mwd) A ceiling arch.

Nenfwd, v. a. (nenfw) To make an arched ceiling.

Nenlad, s. m. (nen) A vaulting, a ceiling.

Nenlar, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (nen—lar) The upper roof-beam; also, called nenbren.

Nenorydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nenawr) A garretier.

Nennu, v. a. (nen) To vault, to roof, to cell.

Nenwawl, s. m. (nen—gwawl) Cerulean light.

*El ydoedd Owain hir, bywyll hwydd,
 Ac andawd o flun nenwawl ddolodd,
 A dyfawr a ni mawr garwodd.*

He was the stately Owain, the ready pledge of lepton, and surrounded with a mass of heavenly light, who formed with me a lasting union. Gwalchmai.

Ner, s. m.—pl. t. edd (ny—er) That is without impulse from another; that has self energy; an epithet of God; the Lord.

*Cadfan per enner anaw, cerddorion
 Cerdduam ar oddiaw;
 Arwr trydar sris apaw;
 Eyr gwr ffrwd dymyr ffrw.*

Cadfan the sovereign of the energy of song, the minstrel who adorned with thy protection; the director of the tumult of the tearing conflict; the eagle of the toiling mass of a pleasant region. L. P. Hen.

Nerth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ner) Might, power, strength, force; aid, help, or succour.

El nerth yw annerth diried.

The strength of the mischievous is his ability. Adge.

Tyl achaw bywedigion: cariad Daw, gwa eiddi deall cyfaw; deall Daw, yu gwylod eithir maddaw; a nerth Daw, gwa deall maw, cariad a deall.

The three causes of animated beings: the love of God with a plenitude of perfect knowledge; the knowledge of God constituting a plenitude of means; and the power of God with a plenitude of will, love, and knowledge. Burdan.

*Am bob dirion ddeffon
 A'i nerth, a'i gwybodaeth i ni,
 —Nerf'w anaw!*

For every tender blessing, and his power, and his counsel to me heaven to his soul. Gw. Thomas, a Fagwag.

Nerthai, s. c.—pl. nertheion (nerth) Strengtheners
Nerthawg, a. (nerth) Mighty, powerful, potent.

Wrth gadarn nerthawg ydoedd;

At it's gwan trugerau oedd.
With the mighty he was powerful; and to the weak terrible was he. Guto y Gipsy.

Nerthawl, a. (nerth) Powerful or strong.

Nerthedig, a. (nerth) Being strengthened.

Nerthedigaeth, s. m. (nerthedig) A strengthening.

Nerthedd, s. m. (nerth) Potency, or strength.

Nerthfawr, a. (nerth) Of great strength, powerful.

Nerthfawrawg, a. (nerthfawr) Of great power.

Nerthfawrogi, v. a. (nerthfawrawg) To endow with great strength.

Nerthfawrogiad, s. m. (nerthfawrawg) An endowing with great power.

Nerthfawrus, a. (nerthfawr) Of a potent nature.

Rhaid iai ymwithard a gwyddon, ac oriet o'r campas nerthioranion.

Thou must refrain from vices, and practice the feats that are strength-creating ours. Cyngylan Fuchedd.

Nerthfawrusaw, v. a. (nerthfawrus) To render strengthening; to become strengthening.

Nerthiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (nerth) A strengthening; a supporting, or assisting.

Nerthiannawl, a. (nerthiant) Of a strengthening quality; empowering.

Nerthianus, v. a. (northiant) To render strengthening; to become strengthening.

Nerthianus, a. (northiant) Of a strengthening nature; tending to empower.

Nerthianusaw, v. a. (nerthianus) To render of a strengthening nature.

Nerthiant, s. m. (nerth) A strengthening.

Nerthiaw, gwr. (nerthiad) In strengthening.

Nerthiob, s. m. (nerth) Efficaciousness, potency.

Nerthior, sup. (nerth) To be strengthening.

Nerthocad, s. m. (nerthawg) A rendering powerful, strong, or potent.

Nerthocau, v. a. (nerthawg) To render potent.

Nerthogi, a. a. (nerthawg) To make powerful.

Nerthogiad, s. m. (nerthawg) A making potent.

Nerthorwydd, s. m. (nerthawg) Powerfulness.

Nertholdeb, s. m. (nerthawl) Potency, ability.

Nertholodd, s. m. (nerthawl) Powerfulness.

Nerthol, v. a. (nerthawl) To render powerful.

Nertholwydd, s. m. (nerthawl) Powerfulness.

Nerthwydd, s. m. (nerth) Potency, energy.

Nerth, v. a. (nerth) To strengthen; to help.

Nerthus, a. (nerth) Efficacious, potent.

Nerthusaw, v. a. (nerthus) To render efficacious; to become efficacious.

Nerthusedd, s. m. (nerthus) Efficaciousness.

Nerthswydd, s. m. (nerthus) Efficaciousness.

Nerthwyr, s. m. (nerth) Potency, energy, strength

Nerthwr, s. m.—pl. nerthwyr (nerth—gwr) A strengthened; a supporter.

Nerthydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nerth) A strengthener

Nerya, s. m. dim. (nar) The child of old age; a child born when the father is absent.

Nes, s. m. (ny—es) The state of being without distance, close, or proximate. a. Divested of distance: It is also used for the comparative nesach, nearer, closer, of less distance. Ni byddi nes er hwy, thou wilt not be the nearer for that.

Nes na choel.

Neser than belted.

Adage.

Nes, adv. (ny—es) Until. Ni chei glod nes marw, thou shalt not have fame until thou art dead.

Nesad, s. m. (nesau) Approximation; approach

Nesawl, a. (nesan) Approximating.

Nesach, a. (nes) Nearer, or more near.

Nesaf, a. (nes) Nearest, next, most near. s. m. The next, the nearest.

Melyaf y gwelw nesaf i'r ddair.

Sweetest the grass next to the ground.

Adage.

Nesau, v. a. (nes) To draw near, to approach.

Nesawr, s. m.—pl. nesawyr (nesau—gwr) One who draws near or approximates.

Nesedig, a. (nes) Being approximated.

Nesedigaeth, s. m. (nesedig) Approximation.

Nesefia, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nesaf) A neighbour.

Nesefiad, s. m.—pl. nesefiad (nesaf) One who is nearest of kin; a relative.

Nesiad, s. m. (nes) A drawing near, or approaching; approximation.

Nesiannawl, a. (nesiant) Tending to approximate

Nesianna, v. a. (nesiant) To approximate.

Nesiant, s. m. (nes) Approximation.

Nesator, ger. (nesiad) In approximating.

Nesitor, sup. (nes) To be approximating.

Nesnes, a. (nes repeated) Nearer and nearer.

Nesnes y Sefali i'r dref.

Nesnes and nesnes the shooting to the town.

Adage.

*Nesnes yw coradd Taliesin,
A'i fawr beueirddiaid o'i fu*

Closer and closer still to Taliesin's song, and his mastery prates from his lips.

S. Cost.

Nearwydd, s. m. (nes) Nearness, proximity.

Nest, s. m. (nes) That is compact or close.

Nester, s. m.—pl. t. i (nest) A cupboard.

Nestig, a. (nest) Of a compact nature.

—Nestig wridrath

Meldraur i'larf job llawnaeth.

Compact the structure of the accomplisher of the labour of every fulfilment.

Elidi. Nais.

Nestn, v. a. (nes) To draw near, to approximate.

Nestn, v. a. (nest) To appropriate.

O rhoddia genadi wrwg dand i allied, —af cheiff yr en o blant houo etieddfa arbwig hyd y drydded ach; ac o'r rhy y gymwedd bono y nestigwarieth difach i eu teulu.

If a tribe betroth a poor woman to an alien, none of the children of such a one shall obtain a special station, until the third descent; and, from that sort of connection, cattle not available as surety shall be appropriated to their family.

Nes, v. a. (ne) To pant; to wish earnestly.

Neu, conj. (ne) Or. Tydi nes arall, thou or another; dyred neu baid, come or let it alone.

Neu, adv. (ne) Truly so; will not, is there not; otherwise, else. Neu ym, neu'm, will not of me; neu yth, neu'th, will not of thee.

*Breuddwydau ar bun hachilw arlen doe;
Ysoddawg nes, neu ym hebgyr cawdd!*

Dreaming about the nymph of the superb hue of the hoar drop; excellent be the night, does it but save me from grief!

Gwaelchmai.

*Nes'm cynnwys drwg Bowys trwy barch;
Neu'm arwar, neu'm cor, neu'm cyfaroh!*

Me will not the leader of Powys receive with respect; will he not me solace, will he not me love, will he not me greet!

Cynddelw.

Nes'm bu dydd cer eilydd Elwy.

To me truly there was a day by the stream of Elwy.

Ll. P. Moch.

Nenad, s. m. (nen) A panting; a longing.

Neuadd, s. f.—pl. t. au (nen—add) A hall. ✓

Neuadd pob diddos.

Every shelter is a hall.

Adage.

Wyl bardd neuadd, wyl cyff cadair;

Digouaf i feirdd i'larf llestair.

I am bard of the hall, I am bust of the chair; I shall be able to frustrate the talkative bard.

Neuaddawg, a. (neuadd) Having a hall.

Neuaddawl, a. (neuadd) Belonging to a hall.

Neuaddwys, s. f. (neuadd—gwys) A hall-full.

Addwys enwydd yn neuaddwys.

Pressing the mistle in the hall.

Taliesin.

Nenant, s. m. (neu) A panting; longing; regret.

Neuaw, v. a. (neu) To pant; to wish earnestly.

Eryr glyw glewaf, neuaf na ddaw!

As an eagle the most gallant chief, I regret that he does not come!

Cynddelw.

Er pan las llyw red nesd nesd nes!

Nesaf nes gwelaf fal ym gwelaf.

Since the leader of generosity has been slain, is not regret come near! I regret that I see him not as he has seen me.

Cynddelw, m. Cadwallon.

Neuawd, s. m. (neu) A panting; a longing.

Neuawl, a. (neu) Panting; longing; regretting.

I'r gwir Ddew ydd wylf ya erchi,

Er gwr nes o'm uwawl weddi

—Tori glas elyn.

To the true God I am praying, for heaven knows my earnest request, that the blue shackles may be broken.

Hywel For.

Neud, adv. (neu) Is it not, is it not that, does not; verily it is.

Neud amser gansf gwalaf gwelgi,

Gwellig morauar hwyfar bell;

Neud arlen arlen Eryr writhon;

Neud echei gwendon gwyn-dir Enll.

Is it not the time of winter the ocean is most pale, the bed of the sea low is the raging course of the brine: does not the hoar envelope Eryr now; is not the white wave lead round the merced land of Enll.

Blodwyn Fardd.

Neued, s. f. (neu) A panting; longing; regret.

Yn y mae yfed, heb neued, heb nag,
Heb nebaud eiaued.

Where there is drinking, without regret, without refusal, without any kind of want.

Cynedfawr.

Neuedd, s. m. (nen) A panting, or palpitation; a panting after, or longing.

Neufedd, s. m. (neu—medd) Wealth, riches.

Neur, adv. (neu—yr) Is it not; verily so.

Nens, adv. (nen—ys) Is it not; verily it is.

New, s. m. (ne) That is proceeding or going off.

Newid, s. m.—pl. t. iau (new) A change; a cheap rate, small value, or cheapness.

Nid erchie yr hen Gyrrys oold a fal rhwag y newidiau.

Old Gyrrys asked for no more than what might be between the berguins.

Adage.

Angau'r newidiau fy nddi a was Yn un o'r merthylti:

Angel a't at Eli
A'm an Daw, a'm eiaud i.

The death of cherys will mark me as one of the martyrs: may an angel go to Eli, and my only God, with my soul!

L. G. Colthi.

Clyen dyngu, a rhesi, a chable, oni roeswa i newid ar fy agtiodian rhag gwrandaw.

I could bear swearing, cursing and blaspheming, so that I would have set a berguin upon my ears rather than listen.

Elio Wyn, B. Cwg.

Newid, v. a. (new) To change, to exchange.

Newid y gwawyr.

To change the pain.

Adage.

Newidiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (newid) A changing.

Newidiadwy, a. (newidiad) Changeable.

Newidiannawl, a. (newidiant) Tending to change.

Newidiannu, v. a. (newidiant) To produce a change or alteration; to transform.

Newidiant, s. m. (newid) The act or state of changing; alteration; transformation.

Newidiaw, v. a. (newid) To change; to transform.

Tri pheth nis gall namyn Daw: dyddodol bythoedd y cyngant; cynghyd a phob cyfiwr heb newidiaw; a rhoi gwell a newydd ar bob peth heb ei roi ar goll.

Three things, which none but God can accomplish: endure the periods of eternity; converse with every state without changing; and confer improvement and renovation upon every thing without consigning it to annihilation.

Barddas.

Mae'n ei bryd fy newidiaw;

Mae'r wall oedd fy mwrw o'i llaw.

It is in her mind to change me; great were the rashness to cast me off her hand.

Iwan Dyf.

Newidiawg, a. (newid) Having a change.

Newidiawl, a. (newid) Changeable, mutable.

Newidiedig, a. (newidiad) Being changed.

Newidioldeb, s. m. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidiolder, s. m. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidioli, v. (newidiawl) To be changeable.

Newidiolrwydd, s. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidiwr, s. m.—pl. newidwyr (newid—gwr) A changer; one who barter.

Newidrwydd, s. m. (newid) A changed state.

Newidwriaeth, s. m. (newidiwr) Exchange, commerce, or traffick; a bartering of wares.

Gwiddyn wyd; gwaeddan dywyl:
Wachwaeth newidwriaeth wyf.

Then art an excellent person; a miserable wight am I: Worse and worse the commerce of love.

D. ab Owilym.

Newidwriaethawl, a. (newidwriaeth) Appertaining to exchange or commerce.

Newydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (new) What is new.
Papur Newydd, a. a news paper; newyddion da, good news; dywed imi ryw newydd, tell me some news.

Na re goel i newyddion oni bont yn hen.

Give no credit to news until they are grown old.

Adage.

Newydd, a. (new) New; fresh. Newydd gra, newydd tanllaw, brand new.

Newydddaidd, a. (newydd) Somewhat new.

Newyddawl, a. (newydd) Of a new quality.

Newyddban, a. (newydd—ban) Newly dressed.

Newyddbeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (newydd—beth) A new thing, a novelty.

Newydd-deb, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newydd-der, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newydd-dra, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newyddedd, s. m. (newydd) Novelness, newness.

Newyddgrêad, s. m. (newydd—crêad) A new creation. a. Newly created.

Newyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (newydd) The art of making new; a becoming new; innovation.

Newyddian, s. c.—pl. t. od (newydd) A novice.

Nid yn newyddian, rhag iddo ymchwylw, a sylhau i fardigrath y diawl.

Not a novice, lest, being lifted up with pride, he fall into the condemnation of the devil.

1 Timothy 3. 6.

Newyddianaeath, s. m. (newyddian) Noviciate.

Newyddiannawl, a. (newyddiant) Appertaining to a new state; of a new condition.

Newyddiannu, v. a. (newyddiant) To render of a new state; to become novel.

Newyddiannus, a. (newyddiant) Tending to a new state; in a state of newness.

Newyddiant, s. m. (newydd) A state of newness.

Newyddiaw, v. a. (newydd) To make new.

Newyddiedig, a. (newyddiad) Being made new.

Newyddrwydd, s. m. (newydd) Recentness.

Newyddu, v. a. (newydd) To make new; to modernize, to innovate, to become new.

Newyddus, a. (newydd) Tending to innovation.

Newyddwr, s. m.—pl. newyddwyr (newydd—gwr) One who makes new; an innovator.

Newyn, s. m. (ne—gwyn) Hunger; famine.

Gloddest awr a newyn biwydyu.

Excess for an hour and famine for a year.

Adage.

Ni ddwg newyn mawr weision.

Boys will not bear the hunger of a mother.

Adage.

Pwybyng a gyfarfall ag Arthur, ag on dyrnwyd y badd, a d' a'i farc; ac wrth hyu pawd a foynt rhagddu, megys bwynt a' falfellid rhag lleu dywal, pan fal newyn mawr aro.

Whoever happened to meet with Arthur, with one stroke was slain, him and his horse; and therefore every body had fear him, as the beasts might flee from a furious lion, when he might be suffering great hunger.

Gr. ad Arsur.

Newynawg, a. (newyn) Having hunger, famished.

Hwareidd mab noeth, ni hwyr mab newynawg.

A naked child may play, a hungry child will not play.

Adage.

Newynawl, a. (newyn) Famishing; hungry.

Newyndawd, s. m. (newyn) Hungeriness.

Newyndra, s. m. (newyn) A hungry state.

Newynedig, a. (newyn) Being famished.

Newyniad, s. m. (newyn) A famishing.

Newynllyd, a. (newyn) Hungry, half starved.

Newynllydrwydd, s. m. (newynllyd) Hungeriness.

Newynogaeth, s. m. (newynawg) Famishment.

Newynu, v. a. (newyn) To starve one, to famish; to be starved, to be famished.

Ludd gloddest yn newyn y moddy.

To destroy intemperance is to starve the doctor.

Adage.

Mhi celliawg y rhedys yn canu yr haf a newyn y gae.

Like the grasshopper singing in summer and famishing in winter.

Adage.

Newynwr, s. m.—pl. newynwyr (newyn—gwr)

One who hungers; a famisher.

Nhw, pron. (hwy) They, or them.

Nhwy, pron. (nhw) They, or them.

Nhwythau, pron. (nhwy—tau) They also.

NI, s. m. r. A number separate or apart.

Negesawg, a. (neges) Having an errand. s. m.
One that carries a message; a messenger.

*Elwath ydd euthym yn negesawg
O leufer llyw cammaw, lawa dywysawg.*

A second time I went to an ambassador from the splendor of the leader of conflict, the righteous prince. Meilyr.

Negesawl, a. (neges, Missionary. Negesallion, missionaries.

Negeseua, v. a. (negesau) To go on messages; to transact business; to negotiate.

Negesengar, a. (negesau) Officious.

Negesengarwch, s. m. (negesengar) Officiousness.

Negesenwr, s. m.—pl. negeseuwyr (negesau—gwr) An errand-man, a messenger.

Negesenwraig, s. f.—pl. negeseuwragedd (negesau—gwraig) A woman-messenger.

Negesar, a. (neges) Fond of errands, officious.

Negesgarwch, s. m. (negesar) Officiousness.

Negesiad, s. m. (neges) A carrying an errand.

Negesiath, s. m. (neges) A commission.

Negesiannawl, a. (negesiant) Appertaining to a commission.

Negesiannu, v. a. (negesiant) To commissionate.

Negesiant, s. m. (neges) A commission.

Negeswas, s. m.—pl. negesweision (neges—gwas) An errand-boy.

Negeswr, s. m.—pl. negeswyr (neges—gwr) An errand-man, a messenger.

Negeswraig, s. f.—pl. negeswreigedd (neges—gwraig) An errand-woman.

Negeswriaeth, s. m. (negeswr) The business of a man who transacts for another.

Negesydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (neges) A messenger.

Negesyddawl, a. (negesydd) Appertaining to a messenger, missionary, missive.

Negesyddiaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (negesydd) The business of a messenger.

Negiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (neg) A disabling.

Negiant, s. m. (neg) A disabling.

Negiaw, v. a. (neg) To disable, to render impossible. Mac arnaf eivieu ei nego fe, I am in want of disabling him. Sil.

Negiawl, a. (neg) Tending to disable.

Negiwyr, s. m.—pl. negwyr (neg—gwr) A disabler.

Negydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nag) A denier.

Ni bu Rodri, nai Beredur, Negydd o'i wily, nag o'i ddur.

Rodri, the nephew of Peredur, has not been a denier of his wine, nor of his steel. Guto y Glynn.

Negyddawl, a. (negydd) Negative, refusing.

Negyddiad, s. m. (negydd) A denying, a refusing.

Negyddiaeth, s. m. (uegydd) A denial, a refusal.

Negyf, s. m. (nag) A negation, a denial.

Negyfaeth, s. m. (negyf) A refusal, a denial.

*Cadarn i arwyddu ar wynob Prydain,
Pryddidion diwbet;
Ni fuanai lywyl ateb;
Ni fuanai negyfaeth i neb.*

The bounteous violent one, over the face of Britain the ports are unanswerable; he would not concede a stern answer; he will not cherish a denial to any one. Li. P. Mach.

Nehedd, s. m. (ne—hedd) Entreaty, prayer.

Neidiad, s. m. (naid) A leaping, or springing.

Neidiaw, v. a. (naid) To leap, to jump; to pulse.

Neidiawl, a. (naid) Leaping, springing, throbbing.

Neidiwr, s. m.—pl. neidwyr (naid—gwr) A leaper.

Neidraidd, a. (naidr) Snake-like, snaky.

Neidrlys, s. m. (neidr—llys) Snakewort.

Neidrydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (naid) The temples; also called arlais and arlaisias.

*Brath y lleidr drwy ei neidrydd;
Beth ddawr ei iadd byth, gwr gywydd.*

Seek the thief through his temples: who would ever mind his death, the gone of a man. H. ab Gwilym.

Neidr, s. f.—pl. t. odd (nad) A snake. Neidr dda, a viper; neidr fraith, neidr y tomenydd, the common snake, or adder.

Cyfrithod a neidr.

As variegated as an adder.

Adage.

Chwefrawr chwyth neidr o'i nyth.

February will blow the snake out of her nest. Adage.

Neifion, s. m. (naf) The comprehending one; the creator; also the name of a person in the British mythology, probably the same with Neptune.

*Dadwyrals i Frythoo
A oren Gwilion;
Gelwydd ar Neifion;
Ar Gyril o achwynnau,
Hyd pan y gwaraist.*

A resurrection to the Britons was accomplished by Gwilion; there was a calling upon the Creator; upon Christ for rescue, until when he should deliver. Taliesin, Cad Gwddan.

Ef a yr nifer i for Neifion.

He will send a number to the sea of Neifion. L. G. Cwâl.

*Y nodid a wnaeth Neifion
O Drois fawr draw i Fon.*

The swimming which Neifion performed from great Troy after to Mona. D. ab Gwilym.

Neillawr, s. f. (naill—awr) The other hour, the next hour. adv. At another time.

*Eu buchedd hoen-wedd buham, y neillawr,
Na weilant rhag drygiam.*

Their lives of sprightly mood why, the next hour, they do not mind for fear of an evil sleep. W. Middelton.

Neilldu, s. m. (naill—tu) One of two sides, one side. O'r neilldu, from one side; ar neilldu, on one side, or aside.

Neillduad, s. m. (neilldu) A going aside; a putting aside; a separating; separation.

Neillduath, s. m.—pl. t. au (neilldu) A separation, dissociation. Tir neillduath, the land of reservation.

Neillduathu, v. a. (neillduath) To make a separation; to reserve, to put aside.

Neillduaw, v. a. (neilldu) To go on one side; to go aside, to retire, to recede, to dissociate; to separate, to put asunder, to set apart.

*Yn ill dau ni neillduent
I roi y naid i wyr gynt.*

Then they two would not separate in giving battle to men formerly. L. G. Cwâl.

Neillduawl, a. (neilldu) Separate, retired, solitary; particular, distinct; discrete.

Neillduedig, a. (neillduad) Separated, abstracted.

Arthal—yn myned i ofdi y gwyr rhyfeynt cydymddithlon neillduedig iddu gynt; ac yn cerdded trwy y coed hwnu y cyfarfu ag Eilir ei frand yn ddjarwybod.

Arthal, going to terrify the men who formerly had been his particular companions; and in walking through that wood he met with Eilir his brother unexpectedly. Gr. ab Artur.

Neillduedigaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (neillduedig) The state of being put aside or separated; sequestration.

Neillduedigaw, v. a. (neillduedig) To render separated or sequestered; to become separated.

Neillduedd, s. m. (neilldu) Separateness, retiredness; distinctness, discriminateness.

Neillduolaeth, s. m. (neillduawl) The state of being separated; discrimination.

Neillduoldeb, s. m. (neillduawl) Separability; distinctness, discriminateness.

Neillduoli, v. a. (neillduawl) To render separate, or distinct; to particularize.

Neillduolrwydd, s. m. (neillduawl) Separateness, distinctness; particularity.

Neillduwr, s. m.—pl. neillduwyr (neilldu—gwr) One who goes aside; one who puts aside.

Neillad, s. m. (naill) A varying, a diversifying.
Neillaw, v. a. (naill) To vary, to diversify.
Neillawg, a. (naill) Diversified, varied.
Neilliedig, a. (neilliad) Being diversified.
Neilliedigaeth, s. m. (neilliedig) The being diversified or varied.
Neilllogaeth, s. m. (neilllawg) A variation.

Collef cyanael y cyfryw neilllogaeth yn yr un banau yn mhob an arall o'r penatllou.

Be it remembered that such diversity is to be maintained in the same terms in every other one of the volumes.
Borddon.

Neilliogi, v. a. (neilllawg) To diversify.

Oo o golofa adlaw y daw y dyfyr, a rhai o'i banau o hynt yn neilliogi ar ereill, eoder cyanael y cyfryw neilllogaeth.

If the song is derived from a secondary canon, and some of those verses varying from others, it is to be remembered that such diversity is to be maintained.
Borddon.

Neina, s. f. dim. (nein) A grandmammy.

Neirhiad, s. m. (nerth) A strengthener.

Fy Naw, fy neirhiad, fad rad rann.

My God, my support, freely dispensing grace.
Gw. Brycheiniawg.

Gwan wyl, ym nerthwyl fy neirhiad.

Feeble am I, may my supporter support me.
Y Brudd Madawg.

Neislad, s. m.—pl. t. an (nais) A kerchief.

Neisiaw, v. a. (nais) To wrap with a band; to deck, to dress up; to trim up nicely.

Neithiad, s. m. (naith) A passing, completing.

Neithiaw, v. a. (naith) To pass, to complete.

Neithiawl, a. (naith) Tending to perfect.

Neithlawr, s. m.—pl. neithiorau (naith) A state that is completed or confirmed; complete-ment; a wedding; a wedding feast, in some parts, which is kept on a fixt day after the wedding, generally the following Sunday, when the guests bring presents to the newly married couple: The term Neithiorau has been used for the Characteristics of Theophrastus.

Neithora, v. a. (neithlawr) To bring to completion; to keep a marriage festival.

Neithiorawg, a. (neithlawr) Having a marriage or wedding feast.

Neithiorawl, a. (neithlawr) Tending to complete; relating to marriage solemnity.

Neithiori, v. a. (neithlawr) To render complete; to consummate a marriage solemnity.

Neithiorwr, s. m.—pl. neithiorwyr (neithlawr—gwr) One who consummates.

Neithiwr, s. m. (naith—hwy) The evening past, or last night. adv. Last night, yesterday evening.

Neithyr, prep. (eithyr) Except, unless.

Nemawr, s. m. (nam) A few in number. adv. Not many; scarcely, hardly.

Nemol, pronom. prep. (nam) Except of me. nemol, except of thee; nemo, except of him; or it; nemi, except of her; nemom, except of us; nemoch, except of you; nemont, except of them.

El droedd at dreisr nemoch.

His transgression will not be excused except of you.

Cynddylan.

Nemor, s. m. (nam—or) An exception of extent, of quantity, or number. adv. Not many; scarcely.

Nen, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ny—en) The inside top of a vault or canopy; the ceiling, roof, or top; a roof; a vault, or canopy; the heavens.

*Ynneffl Cynddylan, ys tywyll ei nen,
 Gwedy Gwen gyweithydd:*

Gwen at won da at dybydd.

The hall of Cynddylan, its roof is dark, after Gwen the support-er; Way that what shall come to it will produce no good!
Llywarch Hen.

Nenawl, a. (nen) Appertaining to a vault, roof or ceiling.

Nenawr, s. f.—pl. nenorau (nen) An upper story, or garret.

Nenbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (nen—pren) The upper roof beam in a building.

Nenfwd, s. f. (nen—mwd) A ceiling arch.

Nenfydu, v. a. (nenfwd) To make an arched ceiling.

Neniad, s. m. (nen) A vaulting, a ceiling.

Neniar, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (nen—iar) The upper roof-beam; also, called nenbren.

Nenorydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nenawr) A garret.

Nenu, v. a. (nen) To vault, to roof, to cell.

Nenwawl, s. m. (nen—gwawl) Cerealian light.

*El pederd Owain hir, byrydd hwydd,
 Ac anawd o ffen nenwawl deffnydd,
 A deffnyddu ei manau gwynydd.*

He was the strictly Owain, the ready pledge of baptism, and surrounded with a sense of heavenly light, and formed with his leading nation.
Gwynchael.

Ner, s. m.—pl. t. edd (ny—er) That is without impulse from another; that has self energy; an epithet of God; the Lord.

*Cadfan ger erer awan, cerddorion
 Cerddorion ar oddmor;
 Erer tryder trin agaw;
 Eyr gwyf frawd dymbyr frow.*

Cadfan the sovereign of the energy of song, the minstrel who surrounded himself with protection; the director of the minstrel of the bearing conflict; the eagle of the toiling man of a pleasant note.
Ll. P. Rich.

Nerth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ner) Might, power, strength, force; aid, help, or succour.

El nerth yw annerth diriaid.

The strength of the minichlorous is his ability.
Adge.

Tri achaw bywydgyrion: cariad Daw, gwaith deall dylus; deall Daw, yn gwybod eithaf maddoes; a nerth Daw, yn deall myn, cariad a deall.

The three causes of animated beings: the love of God with a plenitude of perfect knowledge; the knowledge of God carrying a plenitude of means; and the power of God with a plenitude of will, love, and knowledge.
Borddon.

*Am bob trion deffnydd
 A'i nerth, a'i gwybodaeth i ni,
 Neirfwr eidd!*

For every tender blessing, and his power, and his counsel we breathe to his soul.
Ian. Thomas, a Fagyn.

Nerthai, s. c.—pl. nertheion (nerth) Strengtheners
Nerthawg, a. (nerth) Mighty, powerful, potent.

With radars nerthawg ydoedd;

Ac i'r gwan trugarsaw oedd.
With the mighty he was powerful; and to the weak nerthi was he.
Guto y Glyn.

Nerthawl, a. (nerth) Powerful or strong.

Nerthedig, a. (nerth) Being strengthened.

Nerthedigaeth, s. m. (nerthedig) A strengthening.

Nerthedd, s. m. (nerth) Potency, or strength.

Nerthfawr, a. (nerth) Of great strength, powerful.

Nerthfawrawg, a. (nerthfawr) Of great power.

Nerthlawrogi, v. a. (nerthfawrawg) To endow with great strength.

Nerthlawrogiad, s. m. (nerthfawrawg) An endowing with great power.

Nerthlawrus, a. (nerthfawr) Of a potent nature.

Rhaid i'r ymwrthawd a gwyddon, ac erio'r e'r canpas nerthi-tawd.

Thou must refrain from vices, and practice the laws that are strength-creating ones.
Geoffrey Pechell.

Nerthlawrusaw, v. a. (nerthlawrus) To render strengthening; to become strengthening.

Nerthiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (nerth) A strengthening; a supporting, or assisting.

Nerthlawnawl, a. (nerthiant) Of a strengthening quality; empowering.

Nerthnos, v. a. (nerthiant) To render strengthening; to become strengthening.

Nerthnosus, a. (nerthiant) Of a strengthening nature; tending to empower.

Nerthnosaw, v. a. (nerthnosus) To render of a strengthening nature.

Nerthiant, s. m. (nerth) A strengthening.

Nerthior, ger. (nerthiad) In strengthening.

Nerthior, s. m. (nerth) Efficaciousness, potency.

Nerthior, sup. (nerth) To be strengthening.

Nerthiad, s. m. (nerthawg) A rendering powerful, strong, or potent.

Nerthiad, v. a. (nerthawg) To render potent.

Nerthiog, a. a. (nerthawg) To make powerful.

Nerthiogiad, s. m. (nerthawg) A making potent.

Nerthiorwydd, s. m. (nerthawg) Powerfulness.

Nerthioledd, s. m. (nerthawl) Potency, ability.

Nerthioledd, s. m. (nerthawl) Powerfulness.

Nerthiol, v. a. (nerthawl) To render powerful.

Nerthiorwydd, s. m. (nerthawl) Powerfulness.

Nerthiorwydd, s. m. (nerth) Potency, energy.

Nerth, v. a. (nerth) To strengthen; to help.

Nerthus, a. (nerth) Efficacious, potent.

Nerthusaw, v. a. (nerthus) To render efficacious; to become efficacious.

Nerthusodd, s. m. (nerthus) Efficaciousness.

Nerthusorwydd, s. m. (nerthus) Efficaciousness.

Nerthwch, s. m. (nerth) Potency, energy, strength.

Nerthwr, s. m.—pl. nerthwyr (nerth—gwr) A strengthener; a supporter.

Nerthydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nerth) A strengthener.

Neryn, s. m. dim. (nar) The child of old age; a child born when the father is absent.

Nes, s. m. (ny—es) The state of being without distance, close, or proximate. a. Divested of distance: It is also used for the comparative nesach, nearer, closer, of less distance. Ni byddi nes er hwyg, thou wilt not be the nearer for that.

Nes na choel.

Nearer than belief.

Adag.

Nes, adv. (ny—es) Until. Ni chet glod nes marw, thou shalt not have fame until thou art dead.

Nesad, s. m. (nesau) Approximation; approach.

Nesawl, a. (nesau) Approximating.

Nesach, a. (nes) Nearer, or more near.

Nesaf, a. (nes) Nearest, next, most near. s. m. The next, the nearest.

Nelymf y gwelw nesaf i'r ddolwr.

Swamp the grass next to the ground.

Adag.

Nesau, v. a. (nes) To draw near, to approach.

Nesawr, s. m.—pl. nesawyr (nesau—gwr) One who draws near or approximates.

Nesdig, a. (nes) Being approximated.

Nesdig, s. m. (nesedig) Approximation.

Nesfin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nesaf) A neighbour.

Nesfiad, s. m.—pl. nesefiad (nesaf) One who is nearest of kin; a relative.

Nesaf, s. m. (nes) A drawing near, or approaching; approximation.

Nesannawl, a. (nesiant) Tending to approximate.

Nesannu, v. a. (nesiant) To approximate.

Nesiant, s. m. (nes) Approximation.

Nesior, ger. (nesiad) In approximating.

Nesior, sup. (nes) To be approximating.

Nes, a. (nes repeated) Nearer and nearer.

Nesnes y Sefid i'r dref.

Nearr and nearrr the shunting to the town.

Adag.

*Nesnes yw ceadu Talfelin,
A'i fawr beneddiddiad o'i fia*

Closer and closer still to Talfelin's song, and his mastery prais'd from his lips. S. Cant.

Nearwydd, s. m. (nes) Nearness, proximity.

Nest, s. m. (nes) That is compact or close.

Nester, s. m.—pl. t. i (nest) A cupboard.

Nestig, a. (nest) Of a compact nature.

—Nestig wriddraeth Meidraiair i'fwr job llawnaeth.

Compact the structure of the accomplisher of the labour of every fulfilment. Blidi. Kait.

Nestn, v. a. (nes) To draw near, to approximate.

Nestn, v. a. (nest) To appropriate.

O rhodda gen-dl wraig dlawd i allied,—ni chaff yr un o blant hono siatoddia arbring hyd y drydded ach; ac o'r thw gymmedd bono y nestl gwartheg difach i eu teulu.

If a tribe betroth a poor woman to an alien, none of the children of such a one shall obtain a special station, until the third descent; and, from that sort of connection, cattle not available as safety shall be appropriated to their family.

Neu, v. a. (ne) To pant; to wish earnestly.

Neu, conj. (ne) Or. Tydi neu arall, thou or another; dydd neu baid, come or let it alone.

Neu, adv. (ne) Truly so; will not, is there not;
otherwise, else. Neu ym, neu'm, will not of me;
neu yth, neu'th, will not of thee.

*Broadwyddlaw ar ben balchile arien doe;
Ys odidwng neu, neu ym bebgyr cawdd!*

*Dreaming about the nymph of the superb hae of the hoar drop;
excellent be the night, does it but save me from grief!*

Gwclachol.

*Nes'm cynnwys drwg Bowys trwy barch;
Neu'm arwar, neu'm car, neu'm cyfaroh!*

Me will not the leader of Powys receive with respect; will he not me solace, will he not me love, will he not me cheer!

Cynddelw.

Nes'm bu dydd eer clydd Elwy.

To me truly there was a day by the stream of Elwy.
L. P. Mech.

Neuad, s. m. (neu) A panting; a longing.

Neuadd, s. f.—pl. t. au (neu—add) A hall. ✓

Neuadd pob diddos.

Adag.

*Wyl bardd neuadd, wyl cyff codair;
Digonaf i feirdd i'fwr llietair.*

I am bard of the hall, I am bust of the choir; I shall be able to frustrate the talkative bard.

Neuaddawg, a. (neuadd) Having a hall.

Neuaddawl, a. (neuadd) Belonging to a hall.

Neuaddwys, s. f. (neuadd—gwys) A hall-full.

Addwyn enwydd yn neuaddwys.

Fleching the minstrel in the hall.

Talfelin.

Nenant, s. m. (neu) A panting; longing; regret.

Neuaw, v. a. (neu) To pant; to wish earnestly.

Eryr glyw glewaf, neuaf na ddaw!

As an eagle the most gallant chief, I regret that he does not come! Cynddelw.

*Er pan las llyw red neuad neuad ne!
Neuaf nus gwelaf fal ym gwelw.*

Since the leader of generosity has been slain, he not regret come near! I regret that I see him not as he has seen me.

Cynddelw, m. Cadwallon.

Neuawd, s. m. (neu) A panting; a longing.

Neuawl, a. (neu) Panting; longing; regretting.

*I'r gwr Ddaw ydd wyl yn erchi,
Er gwr nef o'm neuaf weddi
—Toti glas elyn.*

To the true God I am praying, for heaven knows my earnest request, that the blue shackles may be broken. Hymn. Forl.

Neud, adv. (neu) Is it not, is it not that, does not; verily it is.

*Neud amwr gansf gnelwaf gwelg,
Gwelgwg morauar hwl'far bell;
Neud arien arien Eryr writhon;
Neud ebel gwedon gwyn-dir Eall.*

Is it not the time of winter the ocean is most pale, the bed of the sun low is the raging course of the brine: does not the hoar envelope Eryr now; is not the white wave lead round the mered land of Eall. Bloddydd Parod.

Neued, s. f. (neu) A panting; longing; regret.

*Yn y mae yfed, heb neued, heb nag,
Heb nebawd eiddad.*

Where there is drinking, without regret, without refusal, without any kind of want. Cynaddu.

Nenedd, s. m. (nen) A panting, or palpitation; a panting after, or longing.

Neufedd, s. m. (neu—medd) Wealth, riches.

Neur, adv. (neu—yr) Is it not; verily so.

Nens, adv. (nen—ys) Is it not; verily it is.

New, s. m. (ne) That is proceeding or going off.

Newid, s. m.—pl. t. iau (new) A change; a cheap rate, small value, or cheapness.

Nid eirha yr hen Gyrus oidd a fal rhwng y newidiau.

Old Cyrus asked for no more than what might be between the bergains. Adage.

*Angau'r newidllaw fy nddi a was Yn uu o'r merthyl:
Angel a 2 at Eli
A'u na Duw, a'm could i.*

The death of champs will mark me as one of the martyrs: may an angel go to Eli, and my only God, with my soul! L. G. Colki.

Clywn dyngu, a rhegi, a chabls, oni roeswa i newid ar fy nghludau rhag gerundaw.

I could bear swearing, cursing and blaspheming, so that I would have set a bergain upon my ears rather than listen. Elin Wyn, B. Cwng.

Newid, v. a. (new) To change, to exchange.

Newid y gwelyr.

To change the pain. Adage.

Newidiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (newid) A changing.

Newidiadwy, a. (newidiad) Changeable.

Newidiannawl, a. (newidiant) Tending to change

Newidiannu, v. a. (newidiant) To produce a change or alteration; to transform.

Newidiant, s. m. (newid) The act or state of changing; alteration; transformation.

Newidiaw, v. a. (newid) To change; to transform.

Tri pheth hys gall awyau Duw: dydddef bythoedd y ceugant; cynghyd a phob cyfwr heb newidiaw; a rhioi gwell a newydd ar bob peth heb of roi ar goll.

Three things which none but God can accomplish: endure the periods of eternity; converse with every state without changing; and confer improvement and renovation upon every thing without consigning it to annihilation. Barddas.

*Mae'n ei bryd fy newidiaw;
Mawr wall oedd fy mawr o'i llaw.*

It is in her mind to change me; great were the rashness to cast me off her hand. Iwan Dyf.

Newidiawg, a. (newid) Having a change.

Newidiawl, a. (newid) Changeable, mutable.

Newidiedig, a. (newidiad) Being changed.

Newidioldeb, s. m. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidiolder, s. m. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidioli, v. (newidiawl) To be changeable.

Newidiolrwydd, s. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidiwr, s. m.—pl. newidwyr (newid—gwr) A changer; one who barterers.

Newidrwydd, s. m. (newid) A changed state.

Newidwriaeth, s. m. (newidiwr) Exchange, commerce, or traffick; a bartering of wares.

*Gelwddyn wyd: gwaeddan ydyf:
Wechloeth newidwriaeth wyf.*

Thou art an excellent person; a miserable wight am I: Worse and worse the commerce of love. D. ab Gwilym.

Newidwriaethawl, a. (newidwriaeth) Appertaining to exchange or commerce.

Newydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (new) What is new. Papur Newydd, a news paper; newyddion da, good news; dywed imi ryw newydd, tell me some news.

Na re geul i newyddion oni bont yn hen.

Give no credit to news until they are grown old. Adage.

Newydd, a. (new) New; fresh. Newydd grai, newydd tanllin, brand new.

Newydddaidd, a. (newydd) Somewhat new.

Newyddawl, a. (newydd) Of a new quality.

Newyddban, a. (newydd—pan) Newly dressed.

Newyddbeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (newydd—beth) A new thing, a novelty.

Newydddeb, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newyddder, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newydddra, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newydddedd, s. m. (newydd) Novelness, newness.

Newydddread, s. m. (newydd—cread) A new creation. a. Newly created.

Newyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (newydd) The art of making new; a becoming new; innovation.

Newyddian, s. c.—pl. t. od (newydd) A novice.

Nid yn newyddian, rhag iddo ymnewyddu, a cyfithro i farn i gath y diawl.

Not a novice, lest, being lifted up with pride, he fall into the condemnation of the devil. 1 Timothy 3. 6.

Newyddiannaeth, s. m. (newyddian) Noviciate.

Newyddiannawl, a. (newyddiant) Appertaining to a new state; of a new condition.

Newyddianu, v. a. (newyddiant) To render of a new state; to become novel.

Newyddiannus, a. (newyddiant) Tending to a new state; in a state of newness.

Newyddiant, s. m. (newydd) A state of newness.

Newyddiaw, v. a. (newydd) To make new.

Newyddiedig, a. (newyddiad) Being made new.

Newyddrwydd, s. m. (newydd) Recentness.

Newyddu, v. a. (newydd) To make new; to modernize, to innovate, to become new.

Newyddus, a. (newydd) Tending to innovation.

Newyddwr, s. m.—pl. newyddwyr (newydd—gwr) One who makes new; an innovator.

Newyn, s. m. (ne—gwyn) Hunger; famine.

Gloddest awr a newyn blyddyn.

Excess for an hour and famine for a year. Adage.

Ni ddwg newyn mam weision.

Boys will not bear the hunger of a mother. Adage.

Pwybyng a ryfardal ag Arthur, ag un dyddiad y baid, se d a'i farch; ac wrth hyu pawb a foynt rhadod, megys boynt y saifolled rhag llew dywal, pan fai newyn mawr ardd.

Whoever happened to meet with Arthur, with one stroke he was slain, him and his horse; and therefore every body fled from him, as the beasts might flee from a furious lion, when he might be suffering great hunger. Gr. ab Arthur.

Newynawg, a. (newyn) Having hunger, famished.

Hareidd mab noeth, ni lloery mab newynawg.

A naked child may play, a hungry child will not play. Adage.

Newynawl, a. (newyn) Famishing; hungry.

Newyndawd, s. m. (newyn) Hungeriness.

Newyndra, s. m. (newyn) A hungry state.

Newynedig, a. (newyn) Being famished.

Newyniad, s. m. (newyn) A famishing.

Newynllyd, a. (newyn) Hungry, half starved.

Newynllydrwydd, s. m. (newynllyd) Hungeriness.

Newynogaeth, s. m. (newynawg) Famishment.

Newynu, v. a. (newyn) To starve one, to famish; to be starved, to be famished.

Lludd gloddest yn newyn y meddyg.

To destroy intemperance is to starve the doctor. Adage.

Mhi celiang y rhedyn yn canu yr haf a newyn y gwyl.

Like the grasshopper singing in summer and famishing in winter. Adage.

Newynwr, s. m.—pl. newynwyr (newyn—gwr)

One who hungers; a famisher.

Nhw, pron. (hwy) They, or them.

Nhw, pron. (nhw) They, or them.

Nhwythan, pron. (nhwy—tan) They also.

NI, s. m. r. A number separate or apart.

Ni, pron. (ni, s.) We, us. Dyma ni, here we are; ni awn, we will go; ni sydd yma, it is we who are here.

Gwell gwas ffin gwas ni.

Better was me than was us.

Adage.

Ni, adv. Not; used mostly before words with consonant initials. Ni ddauant, they will not come; ni wneith er hyny, no matter for that; ni ym, ni yth, ni yn, ni ych, by syncope become ni'm, ni'th, ni'n, ni'ch.

Ni bydd doeth ni llo.

He will not be wise that will not read.

Adage.

Ni bydd diriad heb hawl.

The mischievous will not be without a claim.

Adage.

Gwr ni'rh gar ni'rh gwyfudd.

A person who loves thee not will not bear with thee.

Adage.

Ar ni oddeffo gwas bid was iddo ei hun.

He that will not bear with a servant let him be a servant to himself.

Adage.

Enidib ni char ei enidib.

Scandal loves not to be scandalized.

Adage.

Diwedd ni bydd h', na dechre ni bu.

An end there will not be to thee, nor beginning has there been.

Ein. ab Gwelmaw.

Nid, s. m. (ni—id) A stop of progress; that is impending or in a state of rest.

Nid, adv. (ni—yd) Not; used mostly before words with vowel initials. Nid yw da, it is not good; nid y ff ond y fo, not me but him; nid oes ond er doe er pan aeth, it is only since yesterday that he is gone; nid amgen, not otherwise, to wit; nid hwygrach, perhaps.

A Daw nid da ymdaraw.

With God it is not good to strive.

Adage.

Nid bod ond angen, nid angen ond Daw.

There is no being but necessity, there is not a necessity but God.

Adage.

Nidr, s. m. (nid) A let, impediment, or hindrance; an entanglement; a delay, or lingering.

Nidrad, s. m. (nidr) An entangling; perplexity.

Nidraw, v. a. (nidr) To entangle; to be entangled; to embarrass; to perplex.

Y faren—

Nidredd anglych fy neudredd.

The trouble is entangled about my two feet.

D. ab Gwilym.

Nidrawl, a. (nidr) Entangling; dilatory.

Nidredd, s. m. (nidr) Entanglement; perplexity.

Nidri, s. m. (nidr) Entanglement; perplexity; obstruction, hindrance.

O nidri nid ai un adref.

From perplexity not one would reach home.

M. ab Grifin, fr. Serron.

Nidriad, s. m.—pl. nidriald (nidr) An entangler.

Nidrawr, s. m.—pl. nidrawyr (nidr—gwr) One who entangles; a delayer.

Nif, s. m. (ni) A specific number or tale.

Nifer, s. m.—pl. s. oedd (nif) A number; a number collected together, a multitude, a host, a company; a retinue.

Niferai, s. c.—pl. nifereion (nifer) Numerator.

Niferawg, a. (nifer) Consisting of many.

Beiridd newd niferawg orsedd.

The oak of bards a numerous congress.

Cyduddelw.

Niferawl, a. (nifer) Relating to number; numerical, numeral.

Niferedig, a. (nifer) Being numbered, or told.

Niferedd, s. m. (nifer) Numerousness.

Niferiad, s. m. (nifer) A numbering.

Niferiaeth, s. m. (nifer) Numeration.

Nifeiriannawl, a. (niferiant) Numerary.

Nifeiriannu, v. a. (niferiant) To enumerate; to make out a number.

Nifeiriant, s. m. (nifer) Numeration.

Niferogi, v. a. (niferawg) To render numerous; to become numerous or multitudinous.

Niferogrwydd, s. m. (niferawg) Numerousness.

Niferu, v. a. (nifer) To number, to count.

Niferydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nifer) A numerist.

Nifwl, s. m. (nif—gwl) A mist; a cloud.

Nifwlawg, a. (nifwl) Misty, hazy, cloudy.

Nig, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ig) That is strait.

Nigiad, s. m. (nig) A straitening, a narrowing.

Nigiaw, v. a. (nig) To straiten, to narrow.

Nigus, a. (nig) Strait, narrow, confined.

*Ni wlecaf fenyg nigus
O growi amlu.*

I will not wear any strait gloves of the skin of sheep.

D. ab Gwilym.

Nill, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ill) What tends to gain upon or to encroach; a poppy.

Nilla, v. a. (nill) To be over-reaching, to augment

Nillai, s. c.—pl. nilleion (nill) A sickle.

Ninnau, pron. (ni—tau) We also, and us.

Ebal Arawn ab Cynfarch, cyrchwn yr banner-gwyr; a safon yn eu cyrchu, hyl pan orfom ni aruddent hwy, can ddwyn eu arrhydded, yd arferom ninnau o lawen fodd; goliaeth.

Said Arawn son of Cynfarch, let us fall on these half men; and let us persevere in attacking them, until we overcome them, so by taking away their honour, that we then may enjoy a glad triumph.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Nis, adv. (ni—ys) Not. It is synonymous with Ni, and used before words with consonant initials, and preserving them in their radical form; as nis doi, for ni ddoi, thou wilt not come; or nis gweli, for ni weli, thou wilt not see, and the like.

Eddewid nis gwneier nid yw.

A promise that shall not be performed doth not exist.

Adage.

Ni cheff byll ni pryuo.

He shall not obtain wit who buys it not.

Adage.

Nith, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ny—ith) That is pure, or clear; a niece.

Nithiad, s. m. (nith) A winnowing, a cleaning.

Nithiannawl, a. (nithiant) Tending to purify.

Nithianau, v. a. (nithiant) To make clean.

Nithiant, s. m. (nith) A purifying; a winnowing.

Nithiaw, v. a. (nith) To purify; to winnow.

Also Troelli and dioldi.

Nithla o'm bron grealon gredd;

Noetha yn war nyth anwired.

Purge from my breast a cruel disposition; gently lay open the nest of iniquity.

D. D. ab Iwan.

Nithlawl, a. (nith) Tending to clear; relating to winnowing.

Nithiedig, a. (nithiad) Being winnowed.

Nithiwr, s. m.—pl. nithwyr (nith—gwr) A winnower.

Nithlen, s. f. (nith—llen) A winnowing sheet.

Nithlen, pedair celniawg a dal.

A winnowing sheet, its value is four pence.

Welsh Laws.

Niw, s. m. (ny—iw) That is violent or sharp.

Niw, adv. (ni) Of what not, of that not.

Ni chyll niw dyfudd.

There will be no loss of what will not be.

Adage.

Niwed, s. m.—pl. niweidiau (niw) Harm, hurt, damage, prejudice, disadvantage.

Nu cheur hyd alwad.

Nu cheulwair hyd liwed.

Play not till harm comes, just not till it becomes clammy.

Adage.

Niweda, v. a. (niwed) To hurt, or to injure.

Nad fr cythrel, y geisyn,
Nodau dig niweddu dyu.

Prevent the devil, the foe, of wrathful impulses, to injure man.
T. Gruffydd.

Niweidiad, s. m. (niwaid) A hurting a damaging.
Niweidiannawl, a. (niweidiant) Of a noxious or hurtful quality; injurious.

Niweidiannu, v. a. (niweidiant) To create a hurt, or injury; to become an injury.

Niweidiant, s. m. (niwed) A harming, a hurting.

Niweidiaw, v. a. (niwed) To hurt, to harm, to injure, to damage, to annoy.

Niweidiawg, a. (niwaid) Hurtful, injurious.

Niweidiawl, a. (niwed) Nocent, mischievous.

Niweidiedig, a. (niwed) Hurt, or injured.

Niweidioldeb, s. m. (niweidiawl) Noxiousness.

Niweidiolodd, s. m. (niweidiawl) Noxiousness.

Niweidioli, v. a. (niweidiawl) To render noxious; to become noxious or hurtful.

Niweidiolrwydd, s. m. (niweidiawl) Noxiousness.

Niweidiwr, s. m.—pl. niweidiwyr (niwaid—gwr) One who hurts or injures.

Niweidrwydd, s. m. (niwed) Hurtfulness.

Niwl, s. m.—pl. i. oedd (ni—gwl) Mist, fog.

Niwl y gwawyn, gwawyn gwyt;
Niwl yr haf, gwawyn tref;
Niwl y cynhauf, gwawyn gwlaw;
Niwl y gwal, gwawyn oira.

Mist in spring is the source of wind;
Mist in summer is the source of heat;
Mist in autumn is the source of rain;
Mist in winter is the source of snow.

Adage.

Niwlen, s. f. dim. (niwl) A small mist; a small detached cloud.

Niwlach, s. pl. aggr. (niwl) Scattered clouds of mist; flying clouds.

Niwlau oedd niwlach;
Nid yfai win; nid wyf iach.

I see ought but misty clouds: I will not drink wine: I am not well.
H. ab Owlym.

Niwlad, s. m. (niwl) A becoming misty or cloudy.

Niwlhaw, v. a. (niwl) To become misty or cloudy.

Niwlhawg, a. (niwl) Covered with mist, misty.

Niwligrwydd, s. m. (niwlhawg) Mistiness.

NO, s. m. r. That stops, confines, or keeps in.

No, adv. (no, s.) Than, compared with. It is used before words, with consonant initials.
Llai no dim, less than nothing; mwy no dim, more than any thing.

Gwell ceinlog no brawd.

A penny is better than a brother.

Adage.

Nod, s. m.—pl. t. au (no—od) A characteristic, a token, a mark, a butt, a brand. Gwr nod, a man of note; haist y nodau, the plague; nod y dwfr yw gwltybeniaeth, the characteristic of water is liquidity.

Llan haelon o ddynon tra fawr,
Triuwr nod mawr on clod, g'u Elgan.

Shin were men generous whilst they were, three men of note great of fame, by Elgan.

Taliesin.

Ni chwynnau nychu canyd,
Nod hach, a newidlo hach.

I would not complain to offer awhile, as a small token, and to change condition.
D. Jones, a Llanfair.

Nod, adv. (no—od) Marking, to, even, likewise.

Car hach, nod dy elyn.

Love every body, even thy enemy.

Adage.

Nodach, s. pl. aggr. (nod) Snndry articles.

Nodadwy, a. (nod) Remarkable, observable.

Nodal, s. c.—pl. nodelon (nod) A noter.

Nodawg, a. (nod) Having a mark or sign, noted.

Nodawl, a. (nod) Tending to characterize, or to mark; marked, notable, eminent, considerable.

Nodedig, a. (nod) A characteristic.

Nodedig, a. (nod) Characterized, noted, marked, eminent, considerable.

Noden, s. f.—pl. t. i (nawd) Thread, yarn.

Nodi, v. a. (nod) To characterize, to note, to mark, to point out; to appoint.

Eddi Arthur gys, chie na thigdi di yma, nodys, di a gysli y cyfwrws a noto dy ben.

Thereupon Arthur said there thou wilt not carry here. Hence, thou shalt have the request, which thy tongue may mention.
H. Culiarch—Mabingion.

Wedi iddynt nodi diwraod iddo, llawer a ddoeth ato of, fu llyth, i'r rhai y tytiolarthodd—am yr llaen.

After they had appointed a day for him, many came to him, into his lodgings, to whom he testified concerning Jesus.
Acts xviii. 2.

Nodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (nod) A characterizing; a noting, a pointing out; an appointing.

Nodiadawl, a. (nodiad) Characteristical.

Nodiadu, v. a. (nodiad) To characterize.

Nodiadur, s. m. (nodiad) An annotator.

Nodiannawl, a. (nodiad) Characteristic.

Nodiannu, v. e. (nodiad) To characterize.

Nodiannus, a. (nodiad) Characteristical.

Nodiannusrwydd, s. m. (nodiannus) Characteristicness; that is of a marked condition.

Nodiant, s. m. (nod) A notation, a noting.

Nodlwydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nodiad) One who characterizes: one who remarks; a notary.

Nodlyfr, a. m.—pl. t. au (nod—lyfr) Note book.

Nodoldeb, s. m. (nodawl) Characteristicalness.

Nodolodd, s. m. (nodawl) Characteristicalness.

Nodoli, v. a. (nodawl) To characterize.

Nodolrwydd, s. m. (nodawl) Characteristicalness; notableness, notability.

Nodrwydd, s. m. (nodd) A notable condition.

Nodwedd, s. m. (nodd—gweidd) A characteristic.

Nodweddawl, a. (nodwedd) Characteristical.

Nodweddedig, a. (nodwedd) Characterized.

Nodweddiad, s. m. (nodwedd) A characterizing.

Nodweddn, v. a. (nodwedd) To characterize.

Lith y ym meddys dyfalu—pob dyfwrwg ar a ddechys bryt ac awen dyn o nodweddn.

Language is adequate to describe every item, which the mind and genius of man may be able to characterize.
Llywelyn a Llanfyllid.

Nodweddnus, a. (nodwedd) Characteristical.

Nodweddwyr, s. m.—pl. nodweddwyr (nodwedd—gwr) A characterizer.

Nodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nod) A noter, a marker.

Nodyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (nodydd) A notation.

Nodyn, s. m. dim. (nod) A note, a mark, a sign.

Nodd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—odd) The moisture or fluid pervading bodies; the juice, or sap of vegetation.

Noddadwy, a. (nawdd) Capable of affording refuge.

Noddawl, a. (nawdd) Tending to protect.

Nodded, s. f. (nawdd) Refuge, protection.

Noddfa, s. f.—pl. t. au (nawdd—ma) A place of refuge, a sanctuary.

Ne iddian newydd fawr.

New sanctuaries they were. L. G. Coll.

Man hen gweu mal cyrru noddfa ym dywedd Diwrth.

There is an old cross, like a stone of refuge, in the church-yard of Diwrth.

Noddi, v. a. (nawdd) To give refuge, to protect.

A noddo Daw rhy noddi.

That will be protected by God will be protected completely.

Fryfodd gwaw Mon:

Digw lach, am ei ddech hi,

A noddo pob mas iddi.

I will pray for the preservation of Mon: May God the Father, for its excellency, protect every part of it.

Noddiad, s. m. (nawdd) A giving refuge, a protecting, a making an asylum.
Noddiannawl, a. (noddiant) As to protection.
Noddiannu, v. a. (noddiant) To make a refuge.
Noddiant, s. m. (nawdd) Protection, refuge.
Noddlyd, a. (nodd) Of a juicy nature, sappy.
Noddlydiad, s. m. (noddlyd) A rendering juicy; a becoming juicy or sappy.
Noddlydrwydd, s. m. (noddlyd) Juiciness.
Noddlydu, v. a. (noddlyd) To render juicy; to become juicy or sappy.
Noddas, a. (nawdd) Affording a refuge or asylum.
Noddusaw, v. a. (noddus) To render protective; to become protective.
Noddwr, s. m.—pl. noddwyr (nawdd—gwr) One who gives refuge; a protector.
Noddwraig, s. f.—pl. noddwreigedd (nawdd—gwaig) A protectress.
Noddyn, s. m. (nawdd) That envelopes, an abyss.

*Elen y gwr a elwir Gwyn
 Ab Nudd aeth hon y noddys—
 Aed ag ef.*

May the tier of him who is called Gwyn ab Nudd take him above the abyss. R. Numer, i'r llang.

Noe, s. f.—pl. t. an (no) Any shallow vessel; a platter, or flat wooden dish; a tray. Noe bobî, cefn tyllinas, a kneading vessel or trough.

March—ar pan aeth oaf to ddoddeidd mwydd a ddily fed with me ei thad.

A girl, from the time when she is born until she shall be twelve years old ought to be at her father's dish. Welsh Laws.

Noead, s. m. (noe) A putting in a platter or dish.
Noeaid, s. f.—pl. noeidian (noe) A platter-full.
Noeaw, v. a. (noe) To put in a platter, to dish.
Noeth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—oeth) A naked one.

Dod feathig i noeth, nis cai dranoeth.

*Give a loan to the naked one, thou wilt not have it the next day.
 Adage.*

✓ Noeth, a. (ny—oeth) Naked, bare, exposed.

Caroiddech argwydd a chledd noeth ys enbyd.

*The familiarity of a lord with a naked sword is dangerous.
 Adage.*

Noethadwy, a. (noeth) That may be made naked.
Noethawg, a. (noeth) Being naked or bare.
Noethawl, a. (noeth) Tending to make bare.
Noethedig, a. (noeth) Being made bare.
Noethedd, s. m. (noeth) Nakedness, nudity.
Noethi, v. a. (noeth) To make bare, to strip.

Tri angenwrthau beirdd Ynys Prydain: cel gîn orfod, er hodd-uch a llo; cwys anafu, gan radd cyfawnder; a noethi cledd ar ddiffrwd ac arbalith.

*The three repulsive obligations of the bards of the Isle of Britain:
 secrecy by compulsion, for the sake of peace and of good; the complaint of disaster, for the sake of justice; and to unweath-er the sword against evil and devastation. Harleian.*

Noethiad, s. m. (noeth) A making naked.
Noethiadawl, a. (noethiad) Apt to make bare.
Noethiadu, v. a. (noethiad) To denudate.
Noethiannawl, a. (noethiant) Apt to denudate.
Noethiannu, v. a. (noethiant) To denudate.
Noethiant, s. m. (noeth) A denudation.
Noethlwm, a. (noeth—lwm) Nakedly bare.
Noethlyman, s. m.—pl. t. od (noeth—llyman) One that is stark naked. a. Stark naked.
Noethni, s. m. (noeth) Nakedness, bareness.
Nof, s. m. (ny—of) That is moving or flowing.
Nofant, s. m. (nof) A state of motion; a fluid.
Nofant, s. m.—pl. t. au (nawf) A swimming.

*Ac ys noethach ym gwnaethiant
 Ns gwlaid yn nofiad nant.*

And more naked they made me than the salmon in the swimming course of the brook. L. G. Colai, i wpr Cartlenn.

Nofiadeth, s. m. (nofiad) The art of swimming.
 Vol. II.

Nofiadawl, a. (nofiad) Relating to swimming.
Nofiadoldeb, s. m. (nofiadawl) Buoyancy.
Nofiadoledd, s. m. (nofiadawl) Buoyancy.
Nofiadur, s. m. (nofiad) That causes to swim.
Nofiadur pysgodyn, nawf pysgodyn, the swim or wind bladder of a fish.
Nofiadwy, a. (nofiad) Capable of swimming.
Nofianawl, a. (nofiant) Buoyant, swimming.
Nofiannu, v. a. (nofiant) To render buoyant;
 to become buoyant.
Nofiant, s. m. (nawf) A swimming; a swim.
Noflaw, v. a. (nawf) To swim; to cause to swim.
A eili di noflaw dros yr afon? Canst thou swim over the river? Dwyf a nofla long, water that will swim a ship.

*Ni nofla mewn an afon
 Y doeth yn erbyn y don.*

*The wise will not swim in a river against the stream of the wave.
 Adage.*

Nofiedig, a. (nofiad) Being swimmied.
Nofiedigaeth, s. m. (nofiedig) The art of swimming; a swimming condition.
Nofiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nofiad) A swimmer.

*Niwl wyhen—
 Nofiedydd y nef ydwyf:
 Gwasgarn f'ch gwag oror;
 Dy lo: hea yw monnes mor.*

*Vapour of the atmosphere, thou art the swimmer of the sky: disperse to thy region of repose; thy retreat is the bosom of the sea.
 D. Richard.*

Noflwr, s. m.—pl. nofwyr (nawf—gwr) A swimmer
Nofle, s. m. (nawf—lle) A swimming place.
Nofwg, s. m. (nawf) Buoyancy, a swimming state
Nog, adv. (no) Than, compared with. It is used before words with vowel initials.

Gwell crafft nog arllawd arglwydd.

Better is a trade than the profession of a prince. Adage.

Nag eirnach un nog arall.

*Spare not one more than another.
 H. Llwyd Cynfal, i'r llyngog.*

Nol, v. a. (ny—ol) To fetch, or to bring.
Noli, v. a. (nol) To fetch, or to bring.
Non, s. f.—pl. t. au (ny—on) A stream, a brook.

*Dy fynawna lydan, dylleaw nonau;
 Dyddaw, dyhebyr, dybrys dybrus:
 Marwnad Corol a'm cyffrois.*

Thy ample fountain, it will replenish the streams; sad omens come, depending with the path of hate: the death-cry of Corol hath agitated me! Tellesin.

Nos, s. f.—pl. t. an (ny—os) Night. Min nos,
min y nos, the twilight of evening; hanner nos,
canol nos, midnight; perfeddion y nos, dyfnder y
nos, the middle of the night, or the dead of the night; o'r nos y ganer ef, from the night when he shall be born.

Nos yw mam y cyssulwan.

Night is the mother of plots. Adage.

Gwath y nos y dydd a'l dengyn.

The work of the night the day will disclose. Adage.

Nosawl, a. (nos) Relating to night, nocturnal.

*Mawrws yr hollgyfnoethawg Ddaw ei dragaredd yn mhllth y
 Prydeiliaid, rhag ei llywllaw hwynt o uosau dywyllig angau.*

The omnipotent God hath magnified his mercy amongst the Bri-tones, in preventing their being darkened by the night-like darkness of death. Gr. ab Arthur.

Nosgrwydr, s. m.—pl. nosgrwydrau (nos—crwydr)
 A night ramble.

Nosgrwydrad, s. m. (nosgrwydr) A night ramble.

Nosgrwydrai, a. m.—pl. nosgrwydroion (nos-grwydr) A night rambler.

Nosgrwydrydd, s. m.—pl. nosgrwydryddion (nos-grwydr) A night rambler.

Nosi, v. n. (nos) To become night, to draw towards night, to grow late.

Er nosi dygeirdeh eich gweld,
O'ch llygad dan gwawr i'osudd—
Kio e wawria.

Though the brightness of your countenance is become night, from your eye being hidden under a cloud, again it shall shine.
Ro. Edwards Offiriad.

Nosi, s. f. (nos) A night-time, darkness of night.

Fensid dion, ni ddaw nosi
I aduili haf y del hl.

My pretty soul, night will not come to the summer solstice where she comes.
D. ab Gwilym.

Nosiad, s. m. (nos) A becoming night.

Nosig, s. f. dim. (nos) A night time, a night.

Mabon fab Modron a ddygid yn nhair nosig iwrth ei fam.

Mabon the son of Modron was taken in three nights from his mother.
H. Cuthbert—Mabonion.

Noson, s. f. (nos) A night time, a night; a certain night.

Iacob—a leitllyl y noson hono yn y gweraill.

Jacob lodged for that night in the camp.
Genesis 32. 21.

Noswaith, s. f.—pl. nosweithiau (nos—gwaith) A certain night, a night.

Noswyl, s. f.—pl. t. iau (nos—gwyl) The eventide, the nightfall, the time of leaving off work at eve; a vigil.

Noswyl iâr, gwae ai câr.

The hen's night-time, woe to such as loves it.
Adage.

Noswylad, s. m. (noswyl) A leaving off work at eve; a keeping vigils.

Noswylaw, v. a. (noswyl) To give over work at eve; to keep a vigil.

Noswylawg, a. (noswyl) Resting for the night.

Noswylidig, a. (noswylad) Being laid by at night

Noswylwr, s. m.—pl. noswylwyr (noswyl—gwr) One who leaves off for the night; one who keeps vigils.

Notur, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nawd) Nature.

Noturiaeth, s. m.—pl. t. an (notur) Nature.

Noturiawl, a. (notur) Natural, or genial.

Nudd, s. m. (ny—udd) A fog, haze, or mist.

Nug, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ug) A shake, a quiver, a ripple. a. Shaking; quivering.

Meirch—

Meth, mynngas, hirllam, haecllog,
Na bwynt gyt na rhywynt och ryd ang.

Steeds, swift, white-manned, of long stride, and impatient, may they not be more fleet than the stormy wind above the rippling ford.
Lt. F. Mach.

Nuglad, s. m.—pl. t. au (nug) A shaking; a rippling; or broken motion.

Nuglaw, v. a. (nug) To shake; to quiver; to ripple; to wrinkle.

Nuglaw gân y cwn.

To be shaken by the dogs.
Adage.

Nuglawl, a. (nug) Tending to shake or ripple.

Nur, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ur) A pure body or being; essence.

Am Fodawg dafuallawg dofa awen;
Am nar pur fal pair Ceridwen—
Y pryderaf.

For the accomplished Madawg of profound genius; for a pure essence like the cauldron of Ceridwen I am sad.
Sefyda.

NW, s. m. r. That is of a pervading nature.

Nwd, s. m. (ny—wd) That is sharp or pointed.

Nwdd, s. m. (nw) That is pervasive or oozing.

Nwf, s. m. (nw) That is subtil; that is pure, or hallowed. a. Holy, or pure.

Nwn, s. m. (nw) That is of an intense nature.

Nwth, s. m. (nw) That draws in or pulls.

Nwy, s. m. (nw) That is pervasive; spirit, or vivacity; spiritliness.

Nwyd, s. m.—pl. t. au (nwy) Drift, or scope; bent of the mind, or passion; a whim, or trick; a way, or manner. Nwyddau drwg, bad tricks; enghwedd fydd nwyd e hen gefyl, it is difficult to break an old horse of a trick.

O bant i bant bont llyg
Harwng lwyd i nwyd sodd!

From bottom to bottom is not the dam roving ship of the same course as a snake!
R. Neumer.

Nwydaw, v. a. (nwyd) To have a particular bias of mind; to have a whim or trick.

Nwydawl, a. (nwyd) Having a particular passion; having a whim or trick.

Nwydawl, a. (nwyd) Of a peculiar bent of mind; whimsical; apt to have tricks.

Nwydedd, s. m. (nwyd) The state of being of a peculiar turn of mind; whimsicalness; a habit of freaks or tricks.

Nwydiad, s. m. (nwyd) A filling with whims or freaks; a becoming whimsical.

Nwydiant, s. m. (nwyd) A whimsical disposition.

Nwydus, a. (nwyd) Freaky, or whimsical.

Nwydusaw, v. a. (nwydus) To render whimsical; to become whimsical or full of freaks.

Nwydusurwydd, s. m. (nwydus) Whimsicalness.

Nwydwyllt, a. (nwyd—gwyllt) Abounding with wild freaks; half-brained.

Nwydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (nwy) Essence; stuff, substance, or materials; commodity; effects; wealth, riches. Mae nwydd da yn yr eiddiau hyn, there is good stuff in these shoes. Sil.

Nwyddaw, v. a. (nwydd) To endue with matter or substance; a becoming substantial.

Nwyddawg, a. (nwydd) Material, or substantial.

Nwyddawl, a. (nwydd) Material, or substantial.

Nwyddiad, s. m. (nwydd) A rendering material or substantial; a becoming substantial.

Nwyddus, a. (nwydd) Material, or substantial.

Nwyf, s. m.—pl. t. au (nwy) A subtil pervading element; a fine ethereal fluid; animal spirits, liveliness, or vivacity; energy.

Tri bocsod awen, nwyf, prydl, a gwybodaeth.

The three foundations of genius, vigor, judgment, and knowledge.
Burdett.

Nwyfaw, v. a. (nwyf) To cheer up the spirits, to enliven; to become sprightly or wanton.

Nwyfawg, a. (nwyf) Full of vivacity, sprightly; wanton, amorous.

—Golygus willoged
Yn serchawg nwyfawg eu mald.

Slightly madd of amorous and wanton leap.
T. Pry.

Nwyfawl, a. (nwyf) Full of vivacity, sprightly; wanton, amorous.

Nwyfedig, a. (nwyf) Being made sprightly or wanton; being become lively or wanton.

Nwyfedigaeth, s. m. (nwyfedig) A rendering or becoming full of spirits.

Nwyfiad, s. m. (nwyf) An enlivening; a becoming sprightly or lively; a becoming wanton.

Nwyfiadawl, a. (nwyfiad) Of an enlivening tendency; of an amorous tendency.

Nwyfiadu, v. a. (nwyfiad) To render sprightly or vivacious; to become sprightly or wanton.

Nwyfiadu, a. (nwyfiad) Enlivening, cheering.

Nwyfiannawl, a. (nwyfiant) Enlivening.

Nwyfiannu, v. a. (nwyfiant) To render sprightly or wanton; to become full of spirits.

El arogi o'i lwyd yn fwyd e'm nwyfiannodd;
Hwyliu'n caln arieth.

His fragrant from his grove kindly cheered me; it guided my brilliant design.
E. Dafydd.

Nwyfiannus, a. (nwyfiant) Animating.

Nwyfannusaw, v. a. (nwyfannus) To render sprightly; to become full of vivacity.
Nwyfiant, s. m. (nwyf) Vivacity, sprightliness; wantonness.

*Brodyr a'm bonnt
As a bob gerwyf o'vylad
Ni w'r ffron parhau cygnant!*

Brothers to me there were, and each of these princely hairs possessed vigour: but ffron knows no congenial object.
Llywarch Hen.

Nwyfiator, ger. (nwyfiad) In enlivening.
Nwyfiator, sup. (nwyf) To be enlivening.
Nwyfoed, s. m. (nwyf—oed) A love meeting.

*Adwasen of o'i fedw nwyfoed,
Awdur codd eidd y codd.*

I know him from his birchen room of love, the author of song for the birds of the grove.
D. ab Gwilym, i'r ffronfrailh.

Nwyfre, s. f. (nwyf—rhe) The ethereal sphere; the firmament, the atmosphere.

*Addwyn i'w yd yn awyfr yn nwyfre.
Glaston is the sun moving in the firmament.*
Tollu.

*Gordyranodur, gwyb ffrailh,
Llyw nwyfre, o'vylad i'w
Gwyfalon ring brailh!*

Chamorus are the birds, the strand is wet, clear is the wealth, ample the wave: the heart is pained with longing!
Llywarch Hen.

Nwyfserch, s. m. (nwyf—serch) Wanton love.
Nwyfus, a. (nwyf) Full of spirits, sprightly, lively, cheerful; wanton.
Nwyfusaw, v. a. (nwyfus) To render sprightly; to become lively; to become wanton.
Nwyfusedd, s. m. (nwyfus) Sprightliness, vivacity; wantonness.
Nwyfusrwydd, s. m. (nwyfus) Sprightliness, vivacity; wantonness.
Nwyth, s. m.—pl. t. au (nwy) A drift, a course, whim, an oddity, a prank; impertinence. Mae nwythau rhyfodd yn y dyn yma, there are odd freaks in that man. Sil.
Nwythad, s. m. (nwyth) A rendering eccentric; a becoming eccentric or whimsical.
Nwythas, s. f. (nwyth) Eccentricity, oddity.

*Drymer pob aer, pob nwythas dayra;
Daw e aet i'w nwythas;
Wyd p'wylid de Prydain a'i eiddas.*

Be thou taking every chieftain, every prince of arrogance; God of heroes hath bound thee; to thee appertain the land of Britain and its chiefs.
L. F. Mech, i Llywarch II.

Nwythaw, v. a. (nwyth) To render whimsical; to become full of freaks or whimsical.
Nwythawg, a. (nwyth) Having oddities.
Nwythawl, a. (nwyth) Eccentric, whimsical.
Nwythedig, a. (nwythad) Rendered eccentric; become eccentric or whimsical.
Nwythiad, s. m. (nwyth) A rendering eccentric; a becoming eccentric or whimsical.
Nwythig, a. (nwyth) Eccentric, whimsical.
Nwythas, a. (nwyth) Full of whims, freaks, or oddities; whimsical, freaky; impertinent. Dyn nwythas, a whimsical and impertinent person.
Nwythasaw, v. a. (nwythas) To render whimsical; to become whimsical.
Nwythusrwydd, s. m. (nwythus) Eccentricity.
NY, s. m. r. That is spreading, pervasive, or universal; that is whole or in continuity. It is used as a prefix, implying augmentation, and certitude.

Nych, s. m. (ny—ych) A state of pain, a languishing, a pining away.

Mir nych i angu.
Long pining to death.
Adage.
Bid nych cwyd claf.

Languishing be the complaint of the sick.
Adage.

Nycha, interj. (ny—ycha) Behold! lo! see here!

Nychawl, a. (nych) Languishing; tormenting.
Nychdawl, s. m. (nych) A state of languishment or pain; a lingering disorder; a languishment.

Gwell marw na hir nychdawl.

Better is death than long languishment.
Adage.

Nychedig, a. (nych) Tortured, or afflicted.
Nychiad, s. m. (nych) A languishing; a causing pain, a tormenting.
Nychial, v. a. (nych) To be languishing or in pain.
Nychiant, s. m. (nych) Languishment; pain.
Nychlyd, a. (nych) Languishing, pining; painful.
Nychlydrwydd, s. m. (nychlyd) A state of anguish.
Nychlydu, v. a. (nychlyd) To become languishing.
Nychu, v. a. (nych) To inflict pain, to torment, to consume with pain; to languish, to pine, to waste away. Paid a'i nychu hi, do not torture her.

*Wylaf—
Nychwyd, anafwyd effer,
Na chawn ragot-bdawn gerdwr.*

I weep, afflicted, wounded are many, that we shall not enjoy the ministrals of superior talent.
Sghyri.

Nychwaw, s. m. (nych—gwaw) A languishing pain.

Nychwedd, s. f. (nych—gwedd) A countenance of anguish.

Nydd, s. f.—pl. t. i (nwd) A needle.

Nydwydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (nwd—gwydd) A broach, or pin; a needle. Nydwydd ddur, a stitching needle; cei y cwd a'r nydwydd ar ei ol, thou shalt have the bag and the broach after him: Nydwydd y bygel, shepherd's needle.

Nydwyddal, s. c. (nydwydd) Worker at a needle.

Nydwyddaw, v. a. (nydwydd) To needle.

Nydwyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (nydwydd) A needlewoman, a seamstress.

Nydwyddwr, s. m.—pl. nydwyddwyr (nydwydd—gwr) A needleman, or seamster.

Nydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ydd) A spin, a turn, or twist; a perversion; equivocation, evasion.

Nyddawl, a. (nydd) Spinning; turning, twisting.

Nyddedig, a. (nydd) Being spun or twisted.

Nyddfa, s. f.—pl. nyddfaydd (nydd) A spinning place.

Nyddiad, s. m. (nydd) A spinning; a twisting.

Nyddoes, s. m. (nydd—oes) Spinach.

Nyddu, v. a. (nydd) To spin; to turn, to twist; to pervert, to equivocate, to evade.

Nyddwedd, s. f. (nydd—gwedd) The size of yarn in spinning.

Nyddwr, s. m.—pl. nyddwyr (nydd—gwr) A spinner.

Nyddwraig, s. f.—pl. nyddwreigedd (nydd—gwraig) A spinning-woman, a spinster.

Nyf, s. pl. aggr. (nwf) Snow. It is more generally called ciry, eira, and od.

Gwynbrd nyf cyn daddiswdd.

A white countenance of snow before it dissolves.
Ior. Gyrilang.

Nyfed, s. f. (nwf) A pure or holy nature.

Dyphorthes meinir molud nyfed.

The slender maid bore the praise for sanctity.
Acuria.

*Gorthwys nefoedd nyfed eglur,
Gwrtwyl na bo trist Crist cressur!*

Supreme of the heavens of splendid purity, at me may Christ the creator not be grieved!
Cyaddelu.

Y gwr a oren awyrawl ednail,

Ac edoes ddaurawl,

Erglyw s, arglwydd caanwynawl;

Erglywed gwar nyfed nefawl;

Tu y bwyl y bo dy xanawl,

Tad yspwyd, a'n Tad yspwydawl.

The Being who caused the aerial creature of wing, and earthly abodes, hear me, thou universal Lord; let the gentle sanctity of heaven listen; the wide I am of be thou praised there. Father of spirit, and our spiritual Father.
Kitar Sato.

Neued, s. f. (neu) A panting; longing; regret.

*Yn y mae yfed, heb neued, heb nag,
Heb nebawd eiawed.*

Where there is drinking, without regret, without refusal, without any kind of want. Cynddelw.

Nenedd, s. m. (nen) A panting, or palpitation; a panting after, or longing.

Neufedd, s. m. (neu—medd) Wealth, riches.

Neur, adv. (neu—yr) Is it not; verily so.

Neus, adv. (neu—ys) Is it not; verily it is.

New, s. m. (ne) That is proceeding or going off.

Newid, s. m.—pl. t. ian (new) A change; a cheap rate, small value, or cheapness.

Nid erchib yr hen Gyrrys oidd a fal rhwng y newidiau.

Old Crys asked for no more than what might be between the bergins. Adage.

*Angau'n newidiau fy nodd a was Yn uu o'r merthylt;
Angel a d at Eli,
A'm a Duw, o'm enaid i.*

The death of change will mark me as one of the martyrs: may an angel go to Eli, and my only God, with my soul! L. G. Collet.

Clynn dyngw, a rhegi, a chabio, onl roeswn i newid ar fy nghludias rhag gwrandawr.

I could bear swearing, cursing and blaspheming, so that I would have set a bergain upon my ears rather than listen. Elio Wyn, B. Curg.

Newid, v. a. (new) To change, to exchange.

Newid y gwawyr.

To change the pain.

Adage.

Newidiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (newid) A changing.

Newidiadwy, a. (newidiad) Changeable.

Newidiannawl, a. (newidiant) Tending to change

Newidiannu, v. a. (newidiant) To produce a change or alteration; to transform.

Newidiant, s. m. (newid) The act or state of changing; alteration; transformation.

Newidiaw, v. a. (newid) To change; to transform.

Tri pheth nis gall samyn Duw: dydddef bythoedd y ceugant; cynghyd a phob cyflwr heb newidiaw; a rhoi gwell a newydd ar bob peth heb ei roi ar goll.

Three things which none but God can accomplish: endure the periods of eternity; coalesce with every state without changing; and confer improvement and renovation upon every thing without consigning it to annihilation. Barddas.

*Mae'n ei bryd fy newidiaw;
Mawr wall oedd fy mawr o'i llaw.*

It is in her mind to change me; great were the rashness to cast me off her hand. Iwan Dyfl.

Newidiawg, a. (newid) Having a change.

Newidiawl, a. (newid) Changeable, mutable.

Newidiedig, a. (newidiad) Being changed.

Newidioldeb, s. m. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidiolder, s. m. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidioli, v. (newidiawl) To be changeable.

Newidiolrwydd, s. (newidiawl) Changeableness.

Newidiwr, s. m.—pl. newidiwyr (newid—gwr) A changer; one who barbers.

Newidrwydd, s. m. (newid) A changed state.

Newidwriaeth, s. m. (newidiwr) Exchange, commerce, or traffick; a bartering of wares.

Geluddyn wyd: gweddau ydyf; Waelhwaeth newidwriaeth newt.

Thou art an excellent person; a miserable wight am I: Worse and worse the commerce of love. L. o. Gwilym.

Newidwriaethawl, a. (newidwriaeth) Appertaining to exchange or commerce.

Newydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (new) What is new. Papur Newydd. a news paper; newyddion da, good news; dywed imi ryw newydd, tell me some news.

Ns re goel i newyddion onl bont yn hen.

Give no credit to news until they are grown old. Adage.

Newydd, a. (new) New; fresh. Newydd grai, newydd tanllaw, brand new.

Newydddawl, a. (newydd) Somewhat new.

Newydddail, a. (newydd) Of a new quality.

Newyddban, a. (newydd—pan) Newly dressed.

Newyddbeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (newydd—peth) A new thing, a novelty.

Newydddeb, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newyddder, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newydddra, s. m. (newydd) Newness, novelty.

Newydddedd, s. m. (newydd) Novelness, newness.

Newyddgrëad, s. m. (newydd—crëad) A new creation. a. Newly created.

Newyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (newydd) The act of making new; a becoming new; innovation.

Newyddian, s. c.—pl. t. od (newydd) A novice.

Nid yn newyddian, rhag lldo ymchwyddaw, a cythlaw i farwel-igarth y diafol.

Not a novice, lest, being lifted up with pride, he fall into the condemnation of the devil. 1 Timothy 3. 6.

Newyddianaeth, s. m. (newyddian) Noviciate.

Newyddiannawl, a. (newyddiant) Appertaining to a new state; of a new condition.

Newyddiannu, v. a. (newyddiant) To render of a new state; to become novel.

Newyddiannus, a. (newyddiant) Tending to a new state; in a state of newness.

Newyddiant, s. m. (newydd) A state of newness.

Newyddiaw, v. a. (newydd) To make new.

Newyddiedig, a. (newyddiad) Being made new.

Newyddrwydd, s. m. (newydd) Recentness.

Newyddu, v. a. (newydd) To make new; to modernize, to innovate, to become new.

Newyddus, a. (newydd) Tending to innovation.

Newyddwr, s. m.—pl. newyddwyr (newydd—gwr) One who makes new; an innovator.

Newyn, s. m. (ne—gwyn) Hunger; famine.

Gloddast awr a newyn biwyddyn.

Excess for an hour and famine for a year. Adage.

Ni ddwg newyn mam welion.

Born will not bear the hunger of a mother. Adage.

Pwybyng a gyfarfall ar Arthur, ag un dyddwys y Baddid, ac d a'i farch; ac wrth hwy pwb a foynt rhadod, megis boym y sailfiald rhag llew dywal, pen fal newyn mawr arno.

Whoever happened to meet with Arthur, with one stroke was he slain, him and his horse; and therefore every body fled from him, as the beans might fly from a furious lion, when he would be suffering great hunger. Gr. o. Arthur.

Newynawg, a. (newyn) Having hunger, famished.

Hareuidd nab noeth, ni lwyri nab newynawg.

A naked child may play, a hungry child will not play. Adage.

Newynawl, a. (newyn) Famishing; hungry.

Newyndawd, s. m. (newyn) Hungriness.

Newyndra, s. m. (newyn) A hungry state.

Newynedig, a. (newyn) Being famished.

Newyniad, s. m. (newyn) A famishing.

Newynllyd, a. (newyn) Hungry, half starved.

Newynllydrwydd, s. m. (newynllyd) Hungriness.

Newynogaeth, s. m. (newynawg) Famishment.

Newynu, v. a. (newyn) To starve one, to famish; to be starved, to be famished.

Llodd gloddast yw newyn y meddyg.

To destroy intemperance is to starve the doctor. Adage.

Mai celliawg y rhedyn yn canu yr haf a newyn y goad.

Like the grasshopper singing in summer and famishing in winter. Adage.

Newynwr, s. m.—pl. newynwyr (newyn—gwr)

One who hungers; a famisher.

Nhw, pron. (hwy) They, or them.

Nhw, pron. (nhw) They, or them.

Nhwythau, pron. (nhw—tan) They also.

NI, s. m. r. A number separate or apart.

Ni, pron. (ni, s.) We, us. Dyma ni, here we are; ni awu, we will go; ni sydd yma, it is we who are here.

Gwell gwae fi na gwae ni.

Better woe me than woe us.

Adage.

Ni, adv. Not; used mostly before words with consonant initials. Ni ddewant, they will not come; ni wusth er hyru, no matter for that; ni ym, ni yth, ni yn, ni ych, by syncope become ni'm, ni'th, ni'n, ni'ch.

Ni bydd doeth ni llo.

He will not be wise that will not read.

Adage.

Ni bydd diriad heb hawl.

The mischievous will not be without a claim.

Adage.

Gwr n'ith gar n'ith gwyfdd.

A person who loves thee not will not bear with thee.

Adage.

Ar ni oddeffo gwae bid was iddo ei hun.

He that will not bear with a servant let him be a servant to himself.

Adage.

Enillu ni char ei galltho.

Scandal loves not to be scandalized.

Adage.

Dwedd ni bydd i't, na dechre ni be.

An end there will not be to thee, nor beginning has there been.

Ein. ab Gwethmali.

Nid, s. m. (ni—id) A stop of progress; that is impending or in a state of rest.

Nid, adv. (ni—yd) Not; used mostly before words with vowel initials. Nid yw da, it is not good; nid y f ond y fo, not me but him; nid oes oad er doe er pan aeth, it is only since yesterday that he is gone; nid angen, not otherwise, to wit; nid hwyrach, perhaps.

A Duw nid da ymdraw.

With God it is not good to strive.

Adage.

Nid bod ond angen, nid angen ond Duw.

There is no being but necessity, there is not a necessity but God.

Adage.

Nidr, s. m. (nid) A let, impediment, or hindrance; an entanglement; a delay, or lingering. Nidrad, s. m. (nidr) An entangling; perplexity. Nidraw, v. a. (nidr) To entangle; to be entangled; to embarrass; to perplex.

Y faren—

Nidredd amgylch fy neudrood.

The trouble it entangled about my two feet.

D. ab Gwilym.

Nidrawl, s. (nidr) Entangling; dilatory.

Nidredd, s. m. (nidr) Entanglement; perplexity.

Nidri, s. m. (nidr) Entanglement; perplexity; obstruction, hindrance.

O nidri nid ai un adref.

From perplexity not one would reach home.

Id. ab Gwiliam, fr. Saxon.

Nidriad, s. m.—pl. nidriaid (nidr) An entangler.

Nidrrwr, s. m.—pl. nidrrwyr (nidr—gwr) One who entangles; a delayer.

Nif, s. m. (ni) A specific number or tale.

Nifer, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (nif) A number; a number collected together, a multitude, a host, a company; a retinue.

Niferai, s. c.—pl. nifereion (nifer) Numerary.

Niferawg, s. (nifer) Consisting of many.

Beirdd aedod niferawg oredid.

The whole of bards a numerous congress.

Cyddfutu.

Niferawl, s. (nifer) Relating to number; numerical, numeral.

Niferedig, s. (nifer) Being numbered, or told.

Niferedd, s. m. (nifer) Numerousness.

Niferiad, s. m. (nifer) A numbering.

Niferiath, s. m. (nifer) Numeration.

Nifeiriannawl, s. (niferiant) Numerary.

Nifeiriannu, v. a. (niferiant) To enumerate; to make out a number.

Niferiant, s. m. (nifer) Numeration.

Niferogi, v. a. (niferawg) To render numerous; to become numerous or multitudinous.

Niferogrwydd, s. m. (niferawg) Numerousness.

Niferu, v. a. (nifer) To number, to count.

Niferydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nifer) A numerist.

Nifwl, s. m. (nif—gwl) A mist; a cloud.

Nifwlawg, s. (nifwl) Misty, hazy, cloudy.

Nig, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ig) That is strait.

Nigiad, s. m. (nig) A straitening, a narrowing.

Nigiaw, v. a. (nig) To straiten, to narrow.

Nigus, s. (nig) Strait, narrow, confined.

Ni wraig fangw nigus

O green uoili.

I will not wear any strait gloves of the skin of sheep.

D. ab Gwilym.

Nill, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—ill) What tends to gain upon or to encroach; a poppy.

Nilla, v. a. (nill) To be over-reaching, to augment

Nillai, s. c.—pl. nilleion (nill) A sickle.

Ninnau, pron. (ni—tau) We also, and us.

Ebal Arawn ab Cynfarch, cyrchwn yr banner-gwyr; a safon yn en cyrchu, hyd pan orfom ni arnoddant hwy, can dwyn en arnhydded, yd arferon ninnau o lawen fuddi gollacth.

Said Arawn son of Cynfarch, let us fall on those half men; and let us persevere in attacking them, until we overcome them, and by taking away their honour, that we them may enjoy a glad triumph.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Nis, adv. (ni—ys) Not. It is synonymous with Ni, and used before words with consonant initials, and preserving them in their radical form; as nis doi, for ni ddoi, thou wilt not come; or nis gweli, for ni weli, thou wilt not see, and the like.

Eddawid nis gwneier nid yw.

A promise that shall not be performed does not exist.

Adage.

Ni cheiff byyll nis pryno.

He shall not obtain wit who buys it not.

Adage.

Nith, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ny—ith) That is pure, or clear; a niece.

Nithiad, s. m. (nith) A winnowing, a cleaning.

Nithiannawl, s. (nithiant) Tending to purify.

Nithiannu, v. a. (nithiant) To make clean.

Nithiant, s. m. (nith) A purifying; a winnowing.

Nithiaw, v. a. (nith) To purify; to winnow.

Also Troelli and dioldi.

Nithia o'm bron greulon gredd;

Noetha yn war syth awnirad.

Purge from my breast a cruel disposition; gently lay open the nest of iniquity.

Id. D. ab Ifan.

Nithiawl, s. (nith) Tending to clear; relating to winnowing.

Nithiedig, s. (nithiad) Being winnowed.

Nithiwr, s. m.—pl. nithwyr (nith—gwr) A winnower.

Nithlen, s. f. (nith—llen) A winnowing sheet.

Nithlen, pedair celinlaw a dal.

A winnowing sheet, its value is four pence.

Welsh Laws.

Niw, s. m. (ny—iw) That is violent or sharp.

Niw, adv. (ni) Of what not, of that not.

Ni chyll niw dyfodd.

There will be no loss of what will not be.

Adage.

Niwed, s. m.—pl. niweldiau (niw) Harm, hurt, damage, prejudice, disadvantage.

Na chwar hyd niwed.

No chetwair hyd liwed.

Play not till harm comes, lest not till it becomes calamity.

Adage.

Niweda, v. a. (niwed) To hurt, or to injure.

Nad fr cythrel, y helyn,
Nodau dig niweddu dyn.

Prevent the devil, the foe, of wrathful impulses, to injure man.
T. Gruffydd.

Niweidiad, s. m. (niwaid) A hurting a damaging.
Niweidiannawl, a. (niweidiant) Of a noxious or hurtful quality; injurious.

Niweidiannu, v. a. (niweidiant) To create a hurt, or injury; to become an injury.

Niweidiant, s. m. (niwed) A harming, a hurting.
Niweidiaw, v. a. (niwed) To hurt, to harm, to injure, to damage, to annoy.

Niweidiawg, a. (niwaid) Hurtful, injurious.

Niweidiawl, a. (niwed) Nocent, mischievous.

Niweidiedig, a. (niwed) Hurt, or injured.

Niweidioldeb, s. m. (niweidiawl) Noxiousness.

Niweidiolodd, s. m. (niweidiawl) Noxiousness.

Niweidioli, v. a. (niweidiawl) To render noxious; to become noxious or hurtful.

Niweidiolrwydd, s. m. (niweidiawl) Noxiousness.

Niweidiwr, s. m.—pl. niweidiwyr (niwaid—gwr) One who hurts or injures.

Niweidrwydd, s. m. (niwed) Hurtfulness.

Niwl, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ni—gwl) Mist, fog.

Niwl y gwawyn, gwawyn gwyt;
Niwl yr haf, gwawyn tref;
Niwl y cynhauf, gwawyn gwyl;
Niwl y gwafr, gwawyn eira.

Mist in spring is the source of wind;
Mist in summer is the source of heat;
Mist in autumn is the source of rain;
Mist in winter is the source of snow.

Adage.

Niwlenn, s. f. dim. (niwl) A small mist; a small detached cloud.

Niwlach, s. pl. aggr. (niwl) Scattered clouds of mist; flying clouds.

Ni welaf ond niwlach:
Nid ydwl win; nid wyf iach.

I see nought but misty clouds: I will not drink wine: I am not well.
H. ab Gruffydd.

Niwlid, s. m. (niwl) A becoming misty or cloudy.

Niwlaw, v. n. (niwl) To become misty or cloudy.

Niwlawg, a. (niwl) Covered with mist, misty.

Niwllogrwydd, s. m. (niwlawg) Mistiness.

NO, s. m. r. That stops, confines, or keeps in.

No, adv. (no, s.) Than, compared with. It is used before words, with consonant initials.
Llai no dim, less than nothing; mwy no dim, more than any thing.

Gwell ceinlog no brawd.

A penny is better than a brother.

Adage.

Nod, s. m.—pl. t. au (no—od) A characteristic, a token, a mark, a butt, a brand. Gwr nod, a man of note; haint y nodau, the plague; nod y dwfr yw gwllybaniath, the characteristic of water is liquidity.

Llew bactor o ddynon tra fawr,
Driwyr nod manwr au dlo, g'n Eilan.

Shin were men generous whilst they were, three men of note great of fame, by Eilan.

Talkin.

Ni chwynnau nychu canyd,
Nod hach, a newidlo bod.

I would not complain to suffer awhile, as a small token, and to change condition.
D. Jones, o Lanfair.

Nod, adv. (no—od) Marking, to, even, likewise.

C'r hwb, nod dy elyn.

Love every body, even thy enemy.

Adage.

Nodach, s. pl. aggr. (nod) Snndry articles.

Nodadwy, a. (nod) Remarkable, observable.

Nodal, s. c.—pl. nodeion (nod) A noter.

Nodawg, a. (nod) Having a mark or sign, noted.

Nodawl, a. (nod) Tending to characterize, or to mark; marked, notable, eminent, considerable.

Nodeh, s. m. (nod) A characteristic.

Nodedig, a. (nod) Characterized, noted, marked, eminent, considerable.

Noden, s. f.—pl. t. i (nawd) Thread, yarn.

Nodi, v. a. (nod) To characterize, to note, to mark, to point out; to appoint.

Ebol Arthur gwa, cda mo thafgi di yna, apor, d goll y cyfrws a noto dy ben.

Thereupon Arthur said place thou wilt not carry here, prince, thou shalt have the banquet, which thy tongue may mention.
H. Culhwch—Mabynog.

Welld iddynt nodi diwrnod iddo, llawer a deuth ato of, f'w hdy, f'r rial y tydolacthodd—am yr lloer.

After they had appointed a day for him, many came to him into his lodgings, to whom he testified concerning Jesus.
Acts xviii. 25.

Nodiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (nod) A characterizing; a noting, a pointing out; an appointing.

Nodiadawl, a. (nodiad) Characteristical.

Nodiadu, v. a. (nodiad) To characterize.

Nodiadur, s. m. (nodiad) An annotator.

Nodiannawl, a. (nodiad) Characteristic.

Nodiannu, v. v. (nodiad) To characterize.

Nodiannus, a. (nodiad) Characteristical.

Nodiannusrwydd, s. m. (nodiannus) Characteristicalness; that is of a marked condition.

Nodiant, s. m. (nod) A notation, a noting.

Nodllydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nodiad) One who characterizes: one who remarks; a notary.

Nodlyfr, s. m.—pl. t. au (nod—lyfr) Note book.

Nodoldeb, s. m. (nodawl) Characteristicalness.

Nodolodd, s. m. (nodawl) Characteristicalness.

Nodoli, v. a. (nodawl) To characterize.

Nodolrwydd, s. m. (nodawl) Characteristicalness; notableness, notability.

Nodrwydd, s. m. (nodd) A notable condition.

Nodwedd, s. m. (nodd—gweidd) A characteristic.

Nodweddawl, a. (nodwedd) Characteristical.

Nodweddedig, a. (nodwedd) Characterized.

Nodweddiad, s. m. (nodwedd) A characterizing.

Nodweddu, v. a. (nodwedd) To characterize.

Islith yn yw medra dyfalu—pob dyfaluwr ar a ddiolch hylt a wna dyn o nodweddu.
Language is adequate to describe every thing, which the soul and genius of man may be able to characterize.
Llyfr y Lloer.

Nodweddu, a. (nodwedd) Characteristical.

Nodweddwyr, s. m.—pl. nodweddwyr (nodwedd—gwr) A characterizer.

Nodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nod) A noter, a marker.

Nodyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (nodydd) A notation.

Nodyn, a. m. dim. (nod) A note, a mark, a sign.

Nodd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—odd) The moisture or fluid pervading bodies; the juice, or sap of vegetation.

Noddadwy, a. (nawdd) Capable of affording refuge.

Noddawl, a. (nawdd) Tending to protect.

Nodded, s. f. (nawdd) Refuge, protection.

Noddfa, s. f.—pl. t. au (nawdd—ma) A place of refuge, a sanctuary.

No ddifan newydd fawr.

New sanctuaries they were.

L. G. Gelli.

Mae ben groes mal cwrw noddfa yn ymment Ddiarth.
There is an old cross, like a stone of refuge, in the churchyard of Ddiarth.
L. Llew.

Noddi, v. a. (nawdd) To give refuge, to protect.

A noddo Daw rhy noddi.

That will be protected by God will be protected completely.
Adage.

Fyristad gadw i Nos:

Llaw Tad, am o dardd hi.

A noddo pob man iddi.

I will pray for the preservation of Nos: May God be Father, for his excellency, protect every part of it.
G. G. Gelli.

Noddind, s. m. (nawdd) A giving refuge, a protecting, a making an asylum.
Noddiansawl, a. (noddiant) As to protection.
Noddiannu, v. a. (noddiant) To make a refuge.
Noddiant, s. m. (nawdd) Protection, refuge.
Noddlyd, a. (nodd) Of a juicy nature, sappy.
Noddlydiad, s. m. (noddlyd) A rendering juicy; a becoming juicy or sappy.
Noddlydrwydd, s. m. (noddlyd) Juiciness.
Noddlydu, v. a. (noddlyd) To render juicy; to become juicy or sappy.
Noddas, a. (nawdd) Affording a refuge or asylum.
Noddusaw, v. a. (noddus) To render protective; to become protective.
Noddwr, s. m.—pl. noddwyr (nawdd—gwr) One who gives refuge; a protector.
Noddwraig, s. f.—pl. noddwreigedd (nawdd—gwaig) A protectress.
Noddyn, s. m. (nawdd) That envelopes, an abyss.

*Ebor y gwr a elwir Gwyn
 Ab Nodd wrach hys y noddyn—Aed ag of.*

Bay the hier of him who is called Gwyn ab Nodd take him above the abyss. R. Nanner, I'r llang.

Noe, s. f.—pl. t. au (no) Any shallow vessel; a platter, or flat wooden dish; a tray. Noe bobi, cufa tylinaw, a kneading vessel or trough.

Merch—o'r pan azer oai to ddeuddeg mlwydd a ddylly fed with noe ei thad.

A girl, from the time when she is born until she shall be twelve years old ought to be at her father's dish. Welsh Lark.

Noead, s. m. (noe) A putting in a platter or dish.
Noeaid, s. f.—pl. noeaidian (noe) A platter-full.
Noeaw, v. a. (noe) To put in a platter, to dish.
Noeth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ny—oeth) A naked one.

Dod feathyg i noeth, na cai dranoeth.

*Give a loan to the naked ear, thou wilt not have it the next day.
 Adage.*

✓ Noeth, a. (ny—oeth) Naked, bare, exposed.

Caroddwch argwydd a chledd noeth ys enbyd.

*The familiarity of a lord with a naked sword is dangerous.
 Adage.*

Noethadwy, a. (noeth) That may be made naked.
Noethawg, a. (noeth) Being naked or bare.
Noethawl, a. (noeth) Tending to make bare.
Noethedig, a. (noeth) Being made bare.
Noethedd, s. m. (noeth) Nakedness, nudity.
Noethi, v. a. (noeth) To make bare, to strip.

Tri agenwyrthau beirdd Ynys Prydain: cel gŵn orlod, er hodd-uch a llo; curys adawli, gŵn raid cyflawnder; a noethi cledd ar ddifraw ac arhallth.

*The three repulsive obligations of the bards of the Isle of Britain:
 secrecy by compulsion, for the sake of peace and of good; the complaint of disrepair, for the sake of justice; and to strip the sword against evil and devastation. Barddas.*

Noethiad, s. m. (noeth) A making naked.
Noethiadawl, a. (noethiad) Apt to make bare.
Noethiadu, v. a. (noethiad) To denudate.
Noethiansawl, a. (noethiant) Apt to denudate.
Noethiannu, v. a. (noethiant) To denudate.
Noethiant, s. m. (noeth) A denudation.
Noethlwm, a. (noeth—lwm) Nakedly bare.
Noethlyman, s. m.—pl. t. od (noeth—llyman) One that is stark naked. a. Stark naked.
Noethni, s. m. (noeth) Nakedness, bareness.
Nof, s. m. (ny—of) That is moving or flowing.
Nofant, s. m. (nof) A state of motion; a fluid.
Nofant, s. m.—pl. t. au (nawf) A swimming.

*Ar yn noethach yn gwaethiant
 Na gwisgud yn noethiant.*

And more naked they made me than the salmon in the swimming course of the brook. L. O. Culi, I m'r Corthion.

Nofnadaeth, s. m. (nofiad) The art of swimming.

VOL. II.

Nofiadawl, a. (nofiad) Relating to swimming.
Nofiadoldeb, s. m. (nofiadawl) Buoyancy.
Nofiadoledd, s. m. (nofiadawl) Buoyancy.
Nofiadur, s. m. (nofiad) That causes to swim.
Nofiadur pysgodyn, nawf pysgodyn, the swim or wind bladder of a fish.
Nofiadwy, a. (nofiad) Capable of swimming.
Nofiansawl, a. (nofiant) Buoyant, swimming.
Nofiannu, v. a. (nofiant) To render buoyant;
 to become buoyant.
Nofiant, s. m. (nawf) A swimming; a swim.
Nofiau, v. a. (nawf) To swim; to cause to swim.
A eili di nofaw dros yr afon? Canst thou swim over the river? Dwfr a nofa long, water that will swim a ship.

*Ni nofa mewn un afon
 Y doeth yn erbyn y don.*

*The wise will not swim in a river against the stream of the wave.
 Adage.*

Nofiedig, a. (nofiad) Being swimmied.
Nofiedigaeth, s. m. (nofiedig) The art of swimming; a swimming condition.
Nofiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (nofiad) A swimmer.

*Niwl wybrwn—
 Nofiedydd a nef ydwy:
 Gwasgarn fŷh gwa cyror;
 Dy lo: hys yw monwes mor.*

*Vapour of the atmosphere, thou art the swimmer of the sky: disperse to thy region of repose; thy retreat is the bosom of the sea.
 D. Richard.*

Nofiwyr, s. m.—pl. nofwyr (nawf—gwr) A swimmer
Nofie, s. m. (nawf—lle) A swimming place.
Nofwg, s. m. (nawf) Buoyancy, a swimming state
Nog, adv. (no) Than, compared with. It is used before words with vowel initials.

Gwell crefft nog arllawd arglwydd.

Better is a trade than the profusion of a prince. Adage.

Nag eirach un nog arall.

*Spare not one more than another.
 H. Llwyd Cynfal, i'r llywyog.*

Nol, v. a. (ny—ol) To fetch, or to bring.
Noli, v. a. (nol) To fetch, or to bring.
Non, s. f.—pl. t. au (ny—on) A stream, a brook.

*Dy fŷnawyn llydan, dyllewn nonau;
 Dyddau, dyddwyr, dybryn dybrau:
 Mawrdd Corol s'm cyfrowi.*

Thy ample fountain, it will replenish the streams; sad omens come, dispensing with the path of haste: the death-cry of Corol hath agitated me! Taliesin.

Nos, s. f.—pl. t. au (ny—os) Night. Min nos,
min y nos, the twilight of evening; hanner nos,
canol nos, midnight; perffedion y nos, dysfader y
nos, the middle of the night, or the dead of the night; o'r nos y ganer ef, from the night when he shall be born.

Nos yw mam y cyfnewin.

Night is the mother of plots. Adage.

Gwaith y nos y dydd a'i deugyn.

The work of the night the day will disclose. Adage.

Nosawl, a. (nos) Relating to night, nocturnal.

*Mawrdd yr hollgyfnoethawg Ddau ei dregaredd yn mhllth y
 Prydeiniad, rhag ei tywyliaw hysut o nosau dywyfwr saes.*

The omnipotent God hath magnified his mercy amongst the Bri-tones, in preventing their being darkened by the night—his darkness of death. Gr. ab Arthur.

Nosgrwydr, s. m.—pl. nosgrwydrau (nos—crwydr)
 A night ramble.
Nosgrwydrad, s. m. (nosgrwydr) A night ramble.
Nosgrwydrai, a. m.—pl. nosgrwydroion (nos-
 grwydr) A night rambler.
Nosgrwydrydd, s. m.—pl. nosgrwydryddion (nos-grwydr) A night Rambler.

Oergriaw, v. a. (oergri) To cry dismally.
Oergwymp, s. m. (oer—cwypm) A dismal fall.
Oergwymp galanas, the sad lapse of slaughter compensation. It is an ancient law term, otherwise called Dynggoll cenedl, and Dynggolled cenedl.

Oergwymp galanas yw: pis laddo dyn ddyn arall, doddi oed dydd i wneudur hawn drosto, a'i ladd yntau o ddyn o genedi arall na dylio. Oergwymp galanas y geiwr hyn, rhag trymad ei goll ei, a gadaw y gydaian a wneudai ar ei genodi, a gorfod ei thaliu.

This is the dismal event of murder compensation: when a person kills another, appointing a day to make satisfaction for it, and he being killed by a person of another family, to whom he owes nothing. It is called the dismal event of murder, by reason of the grievousness of losing him, and leaving the weight of the heinous deed, committed by him, upon his family, and being obliged to make amends for it. Welsh Laws.

Oeri, v. a. (oer) To make cold, to cool; to become cold; to grow cool.

*Gwne chwser deg, o chwsered oedd,
 Gan hiraeth, gwn, a'i hoerodd!*

It is woeful to the fair sister, so bitter was it, through regret, which I know, did make her cold! Ed. Dafydd.

Oeriad, s. m. (oer) A cooling, or a chilling.
Oerlain, v. a. (oer) To keep cooling; to seek cooling shades; to cool liquids by pouring from one vessel to another.

Oerlais, s. m.—pl. oerleisian (oer—llais) A cold voice, a repulsive or grating voice.

Oerlef, s. m. (oer—llef) A dismal moan.

Oerlefain, v. a. (oerlef) To moan dismally.

Oerleisiad, s. m. (oerlais) A shrieking dismally.

Oerleisiaw, v. a. (oerlais) To shriek dismally.

Oerilyd, a. (oer) Of a cold quality; chilly.

Oerilydrwydd, s. m. (oerilyd) Frigidness.

Oernad, s. f.—pl. t. au (oer—nad) A dismal howl, a lamentable or doleful cry.

Oernadn, v. a. (oernad) To howl dolefully.

Oerni, s. m. (oer) Coldness, chillness; cold weather.

Oersych, a. (oer—sych) Being cold and dry.

Oerwaedd, s. f. (oer—gwaedd) A dismal cry.

Oerwedd, s. f. (oer—gwaedd) A chilling aspect.
 a. Of a chilling aspect.

Oerweiddi, v. a. (oerwaedd) To cry dismally.

Oerwern, s. f. (oer—gwern) A cold slough; a bar-dic epithet for the seat of lowest existence; and, under the christian system, often used for hell.

*Rhag oerwern gethern uffern affau,
 Affen anoddeu, lle anoddyn,
 Lleu n, Dafydd hucydd hyn:
 Llauer a wna Daw er dynoladn!*

From the fends of the cold slough of the hell of uproar, the insuperable hold, the place profound, assign me a station, thou Creator comprehending eternity: Much doth God do for mankind! Elidr Sais.

Oerwylb, a. (oer—gwylb) Being cold and wet.

Oerwr, s. m.—pl. oerwyr (oer—gwr) A cold man.

Oerwynt, s. m. (oer—gwynt) A chilling wind.

Oeryn, s. m. dim. (oer) A cold person.

Oes, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (o—es) A period of time; a duration of life, an age; life. Er cyn yr oesoedd, from before the ages, from eternity; oes oesoedd, pyth bythoedd, age of ages, world of worlds.

Hwchedd oes oes less, a hyd frawd y para.

The sixth age the age of Jesus, and till judgement it will last. Taliesin.

*Daw! y sydd dawy oes beddyw;
 Un fry fyth, na fer i fyw.*

God! there are two existences this day; one above for ever, one short to live. T. Ald.

Oes, adv. (o—es) There is; is there. A oes neb yn y ty? Is there any body in the house? Oes, there is.

Nid oes cywilydd rhag godd.

There is no shame against affliction. Adagr.

Nid oes neb heb ei fal.

There is not any body without his fault. Adagr.

Oesawg, a. (oes) Aged, in years, olden.

Oesawi, a. (oes) Relating to a period of existence.

Y brynau oeswi a grymanat.

The everlasting hills did bow down. Hebarns Rh. a.

Oesbarth, s. m. (oes—parth) A period of existence.

Oesbell, a. (oes—pell) Of extended existence.

Oesbell gariad, long existing love.

Oesboen, s. m. (oes—poen) The pain of life. a. Life-tormenting.

—Oesboen ddagrau rwy Rhyddyg llw fy agrediaid!

Excess of life-tormenting tears takes away the colour of my cheek! Buddyn Fawdd.

Oesbraff, a. (oes—praff) Of ample existence.

Oesdaith, s. f. (oes—taith) A course of life.

Menawd molaidd gwaidd gne tñn wadddeg

Manar wigg leasr afar ogy.

Mill a'i mawr, heb dawl, diroddd chwag fynydd,

Mawr-dawn ganynddaith oesdaith ogy.

Impressive be the praise of her whose skin is of the hue of the hoarse-sounding wave, the nymph of the azure vent of penative mind. A thousand praise her, without ceasing, in sweet comprehensive speech unstinted, a greatly gifted society of a life of study. Cassidy.

Oesdlawd, a. (oes—tlawd) Of necessitous life.

Oesdrais, s. m. (oes—trais) Oppression of life.

a. Life-oppressing.

Oesdraul, s. f. (oes—traul) The consumption of life. a. Life-consuming.

Oesdrawd, s. m. (oes—trawd) A course of life.

Oesdru, s. m. (oes—tru) Misery of life.

Oesdrwch, s. m. (oes—trwch) A cutting off life.

a. Life-breaking; life-destroying.

*P'y fudd cerdd niwch, oesdrwch estraw;
 P'y fudd oed wallaw fai Cadwallaw.*

Who will be the theme of song, the life destruction of strangers who will be scattering gifts like Cadwallaw. Cynddel.

Oesdrwydden, s. f. (oes—trwydd) The hornbeam.

Oesfoddawg, a. (oes—boddawg) Having respect to life; leading a contented life.

Ni bydd penododd y mab gwedy ei dad yn nannf lldd, cwy oesfoddawg y penododd.

The son shall not be the patron of the family after his father's succession, for a headship of family is during life. Welsh Laws.

Oesfriw, s. m. (oes—briw) A lapse of life.

*Gorllethetall elias o'i oesfriw oedru;
 O'i angus anghlaur.*

I have harboured regret from his brittle-shielded lapse of life: from his melancholy death. Cassidy.

Oesfyr, a. (oes—byr) Of short life, shortlived.

Oesfyr dy alon, seafwri Fawdd.

Shortlived thy love, Marredodd with the battered shield. L. P. Mch.

Oesgaeth, a. (oes—caeth) Leading a captive life.

Oesgawdd, a. (oes—cawdd) Of a vexatious life.

*Bro amawdd, oesgawdd, oesgawdd ei gwydd
 Ei gynnal nid hawdd-waith.*

The protection of the country, of vexatious existence the continued life of his opponent: to support him in no easy work. Cynddel, 1 O. 2d. Mch.

Oesgur, s. m. (oes—cur) The throb of life, the anguish of life. a. Life-afflicting.

Oesgwyn, s. f. (oes—cwyn) The complaint of life. a. Complaining of life.

Oesi, v. n. (oes) To pass through life, to live; to give life. Hid Duw i'w oesi, be God to grant him life.

*T'wys, er d'ow, at oed
 Gwirion fodd.—*

Conduct, for the sake of thy name, towards existing in no uncertain way. W. Middleton.

Y gwr a'n rose i nos,
Gyw da deuth, a'n gŵd dŷ.

Thus that placed thee to erie preserve thee, thou black decreet bird. T. Prye, ŷr fupgichon.

Oesiad, s. m. (oes) A passing through life.
Oesran, s. f. (oes—rhan) An assigned portion of existence, a duration of life.

Oesred, s. f. (oes—rhed) A course of existence.
Oeswr, s. m.—pl. oeswyr (oes—gwr) One who passes through life; a liver.

A'm bad gannos yn oeswr.

And my being a liver during a hundred ages. T. Prye.

Oeth, s. m. (o—eth) That is intense, pungent or harsh. a. Intense, pungent, harsh.

Ac yn llys a'fawd ym aiddau:
Fy south oeth dyddadl, o dywyf rydd.

And in the hall of hospitality I shall be wished for: if asked I shall be harsh, if I shall be free. Gwaichmau.

Er mawr-gwmp Madawg, modur plymawd;
Am host cad, ced goeth, oeth yn aithryd!

For the mad fall of Madog, the leader of conflict; for the pillar of battle, of precious gift, severely have I been damaged! Gwaichmau.

Oethi, v. a. (oeth) To render intense, pungent, sharp, harsh, or severe.

OF, s. m. r. The elementary state of a thing;
an atomical state; atoms; particles, motes;
fine; that is uncombined or crude.

Of, s. (of, s.) Elementary, or in an uncombined state; crude; raw; frail, mouldering.

Hirwynn a Hirastron—gan elynt i west, add oedwyt na thew na themon, na thwym nac oer, na oer na chroew, nac l'r na halli, na l'wed nac of.

Long-nail and Long-trail, if they went on a visit, they would leave nor fat nor lean, nor cold nor hot, nor sour nor sweet, nor fresh nor salt, nor boiled nor raw. H. Cuthbert—Mabington.

Dyd of yr fudd:—

Dyd tost, maw'r ŷr bywyd dyn.

A fruit world for a hard; a cruel world, the life of man is short.
D. Erasmus.

Ofaid, a. (of) Elementary; of a crude or raw quality; frail; mouldering.

Melwud Daw molaŷ a'ŷ dywald;
Ac molaŷ, a'ŷw molaŷ ofaid,
Am ebery, am obrid fy llydd.

I will praise such as express the praise of God; and if I praise, I shall not praise the fruit, for a reward, for the satisfying of my society. Cynddelo.

Ofaid, a. (of) Of an elementary nature; of a crude or raw tendency; crumbling, mouldering.
Ofawd, s. m. (of) A reducing to an elementary state; a making crude, a mouldering.

Ofawg, a. (of) In an elementary state; having a crude or raw quality; crumbly.

Ofawl, a. (of) Elementary; of a crude nature, of a raw quality; mouldering.

Ofedd, s. m. (of) An elementary or atomical state;
rawness; a crumbling or mouldering state.

Ofen, a. (of—er) Waste, vain, useless, idle, frivolous. It is prefixed in composition.

Hyd tra fuch na ŷydd ofen.

As long as thou shalt exist be not useless. Adage.

Ofen, v. a. (ofer) To waste, to squander; to act vainly or idly; to pass time frivolously.

Oferchwedi, s. m.—pl. t. au (oferchwedi) A vain or empty report.

Oferdith, a. f.—pl. overdeithian (taith) A fruitless journey.

Oferdawd, s. m. (ofer) Vanity; frivolity.

Huffi o'r wael awen a gŵd bob overdawd.

Away with the object mere that seeks for every frivolity. Adage.

Oferdlws, s. m.—pl. overdlwsau (ofer—dlws) A vain toy, ornament, or jewel; a jewel merely ornamental.

VOL. II.

Y brawdwyr llyn a ddylly oferdylwsau, pan wrydder ei swydd iddo, add-sangen, i'w bwrdd o sargwra morrh i gan y brenin, a modwyr a'r i gan y frestwr, ac a'rall i gan y bardd i'w llyn; ac yr oferdylwsau hyn, al ddylly eff nac eu rhoddi nac eu gwerthu tra llydau byw.

The judge of the palace claims ornamental jewels, when his office is pledged to him; namely, a chessboard of the house of a sea-animal from the king, and a gold ring from the queen, and another from the domestic bard; and those ornamental jewels he ought neither to give, nor to sell whilst he lives. Welsh Laws.

Oferdraul, s. f. (traul) Useless expenditure.
Oferdrenliad, s. m. (overdraul) A using needlessly, a spending uselessly.

Overdreuliaw, v. a. (oferdraul) To use in vain.
Overdreuliwr, s. m.—pl. overdreuliwyr (oferdraul —gwr) One who wastes uselessly.

Oferdyb, s. f.—pl. t. iau (over—tyb) Idle conceit.

Oferdybiaw, v. a. (overdyb) To have idle notion.

Overddadl, s. f.—pl. t. au (dadl) A vain dispute.

Oferddadlu, v. (oferddadl) To dispute vainly.

Oferddawn, s. m.—pl. oferddonau (dawn) An useless talent, gift, or quality.

Oferddefawd, s. f. (defawd) An idle custom.

Oferddyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ofer—dyn) A vain idle person; a squanderer, or a dissipated man.

Oferedd, s. m. (ofer) Vanity, frivolity, idleness, worthlessness, dissipation.

Oferelw, s. m. (elw) Useless wealth or riches.

Oferelwa, v. a. (oferelw) To heap useless wealth.

Oferfardd, s. m.—pl. oferfardd (ofer—bardd)
A person who assumes the bardic order irregularly

Tri rhyw beirdd Ynys Prydain: prif-fardd er cys cred; a gwel cred beirdd baki, ac yr oferfardd.

The three distinctions of bards of the Isle of Britain: the primitive bards from before christianity; and after conversion the bards of verities, and the bards by assumption. Barddon.

Tri oferfardd Ynys Prydain: Arthur, Cadwallawn mab Cadfan, a Rhyawd all Morgant.

The three assumptive bards of the Isle of Britain: Arthur, Cad-wallawn son of Cadfan, and Rhyawd son of Morgant. Triodd.

Oferfawl, s. f. (mawl) Empty or vain praise.

Oferfoll, v. a. (oferfawl) To praise vainly.

Oferfost, s. f. (bost) An empty boasting.

Oferfostiaw, v. a. (oferfost) To boast vainly.

Oferfostiwr, s. m.—pl. oferfostwyr (oferfost—gwr) A vain boaster.

Oferfrait, s. m.—pl. oferfreintian (braint) An useless privilege.

Oferfudd, s. f. (budd) A vain or useless benefit.

Ofergadw, v. a. (cadw) To keep uselessly.

Ofergais, s. f. (cais) A vain attempt.

Ofergall, a. (call) Uselessly cunning.

Oferganlyn, v. (canlyn) To follow uselessly.

Oergaru, v. a. (caru) To love fruitlessly.

Ofergeisiaw, v. a. (ofergais) To make a vain attempt, to try uselessly.

Ofergoel, s. f.—pl. t. ion (coel) Vain belief.

Ofergoelaid, a. (ofergoel) Superstitious.

Ofergoelodd, s. m. (ofergoel) Superstitiousness.

Ofergoellad, s. m. (ofergoel) A vainly crediting.

Ofergoeliwr, s. m.—pl. ofergoeliwyr (ofergoel—gwr) A superstitious man.

Ofergoelus, a. (ofergoel) Superstitious.

Ofergred, s. f. (cred) Vain belief; superstition.

Ofergredn, v. n. (ofergred) To believe vainly.

Oferhela, s. m. (hela) Fruitless hunting.

Gwerth gellgi y brenin yn ei ofarhela chweuain.

The value of the king's back-bond in his training is six score pence. Welsh Laws.

Oferhela, v. a. (hela) To hunt fruitlessly.

Oferiaith, s. f. (iaith) Useless idle talk.

Oferieithus, a. (oferiaith) Full of idle talk.

Oferlaeth, s. m. (laeth) Useless or over milk.

Tri oferieth y ddŷ: llaeth cath, llaeth gast, a llaeth cawg, can ni ddwygŷr dim am danddyfalu.

There are three waste milks: the milk of a cat, and the milk of a bitch, and the milk of a mare; for no satisfaction is made for them. Welsh Laws.

Oferorchest, s. f.—pl. t. ion (gorchest) A vain exploit.

Oferorchwyl, s. f.—pl. t. ion (ofer—gorchwyl) A frivolous piece of business.

Oferwaith, s. m. (gwaith) Useless or vain work.

Oferwas, s. m.—pl. oferwelstion (gwas) A worthless chap.

Oferwawd, s. m. (gwawd) Empty praise.

Oferweithiaw, v. a. (oferwaith) To work vainly.

Oferwr, s. m.—pl. oferwyr (ofer—gwr) An useless idle man; an idler.

Gwas oferwr yn nghynant.

Wee to the idler during harvest.

Adage.

Oferymadrawd, s. m.—pl. oferymadroddion (ymadrawd) Vain discourse; fruitless discussion.

Tri oferymadrawd, a ddwyddir yn llyu, ac ni fynnat: gwad cyn deddfys, a llyu cyn amser, a chof a chyngaws wedi bwrh.

The three fruitless discussions, which are uttered in court, and which shall not avail: a denial before restoration, and objection before the time, and record and pleading after sentence.

Welsh Laws.

Oferymadrawd, v. a. (ymadrawd) To discourse vainly, to talk uselessly.

Oferymboeni, v. a. (ymboeni) To toil vainly.

Oferymgaib, s. m. (ymgaib) An idle attempt.

Oferymryson, s. m. (ymryson) Vain strife.

Oferymryson, v. a. (ymryson) To strive vainly.

Ofi, v. a. (of) To decompose; to become decomposed, to fall into an atomical state; to moulder, to crumble. Mae y gareg hon yn dechreu off, this stone is beginning to crumble.

Ofiad, s. m. (of) A reducing to an elementary state; a falling to atoms; a becoming crude; a mouldering, a decomposing.

Ofiannawl, a. (ofiant) Tending to decompose, tending to fall to atoms; mouldering.

Ofiannu, v. a. (ofiant) To reduce to an atomical state; to render friable.

Ofiannus, a. (ofiant) Relating to an elementary or atomical state.

Ofiannusaw, v. a. (ofiannus) To reduce to an elementary or atomical state.

Ofiannussedd, s. m. (ofiannus) An elementary or atomical state.

Ofiant, s. m. (of) A reducing to atoms.

Ofyd, a. (of) Apt to decompose, apt to fall to atoms; apt to moulder.

*Diflao ganddo dy ofyd
Eiriau, heb eu cwplian cyd.*

Disagreeing to him thy jumbled words, without their being connected together.

E. Egan, o Aberdwr.

Ofydded, s. m. (ofyd) A state of decomposition.

Ofydrwydd, s. m. (ofyd) A state of decomposition; a mouldering state; friableness.

Ofydu, v. n. (ofyd) To become decomposed; to crumble, to moulder.

Ofn, s. m.—pl. t. an (of—yn) Fear, or dread.

Gwell than ofn na rhan cariad.

Better the share of fear than the share of love.

Adage.

Ofnâd, s. m. (ofnâu) A terrifying, a frightening; intimidation; a becoming frightened.

Ofnadwy, a. (ofn) Terrible, frightful, awful.

Ofnâu, v. n. (ofn) To become fearful; to render fearful or awful.

Ofnawg, a. (ofn) Fearful, timorous, timid.

Ofnawl, a. (ofn) Tending to frighten.

Ofnedig, a. (ofn) Being made timid.

Ofnedd, s. m. (ofn) Fearfulness, timidity.

Ofni, v. n. (ofn) To fear, to dread, to be afraid; to frighten, to terrify, to put in fear.

Cala Delaw yn gar, ac nag ofna far.

Seek God for thy friend, and fear no ill.

Adage.

*A bed of law—
Ar gloddwr, er ei gloddwr,
At law y gwelw yd gwrdd,
Et o wna'r beith ofnâf bed.*

Should his head be on his sword, though he were buried, and his manly form laid down, the proud boaster would be no law for the grave.

L. G. Gidd.

Ofnâd, s. m. (ofn) A dreading, a fearing.

Ofnid, s. m. (ofn) Terror, dread, or fear.

*Llan terian penneth, a llyu anghaf,
Llan y pen ofnid yn llawn glaw.*

The figure of a chieftain's shield, and the figure of arrows, the figure, of a gorgon head full of pins.

L. G. Gidd, i bwyll gwyb.

Ofnocâu, a. (ofnawg) To stand in fear or awe.

Rhaid yw hwl frodyr, caru ddirgwrch parhau, ac ofnâd pen na ofnâd.

It is necessary for me, brethren, to love the hills of paradise, and fear the pains of hell.

Breuddwyd Penl. 100.

Ofnogi, v. n. (ofnawg) To become timid.

Ofnogrwydd, s. m. (ofnawg) Fearfulness.

Ofnu, v. a. (ofn) To fear; to frighten.

Ofnus, a. (ofn) Fearful, timorous.

Ofnusaw, v. n. (ofnawg) To become timid.

Ofnusedd, s. m. (ofnawg) Timorosity.

Ofnusrwydd, s. m. (ofnawg) Fearfulness.

Ofnwr, s. m.—pl. ofnwyr (ofn—gwr) One who dreads or fears.

Ofnu, a. (of) Atomical; being decomposed.

Ofnedd, s. m. (ofnawg) An atomical state.

Ofydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (of—ydd) One who is initiated into first principles or elements; a scientific person, a natural philosopher, a teacher of science, an artist; the name for a member of the scientific class, in the bardic system; an ovate. Cad ofydd, the regulator of battle; gal ofydd, the regulator of hostility, whose person was sacred.

*Bedd Gwrgi gwybydd—
A bedd Llaur, llw ofyd, Yn ngwraith Gwraeth.*

The grave of Gwrgi the hero, and the grave of Llaur, the regulator of the host, in the height of Gwraeth.

Engl. Bidden Myny.

*Hi yn wry, heb wld;
Hi yn hollaw red,
Yn rheg ofydd.*

She a virgin, without denial; she of perfect grace, the leader of the great artificer.

Gwasgell, i Par.

Od eich breif-fairdd ofydd o walth Dew ofydd, Dydwedw i'ch breithen beth fydd ei dringwydd.

If ye are primary bards of faith of the work of God the great artist, declare to your king what will be his masterpiece.

Taliesin, bawl i bawl.

Ofyddaid, a. (ofydd) Ovatic, scientific.

Ofyddawl, a. (ofydd) Relating to the functions of an ovate; scientific.

Ofydddeb, s. f. (ofydd) A discourse upon ovatism, a treatise upon science.

Ofyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (ofydd) A female member of the scientific class of bards.

Ofyddfardd, s. m.—pl. ofyddfeirdd (ofydd—bardd) A bard of science, a bard of arts, his office was analogous to that of a lay graduate now in the universities.

Ofyddiaeth, s. m. (ofydd) What is taught by an ovate, ovatism, philosophy.

Llaur o beth gwybyddu ydyw, ofyd yn namhorth i'w ofnawg—gwybyddu cerdd, a llyu anghaf, yn llyu anghaf.

Many contrary things, also, there are unfavourable to true philosophy—the frenzy of love, and the noise of philosophy leading sleep.

Llaur Brydded lly.

Ofyddiannawl, a. (ofyddiant) Belonging to ovatism, philosophical.

Ofyddiannu, v. a. (ofyddiant) To exercise ovatism; to philosophise.

Ofyddiant, s. m. (ofydd) Ovatism; philosophy.

Ofydd, v. a. (ofydd) To embrace avidly; to philosophise.

OFF, s. m. r.—pl. t. ion. That is essential or tending to a beginning.

Offeiriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (offer) A minister.

Offeiriad teulu, eiddo ddwyfod yw wastad ysgol yr hysbys, canys trydydd sylwgyr yd.

The domestic priest, he ought to be continually with the king, for he is the third indispensable one. Welsh Laws.

Offeiriadaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (offeiriad) A priesthood, the function of a priest.

Dydai eu heneiddiad iddynt yn offeiriadaeth trugwyddawol drwy eu cenedlaethau.

Their antiquity shall be to them for an everlasting priesthood through their generations. Exodus 40. 15.

Offeiriadaidd, a. (offeiriad) Of a clerical quality.

Offeiriadawl, a. (offeiriad) Belonging to a priest.

Offeiriadu, v. a. (offeiriad) To perform priestly functions, to minister as a priest.

Rannodd feithian Aaron, megys yr eiddoedd en Tud bwynt, i offeiriadu i mi.

Andst the children of Aaron, as thou hast anointed their father, so minister before me. Exodus 40. 15.

Offeiriadu, s. m.—pl. offeiriadu (offer) Ministration, the act of sacrificing.

*Meddys—
A ffaith offeiriadu, a'i hofferiadu,
A pharhadu offeiriadu.*

Meddys with its stately priest, and its sacrifice, and the ready mass of love. Cyddfodion.

Offeiriadydd, s. m. dim. (offeiriad) A bit of a priest, in cant language.

Offer, s. pl. offer. (off—er) That has power to effect; an instrument; implements; gear, traces, or harness.

*Gwell tyron, cymysgus awn;
Na thier offer na phrethar.*

Better to yoke on, exerting strength, than the breaking of gear or harness. Math. 23. Llywelyn Goch.

Offerawl, a. (offer) Instrumental, serving.

Offeren, s. f.—pl. t. au (offer) Instrumentality; the service of the church of Rome, the mass.

*Offeren parh yd ei galon.
Ewry body's religion for his heart.* Adage.

Offerena, v. a. (offeren) To do the duty of the church in general; to celebrate mass.

Offerenawl, a. (offeren) Belonging to divine service; belonging to the mass.

Offerendor, s. f. (offeren—tor) The vestment worn at mass; a cope.

Offereniad, s. m. (offeren) A performing of divine service; a saying mass.

Offerennu, v. a. (offeren) To perform divine service; to say mass.

Or gwnai gwyrys newn talpudol gan gantio y breudd, a'i had yn gorffennu, os offeiriad yn offerenau yddi, rhydd fydd y dref hono o hyng arian.

If a church shall be built in a village down, with the permission of the king, and it should be a place of interment, and a priest doing duty in it, that town shall be free from that time forward. Welsh Laws.

Offerenwr, s. m.—pl. offerenywr (offeren—gwr)

One who celebrates mass, a mass-priest.

Offerenwig, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (offeren—gwig) A vestment worn in celebrating mass.

Offeriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (offer) An acting as an instrument; a becoming an agent.

Offeriannawl, a. (offeriant) Instrumental.

Offerianniad, s. m. (offeriant) A rendering instrumental; a becoming instrumental.

Offeriannus, v. a. (offeriant) To be instrumental.

Offeriannus, a. (offeriant) Instrumental.

Offeriaid, s. m. (offer) Instrumentality.

Offeru, v. a. (offer) To provide implements or tools; to equip; to furnish with gear or harness

Offerwr, s. m.—pl. offerwywr (offer—gwr) One who equips or furnishes.

Offeryn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (offer) An instrument, or agent; a tool.

Off-ryn gwasdawol yn llaw pob dyn yw ei ddawl, ar hysbys idd oes heb y wyr ei offer yn iawn.

A tool which is continually in the hand of every person is his understanding, and yet no one knows how to use it rightly. Adage.

Offerynawl, a. (offeryn) Instrumental, agent.

Offerynoldeb, s. m. (offerynawl) Instrumentality.

Offerynn, v. a. (offeryn) To act as an instrument; to be instrumental.

Offr, s. m. (off) That has the power to effect.

Offrwm, s. m.—pl. offrwm (offr) An offering.

Offrwm, v. a. (offr) To offer, or to sacrifice.

Offrymawl, a. (offrwm) Offering up, sacrificial.

Offrymiad, s. m. (offrwm) The act of offering.

Offrymu, v. a. (offrwm) To offer, or to sacrifice.

Offrymwr, s. m.—pl. offrymwywr (offrwm—gwr) One who offers up, a sacrificer.

Offrymydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (offrwm) One who offers up, a sacrificer.

OG, s. f. r.—pl. t. au. That is full of motion; that is apt to open or expand; that is full of life, youth; that moves or stirs; a harrow.

Tra rhoi yr og rhedat y freuan.

Whilst the harrow moves let the mill move. Adage.

Mai y llyfau dan yrog.

Like the frog under the harrow. Adage.

Og, a. (og, s.) Having aptitude for motion; apt to move or stir; apt to open or expand; young, youthful.

*A'm gyrrys yn nghrog,
A wyddws yn og.*

That sent me to the crows, I knew when young. Taliator, arwr dyddbreudd.

Ogaid, s. f. (og) A stroke of the harrow.

Ogan, s. f. dim. (og) A little harrow.

*Cael a wasathu beith arlan,
A phrynu arlan ac ogan.*

I obtained some money and bought me a plough and a harrow. S. Tudor.

Oged, s. f.—pl. t. au (og) That stirs or opens; a harrow.

Ogedig, a. (oged) Being stirred or harrowed.

Ogedu, v. a. (oged) To stir; to use a harrow.

Ogfaen, s. f.—pl. ogfaen (og—maen) Hip, or the fruit of the dog-rose. It is also called crawel y moch, bwyd y moch.

Mai y llywogwyr yn ogfaen.

Like the fox after the dog. Adage.

Ogfaenawg, a. (ogfaen) Abounding with hips.

Ogfaenen, s. f. (ogfaen) A single hip.

Ogfaenen yn agosau hen-wch.

A hip in the mouth of an old sow. Adage.

Ogfaenllw, s. m. (ogfaen—llw) The colour of hips. a. Of the colour of the hip.

Ogfaenllwyn, s. m.—pl. t. i (ogfaen—llwyn) A bush of dog-rose thorns.

Ogi, v. a. (og) To use the harrow, to harrow. Llyfnu, to smooth, is popularly used.

Ogiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (og) A harrowing.

Ogiadwr, s. m. (ogiad—gwr) A harrower.

Ogi, s. m. (og) That is full of motion or life; expansion; growth. a. Full of motion or life; expanding, growing; youthful.

*Heddyw, dydd da ff! horeddi'n
Ffyn ogi a gorff, ffynwgi gwyn.*

This morning, good day to thee! stout build, of slender growth in body, and white neck. Sir Huw Rhobert.

Ogled, s. m. (ogi) Fullness of activity or motion

Ognaw, s. m. (og—naw) Activity, earnestness.
 Ogof, s. f.—pl. t. au (og—of) A cave; a den.
 Ogofawg, a. (ogof) Abounding with caves.
 Ohan, pronem. prep. (o—han) Out of, from out of.
Ohanof, out of me, of me; ohanot, out of thee; ohani, out of her; ohano, out of him or it; ohanom, out of us; ohanoch, out of you; ohanynt, out of them.
 Ohon, pronem. prep. (o—hon) Out of, from out of, from.
Ohonof, out of me; ohonot, of thee; ohono, of him or it; ohoni, of her; ohonom, out of us; ohonoch, of you; ohonynt, of them.
 Oi, v. a. (aw) To proceed to; to come forward.
 Oi, interj. (oi, v.) Expressive of applause. Well.

Oi, was da; canys buost yn fyddiawn yn ychydigyn, cymer feddiantar ddeg dinas.

Well, thou good servant; as thou hast been faithful in a very little, be thou ruler over ten cities. W. Salisbury, Luke 19.

Gyr y gwartheg o'r egin;
 Oi! Oi! tro y llai o'r llin.

Drive the cattle out of the corn; Come! Come! drive the calves out of the flax. D. ab Gwilym.

O'i, prep. and pron. (o—ei) Out of or from the third person; from its, from his, from her.

Drug pawb o'i wybod.

Every one is bad from his being known.

Adage.

Gwell gwr o'i bercht.

A man is better from his being respected.

Adage.

Ni cheiff chwedl nidd ei o'i dy.

He will get no news who does not go out of his house.

Adage.

Oiad, s. m. (oi) A listening, or hearkening.

Oian, s. m. (oi) A listening, a hearkening.

Oiane, parchetan! y parchell gwyn gwyn,
 Na chysgi hun for;
 Na chliodd yn mhryce, rhag dawed
 Rhydderch! Haei a'i gwa cyfwrta;
 Gwa rhael ohonoti y coed
 Rhedodd dy chwy.

Listen, little porkling! thou forward little white pig, that thou dost not sleep a morning nap: do not burrow on the open ridge, lest Rhydderch the generous should come with his cunning dogs: As thou hast been able to get to the woods, thy sweat has trickled.

Oianu, v. a. (oian) To hearken, or to listen.

Oiaw, v. a. (oi) To hark, to listen, to attend.

Gwrandaw is the expression popularly used.

Oia di yr Argiwydd dy Ddau.

Hear thou the Lord thy God.

Mabynog I.

Aeth elw dros frig with aelwyd;
 Oia, sygan odu, mas o'd wyd.

Embers have become spread over eight hearths; hark, sable sleep, be to me. D. ab Gwilym, Pr amkunoedd.

Oio, interj. (oi) Oh! dear! well! alack!

OL, s. m. r.—pl. t. ion. A mark, trace, or impression; a track, course, or path; a footstep; what is in course, the future and the past; the rear, the hinder part. Mae arnaf ei ol, I bear his marks; ol bwyall, the mark of a hatchet; ol troed, the print of a foot; Mae yr amser gorau yn ol eto, the best time is yet in course (to come); pa un sydd ar ol? What one is on the rear? or, what one is behind? Blaen ac ol, foremost and hindmost; bod yn ol, to be wanting; troi yn ol, to turn back; rhoi yn ol, to give back; ar ol bod yno, after being there; yn ol, according to; yr amser yn ol, the time hereafter; mynd ar ol, to go after.

Eidd bryd yn ol breuddwyd.

Let the mind go after the dream.

Adage.

Ol, a. (ol, s.) Hindmost. Y pen ol, the posterior

Olaf, adv. (ol) Farthest back, hindmost, last. s. m. The last, the hindmost.

Gada y noe waethaf yn ol.

To leave the worst night till last.

Adage.

Olafedd, s. m. (olaf) Posteriority, ultimity.

Olafiad, s. m.—pl. olafiad (olaf) A successor.

Olafiaeth, s. m. (olaf) A successorship.

Olbrain, s. m. (ol—brain) Wart-cress, wine-cress.

Olbre, s. f.—pl. t. on (ol—pre) The thumb on the end of a web; also called eddi.

Olddyddiad, s. m. (dyddiad) An after-dating.

Olddyddlaw, v. a. (ol—dyddlaw) To post date.

Ole, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ol) A ribble; a ravine, such as is formed by the current of waters.

Cyfarfod, yn yr ole fwyn,
 A wnae a loden.

A meeting, in the pleasant dingle, I had with a maid.

Morgan Gwynedd.

Olew, s. m.—pl. t. on (ol—ew) Oil. Dodi olew, to administer extreme unction.

Olewwydd, s. pl. aggr. (olew—gwydd) Olive trees

Olewwydden, s. f. (olewwydd) An olive tree.

Oli, v. a. (bl) To proceed lastly; to be last.

Oliad, s. m.—pl. oliad (ol) That is in course, or consequent; posterity; the hindmost. Blaen-iaid ac oliad, leaders and followers; cael oliad ar beth, to get a scent of a thing.

Oliannawl, a. (oliant) Successive; tracing.

Oliannu, v. a. (oliant) To form a track; to come in succession.

Oliant, s. m. (ol) Succession; a tracing.

Oliedydd, s. m. (oliad) A pricker, in hunting.

Olion, s. pl. aggr. (ol) Things left behind, leavings, refuse.

Oliwr, s. m.—pl. oliwyr (ol—gwr) A pricker.

Olp, s. m. (ol) A puncture; an oillet-hole.

Oipai, s. m. (olp) A tag put into an oillet-hole.

Olrhain, s. m. (ol—rhain) A searching after.

Olrhainu, v. a. (ol—rhain) To follow by the trace; to trace, to search out, to seek by the print of the feet; to search carefully.

Gwell cadw nog olrhain.

Better to keep than to search after.

Adage.

Olrhe, s. m. (rhe) A following a track.

Olrhëad, s. m.—pl. olrhëaid (olrhe) A beagle.

Olrhëain, v. a. (olrhe) To trace after, to indagate

Am ael rhw i'm olrhëwyd.

About the brow of the hill I have been traced. O. ab Ll. Rhod.

Olrhëawd, s. m. (olrhe) A scrutiny, a tracing out

Olrhëawl, a. (olrhe) Scrutinizing, searching.

Olrheiniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (olrhain) Indagation.

Olrheiniadu, v. a. (olrhëiniad) To indagate.

Olrheiniadwy, a. (olrhëiniad) Scrutable.

Olrheiniaw, v. a. (olrhain) To indagate, to search out, to investigate, to scrutinize.

Olrheiniedig, a. (olrhëiniad) Being traced out.

Olrheiniedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (olrhëiniad) An indagator, a scrutinizer, a tracer.

Olrheiniwr, s. m.—pl. olrhëiniwyr (olrhain—gwr)

A scrutinizer, a finder out.

Olrhëwr, s. m.—pl. olrhëwyr (olrhe—gwr) A diligent seeker, a scrutinizer.

Oiw, s. m. (bl) That makes track, or mark.

Oiwen, s. f. (bl—gwen) Of a white or fair track; the Venus of the Britons, or a poetical personage, representing the prolific principle of nature.

Four white trefoils sprang up wherever she trod.

Oiwr, s. m.—pl. oiwyr (ol—gwr) One who is last;

a follower; a tracer.

Oiwydd, s. m. (ol—gwydd) Knowledge by acant.

Oiwyn, s. f.—pl. t. ion (olw) What moves or turns to form a track; a wheel. Olewyn awr, the beam of a sledge or drag.

Pen a lloeth in my hand,
Ondd sugwyd ar ol wlad, ond olwyn yn aghed.

A hand I bear by the side of my thigh, that was a shield over his country, that was a wheel in battle. Llywarch Hen.

- Olwyn, s. (ol-gwyn) Having a white track.
Olwyned, s. m. (olwyn) A moving in a track; a wheeling, a forming a wheel.
Olwynaw, v. s. (olwyn) To move in a track; to wheel, to form a wheel.
Olwynawg, s. (olwyn) Having wheels, wheeled.
Olymadrawd, s. m.—pl. olymadroddion (ymadrawd) An after-discourse; an epilogue.
Olynol, adv. (ol-yn-ol) In succession, one after another.

Disystris, Nythw'r llaith olynol
Moll olynol f'ensid.

Destroy, send to the dust one after another all the enemies of my soul. H. D. ab Iffan, ps. 143.

- Olysgrif, s. f.—pl. t. ion (ysgrif) A postscript.
Olysgriften, s. f. (olysgrif) A postscript.
OLL, s. m. r. That is separate, distinct, or complete in itself; a whole, or all.
Oil, s. (oil, s.) All, the whole of, every one.

Gores oil y gores a ellir.

The best of all is what is possible.

Adage.

- Ollallu, s. m. (gallu) All-power, omnipotence.
Ollalluawg, s. (ellallu) Almighty, omnipotent.
Ollalluedd, s. m. (ollallu) Almightyness.
Ollallueddus, s. (ollallu) Omnipotential.
Ollalluogi, v. s. (ollalluawg) To render omnipotent, to become omnipotent.
Ollalluogrwydd, s. m. (ollalluawg) Almightyness.
Ollarfawg, s. (arfawg) Completely armed.
Ollarfawth, s. m. (ollarfawg) A panoply.
Olldifawwl, s. (difawwl) All-consuming.
Olldigonawl, s. (digonawl) All-sufficient.
Ollddoeth, s. (doeth) All-wise, all-knowing.
Ollgyfoeth, s. m. (cyfoeth) All-power.
Ollgyfoethawg, s. (ollgyfoeth) All-powerful.
Olli, v. s. (oll) To render distinct or complete in itself; to make up a whole or all.
Ollinach, s. m. (ollinach) An universal remedy; the herb all-heal. a. Perfectly well.
Ollid, s. m. (oll) An entirety, or a whole.
Ollnawdd, s. m. (nawdd) Complete protection.
Ollnerth, s. m. (oll—nerth) All of power.
Ollnerthawg, s. (ollnerth) Omnipotent.

Mollnawf—

Yn ei wyrthiau ollnerthawg.

I will praise him in his mighty wonders. W. Middleton.

- Ollnerthedd, s. m. (ollnerth) Omnipotence.
Ollnoddawg, s. (ollnawdd) All-protecting.
Ollnoddawl, s. (ollnawdd) All-protecting.
Ollorfod, s. m. (gorfod) Universal conquest.
Ollorfodawg, s. (ollorfod) All-conquering.
Ollrad, s. m. (oll—rhad) All of grace.
Ollradawg, s. (ollrad) All-gracious.
Ollryw, s. (rhyw) Omnigenious, of all kinds.
Ollsylvad, s. m. (sylvad) Omnipercipency.
Ollsylviad, s. m. (sylvad) Omnipercipency.
Ollus, s. (oll) Of a whole or entire form.
Ollwedd, s. f. (gwedd) A whole appearance. a. Every way, all manner.

Bed yn uddf, dodd f y Don,
Cof ollwedd, f'eb cyffidol.

To be humble, after the maxim of Don, remembering always,
to your friends. Wel. ab Hywel.

- Ollweddawg, s. (ollwedd) Omniform, of all forms.
Ollwel, s. (gwei) All-seeing, seeing all things.
Ollwneuthurawl, s. (gwneuthurawl) Omnific.
Ollwybod, s. m. (gwybod) Omniscience.
Ollwybodawg, s. (ollwybod) Omniscious.

- Ollwybodawl, s. (ollwybod) Omniscient.
Ollwybodus, s. (ollwybod) Omniscious.
Ollwydd, s. m. (gwydd) Omnipresence, ubiquity.
Ollysawl, s. (oll—ysawl) All-consuming.
Om, s. m. r. That stretches round, extends over, or includes; that bulges or swells out.
O'm, pronem. prep. (o—ym) Out of my, from my.
O'm pen, out of my head.
ON, s. f. r. That rises up; that is over superior, or beyond; that is in continuity; also an ash. It is also a plural termination.
O'n, pronem. prep. (o—yn) Out or from our.
Onaddu, pronem. prep. (o—yn—addu) Of them.

Peidwar mab ar aglaid a'm by—
Ondd Gwen gorres gwy onaddu.

Four and twenty sons there were to me: Gwen was the best man of them. Llywarch Hen.

Ni chefale—

Onaddu yn ar erioed.

I obtained not of them ever a single one. D. ab Gwilym.

- Onaddynt, pronem. prep. (onaddu) Of them.
Onaidd, a. (on) Like the ash, ash-like, ashen.
Onawl, s. (on) Belonging to the ash.
Onc, s. m.—pl. t. od (on) That stretches out, or that is headlong; an oak. Rada.
Onco, pron. (onc) That, speaking of what is near or under observation. Dyrol tmi onco, give me that; a fyny di onco? Wilt thou have that. Dyfed.
Onco, adv. (onc) There, or in that place.
Ond, conj. (on) But, only, except, save. Ond oddid, nid hwyrrach, peradventure; dim ond hwyrr, no more than that! ond gwell iti beidiaw, but thou hadst better to be quiet.

Nid derwydd eithr a enwad;
Nid derwydd ond Daw.

Only a druid from appellation; for there is no druid but God. Adage.

Ni bu Arthur ond tra fu.

Arthur was not but whilst he was.

Adage.

- Onen, s. f. dim. (on) An ash, an ash tree; also by metonymy, a spear. Onen wyllt, a wild ash: Rhyrd rudd ei onen, Rlyrd with his crimson spear.
Oni, conj. (o—ni) If not, unless, except. It is used before words with consonant initials.
Oni ddoi, if thou dost not come; on'm gweli, if thou dost not see me.

Oni dyddi cyfarwydd cyfreh.

If thou art not acquainted enquire. Adage.

- Oni, adv. (o—ni) Until, to the time that; be not; will not. Oni ddoi di yno? Wilt thou not come there? Oni weli di f? Dost thou not see me?

Ni cheidw Cymro oni goilo.

A Welshman will not keep until he loses.

Adage.

- Onid, conj. (o—nid) If not, unless, except. It precedes words with vowel initials. Onid eiff hi, arosed; if she will not go, let her stay; onid e, if not so.

- Onid, adv. (o—nid) Until, to the time that; be not; will not. Onid wyf yma? am I not here? Onid elo hi yno, until she goes there.

- Onide, conj. (onid—e) Otherwise, else, or.

Rhaid i weithdau—fod yn gadarn yn y gwirionedd, onide ni wneir ag of ond collawg gwyni.

It is necessary for a minister to be firm in the truth, otherwise nothing will be made of him but a weathercock. Ter. Owen.

- Onide, adv. (onid—e) If not so; if not that, otherwise; is it not so? how otherwise? Onide yn wir? is it not so indeed?

- Onis, conj. (o—nis) If not, unless. It is used before words with consonant initials, preserving such as are mutable in their radical state. Onis teli, if thou dost not pay.

Onis, adv. (o-mis) Until, to the time that; be not; will not. Onis delom, until we come.
Onite, conj. (onide) Otherwise, else, or, if not.
Onite, adv. (onide) If not so, if not that, or else, otherwise; is it not so? how otherwise?
Onwaew, s. f. (on-gwaew) An ashen spear.
Onwydd, s. pl. aggr. (on-gwydd) Ash trees.
Onwydden, s. f. dim. (onwydd) An ash tree.
Onynt, pronem. prep. (on-ynt) Of them.

*Lia delon', wethlon bald, pawb aysat,
 Fy dyng o'r dowy-bald,
 Tria gweria cethis y caid.*

Where they should come, the outcast rabble, every one of them, of whichever of the two parties, irritably they would be found to oppress the multitude. H. D. ab Iwan.

Ong, s. f. (on) A point of divergency.
Ongl, s. f.—pl. t. an (ong) A corner, an angle.
Yr ongl, the haw, a disorder in the eye so called.
Onglaidd, a. (ongl) Angular, angle-wise.
Onglawg, a. (ongl) Having angles, angular.
Ongli, v. a. (ongl) To make an angle; to make angular; to form a corner.
Ongliad, s. m. (ongl) A forming an angle.
Ongyr, s. f. aggr. (ou-gyr) A brunt or push of spears; an aggregate or throng of spears.

Tri cryt ongyr aherddawl.

Three eagles of the vehement throng of spears. Ll. P. Mech.

*Aherddrud, aeth egedd wrth aeryll ongyr,
 Eryr rhodd bytyr mewn rhyddd bebyll.*

Bold in slaughter, the swift one went with the gleaming of the throng of spears, the eagle of magnificent gift in the moving tent. Erydded Brynon.

OR, s. f. r.—pl. t. oedd. That is outward, extreme, or bordering; a limit, a boundary; a coast, margin, brim, or edge.

Oedd—

Tres rhag llew, rhag llyw pedair or.

There was a pressure before the lion, before the ruler of four borders. Cyndddu.

Or, conj. (o-yr) If; but not so generally used as o, ed, and as. Or bydd, if there shall be.
O'r, prep. and art. (o-yr) Out of the, from the.

Gwenfharth deo-ddrog o'r an.

Making two eyes of the one. Adage.

Oraw, v. a. (or) To utter, to send outward.
Orch, s. f. (or) That is an extreme; a rim; a limit, or border.
Ori, v. a. (awr) To make pauses; to breath at long intervals; to utter, to send out, to puff.
Oriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (awr) A puffing, a panting.
Oriadur, s. m. (oriad) What measures the hour; a watch.

Oriadur yn gofyn ei ddwrn i ffrwydd bob dydd yw modwl.

The mind of man is like a watch, which requires to be wound up every day. Dafydd y Nant.

Oriath, v. a. (awr) To puff out, to pant for breath.
Maly byddai hi yn oriain ac yn methu cael ei gwynt! how she used to be panting and failing to draw her breath.

Orian, s. f.—pl. t. au (awr) An utterance; a panting, or a puffing.

Oe cywair fy nghadair—

Ys gwyr Manawydd; a Phryderi,

Tair orian, i am dan, a gae rhagddi:

Ac am ei bennu ffrwyddau gweith;

A'r ffrwyddau ffrwyddau ywdd o'dochdi;

Ys cwmegach na'r gwia gwyn y llyn ydd.

If my chair is to order, it is known to Manawydd; and Phryderi, three utterances, around the fire, will be slow before it; and about its bowls the streams of the torrent, and the fruitful spring is above it; more delicious than the white wine the liquor is it. Taliesin.

Orian, a. pl. aggr. (awr) Hours; periods; fits.
Dyn a rhyw orian drug arno, a person with some bad fits upon him.

Oriawg, a. (awr) Having periods, changes, or fits; fickle, inconstant, changeable.

Oriawl, a. (awr) Belonging to the hour, horary.

Oriawr, s. f.—pl. oriorau (awr) A watch.

Oriel, s. m.—pl. t. au (or) A porch; a gallery.

Orig, s. f. dim. (awr) A short hour, a little while.
adv. Now. Awr ac orig, continually. SH.

Oer yu'r lona—

By orig yn Nremanan.

Severe to the pang, which is now in Dremman. A. Tigh.

Origyn, s. m. dim. (orig) A short space.

Oriogl, v. a. (oriawg) To become capricious.

Oriogrwydd, s. m. (oriawg) Capriciousness.

Oriais, s. m.—pl. orleislan (awr—llais) A clock.

Orieisawr, s. m. (oriais—gwr) A clockmaker.

Orieisfydd, s. m.—pl. t. lon (oriais) A clockmaker.

Orn, s. m.—pl. t. au (or) A start, a push, a fiver, a threat, a challenge, a stray.

Ornald, a. (orn) Tending to push out; apt to start; threatening.

Ornair, s. m.—pl. orneirian (orn—gair) A word of challenge or threat.

Gillale i'm corn gae ornair;

Cael ygwyrdd, collis y gair.

I receded into my shell at the threatening word, getting a push, I concealed the expression. L. ab Gwyn.

Ornawl, a. (orn) Repulsive; starting; threatening, challenging.

Ornedig, a. (orn) Threatened, challenged.

Ornedigaeth, s. m. (ornedig) A starting, a threatening, a challenging.

Ornedd, s. m. (orn) A starting; a threatening state, a challenge.

Maboneth arfellieth waredd,

Mab Brochwyl, bronbet, hawl ornedd.

A picture of mildness the infancy of the one of Brochwyl, generous breast, with earnest for chains. Cyndddu, I Dydd.

Ornest, s. f.—pl. t. an (orn) A tilting match, or tournament; a single combat, a duel.

Ni ffrwydd ornest ar wr ond be st oed; ac o ddrwg bethu ddi cyfrith lido ornest.

A man shall not be judged liable to a combat until he shall be 21 years of age; and from three and twenty onward he is to be for him to combat. Wdd Llan.

Ornestfa, s. f.—pl. t. on (ornest) A place of combat, a place for tournament.

Ornestiad, s. m. (ornest) The engaging in a tilting match; a fighting in single combat.

Ornestiaeth, s. m. (ornest) The practice of tournaments; the practice of single combat.

Ornestle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ornest—lle) A tiltyard, a place for tournaments.

Ornestu, v. a. (ornest) To engage in a tournament; to fight a single combat, to fight a duel.

Ornestwr, s. m.—pl. ornestwyr (ornest—gwr) One who engages in tournaments; a combatant.

Ornestydd, s. m.—pl. t. lon (ornest) Combatant.

Ornfoedd, s. f. (orn—bloedd) A shoot of threat.

Ornfoeddiad, s. m. (ornfoedd) A shooting in a threatening manner.

Ornfoeddiaw, v. a. (ornfoedd) To shoot threateningly; a shout of defiance.

Orngri, s. f. (orn—cri) A threatening cry.

Orngriad, s. m. (orngri) A making a cry of threatening, or of defiance.

Orngriaw, v. a. (orngri) To cry threateningly.

Ornl, v. a. (orn) To push out, or forward; to start, to threaten, to challenge.

Orniad, s. m.—pl. t. an (orn) A pushing out, a starting, a threatening, a challenging.

Ornu, v. a. (orn) To push out or forward, to start, to threaten, to intimidate, to challenge.

*Gwynn afon—
A'i dryddia (ai) thuan Taf,
Ornuo, yn curu arnaf.*

A pale river, with its torrents like the waves of Taf, beating upon me, I started with fear. D. ab Gwilym.
Ornuwr, s. m.—pl. ornuwyr (orn—gwr) One who pushes or starts out; a starter, a threatener.
Ornydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (orn) A starter, a threatener, one who intimidates.
Oröi, v. a. (oraw) To utter, to be uttering.
Oroian, s. f. (oröi) An exclamation, an expression of joy; jubilation, iö pëan.

*Hleuk, fili sechne,
El chled ys Ngrwydded schlan.*

I have spread, as a song of triumph, her fame entirely over Gwynedd. Lk. ab Gwilym, i Forydd.

Oroian, v. a. (oröi) To utter a shout of triumph.
OS, s. m. r. That tends from, out, or forward; that tends to increase; an increment. It is also a diminutive termination affixed to plural nouns, mostly used in tender language; as plant, children; plantos, dear little children.

Os, conj. (o—ys) If; used in common with o, edd, ed, and or, with verbs of the indicative mode. Os doi yma, if thou wilt come here. See PE.

Os pwyll caswyll rhag gwynn, Goren caswyll yw pwyll pen.

If woe is a lamp to guard against contention, the best lamp is common sense. Rhon Cer Llwyd.

Osai, s. m. (awa) A sweet juice; cyder.

Rhyw—dried, mewn mall arisai, o cawl wedy of glawar ar dri o fwyar rhoddwr.

I would have for drink, in a silver basin, cyder after it has been warmed on three ruddy-glowing embers. Arwel Gwynn.

*Pe bai gan mli, yn ddilys,
O eryd rhyf ar dir Rhye;
A chysleu gwylan a gwia;
Ac yn mla gan mliu;
Pe bai'r ddolwr yn fira i
Nen fawr ar fal cwl dda;
Yn of wled rhyfodd harau
Droed y wladwr ddi dda.*

If there were a hundred thousand, to a certainty, of numbered ploughs on the land of Rhye; and three hundred vineyards teaming with wine; and is gridding a hundred mists; if the earth were of bread; or the tools of water like fine cyder; in his foot, it would be a wonder if the water and the land were to last for three days. D. Nanmor.

Osb, s. f.—pl. t. ion (os) That is erratic, a guest.

Gnawd osb or nas gwboddir.

A guest is wont to come though he may not be invited. Adams.

Osbawl, s. (osb) Belonging to a guest.

Osbil, s. a. (osb) To come as a guest; to be a guest or visitor.

Osg, s. m. (os) That tends from or out.

Osgatfydd, adv. (osg—atfydd) Peradventure.

The same as agatfydd and ygatfydd.

Osged, s. f.—pl. t. au (osg) A laver, a basin.

Osgl, s. m.—pl. t. an (osg) A bough or branch; a twig, a spray.

Erechle y gwr y bloedd y berllan i'r garddwr dori an nen ddau o oeglas y gram mawr.

The person who owned the orchard ordered the gardener to cut down one or two of the branches of the large tree. Hanes Dosthion Rhufeia.

Osglwd, s. m. (osgl) A ramification.

Osglawg, s. (osgl) Having branches, branched, branching, full of branches.

*Osglawg, hanes derw; chwerw clwath on;
Hwag ofer; chwerthindt ion;
Ni chel y gredid gwynedd calio.*

Full of branches the top of the oak; bitter the taste of ash, lessens the cow-parsnep; breaking out the wave; the cheek will not conceal the affliction of the heart. Llywarch Hen.

Osgledig, a. (osgl) Branched, ramified.

Osgledd, s. m. (osgl) Fullness of branches.

Osglen, s. f. dim. (osgl) A branch, a twig.

Osgli, v. n. (osgl) To branch, to shoot out.

Osgliad, s. m.—pl. t. an (osgl) A branching.

Osgo, s. m. (osg) Obliquity, or slope; a digression. Ar osgo, obliquely, aside.

Osgoad, s. m. (osgo) A going aslant, a going aside, a digression, a starting aside.

Osgöawl, a. (osgo) Tending to go aside, starting.

Osgöedd, s. m. (osgo) Obliquity, a starting aside.

Osgoi, v. a. (osgo) To go aslant, to go obliquely, to digress, to start aside.

Osgoiyd, a. (osgoi) Apt to go aside, apt to start aside, apt to be shy or coy.

Osgoiydrwydd, s. m. (osgoilyd) Aptness to start aside, aptness to avoid.

Osgöwr, s. m.—pl. osgöwyr (osgo—gwr) A starter, one who starts aside.

Osgyd, s. m.—pl. t. au (osg) A laver, a basin.

Osl, v. a. (os) To offer to do, to attempt.

Osiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (os) A making an essay.

Osiaw, v. a. (os) To offer to do, to essay, to make an attempt, to dare.

Osiawl, a. (os) Tending to make an essay.

Osid, adv. (os—id) If it be, if so be, peradventure.

Ost, s. m. (os) That is out, that extends out, that is spread or displayed.

Ostid, s. f. (ost) That is outward; an epithet for a shield or buckler.

Ostl, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ost) An open place, an inn.

Ostler, s. m.—pl. t. i (ostl) One who receives guests or acts at an inn, an ostler.

Ostr, s. m. (ost) That is spread out, or displayed.

Ostri, s. m. (ostr) Display of hospitality. Cadw ostri, to keep open house.

Ostlys, s. m. (ost) Openness of conduct, display of hospitality; complaisance.

Osw, s. m. (os) That runs onward; a steed. Yn Osw, to run on.

Oswydd, s. pl. aggr. (osw) Those that run out; ravagers; an epithet for war-horses; or the cavalry.

Ni byddai diwyth i lwyth oswydd.

There would be no abatement of wrath to the tribe of ravagers. Meilyr.

Gwelai darf ar dyrla oswydd.

He beheld alight amongst a host of ravagers. D. ab Lloisgerna Mew.

*A'i cadarnnau, ced hylwydd, yn hir,
I ymddiffyn tir rhag torf oswydd.*

And long to support her, a prosperous treasure, to defend the land against a host of ravagers. Llygad Gwr.

*Gwynedd gwrth lawr;
Gwynedd teawr;
Oswydd gwyddaw.*

The divider of opposing ground, the divider of shields, causing the fall of ravagers. Selyll Bryf-bwrch.

Osyd, adv. (os—yd) If so; peradventure.

OTH, s. m. r. That is exterior or extreme.

O'th, pronom. prep. (o—yth) Out of thy.

OW, s. m. r. A breathing out; a moan.

Ow, interj. (ow, s.) Woe is me, alas, ah me!

Oyma, adv. (o—yma) From here, from hence.

Oyna, adv. (o—yna) From there, from thence; speaking of what is under observation.

Oyno, adv. (o—yno) From thence; speaking of what is distant, as to time or place.

P.

P A B

PA, s. m. r. What tends to proceed; what forms a continuity.

Pa, pron. (pa, s.) What, which. Pa le? which place? pa beth? what thing? pa un? which one? pa beth bynag a fo, what thing soever it shall be; pa ddyn bynag, what person soever.

Pa, adv. (pa, s.) To what, whither; what, which, how. Pa ffordd y do? which way wilt thou come? I bale yr af? Where shall I go? Pa fan y byddi? Where wilt thou be? Pa un? Which one? Pa rai? Which ones? Pa gwaith? How often? Pa sut sydd? How is it with thee? Pa beth sydd arnat? What is the matter with thee? Pa sawl? How many? Pa gan? With what? Pa faint? How much? Pa gymaint, pa ducysg? What quantity? Pa hyd? How long? Pa rag? From what? Pa ryw? What kind? Pa am? Wherefore? Pa ffordd, pa ddull, pa wedd, pa ddelw, pa fodd? in what way or form? Pa gan gymaint? About what quantity?

Pa anwyberwyd, unben, a weledol arnat?

What indiscerned, unben, didst thou perceive in me?

Abenddi ba andaw.

What beating can be of a tumult.

Adage.

Pab, s. m.—pl. t. an (pa—ab) That produces motion; that produces life; a father; the pope.

Argwydd ien Grist erglwy,
Un Mab Daw bab wyd a byw.

Lord Jesus Christ hear me, the son of God the living Father art thou.

R. Llaf.

Pabaeth, s. m. (pab) Paternity: the papacy.

Pabidd, a. (pab) Papal, or like the pope.

Pabawg, a. (pab) Having a pope, papal.

Pabawl, a. (pab) Belonging to a father; papal.

Pabell, s. f.—pl. pebyll (pab—ell) A moving habitation; tent, a pavillion; a tabernacle.

Pan ddol mugi Llywelyn,
Pab llwyn a fydd pebyll yn.

When the grayhound of Llywelyn comes, every grove will be a haunt for us.

Huw Cae Llwyd.

Pabellawg, a. (pabell) Having a tent, tented.

Pabelliad, s. m. (pabell) A fixing a tent.

Pabellig, s. f. dim. (pabell) A little tent.

Pabellu, v. a. (pabell) To pitch or fix a tent.

Pabeth, pron. (pa—peth) What thing.

Pabi, s. m.—pl. t. odd (pab) That is productive of motion or life; a poppy.

Pabiadd, a. (pabi) Papaverous, poppy-like.

Pabiawg, a. (pabi) Abounding with poppies.

Pabiawl, a. (pabi) Papaverous, of poppy.

Pabir, s. pl. (pab—ir) Rushes, rush-candles.

Yr aelwyd hon newn cadd myr?
Mwy gerdwyfneai babir gloew,
A chylleddau cywir.

This hearth, is it not covered with ants? More congenial would have been the shining rushes, with festivals of good faith.

Llywarch Hen.

Pabiradd, a. (pabir) Like rushes, or rush-like.

Pabirawg, a. (pabir) Abounding with rushes.

Pabl, s. m.—pl. pablau (pab) Activity; vigour, energy, faculty. Dwfn babi, profound faculty

P A E

Pablaidd, a. (pabl) Active; nervous, or potent.

Pablaidd gorrff, pablaidd a gur,
Foot addwys haol, pain dewdder.

Vigorous of body, men he overcomes, a pillar stately and generous, clad in a coat of thick steel.

Iolo Goch, i O. Glendaf.

Pabled, s. m. (pabl) Activity; vigorousness.

Pabliad, s. m. (pabl) A rendering active; a rendering vigorous.

Pablu, v. a. (pabl) To render active; to render nervous or vigorous; to give a faculty.

Pablus, a. (pabl) Nervous, vigorous.

Pablusaw, v. a. (pablus) To render vigorous.

Pablusedd, s. m. (pablus) Vigorousness.

Pabogaeth, s. m. (pabawg) The papacy.

Pabwyr, s. pl. aggr. (pab—wyr) The large rushes; rushes used for burning; also called brwyn.

Pabwyr, v. a. (pabwyr) To gather rushes.

Pabwyradd, a. (pabwyr) Like rushes.

Pabwyrwg, a. (pabwyr) Abounding with rushes.

Pabwyrn, s. f. dim. (pabwyr) The soft rush.

Pabwyrn, s. m. dim. (pabwyr) A bulrush. Yr wyf gan wipied a'r pabwyrn, thou art as wet as the bulrush.

Pabydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pab) A papist.

Pabyddaid, a. (pabydd) Like a papist.

Pabyddawl, a. (pabydd) Papistical, popish.

Pabyddiaeth, s. m. (pabydd) Popery.

Pabynag, pron. (pa—bynag) Whatsoever.

Pad, s. m. (py—ad) That sustains, that keeps in continuity, that keeps together.

Padell, s. f.—pl. t. i (pad—ell) A pan. Padell bridd, an earthen pan; padell effyd, a brass pan; padell doddion, a dripping pan.

Pwyll a ddydd padell.

The pan requires attention.

Adage.

Padellaid, s. f.—pl. padelleidian (padell) A panful, or the contents of a pan.

Padellaid, a. (padell) Formed like a pan.

Padellan, s. f. dim. (padell) A little pan.

Padellawg, a. (padell) Having a pan.

Padellwg, s. f. dim. (padell) The kneecap; also called padell y glin.

Padellig, s. f. dim. (padell) A little pan.

Padellu, v. a. (padell) To form a pan.

Padellwr, s. m.—pl. padellwyr (padell—gwr) A pan maker; a dealer in pans.

Padwysg, adv. (pa—twysg) What quantity.

Padyw, adv. (pa—yd—yw) What is it; why.

O Ddaew! padyw yth reddid gwrnathir,
Cynddylan, ar bedwar-dog-meirch.

O God! why to thee are given the trappings of Cynddylan, in four times ten steeds.

Llywarch Hen.

Padd, s. m. (py—add) That causes to proceed; that keeps in a course.

Pae, s. m. (pa) That causes to go onward, that forms a continuity, that surrounds; a constraint; a panting, or constrained breathing; hesitation.

Paeled, s. f.—pl. t. eu (pae—lled) A spread; a plaster; a skullcap.

A thrydyll eu balonau, a briwau eu paeledau, ac ysgau yr efau a orugyn.

And perforate their helmets, and cut their skullcaps, and break their weapons was what they did.

M. Gervase—Mabynogion.

Paledu, v. a. (pael) To lay on, to spread over, to plaster; to put on a skullcap.
Paen, s. m.—pl. t. od (pa—en) That spreads; a peacock.

Nid teg onid paen.

Nothing so fine as a peacock.

Adogr.

Paenes, s. f.—pl. t. od (paen) A paen.
Paenos, adv. (pae—nos) Every night, nightly.
Paenydd, adv. (pae—dydd) Every day, daily.
Paent, s. m. (paen) Any thing plastered on.
Paentiad, s. m. (paent) A painting, a daubing.
Paentiaw, v. a. (paent) To paint; to daub.
Paentiawl, a. (paent) Painting, painted.
Paentiedig, a. (paentiad) Painted, daubed.
Paentiwr, s. m. (paent—gwr) A painter.
Paeol, s. m.—pl. t. an (pae—ol) A pail, a pot.
Paeu, adv. (pae—tu) On every side, round.
Paeth, s. m. (py—ath) That forms a course, that keeps in a track; concurrence, agreement.
Pafan, adv. (pa—man) What place, to what place, whither.
Paff, s. m.—pl. t. iau (py—aff) A lump, a bulk.
Paffiad, s. m. (paff) A thumping, a buffetting.
Paffiaw, v. a. (paff) To thump, or to bang.
Paffiwr, s. m.—pl. paffiwr (paff—gwr) A thumper.
Pagan, adv. (pa—can) What with, with what.
Pagwaith, adv. (pa—gwaith) How many times.
Pagymaint, adv. (pa—cymaint) What quantity, how much.
Paham, adv. (pa—ham) What about, wherefore, for what cause, what for, why.

Did heneid weithian, a lyoad yw, ac uniwg, paham y gelwir y lle hwnn yn ymys, a phaham yn afallorch.

Be it known therefore; and it is notable and manifest, wherefore that place is called an island, and wherefore orchard.

H. Dinedd Arthur.

Pahyd, adv. (pa—hyd) How long, what length.
Pai, s. m. (pa) That sends out or from; that is objective.
Paid, s. m. (py—aid) A cessation of motion; a cessation, a state of rest, quiet. Paid, peidiu, be quiet; used for the imperative peidia.
Paill, s. m. aggr.—pl. peillion (pall) Farina, flour.
Pain, s. m. aggr. (pan) Bloom, fine powder, or dust; farina; the bloom on fruits, the farina on flowers. Gwenith wedi burw y pain.
Pair, s. f. aggr. (par) An union of causes, instrumentalities or energies; a cause; also a boiler, a cauldron. Pair dadeni, the instrumentality or the alembic of regeneration; pair ceridwen, the energy of the smile of love, or prolific nature. Bardism.

Pair Frydain profen yn nhangnef.

The energy of Britain we shall enjoy in tranquillity.

Cred fy ngair, o'm pair perid staf.

Believe my word, from my command he was caused to come to me.

Iolaif bair, o bured arwar,
A beris amad ac adar.

I will praise the cause, from an impulse so pure, that caused the various beasts and fowls.

Llywelyn Fordd.

Pais, s. f.—pl. peisiau (py—ais) A coat. Pais arfau, a coat of arms; pais ddur, a coat of mail.

Pawb a drah yn mhais ei dad.

Every one will oppress in his father's coat.

Adogr.

Paisg, s. m. (pais) That forms a coating; a pod.
Paith, s. m.—pl. peithion (py—sith) An opening, a strait forward course; a glance; a prospect, a scene.

Difwys bath odwys,
Bethynted glau grys,
Argoedwys argleddu.

Leading over a steep across, an explorer of a beauteous pile, the defender of the men of Argoed. Cynddelw, i O. C. Cyfylling.

VOL. II.

Pal, s. f.—pl. t. au (pa—al) A spread, a ray, a flat body, a spade; the puffin, a bird so called. Rhaw bal, rhaw balar, a shovel, a spade.
Palad, s. m.—pl. t. on (pal) A spreading or shooting out, a beaming, a radiating, a paling.
Paladr, s. m.—pl. pelydr (palad) A ray, a beam, a shaft, a stem, a trunk, a stalk, axis; a pole, or perch. Paladr melin, the shaft of a mill wheel; paladr gwaw, the shaft of a spear; paladr angor, the shank of an anchor; cyswyrn paladr, spear charge, a payment so called; pelydr haul, sun-beams; paladr englyn, the stave of a stanza; paladr hir, broom-rape; paladr trwyddo, the herb thorow-wax.

Celwraig baladr yw yr hon a dalai bob gwr o'r genedl tu ar at dala galanas:—Ni thal gwraig genlwg baladr, am nad oes kili ond cogel.

The spear-penny is that which every man of a family need to pay towards satisfying a fine for homicide:—A woman does not pay a spear-penny, as she has but a distaff.

Welsh Laws.

Paladrawg, a. (paladr) Having a stem or shaft.
Paladriad, s. m. (paladr) A forming a stem.
Paladru, v. a. (paladr) To form a beam or shaft; to shaft; to rise in a stalk, or to bole.
Paladrwym, s. m. (palad—rhwym) The fastening, which joins the two parts of a flail.
Paladu, v. a. (palad) To spread or shoot out; to beam, to radiate.
Palalwyf, s. f. (pall—llwyf) A lime tree; also called gwaglawy.
Palar, s. f. (pal—ar) Delving soil or ground.

I Addaf a'i gymhar
Y rhod rhaw balar
I dori dalar
I gael bara.

To Adam and his partner there was given a spade for soil-delving, to break up the ground to obtain bread.

Audi Frith.

Palawr, s. m.—pl. palorion (pal) A deliver.
Paled, s. f.—pl. t. au (pal) A shaft, a javelin, a dart. Gwae paleid, a tilting match.

Gwedi cyflawni o honam ni pob peth, or a berthynam ar y dwyau y damulniws y rhwng dau weintat cyfrydd am fuddug-ollarth gwae paleid.

After we had completed every thing, which appertained to the Gods, there happened between two nephews a dispute about the victory at a tilting match.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Paledrydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (paladr) A maker of arrows, a fletcher.
Paledu, v. a. (paled) To throw a javelin, to tilt.
Paledwr, s. m.—pl. paledwyr (paled—gwr) A tilter, one who uses a javelin.
Palf, s. f.—pl. t. au (pal) The flat part or end of a shaft: a blade, as of an oar: a paw, the palm of a hand. Palf y gath, the herb cat's-foot: palf y llew, common ladies' mantle: palf yr erth, stinking hellebore: palf y blaid, common club-moss: palf y gath bali, ground pine.

Nid llygoden dan balf y gath.

Like a mouse under the cat's paw.

Adogr.

Palfaid, s. f.—pl. palfaidiau (palf) The stroke or motion of a palm.
Palfal, s. m. (palf) A moving the paws in all directions, a grope.
Palfaliad, s. m. (palfal) A groping about.
Palfalu, v. a. (palfal) To grope, to creep on the hands and feet.
Palfalwr, s. m.—pl. palfalwyr (palfal—gwr) One who gropes, a creeper on all-fours.
Palfawd, s. f.—pl. palfodau (palf) A stroke with the paw, a slap with the palm of the hand.
Palfawg, a. (palf) Having a palm, pawed.
Palfes, s. f.—pl. palfisiau (palf) A shoulder of a quadruped. Palfes mollt, ysbard mollt, a shoulder of mutton.

S D

Palfad, s. m.—pl. t. au (palf) A pawing.
Palfodiad, s. m. (palfawd) A slapping with the paw, a slapping with the open hand.
Palfodiaw, v. a. (palfawd) To slap with the paw.
Palfodiwr, s. m.—pl. palfodwyr (palfawd—gwr) One who slaps, a slapper.
Palfre, s. f.—pl. t. od (palf—rhe) A palfrey.
Palfu, v. a. (palf) To paw, to grope gently with the hand.
Palfwr, s. m.—pl. palfwyr (palf—gwr) A pawner.
Pali, s. m. (pal) That is of a downy glossy surface, satin, velvet. Cath bali, the glossy fur cat, an epithet for some ferocious animal, probably a tiger. See Palug.

Pwy y rian oco, a gwig o bali melyn amddol?

Who is yonder lady, with a robe of yellow satin on her?
Hanes O. ab Urian—Mabinogion.

Neu'm rhoddes hil Rhun rudd a phall.

Have I not been gifted by the race of Rhun with crimson and satin?
Cynddylp.

*Rhwyl rhoddes, blaen beirdd i'u foll,
 A llicen, a llyfrau, a llen bali.*

Lord of the virtues, it is incumbent upon bards to do him honour, with learning, and books, and satin veil.

Gw. Brycheiniog, i Ddewi.

Paliad, s. m. (pal) A throwing out, a spreading, a delving, or digging.

Paliadd, a. (pali) Glossy like satin, or velvet.

Paliawg, a. (pali) Of satin, of velvet.

Palis, s. m.—pl. t. an (pal) A thin partition, as of boards, wattling, or laths: a wainscot; the steep of a rock.

O bali lly nef, ef a gwympid, ac a fwrdd i'r cerchar laf.

From the pole of the court of heaven, he was made to fall, and he was cast into the lowermost prison.
Einionianus xiii. 14.

Ni saif palis a oodir yn uchel yn erbyn y gwynn.

A paling that is placed on high will not stand against the wind.
Einionianus xiii. 14.

Palisaw, v. a. (pallis) To make a partition of boards or laths, to wainscot.

Palisawg, a. (pallis) Partitioned, wainscotted, paled, paly.

Dy ryw baliawg darian—Yw hon.

Thy appropriate paly shield is this. Gr. Hiraethog.

Palisiad, s. m. (palis) A partitioning; a wainscotting; a paling.

Palm, s. m. (pal) A spread; a flag.

Palmant, s. m.—pl. t. au (palm) A pavement.

Palmantawg, a. (palmant) Having a pavement.

Palmantiad, s. m. (palmant) A paving.

Palmantu, v. a. (palmant) To make a pavement.

Palmantwr, s. m.—pl. palmantwyr (palmant—gwr) One who makes a pavement, a pavior.

Palmid, s. m. (palm) That is spreading or flat.

Palmidwydd, s. pl. (palmid—gwydd) Palm trees.

Palmidwydden, s. f. dim. (palmidwydd) Palm tree.

Palmwydd, s. pl. aggr. (palm—gwydd) Palm trees.

Palmwydden, s. f. dim. (palmwydd) A palm tree.

Palores, s. f.—pl. t. an (palawr) A chough.

Palu, v. a. (pal) To delve, or to dig.

Palug, s. m. (pāl) That is of a smooth glossy surface. Cath palug, the glossy coated cat, some fierce animal, probably a tiger, mentioned in the historical triads to have been one of three molesters of Mona, which were reared in it.

Palwr, s. m.—pl. palwyr (palu—gwr) A digger.

Pali, s. m. (py—all) Loss of power, energy, or compactness; that is incompetent; a failing; neglect, omission, deficiency; a perishing state.

*Yr holl wylionedd ar bali aeth
 O bith hiliogeth dynion.*

All righteousness is gone to naught from amongst the generation of men.
Edm. Fry.

Pall, s. m.—pl. t. an (pa—all) That encloses, as a loose hanging, or curtain; a mantle; also a tent, a pavilion; a threque.

Nid y mywn ty ydd oeddynt, samyn y mywn pallau.

Not in houses were they, but in tents.
Ysgrif. Ben. From—Mabinogion.

Pall, a. (py—all) Of a spreading or incompetent tendency; tending to fall or decay.

Ygwydd holl gwall Gobeilyn.

The spreading and welcome shield of Gobeilyn. L. P. Nich.

Palladwy, a. (pāl) Fallible; perishable.

Pallawd, s. m. (pāl) Failure; shortiveness.

Palldeg, a. (pāl—teg) Spreadingly-fair.

Maesgar glod bell-deer, gylt baiddeg aggrifio.

A stone mansion of far-extended fame, a warm spreading fair spacious place.
Cernyw.

Pallder, s. m. (pāl) Fallibleness; a perished state.

Palldegid, a. (pāl) Being of a failed state.

Palleq, s. f.—pl. t. au (pāl) A coverlid.

Palliad, s. m. (pāl) A divesting of energy or compactness; a failing, a perishing.

Pallianawr, a. (palliant) Tending to fallibility.

Palliannu, v. a. (palliant) To render fallible, to render perishable, to become fallible.

Palliant, s. m. (pāl) A failure, neglect, omission; a perishing, or a failing.

Pallu, v. a. (pāl) To fail, to neglect, to omit; to be deficient, to cease; to perish, to miss.

Gnewd oeddwid guraig ry phall.

A woman's promise naturally will fail. Idyq.

Ys da ffrin a balledd.

Good is the still which has been very out. Idyq.

Pan peddai pob rhai, nid Rhys a balledd;

Pan balledd pob rhai, fe a roddai Rhys.

When every body would be giving, Rhys would not fail; when every body would fail, Rhys would give. D. Neuw.

Pallus, a. (pāl) Apt to fail, fallacious.

Pallusaw, v. a. (pallus) To make fallible; to become fallible.

Pallusedd, s. m. (pallus) Aptness to fail.

Palluswydd, s. m. (pallus) A state of failing.

Pallwr, s. m.—pl. pallwyr (pāl—gwr) One who fails, one who neglects or omits.

Pallydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pāl) One who fails.

Pam, adv. (pa—am) What about, wherefore, for what cause, why.

Pan, s. m.—pl. t. au (py—an) A vessel of capacity; a pan; a bowl, a cup.

Gwiraidd a ddysgir o ddigwra am;

Gwis o ban, rhan rhadlawn.

Liquor will be brought in plenty to us; wine from the pot, a grateful portion. Cynddylp.

Owl ddaw i mewn o'r modd gorau oll

Gwiraidd o ban, dy hon foddol!

If there does not come of the mend the best of all, Sweet from the pan, thy head shall answer! O. Cynddylp.

Pan, s. m. (pa—an) That is universal; pervasive, of spreading grain or texture; down; far; nap; the milling, falling, or thickening of cloth. Gynaw pan, fur gowns.

Pan, adv. (pa—yn) When, at which time; whence, from whence; since, for which cause.

Pan fo, when there shall be; pan elo hyn hribio, when this shall pass away; pan yw, that is;

hyd pan, so that; pan hyn oeddynt? Whence were they descended?

Pan ddysgir cyfrith carthol a farwyd, neu o neb dall arall—bydd an poth a dale bent, brein blwydd.

When the law takes an inebriate from a death house, or from any other claim, if there should be any one thing of the value of a pound, it shall belong to the king. Wick Law.

Pan fel hwnn ffrin, pan dyddi wael,
Pan wyar wayn,
Pan rhyf, pan ruddid of that
Pan ruddian yw rudd-lye logat,
Pan ruddian ruddian ffrwythaf hyd nef,
Yn addaf of notid.

When the ruddian ruddian, when blood hastens, when gore bulbers, when there was war, when its houses were reddened, when Ruddian of the time its red court turned, when we made the reddy ffrin to glow, it fumed up to heaven, no habitation would yield shelter.
Hymn ab Owain.

Dryddyn hwyntu writh; pan deul di w! O'r gae'r waelch chw'r rhoco.

They then said to him: Whence comest thou, man! From the castle that you see yonder. Hanes Calanach—Huntington.

Panan, s. c. (pan) That involves together.

Panas, s. f. (pan) A kind of straw hangings, or plaited partition of straw; also called plaid-wellt; parnep; panas y dwf, water parnep.

Panawg, a. (pan) Covered with down or nap; furred; frized; thickened by furling, or milled. Y dew banawg, the great mullein.

Panc, s. m.—pl. t. lau (pan) A blow; a spank.

Pand, adv. (pa—ond) What but; is it not.

Pandy, s. m.—pl. t. au (pan—ty) A furling mill.

Paned, adv. (pan) When, at which time.

Panedig, a. (pan) Covered with down or fur;
thickened by furling or milling.

Paneg, s. f.—pl. peny (pan) A gut, or entrail.

Cyryll hyl chwedyl, chwedyl prwy mairch.

The ugly trunk of six parts, with a tall discharging horse's chit-terings. M. Ysterg, i Adaf Ewyrch.

Panel, s. m.—pl. t. i (pan) What is plaited or worked together; the thick matting of straw, or the cushion of a pack-saddle; it is also called panlle; also the pannel, or pack-saddle, otherwise called yströdyr, and pyntoreg.

Panclawg, a. (panel) Involved, or blended together; consisting of plaited work; pannelled.

Pancu, v. a. (panel) To involve, plait, to mat.

Panfa, s. f.—pl. panfeydd (pan) The state of being covered with down, nap, or fur; the act of furling; a bawing.

Panfod, s. m.—pl. t. au (pan) A covering with down, nap, or fur; a furling, or thickening by beating; a bawing.

Pannawl, a. (pan) Tending to involve; or to hem in; forming a depression or hollow.

Pannedig, a. (pan) Hemmed in; depressed.

Pannel, s. m.—pl. t. aa (pan) A little slope or fall; a small dingle.

Pwy, yn all y pannelau,
A gan mor bwr of gennu
A'r caws!

What one, in the recesses of the dingles whose mouth so sweetly sings to the nightingale! Melirys Dafydd.

Pannclawg, a. (pannel) Abounding with small hollows, or falls in the ground.

Pannela, v. a. (pannel) To form a gentle depression in a surface; to form a small hollow.

Pannoli, v. a. (pannawl) To form a devexity; to sink in, to slope down, to dimple.

Pannon, s. m. (mutation of panton) That comprehends universally; an epithet for the deity;
the originator, the creator.

E luntal Pannon,
Ar awr glyn Ebron,
A'i ddwyllaw gwynion,
Gwrlwen Adon,
A new am mwydd,
Hob wawr ymgelidd,
Y bu yn gorwedd,
Hob cawdd.

The Creator formed, on the ground of Ebron vale, with his fair hands, the superior frame of Adam. Nine hundred years, without the dawn of self-supporting foresight he had been lying, before he obtained a soul. Awel Ffrith.

Pannu, v. a. (pan) To involve, to include, to hem in, to cause to sink in, to make a depression or hollow; to cause a panic.

Pannu a fydd ddr rhag dewr gorffwng,
Pan fo dyddi gorwedd, a chad yn wag.

A shrinking in will be certain before a hard sternity there, when there shall be a day of depredation, and a battle year.
Ido. ab Idd. Rhawdd.

Pannwl, s. m.—pl. panaylau (pant) A depression,
a hollow, a sinking in; a dimple, a dingle.

Pannylawg, a. (pannwl) Abounding with falls, depressions, or hollows.

Pannyledd, s. m. (pannwl) Devexity of surface.

Pannylad, s. m. (pannwl) A devexity; a sinking in, a forming a hollow.

Pannylu, v. a. (pannwl) To form a devexity; to sink in, to slope down into a hollow.

Pant, s. m.—pl. pentydd (pan) That involves, circumscribes or includes; a depression, or sinking in, a hollow, a dingle, a low place, or bottom hemmed in all round.

I'r pant y rhod y dwr.

To the hollow will the water run. Adaf.

Mae gwynell, yr elwir plaf gan ddralg,
A dragon modrydraf,
Hob bent mohat miledod maf,
Hob bannu gan y penaf.

After my example, there will be obtained riches from the chief and the dragon of tents; without a sinking thousands will praise the prince, without the sovereign's wishing any fall.
Id. P. Moch, i R. ab H. ab Owain.

Pant, a. (pan) Involving, hemming in; involved, encompassed, included.

Mi a'i gyraf o'm gorwedd,
Mor bent a'r aur ar y bedd.

I will cause it to be by my lying down, so involving as the masonry on the grave. Gws. Tew, i dely pin.

Pant, prep. (pan) Down. Af bant i Landain, I will go down to London. Dyfed.

Pantawg, a. (pant) Having a depression, a sinking in or hollow.

Pantawl, a. (pant) Depressing, apt to sink in.

Pantedd, s. m. (pant) The state of being depressed, sunk in, or made hollow.

Pantlad, s. m. (pant) A depression, a sinking in,
a becoming hollow; a dimpling.

Panton, s. m. (pant) The all-comprehending one;
a bardic appellation for the deity.

Pantu, v. a. (pant) To involve, to compass: to depress, to bulge in: to dimple: to sink in,
to become a hollow.

Pannu, v. a. (pan) To make universal or pervasive: to form a texture or grain: to cover with down or nap, to full or to mill cloth, to thicken by bawing, to bang, to beat. Cei dy bannu yn dda, thou shalt be well beaten.

Awen gordd bannu.

The genius of a furling beetle. Adaf.

Panwaen, s. f.—pl. panweunydd (pan—gwen) A wet meadow, a peat moss; also called gwacn bon, and mawnog.

Panwlan, s. m. (pan—gwlan) Down or fine wool.

Panwr, s. m.—pl. panwyr (panu—gwr) A fuller.
Criban y panwr, the tassel.

Panwriaeth, s. m. (panwr) The fuller's trade.

Panyw, adv. (pan—yw) Whence it is; that it is;
that is.

O derfydd I'r amddiffynwr ddodi yn athen yr arglwydd ac yr yugnau panwyr hwnn yw y dydd.

If the defender shall have declared to the lord and the judges that it is that is the day. Welsh Laws.

Bid ddian i dawb, panyw yn mynwrat y fynachlog ya Ynys Athalch, gwedi gweil angennuwl ar safon Gwmian ya Ngharsyr y ciaddio Arthur.

Be it certain to every one, that it is in the monastery of the Isle of Avalach, after mortal wounds on the river of Camian in Cetiyw, was Arthur buried. Hanes Dinodd Arthur.

Pang, s. m. (pang) A pang; a convulsion fit.
 Pangaw, v. n. (pang) To have a convulsion fit.
 Pangawl, a. (pang) Convulsive, giving a pang.
 Pangiad, s. m. (pang) A convulsing; convulsion.
 Pagn, v. a. (pang) To be convulsed.
 Papyr, s. m.—pl. t. au (pab) Paper. Papyr gwyn, white paper; papyr llwyd, brown paper.
 Papyraidd, a. (papyr) Like paper, papery.
 Papyrawl, a. (papyr) Consisting of paper.
 Papyrfrwyn, s. pl. aggr. (papyr—brwyn) Paper-reeds.

Papyriad, s. m. (papyr) A papering.
 Papyrwr, s. m.—pl. papyrwr (papyr—gwr) A paperman, a papermaker.

Par, s. m. (py—ar) That is upon, or contiguous; that is in continuity; a state of readiness or preparedness; also a pair, fellow, match, or couple.

*Ac yno, yn medw Gwynedd,
 I ml ar bar y mae'r bedd.*

And there, in the birch groves of Gwynedd, for me in readiness is the grave. D. ab Gwilym.

Par, s. m.—pl. t. au (pa—ar) A cause; that is instrumental in causing or producing; the essence, germ or seed of a thing; also a spear.
 Par, a. (pa—ar) Causing; causative; caused; in a state of energy or instrumentality.
 Para, v. n. (par) To continue, to endure; to last; to persevere.

Hir nis pery yr abwy lle bo llawer o frain.

The carrion will not last long where there are many crows. Adage.

*Nis pery gloewder seren;
 Na'i phryd ond enyd i wen.*

The splendor of a star will not endure; nor her countenance to the fair but for a while. Bodo Brwynllys.

Para, adv. (pa—rha) What sort, what kind.

Para leddad arbenig yr ydym ni yn ei dderbyn oddiwrth dderchaidd Crist!

What particular benefits are we receiving from the ascension of Christ? The Williams, in T. a Kempis.

At bara ymddolen gynt y mae y rhyfel hwn, rhwng yr angel-ion da a drwg, debycal yn bwrw!

To what former contentions does this war, between the good angels and the bad, most probably refer? Ibid.

Parâad, s. m. (parâu) Perseverance; continuance, duration.

*Digyrith yw dy garlad,
 Daw'r bedd, mewn rhyfedd barlad.*

Inexhaustible is thy love, God of peace, in wonderful duration. D. Richard, Glan y Morfa.

Parâawl, a. (parâu) Continuing, continual.

Parab, s. m. (par—ab) Aptitude for utterance.

Parabl, s. m. (parab) The power of speech; speech, utterance; discourse.

Parablain, v. a. (parabl) To talk continually.

Parabledd, s. m. (parabl) Readiness of discourse

Parabliad, s. m. (parabl) A discoursing.

Parablu, v. a. (parabl) To hold a discourse.

Parabulusaw, v. a. (parablu) To render fluent in discourse; to become eloquent.

Parablusedd, s. m. (parablu) Readiness in discourse or speech.

Parablwr, s. m.—pl. parablwr (parabl—gwr) A discourser; a preacher.

Parad, s. m. (par) Causation; a causing.

Paradwy, a. (parad) Causable, effectible.

Paradwyad, s. m. (paradwy) Effectuation.

Paradwyawl, a. (paradwy) Efficient, effective.

Paradwys, s. m. (para—twys) A continuity of increase or fructification; paradise.

Paradwysaidd, a. (paradwys) Paradisiacal.

Paradwysain, a. (paradwys) Paradisiacal.

Paradwysawl, a. (paradwys) Relating to paradise.
 Paradwysoli, v. a. (paradwysawl) To render paradisiacal; to become like paradise.

Paraed, s. m. (para—ed) A partition.

Paraeth, s. m. (par) A causation, a cause.

Paraethu, v. a. (paraeth) To render causative.

Parag, adv. (pa—rhag) Because of what, why so

Parai, s. c. (par) That causes or makes to be.

Parator, ger. (parad) In causing or bidding.

Parâu, v. n. (para) To persevere, to persist; to continue, to remain, to last, to abide.

A fydd barâu yn hir yn iousau, nod yn chwyrdd yn iau.

He that wishes long to continue young, let him soon become old. Adage.

Parâus, a. (para) Of long continuance.

Parâusder, s. m. (parâus) Lastingness.

Parâusrwydd, s. m. (parâus) Lastingness.

Parawd, s. m. (par) That is in readiness. a. Ready, prompt, prepared.

*Ni cheill nâ'i wir, nâ'i wrhydri,
 Ar gynnifer gwad,
 Amdrychion am draed,
 Ac iau bod parlad
 Parawd loegi.*

His justice nor his prowess will be concealed, as the frequent meetings of blood, breaking round the foot, and about every wall a ready burning. Lt. P. Mach, i Llewelyn II.

Parawl, a. (par) Causing, effective; creative.

Parâwr, s. m.—pl. parâwr (parâ—gwr) One who continues.

Parc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (par) An enclosure; a field; a park.

Parcawl, a. (parc) Belonging to enclosure.

Parciad, s. m. (parc) An enclosing, a shutting in.

Parciaw, v. a. (parc) To enclose, to hedge in.

Parciwr, s. m.—pl. parciwr (parc—gwr) One who encloses, a hedger, a ditcher.

Parch, s. m. (py—arch) Respect, reverence.

A fydd barch bid gadarn.

Who would obtain honour let him be mighty. Adage.

Mwy parch bynnas no hynod.

Greater the respect of the good-natured than the reverend. Adage.

Parchadwy, a. (parch) Respectable, reputable.

Parchawl, a. (parch) Tending to respect.

Parchedig, a. (parch) Respected, reverend.

Parchedigaeith, s. m.—pl. t. au (parchedig) A shewing respect, a reverencing or honouring.

Parchedigaw, v. a. (parchedig) To render reverent; to become revered or honoured.

Parchedd, s. m. (parch) Respectability; repute.

Parchiad, s. m. (parch) A respecting, honouring.

Parchlawn, a. (parch) Respectful, full of respect

Parchlonder, s. m. (parchlawn) Respectfulness.

Parchlonedd, s. m. (parchlawn) Respectfulness.

Parchraith, s. f. (parch—raith) A law of honour

Parchrydd, a. (parch—rhydd) Respectfully free

Parchu, v. a. (parch) To respect, or to honour.

*Morwysion moellon, gwelgodd rhewydd,
 Cerant, ni pharchant eu caruonodd;
 Rhwydd ni bydd gyfrwydd wrth ei gilydd,
 Esgyb anghyfaith, diffaith, diffydd.*

Base-headed virgins, wanton wives, they will love, they will not respect their relatives; readily they will not be mutually liberal to one another, bishops of strange language, unprofitable and void of faith. Myrddin.

Parchus, a. (parch) Respectful; respectable.

Parchusaw, v. a. (parchus) To render respectable; to become respectable or respected.

Parchusedd, s. m. (parchus) Respectability.

Parchusrwydd, s. m. (parchus) Respectableness.

Parchwr, s. m. (parch—gwr) A respector.

Parddu, s. m. (par—du) The black adhering to vessels, that are set on fire: smut.

Pardduad, s. m. (parddu) A covering with smut.
Pardduaw, v. a. (parddu) To cover with smut, to smut; to become smutty.

Pardduawg, a. (parddu) Covered with smut.
Pardduawr, a. (parddu) Tending to be smutty.

Pared, s. m.—pl. t. au (par—ed) A partition.

Paredig, a. (pared) Caused, being bidden.

Paredigawl, a. (paredig) Causative, mandatory.

Paredlys, s. m. (pared—lys) Pellitory of the wall

Parf, s. m. (par) That is upon, or intervening.

Parfa, s. f.—pl. parfeydd (par—ma) That hems in, or that serves as a fender.

Parfaes, s. f.—pl. parfeisiau (parf—aes) A sending plane; an epithet for a shield.

Parfyg, s. m. (parf) The herb henbane.

Parf, s. m. (par) That is close, together, or in continuity; a string, drove, or flock, as sheep

Parf o ddechrau ar lan ffrwd, o fydd ar bob an ofn dechrau mynd trwmdd; cithur pan elo an o'r bren, y lleill igyd yn ddalawyd a gwyddant.

A flock of sheep on the brink of the current of a river, every one will be afraid of going through; but when one proceeds before, all the others will follow without fear. S. Trefedyn.

Pariad, s. m. (par) A causation; a causing, or effecting, a commanding, a bidding.

Parianawr, a. (pariant) Causative, mandatory.

Parianu, v. a. (pariant) To render causative.

Parianusaw, a. (pariant) Causative; mandatory.

Parianusaw, v. a. (parianusaw) To render causative, to become causative.

Pariant, s. m. (par) Causation; effectuation.

Pariedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pariad) A causer.

Parl, s. m. (par) That is instrumental to effectuate, a vocable.

Parlas, s. m.—pl. t. au (par—glas) A green plat.

Parlawr, s. m.—pl. parlorau (par—llawr) Parlour

Parlawr o friddall parlas.

A parlour of fresh leaves of pure green. D. ab Gwilym.

Parliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (parl) A discoursing.

Parliaw, v. a. (parl) To argue; to discourse.

Parliannawl, a. (parliant) Interlocutory.

Parliannu, v. a. (parliant) To dialogue.

Parliant, s. m. (parl) Interlocution; dialogue.

Parliwr, s. m. (parl—gwr) A discourser.

Parodad, s. m. (parodau) A preparation.

Parodawl, a. (parodau) Preparatory, preparing

Parodadwy, a. (parawd) Capable of preparing.

Parodau, v. a. (parawd) To make ready; to become ready, to be prepared.

Parodawl, a. (parawd) Tending to prepare.

Parodedd, s. m. (parawd) Preparedness.

Parodi, v. a. (parawd) To make ready, to prepare; to become ready or prepared.

*Ni chadod brad, na'i barodi;
 Ac ni chadod yn eiddad chwi.*

No treachery was found, nor a preparing of it; nor was such a thing had in your line. R. Dafydd.

Parodiad, s. m. (parawd) A preparing.

Parodiaeth, s. m. (parawd) Preparation.

Parodiannawl, a. (parodiant) Preparatory.

Parodiannu, v. a. (parodiant) To make preparation; to become prepared.

Parodiad, s. m. (parawd) Preparation.

Parodoldet, s. m. (parodawl) Preparedness.

Parododd, s. m. (parodawl) Preparedness.

Parodoli, v. a. (parodawl) To render prepared.

Parodwydd, s. m. (parawd) A prepared state.

Parowen, s. f. (parawd) An ashen spear.

Parotaw, v. a. (parawd) To prepare, to get ready

Parotod, s. m. (parotoi) A preparing, preparation, a getting ready.

Parotawl, a. (parotoi) Preparative; preparing.

Parotodedd, s. m. (parotoi) Preparedness.

Parotoi, v. a. (parotaw) To prepare, to get ready

Parotoi bwyllgras, a llawer eu llongau o honant—a oregant.

Prepare provisions, and fill their ships therewith, they did. Gr. ab Artkaur.

Parotous, a. (parotaw) Preparative, preparatory

Parotowr, s. m.—pl. parotowyr (parotoi—gwr)

A preparer, one who makes ready.

Parotoydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (parotoi) A preparer

Parael, s. m.—pl. t. au (par—ael) What is aimed at, a butt, a mark.

Saethu'n iael baraelau

A wnawn, teg fe'r mawr-ddawn mas.

Shoot keenly at butts I would, fair was my great talent.

R. ab C. Guch.

Ei fwa a saethau a srwyddos ffolnech y rhael ffolleid, y sydd yn cynnygu eu huanau i fod yn baraelau iddo, ac yn sefyll yn llosgydd tra fo efe yn eu saethu.

His bow and arrows denote the folly of the foolah ones, who are offering themselves to be as butts for him, and standing still whilst he might be shooting at them. Merchaug Cwmpudred.

Parth, s. m.—pl. t. au (par) A part; a division; a region. Parth a Chymru, towards Wales; parth ag atam, towards us.

*Nef, dsiar, uffern, pan y berynych,
 Dod nod i'm gwynneb s'm hadnepych;
 Parth cled i minnau, ni mynych fy mod,
 Parth yr oen gorfod ni'm gosodych.*

Heaven, earth, hell, when thou shalt judge, set a mark in my face by which thou shalt know me. Then on the left side, thou wouldest not that I should be, on the part of the victim, hark thou wouldest not place me. Y Brawd Nad. ab Gwiler.

Parthadwy, a. (parth) Discriminable, divisible.

Parthawd, s. m. (parth) A dividing, a parting.

Parthawl, a. (parth) Discriminate; parting.

Parthred, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (parth) A part; a division; a region.

Parthedig, a. (parthred) Divided, severed.

Parthedigaeth, s. m. (parthedig) Discrimination.

Parthedigawl, a. (parthedig) Discriminative.

Parthedd, s. m. (parth) A divided state.

Parthgymeriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (parth—cymeriad) A participle.

Parthgymeriadawl, a. (parthgymeriad) Participial, relating to a participle.

Parthiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (parth) A parting.

Parthiannawl, a. (parthiant) Discriminative.

Parthiannu, v. a. (parthiant) To discriminate.

Parthiannus, a. (parthiant) Discriminative.

Parthiannusaw, v. a. (parthiannus) To render discriminative; to become discriminative.

Parthiant, s. m. (parth) A division, a severing.

Parthiator, ger. (parthiad) In discriminating.

Parthitor, sup. (parth) To be discriminating.

Parthotor, part. (parthawd) Dividing, parting.

Parthred, s. f.—pl. t. ion (parth) Distinction, discrimination; a side, or party.

Pan welas Agamemnon ladd llawer o'i barthred, of a anfonas ar Bria, i erchi cyngurair.

When Agamemnon beheld the slaughter of many of his party, he sent to Priam to demand a parley. Ytori Dared.

Parthredawg, a. (parthred) Of a particular party

Parthredawl, a. (parthred) Discriminating.

Parthrededd, s. m. (parthred) Discriminateness.

Parthrediad, s. m.—pl. t. au (parthred) A discriminating; discrimination.

Parthrediannawl, a. (parthrediant) Belonging to discrimination; discriminative.

Parthrediannu, v. a. (parthrediant) To make a discrimination, to make a distinction.

Parthrediannus, a. (parthrediant) Tending to discrimination.

Parthrediannusaw, v. a. (parthrediannus) To render discriminating, to discriminate.

Parthrediannusedd, s. m. (parthredi annus) The state of being discriminative.

Parthrediant, s. m.—pl. parthrediannau (parthred) Discrimination.

Parthredu, v. a. (parthred) To discriminate.

Parthredus, a. (parthred) Discriminating.

Parthredusaw, v. a. (parthredus) To render discriminative, to become discriminative.

Parthredusedd, s. m. (parthred) Discriminateness.

Parthryd, s. m. (parth—rhyd) A distinct course.

Parthu, v. a. (parth) To part, to partition, to separate, to divide.

I archbepob y Lloeddau y parthid Lloneg yn hollau.

To the archbishoprick of London was appropriated the whole of England.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Parthwr, s. m.—pl. parthwyr (parthu—gwr) One who makes a distinction, a separator.

Parthy, s. m. (parth) Distinction, characteristic. Parthy y peth a'r peth, the characteristic of such and such a thing.

Para, v. a. (par) To put in continuity, to put together, to couple, to join, to pair.

Parwar, a. (par—gwar) Silent, still, calm.

Egwyddu Bann, ynt barwar heno;

A minnau wyf dyar;

Rhodd ynt hwy; rhwy fy ngwlad!

The churches of Bann, they are silent this night; and I am clamorous: red are they; excessive is my grief! Llywarch Hen.

Parwg, s. m.—pl. parygoedd (par) Enclosed field

Parwr, s. m.—pl. parwyr (par—gwr) A causer.

Parwyd, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (par—gwyd) Partition.

A wyddost—

Fy paris parwyd

Rhwng dyn ac enwyd!

Doest thou know who caused a partition between man and fridgidity?
Taliesin.

Parwydaw, v. a. (parwyd) To make a partition.

Parwydawg, a. (parwyd) Having a partition.

Parwydawl, a. (parwyd) Belonging to a partition.

Parwyden, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (parwyd) Work that encloses, a fence, the trunk or the region of the ribs and breast of an animal; partition work in a house.

Gofidau wyf o barwydenau fy nghalon.

I am afflicted from the sides of my heart. Jeremiah iv. 19.

Y delyn ledr—

Ni lantwyd ei pharwyden,

Naf chregidau ond i Sals ben.

The leathern harp, its trunk was not formed nor its hoarse sound, but for an old Saxon. D. ab Gwilym.

Parwydd, s. m. (par—gwydd) That is cognitive of acting or causing, a verb. It is also called petrwyddiad.

Parwyddawl, a. (parwydd) Belonging to a verb.

Parwyddiad, s. m.—pl. parwyddiaid (parwydd) that conveys the knowledge of causing, a verb

Parydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (par) A causer.

Paryddawl, a. (parydd) Procuratorial; causative.

Pas, s. m.—pl. t. an (pa—as) That is expulsive, that causes to pass, a pass, an exit, a cough, a hooping cough.

Pasawl, a. (pas) Expulsive, belonging to cough.

Pasawl, adv. (pa—sawl) What number, how many PASC, s. m. Easter. Tri gwyl arbenig, Nadolig, Pasc, a Sulgwyn, the three principal festivals, Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide.

Pasg, s. m. (pa—asg) A feeding, or fattening. Bod yn mharg, to be fed in a stall; opposed to pori allan, to feed out or in pasture.

Pasgadur, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pasg) One who feeds.

Pasgadwy, a. (pasg) Capable of being fattened.

Pasgawl, a. (pasg) Feeding, or fattening.

Pasgdwrch, s. m. (pasg—twrch) A fattened pig.

Pasgedig, a. (pasg) Fed, fattened, crammed. Ych pasgedig, a fattened ox.

Pasgell, s. f. (pasg) A pasture, a feeding place. Pasgfarch, s. m.—pl. pasgfarch (pasg—march) A pampered steed.

Pasghwch, s. f.—pl. t. od (pasg—hwch) Fat sow.

Pasgiad, s. m. (pasg) A feeding, or a fattening.

Pasgiadur, s. m.—pl. t. on (pasgiad) A feeder.

Pasgle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pasg—le) A feeding place.

Pasgnawd, s. m. (pasg—nawd) A tendency to become fat. Pasgferch pasgnawd.

Paslad, s. m. (pos) A causing an exit, expulsion, a passing.

Pasiaw, v. a. (pas) To cause an exit, to expulse, to make an exit, to pass.

Pasiedig, a. (pas) Being expelled or passed.

Pasiwr, s. m.—pl. paswyr (pas) One who passes.

Pastwn, s. m.—pl. pastynau (pas—twn) Long staff.

Estydd ym bastwn eidd.

There was reached to me an angry staff. Llewelyn.

Pastyn, v. a. (pastwn) To beat with a staff.

Pathawr, adv. (pa—tawr) What concerns it, who cares, mangle, in spite of, notwithstanding.

Cychwyn fu thoriyn, pathawr ei hollawd,

Hirfelyn ei gwawwr:

Dywas, dyw calan lawwr,

Dywas an dardd fawwr.

Set off to its confined mangle its sprightly sodality, its long-yellow spurs: make thy way, on new year's day, may that we see coming to Meck. G. Cythlwyn.

Pathew, s. m.—pl. t. od (pa—tew) A dormouse.

Nid enwyth ond pathew.

Nothing so sleek as the dormouse. Adage.

Pau, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pa) That is in continuity, that extends, or extends about, that includes, or confines: a settled country, or where the tribes spread about and are apt in their career

Dymgwaliad ei win o'i wdd add,

Yn Arfonig gwr, yr hiriell bae.

I have been charmed with his wine from his white princely hand, in the Arfonian town, near the region of the river of glory. Gwalcham.

Gorpyrf gan Ddew fry, gwedy gwyliau,

Gorffod gorpyrhwys baradwyn bae!

May I be caused to be with God above, directed of managements, enjoying the repose of the region of paradise. Elin. ab Gwilym.

Päun, adv. (pa—un) Which one, what one.

Päunfodd, adv. (päun—modd) Which way soever, what way soever, in a manner.

Paw, s. m. (pa) That extends round.

Pawan, s. c. (paw) A spreader, or extender.

Celliawg pawen, a peacock, iar bawen, a pea-hen

Pawb, pron. (paw) Every body, all persons.

Rhydd baw i bob.

Opinion is free to every body. Adage.

Caffant baw eu teitid, llawen i Brython,

Ceiustor corn eiwh caid haddwch a hian.

All persons shall obtain their rights, Britons shall be glad; the horn of triumph proclaiming the hymn of peace and of courtesy. Hydrion.

Y bodd yn Ysoddrachau,

Y mae pawb yn ei amgylch

Bodd Gwilym Gwilym.

The grave in Ysoddrachau, every body suppose it to be the grave of Gwilym Gwilym. Adage. Boddau y Mynydd.

Pawb, a. (paw) Every body: all, applied to people. Pawb ac na, one and all.

Pawd, s. f. (paw) That stretches out, a shank.

Pawen, s. f.—pl. t. au (paw) A paw, a hoof.

Pawen, v. a. (pawen) To gather with the paw.

Pawenidd, a. (pawen) Like a paw.

Pawenawg, a. (pawen) Having a paw.

Pawenid, s. m. (pawen) A pawing.

Pawen, v. a. (pawen) To use the paw.
Pawenwr, s. m.—pl. pawenwyr (pawen—gwr)
 One who uses his paw.
Pawgon, s. f.—pl. f. au (paw—cên) A sock.
Pawl, s. m.—pl. polion (paw) A pole, a stake.

Drug part ni safu fyrdyn.

Had to the pole that will not stand for a year. Adage.

Pawr, s. m.—pl. porion (py—awr) Pasture, grass,
 a grazing, or feeding in pasture.

Ti haf—

Ded yno 'n y fro dy fring.

Yn awnau hawr, yn iwring.

Then summer, before there was the country thy track, in luxurious pasture, in verdant covering. B. ab Gwilym.

*Rhodri bethid hyd y llawr,
 A gwyrh y pawr ei laed.*

Summer sowers strew the ground, and how gay the green so green. Gw. Ym.

Pawrwrffit, s. m. (pawr—gwelit) Brome-grass.
PE, s. m. r. That is causative, that is an agent.
Pe, conj. (pe, s.) If. It is used conditionally, with verbs of the subjunctive and potential moods, before words with consonant initials.
See ped, pes, pe, s, ed, es.

Pe a bawd y gwrdd gwe.

If with a thumb a web were woven. Adage.

Pebr, s. m. (py—ebr) That is uttered.
Pebr, v. a. (pebr) To be chattering.
Pebrath, s. m. (pebr) A chattering, a tattling.
Pebrs, s. m. (pebr) A chatter, a babble.

Pebrs o'i safu pob ryw awl.

*Every kind of chattering from her mouth.
 Gr. Brawddeg, i freufluth.*

Pebyd, s. m. (pab) That is of the pope, papacy.
Pebydlawg, s. m. (pebyd) The popedom: also a cantref so called, in Dyfed.
Pebylliad, s. m. (pabell) A putting up tents.
Pebylliau, v. a. (pabell) To pitch tents.
Pebyllawg, s. m. (pabell) Having tents, tented.
Pebyllwr, s. m.—pl. pebyllwyr (pebylliau—gwr)
 One who puts up tents.

Pech, s. m. (py—ech) A cessation, a ceasing to exert; a still state; a swerving from; the sin of inaction; sin. Bydd di pech, be thou quiet.
Armore.

Ni spedd ni wyddid hech.

There has not been born any but has known sin. Adage.

Pech, s. (py—ech) Void of exertion; inert.
Pechaberth, s. m.—pl. f. au (aberth) Sin-offering.
Pechadur, s. m.—pl. f. on (pech) A sinner.

Dangwys nafi bechadur.

Show heaven to a sinner. Adage.

Pechadures, s. f. (pechadur) A female sinner.
Pechaduriad, s. m.—pl. pechaduriad (pechadur)
 One who commits sin; a sinner.
Pechaduriath, s. m. (pechadur) The state of a sinner.

Pechadurus, a. (pechadur) Of a sinful aptitude.
Pechadurusarwydd, s. m. (pechadurus) Sinfulness.
Pechaduryr, s. m. dim. (pechadur) A sinful one.
Pechawl, s. m.—pl. pechodau (pech) Sin.

Pechodau aithrawon yst aithrawon pechodau.

The sins of instructors are instructors of sins. Adage.

Saith ryw herbarw marwawl i ydd—cyberwyd, cyngorfynt, trilionedd, trwydd byddawl neu laegedd, chwant a chybyddeth, gylthmab a mchodawd, godinh.

There are seven kinds of deadly sins: pride, envy, anger, dejection in worldly affairs, or inaction, desire and sordidness, voluptuousness and drunkenness, adultery. Ll. Gwyn Hergest.

Pechawl, a. (pech) Appertaining to sin; sinning.
Pechedd, s. m. (pech) A sinning condition.

Pechiad, s. m. (pech) A sinning; a transgressing.
Pechodawg, a. (pechawd) Abounding with sin.
Pechodawl, a. (pechawd) Appertaining to sin.
Pechodlawr, a. (pechawd) Full of sin, sinful.
Pechu, v. a. (pech) To sin, to commit sin.
Pechus, a. (pech) Apt to commit sin; sinful.
Pechusaw, v. n. (pechus) To become sinful.
Pechusarwydd, s. m. (pechus) Sinfulness.

Pechwr, s. m.—pl. pechwyr (pech—gwr) A sinner Ped, s. m.—pl. f. ion (py—ed) That is agent of progression, that bears onward; a foot.

Ped, conj. (pe—yd) If; used for pe, before words with vowel initials. Ped ara, if I were to go:
petwn, if I were; petis, if thou wert; petat, if it, he, or she, were; petym, if we were; petych, if ye were; petyat, if they were.

Ped, adv. (pe—yd) How many, what number.

Pedair, s. f. (ped) The number four, speaking of the feminine gender. a. Four.

Pedawl, a. (ped) Belonging to a foot, pedal.

Pedeirael, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—ael) Four skirts.
a. Having four skirts or corners.

Ei orwydd oedd a—Hen pedeirael amano, so afal aur wrth bob ael iddi: Can mai oedd gwerth pob awl.

His steed was with a four-cornered cloth about him, and an apple of gold to each of its corners: A hundred kine was the value of each apple. B. Culnach—Mabinogion.

Pedeirawdl, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—awdl) Four rhymes. a. Of four varieties of rhyme.

Pedeirblwydd, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—blwydd)
 Four years. a. Of four years old.

Pedeirblwyddawl, a. (pedeirblwydd) Quadriennial.

Pedeirdalen, s. f. (pedair—dalen) That consists of four leaves. a. Quadriphyllous.

Pedeirfordd, s. f. (pedair—ffordd) Where four roads meet. a. Of four roads.

Pedeirgwaith, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—gwaith) Four times. a. Of four times.

Pedeirllaw, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—llaw) Four hands. a. Quadrimanous.

Pedeiror, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—or) Four limits;
 four regions; four quarters. a. Of four sides.

Ef yn dddechor;

Ef yn dddeior;

Ef o bechador;

Ni bydd wrth kynghor;

Ni bydd heb gynghor.

*He uncondoned; he without a fellow; he from four regions; he will not be according to council; he will not be without council.
 Talerion, t'r gwyn.*

Pedeirran, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—rhan) Four shares or parts. a. Quadripartite.

Pedeirranawg, a. (pedeirran) Of four parts.

Pedeirranawl, a. (pedeirran) Of four parts.

Pedeirraniad, s. m.—pl. f. au (pedeirran) A quadripartition; a quartering.

Pedeirranu, v. a. (pedeirran) To part into four.

Pedeirsaill, s. pl. aggr. (pedair—saill) Four syllables. a. Of four syllables.

Pedeirsaillawg, a. (pedeirsaill) Of four syllables.

Pedeirsaillawl, a. (pedeirsaill) Belonging to what consists of four syllables.

Pedest, s. m. (ped) Motion of the feet.

Pedestr, s. m.—pl. pedestron (pedest) That travels on foot, a pedestrian.

Yn bedestr anwybodawl.

Being a pedestrian uninformed. Ein, ab Gwalchmai.

Pedestraid, a. (pedestr) Pedestrian.

Pedestrawg, a. (pedestr) Having a power of walking or of using the feet.

Pedestrawl, a. (pedestr) Of foot travelling.

Pedestres, s. f.—pl. t. au (pedestr) A walking female, a female pedestrian.

*Pedestres weddiadid yn hydaidd hir,
Pedestrig iolig, pa hyd y'th folir !*

The handsome female pedestrian a long journey travelling, thou famous in walking, how long wilt thou be famed ! Cynddelw.

Pedestriad, s. m. (pedestr) A travelling on foot.

Pedestrig, s. f. dim. (pedestr) A foot pace.

Ei gafas ei bedestrig.

He recovered his walking. H. Cer. Mag—Mabinogion.

Pedestru, v. a. (pedestr) To travel on foot.

Pedestrydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pedestr) A foot traveller, a pedestrian.

Pedfed, adv. (ped) Of what number.

Pedi, adv. (ped) A round about way of asking or craving, also a guarding against a request, by anticipating a similar want. v. a. To ask or crave indirectly.

Nid rhaid pedi yn llys arglwydd.

There is no necessity of begging restrainedly in a prince's court. Adage.

Pediad, s. m. (ped) A making use of feet.

Pedol, s. f.—pl. t. au (ped—ol) What is under a foot, a pedal, a shoe of a horse or other animal.

Pedol y march, tufted horse-shoe vetch. Ceffyl yn ennill ei bedolan, a horse gaining his shoes, a term for a horse's laying down to tumble.

Pedolawg, a. (pedol) Having something under the foot, pedalled; having shoes as horses.

Pedoli, v. a. (pedol) To put something under the feet to save them, to pedal, to shoe a horse or other animal.

Arian pedoli yw treth, a osodwyd er ys talm o fynyddoedd, ar ddeiliad yr arglwydd, am bedoli meirch yr arglwydd; ac yn wrechneinig y tellir.

Shoeing money is a tax which was laid many years ago, on the subjects of the lord, for shoeing the lord's horses; and in Brecknockshire it is paid. Hen Ddeffodau.

Pedoliad, s. m. (pedol) A shoeing; a forming a pedol, a fixing a pedal; the using a pedal.

Pedolwr, s. m.—pl. pedolwyr (pedol—gwr) A shoer; one who makes or uses a pedal.

Pedr, s. m. (pad) That consists of four. It is used as a prefix in composition.

Pedrain, s. f.—pl. pedreiniau (pedr) The buttock, breech, or crupper. Pedrain march, a horse's crupper.

Pedrawg, a. (pedr) Of a square form, square-built, complete.

Pedrawl, a. (pedr) Belonging to square.

Pedreindew, a. (pedrain—tew) Fat-buttocked.

Pedreindor, s. m. (pedrain—tor) A covering of cloth reaching over a horse's crupper from the saddle. a. Crupper-covered.

Coch rodawg pedrydawg pedror,

Yr orwydd pedrogl pedreindor.

A red chariot moving squarely with four limits over a crupper-covered steed of perfect form. Cynddelw, i O. Cyfeiliawg.

Pedrenwawl, a. (pedr—enwawl) Quadrimomial.

Pedrogl, s. m.—pl. pedroglau (pedrawg) That consists of four sides; a square, a quadrangle. a. Quidrilateral, square, complete, of perfect symmetry.

Pedrogl triw, pwy a dreigl Franc.

Thou square of visage, who wilt turn a Franc. T. Alld.

Pedroglaid, a. (pedrogl) Like a square.

Pedroglawd, s. m. (pedrogl) A quadrating.

Pedroglawg, a. (pedrogl) Of a square form.

Pedrogledd, s. m. (pedrogl) A quadrature.

Pedrogl, v. a. (pedrogl) To quadrate.

Pedrogliaid, s. m. (pedrogl) A quadrating.

Pedrogl, s. m. dim. (pedrogl) A quadrate.

Pedrongl, s. f.—pl. pedronglau (pedr—ongl) A quadrangle. a. Of four angles.

Pedronglawg, a. (pedrongl) Of four angles.

Pedrongledd, s. m. (pedrongl) The state of being quadrangular; that consists of four angles.

Pedrongli, v. a. (pedrongl) To form a quadrangle.

Pedrongliad, s. m. (pedrongl) A making to consist of four angles, a forming a quadrangle.

Pedror, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pedr—or) That consists of four sides, a square. a. Quadrilateral, square. Par pedror, a four-sided spear.

Pedrorawg, a. (pedror) Having four extremities.

Pedrorawl, a. (pedrawr) Of a square form.

Pedroroddarn, s. m.—pl. t. au (pedror—darn) A quarter-piece.

Pedroredd, s. m. (pedror) A squareness.

Pedrori, v. a. (pedror) To quadrate, to square.

Pedroriad, s. m. (pedror) A quadrating.

Pedroryn, s. m. dim. (pedror) A quadrate.

Pedrorod, s. f. (pedr—rhod) That has four wheels. a. Four-wheeled.

Pedrorodawg, a. (pedrorod) Having four wheels.

s. f. A carriage with four wheels.

Pedru, v. a. (pedr) To quadrate, to square.

Pedrus, a. (ped—rhus) Apt to start, hesitating, dubious, uncertain.

Pedrusad, s. m. (pedrus) A starting aside, a doubting, a hesitating.

Pedrusaeth, s. m. (pedrus) Hesitation, doubting.

Pedrusaw, v. a. (pedrus) To start aside, to hesitate, to doubt, to scruple.

Yr wyf i'nau yn erchi dy drugaredd di, ac yn caelw pŵer a north y genyd di i gelaiau fy nghyfouth i mi tracheta, hyd pan fo trwy fy north i'nau a'm porth y gelych dithau onwyr Yr Frydain: Ac o hyn nas petrus ddim; canny add oes dim byd i mi i'nau ya yr yndardd hwa.

I am likewise entreating thy mercy, and am seeking support and strength of thee towards getting my kingdom back again, so that it shall be through my power and my aid thou shalt overcome and subdue the late of Britain: And of this do not hesitate in the least; for there is neither deceit nor treachery in this declaration. Gr. ab Arthur.

Pedrusawd, s. m. (pedrus) Hesitation, doubting.

Pedrusawg, a. (pedrus) Having a doubt.

Pedrusawl, a. (pedrus) Hesitating, doubting.

Pedrusawd, s. m. (pedrus) Hesitation.

Pedrusdeb, s. m. (pedrus) A doubting state.

Pedrusder, s. m. (pedrus) Dubiousness, scrupulosity, indeterminateness.

Pedrusedd, s. m. (pedrus) A state of hesitation.

Pedrusgar, s. m. (pedrus) Apt to hesitate.

Pedrusgarwch, s. m. (pedrus) Aptness to doubt.

Pedrusi, s. m. (pedrus) Hesitation, doubt.

Pedrusiad, s. m. (pedrus) A hesitating.

Pedrusiannawl, a. (pedrusiant) Tending to hesitation, indeterminate.

Pedrusiannu, v. a. (pedrusiant) To make hesitation; to become indetermined.

Pedrusiannus, a. (pedrusiant) Of a doubtful tendency, of an uncertain state.

Pedrusiannusaw, v. n. (pedrusiannus) To become of a hesitating disposition.

Pedrusiant, s. m. (pedrus) Hesitation.

Pedrusoldeb, s. m. (pedrusawl) Dubiousness.

Pedrusoli, v. n. (pedrusawl) To become starting or hesitating; to become scrupulous.

Pedruswydd, s. m. (pedrus) Doubtfulness.

Pedruswch, s. m. (pedrus) Doubtfulness.

Pedruswr, s. m.—pl. pedruswyr (pedrus—gwr) One who hesitates, a doubter.

Pedrwg, s. m. (pedr) A quadrature; a perfect state, completeness of parts.

Pedwgi, s. m.—pl. pedrygion (pedwgi) That is quadrate; that is perfect, a model.

Plant Pedry—
Pedwar agwr pedrygion
Angelwyr mawrwr Môn.

The children of Pedry—four, conspicuous models, evangelists of the community of Môn.

Pedry, s. m. (pedr) That consists of four; that belongs to four. It is used as a prefix in composition.

Pedryad, s. m. (pedry) A quadrating, a squaring.

Pedryael, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pedry—ael) That has four skirts or borders, a square. a. Square.

Fy nghyfarw oes calaf, dwys dy ngheddi ti a wnaif hyd y bu dy gied yn mhedyaeli byd bellaf.

My bones if I obtain not, thy infamy will I bear as far as, thy fame has been in the furthest four extremities of the world.

H. Culhwch—Mabinogion.

Pedryaw, v. a. (pedry) To make of four parts.

Pedryawg, a. (pedry) Having four parts.

Pedryawl, a. (pedry) Belonging to four.

Pedrychwal, s. m. (pedry—chwal) That spreads out four ways. a. Four ways spreading.

Pedrychwelyd, v. a. (pedrychwal) To spread or separate four different ways.

Pedryfan dwfa pedrychwelyd.

A deep quarry four ways opening. Lleifed.

Pedryd, s. m.—pl. t. on (pedr) A quadrate.

Pedrydan, s. m.—pl. t. au (pedry—tan) That extends or spreads out four ways, four extents, four regions. a. Four ways spreading; universal.

Peryng cyronwair pair pedrydan.

The grapple of depredation of universal way. Cynddalu.

Yn agwath Naws Carnedd, can frôgrau

Dynabryr alaf styf doniau;

Dyblud cled Frydan bedrydanau.

In the action of Naws Carnedd, with the barons wealth dispenses with the splendour of talents; the fame of Britain accumulates in the four regions. Gwalchmai.

Pedrydant, s. m. (pedryd) A quadrate state; a state of perfection. Pedrydant dannau, strings of harmony, tuneful strings.

Croais dy foliant, fal nes rygannat,

Milwr pedrydant, pedrydang ri.

I have sung thy praise, as they will not be able to sin, thou warrior of perfection, chief of perfect form.

Ll. P. Meek, i D. ab Owain.

Arwl marw mawrgol dderogant;

Armes uraf dragon pedrydant!

Come, alas, is the death of the magnificent hope of the oracle; the destiny of the paragon chief of Britons! Cynddalu.

Pedrydanu, v. a. (pedrydan) To extend or spread out four ways.

Pedrydawg, a. (pedryd) Having a quadrature, completely formed, complete.

Pau yw du trued alarch gwyn,

Pedrydawg gwacw iŷlyn.

As the foot of the white swan is black, the sharp spear is unerring. Taliesin.

Milwr pedrydawg Maclawr.

The complete warrior of Marlor. G. F. ab G. ab Edryfdd.

Pedrydawl, a. (pedryd) Of a quadrate state, of a perfect form.

Pedrydiad, s. m. (pedryd) A quadrating; a rendering complete or perfect.

Pedrydu, v. a. (pedryd) To quadrate; to perfect.

Pedrydydd, s. m. (peirly—dydd) The fourth day of the week. Burddas.

Pedryddail, a. (pedry—dail) Quadriphyllous.

Pedryfal, s. m.—pl. t. au (pedry—mal) That consists of four pieces or joints.

Pedryfan, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pedry—man) That consists of four parts: a quarry, a quarter; four regions. Pedryfanocdd byd, the four quarters of the world.

VOL. II.

Adaracynidawg cawaw cyrnau drud
Draig Prydan pedryfan.

The birds-providing one adorned with a wreath, of a brave pre-eminent race the dragons of Britain the complete regions. Ll. P. Meek, i Llywelyn II.

Pedryfannawg, a. (pedryfan) Having four regions or parts, of four quarters.

Pedryfannawl, a. (pedryfan) Belonging to four regions; quaternary.

Pedryfaniad, s. m. (pedryfan) A making into four regions; a quartering.

Pedryfanu, v. a. (pedryfan) To make into four regions; to quarter.

Pedrygan, s. m. (pedry—can) That is contained between four, the quantity that is taken up between three fingers and the thumb.

Pedrygana, v. a. (pedrygan) To pinch up between the three fingers and the thumb.

Pedrygarn, a. (pedry—carn) Having four hoofs.

Pedryging, s. m. (pedryw—ing) The space between the three fingers and thumb closed together; the grasp.

Pedrylaw, s. m. (pedry—llaw) A square or quadrant, such as artisans use. a. Dexterous.

Parwdd o'i adaf, cyn no'i adaw,
Parau post onwair pair pedrylaw;
Pedrytiw ei lath i lath rhag-ia;
Pedrylef cwysafan cyrdd amdanaw!

Ready from his hand, before his departure, were the shafts of the pillar of the chace of dextrous energy; of perfect colour: his blade to slay before him; of continued voice the lamentation of songs for him! Cynddalu, m. R. Ffled.

Pedryled, s. m. (pedry—lled) Complete extension, a square superficies.

Pedrylef, s. m. (pedry—llef) A quadrate voice; a perfect voice.

Pedryliw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pedry—lliw) A quadrate colour, a perfect colour.

Pedrylun, s. m.—pl. t. ian (pedry—llun) A quadrate form; a perfect figure.

Pedryoled, s. m. (pedryawl) That consists of four divisions or intersections; the grasp.

Medd on pedryoled ei law.

As his shafts were scattered from the grasp of his hand.

Pedryoled henawr.

A four-pointed helmet. Anarfin.

Pedryoled, s. m. (pedryawl) Quadrature.

Pedryoli, v. a. (pedryawl) To quadrate, to square.

Pedryollt, s. m. (pedry—ollt) That is cloven or split into four parts; two splits crossing each other so as to form four parts.

A bolt in pedryollt bren.

With a bolt from the intersecting cleft of a piece of timber. D. ab Owain.

Pedryollti, v. a. (pedryollt) To split into four parts; to make an intersecting cleft.

Pedryor, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pedry—or) That consists of four regions; a quadrate.

Pedryori, v. a. (pedryor) To quadrate.

Pedryran, s. f.—pl. t. au (pedry—rhan) Quadrant.

Pedryranawl, a. (pedryran) Quadripartite.

Pedryranu, v. a. (pedryran) To quadrate.

Pedrysawdd, s. f.—pl. pedrysoddion (pedry—sawdd) A square root.

Pedu, v. a. (pad) To ask or to crave in a roundabout way, also to guard against a request, by anticipating a similar want.

Pedw, s. m. (pad) That is made to diverge.

Pedwar, s. m.—pl. t. au (ped—gwar) The number four. a. Four, speaking of masculines.

Pedwaraid, s. m. (pedwar) That is included in four, that consists of four.

Pedwaran, s. c.—pl. t. au (pedwar) A fourth, a quarter, a quatern; a farthing.

3 E

Pedwararbymtheg, s. m. (pedwar—ar—pymtheg) Nineteen. a. Nineteen.
Pedwararddeg, s. m. (pedwar—ar—deg) Fourteen. a. Fourteen.
Pedwarawl, a. (pedwar) Belonging to four.
Pedwarban, s. m. (pedwar—ban) That consists of four parts. a. Of four parts.
Pedwarbanawg, s. m. (pedwarban) A quadrain.
Pedwarcanfed, s. m. (pedwarcant) The four hundredth. a. Four hundredth.
Pedwarcanplyg, s. m. (pedwarcant—plyg) Four hundred times folded.
Pedwarcant, s. m. (pedwar—cant) Four hundred. a. Consisting of four hundred.
Pedwarcanwaith, s. f. (pedwarcant—gwaith) Four hundred times. adv. At four hundred times.
Pedwarcarn, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—carn) Four hoofs. a. Four-hoofed.

Syrthid march oddiar ei bedwarcarn.

The horse may fall off his four hoofs.

Adage.

Pedwarcarnawg, a. (pedwarcarn) Having four hoofs; quadrupedous.
Pedwarcarnawl, a. (pedwarcarn) Belonging to the four hoofs, of four hoofs.
Pedwarcarniad, s. m. (pedwarcarn) A using the four hoofs, a galloping.
Pedwarcarnu, v. a. (pedwarcarn) To use the four hoofs; to gallop.

Yr oedd pethau wedi eu dadyrchwylu, a'n taffu bendramyngi; a nlanas oeddyr yn pedwarcarnu yn ol i Rafain.

Things were become reversed, and thrown topsy-turvy; and we were galloping back to Rome.

Idem.

Pedwardull, s. f. (pedwar—dull) A quadriform.
Pedwardyblyg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pedwar—dyblyg) A quadruplicate. a. Quadruple.
Pedwardyblygiad, s. m. (pedwardyblyg) Quadruplication; a doubling four times.
Pedwardyblygu, v. a. (pedwardyblyg) To quadruplicate, to double four times.
Pedwaredd, s. m. (pedwar) A fourth. a. Fourth.
Pedwariad, s. m.—pl. pedwariad (pedwar) A quaternary, one that is over four.
Pedwariannawl, a. (pedwariant) Quaternary.
Pedwariannu, v. a. (pedwariant) To form a quaternary, to make up of four.
Pedwariant, s. m. (pedwar) Quaternary.
Pedwarochr, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—ochr) Four sides. a. Four-sided.
Pedwarochrawg, a. (pedwarochr) Having four sides.
Pedwarochrawl, a. (pedwarochr) Quadrilateral.
Pedwarochredd, s. m. (pedwarochr) Quadrilaterality; squareness.
Pedwarochri, v. a. (pedwarochr) To make quadrilateral, to render four sided.
Pedwarochriad, s. m. (pedwarochr) A making quadrilateral.
Pedwaroli, v. a. (pedwarawl) To make quarterly.
Pedwarparth, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—parth) Four parts. a. Of four parts.
Pedwarpen, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—pen) Four heads. a. Four-headed.
Pedwarplyg, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—plyg) Four doubles, four folds. a. Fourfold, quadruple.
Pedwarplygiad, s. m. (pedwarplyg) Quadruplication, a making into fourfolds.
Pedwartro, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—tro) Four turns, four times. a. Of four turns.
Pedwartroed, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pedwar—troed) A quadruped. a. Quadruped, four-footed.
Pedwartroedawg, a. (pedwartroed) Quadrupedal.
Pedwartroedogion, quadrupeds.

Pedwartroedawl, a. (pedwartroed) Quadrupedous.
Pedwartu, s. pl. aggr. (pedwar—tu) Four sides. a. Four-sided, quadrilateral.
Pedwartuawg, a. (pedwartu) Having four sides.
Pedwartheg, s. m. (pedwar—deg) Fourteen.
Pedwaru, v. a. (pedwar) To make into four.
Pedwarygwr, s. m. (pedwar—gwr) A fourth person.
Pedworydd, s. m.—pl. t. on (pedwar) A fourth part, a quarter; a quartern. a. Fourth.
Pedyd, s. pl. aggr. (ped) The foot, the infantry.
Pedyddawd, s. m. (pedydd) The infantry.
Pedd, s. m.—pl. t. on (py—edd) The agent of progress; a foot. See ped and troed.
Peddest, s. m. (pedd) Foot travelling.
Peddestr, s. m.—pl. t. on (peddest) A pedestrian.

Gorau peddestr yw gau.

The best traveller is a lion.

Adage.

Peddestres, s. f.—pl. t. od (peddestr) A female pedestrian.
Peddestrig, s. f. dim. (peddestr) A pedestrian.
Peddiad, s. m. (pedd) A travelling on foot.
Peddu, v. a. (pedd) To use the feet, to go on foot.
Peddyd, s. pl. aggr. (pedd) The infantry.

Maddyddan a orug Baldwiph dwyn oeddai syrth am ben Arthur a'i lly, ac Arthur a wylio hysgr awr a orug Arthur ym, oeddau Cadiwr, tywyngwr Cernyw, a chwechiant marchwyr gwynion, ac a thair mil o beddyd ysgyrd ag of, a myned yn cefn; ac a'i ruged y nos hono.

It was proposed by Baldeph to make a night attack upon Arthur and his army; and Arthur knew that: what did Arthur then do, but he sent Cadwr prince of Cornwall, along with six hundred horsemen, and with three thousand infantry, and which should go against him, and meet him on that night.

Gr. of Arthur.

Pef, s. m. (py—ef) That radiates or beams.
Pefr, s. m. (pef) That is radiant, bright, or shining. a. Radiant, splendid, bright, smart.

Doga o aur pefr yw'r gwallt gwyn.

A wreath of radiant gold is the beauteous hair.

I. ab Rh. ab I. Llwyd.

Pefraidd, a. (pefr) Somewhat radiant, gairish.
Pefrawl, a. (pefr) Radiating, brightening, full of gaiety or smartness.
Pefredd, s. m. (pefr) Radiancy, gairishness.
Pefren, s. f. dim. (pefr) A smart little woman.
Pefri, s. m. (pefr) Splendour, gairishness.
Pefriad, s. m. (pefr) A radiating, a rendering bright or gairish; a smartening.
Pefriaw, v. a. (pefr) To cast a splendour, to render gairish, to become gairish, to brighten.
Pefrin, a. (pefr) Of a radiant or splendid appearance, gairish.
Pefrineb, s. m. (peffrin) Gairishness, smartness.
Pefrnydd, s. f. (pefr—nydd) A gay or smart disposition.
Pefru, v. a. (pefr) To radiate, to brighten, to render gairish, to become gairish, to smarten.
Pefrwellt, s. m. (pefr—gwellt) Canary-grass.
Pefryn, s. m. dim. (pefr) A smart bean.
Pefrynaidd, a. (peffryn) Beauish, like a bean.
Pefwch, s. m. (pef) Dilation, effusion.
Pefwg, s. m. (pef) Expansion; effusion.
Pefychawl, a. (pefwch) Expanding, effusive.
Pefychdawd, s. m. (pefwch) Effusiveness.
Pefychedd, s. m. (pefwch) Effusiveness.
Pefychiad, s. m. (pefwch) An opening out, effusion, a gushing.
Pefychu, v. a. (pefwch) To expand, to render clear or open, to become expanded, to puff out.

Pan ddineth o Ffrainc Ffranc, o orchi lechyd rhag clefyd, rhag cwyf doli, Wnobydgar diddar, dym a'i welli Pefychu, trwm, dryg fode Dew.

When there came out of France a Frank, in craving for deliverance from disease, from the ill of blindness, to whom that viage, nothing could be seen; he brightened, he looked, through the will of Dew.

Gr. Brychynnyng.

Peg, s. m. (py—eg) That is an agent of expansion or opening; that expands; also a measure of capacity, equal to eight bushels.

Pegald, s. m.—pl. pegeldiau (peg) The contents of an eight-bushel measure, or a quarter.

Peged, s. m. (peg) A measure of capacity, equal to eight bushels or a quarter.

Pegor, s. m.—pl. t. au (peg) That whereon any thing turns or is suspended; a centre of rotatory motion; a pivot, a pert little fellow, a dwarf. Y pegor drwg! The naughty little urehlin!

Gogws yf pegor Ysodd y dan for.

I partly know what goes there beneath the sea. Tellerin.

Pegoraid, a. (pegor) Like a pivot or axis.

Pegorawl, a. (pegor) Serving as a pivot.

Pegori, v. a. (pegor) To form a pivot.

Pegoriad, s. m. (pegor) A forming a pivot.

Pegoryn, s. m. dim. (pegor) A small pivot or axis; a pert little chap; a dwarf.

Pegwn, s. m.—pl. pegynau (peg) A pole or axis, an axle, a pin, or spindle, a pivot.

Mai y der at y pegwn.

Like the steel to the pole.

Adage.

Pegwr, s. m.—pl. pegyrion (peg) A pivot, or axis; a dwarf, a pigmy.

Pegwrn, s. m.—pl. pegrynau (peg—gwrn) The axis whereon any thing revolves; a pivot.

Pegynawl, a. (pegwn) Belonging to an axis.

Pegyniad, s. m. (pegwn) A forming an axis.

Pegyns, v. a. (pegwn) To form a pivot or axis.

Pei, adv. (pe—l) If it were, if it should be.

Pei egyptianwr ddrwg ag ar ddrwg y byddai wrwg, hi a ddallai ddigw o lched i gynta tan y bore.

If every woman were as swift of foot as of tongue, she would catch more of tightening to kindle a fire in a morning.

Adage.

Peind, s. m. (pai) A rendering objective.

Peiaw, v. a. (pai) To render objective.

Peiawl, s. m. (pai) A being objective.

Peiawi, a. (pai) Objective; perceptive.

Peiawr, s. m. (pai) That is objective.

Peidid, s. m. (paid) A ceasing, a desisting.

Peidiannawl, a. (peidiant) Tending to cease.

Peidiannu, v. a. (peidiant) To make a pause.

Peidiant, s. m. (paid) A cessation, a ceasing.

Peidiaw, v. n. (paid) To cease; to leave off, to give over, to desist. Gwell i ti beidiaw, thou hadst better be quiet; paid da dithau, be quiet, that is a good creature.

Celli a doryll, cellach a baid.

The cunning will deceive, the more cunning will desert.

Adage.

Peidiawl, a. (paid) Tending to cease or desist.

Peidiedig, a. (peidiad) Being left off or ended.

Peidiad, s. m. (pai) A displaying, a raying.

Peidiaw, v. a. (pai) To spread out, to radiate.

Peidiawg, a. (pai) Having a display, rayonnant.

Peiddig, a. (peidiad) Displayed, radiated.

Peidlyd, s. m.—pl. t. au (paid—ty) A bolting-house.

Peillged, s. f. (paill—ced) A tribute of flour; each used to be paid by the prince of Math-raval to the prince of Aberfraw.

Peilliad, s. m. (paill) A bolting or sarching.

Peilliant, s. m. (paill) That is made into flour.

Peillaw, v. a. (paill) To sarch or to bolt flour.

Peillawd, s. m. (paill) A making into flour.

Peillawg, a. (paill) Abounding with flour.

Peillied, s. m. (paill) Bolted meal, or flour.

Peilliedig, a. (peilliad) Reduced to flour.

Peillion, s. pl. aggr. (paill) Fine flour.

Peilliwr, s. m.—pl. peillwyr (paill—gwr) A bolter, or sarcher of flour.

Peillwy, s. m. (paill) Fine flour, or powder.

Peillydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (paill) A sarcher.

Peillyddes, s. f. (peillydd) A female sarcher.

Peiniad, s. m. (pain) A producing a farina.

Peiniaw, v. a. (pain) To yield bloom or farina.

Peiniawl, a. (pain) Tending to yield farina.

Peiodawl, a. (peiawd) Objective, perceptive.

Peiodi, v. a. (peiawd) To render objective.

*Gwled pres f'ith erwald,
A chyd awch belodud,
Trichannil blwyddynedd.*

The present world will be expecting thee, and with ardour will be making thee the object, for three hundred thousand years.

Tellerin, arnes dyddawedd.

Peiran, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pair) A necessary.

Peiriad, s. m. (par) A causer, causer, or effector.

Yr haf—

Peiriad hardd yn peri dail.

The summer, a glorious cause causing foliage.

Dr. ab Owlym.

Peiriad, s. f. (pair) As much as a cauldron holds.

Peirianna, v. a. (peiriant) To bring together causes or instrumentalities.

Peiriannawg, a. (peiriant) Having a cause.

Peiriannawl, a. (peiriant) Causative; effective.

Peiriannawr, s. m.—pl. peiriannorion (peiriant)

An instrumentality; what is conducive.

Peiriannedig, a. (peiriant) Being made instrumental or conducive.

Peiriannedd, s. m. (peiriant) Instrumentalness.

Peiriannolaeth, s. m. (peiriannawl) The act of rendering instrumental; organization.

Peiriannoldeb, s. m. (peiriannawl) Instrumental; conduciveness.

Peiriannolder, s. m. (peiriannawl) Instrumenta-

lity; conduciveness.

Peiriannoled, s. m. (peiriannawl) Instrumenta-

lity; conduciveness.

Peiriannoli, v. a. (peiriannawl) To render instrumental; to become instrumental.

Peiriannu, v. a. (peiriant) To put in a state to act; to organize, to accoutre, to harness. Peir- ianna y cefyl, put the furniture on the horse.

Peiriannus, a. (peiriant) Apt to be instrumental.

Peiriannusaw, v. a. (peiriannus) To render instrumental; to become instrumental.

Peiriannussed, s. m. (peiriannus) Instrumentality; an organized state.

Peiriannusurwydd, s. m. (peiriannus) Instrumentalness; a conducive state.

Peiriannwr, s. m.—pl. peiriannwyr (peiriant—gwr) One who puts in a state for action; an organizer; one who accoutres.

Peiriannydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (peiriant) One who puts in a state to act; an organizer.

Peiriant, s. m.—pl. peiriannau (par) The means or agent by which any thing is accomplished, instrumentality; an instrument, or a tool.

Tri pheiriant Daw yn sbred, er gorffed drug a chlythawl, a diane oddiwrthyst at wynfyd; angos, sughof, ac angos.

The three means of God in the circle of inchoation, for subduing evil and the adverse principle, and to open a way from them to happiness; necessity, loss of memory, and death.

Berthidas. s.

Ni all y corff weithur dim ohono ei hun, ond a wael yr enaid twyddo o, megys trwy beiriant.—Y rhai drwg o megys peiriannau i buraw y rhai da.

The body is unable to perform any thing of itself, but what the soul performs through it, as through a medium.—The wicked ones are no instruments to purify those that are good.

Elucidarius.

Peirwyddiad, s. m.—pl. peirwyddiaid (parwydd) That conveys the knowledge of causing; a verb

Peirwyddiad yw pob gair; neu beth, a arwyddocao gwneuthur. neu bwrind, o ba ddyia, neu beth, neu bwrind y bo y perit bynnag.

A verb implies every word, or circumstance, that denotes a doing, or causing, of what persons, or thing, or existence sever the agency may be. Edgyn.

Peiriennyn, s. m.—dim. (peiriant) An instrument.

Peisgwellt, s. m. (paig—gwellt) Fescue-grass.

Peisgwyn, s. m. (paig—gwyn) The great white poplar.

Peiswyn, s. m. aggr. (paig—gwyn) Chaff; also called us.

Peithadwy, a. (paith) Capable of being made clear or open; capable of being explored.

Peithas, s. f.—pl. t. au (paith) A scout, a sort of scout boat, which with the sails, used to be all of blue colour, to prevent a discovery.

Peithawd, s. m. (paith) The act of making clear or open, a laying waste, a scouting.

Peithdra, s. m. (paith) Planity; exposedness.

Peithedig, a. (paith) Being made plain or clear.

Peithes, s. f.—pl. t. au (paith) A female scout.

Peithfrig, s. m. (paith—brig) A clear top.

Differ fi, fy ner, rhag—

Y pair, gair aaredid, peithfrig poethfrych?

Protect me, my Lord, awful the word, from the furnace of hotly-agitated glowing surface! Casnodyn.

Peithi, s. pl. aggr. (paith) Those that are out or exposed, the people of the open plain; the people of the waste or desert, also those who scout; those who lay waste; the PICTS.

Peithiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (paith) A making clear or open; a reducing to a desert; an exploration; a scouting, a hunting, a looking about.

Peithiannawl, a. (peithiant) Tending to make clear or open, exploratory.

Peithiannu, v. a. (peithiant) To put in a clear or open state; to make into a waste or desert.

Peithiannus, a. (peithiant) Of an open or exposed state; exploratory.

Peithiant, s. m. (paith) The act of making clear or open; a scouting.

Peithiaw, v. a. (paith) To make clear or open; to lay waste; to scout, to hunt, to look about, to search; to look, to seem, to appear.

—Aerpan gedyndeth,
Duru-dra-durn, dragys yd peith.

The battle-uphoking companion, with flat to flat, most violently he lays open. Cynddelw, i O. ab Mudawg.

Peithiawg, a. (paith) Having open space, open, desert, waste, having an open view or prospect

Dy gyanoddi dyfod—
A gwaelidwr gair aetfwr arfawg,
A gwaelidwr am ben yn peithiawg.

Thy custom is to come with the blood-streaming of armed men dealing slaughter, and a veil of blood over the head conspicuously LL. P. Mech.

Braw cwyddam ynghyd yn nghryd anghred;
Yn uffern gathern, gath drefred erwan;
Yn adfa poethfas, peithiawg drwydded.

Fearfully we should have fallen altogether in the lot of iniquity; amongst the fends of hell, a habitation confined and vile; in the reach of a hot place, of devastating course. LL. P. Mech.

Peithiawl, a. (paith) Tending to lay open or waste, of an open or exposed state.

Peithig, a. (paith) That is clear, plain, or open.

Peithin, a. (paith) Abounding with plainness, clearness, or openness.

Peithineb, s. m. (peithin) Planity; openness.

Peithioledd, s. m. (peithiawl) The state of being out, open, or exposed.

Peithw, a. (paith) That is plain, clear, or open.

Peithwr, s. m.—pl. peithwyr (paith—gwr) One who lays open; one who explores.

Peithlong, s. f.—pl. t. au (paith—llong) A scout-boat, an advice-boat.

Peithus, a. (paith) Being plain, clear, or exposed

Peithw, a. (paith) That is obscured or closed.

Peithwg, s. m. (paith) That is plain, clear, open, or exposed, an open space, hunting ground.

Peithwydd, s. pl. aggr. (paith—gwydd) The reeds of a loom, the slay; also called peithyn, peithynau, rhwydau, and brwydau.

Peithyll, s. m. (paith) That opens or yawns.

Peithyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (paith) Open space; open work; that is plain, clear, or open; what clears, or the reed-work of a loom, a slay; a slate, a tile, or other plain body. Peithynau olwyn, the cogs of a wheel.

Y mur a waethpwyd o beithynau pridd herwedig, wedi eu gwrddio o byg.

The wall was made of baked earthen tiles, after being over-spread with pitch. Hamonian yr Ygyrtheg.

Peithynawd, s. m.—(peithyn) The act of reducing to a flat or level; a laying flat.

Peithynawl, a. (peithyn) Tending to reduce to a flat or level; being an open space.

Peithyndawd, s. m. (peithyn) The state of being a flat or plain.

Peithyndo, s. m. (peithyn—to) A tiled roof.

Tan gefall treforedd ni ddwygwr, a fo mab wrthol y rhyngol a'r tal, a billes yn beithyndo.

The fire of a township smithery shall not be made good, which shall have seven fathoms between it and the house, so that it is of tile-covering. Wick Llan.

Peithynen, s. f. dim. (peithyn) That is plain or clear; a plain body, as a slate, tile, a sheet of paper, and the like; the elucidator, or frame of writing, the book of the ancient bards, which consisted of a number of four-sided or three-sided sticks written upon, which were put together in a frame, so that each stick might be turned round for the facility of reading.

Peithyniad, s. m. (peithyn) A making a clear place; a making into a flat; a making flat.

Peithynn, v. a. (peithyn) To make a clear place; to make a flat or plain, to flatten; to lay flat.

Yn nghyrrwydd a Lloegr, llydd amed,
Naw sgale am on a beithyned.

In the contention with Lloegr, of various conflicts, due were for one thou wouldst lay flat. Talsarn, G. Meidwrn.

Peithynwr, s. m.—pl. peithynwyr (peithyn—gwr) One who makes a level; one who lays flat, a layer of tiles.

Peithynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (peithyn) One who forms a flat or plain; one who flattens.

Pel, s. f.—pl. t. i (py—el) That has a principle of motion; a ball, a sphere.

A'r bel o ryfel yr ath,
At baladr o fabolacth.

With the ball from the war he went, on the shaft of youth. Gale y Glyn.

Pela, s. m.—pl. t. on (pel) That moves round or hovers; the titmouse. Y pela glas bach, pen-loyn, the ox-eye, a small bird so called.

Mor blaen a'r pela.

As brisk as the titmouse. Adge.

Pelaidd, a. (pel) Roundish, like a ball, globular.

Peled, s. f.—pl. t. au (pel) A ball, a ballet.

Pled gwyth rhag ofn peled gwr—
Y mwythys dur amrychlyn dyn.

A splendid plate for fear of the bullet of a gun; putting circles of steel round a person. T. Pryg, i orfen gwynion.

Peledu, v. a. (peled) To throw a ball.

Pelidral, s. m. (paladr) The pushing of spears.

*Atol beidral, dywal dilynidd;
Nid arbwyll car corff at gylidd.*

Again shall come the toll of spears, fierce and sharp; the friend shall not spare the body of his fellow.
Gelyddan, armer Prydain.

Pelidriad, s. m. (paladr) A darting of rays; a gleaming; or a darting or pushing of spears.

Diwreiddus bowys pelidriad rhyfel.

The gleaming of war has rooted up Powys. Gwalchmai.

Pelidriannawl, a. (pelidriant) Tending to make a radiancy or gleaming.

Pelidriannu, v. a. (pelidriant) To produce a radiation; to make a radiancy.

Pelidriant, s. m. (paladr) A radiation.

Pelidriaw, v. a. (paladr) To radiate.

Pelen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (pel) A little ball.

Pelenawg, a. (pelen) Having a ball or lump.

Pelennid, s. m. (pelen) A forming into a ball.

Pelennu, v. a. (pelen) To form into a ball.

Pelen, s. m.—pl. t. od (pel) The greenfinch.

*A gylwriad a gant y pelre,
Gyda' adar yn chwarae!*

Best thou heard what the greenfinch sang, playing with his birds!
Englynion y Clywed.

Pelgib, s. f.—pl. t. au (pel—cib) A ball racket.

Peliad, s. m. (pal) A spreading out.

Peliaw, v. a. (pal) To spread out, to brandish.

Pelid, s. m. (pal) Radiancy; splendour.

Pelre, s. m. (pel—rhe) A beating of a ball backwards and forwards; turmoil, bustle, trouble.

*Crithodau mech clyuid eu golygon!
Marchawgfa mor dser am Gaer Llion;
A dial ledwal ar Aranwyddion
A gwara pelre a phen. Saxon.*

Songsters, soon would their cries be heard; an army of horsemen was harrowing round Caer Llion; and the revenge of Idwal on the Aranwyddians; and the playing of ball-buffeting with Saxon heads. Tellicin.

Pelrëd, s. m. (pelre) A playing at ball; a tum-moiling; a bustling.

Pelrëu, v. a. (pelre) To knock a ball about; to play at ball; to turmoil.

Pelu, v. a. (pel) To move by revolving, to throw a ball, to ball, to throw a bullet.

Pelyd, s. pl. (paled) The legs of stockings with the feet cut off; also called bacsau.

Pelydr, a. pl. aggr. (paladr) Pellitory. Pelydr gwyllt, bastard pellitory, or bertram; pelydr dd, black hellebore.

Pelydraidd, a. (pelydr) Radiate; beaming.

Pelydrawg, a. (pelydr) Radiant; rayonnant.

Pelydriad, s. m. (pelydr) A radiating.

Pelydru, v. a. (pelydr) To radiate, to cast rays.

Pelydryn, s. m. dim. (pelydr) A ray, a beam.

Pell, s. m. (py—ell) An extreme limit or verge; the periphery of a circle.

Goren amddiffyafa digawn pell.

The best place of defence is a sufficient distance. Adage.

Pell, a. (py—ell) Being in the round, verge, or horizon; distant, remote, far. Pell iawn, pell byd, par bell, tra phell, very far.

Diawg i oed pryllawg pell.

Remies to an appointment is the remote thinker of it. Adage.

Drwg pachedd o'i bell erlid.

Bad is due from its being far pursued. Adage.

Pell ei ffrag a'i anaw,

Gweryd Machawe araw;

Beidaw Ruddy yn hwn ab Emry Llydaw.

*For his turmoil and his fame, the coil of Machawe is upon him;
Beiding the ruddy is this, the son of Emry Llydaw.*
Engl. Golden Mithyr.

Pellâd, s. m. (pellân) A rendering far; a removing to a distance; a becoming distant.

Pellach, a. (compar. of pell) More distant, farther. adv. At some point of time lately passed, at length, further, furthermore.

Pellaf, a. (superlative of pell) Farthest, utmost.

Pellan, s. c.—pl. t. au (pall) A form or range of seats round an area; the range of seats of an amphitheatre.

Pellân, v. a. (pell) To put far off; to remove far off; to be far removed; to elongate.

Pellbell, a. (pell repeated) Far and far, very far.

Pelldaer, a. (pell—taer) Remotely harassing.

Pellder, s. m. (pell) Remoteness, or distance.

Pelldra, s. m. (pell) Remoteness, distance.

Pelldrem, s. f.—pl. t. iau (pell—trem) A far view; a sight for a distant object.

Pelldremiaeth, s. m. (pelldrem) Dioptrics.

Pelldremiant, s. m. (pelldrem) A far viewing.

Pelldremiawl, a. (pelldrem) Assisting to view distant objects, dioptrical.

Pelldremyn, s. m. (pelldrem) A look to a great distance, a far sight.

Pellddrych, s. m. (pell—drych) A distant view.

Pelledd, s. m. (pell) Remoteness, farness.

Pellen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (pell) That is made for motion; that may be aptly implied; a compact round body; a round mass; a ball of thread, yarn, or other thing; a round lump, or gland in the body of an animal.

Pellenaid, a. (pellen) Like a ball, globular.

Pellenawg, a. (pellen) Having aptitude for moving off; having the form of a ball.

*Rhyddydd Llymawg,
A fydd wr chwannawg;
Arall a ddyfdd,
Pellenawg at llydd
Llewenydd i Frython.*

There shall come into existence Llymawg, who will be an ambitious man; another there will be far-extruding his boat, a triumph to Britons. Tellicin.

Pelleniad, s. m. (pellen) A forming into a ball.

Pellenig, a. (pellen) Of a remote situation, being distant, or remote. s. m. That is situated at a distance, that is of a far course, a stranger.

*—Drynau, wleuch
Naf dalarollon a phelleniglen ffluch.*

Ye hills, praise the Lord of earthly creatures and of rapid far-wandering bodiles. D. Ddu, Hwaddug.

Pellenigaeth, s. m. (pellenig) Any foreign affair.

Gwr cyffwrng, yn llys, ac yn llaw, ac yn aghammaw, ac yn mhob pellenigaeth—yw y taibantyle.

A mediating man, in court, and in congregation, and in combat, and in every foreign affair, is the representative. Triodd Dyffwel.

Pellenigaw, v. a. (pellenig) To render remote, to remove to a distance; to become remote.

Pellenigedd, s. m. (pellenig) Remoteness.

Pellenigiad, s. m. (pellenig) To render remote.

Pellenigrwydd, s. m. (pellenig) Remoteness of situation; an extreme state.

*Arglydd pellenigrwydd perch,
Owain waen blla-fein bllen-farch.*

Lord of the ultimate state of honour, Owain with the sharp pungent spear and foremost steed. Gr. ab D. Fychen.

Pellenigwr, s. m.—pl. pellenigwyr (pellenig—gwr) One who is remote; a stranger.

*Taladwy arwyd eurusledd gan cryr
i bellenigwyr—*

Costly the preparation of the golden feast of the eagle-hero for foreign men. Mad. Dwygraig.

Pellennu, v. a. (pellen) To form into a ball.

Pelliad, s. m. (pell) A rendering remote, a moving to a distance, a furthering.

Pellineb, s. m. (pell) Farness, remoteness.
Pellrwydd, s. m. (pell) Remoteness, farness.
Pellt, s. m. (pell) That is external, a surface.

Answer deil! ach beth allwedd.

Splattered shields about the ground he would leave.

Anarria.

Pelltawg, a. (pellt) Having a surface.
Pelltiad, s. m. (pellt) A forming a surface.
Pelltu, v. a. (pellt) To form a surface or outside.
Pellu, v. a. (pell) To render remote or distant;
 to remove far off.

*Trugarawg Argiwydd, trugaria
 Wrthwyf; i wrthdy n'f'm pellu.*

Merciful Lord, be merciful to me; from thee do not remove me away.

Cynddaleu.

Pellus, a. (pell) Tending to the exterior or verge, surrounding, compact.

Pellyng ei glod, pellus ei galch.

Far-extending his fame, compact his armour.

Anarria.

Pellyn, s. m. (pell) That is extreme or exterior.
Pellynawl, a. (pellyn) Far extending.

Pellynyg, a. (pellyn) Far-extending, far-wandering, far-roaming.

*Pellynyg fy nghof yn Nghaerwys dir;
 Pell ydd wyf!*

Far-roaming is my memory in Caerwys land; and far off am I!

Cynddaleu.

*Pellynyg fy nghof yn nghyffwrdd,
 Yn eithryd cwrn Caerwys feib.*

Far-roaming is my memory in the beginning of summer, on account of loving the nymph of Caerwys.

Gwalchmai.

Pellynu, v. a. (pellyn) To render remote, to remove far off; to become remote.

Pellynau, a. (pellyn) Tending to remoteness.

Pen, s. m.—pl. t. au (py—en) An extremity, end, or conclusion, the upper part; the head; a chief; a capital; a summit; a beginning, or foremost end; the state of being over or upon.
Pen Tir Lloegr, the Land's End of England; pen y bent, the bridge end; y pen yma, y pen hon, this end; y pen oco, pen acw, pen draw, yonder end; wedi dawed i ben, being come to an end; pen ty, house top; pen y ty, the top of the house; pen yn erdd, at logger-heads; bed yn ben, to be a principal; pen y bryn, the summit of the hill; lladron pen ffordd, highway robbers; pen blaen, the foremost end; Dygo kyn ar ei ben ei hun, put this by itself; bwro dwf am ben y tan, to throw water over the fire; mae hi yn chwcerthin am dy ben, she is laughing at thee. Pen y neidr, dog's violet; pennau y gwyr, or llwynhdydd, ribwort plantain.

Tafawd sar yn mhen dedwydd.

A golden tongue is in the head of the wine.

Adage.

*Dy dafawd, wr da difeth,
 Dy ben, yw pen ar bob peith.*

Thy tongue, thou good and infallible man, thy head, over every thing be chief.

Gw. ab Ien. Hwn.

Swedion pen gwlad, rhy wir i hwerthin am en penau.

The common sayings of the multitude, too true to be heeded at.

Adage.

Pen, a. (pen) Head, chief, supreme, principal.

Penad, s. m. (pen) A making chief; a becoming a head, chief, or principal.

Penadar, s. m.—pl. t. on (penad) One that is supreme or principal, a primate, a sovereign.

*—Daw bendad,
 A'th del o'th halat, a'th dolur,
 A'th eiddodf anhawdd gowdd gur!*

God the supreme, bring thee out of thy illness and thy wound, and thy weakness and severely afflicting pain!

G. ab M. ab Doffydd, i Gwery.

*Tri meth Llywelyn:—
 Tri araf penaf penadurion.*

The three sons of Llywelyn these gentle ones, supreme of sovereigns.

D. Benfryn.

Penaduriaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (penadar) Pre-eminence, sovereignty, supremacy.

Penaduriaethu, v. a. (penaduriaeth) To create a sovereignty or pre-eminence.

Penaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen) A pre-eminence, or supremacy, a principal, a chieftain, a chief.

*Nid gair gas, of gowdd gwyn.
 Hyd Gair Llyr, i hyd Gair Lleon,
 Hyd Ystrig Eilgi, hyd Aeron yr aeth
 Ei benneth o Benmon.*

It is no false word, he is the best of heroes; to Chae Llyr, out to Chae Lleon, to the English Ystrig to Aeron has his supremacy extended from Penmon.

Cynddaleu, i G. Gwynn.

*Ei blant a ddancant bob ddan,
 Rhydd tag o bennethau.*

His children come forward too by two, a tale mouthful of chief taint.

Iolo Goch, i G. Gwynn.

Pennaethawg, a. (penaeth) Having sovereignty.

Pennaethawl, a. (penaeth) Belonging to sovereignty; belonging to a sovereign.

Penaethiad, s. m.—pl. penaethiaid (penaeth) One who is supreme or principal, a chieftain.

Penaethu, v. a. (penaeth) To create a supremacy, to act as a chief, or a principal.

Pen sig yn penaethu.

A chief stick exercising pre-eminence.

Gw. Brycheiniog, Fr argl. Rhys.

Pênaf, a. (pen) Chiefest, most eminent.

Penafedd, s. m. (pênaf) Pre-eminence.

Penafiaeth, s. m. (pênaf) Pre-eminence.

Penafwrydd, s. m. (pênaf) Primeness, superiority

Penafu, v. a. (pênaf) To render superior.

Penag, conj. (pe—nag) If not; unless, except.

Penagored, a. (pen—agored) Open at top.

Cwch penagored, an open boat; llistri penagored, vessels without decks.

Penaidd, a. (pen) Prime, superior, or excellent.

Ni bu neb; i—Ni bu Nadd yn benniddolach.

There has been nobody; even Nadd was not more excellent.

Guto y Glyn.

Pennig, s. m. (pen—sig) A supreme stick, a supreme, a sovereign, a chieftain.

*Odd cadarn ddring bennig berth;
 Odd cad gynydd, cad ganorth.*

The fair chieftain was a mighty leader; he was the increase of bounty, the stay of battle.

Blodwyn Fardd.

Pennaeth Gwynedd ai heddyr:

Pau yd ai byll: pau ai da byr!

The prime stick of Gwynedd departs this day: why should reason depart; why is it good to live.

Gw. ab Gwynn, i Gwery.

Penain, s. pl. dim. (pen) Petty chiefs or lords.

*Rhaciradawd ei gladdf uch gwlad;
 Rhaglym fu yn penau penain.*

He carried forward his sword out of the sheath; forwardly has was he terrifying of many chieftains.

Cynddaleu, i H. ab Iwan.

Penant, s. m.—pl. penaint (pen) That is at top or over; supremacy, superiority; also a flag or gritty kind of stone used for paving.

*Yn nghyfoeth Dewi difed gwaen,
 A rhydd heb odd, heb oia amgen,
 Heb eith cyfnewt cyleb i beannu.*

In the donation of Dewi there are friends void of wealth, and liberty without moderation, without fearing a worse, without anxiety of a dispute about his prerogatives.

Gw. Brycheiniog.

Penardd, s. f.—pl. peneirdd (pen—gardd) The point or salient angle of a bending ridge.

Penarth, s. f.—pl. penairth (pen—garth) The jutting or trending of a mountain so as to form a cove; a cape or promontory. It is also called penardd and penairth.

Penaur, s. m. (pen—aur) The bird called yellow-hammer. a. Gold-headed.

Penawd, s. m. (pen) A conclusion or end.

Pennwg, a. (pen) Having superiority, or supremacy; headed. s. m. That is supreme; master. Gydach cened y pennwg, by your leave, master.
Pennwl, a. (pen) Capital, principal, supreme.
Pennwr, s. m. (pen) Superior, supreme, a master; covering, guard for the head; a headpiece, a helmet, also a headstall, a muzzle.
Penbalaedr, s. (pen—paladr) Especial, particular. ado. Particularly.

Deddf ameth Dafydd, ac un y gynsaffwrdd bôn, ac un Cymaru balaedr ar y mab a ddrwy cyfrifolrdd hys.

They impressed the course of God, and the one of that congregation, and the particular one of Wales, on such as should break those laws. Welsh Laws.

Penben, adv. (pen repeated) With heads together, in confusion, at loggerheads. Gyru cwn yn benben, to set dogs together to fight; ni ddylid dodi y pethau hys yn benben, those things ought not to be put confusedly together.
Penbleth, s. m. (pen—pleth) Confusion of the head; perplexity; anxiety, distraction of mind. Pa benblethaydd arno? What perplexity is he in?
Penblethiad, s. m. (penbleth) A distracting the head; a becoming perplexed.
Penblethu, v. a. (penbleth) To distract the head.
Penblydd, a. (pen—plydd) Soft-headed, or dull.
Penboeth, a. (pen—poeth) Hot-headed. Y benboeth, the common hemp-nettle.
Penboethni, s. m. (penboeth) Hot-headedness.
Penbwl, a. (pen—pwl) Blunt headed. s. m. A blunt head, a blockhead, the pilchard, a tadpole. Y penbwl gwirion / thou silly blockhead!
Penbwla, s. m. (penbwl) A blockhead, a dolt.
Penblydd, s. m. (penbwl) Blockishness.
Penblydd, s. m.—pl. penblydd (penbwl) That is blunt-headed, a tadpole.
Penbwl, v. a. (penbwl) To make blunt-headed.
Pencær, s. f. (pen—cær) A metropolis.
Pencais, s. m.—pl. pencaisiaid (pen—cais) A receiver general; a chief treasurer.
Pencawna, v. a. (pen—cawna) To gather the tops of ryegrass; to trifle away time seemingly about business. Gwyddau yn pencawna, geese picking the wild rye.
Pencærddiad, s. m.—pl. pencærddiaid (pencærdd) A chief of song, a chief singer.
Pencærddiaeth, s. f. (pencærddiad) The office of a chief of song, or of a chief musician.
Pencærddiaeth, s. f. (pencærdd) The office or jurisdiction of a chief of song.

Ni all neb bardd credu dim, heb gennad pencærdd hyd y bo ei bencærddiaeth ei, ond bardd gorwedd fydd, canys rhwyd fydd hys.

No bard can ask for any thing, without the licence of a chief of song within the extent of his jurisdiction of song, except he should be a bard of another country, for such a one is free. Welsh Laws.

Pencærddiaidd, a. (pencærdd) Belonging to a chief of song; like a chief of song.
Pencærddiaw, v. a. (pencærdd) To render masterly in song; to compose according to the laws of song.

Pa awli both a bencærddiaid cerdd dafwd!

How many points render complete according to art the vocal song? Sim. Pychan.

Pencærddiawl, a. (pencærdd) As a chief of song.
Pencaisiad, s. m.—pl. pencaisiaid (pencais) A chief receiver, a tax-gatherer.

Einion ab Gwilym ab Gwrsard ab Cuhelyn Fardd a laddes chwec-ar-ugain o bencaisiaid Cema.

Einion son of Gwilym son of Gwrsard son of Cuhelyn the bard, slew twenty-six of the chief-collectors of Cema. Breconian.

Pencenedl, s. m. (pen—cenedl) The head of a family, tribe or clan; the representative of a family.

Ni wdd yn bencenedl ond gwr a ymladdo gyd a'i gar ac a'i ofn; a ddynio gyd a'i gar ac a'i wraddawr; a lochale gyd a'i gar ac a'i grynwr.

It is not meet for any to be the head of family but a man who shall fight with his relation and who shall be feared; who shall speak on the part of his relation and shall be listened to; who shall be surety with his relation and shall be accepted. Adage.

Pencenediaeth, s. f. (pencenedl) The state or prerogative of head of a family.

Ni ddylir pencenediaeth o famwys.

The representation of a family ought not to be from maternity. Welsh Laws.

Pencenedlawg, a. (pencenedl) Having a family representation, as a head of a tribe.

Pencenedlawi, a. (pencenedl) Belonging to the headship of a family or tribe.

Pencerrdd, s. m.—pl. pencerrddion (pen—cerdd) A master of the science of song.

Sef fydd pencerrdd bardd gwddi canllu godair; Ni henw y pencerrdd o rif y awyrdigion llym.—Y bardd teulu a gan yn all yn y noedd, canys y pencerrdd a ddechra.

A master of song is a bard after he shall have obtained a chair; the master of song is not reckoned of the number of the officers of court.—The bard of the family shall sing the second in the hall, for the master of song shall begin. Welsh Laws.

Pencerrdradd, s. f. (pencerrdd—gradd) The degree of a chief or master of song.

Penci, s. m.—pl. t. on (pen—ci) The dog-fish.

Penciwadawd, s. m.—pl. penciwrdodion (pen—ciw—dawd) A chief or leader of a colony; a generalissimo.

Pencilwm, s. m.—pl. pencilymau (pen—clwm) A knob at the end of any thing; a close.

Dawal i fod yn balydd cyboides, pan dybal efe fod pethau wedi dawed fr fath benciwm, mal ag yr oedd yn ddiogel kido of ddiogel ei orladd.

He came to be a profound papist, so soon as he thought that things were come to such a conclusion, that it were safe for him to put off his mask. Ir. Gwyn.

Pencnaw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pen—cnaw) The receiving end of a joint; a joint, or articulation.

Pencnawiau yr esgyrn, articulations of bones.

Pencnawiad, s. m. (pencnaw) The articulation of a joint, a jointing.

Pencnawlaw, v. a. (pencnaw) To articulate a joint, or to form a joint.

Pencnud, s. m. (pen—cnud) The chief of a skulk, the chief of a pack.

Gnawd cry: ahyt abar gwedd bangaw;

I benowd wy gyfod.

A chigfrain cyfyrailu cigwled,

Cigyddion coelion celaned.

The eagle of the waters exalts in spoiling the fair countenance; with the leader of wolves he revels, and with hovering ravens glitted with flesh, butchers with keen bodings for carcasses. Ll. P. Meek, i R. Gwyn.

Pencor, s. m. (pen—cor) The chief of a circle.

Pencun, s. m. (pen—cun) A chief leader.

Pencwd, s. m. (pen—cwd) The top of the bag.

A fu bencwd aeth yn dloewd.

That was the top of the bag is become the bottom of the bag. Adage.

Pencyfeistedd, s. m. (pen—cyfeistedd) The chief place of sitting, the principal seat of assize.

Pencynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—cynydd) The chief huntsman, the tenth officer of the court.

Pencynydd, pedair ceniawg cyfruth y gan bob cnydd mifer; ac wyth ceniawg cyfruth y gan bob cnydd goll, pan roddo y brenin eu swyddau lldyd.

The chief huntsman, four-pence in law shall he have from every huntsman with greyhound; and eight-pence in law from every huntsman with beekhound, when the king grants to them their offices. Welsh Laws.

Pencynghor, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—cynghor) A chief of council; a chief counsellor.

Penchwarëydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (pen—chwarëydd) A principal player.

Penchwiban, a. (pen—chwiban) Light-headed.

Penchwibandawd, s. m. (penchwiban) Light-headedness; capriciousness, freakishness.

Penchwibanrwydd, s. m. (penchwiban) Light-headedness; whimsicality, capriciousness.

Penchwibanu, v. n. (penchwiban) To become light-headed, to become hair-brained.

Pendandde, s. m. (pen—tandde) A scald-head.

Pendarddiad, s. m. (pen—tarddiad) A breaking out of the head, a scabby head; also called pendandde, pengrechi, and crach drwg.

Pendawd, s. m.—pl. pendodau (pen) That is chief; that is ultimate; decision. Pendawd y ty, the principal of the house.

Tri phendawd treis gwaith Duw er peri pob peth; diwyne y drwg, nerthu da, ac amlygu pob gwahalaeth; mae y gwrth y ddylai oddiwrth na ddylai fod.

The three tendencies of the order of God's operation towards causing all things: extenuation of evil, increase of good, and manifestation of every diversity; so that it might be known what should and what should not be. Berddas.

Pendeddig, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—teddig) A principal one, a nobleman.

Pendefig, s. m.—pl. f. ion (pen—tefig) One of the highest rank; a grandee, a man of quality.

Neges pendefig yn rhad.

The errand of a nobleman gratis.

Adage.

*Trystan wyn, bendefig lla,
Car dy genedl, cred a fu,
A minau yn benteculu.*

Fair Trystan, chief leader of a host, love thy nation, overlook what has been, and use the head of the family.

Ymdd. Gwaichmai a Thrystan.

Pendefigaidd, s. m. (pendefig) Like a chieftain.

Pendefigawl, a. (pendefig) Belonging to the rank of nobility.

Pendefiges, s. f.—pl. f. au (pendefig) A woman of high rank; a lady.

Pendefigiaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (pendefig) A state of the highest rank or of pre-eminence.

Pendel, s. m.—pl. t. i (pen—tel) A head ornament, or chaplet.

Gwngaw a orng Brutus, pendel o ddall y gwinwydd am ei ben.

Brutus put a chaplet of the leaves of the vine upon his head.

Brud. y Breninodd.

Pendelu, v. a. (pendel) To put on a chaplet.

Penderfyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—terfyn) A conclusion, a settled point, determination.

Penderfynawl, a. (penderfyn) Definitive.

Penderfynedd, s. m. (penderfyn) Determinateness, conclusiveness.

Penderfyniad, s. m. (penderfyn) A determining; determination, conclusion.

Penderfynrwydd, s. m. (penderfyn) Conclusiveness, determinableness.

Penderfynu, v. a. (penderfyn) To determine.

Penderfynwr, s. m.—pl. penderfynwyr (penderfyn—gwr) A determinator.

Pendew, a. (pen—tew) Thick-headed, stupid.

Pendewedd, s. m. (pendew) Thick-headedness.

Pendiat, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pen—dist) A piazza.

Pendodaeth, s. m. (pendawd) Superiority.

Pendodaeth gwaig, digwylydd-dra merch, ac anwybodaeth mab a droant y byd wyneb i waered.

A wife's governing, a girl's shamelessness, and a boy's ignorance, will turn the world upside down.

Adage.

Pendodawl, a. (pendawd) Discriminative.

Pendodi, v. a. (pendawd) To render peculiar; to become notable; to discriminate.

Uchelwr pendodi, a newly created nobleman; gwr pendodi, a man become conspicuous, or an upstart

Pendodiad, s. m. (pendawd) A rendering particular; a becoming particular; discrimination. Pendodiad teulu, chiefs of a family.

Pendogn, s. m. (pen—dogn) A major part.

Pendoll, a. (pen—toll) Having a head full of holes. Llysen bendoll, a lamprey.

Pendraphen, a. (pen—tra—pen) Having head beyond head; promiscuous. ade. Confusedly.

Pendragon, s. m. (pen—dragon) A chief leader.

Pentraffollach, a. (pen—tra—follach) Having the head beyond the fork; having head over heels. ade. With head over heels; topsy-turvy.

Pendramynwgl, a. (pen—tra—mynwgl) Having the head beyond the neck; headlong. ade. With head foremost; topsy-turvy.

Pendrawn, a. (pen—trawn) Giddy-headed.

Pendraigl, a. (pen—traigl) Having a turning of the head; giddy-headed. Dyn pendraigl sgeler, a reprobate hair-brained person.

Pendreiglaid, s. m. (pendraigl) A turning of the head, a giddiness of the head.

Pendreiglaid, v. a. (pendraigl) To turn or roll the head about.

Pendreigledd, s. m. (pendraigl) The state of being giddy-headed.

Pendrist, a. (pen—trist) Having a drooping head.

Pendristedd, s. m. (pendrist) The penative appearance of the head, pensiveness.

Pendristwch, s. m. (pendrist) A droopingsness of the head, pensiveness.

Pendro, s. f. (pen—tro) A turning of the head, giddiness of the head, a vertigo, the stagger, also called dera.

Pendroad, s. m. (pendro) A turning round of the head; a becoming giddy-headed.

Pendroch, a. (pen—troch) Having the head broken or cut, having the end cut. Sain bendroch, a sound ending brokenly.

Pendroedig, a. (pendroad) Vertiginous, giddy-headed, hair brained.

Pendroi, v. n. (pendro) To become giddy-headed.

Pendroiawg, a. (pendroi) Giddy-headed. Dyn hysgol pendroiawg, a hair-brained person.

Pendrom, a. (f. of pendrwm) Heavy-headed.

Pendromi, v. n. (pendrom) To become top-heavy.

Pendroudawd, s. m. (pendrawn) The state of being giddy-head, or hair-brained. Pendroudawd Cymro, the whimsicality of a Welshman.

Pendronedd, s. m. (pendrawn) The state of being hair-brained; whimsicalness.

Pendroni, v. n. (pendrawn) To have strange whims in the head, to be hair-brained.

Pendroniad, s. m. (pendrawn) A rendering giddy-headed; a becoming giddy or hair-brained.

Pendrwch, a. (pen—trwch) Broken-headed; having the end broken, divided, or shattered.

—Gwnaeth pendragon pendrychion o wyr.

The supreme leader made broken-headed one's of men.

Cyaddan.

Pendrw, a. (pen—trwm) Being heavy-headed.

Pendrychawl, a. (pendrwh) Head-breaking; end-breaking, end shivering.

Pendrychiad, s. m. (pendrwh) A breaking or cutting of the head; a cutting of the end.

Pendrychn, v. a. (pendrwh) To break the head, to break, cut, or shiver the end.

Pendrymaidd, a. (pendrwm) Rather top-heavy.

Pendrymdawd, s. m. (pendrwm) Heaviness of the head, a stupefied state.

Pendrymedd, s. m. (pendrwm) Heaviness of the head, a state of stupefaction.

Pendrym, s. m. (pendrwm) Heaviness of head.
Pendrymiad, s. m. (pendrwm) A rendering top-heavy; a becoming top-heavy.

Pendrymu, v. n. (pendrwm) To become top-heavy; to drop the head; to droop.

Pendwmpian, v. n. (pen—twmpian) To be nodding the head.

Pendwpa, a. (pen—twpa) With a nodding head.

Pendwynaw, v. n. (pen—twynaw) To let the head fall different ways; to stagger.

Penddar, s. f. (pen—dar) A vertigo, a giddiness.

Penddaredd, s. m. (penddar) Giddiness of head.

Penddariad, s. m. (penddar) A rendering giddy, a distracting the head; a becoming giddy.

Penddaru, v. a. (penddar) To produce a vertigo; to distract the head; to become giddy-headed.

Penddiannod, a. (pen—diannod) Indispensable.

Penddifadawl, a. (pen—difadawl) Tending to distract the head, stupifying.

Penddifadiad, s. m. (pen—difadiad) A distracting the head, a becoming stupified.

Penddifadu, v. a. (pen—difadu) To distract the head, to be distracted, to be stupified.

Penddifadden, a. (pen—difadden) Indispensable.

*Eithr yn benddifadden yr dydd ni yn ciodfodi dy dduwawl
 Fawyd, am elo cadw y dydd hwn yn ddaugawl.*

But in a most special manner, we adore thy divine Majesty, for preserving us this day in security. R. Fychan, y Duxialdd.

Penddig, a. (pen—dig) Having an inflamed head.

Penddiged, s. f. (penddig) An inflamed tumour, a phlegmon. Dull y benddiged, St. John's wort.

Penddu, a. (pen—du) Black-head, s. c. Black-head. Y benddu, the marsh cudweed; Penddu, blackcap, several birds so called; penddu y brwyn, the blackcap of the rushes.

Pendduyn, s. m. dim. (penddu) A botch, a bile.

Pendduynawg, a. (pendduyn) Covered with biles.

Penelin, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—elin) The top of the elbow; the elbow.

Nes penelin nog arddwn.

Nearer is the elbow than the wrist.

Adage.

Penelinad, s. m. (penelin) An elbowing.

Penelinaw, v. a. (penelin) To push with the elbow, to elbow, to rest on the elbow.

Penelinawd, s. m. (penelin) An elbowing.

Penenw, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—enw) A surname.

Penenwad, s. m. (penenw) A surnamings.

Penenwawl, a. (penenw) Surnamed.

Penenwl, v. a. (penenw) To surname.

Penes, s. f.—pl. t. an (pen) One that is supreme or of the highest rank of females; a lady.

Penesig, s. f. dim. (penes) A smart little lady.

Peauraid, a. (peaur) Gold-headed. Y beauraid, wood crowfoot.

Peauryn, s. m. dim. (peaur) The yellow-hammer.

Penfaddeu, a. (pen—maddeu) Having the head forfeited; specially forfeited.

Tri gwynt ni ddygwidd yn beufadden.

Three pledges there are which shall not become specially forfeited.

Welsh Laws.

Rhoddi gwynt i fod yn beufadden yn ammodawl.

To give a pawn which may be under condition of sale, at a special time.

Welsh Laws.

Penfain, a. (pen—main) Having a pointed head or top, copped, tapering to the top.

Penfar, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—bar) A muzzle, a muzzle to hinder a calf from sucking.

Penfas, a. (pen—bas) Shallow-pated, dull.

Penfader, s. m. (penfas) A shallow-pated state.

Penfasedd, s. m. (penfas) A shallow-pated state.

Penfaau, v. n. (penfas) To become shallow-pated.

Vol. II.

Penfawr, a. (pen—mawr) Large-headed.

Penfeddal, a. (pen—meddal) Soft-headed; dull.

Penfeddw, a. (pen—meddw) Giddy-headed.

Penfeddwadwl, s. m. (penfeddw) Giddiness of the head, a swimming of the head.

Penfeddwi, v. n. (penfeddw) To become giddy-headed, moidered, or crazed.

Penfeiniaw, v. a. (penfain) To acuminate.

Penfelen, a. (f. of penfelyn) Yellow-headed. Y beufelen or grentus, the groundsel.

Penfelyn, a. (pen—melyn) Yellow-headed.

Penfoel, a. (pen—moel) Bare-headed, bald.

Penfoelidd, a. (penfoel) Bare-headed.

Penfoeldra, s. m. (penfoel) Bare-headed state.

Penfoledd, s. m. (penfoel) A bare-headed state.

Penfoeli, v. a. (penfoel) To make bare-headed.

Penfoelni, s. m. (penfoel) A bare-headed state.

Penfrag, s. m. (pen—brag) A swimming in the head, also called penddar, and pendro.

Penfras, a. (pen—bras) Large-headed, thick-headed, fat-headed. Y penfras, the coal-fish.

Penfrasedd, s. m. (penfras) A thick-headed state.

Penfro, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (pen—bro) A head-land region; also the name of Pembrokehire.

Penffestin, s. f.—pl. t. ion (pen—ffestin) A helmet.

Taraw Arthur yn ei ddal a wnaid Ffello, a phet na rybylwl y cledde yr ar fodwys y penffestin.

Strike Arthur on his forehead was what Ffello did, so that the sword was blunted on the rings of his helmet. Gr. ab Arthur.

Penffestiniaw, v. a. (penffestin) To helmet.

Penffestiniawg, a. (penffestin) Wearing a helmet.

Penffestr, a. m.—pl. t. au (pen—ffestr) A head-stall; a collar.

Penffetur, a. (pen—ffetur) Headstrong, obstinate.

Penffetured, s. m. (penffetur) Peremptoriness.

Penffetus, a. (pen—ffetus) Head-strong.

Penffluwch, a. (pen—ffluwch) Bushy-headed.

Penffluwchedd, s. (penffluwch) Bushiness of head.

Penffol, a. (pen—ffol) Silly-headed, block-headed.

Penffoledd, s. m. (penffol) Blockishness, stupidity.

Penffirwyn, s. f.—pl. t. au (pen—ffirwyn) A head-stall; a muzzle.

Penffirwynaw, v. a. (penffirwyn) To muzzle.

Pengadarn, a. (pen—cadarn) Strong-headed.

Pengadarn yw barn pob dywybod.

Obstinate is the opinion of every knowance.

Adage.

Pengaead, a. (pen—caed) Close-headed.

Pengaled, a. (pen—caled) Having a hard head; headstrong. Y pengaled, the knapweed; also called cluffillys, cramenog, and penlas.

Pengaledrwydd, s. m. (pen—caled) Obstinacy.

Pengaledn, v. n. (pengaled) To become hard-headed; to grow obstinate or headstrong.

Pengam, a. (pen—cam) Wry-headed.

Pengamedd, s. m. (pengam) The state of having the head awry; perverseness.

Pengamiad, s. m. (pengam) A turning the head awry, a bending the head.

Pengamledd, a. (pengam—lledd) Having the head, or end, turning aside.

Pengamrwydd, s. m. (pengam) Wryness of the head, the state of having the head turning aside.

Pengamu, v. a. (pengam) To turn the head awry, to bend down the head; to nod.

Pengamwr, s. m.—pl. pengamwyr (pengam—gwr) A nodder, one who bends the head.

Pengarn, a. (pen—carn) The hard part of the head of some animals; a beak.

Pengem, s. m. (pengam) Wryness of the head.

Pengernyn, s. m. dim. (pengarn) A guard, also called penheiryn and penhaiarn.

3 F

Penglo, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—clo) A close; a stop at the end, a conclusion.

Pengload, s. m. (penglo) A closing up the end.

Penglog, s. f.—pl. t. au (pen—clog) A skull, a noddle; a thickhead, a blockhead.

Denparth clud yn mhenglog.

Two parts of fame in the skull.

Adage.

Penglogaid, a. (penglog) Blockheaded.

Penglogedd, s. m. (penglog) Blockishness.

Penglogeiddrwydd, s. m. (penglog) Blockishness.

Pengloges, s. f.—pl. t. au (penglog) A block-headed female.

Penglogfa, s. f. (penglog) A golgotha.

Penglogi, v. m. (penglog) To grow blockheaded.

Penglogyn, s. m. dim. (penglog) A umskull.

Pengloi, v. a. (penglo) To close the end, to close.

Penglwm, s. m.—pl. penglymau (pen—clwm) A knot at the end.

Pengoch, a. (pen—coch) Red-headed. Y bengoch, the knotgrass; also called y benboeth, y dinboeth, and elinog gech.

Pengochedd, s. m. (pengoch) Redness of the head.

Pengochi, v. n. (pengoch) To grow red-headed.

Pengoll, a. (pen—coll) Having the head lost, having the end lost or hidden.

Pengollawl, a. (pengoll) Having the termination lost; a term in grammar.

Unawdl union y byddo ei gych yn bengollawl.

The anirhythm direct that has its recurrence with a lost termination.

Gr. Robert, Duned.

Pengolli, v. n. (pengoll) To lose the termination.

Pengrach, a. (pen—crach) Scabby-headed.

Pengrachedd, s. m. (pengrach) Scabbiness of the head.

Pengrech, a. (f. of pengrych) Curly-headed; having the end rough.

Pengrechi, s. m. (pengrach) Scabbiness of head.

Pengrechleddf, a. (pengrech—lleddf) Soft with rough termination; a term in grammar.

Pengrechni, s. m. (pengrach) Scabbiness of the head, the state of having a scald head.

Pengrest, a. (pen—crest) Scurfy-headed.

Pengroes, a. (pen—croes) Having a cross head, having the end crossed.

Pengroesi, v. a. (pengroes) To cross the head.

Pengroesni, s. m. (pengroes) The state of having the head, or end, crossed.

Pengron, a. (f. of pengrwn) Round-headed.

Pengrwn, a. (pen—crwn) Round-headed.

Pengrych, a. (pen—crych) Rough-headed; curly-headed; frizzle-headed; having rough or curly ends.

Telamon, gwr grymus oedd, ag ymadrawd eglur ganhaw, a gwallt du pengrych ar ei ben: a dywal a chreulawn oedd wrth ei eiydon.

Telamon was an athletic man; he had a clear pronunciation, and he had black hair with curled ends on his head; and fierce and cruel was he to his enemies.

Ydori Dard.

Pengrychedd, s. m. (pengrych) Curly-headedness.

Pengrychiad, s. m. (pengrych) A becoming curly-headed, or frizzle-headed.

Pengrychni, s. m. (pengrych) Curly-headedness.

Pengrychu, v. a. (pengrych) To render rough-headed or curly-headed.

Pengrynawg, a. (pengrwn) Round-headed.

Pengrynedd, s. m. (pengrwn) Roundness of head.

Pengryuen, s. f. dim. (pengrwn) A round-head.

Pengryniad, s. m.—pl. pengryniad (pengrwn) A round-head.

Pengrynnu, v. a. (pengrwn) To grow round-headed; to grow to a head, as a cabbage.

Pengrynyn, s. m. dim. (pengrwn) A round-head.

Pengwch, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pen—cuch) The fore part or poke of any head covering, a bonnet, a cap; also the capping or the work that joins the two pieces of a flail together.

Pengwch mwy a wlael merch newydd-weddyr.

A yellow bonnet used to be worn by a woman newly married.

Hen Dafydd.

Pengwch, criniawg a dal.

A bonnet, its value is a penny.

Wlad Llew.

Pengwaith, s. m. (pen—gwaith) A chief work.

Pengwas, s. m.—pl. pengweision (pen—gwa) A head servant.

Pengwastrawd, s. m.—pl. pengwastrodion (pengwastrawd) A head groom, being the sixth officer in the prince's household.

Y pengwastrawd a gollf groen ych y gamf, a chroes ych ynd i wneuthur cobystrau i feirch y brenin.

The head groom shall have the skin of an ox in winter and the skin of an ox in summer, to make balers for the horse of the king.

Wlad Llew.

Pengweithiwr, s. m.—pl. pengweithwyr (pengwaith—gwr) A head workman.

Pengwleddwr, s. m.—pl. pengwleddwyr (pengwleddwr) One who is chief in the carousal.

Pengyrnig, a. (pen—cyrnig) Having the head pointed or tapering. Bun pengyrnig, a maid with a tapering crown.

Penhaiarn, s. m.—pl. t. od (pen—haiarn) The gurnard; also called pengernyn, and penhaiarn. Penhaiarn coch, the red gurnard; also called gagfarnog y mor.

Penhebogydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—hebogydd) The chief falconer; being the fourth officer of the royal household.

Penhebogydd a ddylly draian dirwy yr hebogyddion, a wneud y ca morchod.

The head falconer shall claim the third of the fee of the hewers, and the maiden fee of their daughters.

Wlad Llew.

Penhebogyddiaeth, s. m. (penhebogydd) The office of the chief falconer.

Penheirnyn, s. m. dim. (penhaiarn) A gurnard.

Penhoeden, a. (pen—hoeden) Giddy-headed.

Penhwntian, v. n. (pen—hwntian) To have the head ready to fall; to be tottering.

Penhwntiawl, a. (pen—hwntiawl) Top-heavy.

Penlwyad, s. m. (pen—lwyad) The pike, or jack.

Penhwyliar, s. m. (pen—hwyliar) A main mast.

Penhynaf, s. m.—pl. penhynafion (pen—hynaf) A chief of the elders; a title given to the tributary princes of the first rank, who did homage to the monarch.

Caradawg Freichfras penhynaf yn Nghernyn, ac Arthwr y benteyrnedd.

Caradog with the brawny arm chief of elders in Gernyn, and Arthur the supreme prince.

Wlad Llew.

Peniadur, s. m.—pl. t. on (peniad) That is the head; a principal.

Peniad beidd llawr ceiswawr oed;

Peniadur den-r-far Dyfed.

The sovereign of the hands of the floor gloriously shining was treasure; the crown-words of the gay rangers of Dyfed.

Prydydd Dyfychen, i Cyman at Dyfed.

Penial, s. m. (pen) A capital, a helmet.

Dafydd yw—
Penial cerdd, dyfal dafydd.

Dafydd is the chief of song, of persevering virtue.

Med. Dafydd.

Gnawu edyn adnodedd hore;

Gnawu an ban beial ystia.

Congenial for the birds to recognize the more: congenial round the bowl the chief of the man-don.

Gwethirion.

Ni ymadawdd Peredur ei foddol ei gwled y penial a oedd an ben Câl.

Peredur did not change his mind for seeing the helmet that was on the head of Câl.

H. Peredur—Mabynog.

Penialawg, a. (penial) Having a capital or chief; wearing a head-piece or helmet.

Penialu, v. a. (penial) To surmount with a capital; to put on a head-piece.

Penianawli, a. (peniant) Being a capitation.

Peniannu, v. a. (peniant) To make a capitation.

Peniant, s. m. (pen) A capitation, a heading.

Penig, s. f. dim. (pen) A little head; a nipple.

Penigamp, a. (pen—camp) Masterly, chief of the art. Saer penigamp, a masterly wright.

Penigan, s. f.—pl. t. i. (penig) A pink. Penigan ruddgoch, clove pink.

Penlas, a. (pen—glas) Blue-headed. Y benlas, field scabious; also called pengeald. Varieties: Penlas yr yd, and penlas wen, corn blue-bottle.

Penlasu, v. n. (penlas) To become blue-headed.

Penleuni, s. m. (penlas) Blueness of the head.

Penlin, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pen—glin) The head of the knee; the knee.

Penliniad, s. m. (penlin) A kneeling.

Penliniaw, v. a. (penlin) To fall on the knees, to kneel. s. m. The act of kneeling.

Deuni an yn rhodog, ac a beillniad lldo, ac a fynegai lldo; Adraw, po beth a waif i gwl meddianta bywyd brwythaw!

One came running, and he knovied to him, and spoke to him thus; Master, what shall I do to obtain life everlasting.

W. Salisbury.

Maeat hwy yn cynmeryd mwy o hollid mewn penlinio, gweddio, ac ymgydio, mwg ydi y byddolion yn an y byd hwn.

They are taking more delight in kneeling, praying, and fasting, than the worldlings do in the things of this world.

Merchaw Croydad.

Penliniwr, s. m. (penlin—gwr) A kneeler.

Penlōyn, s. m. dim. (pen—glōyn) The blackcap; the titmouse. Varieties: Penlōyn mwyaf, y riac, the chaffinch; pela glas bach, the ox-eye; y llian, gwas y dryw, gucidw, sywidw, the titmouse.

Gwell penlōyn yn llaw na hwyd yn awyr.

A titmouse in hand is better than a duck in the air; A bird in hand is worth two in the bush.

Adage.

Penllad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—lad) A chief good, the highest blessing. Rhad penllad, the grace or gift over measure.

Penlle, s. m. (penlle) Where the head should be; a head stead; a namaskull.

Penllian, s. m.—pl. penllieinian (pen—llian) A head-cloth.

Penllian, wyth penlliang a dal.

A head-cloth, eight-pence in its value.

With Laws.

Penllinyn, s. m. (pen—llinyn) A head-band.

Penllorcan, s. m. (pen—llorcan) A jolt-head.

Penlluestai, s. c. (pen—lluestai) The chief ar-ranger of tents; a quartermaster-general.

Penllwyd, a. (pen—llwyd) Hoary-headed, grey-headed. s. m.—pl. t. ion. The grayling; the sewin. Y benllwyd, common cudweed.

Penllwydaw, v. n. (penllwyd) To become grey-headed or hoary-headed.

Penllwydedd, s. m. (penllwyd) Greyiness of the head, grey-headedness.

Penllwydeg, s. f. (penllwyd) A net for catching graylings, young salmon so called.

Penllwydeg, neu rwyd penllwydlaidd, deuddeg ceniawg a dal.

A grayling net, or a net for graylings, twelve pence in its value.

Welsh Laws.

Penllwydi, s. m. (penllwyd) Greyiness of head.

Penllwydiad, s. m.—pl. penllwydlaidd (penllwyd) The grayling or sewin.

Penllwydni, s. m. (penllwyd) Hoariness or grey-ness of the head.

Penllyw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pen—llyw) The head-leader; a term in building for the stone next to, or which secures, the corner stone.

Penllywawdr, s. m.—pl. penllywodron (penllyw) A chief director or governor.

Penllywodraeth, s. m. (penllywawdr) Supreme government or direction.

Penllywodraethwr, s. m.—pl. penllywodraethwyr (penllywodraeth—gwr) A chief governor.

Penllywodraethydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (penllywodraeth) A governor general.

Penllywydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—llywydd) A sovereign lord.

Penllywyddiaeth, s. m. (penllywydd) Supreme dominion; sovereignty.

Pennill, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—dill) A prime division or part; a complete division; wattle; a pannel, a stall, a pane, a stanza, or strophe, an epigram.

Gwell car cell na ohar pennill.

Better the chamber friend than the song friend.

Adage.

Pennill yw offer o frackiau, o'r un neu fwy o'r cyhyddedion, trwy gadw cymharied, cyglanadedd, gair cyrch, gair toddaid, a chyfochried, ar yr un caled.

A stanza is a number of verses, of one or more of the metricalities, where the common initial, concatenation, word of modulation, and parallel, are preserved on the same rhythm.

W. Middleton.

Pennilliach, s. pl. dim. (pennill) Trifling verses.

Pennilliad, s. m. (pennill) A forming a stanza.

Pennilliaw, v. a. (pennill) To form a stanza.

Cadwynawd—modd gorchestawli iawn a fydd hwn ar oelli a phennilliaw.

The ratiocated rhyme, this is a very masterly mode of rhyming and of forming of stanzas.

Bardus.

Pennilliawg, a. (pennill) Consisting of stanzas.

Mewn cerdd beunilliawg, caner bob pennill o'r gerdd yn gyfalter bennu.

In a composition divided into stanzas, let every stanza be formed of the same number of verses.

Bardus.

Pennod, s. f.—pl. t. au (pen—nod) A concluding mark; a complete period; a chapter.

Pennodawl, a. (pennod) Belonging to a chapter.

Pennodi, v. a. (pennod) To mark the end or conclusion; to divide into chapters.

Pennnoeth, s. m. (pen—noeth) A bare head. a. Bare-headed.

Pennoethi, v. a. (pennnoeth) To make bare-headed; to uncover the head.

Pennoethiad, s. m. (pennnoeth) A making bare-headed; the act of uncovering the head.

Penodawl, a. (penawd) Particular, definitive, especial. Yn benodawl, especially.

Penodedig, a. (penawd) Defined, or specified.

Penodi, v. a. (penawd) To particularize, to specify; to constitute, to appoint, to assign.

Penodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (penawd) A particularizing, or specifying; a specification, assignation, allotment.

Penodiaeth, s. m. (penawd) Specification.

Penodoldeb, s. m. (penodawl) Definitiveness, particularity, speciality.

Penodolder, s. m. (penodawl) Specialness.

Penodoledd, s. m. (penodawl) Specialness.

Penodoli, v. a. (penodawl) To render definitive.

Penodolrwydd, s. m. (penodawl) Specialness.

Penodrwydd, s. m. (penawd) Particularity.

Penodwr, s. m.—pl. penodwyr (penawd—gwr) A specifier; one who assigns.

Penodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (penawd) A specifier

Penon, s. f.—pl. t. au (pen) A pennant.

Penorawg, a. (penawr) Wearing a helmet.

P'enorawl, a. (penawr) Principal, supreme.

Tri bancegyddion seyrreidd Ynys Prydain; Prydain ab Aedd Mawr, Dyfwal Moelmud, a Bran ab Ilyr Llediaith; sef gorw trefn eu trefn hwy ar deyrnadau Ynys Prydain; hyd oes beirdd hwy yu benorawl ar bob trefnau ereill.

The three consolidators of the monarchy of the Isle of Britain: Prydain son of Aedd the Great, Dyfwal Moelmud, and Bran son of Ilyr Llediaith; For the best regulation was their regulation of the monarchy of the Isle of Britain, so that they were deemed superior over every other regulation.

Penori, v. a. (penawr) To render supreme or principal; to put on a helmet.

Penorial, s. m. (penawr) A rendering supreme; a wearing a helmet; a putting on a helmet.

Penpington, s. m. (pen—pinc) Branchy head; the name of a droll character in ancient tales.

Penpington, enw un o berthorion Arthur, Penpligion, one of Arthur's door-keepers.

Penpington a ymddia ar ei ben er ardd ei draed.

Penpington would go upon his head to save his feet.

H. Culchuck—Mabinogion.

Penpryd, s. m. (pen—pryd) A visage.

Penre, s. f. (pen—rhe) A hair lace, a fillet.

Penrhaith, s. m.—pl. penrheithian (pen—rhaith) The chief of the law; that has supreme right; a supreme claimant; a principal evidence. Brenin penrhaith Ynys Prydain, the king of supreme authority of the Isle of Britain.

Drog y llw y llaw ordd beirhaith ei lloedd.

Had is the colour of the hand that was the supreme law of his armies.

D. ab Iwan—Maw.

Meibion Brychan Brycheiniawg a arthyst yu beirheithian yn Ysopu.

The sons of Brychan Brycheiniawg became as chiefs of jurisprudence in Spain.

Llyfr Acheru.

Penrheithiant, s. m. (penrhaith) Supreme jurisdiction; sovereignty of law.

Penrheithiaw, v. a. (penrhaith) To constitute supreme jurisdiction.

Penrheithiawg, a. (penrhaith) Having supreme jurisdiction or loyal supremacy.

Penrudd, a. (pen—rhudd) Ruddy headed. Y beirudd, the common marjoram.

Penrwym, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—rhwym) A head-band, a hair-lace, or fillet, also called penre, ffuen, and ysnoden.

Penrwymaw, v. a. (penrwym) To bind the head.

Na pheirwyma yr ych a fu yn dyllod i'r i d.

Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that shall be carrying the corn.

W. Sellsberg.

Penrwyriad, s. m. (penrwym) Binding the head

Penrwyryn, s. m. dim. (penrwym) A head-band

Penrydd, a. (pen—rhydd) Loose headed; dissolute; having loose ending. Geiriau penryddion, unconnected words; can beirrydd, blank verse.

Penryn, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pen—rhyn) End of a point, a promontory, cape, or head-land. It forms the names of several places: as Penryn Blathdon, Cathness, Penryn Rhionydd, the point of Galloway, in Scotland; Penryn Penryth, Land's End, in Cornwall.

Penrynawg, a. (penryn) Forming a headland.

Penrynu, v. a. (penryn) To form a headland.

Pensach, s. f. (pen—sach) The mumps.

Pensaer, s. m.—pl. penseiri (pen—saer) A chief architect, a chief wright.

Pensaerniaeth, s. m. (pensaer) Architecture.

Pensaerniaidd, a. (pensaer) Architective.

Pensag, s. m. (pen—sag) The hop-plant; hops.

Pensedd, s. f. (pen—sodd) A supreme seat.

Ma'r, addorfa'i ddywywant, ddifael benacod.

Mary, moral and divot, whose throne is without fruitfulness.

Dafydd Dafn, Hiraiddug.

Pensel, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—sell) A supreme object; a grand standard.

*Goren ar ydd gan Wyddyl
Melyn a chwrch yn mloen llwyd;
Uddu bensei Llywelyn;
Arddel hwy a'r oedolw hya.*

The choicest taken with the Irish are yellow and red in the front of sunset; do thou consecrate the supreme standard of Llywelyn; do thou lead them on with these two colours.

Iolo Goch, i O. Gilyddfridur.

Penselliaeth, s. m. (pensel) The office of bearing the grand standard.

Pensigl, a. (pen—sigl) Having a shake of head.

Pensigliad, s. m. (pensigl) A shaking of the head

Pensigliaw, v. a. (pensigl) To shake the head.

*Caerion—
A'm ddystrynt, tan droi ttr,
A then beirigle staf.*

Families treat me with contempt, in passing by, and with wagging their heads at me.

Pensigliwr, s. m.—pl. pensigliwyr (pensigl—gwr) A wagger or shaker of the head.

Penswydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (pen—swydd) A chief or principal office.

Penswyddawg, s. m.—pl. penswyddogion (pen—swydd) A chief of office, a chief officer.

Penswyddwr, s. m.—pl. penswyddwyr (penswydd—gwr) A chief officer.

Pensyfrdan, a. (pen—syfrdan) A giddiness.

Pensyfrdanawd, s. m. (pensyfrdan) Distraction

Pensyfrdanlad, s. m. (pensyfrdan) A distracting the head; a becoming giddy-headed.

Pensyfrdawn, v. a. (pensyfrdan) To distract the head; to become stupefied.

Pentan, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen—tan) A fire back, a fire side; a chimney corner. Cadw gwyl bentan, gwyliau gwyl bentan, to sit up all night

Pentanfaen, s. m. (pentan—maen) The stone that forms the fire-back.

Penteulu, s. m. (pen—teulu) The chief of the family, the president of the household, the patron of the family.

Y penteulu a ddyfod yu fah i'r breud, neu yu mab, neu yu frawd, neu yu gyfunch gwr ag y galier penteulu o hono.

The president of the household should be a son of the king, or a nephew, or a brother, or a man of so high a rank as he may be made a president of the household.

Wrtsh Llan.

Penteulnaeth, s. m. (penteulu) The office of a president, or patron of the household.

Pentwyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen—tewyn) A fire-brand.

Gwae y cynhenus mewn gwlad!

Pentwynion aethu ydynt.

Woe to the contention in a country! They are the firebrands of hell.

Mer. Llan.

Penteyrnedd, s. m. (pen—teyrnedd) The supreme of princes; a sovereign.

Arthur yu beirteyrnedd yu Mhearyn Rhionydd yu y Gogheid, Cyndeyrn Garthwys yu beirteyrn, a Gwrthawel Whedig yu beirhynd.

Arthur a supreme of princes at the promontory of Rhionydd in the north, and Cyndeyrn Garthwys archbishop, and Gwrthawel Whedig chief of elders.

Pentwedd.

Pentir, s. m.—pl. t. edd (pen—tir) A headland, or promontory; also a term used in Meir for a land steward. Pentir Ceinion, Cape Clear, in Ireland.

Pentref, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (pen—tref) The head of a township, a village, or hamlet; also the outskirts or suburb of a city.

Pentrefaeth, s. f. (pentref) A villagery.

Pentrefaidd, a. (pentref) Villatic, village.

Pentrefawg, a. (pentref) Having a village.

Pentrefawl, a. (pentref) Belonging to a village.

Pentrefwr, s. m. (pentref—gwr) A villager.

Pentrefestad, s. m. (pen--treidlad) A supreme oppressor or tyrant.

Pentreiswr, s. m.—pl. pentreiswyr (pen--treiswr) A supreme tyrant or oppressor.

Pentrethwr, s. m.—pl. pentrethwyr (pen--trethwr) A chief tax-man or receiver of taxes.

Pentwr, s. m.—pl. pentwras (pen--twr) A raised heap or pile.

Pentwynaw, v. a. (pen--twynaw) To drop the head in different directions.

Pentwynawl, a. (pen--twynawl) Head-nodding.

Pentwyniad, s. m. (pen--twyniad) A nodding.

Penty, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen--ty) A building added to the main house; penthouse, a shed: also the head house.

*P'nd da yw'r ty yma y!
P'nd hwn yw'r penty cymyl!*

Why is not this house good for me! Is not this the first house for me!
L. G. Coeli.

Pentyrawg, a. (pentwr) Having a heap or pile.

Pentyrawl, a. (pentwr) Accumulative.

Pentyreddig, a. (pentwr) Accumulated, heaped.

Pentyredd, s. m. (pentwr) A heaped state.

Pentyriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pentwr) Accumulation.

Pentyru, v. a. (pentwr) To heap up, to accumulate; to amass.

Y cuned a bratyrir yr amser hwnw, ac a oodir i gadw erbyn amser i ddawed, s'r pryd y bydd raid wrtho.

The produce will be accumulated in that time, and will be put to be kept against the time to come, and the season when there will be a necessity for it.
Jer. Ussak.

Pentyrwr, s. m. (pentwr--gwr) A heaper.

Pentywysawg, s. m.—pl. pentywysogion (pen--tywysawg) A supreme prince.

Pentywysogaeth, s. f. (pentywysawg) A supreme principality.

Penu, v. a. (pen) To render chief or principal; to become chief, to surpass, also to specify, to fix, to appoint.

Tri chyfauster gwyfyd: cyfina yn mhob amserdd ac yn cyfina yn pen; cyfyddu yn phob awen, ac yn au rhagori; caried at bob bys a bod, a thirgati on, ac Daw, ya beaf; ac yn y tri an ym y salf cyfauster uet a gwyfyd.

The three plenitudes of the intellectual world: participation in every nature, with a plenty one predominating; conformity with every end of genius, and in one excellent; love towards every life and existence, and towards one, that is God, more especially; and in these three ones consist the plenitude of heaven and felicity.
Bordas.

Pennuchaf, s. m. (pen--uchaf) An upper end.

Pennuchawg, a. (pen--uchawg) Being pre-eminent

*Tri chlas eu parau, fal Peryddon:
Tri chloa peuya, penuchogion;
Tri chlo ar eu bro rhag bradogion.*

Three with persevering spears, like Peryddon; three keystones of a capital, superior ones; three safe-guards over their country against depredation.
D. Benfras.

Penwag, a. (pen--gwag) Empty-headed. s. m.—pl. penwraig. A herring; also called yagadan.

Penwag, s. m. (pen--gwag) Weak-headed. Dynionas penurion, weak-headed mortals.

Penwader, s. m. (penwan) Weakness of head.

Penwar, s. m.—pl. t. au (pen--gwar) A head-stall; a muzzle; a barnacle, in farriery.

*Pwn âr en, fal penwar yw.
A load on a chin, like a muzzle it seems.*
Iolo Goch, i'w farf.

Penwen, a. (s. f. of penwyn) White-headed.

Penwendid, s. m. (penwan) Weakness of the head, brain-sickness, infatuation.

Penwg, s. m. (pen) That is superior, that is special or peculiar.

Penwig, a. f. (pen--gwig) A head-dress.

Penwigiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (penwig) The dressing of the head; a head-dress.

Penwn, s. m.—pl. penynban (pen--wn) A banner.

Penwyn, a. (pen--gwyn) White-headed. Y penwyn, y bod penwyn, the head buzzard.

Penwynder, s. m. (penwyn) Whiteness of head.

Penwynedd, s. m. (penwyn) Whiteness of head.

Penwyni, s. m. (penwyn) Whiteness of head.

Penwynu, v. (penwyn) To grow white-headed.

Penŵyr, a. (pen--gŵyr) Having the head inclined, wry-headed.

Penŵyrw, v. a. (penŵyr) To incline the head.

Penŵyredd, s. m. (penŵyr) Inclination of head.

Penyd, s. m. (pan) Atonement, penance.

Penydd, s. m. (penyd) A doing penance.

Penyddiaw, v. a. (penyd) To atone, to do penance.

Penyddiawl, a. (penyd) Atoning, expiatory.

Penyddiwr, s. m.—pl. penyddwyr (penyd--gwr) An atoner; one who performs penance.

Penydu, v. a. (penyd) To atone, to do penance.

*Cyl clywynt i llaun i benylu,
Dadl diau angan i eu troddu.*

Whilst they went to churches to do penance, the certain stroke of death pursued them.
Ancurim.

Penydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pan) An atonement.

Penyddawl, a. (penydd) Atoning, expiating.

*Gwith gwyfydlig dwys—
Daw'r aml ym pwn odfel cun penyddawl.*

A blessed work, to bear off earth and heaven before suffering of punishment, thou atoning prince.
Rhith-rdyn.

Penygawl, a. (penwg) Discriminative.

Penygen, s. f. dim. (paneg) The region of the entrails, the paunch.

Mid llawmch yr enaid, or lleawi y benygen.

The soul is not the more satisfied, though the paunch be filled.
Culrg.

Penygu, v. a. (penwg) To render supreme, peculiar, or notable; to discriminate.

Penygai glod penigamp, Penod, a chwmpod, a champ.

He would discriminate superlative praise, in design, compass, and execution.
Gr. Grgg, i D. J. G. Gwilym.

Penyn, s. m. dim. (pen) A capital of a pillar.

Penynad, s. m.—pl. t. on (pen--ynad) A chief judge, a chief justice.

Penynadaeth, s. m. (penynad) Chief justiceship.

Penysgafn, a. (pen--ysgafn) Light-headed.

Penysgafnder, s. m. (penysgafn) Light-headedness, giddiness of the head.

Penystafellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pen--ystafellydd) High chamberlain.

Pepra, v. a. (pebr) To be chattering.

Pepraeth, s. m. (pebr) Chattering, babbling.

Pepriad, s. m. (pebr) A chattering, a chatting.

Peprn, v. a. (pebr) To prate to chat, to babble.

Peprwn, s. m. (pebr) Chattering, babbling.

*Er pan fu Elphin yn nghyrrysedd
Maelgwn, nous iorthes peprwn pell dyfryddod!*

Ever since Elphin has been in the dispute of Maelgwn, has not babbling brought extensive woe!
Ph. Irydydd.

Pepryn, s. m. (pebr) A chatter-box, a chatterer.

Per, s. f.—pl. t. au (py--er) That pervades, that involves, that is involved; a spit; also sweet fruit; pears, pear-trees. Cig ar y ber, meat on the spit.

*Per gortu gormes
Yn mhilyauwyd mnes.*

Pear-tree the best of intruders in the conflict of the plain.
Talliesin, Cud Gollan.

Per, a. (py--er) Delicious, sweet. Afalau perion, ac afalau urion, cultivated apples, and sour apples; cirinen ber, a sweet plum; llais per, a sweet voice.

Perhad, s. m. (peran) A rendering sweet or savory, a becoming sweet or delicious.

Peraidd, a. (per) Somewhat delicious, sweetish, sweet, pleasant.

Perain, s. pl. aggr. (per) Pears; also called gell-aig, ellaig, rhwynn, and peranaw.

Un fân, neu yn felynach
A'r perain wyd o'r preu iach.

Of the same savour, or more delicious than the pears, art thou, from the luxuriant tree. S. Ceri.

Peran, s. c. dim.—pl. t. au (per) A pear.

Peranen, s. f. dim. (peran) A single pear.

Perarogl, s. m.—pl. t. au (per—arogl) A perfume, or aromatic.

Peraroglaï, s. c.—pl. perarogleion (perarogl) A perfumer, a dealer in sweet scents.

Peraroglaidd, a. (perarogl) Odoriferous.

Perarogledig, a. (perarogl) Perfumed.

Perarogleidd, s. m. (perarogl) Perfumery, odoriferousness, fragrantcy.

Perarogli, v. a. (perarogl) To perfume.

Perarogliad, s. m. (perarogl) A perfuming.

Perarogliant, s. m. (perarogl) Fragrancy.

Peraroglin, a. (perarogl) Odorous, fragrant.

Peraroglinaw, v. a. (peraroglin) To render odoriferous or aromatic; to become odoriferous.

Peraroglwyr, s. m.—pl. peraroglwyr (perarogl—gwr) A perfumer, a dealer in aromatics.

Peraroglydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (perarogl) A perfumer, a dealer in aromatics.

Perarwynt, s. m. (per—arwynt) A perfume.

Perâu, v. a. (per) To render sweet, to become sweet, delicious, or fragrant.

Perawr, s. m.—pl. perorion (per) A musician.

Perbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (per—pren) A pear-tree.

Perc, s. m. (per) That is close, compact, or trim; a compact spot; a perch.

Yn fêl bawel dan berc.

Being a low mark under a perch. I. ab R. ab Iwan Llwyd.

Perc, a. (per) Compact, trim, neat, perk.

Percaidd, a. (perc) Tending to involve, wrap, or make compact.

Percawl, a. (perc) Involving, wrapping; tending to be compact or trim; perching.

Perced, s. f.—pl. t. au (perc) That encloses or wraps; a bow net; a wrapper.

Pilln rhag dryghin a drig;
Perced ddiwedd Wyddelig.

A covering against the angry storm; an Irish wrapper of two breadths. D. Ll. ab Ll. ab Gruffudd, i fustell.

Percediad, s. m. (perched) A closing, a wrapping.

Percedn, v. a. (perced) To involve, to close.

Percell, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (perc) A place that is compact or safe; a store place, a magazine.

Hwaw— a wnaeth bercell o Ddinas Basing.

That one made a store place of Basingwerk.

I. Brooke o Fawddwy, Ll. Acha.

Perceta, v. a. (perced) To amass; to gain.

Percetwr, s. m.—pl. percetwyr (perced—gwr)

One who makes compact or shuts in; one who heaps together.

Perciad, s. m. (perc) A rendering compact, close, neat, or trim.

Percin, a. (perc) Tending to involve, make compact, neat, tidy, or trim, a trimming.

Percini, s. m. (percin) The mesentery.

Percu, v. a. (perc) To trim, to make smart.

Percus, a. (perc) Tidy, smart, trim, perk.

Percusaw, r. a. (percus) To render tidy, trim, or smart; to become smart, or perk.

Percusedd, s. m. (percus) Trimness, smartness.

Percusurwydd, s. m. (percus) Smartness, neatness.

Perchen, s. c.—pl. t. oedd (parch) A possessor, owner, or proprietor.

Calli ni blas, anghall hwn berchen.

Calling is I own, simple is I was a possessor. Adage.

Adnau gan berchen.

To pass with the owner. Adage.

Perchenawg, a. (perchen) Having possession.

s. m.—pl. perchenogion. A possessor, an owner.

Perchenawg y tir y lladdwr arno a ddyll ddaug i gwn y neb a'i lladdo.

The proprietor of the land whereon any thing shall be cut of shall claim fifty pence from whosoever shall cut it. Welsh Laws.

Perchenawl, a. (perchen) Possessory, possessive.

Perchenogath, s. m. (perchenawg) Ownership.

Tri rhyw berchenogath y tydd ar dir, herwydd cyfaint: m yw eafyn heb orogyn; all yw gorogyn heb eafyn, trydydd yw gorogyn ag eafyn.

There are three sorts of possessions of land, according to how: one is extent without occupation; the second is occupation without extent; the third is occupation with extent. Welsh Laws.

Perchenogaethawl, a. (perchenogaeth) Belonging to ownership, possessory.

Perchenogaethiad, s. m. (perchenogaeth) A making a possession; a giving possession.

Perchenogaethu, v. a. (perchenogaeth) A making out a possession; a giving possession.

Perchenogawl, a. (perchenawg) Possessive.

Perchenogi, v. n. (perchenawg) To be possessed of, to possess, to own.

Perchenogwyr, s. m.—pl. perchenogwyr (perchenawg—gwr) A possessor.

Perchenoldeb, s. m. (perchenawl) Ownership.

Perchenoli, v. a. (perchenawl) To render possessive, to render possessed, to become possessed.

Perchentyaeth, s. m. (perchen—tyaeth) Possession of a house; a being a householder.

—Eich gwelfr

Penneth perchentyaeth tir.

You will be seen the chief in house-keeping of the land.

Thomas Llwyd.

Perchennu, v. a. (perchen) To possess, to own.

Perchenwr, s. m.—pl. perchennwyr (perchen—gwr) A possessor, an owner.

Perchi, v. a. (parch) To respect, or to honour.

Cadwaladr cerddgar,

Cerddu cyfawr,

Cyfarfa a'n perchi.

The muse-loving Cadwaladr of selecting songs, he met with my honouring.

Gwalchmai.

Perchwerwyn, s. m. (per—chwerw) The white horehound; also called llwyd y cwn.

Perchydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (parch) A respecter.

Yn wir, dymh lletthlawg Moa,

Fenillydd perchydd llarygion.

In truth, there will be one enthused from Moa, a sovereign the respecter of armour-wearing men. Taliesin.

Perdawd, s. m. (per) Delicacy, sweetness.

Perder, s. m. (per) Deliciousness, sweetness.

Perdra, s. m. (per) Deliciousness, sweetness.

Peredd, s. m. (per) Delicateness, or sweetness.

Periddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (peraid) A sweetening, dulcification.

Periddiant, s. m. (peraid) Dulcification.

Periddiaw, v. a. (peraid) To dulcify, to render sweet, or mellow; to become sweet.

Periddiawl, a. (peraid) Of a sweetening quality.

Periddrwydd, s. m. (peraid) Deliciousness.

Periddsain, s. f. (peraid—sain) Euphony.

Peren, s. f. dim. (per) A pear, one pear.

Pererin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (per—er) That has a course through; a pilgrim.

Mi, Fellyr Brydydd, bererin i Bodr,

Porthawr a gynedr gynw dethl.

I, Melyr the Bard, am a pilgrim to Peter, the porter who will regulate appropriate questions. Melyr.

Pererinbren, s. m. (pererin—pren) A pine-tree.
Pererindawd, s. m.—pl. pererindodau (pererin)
 A state of pilgrimage.

Pererindota, v. a. (pererindawd) To peregrinate.

Pereriniad, s. m. (pererin) Peregrination.

Pereriniath, s. m. (pererin) A state of peregrination, or a pilgrimage.

Pereriniaw, v. a. (pererin) To peregrinate.

Perfagl, s. f. (per—magl) The herb periwinkle.

Perfarwhun, s. f.—pl. t. an (per—marwhun) A rapturous trance.

Perfedd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (per—medd) The middle region, centre, or inward part. It is also used as a plural noun: the entrails, the bowels.
Nis doi adref oni bo berfeddion y nos, Thou wilt not come home until it shall be the middle of night.

*A genyw bob tra trwyddi berfedd
 O'i gnatid, o'i rad, o'i rinwedd yn llawch,
 Llewychedig hael yn ei gytadedd.*

He that comprehends every course through its centre, by his permission, by his bounty, by his virtue is protecting, splendid is the sun in its orbit.
Gr. ab Gurgence.

Perfedd, a. (per—medd) Middle, inward, central.
Y bys perfedd, the middle finger; y tri perfedd-af, the three inmost.

Locrian, a gymral y rhan berfedd i'r yys.

Locrian, took the middle portion of the island.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Perfeddawl, a. (perfedd) Belonging to the middle, central; intestinal.

Perfeddiach, s. pl. dim. (perfedd) Intestines.

Perfeddwlad, s. f. (perfedd—gwlad) A middle country; an inland country.

Perfelys, a. (per—melys) Delicately sweet.

Perfaith, a. (per—faith) Perfect, complete.

*Y gwr mwyn-dloeth—
 Y perfaith ddyn praff o ddyg.*

The man pleasingly wise; the perfect person great in learning.
Morgen ab Hywel.

Perfeithdawl, s. m. (perfaith) Perfectness.

Perfeithder, s. m. (perfaith) Perfectness.

Perfeithiad, s. m. (perfaith) A perfecting.

Perfeithiaw, v. a. (perfaith) To perfect.

Perfeithiawl, a. (perfaith) Perfectional.

Perfeithiedig, a. (perfaith) Being perfected.

Perfeithioldeb, s. m. (perfaith) Perfectibility.

Perfeithiol, v. (perfeithiawl) To perfectionate.

Perfeithrwydd, s. m. (perfaith) Perfectness.

Perging, s. m. (perc) That involves, that keeps together, that shelters or defends; a skreen, or settle. a. Enclosing, sheltering. Perging pen-athau, the defence of princes.

*Perging brenin, chweugaint a dal—
 Perging, pedwar-ar-egaint a dal—
 Y pentan haelin a'r perging.*

The first-side sheren of the king, its value is six score pence:—
 A first-side sheren, its value is twenty-four pence:—The iron first-side and the sheren.
Welsh Laws.

*Llew mawr-ild enwsir, llydw bair berging
 Llwrw trylew; llew llawr llaryg deiling.*

A lion great in wrath and vigorous, amply he will cause protection towards the brave, the lion of the ground enveloped in armour.
Cynddelw.

*Rhye—
 Na'm gwrthawd yn dduring,
 Kryr llawyr, llaw berging.*

Rhye, reject me not, harshly, thou eagle of glory, of protecting hand.
Hyypir Hrydydd.

Perhon, adv. (pe—rhon) Be the consequence, be it so, for all that.

Peri, s. m. (par) A causation, a cause.

Peri, v. a. (par) To cause; to cause to effect, to make to do; to bid, to command. Dw a'm peris, God caused me to be; pera tiddi beidaw, bid her to cease; perid imi dy chw, I was commanded to call thee.

Angen a bair i henwrach dathlaw.

Necessity will cause the old woman to trot. Adage.

*Peris af, peryl nef noddfa,
 Per addaw paradwys wyddfa.*

He, the causer of the sanctuary of heaven, did cause the blessed circle of the paradisaical place of presence. Cynddelw.

*Loiaf bair, o bured arwar,
 A beris namsi ac adar.*

I will worship the cause, from so pure a motive, who did cause all things walking and those of wing. Llywelyn Fardd.

Periad, s. m.—pl. t. an (par) A causing, a making to do, a bidding, effectuation, causation.

Periadur, s. m.—pl. t. ou (periad) A causator.

Dw a feler yn y drindod. Tad, Mab, ac Ysbryd Glan, yn graudwr a pheriadur pob peth.

God shall be praised as a Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit the creator and causer of all things. Berddos.

Periant, s. m. (par) Causation, effectuation.

Periator, ger. (periad) In causing, in bidding.

Perid, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (par) That is caused.

*Gallychaf peryl perilydd,
 A beris deigr mab Dalfydd.*

I will adore the Causer of caused things, who caused the tears of the son of David. Bisgwn, M. Cynddelw.

Perig, a. (per) Extreme; perilous.

Perigl, a. (perig) Perilous, or dangerous.

Periglaw, v. a. (perigl) To make extreme or perilous; to administer extreme unction; to become extreme.

Edlida a berid o'i beriglaw.

Vexation was caused from bringing him to extremity. Cynddelw, m. Rhys.

*Ac a'm gwneil peryl, pan beriglawr,
 Perfaith, walth oleg a deg dalwyl.*

And may the Creator, when I go to extremity, make me perfect, a work of the mind, which I may fairly requite!
Binion ab Gwalchmai.

Periglawd, s. m. (perigl) The act of rendering urgent, extreme, or perilous.

Periglaur, s. m.—pl. periglorigion (perigl) One who has to do with what is extreme or dangerous; one who administers extreme unction; a parish priest.

Na ddifanw dy beriglaur.

Do not condemn thy pastor. Adage.

Peritor, sup. (peri) To be causing or bidding.

Perlafar, s. m. (per—llafar) Euphony.

Perlais, s. m.—pl. perleisiau (per—llais) A sweet voice, a melodious voice.

Perlef, s. m. (per—llef) A melodious voice.

Perleisiad, s. m. (perlais) Producing euphony.

Perleisiaw, v. a. (perlais) To produce euphony.

Perlewyg, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (per—llewyg) Ecstasy.

Perlewygaw, a. (perlewyg) Rapturous.

Perlewygfa, s. f.—pl. t. an (perlewyg) Rapture.

O ddwywawl garlad—y deuant ysbrydolia wedoligathau yn y marwhumau ac y perlewygfaau.

From divine love there will come spiritual visions in the death-like trances and the raptures. Cyswgrian Fuchedd.

Perlewylad, s. m. (perlewyg) A yielding a rapture, a falling into a fit of ecstasy.

Perlewugu, v. a. (perlewyg) To fall into rapture.

Perloes, s. f.—pl. t. ion (per—gloes) Ecstasy.

Perloesidd, a. (perloes) Extatic, rapturous.

Perloesi, v. a. (perloes) To enrapture.

Perlysiau, s. pl. aggr. (per—llysiau) Sweet herbs.

Bryslu, fy anwylid—bydd debyg, i lwrch, neu lwdn hydd ar fyn-yddoedd y perlysiau.

Hasten, my love, be like the roebuck, or the young hart on the mountains of the sweet herbs. Irr. Owain.

Perlysiawg, a. (per—llysiawg) Abounding with aromatic herbs.

Perllan, s. f.—pl. t. an (per—llan) An enclosure of sweet fruit; an orchard.

Tri thlwa cenedl: melli, corod, a pherllan; a'r rhai hyny ni ddylhly eu rhannu, na'u cychwynu; namyn rhannu eu ffurthas i'r neb a'u dylho.

The three rarities of a family: a mill, a wear, and an orchard; and those things ought not to be divided, nor removed; but their produce is to be divided amongst such as may have a claim.

Welsh Laws.

Perllanaudd, a. (perllan) Like an orchard.

Perllanawg, a. (perllan) Abounding with orchards

Pob rhan o'r adall—

A'r barch perllanawg llanwyd, hob dawns ond chwyn a hoes.

Every part of the structure, on a region abounding with orchards was filled, without producing any thing but weeds and reeds.

Ellis Wyn, B. Crag.

Perllanwydd, s. pl. aggr. (perllan—gwydd) Orchard trees.

Perllys, s. pl. aggr. (per—llys) Parsley: perllys yr hel, or perllys y morfa, wild celery.

Peron, s. m. (par) That causes or bids to be; the creator; the lord.

Perores, s. f.—pl. t. au (perawr) A female who practises melody, a female musician.

Peroriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (perawr) A producing a sweet sound; a producing of melody.

Peroriaeth, s. m. (perawr) Melody, harmony of sound, foolish idle talk.

Peroriaethawl, a. (peroriaeth) Belonging to the science of music; musical.

Peroriaethu, v. a. (peroriaeth) To make melody, to harmonize sounds; to practise music.

Peroriaethus, a. (peroriaeth) Harmonical.

Peroriaethwr, s. m.—pl. peroriaethwyr (peroriaeth—gwr) A practiser of music.

Peroriaethydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (peroriaeth) A harmonizer of sounds, one who practises harmony, or music.

Perorianawwl, a. (peroriant) Producing music.

Perorianu, v. a. (peroriant) To yield melody.

Peroriant, s. m. (perawr) Practice of music.

Peroriaw, v. a. (perawr) To practise music.

Persain, s. f.—pl. perseiniau (per—sain) Euphony

Perseiniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (persain) A producing euphony.

Perseiniaw, v. a. (persain) To produce euphony.

Perseiniawl, a. (persain) Enphonical; melodious

Pert, a. (per) Smart, spruce, dapper, pert, nice.

Pert pob peth bach ond dlawl bach.

Pretty is every thing little except a little devil.

Adage.

Maeg, pert galeaig por.

The gloves, the pretty present of a chieftain. D. ab Gwilym.

Pertaidd, a. (pert) Of a smart or pert nature.

Pertedd, s. m. (pert) Smartness, neatness.

Perten, s. f. dim. (pert) A smart little girl.

Pertwrydd, s. m. (pert) Smartness, prettiness.

Pertu, v. a. (pert) To render smart or spruce; to become smart, trim, or spruce.

Pertyn, s. m. dim. (pert) A smart little fellow.

Perth, s. f.—pl. t. i (py—erth) A thorn bush.

Trol o bobta y berth.

To turn on each side of the bush.

Adage.

Tlwt i gromau crruosa perthi,

Nau porthal carolau;

Trost fu al hyder o glira;

Trigwaeth nog y dacth yd i.

It is foolish for a buffoon to be gathering hips off the brakes, and that charity should not support him; woeul was his dependence upon the circuit of minstrelsy; three times worse than what has been to him will be come to.

Madawg Dwy,raig.

Perthawg, a. (perth) Abounding with bushes.

Perthen, s. f. dim. (perth) A thorn bush; a bush

Perthearddrain, s. f. (perth—eurddrain) A gooseberry bush.

Perthgas, s. m. (perth—gas) A quick-set hedge.

Perthgan, v. a. (perth—gan) To enclose with quickset hedge.

Perthlys, s. m. (perth—llys) Climbing buckwheat

Perthyn, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (parth) What is appropriate, relating, or belonging to, v. a. To be appropriate, to have relation, to belong.

A berthyn am adyn a ddywdaif;

A borthio gold bid bwyllolaf.

What relates of man I will treat of; he that bears affliction let him be the most concerned.

Llywelyn Perid.

Perthynad, s. m. (perthyn) Appertinence.

Perthynas, s. f.—pl. t. au (perthyn) Relation, relationship, appertinence.

Perthynasawl, a. (perthynas) Appropriate.

Perthynasiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (perthynas) An appropriating; appropriation.

Perthynasoldeb, s. m. (perthynasawl) Appropriateness, an appropriated state.

Perthynasolder, s. m. (perthynasawl) Appropriateness, pertinence.

Perthynasoll, v. a. (perthynasawl) To render appropriate; to become appropriate.

Perthynasolrwydd, s. m. (perthynasawl) Pertinence, appropriateness.

Perthynasu, v. a. (perthynas) To render appropriate, to become appropriate.

Perthynawl, a. (perthyn) Pertaining. Rhagenw perthynawl, a relative pronoun.

Perthynedig, a. (perthyn) Made appropriate.

Perthynedigaeth, s. m. (perthynedig) Appropriation, the state of being relative.

Perthynedigawl, a. (perthynedig) Tending to be appropriate, or pertinent.

Perthyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (perthyn) Appertainment, a rendering pertinent.

Perthynoldeb, s. m. (perthynawl) Appropriateness, relativeness, appertinence.

Perthynolled, s. m. (perthynawl) Appropriateness, relativeness, appertinence.

Perthynoli, v. a. (perthynawl) To render appropriate, to become appropriate.

Perthynolrwydd, s. m. (perthynawl) Appropriateness, relativeness.

Perthynraid, a. (perthyn—rhaid) Relatively necessary; suitable.

Llywelyn Sion—wael drefn a doedharth ar lawer oedl, ar y peth oedd berthynradd iddynt.

Llywelyn Sion reduced to order and method the measures of song, and what was appropriate to them.

Ed. Dafydd.

Perthynu, v. a. (perthyn) To render appropriate, to become appropriate or pertinent, to appertain, to belong, to have relation.

Byr ach bonedd lle nis perthyn iddi na chrog ac chro peth.

Short is the genealogy of nobility to which there belongs neither a thief nor a whore.

Adage.

Perthynus, a. (perthyn) Appropriate, relative.

Nid ydyr fydd yn berthynus i bethau amwg, o achau pethu gwelwng amwg nid rhaid iddynt fydd, ond y gweidd.

Faith is not appropriate to visible things, because faith is not necessary for things seen and conspicuous, but reason.

Merchug Cymrodd.

Perthynusrwydd, s. m. (perthynus) Appropriateness, relativeness, or appertinence.

Peru, v. a. (par) To cause, to effect, to bid to be, to bid, to command.

Abwy a bair wybod lle be.

A carrion will owner it to be known where it is.

Adage.

Perwellt, s. m. (per—gwellt) Sweet-scented vernal grass, also called melyn-wellt.

Perwrg, s. m.—pl. perygon (per) That is of a soft or sweet tone, a musical instrument so called; probably a hurdy-gurdy.

With y drow, an a'i'grwth drwg,
A baw arall a'i' berwg.

By the door, one with his crazy fiddle, and another dirty chap with his hurdy-gurdy. L. G. Cothi.

Perwr, s. m.—pl. perwyr (peru—gwr) A causer, a bidder to be, one who orders.

Perwraidd, s. m. (per—gwraidd) Liquorice.

Perwrychion, s. pl. aggr. (per—gwrachion) Delicious emanations.

Digritfwrch yn cyflawni y clywedigaeth, o'r perwrychion mael-dor, mael y deuant o wauciad y gwefusa.

Happiness replenishing the hearing with the delicious emanations of sweetness, as they proceed from the opening of the lips. Cyngwraig Fuchedd.

Perwydd, s. pl. aggr. (per—gwydd) Wood bearing sweet fruit, fruit trees, pear trees.

Addwyn blodau ar wariath perwydd;
Arall addwyn a Chreawd: cerenwydd.

Delightful the blossoms upon the pear trees; again delightful is it to hold communion with the Creator. Taliesin.

Perwydden, s. f. dim. (perwydd) A pear tree.

Perwyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (par—gwyddiad) A causal faculty, a verb.

Perwyddiadawl, a. (perwyddiad) Relating to, or of the nature of a verb.

Perwyl, s. m.—pl. t. ion (par—gwyll) Occasion.

Perwylaw, v. a. (perwyl) To produce an occasion or event.

Perwylad, s. m. (perwyl) A producing an occasion or event.

Perwylus, a. (perwyl) Eventual, incidental.

Perydd, s. m. (par) A causer, one who bids to be, a bidder, one who orders or gives command.

Peryddon, s. f. (perydd) A stream possessing some powerful virtue; a divine stream; it is the name of some rivers. This appellation is used by the poets for the river Dee, in common with Dyfrdwy, Dyfrdonwy, and Aerfen.

Mae breuddwyd am Beryddon,
Yr yd gwer hir ar gwr hon.

There is a dream respecting Peryddon, that a long fort would rise upon its border. T. Alad, i Grogan.

Peryf, s. m. (par) One who causes: the giver of existence, a creator; one who bids or commands; a sovereign, a king. It has been used for the appellation of Pharaoh; as, Peryf a'i is, Pharaoh and his host.

Awyaf, archaf wrch fawr i beryf
A beris nef a llawr,
Nawdd rhag dy far—

I will put myself under protection, I will ask a great petition to the Creator that caused heaven and earth—a refuge from thy wrath. Cynaddell, i R. ab Urufudd.

Peryf nef, paru fy nghedawd!
Creator of heaven, make pure my breast.

Elin. ab Gwalchmai.

Peryg, s. m. (per) That is extreme or perilous.

Perygl, s. m.—pl. t. on (peryg) Danger.

Yn mhob ciwyf y mae perygl.
In every disorder there is danger.

Adage.

Arhent eu llonran ar y polion heilem—dyoddefyat ddwyfyd perygl angauwl, hyd pan foddwy ar fiodd.

Their ships went upon the iron piles, and they suffered a sudden deadly peril, so that they were drowned by the sea. Brud y Breninocedd.

Perygled, s. m. (peryg) Dangerousness.

Perygliad, s. m. (peryg) An adventuring, a hazarding; a running into danger, an endangering, an exposing to danger.

Peryglu, v. a. (peryg) To endanger, to expose to peril; to become dangerous.

Peryglu am farn fones:
Pan fynych yw pan felinoc.

Running into danger in judging of my life: when thou shalt please in the end of my existence. T. Alad.

VOL. II.

Peryglas, a. (peryg) Dangerous, or perilous.

Peryglusaw, v. a. (perygus) To render perilous or hazardous; to become perilous.

Peryglusedd, s. m. (perygus) Perilousness.

Peryglusrwydd, s. m. (perygus) Dangerousness.

Peryglwr, s. m. (perygylwr) One who endangers.

Pes, conj. (pe—ys) If. It is used conditionally, for pe, and ped, with verbs of the subjunctive and potential modes, preserving the initials of words following in their radical state.

Pesgi, v. a. (pasg) To feed, to fatten; to pamper, to cram, to become fat.

Ban belyg berion a bwyngunio coed.

Conspicuously he feeds the vultures and wild beasts of the wood. Gwalchmai.

Pesgiad, s. m. (pasg) A fattening, a feeding.

Pesgiator, ger. (pesgiad) In fattening or feeding.

Pesgitor, sup. (pasg) To be fattening, or feeding.

Bid diaspad acies; bid an byddia;

Bid pesgitor dyre;

Bid drud glow; a bid row bro.

Be quarulous the siller; be moving the army; be getting fat the wauton; be bold the brave; and be the hill slippery. Llywarch Hen.

Pesgus, a. (pasg) Fattening; nutritive.

Pesgwr, s. m.—pl. t. pesgwyr (pesgi—gwr) A fattener or a feeder.

Pest, s. m. (py—eat) That is violent, pushing, or penetrating.

Pestawd, s. m. (pest) A forcing, a bustling.

Pestodi, v. a. (pestawd) To bustle about; to frisk.

Pestota, v. a. (pestawd) To bustle, to frisk.

Peswch, s. m. (pas) A cough. Mae arnat beswch tost, thou hast a severe cough.

Peswch sych diwedd pob nyth.

A dry cough ends every ill.

Adage.

Pesychawl, a. (peswch) Apt to cough; coughing.

Pesychiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (peswch) A coughing.

Pesychlyd, a. (peswch) Troubled with cough.

Pesychlys, s. m. (peswch—llys) Colicfoot.

Pesychu, v. a. (peswch) To cough. A besycher, that is coughed; that is ejected by coughing.

Pesychwr, s. m. (pesych—gwr) A cougher.

Petrus, a. (pedrus) Apt to cause a start, apt to start, doubtful, dubious. Y petrus, the starters. partridges.

Petrusad, s. m. (petrus) A making a start, a startling; a hesitating, a doubting.

Petrusaw, v. a. (petrus) To startle, to hesitate.

Petrusawd, s. m. (petrus) A startling, hesitation.

Petrusawl, a. (petrus) Startling, hesitating.

Petrusdeb, s. m. (petrus) A state of startling, a state of hesitation, doubtfulness.

Petrusder, s. m. (petrus) Doubt, hesitation, ambiguity, quandary.

Petrusdra, s. m. (petrus) Dubiousness, quandary.

Petrusedd, s. m. (petrus) Dubiousness, scrupulosity, ambiguity.

Petrusen, s. f. dim. (petrus) A partridge.

Petrusgar, a. (petrus) Apt to startle, hesitating.

Petrusgarwch, s. m. (petrusgar) A state of startling, hesitation, doubtfulness.

Petrusi, s. m. (petrus) A startling hesitancy.

Petrusrwydd, s. m. (petrus) Hesitancy; doubt.

Petruswr, s. m.—pl. petruswyr (petrus—gwr) A starter, one who hesitates, a doubter.

Petryael, s. m. (pedry—ael) That consists of four skirts or sides, a square. a. Quadrilateral.

Petryal, s. m.—pl. t. au (pedry—al) That has four points or sides; a square, a space hemmed in on all sides. a. Quadrangular, square.

3 G

Cefn y Petryal; Petryal Cloyd; places so called on Hirwaethog, in Denbighshire. Bedd petryal, a grave sided with four slabs; and such was the grave of Bronwen, the aunt of Caractacus, in an islet still called after her name, in the river Alaw, in Anglesey, where an urn, containing her ashes, was found, in 1813; and which my friend Richard Llwyd, the Bard, is now possessed of. The grave was identified by this passage in the Mabinogi of Bran.

Bedd petryal a wnaid i Fronwen ferch Llyr ar lan afon Alaw.

A square grave was made for Bronwen daughter of Llyr, on the bank of the river Alaw. Mabinogi.

Petryalai, s. c. (petryal) What forms a square, a square used by arithmoors.

Petryalawg, a. (petryal) Consisting of a square.

Petryaledig, a. (petryal) Being squared.

Petryaledd, s. m. (petryal) Squariness of form.

Petryaliad, s. m. (petryal) A squaring.

Petryalu, v. a. (petryal) To square, to quadrate.

Peth, s. m.—pl. f. au (py—eth) A thing, a something, a part, share, or fragment; a portion, a quantity, a little. Mac ganddo ddigon o bethau, he has abundance of riches; dyro beth i mi, give some to me.

Amser sydd i bob peth.

Time there is for every thing. Adage.

Tri pheth y sydd ni char Daw a'r caro; gwelod ymladd; gwelod anghenlli; a gwelod rhodres balchder.

Three things that God will not love such as love them: the seeing of fighting, the seeing of a monster, and the seeing the triumph of pride. Triedd Barddas.

Pethau, s. c. dim.—pl. t. od (peth) A little thing, a new-born infant.

Pethbynag, pron. (peth—pynag) Whatsoever. ade. Be it as it may, however.

Pethyn, s. m. dim. (peth) A tiny little thing.

Penad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pan) A taking repose; a pausing, a hesitation, a puffing, a panting.

Peuannawl, a. (penant) Tending to make a pause or rest; tending to pant.

Peuanna, v. a. (penant) To make a pausing or resting, to be panting.

Peuant, s. m. (pan) The state of pausing or taking rest; a puffing, a panting.

Penaw, v. a. (pan) To spread out; to make a pause, to hesitate, to puff, to pant, to take breath; to breathe with difficulty, to be circumspect, Tarw yn penaw, a bull making a sullen roar, in challenging another.

Penawd, s. m. (pau) A spreading out, circumspection, hesitation, a pausing, a panting.

Peuawl, a. (pau) Spreading out, circumspect, puffing, or panting.

Penawr, a. (pae—awr) Hourly, continual.

Ffawd beunydd ys anffawd beawwr.

Daily good fortune is hourly misfortune. Adage.

Penedd, s. m. (pan) A spreading out state, a state of repose, a panting state.

Penes, s. f.—pl. t. oeld (pau) A place of rest, an inhabited place, a dwelling place; an inhabited country, a country.

Llyn Powys, penes dloibaith.

The leader of Powys, a hopeless country. Cynddelw.

Dybrynaf Deifr i drefed Bowys, l beues ei hendad.

He will hasten the wealth of Deifr to the habitation of Powys, to the country of his grand sire. Cynddelw.

Hynefydd Powys, peues fyged hir,
Peribes gwir, a thir, a llywnged.

The elder of Powys, a country fair and extensive, possessing judicature, and territory, and princely tribute. Llywdd Gwr.

Peufer, a. (peu—mer) Whining, neighing.

Perchen praefer ystir o'r re lyngwng.

Owner of a neighing stud of the named racers. Maliy.

Peuferiad, s. m. (peufer) A making a noise of pleasure in taking repose, a whining.

Peufera, v. a. (peufer) To make a cry of pleasure and repose; to whine, or yelp as a dog; to neigh.

Pennoeth, a. (pae—noeth) Nocturnal. ade. Nightly, every night.

Pennoethawl, a. (pennoeth) Nocturnous.

Pennoos, a. (pae—nos) Nightly, nocturnal. ade. Nightly, every night.

Pennoosawl, a. (pennoos) Nocturnal, nightly.

Pennydd, a. (pae—dydd) Daily, diurnal. ade. Daily, diurnally, every day, continually.

Bach yw crefydd a charitia beunydd am ddiwr.

Little is his religion who is daily hunting for it. Adage.

Treunydd a pheunydd a phryth.

The day after to-morrow, daily and for ever. L. G. Cethi.

Gwae a wyl ei arglwydd beunydd.

Woe to him who is overlooked by his lord daily. Adage.

Pennyddlawl, a. (pennydd) Diurnal, daily.

Penysyth, s. m. (pae—syth) A dovetail, in joinery.

Penysythiad, s. m. (penysyth) A dovetailing.

Penysythu, v. a. (penysyth) To dovetail.

Pentu, adv. (pae—tu) On each side, on both sides, about. It is mostly used in South Wales, and deutu prevails in the North. O bentu yr afon, on each side of the river; pentu yr eglwys, about the church.

Adfyd a ddysg i dilyn edrych a beutia.

Adversity will teach a man to look about him. Adage.

Penus ac a beutiaf y gwylfaw y gawryth.

About it and about it like the moth round the candle. Adage.

Pentuawl, a. (pentu) Belonging to each side.

PI, s. f. r.—pl. t. od. The state of being in, the state of being identified in; a magpie, so called from its habit of keeping to the same spot.

Nid syw ond y bi.

Nothing so pert as a magpie. Adage.

Pia, s. f. dim. (pi) A pie, or magpie.

Mor ffrach a'r pia brith ar y hertth.

As pert as the spotted pie on the bush. Adage.

Piad, s. m. (pi) A possessing, or owning.

Piannawl, a. (piant) Possessory, possessive.

Piannu, v. a. (piant) To make out possession.

Piant, s. m. (pi) Possession, or ownership.

Piau, v. a. (pi) To own, to be owner of, to possess. Pwy biau hwn? who owns this? Ti a pian, thou dost own it; mi biau yn, one is mine; ti biau y llall, thou dost own the other.

Bloddyn ab Cynfyn—

Ei ban a bloedd hen Bowys.

Bloddyn son of Cynfyn himself possessed old Powys. Cynlyn Owain.

Ni buont hir eu bywyd,

Nawnyd bloeddyn y byd.

They were not long of life, the nine worthies who possessed the world. S. ab Iffwal.

Gorffwyl gan Ddaw fry: gwedy gweiddio

Gorlod gorffwylw barnuys hwn!

May I be existing with God on high! after my prayers he bestowing rest by possessing paradise. Enion, ab Gwalchmai.

Pian, adv. (pi) Who owns, whose, whose is it?

Piau y gaer rhaco? Meredig a wyl ruch: Nid oes yn y byd na wyddu pian y gaer hon: Wnach dlawr y pian.

Who owns yonder castle? Stupid men to measure ye are! There be not in the world, but know who owns this castle: the mighty Wrnach owns it. H. Cuthbert—Mabynogion.

Plaw, v. a. (pi) To own, to be owner of.

Piawd, s. m. (pi) A possessing, or owning.

Frydded yf i ddyr ffrwydded, / Piawd cerdd cadair pryddion.

I am a poet, in the presence of a ladies of Britain, possessing the song of the chair of poets. Canol.

Piawg, a. (pi) Having possession, or possessed.
Piaw, a. (pi) Possessing, owning; being owned.
Pib, s. f.—pl. t. au (py—ib) A pipe, a tube, a squirt, a lax, a musical pipe; a flute. Piben cod, bagpipes; pib gorn, a horn pipe: Pib woad, the bloody flux.

Adh hwy ar gym a pibell:

That is gone upon birds and pipes; or become a domestic talk. Adag.

Pibaw, v. a. (pib) To make use of a pipe, to puff through a pipe, to squirt, to pipe.
Pibawg, a. (pib) Having a pipe, piped.
Pibawl, a. (pib) Belonging to a pipe, laxative.
Pibawr, s. m. (pib) That is like a pipe.
Pibell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (pib) A pipe, a duct, a tube, a musical pipe. Pibell odyn, a kiln pipe; pibell wynt, or breuant, a windpipe.
Pibellaidd, a. (pibell) Like a pipe or a tube.
Pibellawg, a. (pibell) Having pipes, piped.
Pibelliad, s. m. (pibell) A forming a pipe; a piping, a smoking.
Pibellu, v. a. (pibell) To form a pipe, to pipe.
Pibellwr, s. m.—pl. pibellwyr (pibell—gwr) A pipe-man, a smoker.
Pibellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pibell) A piper.
Piben, s. f. dim. (pib) A pipe. Piben odyn, the pipe of a kiln.
Pibenawg, a. f. (piben) Jointed pipework.
Pibiaeth, s. m. (pib) The act of piping.
Pibion, s. pl. aggr. (pib) Squirtings.
Pibfed, a. (f. of piblyd) Apt to squirt, squirting.
Piblyd, a. (pib) Apt to squirt, squirting.
Piblys, s. m. (pib—llys) The fix-weed.
Pibon, s. pl. (pib) Pipes, what are as pipes.
Pibonwy, s. m. aggr. (pibon—gwy) Sleet, icicles.
Pibori, s. m. (pibawr) A state of piping or shooting out; a budding. v. a. To pipe or shoot out, to bud.

Yr eod iawn-dio llythlis— / Pori ar oder y pibori / Amen fyth, o mynaf i!

The nightingale of a glowy fair brown hue; he she on the canopy of budding; Amen, for ever I would have it so! D. ab Gwilym.

Pibbrig, a. (pibawr) Piping or shooting out.

Ashien beven bibrig, / Mefyn ei haeron, nid mada eu mesig.

Apple-tree delicate and beginning with buds; yellow its fruit, not to be chewed by the multitude. Myrdin.

Pibwr, s. m.—pl. pibwyr (pib—gwr) A piper.
Pibydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pib) A piper. Pibydd cod, a bagpipe player; pibydd y traeth, the sandpiper; pibydd glas, ash-coloured sandpiper; pibydd llywy llydandroed, grey scolloped sand-piper; pibydd du mawng, black-spotted sandpiper; pibydd gwyrdd, green sandpiper; pibydd rhwddgech, the dunlin.

Diga pawb o anall y pibyd.

Dispersing to every body the breath of the piper. Adag.

Pibyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (pibydd) Female piper.
Pibyddiaeth, s. m. (pibydd) Pipe-playing.
Pibyddiaethu, v. a. (pibyddiaeth) To practise piping, or pipe-playing.
Picell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (pig) What is darted, a dart, a javelin.
Picellal, s. c. (picell) A dart thrower.
Picellawg, a. (picell) Armed with a dart.

Picelliad, s. m. (picell) A throwing a dart.

Picellu, v. a. (picell) To throw a dart.

Picellwr, s. m.—pl. picellwyr (picell—gwr) A dart-man, a thrower of darts.

Picellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (picell) A darter.

Picffon, s. f.—pl. picffyn (pig—ffon) A pike-staff.

Picfferch, a. f.—pl. picffyrch (fforch) A pitchfork.

Piciad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pig) A darting, a making a sudden pass, a going suddenly.

Piclaw, v. a. (pig) To dart, to fly suddenly. Picia yno a brydd yn ol, run there and make haste back.

Gof du i blicen pair del, / Owr yug a gwyl iael.

A black man to throw a churchful word; a crazy man with a low stoop. F. Fry.

Piciawl, a. (pig) Darting, flinging.

Piciedig, a. (piciad) Being darted or flung.

Picwd, s. m.—pl. picydau (pig) The prickled dog, or houndfish; also called ci pigda, and ci pigawg.

Picwsmalu, s. m. (pig—malu) Oat bread crumbled into butter-milk.

Picyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (pig) A wooden vessel hooped, used for eating out of.

Picynaid, s. m.—pl. picyneidiau (picyn) As much as a picyn will hold.

Picynwr, s. m.—pl. picynwyr (picyn—gwr) A good man at the picyn.

Picynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (picyn) A picynier.

Pid, s. m. (py—id) What tapers to a point.

Pidyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. od (pid) A pintle. Pidyn y gog, the herb wake-robin.

Pientod, v. a. (piau—bod) To be possessed of, to be owner. Gwyn ei fyd bieu/fai! Happy him who should enjoy it!

Pleuo y fowch sed yn ei illosgwrn.

Who sees the cow let him take to her tail. Adag.

Piff, s. m.—pl. t. iau (py—iff) A puff, or blast.

Piffiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (piff) A puffing.

Piffaw, v. a. (piff) To puff, or to whiff.

Pig, s. f.—pl. t. au (py—ig) What terminates in a point, a pointed end, a point, a pike; a beak, bill, or nib; the pipe, a disease amongst fowls.

Pig yr drwn, the crane-bill; also called troed-radd: pig y bun, shoots of river horse-tail; pig y cryr, stork's-bill.

A moes achwyn maw uchel, / Rhag nes y dyn rhygas del: / Y mae'r byd yma ar big / Yn tuedd at eiddig!

And let me complain out aloud, against the life of a person odiously cheerful: this world is on a pivot placed, inclining to the jealous cove! F. Fry.

Pigaw, v. a. (pig) To prick, to prickle; to sting; to pick; to peck. Pigodd dreen fl, a thorn has pricked me; piga y goronon, pick the best ones; iar a biga y brwion, a hen will pick the crumbs; mae yn pigaw gwlaw, it spits of rain.

Pigawd, s. m. (pig) The act of pricking.

Pigawg, a. (pig) Prickly, full of points. Cross bigawg, a cross fitchee.

Pigawglyn, a. (pigawg—llyn) Sharp pointed.

Pigawglymaidd, a. (pigawglyn) Rather sharply pointed, or acuminate.

Pigawglymedd, s. m. (pigawglyn) The state of being sharply pointed.

Pigawglys, s. pl. aggr. (pigawg—llys) The spinach; also called pigoga.

Pigedig, a. (pig) Pricked, prickled.

Pigfain, a. (pig—main) Sharp-pointed.

Pigfau, s. m. (pig—maw) A mark of a point.

Pigfaniad, s. m. (pigfan) A punctulating.
Pigfanu, v. a. (pigfan) To punctulate.
Pigfeiniad, s. m. (pigfain) Acumination.
Pigfeiniaw, v. a. (pigfain) To acuminate.
Pigfforch, s. f.—pl. pigffyrch (pig—fforch) A pitchfork.
Pigiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pig) A pricking; a stinging; a picking; a culling.
Pigiedig, a. (pigiad) Picked, stung; picked.
Pigin, s. m. (pig) A stitch, or pricking pain.
Pigion, s. pl. aggr. (pig) Picked things; selections; excerpitions.
Pigl, s. m. (pig) The herb hounds-tongue.
Pigoden, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (pigawd) A prickle; a sharp point; a sting; a field mouse.
Pigoga, s. f. (pigawg) The spineage.
Pigwlaw, s. m. (pig—gwlaw) A spitting rain.
Pigwlawlaw, v. n. (pigwlaw) To spit of rain.
Pigwn, s. m.—pl. pigynau (pig) A round heap or tump; a cone; a turret; a beacon.
Pigwr, s. m.—pl. pigwyr (pig—gwr) A pricker, a stinger; a picker.
Pigwrda, s. m. (pig—gwrda) A sort of play, similar to the one of "This is the house that Jack built."
Pigwrn, s. m.—pl. pigyrnau (pig—gwrn) A pinnacle, a spire.
Pigyn, s. m. dim. (pig) A stitch in the side; a pleurisy. Pigyn rhedeg, a stitch caused by running; pigyn astrus, morciber, a weaver.
Pigyrnaidd, a. (pigwrn) Like a pinnacle, spired.
Pigyrnawg, a. (pigwrn) Having points or asperities; pinnacled, turreted. Dyn pigyrnawg, a wrangling person.
Pigyrnawl, a. (pigwrn) Shooting out in a spire.
Pigyrniad, s. m. (pigwrn) A shooting out in a point or spire.
Pigyrnn, v. a. (pigwrn) To render sharp; to form a pinnacle; to wrangle; to be crabbed.
Pil, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pi—il) That goes round; that is round; that hovers about; a sergeant, or apparitor; a surface, that is thrown off; a peel, paring, or rind.
Pil, s. m.—pl. t. iau (py—il) A small inlet of the sea filled by the tide; generally called Camlas in North Wales.
*N'fth ddallio pil, na mlwr,
 Na thwrn dwyn, na thir us dwr.*
May neither sergeant nor warrior then entrail, nor enclosing turn, nor land, nor water. L. Morgengwg.
Pila, s. m.—pl. t. on (pil) A finch; also called pinc, pincyn, ysbincyn, and telor. The varieties are, Pila pen aur, gold-headed finch; pila cap sidan, silk cap finch; pila glas, blue finch; pila glas bach, small blue finch, or titmouse.
Pilai, s. c.—pl. pileion (pil) A moth; a butterfly; also called ciller, clogyn, and clogyn byw.
Pilai yn ei wing, gwynnen yn ei mel.
A butterfly in his coat, a bee in her honey. Adage.
Pilaid, a. (pil) Transient, frail, weak, poor; mean, wretched; sickly, indisposed. Gwael, cwla, and salw are generally used for it, in North Wales. O chwiwgi pilaid! Oh thou sculking mean dog! Gwaith pilaid iawn, very indolent work; yd pilaid iawn, very poor corn; wyf yn bilaid iawn, I am much indisposed.
Pilan, s. f.—pl. t. od (pil) Sparrow hawk; a spear.
Pilc, s. m. (pil) That turns or whisks about.
Pilcod, s. pl. (pile) The fish called menows.
Pilcodyn, s. m. dim. (pilcod) A menow.
Pilcoes, s. f. (pil—coes) The plane tree.

Pilcota, v. a. (pilced) To catch menows.
Pildin, s. m. (pil—tin) A galling by riding.
Pilen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (pil) A cuticle, a membrane, a thin skin, or rind; a fringe, or border. Sych-bilen, a web in the eye.
Pilenaidd, a. (pilen) Membraneous; filmy.
Pilenawg, a. (pilen) Having a cuticle or thin skin; covered with a film.
Pilentiad, s. m. (pilen) A forming a cuticle; a covering with film.
Pilentlyd, a. (pilen) Apt to produce a thin skin.
Pilenn, v. a. (pilen) To form a cuticle of thin skin; to be covered with film.
Piler, s. m.—pl. t. au (pil) A pillar, a post.
Pilerawg, a. (piler) Having a pillar; columnar; pilared.
Pilieriad, s. m. (piler) A forming a column or pillar; a building upon pillars.
Pilern, v. a. (piler) To make a pillar; to build upon pillars; to set up pillars.
Pileryn, s. m. dim. (piler) A small column.
Piliad, s. m. (pil) A stripping the surface, a paring, a peeling.
Pilant, s. m. (pil) A taking off the surface, or rind; a paring, a stripping, a peeling.
Piliaw, v. a. (pil) To take off the surface, rind or skin; to peel, to pare; to pillage. Piliaw brwyn, to peel rushes.

Piliaw wy cyn ei bodd.

To peel an egg before it is roasted. Adage.

Y bol a bli y cefa.

The belly will strip the back. Adage.

Pilant a rhwyngt yr yd;

Pia l'r ddera a ddedyd.

They will strip away and will tear about the corn; a plague light on that devil. T. Pryp, i gung.

Piliawd, s. m. (pil) A stripping the surface, a rinding, a peeling.
Piliawg, a. (pil) Having a coating, rinded.
Pilledig, a. (piliad) Pared, stripped, peeled.
Pilig, s. m. dim. (pil) That is of rind, bark, or skin; a vessel made of any rind; a laver.
Pillion, s. pl. aggr. (pil) Strippings, peelings.
Pillionen, s. f. dim. (pillion) A thin skin or film; a fine membrane; a thin peeling.
Piliwr, s. m.—pl. pilwyr (pil—gwr) A stripper, parer, or peeler.
Pilo, s. m.—pl. t. au (pil) An apparitor's rod.
Pilus, a. (pil) Apt to fly about; transient; frail, weak; poor, mean, wretched.
Pilwrn, s. m.—pl. pilyrnau (pil—gwrn) A dart.
Pilyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (pil) A piece of skin; a clout, a rag; a tegument, a piece of any texture used as a covering or garment; also a horse cashion or pillion. Pilyn gwddf, a neckkerchief.
Pilyndawd, s. m. (pilyn) A covering; habillment, garment, or vesture.

*Nid wyt nes ei dillad twym-glyd,
 I gaddio'r cawod, i statl anawdy;
 Osi bod i'r parci pilyrnau,
 I statl bai, i gaddio perchawd.*

Thou art not the nearest for warmly-sheltering clothes, to hide the flesh, to keep off cold; if thou shouldst, thou shouldst a covering to keep off vice, to hide sin. R. Pritchard o Llanidfa.

Pilyniad, s. m. (pilyn) A putting on a garment; a wrapping in any covering.
Pilynn, v. a. (pilyn) To cover with a garment.
Pilys, s. m.—pl. t. au (pil) A covering or robe made of skin; a pelisse.

Rhith Gaur a waal bllys o gwyns barfan breinorodd.

Rhith the Giant made a pelisse of the scalps of the heads of kings. Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhod pils rhwydau pall
Rhita Gwyr ar hyd dau gi.

There was put the covering of the velvet settings of Rhita the Giant over the two dogs.

Pilysawg, a. (pilys) Wearing a robe or pelisse.

Pilysyn, s. m. dim. (pilys) A robe, a pelisse.

Pill, s. m.—pl. t. ion (py—lll) That which turns round; a pivot; a shaft; a base, a stem, or stalk; a stump, or stake; a stock; a heater for ironing; a goal, or spot to retire to in playing; a strong hold, a fortress; a support, or what keeps together, a frame. Gwr yn mhill yn gwera lawbwrdd, a man in a secure place playing at chess: Pill bucl, the tongue of a buckle; pill clo, the hip of a lock; dyn yn byw ar ei bill, a person living upon his means. Sil. Pillion ac ehillion peithynen, the supporters and staves of the bardic writing frame.

Ni thry i'w bill neu enilll das.

He will not turn to his hold until the game is gained.

L. G. Cethi.

Blawd man yw'r pen ar bob pill.

Pine flour seems the covering upon every stem.

D. ab Gwilym, i'r cery.

Bwrw llen uchlaw pen pob pill.

Casting a veil above the top of every stem.

L. Goch ab Idris Hen, i'r cery.

Ei barnu, ei arfau arfioch,

Ei helyll, ei bill, a'i bwl coch.

His spear, his weapons of tumult, his tents, his fort, and his red throat.

Cynddelw, i O. Cyfeiliog.

Pillgorn, s. m.—pl. pillgryn (pill—corn) The neck bones, the neck joints. Pillgorn y gwegil, the nape of the neck.

Pillgun, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pill—cun) A plug.

Pillguniad, s. m. (pillgun) A plugging.

Pillguniaw, v. a. (pillgun) To stop with a plug.

Pilliad, s. m. (pill) A fixing a shaft or stem; a pegging; a forming a hold or place of safety.

Pilliaw, v. a. (pill) To shaft, to stem, to peg, to form a hold or place of safety.

Pilliawg, a. (pill) Having a pivot, or shaft; pegged; having a strong hold.

Codfarchwng pilliawg pwyll angliar gwdd
Gordwy ei egeru.

A warrior on a steed with a shaft terribly fierce in vanquishing his foes.

Prydydd Dydan.

Pilliedig, a. (pilliad) Shafted, stemmed; pegged.

Pillwydd, s. pl. aggr. (pill—gwydd) Dried wood, dead trees left standing.

Pillyn, s. m. dim. (pill) A small shaft, stem, or stock; a stake; a peg.

Pin, s. m.—pl. t. au (py—in) A pin; a stile for writing with; a pen.

Pinbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (pin—pren) The pine-tree; also called pinwydd.

Pinc, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pin) A sprig, a spray; also the bird called a finch.

Pinc, a. (pin) Smart, brisk, gay, or fine.

Mor blac a'r penearin.

As brisk as the yellow-hammer.

Adage.

Pincedig, a. (pinc) Being made smart.

Pincedd, s. m. (pinc) Smartness, briskness.

Pincen, s. f. dim. (pinc) A sprig, a spray.

Y dryw—ar hyd pincenau,
Llywd foddus amlad foddwi.

The wren, along the sprays, brown, contented, of wanton thought.

T. Pry.

Pinciad, s. m. (pinc) A sprigging, a spraying.

Pinciant, s. m. (pinc) A state of sprigging.

Pinciaw, v. a. (pinc) To sprig, to spray.

Pinciawl, a. (pinc) Tending to sprig.

Pincwydd, s. m. (pinc) Smartness, briskness.

Pincyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (pinc) What is smart or gay; a sprig, a spray; also the finch; also called pila, pinc, ysbincyn, and telor.

Piner, s. m. (pin) That is fastened with a pin.

Piniad, s. m. (pin) A fastening with a pin.

Piniaw, v. a. (pin) To pin, to stick a pin.

Piniawl, a. (pin) Being fastened with a pin.

Piniedig, a. (piniad) Fastened with a pin.

Piniwn, s. m.—pl. piniynau (pin) A gable, or end wall of a building.

Pinwg, s. m. (pin) That is tapered or pointed.

Pinwydd, s. pl. aggr. (pin—gwydd) Pine-wood.

Pinwydden, s. f. dim. (pinwydd) A pine-tree.

Pinygl, s. m.—pl. pinyglau (pinwg) That runs into a point; a pinnacle.

Pinygliad, s. m. (pinygl) A forming a pinnacle.

Pinyglu, v. a. (pinygl) To form a pinnacle.

Pioden, s. f. dim. (piawd) A planner, a magpie.

Piog, s. f.—pl. t. od (pi) A pie, a magpie.

Piogen, s. f. dim. (piog) A pie. Piogen y coed, caseg y dryc-hin, a jay; piogen y mor, the sea pie.

Pipgnau, s. pl. aggr. (pib—cnau) Chesnuts.

Pipian, v. a. (pib) To be piping, to pule.

Pipianaid, a. (pipian) Apt to be puling.

Pipianawl, a. (pipian) Tending to pule.

Pipianllyd, a. (pipian) Apt to be puling.

Pipianu, v. a. (pipian) To be piping, to pule.

Piplanydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pipian) A puler.

Pipre, s. f. (pib—rhe) A diarrhoea, or a lax.

Pis, s. m.—pl. t. ion (py—is) A spout, that is spouted; a piss; urine, piss.

Pisaw, v. a. (pis) To piss, to make water.

Ni phis bardddig ei hun.

A gentleman will not piss by himself.

Adage.

Pisawd, s. m. (pis) The act of voiding urine.

Piser, s. m.—pl. t. i (pis) A jug, a pitcher.

Pisg, s. pl. aggr. (py—isg) Small blisters; pods.

Pisgen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (pisg) That consists of little blisters or pods; also a pimple, a wheal; the linden.

Pisgennu, v. n. (pisgen) To rise in little blisters; to break out in wheals; to pod.

Pisgwrn, s. m.—pl. pisgrynod (pisg—gwrn) A pimple, or wheal.

Pisgwydd, s. pl. aggr. (pisg—gwydd) Lime trees, linden trees; also called Palatryf.

Pisgwydden, s. f. dim. (pisgwydd) A linden-tree.

Pisgrynawg, a. (pisgwrn) Having pimples.

Pisgrynaiad, s. m. (pisgwrn) A breaking out in pimples.

Pisgrynau, v. n. (pisgwrn) To break out in pimples.

Pisgrynyn, s. m. dim. (pisgwrn) A small pimple.

Pislon, s. pl. aggr. (pis) Urines, stales.

Pialath, s. f.—pl. t. au (pis—llath) A bar laid to keep in the litter of a cowhouse. See llesoddbren.

Pislyd, a. (pis) Apt to void urine; diabetical.

Pislydrwydd, s. m. (pislyd) Aptness to void urine.

Pisodyn, s. m. dim. (pisawd) The quantity of urine voided at one time.

Hanbydd achwaneg y mor o blodyn y dryw.

The sea will be augmented by the rising of the wren.

Adage.

Hawdd croni ffrwd pisodyn.

It is easy to dam the current of a pissing.

Adage.

Pistyll, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pis—tyll) A spout.

Pistyll yr ysgyfaint, the spout of the lungs, or lower part of the trachea; pistyll y brwaut, the top of the windpipe.

Pistylliad, s. m. (pistyll) A spouting out.

Pistylliaw, v. n. (pistyll) To spout out.

Pistylliawg, a. (pistyll) Having a spout.

Plaw, s. m. (plw) What is staid as urine; also the same as dissal, the draining from where cattle are kept.

Plawydd, s. pl. aggr. (pis—gwydd) Spindle trees.

Plawydd, s. f. dim. (plawydd) A spindle-tree.

Pitan, s. t. dim. (pid) A teat, a nipple.

Pitw, a. (pid) Very little, minute, or petty.

Pith, s. m.—pl. t. ion (py—ith) That is like grains, that is granulated.

Pitheh, s. f.—pl. t. od (pith) A shardfish.

Piw, s. m.—pl. t. od (pi) A dug, or udder.

Pla, s. m.—pl. t. an (py—lla) That expands, opens, or breaks out; a plague.

Daeth i lwyth Hwfa pla plyg.

There befel to the tribe of Hwfa a double affliction.
Bledydd Fardd.

Pŵlaid, a. (pla) Like a plague, plaguy.

Plawg, a. (pla) Having a plague, or pestilence.

Plawli, a. (pla) Belonging to the plague.

Plad, s. m. (py—llad) What is driven out, what is beaten out, or flattened; any flat piece; plate

Tra bo dur m plad, tra bo dewr na fwrch.

Whilst there be steel or plate, whilst there be the bold or active.
W. Llŷn.

Pladr, s. m. (plad) That spreads out flatly.

Pladren, s. f. dim. (pladr) That is spread out.

Pladres, s. f.—pl. t. l (pladr) A shewy woman.

Pladru, v. a. (pladr) To spread out, to flaunt.

Pladur, s. f.—pl. t. iau (plad) A scythe.

Pladuraw, v. a. (pladur) To use a scythe.

Pladurawd, s. m. (pladur) A stroke of a scythe.

Pladuriaeth, s. m. (pladur) A making use of a scythe.

Pladuriaeth, s. m. (pladur) The use of the scythe.

Pladurwr, s. m.—pl. pladurwyr (pladur—gwr)

One who uses a scythe, a mower.

Placaw, v. a. (pla) To plague, or to torment.

Owl hydell i mi dy nerth, a chymeryd trugaredd arnall, dithau a fyddi yn cael dy blaenw gyda hwynt.

If I were not to strengthen thee, and have mercy upon thee, then thou wouldest be getting thyself to be tormented with them.
Merchawg Cwrgdrau.

Plaid, s. f.—pl. pleidiu (pla—id) That parts or divides off; a side; a partition; a wall; a part; a party; a cause. Plaid wellt, a straw partition. O blaid, on the part of, because of.

Rhaid wrth amhwylll pylll parawd.

With indiscretion there is cause for ready wit. Adage.

Deffraw, fup! differ l'enaid,
Dew! dyn bhm sy dan dy blaidd.

Awake, fair maid! God save my soul; an afflicted person is under thy wall. D. ab Edmunt.

Plan, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pla—an) That is parted off; or that proceeds from; a ray, a scion or shoot; a plantation, or planting; also a plane.

Planad, s. f. (plan) A shooting off; that shoots or radiates; that is generated; a flowing element; a meteor.

Pillwr adall, ple'r ydwynt!
Planad wylit, pa le nid wyt!

Stripper of a building, where art thou; wild meteor, where art thou not!
Marcudd ab Rhys.

Tad planad wlad; tad nwl dylaw gwys;

Tad l'r gwyn, gwaith ei law;

Tad gwenith, tad cglaw;

Tad yw l'r gwlith, tad l'r gwlaw.

The father of the regular fluid element; father of the silent pale mist; father of the wind, the work of his hand; father of the fair corn; father of germination; father is he of the dew; father to the rain. L. G. Cuth.

Planc, s. m.—pl. t. ian (plan) That is driven out; that is flat; a plank, or board. Bura plac, a sort of hard thin bread, used in Carmarthen-shire.

Hob na chainog, na chlogog,
(Bhm yw'r clwyd) yu blaenw glan.

Sometimes without a penny, or a cloke (vacations in the chapel) like a bare board. Griffith ab Iwan.

Planaid, a. (plan) Tending to shoot off.

Planawd, s. m. (plan) A producing by shoots; the act of planting.

Planawg, a. (plan) Producing shoots; planted.

Planawl, a. (plan) Tending to shoot; belonging to planting.

Planed, s. f.—pl. t. au (plan) That shoots or radiates; a shooting body; a planet.

Planedawl, a. (planed) Planetical, planetary.

Planedig, a. (planig) Being produced by shoots; planted, or set.

Planedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (planed) Planetarium

Planfa, s. f.—pl. planfeydd (plan—ma) A plantation, or nursery of trees.

Planiad, s. m. (plan) A planting, a setting shoots

Planig, a. (plan) Being apt to produce shoots.

Planigfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (planig) A plantation.

Planigyn, s. m. dim. (planig) A shoot; a plant.

Plant, s. pl. aggr. (plan) Emanations; issue, offspring, children.

Plant gwirionedd ynt ben ddifrethion.

Old proverbs are the children of truth. Adage.

Tri nodau plant Daw: ymddwyn diffrich, ogyrwyd iau, a g'oddel camwedd yn anymddig.

The three characteristics of the children of God; conduct void of pride, a pure conscience, and the bearing of injury patiently. Burdens.

Planta, v. a. (plant) To get or to bear children.

Plantach, s. pl. dim. (plant) Little children.

Plantaid, a. (plant) Like children; childish.

Rhaid f'r durtion fod mor blaiddad na eidd ar cyfrydd.

It is necessary for pious ones to be so like children as not to be possible to make them crafty. Morgan Llŷd.

Plantawg, a. (plant) Having children.

Plantawl, a. (plant) Belonging to children.

Plantaidiad, s. m. (plantaid) A becoming like children.

Plantaidiaw, v. n. (plantaid) To become like children; to grow childish.

Plantos, s. pl. dim. (plant) Little children.

Planu, v. a. (plan) To shoot off; to produce a shoot or offspring; to plant, to set shoots.

Planwr, s. m.—pl. planwyr (planu—gwr) One who produces shoots; a planter.

Plas, s. m.—pl. t. au (pla—as) An extended flat or area; an edifice; a large house, a hall.

Llyw defnlawg lldlawg, lledled fydd ei bla:

Llyw'r-waeth yw ei gas ho'l garynydd.

The bounteous and wrathful leader, displayed with profusion his hall; much worse is his hate than his connective. Llydd Gw.

Plasaid, a. (plas) Like a hall; like a palace.

Plasawl, a. (plas) Belonging to a hall.

Plast, s. m. (plas) That is spread out.

Plastr, s. m.—pl. plastrion (plast) That is spread over; a plaster, a daub.

Plastrawg, a. (plastr) Covered with plaster.

Plastriad, s. m. (plastr) A plastering.

Plastriaw, v. a. (plastr) To plaster, to daub.

Plastriwr, s. m. (plastr—gwr) A plasterer.

Plasu, v. a. (plas) To form an extended area; to build a large edifice; to build a large house.

Plän, v. a. (pla) To expand, to break out; to infect with a plague, to plague.

Pled, s. m. (py—lled) A principle of extension.

Pledr, s. m. (pled) That stretches out.

Pledridd, a. (pledr) Tending to stretch.
Pledren, s. f. dim. (pledr) A bladder, a bowl.
Lleuaid pledren o flaud, a bowlful of meal. Dyf.
Pledrig, s. f. dim. (pledr) A little bladder.
Pledra, v. a. (pledr) To stretch or extend out.
Pledryn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (pledr) A slang, or slip : waste ground by the way side.
Pleiden, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (plaid) What serves for a partition ; a hurdle, a wailing.
Pleidgar, a. (plaid) Apt to side ; factious, partial Pybyr wnar, pleidgar blwg.

A vigorous leader, factious and relentless.

Iolo Goch. i O. Glyndyfrdwy.

Pleidgarwch, s. m. (pleidgar) Factiousness.
Pleidiaid, s. m. (plaid) A taking a part.
Pleidiant, s. m. (plaid) The act of taking a side.
Pleidiaw, v. a. (plaid) To take a part, to side.
Pleidiawg, a. (plaid) Of a side or party ; factious.
Pleidiawl, a. (plaid) Belonging to a party.
Pleidiolrwydd, s. m. (pleidiawl) The state of belonging to a party.
Pleidiwr, s. m. (plaid—gwr) A partisan.
Pleidwriaeth, s. m. (pleidiwr) The state of being a party-man, or a partisan.
Pleidwyn, s. m. (plaid—gwyn) Party rage.
Pleidydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (plaid) A partisan.

Yn y ffurtyddyn oes y dygryn pleidyddion leuaf ab Idrwal Goffrid ab Harallt y drydy-waith i Fen.

In the year 985 the partisans of Idrwal son of Idrwal brought Goffrid son of Harallt the third time into Men.

Cered. Llengwrth.

Pleiniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (plan) Radiation.
Pleiniaw, v. a. (plan) To radiate, to cast rays.
Pleiniawg, a. (plan) Having rays.
Pleiniawl, a. (plan) Radiating, casting rays.
Plenig, a. (plan) Radiant, splendid, glorious.

Chredus Arglwydd! bywyf caredig fry,

Yn y fro ddeuwig—

Ar wraeth Efa blant blenig.

Gracious Lord! may I be beloved on high, in the blissful region, on the covenant of the glorious children of Efa.

Gr. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Plent, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (plan) That is rayed.
Plentyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. od (plant) A child.
Plentyinaidd, a. (plentyn) Childish, babyish.
Plentyinawl, a. (plentyn) Belonging to a child.
Plentyneiddiad, s. m. (plentyinaidd) A becoming childish, a becoming like a baby.
Plentyneiddiaw, v. n. (plentyneidd) To become childish ; to become as a baby.
Plentyneiddrwydd, s. m. (plentyneidd) Childishness.
Plenydd, s. m. (plan) Radiance ; display ; light.

Tri chrynddigion beirdd Ynys Prydain;

Plenydd, Aflaw, a Gwron.

The three primordials of the bards of the Isle of Britain ; Light, Harmony, and Energy.

Pleth, s. f.—pl. t. i (py—lleth) A plait, a braid.
Plethadwy, a. (pleth) Capable of being plaited.
Plethawl, a. (pleth) Plaiting, or wreathing.
Plethbin, s. m.—pl. t. au (pleth—pin) A bobbin, a small pin used in weaving.
Plethedig, a. (pleth) Plaited, wreathed, braided.
Plethiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pleth) A plaiting, a braiding, a wreathing ; a doubling ; a twirling ; also a shake in music.
Plethlinyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (pleth—llinyn) A plaited cord, or bobbin.
Plethw, v. a. (pleth) To plait, to braid, to wreath.
Plethwr, s. m.—pl. plethwyr (pleth—gwr) A plaiter, a braider, a wreather.
Pliciad, s. m.—pl. t. au (plig) A peeling.
Plicaw, v. a. (plig) To pluck, to peel.

Plig, s. m. (py—llig) A pluck off, a peel.
Pling, s. m. (py—lling) A flay, a strip off.
Plingaw, v. a. (pling) To flay, to skin.
Plingiad, s. m. (pling) A flaying, a skinning.
Plingwr, s. m. (pling—gwr) A flayer.
Pliag, s. m.—pl. t. ion (lly—lsg) Shells, husks.
Pliagaw, v. a. (plig) To shell, or to husk.
Pliagawl, a. (plig) Belonging to a shell.
Pfiagiad, s. m. (plig) A shelling, a husking.
Pliagwrn, s. m. (plig—gwrn) The lime-tree ; also called gwaglawen, pliggyrnen, and piagen.
Pliagyn, s. m. dim. (plig) A shell, or a husk.

A'rh wraig a fu o'r pligyn,

O'rh febyd befyd hyd hyn.

And thy covering was of the shell, from thy youth, also, to this time.

U. Ph. Rhys Idr.

Plith, s. m. (py—llith) The state of being blended or amongst. Plith-dra-plith, plith-drachymyag, all in confusion, helter-skelter.

Daw a alwedd ei deul,
Pen custerion, locwon fu,
I genn cerdd gogolust,
A cyn eu plith genn plant.

God has called his family, chief of songsters, a splendid host, to sing a hymn of glory, and in their company were scholars' lips.

Grw. Opain.

Plithaw, v. a. (plith) To blend, to be mixed.
Plithedd, s. m. (plith) Mixedness, blendedness.
Plithiad, s. m. (plith) A blending, a mixing.
Ploc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (py—lloc) A block.
Plociaw, v. a. (ploc) To block ; to plug.
Plocyn, s. m. dim. (ploc) A small block.
Plu, s. pl. aggr. (py—llu) Feathers. Plu y gwacnydd, cotton-grass ; gwely plu, a feather bed.

Mae llawer gwydd heb law yr un sy'n gwisaw plu.

There be many a goose besides the one which wears feathers.

Adage.

Pluad, s. m. (plu) A feathering, a fledging ; a pluming ; deplumation.
Pluaid, a. (plu) Featherly, plumous, featherlike.
Pluaw, v. n. (plu) To feather, to fledge ; to plume, to deplume ; to strip of feathers. Pluaw cira, to snow in large flakes.
Pluawg, a. (plu) Covered with feathers, fledged.
Pluawl, a. (plu) Plumous ; feathering.
Pluawr, s. m. aggr. (plu) A plumage, feathers.
Plucan, s. c. dim. (plu) Down ; kidney-vetch.
Pludd, s. m. (py—lludd) That is flexible or soft.
Pluddaw, v. a. (pludd) To render flexible.
Pluen, s. f. dim. (plu) A feather, a plume.
Plueniad, s. m. (pluen) A pluming, a feathering.
Pluenn, v. n. (plu) To plume, to feather.
Pluf, s. pl. aggr. (plu) Plumage, or feathers.

Yr alarch—

Palfus gwydd, yn y pluf gwyn.

The swan, with shanks of a goose, in the white plumage.

D. ab Iwan Idr.

Dyed pob oden ei bial oddigeithi, ac aefly hi a wloddair.

Let every bird take its own feathers away from her, and so, she shall be humbled.

Thwrg.

Plufaidd, a. (pluf) Featherly, or plumous.
Plufawg, a. (pluf) Feathered, or plumed.
Plufawl, a. (pluf) Plumous ; pluming.
Plufen, s. f. dim. (pluf) A plume, or a feather.
Plufiad, s. m. (pluf) A pluming ; plumosity.
Plufiaw, v. a. (pluf) To deplume, to feather.
Plüwr, s. m. (plu—gwr) A feather dresser.
Plw, s. m. (py—llw) That spreads or expands out.
Plwch, s. m. (plw) A space ; a while ; a quantity.
Plwch mawr, a great deal ; rhaid i ti arwng plwch, thou must stay a while ; mi ei gwneffo plwch, I will do it instantly.
Plwca, s. m. (plwc) A spread ; a splash ; mire.

Plwm, s. m. (plw) Lead. Mun plwm, lead ore.

*Yr eira—
Plwm oer ei glog; p'le mae'r gwlan!
The snow, like lead of chilling cloke; where is the rain.
D. ab Gwilym.*

Plwng, s. m. (py—llwng) A plunge, or a dip.
Plwy, s. m. (plw) A community, a parish.
Plwydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (plwy) A community.
Plwyf, s. m.—pl. t. au (plwy) A whole mass or complete body of people; a cure, a parish.

Rhydderchafwy Daw ar blwyf Brythoon Arwydd lleuauydd llydd o fon!

*May God exalt over the community of Britons the sign of gladness of a host from Nona!
Taliesin.*

Plwyfaidd, a. (plwyf) Being like a parish.
Plwyfawg, s. (plwyf) Having a parish.
Pwyfawl, a. (plwyf) Belonging to a parish.
Plwyfogaeth, s. m. (plwyfawg) The jurisdiction of a parish; the jurisdiction of the church.

*Yr eglwys y gorddweddays arno gyfralith yn ei plwyfogaeth.
The church where the law overtook him within its parochial jurisdiction.
Welsh Laws.*

Plwyfogi, v. a. (plwyfawg) To settle in a parish; to become settled in a parish.
Plwyfoli, v. a. (plwyfawl) To render parochial; to become settled in a parish.
Plwyfoliaeth, s. m. (plwyfawl) The act of rendering parochial; the state of being parochial.
Plwyn, s. m.—pl. t. iau (py—llwyn) That is full or perfect. Plwyniau, the hairs on the breast and other parts of a full-grown person.
Plwynaw, v. s. (plwyn) To have signs of puberty.
Plwyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (plwyn) A having signs of puberty.
Ply, s. m. (py—lly) That is flexible or tender.
Plydd, a. (ply) Soft, delicate, tender, limber, flexible, pliant.

*Mynai adar man—
I gael plad gwelyas plydd.
He would procure small birds to enjoy the spread of soft beds.
H. ab D. ab I. ab Rhys, i welch.*

Plyddâd, s. m. (plyddân) A rendering soft or tender, a becoming soft, delicate, or pliant.
Plyddâawl, a. (plyddân) Tending to soften, apt to become delicate or pliant.
Plyddân, v. a. (plydd) To render soft, to render pliant; to become soft or pliant.
Plyddaw, v. a. (plydd) To soften, to make tender or delicate, to become soft or tender.

*Clwyd uwydd nis plydd, nis plyg,
Clod gyboedd caerodd ceryg.*

*A silvered palmate that will not yield, that will not bend, the public boast of stout forts.
Ll. P. Moeh.*

Plyddawl, a. (plydd) Of a soft or tender quality.
Plyddedd, s. m. (plydd) Softness, tenderness.
Plyddiad, s. m. (plydd) A softening, a making tender or flexible, a becoming soft.
Plyddu, v. v. (plydd) To soften; to become soft, tender, or delicate; to grow limber.
Plyg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ply) A flexion, a double, a plait, a fold, a bend.
Plygain, s. m.—pl. plygeiniau (ply—gain) The return of light, the early morning, the dawn.

Yn newat, yn mhlygeiniau Llewychawd yn lleuercas.

*In the nightfall in the early dawn let our lamps brightly shine.
Taliesin.*

Plygaint, s. m. (plygain) The dawn, or day-spring.
Plygawl, a. (plyg) Doubling, or folding.
Plyddor, s. m. (plyg—dor) A folding door.
Plygedd, s. m. (plyg) A doubled or folded state.

Plygeiniawl, a. (plygain) Dawning, morning.

*Y bore yn blygeiniawl iawn—ei allan.
In the morning very early—he went out.
Mori I. ab.*

Plygfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (plyg) A double, a fold.
Plygiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (plyg) A doubling, a folding, a bending back.
Plygiadawl, a. (plygiad) Tending to double.
Plygiant, s. m. (ply) A duplication, a folding.
Plygiedig, a. (plygiad) Doubled, or folded.
Plygiedydd, s. m. (plygiad) Tweezers, pliers.
Plygu, v. a. (plyg) To double, to plait, to fold.

*Gwell y wialen a blyco nog a doro.
Better the rod that will bend than the one that will break.
Adams.*

*Nis plyg ei foddwl, naol Cybaelys;
Ni ddianellu'n rhod da'n rhaid i'w.*

*His mind will not give way, like Cybaelys; he will not desert from his purpose in distributing bounty according to our wants.
L. G. Cech.*

Plygwr, s. m. (plyg—gwr) A folder, a doubler.
Plygyd, s. m. (plyg) A party or side. O blygyd' on account of; yn mhlygyd, in relation to.
Plym, s. m. (py—llym) That is agonizing.
Plymawl, a. (plym) Agonizing, writhing.
Plymen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (plym) That is of lead; a leaden vessel; a plummet. Plymen id, a flake of ice.
Plymiad, s. m. (plym) A leadening.
Plymiaidd, a. (plym) Like lead; leaden.
Plymiau, v. a. (plym) To leaden; to lead, or to sound with a lead-line.
Plymiawl, a. (plym) Of the quality of lead.
Plymiwr, s. m. (plym—gwr) A plumber.
Plymliw, s. m. (plym—lliw) Lead-colour.
Plymlyd, a. (plym) Of the nature of lead.
Plymnydd, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (plym—nydd) A struggle, a conflict.

*Er lles gwledig Mon gwaiet yn mhlymnydd.
To the benefit of the ruler of Mon active in the conflict.
Gwaleiad.*

Plymu, v. a. (plym) To lead, to cover with lead.

*Poris gwnesther plow—ac en plyma, a gwnest y ddiel hys i dan y dwfr.
He cauped stakes to be made, and leaden them, and so fit them under the water.
Dr. ab Arthur.*

Plymwriaeth, s. m. (plymiwr) Plumbery.
PO, s. m. r. That comprehends; that is comprehended, contained, or restrained.
Po, adv. (po, s.) If; by how much, by so much.

*Po amaf y bleiddiau gwaethaf i'r deffid.
By so much the more frequent the wolves the worse for the sheep.
Lingo.*

Pob, pron. (po) Each, every. Pob yn yr, man by man; pob yn un, one by one; pob yn rannu, pob yn dipyn, pob yn ychydig, by little and little.
Pob, a. (po) Each, every. Pob dyn, every person; pob un, every one; pob peth, every thing.

*Pob peth yn ei amser.
Every thing in its time.
Adams.
Adar pob tawdawg.
Inarticulate in every silent one.
Adams.
Cyfoethawg pob diddyled.
Rich is every one not in debt.
Adams.*

Pob, s. m. (py—ob) A bake, baking. a. Baked; roasted, toasted.
Poban, s. f.—pl. t. au (pob) An oven.
Pobedig, a. (pob) Baked; roasted, toasted.
Pobi, v. a. (pob) To bake; to roast, to toast.

Pobi bara, crasu bara, to bake bread; to toast bread; pobi casu, to toast cheese.

Liawn i bob golydd.
Full to bake a piece of flesh. Adage.
Anhawdd pobi heb fawd.
It is difficult to bake without flour. Adage.

Pobiad, s. m. (pob) A baking; a roasting, a toasting; the quantity baked at once.
Pobiant, s. m. (pob) A baking; a batch.
Pobl, s. pl. aggr.—pl. t. oedd (pawb) A people.

Credwn i'n Rhos—
Galauf ymeriawl ar ei weonwas,
A holl graddian naef yn eu haddas:
A'n dirloel Pobr, par at ffras
Ar bobloedd gwerin gwastad traw.

Let us believe in our Creator: I will invoke the intercession of his blessed servant, and all the orders of heaven in their station: May I be interceded for by Pobr, of sweet influence on simple people of so weak dependence. Meltyr at Gwaelchmet.

Pobllach, s. pl. dim. (pobl) Low people, plebeians.
Poblwg, a. (pobl) Having people, populous.
Pobli, v. a. (pobl) To people; to become peopled.
Pobliad, s. m. (pobl) Population, a peopling.
Poblogaeth, s. m. (pobl) A populous state.
Poblogaidd, a. (poblwg) Popular, populous.
Poblogi, v. a. (poblwg) To populate, to people.
Poblogiad, s. m. (pobl) A rendering populous; a becoming populous.
Poblogrwydd, s. m. (poblwg) Populousness.
Pobpeth, s. m. (pob)—peth Every thing.

Back yw pobpeth yn ei ddechreu.
Small is every thing in its beginning. Adage.

Pobtu, s. m. (pob)—tu Every side, the compass, or circuit. adv. On every side, about.

Pump gwrogyr—
Y ddau o lant, y dyfa tymher, &c.
Gwres oddiwlod, ac oerfel oddiyma.

Five zones, the two on each side, where is good temperature, heat from that side, and cold from this side. Tellus.

Pobty, s. m.—pl. t. au (pob—ty) A bakehouse.
Pobwr, s. m. (pob) A baker; a roaster; a toaster.
Poburies, s. f.—pl. t. au (pobur) A baking woman.

Poburies a ddyl ei bwyd o'r llyd; a'i dillad; a mwyd pan fo y breudd; a thestun dilled pobol o bob smyrw fawd a bopo; a'i gweily yn y bwyty.

The baking-woman claims her food from the palace; and her clothes; and a salary when the king is there; and a cake after baking of the various sorts of meat that she bakes; and her bed in the previous house. Welsh Laws.

Pobwr, s. m.—pl. pobwyr (pobi—gwr) A baker.
Pobwraig, s. f. (pobi—gwraig) A female baker.
Pobydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pob) A baker.

Dawf—I ddrallid breudd yr Alfft, ac y pobydd, bochu yn erbyn eu hargwydd.

The baker of the king of Egypt, and the baker, did sin against their lord. Genesis co. 1.

Pobyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (pobydd) A baking woman.

Pobyddiaeth, s. m. (pobydd) The art of baking.

Poc, s. m. (py—oc) A smack; a kiss. poet. poet.

Poca, s. m. dim. (poc) A smack, a kiss.

Pocan, s. c. dim. (poc) A smack, a kiss.

Pocyn, s. m. dim. (poc) A smack, a kiss.

Pod, s. m.—pl. t. au (po) That is taken in.

Podi, v. a. (pod) To take in; to comprehend.

Podr, a. (f. of pwdr) Powdery, moldering.

Poen, s. f.—pl. t. au (po—en) Pain, torment, agony; punishment; pains, labour. Cei Ayn am dy boen, thou shalt have this for thy pains.

Rhag pobloedd poen on rywethas
Boed of fy New aef ho fy nina.

Against people whose society is a pain, may he who is my God of heaven be my deliverer. Meltyr at Gwaelchmet.

Poendawd, s. m. (poen) An infliction of pain.
VOL. II.

Poenedig, a. (poen) Pained, or tormented.
Poenedigaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (poenedig) The being pained or tormented; punishment.
Poengar, a. (poen) Painful, or tormenting.
Poeni, v. a. (poen) To inflict pain, to torment; to take pains; to suffer pains, to be in torment.
Poeniad, s. m. (poen) A paining, a tormenting; a taking pains; a suffering pain.
Poenof, s. m. (poen—of) Emotion of pain.
Poenofaint, s. m. (poenof) The state of suffering pain, a state of punishment.

Cys estrydd penyd poenofaint,
Portwyr Dew, boed hwyat fy ngheraint!

Before the shock of the pang of punishment, the porters of God, may they be my friends! Cynad. iv.

Poenus, a. (poen) Painful, tormenting; full of misery, laborious, toiling.
Poenusaw, v. a. (poenus) To render painful; to be taking pains, to be laborious.
Poenusedd, s. m. (poenus) Painfulness, or a state of pain; laboriousness.
Poenusrwydd, s. m. (poenus) Painfulness.
Poenwedd, s. f. (poen—gwedd) An aspect of agony.

Poenwr, s. m.—pl. poenwyr (poen—gwr) One who pains, a tormentor; a toiler.

Poenydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (poen) A painer.

Poer, s. m.—pl. t. ion (py—oer) Saliva, spittle.

Poerai, s. m. (poer) The bastard pellitory.

Poerawl, a. (poer) Spitting, salivarious.

Poeredd, s. m. (poer) A salivous state, spitting.

Poeri, v. a. (poer) To spit. Poera yn ei enau, spit in his mouth: i. e. bribe him.

Poeriad, s. m. (poer) A spitting; expectoration.

Poeriannawl, a. (poeriant) Salivous.

Poeriannu, v. a. (poeriant) To salivate.

Poeriant, s. m. (poer) A salivation, spitting.

Poerlys, s. pl. aggr. (poer—llys) Master-wort.

Poerilyd, a. (poer) Salivous; apt to spit.

Poerilydrwydd, s. m. (poerilyd) The salivous state.

Poerilydu, v. a. (poerilyd) To render salivous.

Poerwr, s. m.—pl. poerwyr (poeri—gwr) A spitter.

Poeryu, s. m. dim. (poer) A spitter, one who spits; one spitted into his month, like a spaniel, or that is made a tool of, a sycophant.

Poes, s. m.—pl. t. au (py—oes) A state of being.

Can ni wyl a'r pwyll pelled anfoes
Anrhaidd ydyriad ybaid elioes
O gadarn gadwent camp present poes:
A fu oedwyr doe hwyd yn nid oes;
Yn hir ni nywys Daw dynawl elioes.

Since he that regards it knows not how spreading is immortality; unnecessary then the consideration of the extent of the severe conflict of the trial of the present state: That was remaining yesterday to-day is not; for long hath not God hindered human life. Meltyr at Gwaelchmet.

Poesawl, a. (poes) Belonging to a state of being.

Poesi, v. a. (poes) To be in a state of being.

Poesiad, s. m. (poes) A having a state of being.

Poeth, a. (py—oeth) Hot, scorching, fiery, acrid.

Poethawd, s. m. (poeth) The act of heating.

Poethawl, a. (poeth) Heating, burning.

Poethder, s. m. (poeth) Hotness, heat; acrimony.

Poethdra, s. m. (poeth) Hotness; acrimony.

Poethedig, a. (poeth) Being heated.

Poethedd, s. m. (poeth) Hotness; acrimony.

Poethfa, s. f.—pl. poethfeydd (poeth) A burning.

Poethfan, s. f.—pl. t. au (poeth) A hot place.

—Poethfan peth aethawl,
Yn y mae dywys yn canmawl cethydd.

A burning place of infernal nature, where there is praising of falsehood. Beddys Pardd.

Poethfrych, a. (brych) Bristling with heat.
3 H

Poethflam, s. f. (poeth—fflam) A hot flame; the hearts-ease; also called blaen y gwawr.

Poethgur, s. m. (poeth—cur) An inflamed throb.

Poethi, v. a. (poeth) To make hot, to heat, to become hot, to be heated.

Poethiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (poeth) A heating.

Poethiannawl, a. (poethiant) Tending to torrefy, of a parching nature.

Poethianna, v. a. (poethiant) To torrefy.

Poethiant, s. m. (poeth) Torrefaction.

Poethiator, ger. (poethiad) In heating.

Poethineb, s. m. (poeth) A torrid state.

Poethitor, sup. (poeth) To be heating.

Poethni, s. m. (poeth) Hotness, or heat.

Poethotor, part. (poeth) Having been heating.

Poethus, a. (poeth) Of a hot quality.

Poethwal, s. m. (poeth—gwal) A place where furze, heath, or the like, has been burnt standing.

Poethwg, s. m. (poeth) Torridity, aridity.

Poethwraidd, s. m. (poeth—gwraidd) Masterwort.

Poethwy, s. m. (poeth—wy) The razorbill.

Poethwyn, s. m. (poeth—gwyn) An inflammatory heat; heat of passion.

Poethygu, v. (poethwg) Of a torrid nature.

Pol, s. m. (py—ol) That is without a trace.

Pol, a. (f. of pwl) Blunt, round, obtuse.

Poliad, s. m. (pawl) A fixing a pole.

Poliaw, v. a. (pawl) To set up a pole or stake; to beat with a stake, to cudgel.

*Bid lai sawdd; bodion oeddwa,
Bell hael, it bellaw hwa.*

Be the protection done away; I were content, generous Bell, that thou shouldst cudgel this one. Rhis. Tornewth.

Polledig, a. (poliad) That is staked.

Polion, s. pl. aggr. (pawl) Stakes, poles.

Polioni, v. a. (polion) To set stakes or poles.

Pon, s. m. (py—on) That is puffed or blistered.

Pona, adv. (po—na) If not, if it should not. It precedes words with consonant initials.

Ponad, adv. (po—na) If not, should it not.

Ponag, adv. (po—nag) Unless, except.

Ponar, s. f. (pon) A puff; a pod. Teisen bonar, a puff cake: a bean.

Ponc, s. f.—pl. t. ian (py—onc) A hillock.

Poncen, s. f. dim. (ponc) A small hillock.

Ponciad, s. m. (ponc) A swelling up.

Ponciaw, v. a. (ponc) To swell up, to puff up. Mal y poncia dy fron! how thy breast heaves!

Ponciawl, a. (ponc) Tending to swell up.

Poncyn, s. m. dim. (ponc) A little hillock.

Pond, adv. (py—ond) Is it not; what else.

Poni, adv. (py—oni) Why is it not; why not.

*Poni welwch hyn! gwynt a'r gwlaw;
Poni welwch chi! r deri ya ynduraw!*

*Why behold you not the course of the wind and the rain; why behold you not the oaks beating one against the other!
Gr. ab yr Ynad Cech.*

Ponlaw, v. a. (pon) To puff out, to swell out, to fatten, to feed.

Ponid, adv. (py—onid) What not, is it not, is it not so. Dyn wyd ti: Ponid dyn wyd ti! Thou art a man: Art not thou a man too?

*Ponid erio dy gyfres
A lefar dy enau!*

*Do not thy passions counteract what is uttered by thy lips!
Talliesin, Armes Dyddbraud.*

Pont, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (pon) That rises up; that rises or supports; that elevates; a bridge. Pont ysgwydd, a collar-bone; pont y trwyn, the bone of the nose; pynt perth, the archings of a bush; pont faen, a stone bridge; pont goed, a wooden bridge.

A fo pen bid pont.

That would be the top let him be a bridge. Adgr.

*Miloeedd a wnaet
Mawr ogoniant
Ar fryn a phant
A phynt ybryd.*

Thousands will give praise of triumph, on hill and dale, with the elevations of the spirit. Piggwain i Dewi.

*Cymrodawg awydd cymrodaw ei ffrî;
Cymrodad llyned pan fo pont Dewi.*

*Of conciliating disposition, feeling is his honour; let him be tranquilized to go when Dewi shall be supporting again.
Meisyr ab Gwrickman.*

Pontawg, a. (pont) Having an arch or bridge.

Pontbren, s. m.—pl. t. i. (pont—pren) A rustic bridge of a single piece of timber.

Pontiad, s. m. (pont) A bearing over; a vaulting, a rising like a vault; a forming a bridge.

Pontlaw, v. a. (pont) To bear over; to raise up as a vault; to raise up like a vault or bridge.

Pontydd, s. m. (pont) A bridge-builder.

Pontyddiaeth, s. m. (pontydd) Bridge-building.

Por, s. m.—pl. pyr (py—or) That comprehends; that is exterior, or over; that is supreme, a sovereign, a lord.

Par wy ei glodd, por y Glyn, Pwyl rwygwyr pall orwyn.

Pure is his sword, the lord of the Dale, a hero of former times for conquering. Iolo Goch, i O. Glandur.

Porch, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (py—orch) A pig.

Porchell, s. m.—pl. t. od (porch) A little pig.

*Ohaen, porchellan, y porchell gwyn;
Rhyngwyawd chwibian chwedi a'n dycheu.*

Listen, dear little pig, the white little pig: a wandering swine has imparted to me an oracle, which will terrify us. Myrddin.

Porchellan, s. c. dim. (porchell) A tiny little pig.

*Ohaen porchellan, llym ewinaedd,
Cyweil a fyny, pan eityl i orwedd;
Bychan a wyr Rhydderch Hael, heno i ar ei widd
A borthais i neithwyr o ananedd!*

Listen, dear little pig, of sharp claws, thou wouldst seek a bedfellow, when thou shouldst go to lie down; Little does thy dancer the generous know to-night what I suffered last night of affliction! Myrddin.

Porchelles, s. f.—pl. t. od (porchell) A young sow.

Porchelliad, s. m. (porchell) A pigging.

Porchellig, s. f. dim. (porchell) A young sow.

Porchellu, v. a. (porchell) To bring forth pigs.

Porchellwr, s. m.—pl. porchellwyr (porchells—gwr) One who collects pigs, a hunter of pigs.

*Ni bu dy well porchellwr,
Llywd-de gwych ya llaial gwr.*

Than thee no better pig hunter has been, in gay tawny black love messenger for a man. S. ab Rhys ab Morus, Cy Dafydd.

Porchellyn, s. m. dim. (porchell) A little pig.

Porfa, s. f.—pl. porfeydd (pawr) Pasture.

Porfaad, s. m. (porfa) A pasturing, a grazing.

Porfaawg, a. (porfa) Having pasture or grass.

Porfaawl, a. (porfa) Belonging to pasture.

Porfadir, s. m. (porfa—tir) Pasture ground.

Porfan, v. a. (porfa) To become pasture.

Porfel, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pawr—mel) Pasture.

Porfela, v. a. (porfel) To attend to grazing; to manage a dairy farm, to practise dairy farming.

Porfelaeth, s. m. (porfel) The practice of grazing or dairy farming; what relates to grazing of cattle; agistment.

Porfelawg, a. (porfel) Abounding with pasture.

Tyr porfelawg iawn, land very abundant in grass. Silurian.

Porfeldir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (porfel—tir) Grass-land. Gwent.

Porfeliad, s. m. (porfel) A forming a pasture.

Porfelu, v. a. (porfel) To depasture, to grass.

Porfeiwyr, s. m.—pl. porfelwyr (porfela—gwr)
One who attends to grazing, a grazer.

Cell porfeiwyr ei fuarth.

A grazer's parlor is his cow-yard.

Adage.

Porfelydd, s. m.—pl. t. len (porfel) A pasturer.
Pori, v. a. (pawr) to graze, to browse, to feed upon grass; to pasture.

Llwm thr ni phore dafud.

Bare is the land which a sheep will not browse.

Adage.

Yr oen yn dygw i ddafud bori.

The lamb teaching the sheep to graze.

Adage.

Tryw i ych bori methlon.

It is natural for an ox to browse trefolla.

Adage.

Poriad, s. m. (pawr) A pasturing, a grazing.
Poriadaeth, s. m. (poriad) Agistment.
Poriadawl, a. (poriad) Belonging to pasturage; belonging to agistment.
Poriadu, v. a. (poriad) To depasture, to agist.
Poriannawl, a. (poriant) Belonging to pasturage.
Poriannu, v. a. (poriant) To depasture.
Poriant, s. m. (pawr) A pasturage, grazing.
Poriaw, v. a. (pawr) To cause pasture or grass; to become pasture.

Pend oeddych yn wyth dy wedd.

For gwynnau'n porian ffaled.

Worthen not of gay appearance, then lord of glorious hame, covering with pasture the greenward. Th. ab Gwilym fr haf.

Poriawg, a. (pawr) Having pasture or grass.
Poriawl, a. (pawr) Relating to pasturage.
Porth, s. m.—pl. pyrrh (por) Aid, help, support, succour, sustenance, provision; that bears, carries on, or conveys; a carrying place, a passage, a port; a porch, or a gateway; a ferrying-place.
Oed wrth borth, delay for support, of evidence, in law; Daw yn borth iti! God be thy help! portgwias, portk-ag, a portcuilis.

Adaw a orw Llyr genad at y brenin, ac at ei farch—gwedi rhydded ei ddyn ddiolion a Yrru Prydala yn ddienhyddedd; ac yw ddaed i gwisau porth gunddiad.

What Llyr did was the sending a messenger to the king, and to his daughter, after being disgracefully driven out by his two sons-in-law from the Isle of Britain; and he being coming to obtain assistance from them. Gr. ab Arthur.

Deud Gwilym fr' nedd; ac y dywawd Arthur wrtho: Rwydd-as porth geyr!

There came Gwilym into the hall; thereupon Arthur said to him: 'Hast thou any gate news?' H. Culloch—Mabinogion.

Tryu byrrh augeu y cawn olwg ar fydd ydd well.

Through the gates of death we shall have a view of a better world. Adage.

Portha, v. a. (porth) To afford aid or help.
Porthai, s. c. (porth) That helps, aids, or supports; that bears, or carries.
Porthawd, s. m. (porth) The act of helping, or assisting; maintenance; conveyance.
Porthawg, a. (porth) Having aid or support.
Porthawl, a. (porth) Helping, aiding, succouring, tending to sustain, tending to bear.
Porthawr, s. m.—pl. porthorion (porth) A porter.

Y porthawr a ddylly, o bob adeg a ddelo trwy y porth, eiddyraid; aidd amgen o aeron, ac wyao, a phenwag.

The porter has a claim out of every present that may come through the gate, of having his handful; that is to say of fruits, and eggs, and herrings. Welsh Laws.

Porthedig, a. (porth) Supported, carried on.
Porthfa, s. f.—pl. porthfeydd (porth) A carrying place, a passage place, a ferrying-place, a port.

Rades a ayat a phob da
O'r bwrth-fwrth i'r borthfa.

Boats went with every commodity from the bay into the port. L. G. Colli.

Porthi, v. a. (porth) To aid, to help, to support, to succour, to sustain, to provide with food, to bear, to convey, to carry on, or to bring forward.

Porthi hen chwedl, to make use of an old saying.

Ni ddilych augeu at borthi.

Necessity will not thank for to be supported.

Adage.

A borthi odd bid bwyllodol.

That bears affliction let him be the most circumspect.

Adage.

Ar ni phortho ei gath porthed ei lygod.

Such as will not support his cat let him support his mice.

Adage.

Pon a borthaf ar fy ygwedd,

Ni'm arfolini waradwydd;

Gese fy llaw, ludd fy arglwydd!

A head I bear upon my shoulder, that would not let me receive disgrace: Wee my hand, that my lord is slain! Llywarch Hen, m. Urien.

Porthiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (porth) A helping on, a succouring, supportation, a bearing, a conveying, a bringing forward. Prydyddion borthiad, that is the support of poets.

Porthiadawl, a. (porthiad) Tending to succour.
Porthiadu, v. a. (porthiad) To render succouring, to become a support.
Porthianna, v. a. (porthiant) To provide support or sustenance, to supply with necessities, to deal in provisions of any sort, to deal in cattle, or to act as a drover.

Porthiannawl, a. (porthiant) Apt to succour.
Porthianniad, s. m. (porthiant) A rendering a succour, supportation.

Porthiannu, v. a. (porthiant) To render a succour, to become a support.

Porthiannus, a. (porthiant) Being provided with sustenance; pampered.

Porthiannusaw, v. a. (porthiannus) To render succouring, to become supportative.

Porthiannwr, s. m.—pl. porthiannwyr (porthiant—gwr) A supporter, or a succourer.

Porthiannydd, s. m.—pl. t. ien (porthiant) One who supports, a succourer.

Porthiant, s. m. (porth) Support, maintenance.

Porthiator, ger. (porthiad) In supporting.

Porthid, s. m. (porth) Assistance, sustenance.

Porthidon, s. m. (porthid) That aids, assists, or succours, a helper, one who sustains.

Porthidon mwya!

Cyrraf di imi fy ague!

Thou supreme Supporter, blot out for me mine infirmity!

Ysglan.

Porthitor, sup. (porthid) To be supporting.

Porthladd, s. f.—pl. t. au (porth—ladd) A place of export; a port, a harbour.

Porthladdawg, a. (porthladd) Having a place of export; having a port; abounding with ports.

Porthle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (porth—lle) A place of support; a carrying place; a port, a harbour.

Arglwydd a'm porthes porthle tawdr.

A chieftain has maintained me with the thickly covered place of support. Cynddale.

Porthleawg, a. (porthle) Having a port.

Porthleawl, a. (porthle) Belonging to a port.

Porthloedd, s. m. (porth—loedd) Means of support or maintenance.

Prif arglwydd brolwydd bronhethyn.

Braig allloedd beirdd, borthloedd berthyn.

A supreme lord of generous breast the prosperity of a country, a great blessing of birds, of appropriate maintenance. Cynddale, fr. argl. Rhys.

Porthloeddawg, a. (porthloedd) Having means of support or maintenance.

Porthlys, s. m. (porth—lys) A portmote.

Porthmon, s. m.—pl. porthmyn (porth—mon) A conveyer or trader; a dealer in provisions; a provision merchant; a drover. Porthmon gwartheg, a drover of cattle; porthmon defaid, sheep-drover; porthmon moch, a pig-drover.

Porthmona, v. a. (porthmon) To deal in provisions; to traffic; to act as a drover.
Porthmonaeth, s. m. (porthmon) A dealing in provisions; purveyance.
Porthog, s. f.—pl. t. an (porth—og) A portcullis.
Portholaeth, s. m. (porthawl) Supportation.
Portholdeb, s. m. (porthawl) The state of being a succour, or support.
Portholi, v. a. (porthawl) To render supportative.
Porthordy, s. m.—pl. t. au (porthawr—ty) A porter's lodge.
Porthorddwy, s. m. (porth—gorddwy) That is aiding violence; an abettor of violence.

Selthaf affailth galana yw canorthwyaw y dyn a laddo y llall; a bono a elwir porthorddwy.

The seventh abetment of murder is, to assist the person who kills the other: and that is called aiding of violence. Welsh Laws.

Porthores, s. f. (porthawr) A female door-keeper.
Porthori, v. a. (porthawr) To act as a door-keeper.
Porthoriaeth, s. m. (porthawr) The office of a door-keeper.

*Liys Owain—
 Anhawd yn fysech yoo
 Welid na chlicied, na chlo,
 Na phorthoriaeth—*

The court of Owain, difficult is it there to see nor catch, nor lock, nor a porter's office. Iolo Goch.

Porthotor, part. (porthawd) Being succoured.
Porthwas, s. m. (porth—gwas) A ferryman.
Porthwy, s. m. (porth) Assistant, or support.

Nae ymddiried am dy borthwy fy peth a ferir ymmlath.

Trust not for thy support to what is thrown away. Adams.

Porthwr, s. m.—pl. porthwyr (porth—gwr) A supporter a provisioner; a conveyer; a ferryman; a door-man.

Porthwriaeth, s. m. (porthwr) The calling of one who conveys; the office of a ferryman.

Porthwys, s. m.—pl. t. ion (porth—gwys) That attends a ferry.

*Y ferl fawr i flair Fon
 Wrth onard ei phorthwydon.*

The great ferry to the fair of Moos under the regulation of its ferryman. Gr. ab Hywel ab Tudgr.

Porwr, s. m.—pl. porwyr (pori—gwr) A man who feeds on grass.

Pos, s. m. (py—os) An increment; growth; or increase; that is gathered, or heaped.

Posel, s. m. (pos—el) Curdled milk; posset.

Posfardd, s. m.—pl. posfeirdd (pos—bardd) A preceptive bard, a teaching bard.

Tewch rhwi bosfeirddion.

Be silent ye teaching bards.

Bustl Bridd.

Fryddod, new ferid caw, oydd o dri rhyw: sef, prifardd, posfardd, ac arwyddfardd.

A poet, or a bard of verse, is of three branches; namely, a primary bard, a didactic-bard, and a herald-bard. S. D. Rhys.

Posiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (pos) A gathering together, a collecting to a heap, a questioning, or investigation; a posing.

*Yn bosfardd, be fardd a fo;
 'A hyd bysed rhaid ei bosio;
 A thrwy bysio nith o bosiad
 Graddus gynt o'r gwrald a gad.*

A didactic-bard, whatever bard would be, on the fingers it is necessary to question him; and through the weight of a solemn interrogation degrees from their source were given of yore. Edm. Pry.

Posiannawl, a. (posiant) Investigating, posing.

Posiannu, v. a. (posiant) To investigate, to pose.

Posiant, s. m. (pos) An investigation.

Posiar, s. f.—pl. poseir (pos—lar) A fat hen.

Posiaw, v. a. (pos) To make an increment; to gather knowledge; to investigate, to examine, to interrogate, to pose.

*Rhaid i mi, ar y rhad mas,
 Os doeth, dy boslaw dithes.*

It is necessary for me then, from the talent given me, in wisdom, to question thee. Edm. Pry.

Posiawl, a. (pos) Investigating, posing.

Posiedig, a. (posiad) Investigated, questioned.

Posned, s. m.—pl. t. au (pos) A round body, or that swells out; a squat figure; a porringer; a pap saucepan. O y posned bach! O the little squab!

Post, s. m.—pl. pyst (py—ost) What projects or branches out; a post. Pedwar post y corff, pedair aslawd y corff, the four limbs of the body

Pan nod rhyfedd na thyf post awr drwy nen ty yr awr.

When it is not wonderful that a post of gold does not grow through the house top of the unjust. Adams.

Tri phost cad Ynys Prydain; Danawd Fer, mab Fabe Post Prydain, Gwallawg fab Libenawg, a Cynfelyn Drwg.

The three pillars of battle of the Isle of Britain; Danawd Fer son of Fabe the pillar of Britain, Gwallawg son of Libenawg, and Cynfelyn the Stambler. Triad.

Post esyd oesbarth Effer.

The pillar of the wanderers leading a life like Effer.

Cynddalen.

Postiad, s. m. (post) A shooting out a stem; a putting up a post, or pillar.

Postiaw, v. a. (post) To shoot out a stem; to set up a post, to set up a pillar.

Postyn, s. m. dim. (post) A little post.

Pot, s. m.—pl. t. iau (po) A pot. Pot e laeth, a pot of milk.

Potel, s. f.—pl. t. i (pot) What is puffed out; a leathern bottle; a bottle.

Poteliad, s. m. (potel) A bottling.

Potelu, v. a. (potel) To bottle, to fill a bottle.

Poten, s. f.—pl. t. i (pot) What bulges out; a paunch; a pudding. Y boten fawr, y boten wen, cod wen, the large ventricle, or the stomach; y boten fach, the lesser ventricle; poten pengauad, blind-gut; poten wen, a batter-pudding; poten llysen, a fruit pudding.

O'i mynych brod bwytyd y boten i gyd.

By frequently tasting if the pudding has been all eaten up. Adams.

Potens, v. a. (poten) To gather a paunch; to swell out the belly.

Potenaidd, a. (poten) Like a paunch or belly.

Potenawg, a. (poten) Having a paunch or belly.

Potenawl, a. (poten) Belonging to a paunch.

Poteniad, s. m. (poten) A swelling out a paunch.

Potenig, s. f. dim. (poten) A little paunch.

Potenu, v. a. (poten) To form a paunch.

Potes, s. m. (pot) Pottage, broth, soup.

Potesawr, s. m. (potes—gwr) A pottage man.

Potiad, s. m. (pot) A potting; a potation.

Potiald, s. m. (pot) A potfull, a fill of a pot.

Potiaw, v. a. (pot) To put in a pot, to pot; to drink, to tipple.

Poth, s. m. (po) That swells out, a boss.

Pothan, s. c. dim. (poth) A round boss, bump, or bunch; a cub. Pothan blaidd, a wolf's cub.

Pothell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. au (poth) What is puffed, or blown out; a wheal, or blister; also a disease amongst cattle, being a blister under the tongue, which is otherwise called y defarddwet, or the tongue disease.

Pothellaidd, a. (pothell) Like a blister or wheal.

Pothellawg, a. (pothell) Puffed out; having wheals or blisters.

Pothelliad, s. m. (pothell) A blistering.

Pothell, v. a. (pothell) To puff up; to blister.
Poth, s. m. (poth) A round lump, or boss; a nub, a whelp.

Powys, s. m. (po—gwys) The state of being at rest, stationary, or settled. It is the name of a district in North Wales, which was anciently a principality.

Powysaw, v. a. (powys) To render at rest, or to settle; to become stationary.

*Powysed angor, Powyswg a'i gwyr
 O'r gares i hawng;
 A owa rhias rhyddwg,
 Ac a fo da of ei ferg!*

*Be arrested death, Powyswg has men the best for her defence;
 he spares chiefs alive in the extreme, and such as are good he takes away!*
Li. P. Moch, i Fod at Madawg.

Powyswg, s. f. (powys) A place that is settled upon. It is used as an epithet for Powys.

Pra, s. m. (py—rha) That tends to the extremity; that spreads round.

Prad, s. m. (py—rhad) A gentle spread, a stroke
Prad, s. (pra) Large, ample; thick in circumference. Coesus preffion, thick lega.

Cardedd yn braff a wael.

Walk at large was what she did. H. Pwyll—Mabinogion.

Traffawd praff a baryoynt i Bown.

*Affliction ample had they caused to Bown.
 H. Bown—Mabinogion.*

*Mal mah i Ddyfawel Mael Mad
 Yw Phylip praff ei olod.*

*Like a son of Dyrnwal Mael Mad is Phylip of ample wealth.
 L. G. Colm.*

Praffaid, a. (praff) Somewhat large, or ample; somewhat thick in circumference.

Praffder, s. m. (praff) Amplitude; rotundity.

Praffdra, s. m. (praff) Amplitude; thickness in girth.

Praffedd, s. m. (praff) Largeness; thickness round

Praffiad, s. m. (praff) A rendering large, or ample; a becoming thick in circumference.

Praffu, v. a. (praff) To make large; to make thick in compass, to become thick round.

Praidd, s. f.—pl. preiddian (pra—idd) A flock, or herd; also a booty of cattle taken in war.

Pradd gyffwrddol: pedair bu er ught a thwr.

A lawful herd: twenty-four cows and a bull. Welsh Laws.

Taly rhydd breyr yst, allwedd ei fwrth, ei breiddodd gwartheg, a'i gendafol foch.

The three acts of a baron are, the pasture of his horses, his herds of cattle, and his breed of swine. Welsh Laws.

A rhag preiddian arwn tost yd gent.

And before the herds of the infernal region dunsally thou dost dag.
Taliesin.

*Fell ei glod o glodau anrhaith,
 Preidd wagner, breiddor drosodd gyfarpar
 Yn hgwyr, yn ngyrddid.*

For his fame, for collecting spoil, scattering the flock, his wrath outbreathing thrice seven of spears of conflict in blood, in the victims of parsons. Cynddelw.

Prain, s. m.—pl. preinion (pra—in) That tends to spread or swell out; that causes to spring up; a feast, or banquet.

*Lledddaw y gan ri rhyfel ei rain,
 A llen llw chong, a medd prain.*

Reclined has the god of war his spear, with the veil of bright green hose, and mead of the banquet. Taliesin, Nic. Dindych.

Gwr cymmarwys ei ddwyys: gwrwr Cymarr, need mawr!

Mawr o chwerd a'm ddwyys:

Owain add prain, need pridd wely!

A man whose being taken of is universal grief; the luminary, is he not dead! an awful report awakes me: Owain lord of the banquet, that earth is his bed!

Priddidd Bychan, m. O. ab Madawg.

*Rhag Teid, yn twi twr main
 Teyrn glyn tarwyn, tyrrat prain yn ddrud
 I gwa caud uch caofat!*

On the Teid, destroying a stone tower of a sovereign prince, they resolutely heap together a feast for the dogs of the castle, over the voracious gnawing. Cynddelw, i H. ab Owain.

Praith, s. m.—pl. preithian (py—rhaith) An act, or deed; practice.

Pranc, s. m.—pl. pranceion (py—rhanc) A prank.

Pranciad, s. m. (pranc) A frolicking.

Pranciaw, v. a. (pranc) To frolic, to play pranks.

Pranciawl, a. (pranc) Frolicksome, playful.

Pranciwr, s. m.—pl. pranciwyrr (pranc—gwr) One who plays pranks.

Pratiad, s. m. (prad) A stroking, a coaxing, or fondling, by gently drawing the hand over.

Pratiaw, v. a. (prad) To stroke, to rub gently, to soothe, to fondle, to coax. Pratia y plentyn, fondle the child.

Pratiawl, a. (prad) Coaxing or stroking.

Pratiwr, s. m.—pl. pratiwyrr (pratiaw—gwr) A stroker, a coxer.

Praw, s. m. (pra) An essay, a trial, or a proof.

Gwelir—

Y daw gwialw yn ol praw pradd.

*It will be seen, that a shower will come after a serious trial.
 D. ab Gwilym.*

Prawen, s. f.—pl. t. au (praw) An essay, or cast for trial, in gaming.

Prawf, s. m.—pl. profion (praw) A proof, trial, or essay; experience. Bod ar prawf, to be on proof: Prawf Ynad, and Llyfr Prawf, the Judge's Proof and the Book of Proof, the name of a section of laws, according to the code of Hywel Dda.

Prawfaen, s. m. (praw—maen) A touchstone.

Pre, s. m. (py—rhe) The origin of a course.

Pred, s. m. (pre) A stray, or migration.

Preg, s. m. (py—rheg) A greeting or address.

Pregawthen, s. f. (preg) Prattle, rigmarole.

Pregeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (preg) A sermon.

Pregethiad, s. m. (pregeth) A preaching.

Pregethu, v. a. (pregeth) To preach.

Pregethwr, s. m.—pl. pregethwyr (pregeth—gwr) A preacher.

Preidiad, s. m. (pred) A migrating, a straying.

Preidiaw, v. a. (pred) To migrate, to stray.

Preiddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (praidd) A herding; a collecting a herd; a driving of cattle away as a booty in war; predation.

Preiddiaw, v. a. (praidd) To herd; to collect a herd; to drive off a booty of cattle; to predate

Preiddiawg, a. (praidd) Abounding with herds.

Ni thoros ei bawr a fu breiddiawg.

*His pasture has not been cut that was teeming with herds.
 Meicyr.*

Preiddiawl, a. (praidd) Belonging to a herd; relating to the pillage of cattle; predatory.

Preiddiawr, s. pl. aggr. (praidd) Beasts of the chase; beasts taken as prey in a foray.

Hwygwn am breiddiawr, am brain.

Aply rising for the prey, for the feast. Li. P. Moch.

Preiddiedig, a (praidd) Herded; depredated.

Preiddyn, s. m. (praidd) That is of the herds.

Er a'm porthes—

Ar win, ar breiddyn, ar brain.

He nourished me on wine, on venison, on feast.

Preiddin, a. (praidd) Consisting of herds; Mock preiddin, anrhaith o foch, a booty of swine.

Preiddiwr, s. m.—pl. preiddwyr (praidd—gwr)

One who follows a herd; one who pursues herds for booty; a pillager.

*Er perygl preiddwyr perri fowad,
 I'asgudar cyfrain Prydain briawd.*

To the hazard of depredators causing a gash, the nourishes of the true sons of Britain. Meicyr.

Preiddwal, s. f. (praid—gwal) The resort of the herd, where a herd lies down.

Fryfwa gwr, priddawr preiddwal.

The foremost of the shoot, the proprietor of the region of herds
Cyuddelo, i H. ab Owen.

Preiddwalch, s. m.—pl. preiddweilch (praid—gwalch) Hawk of the herds; hawk of pillage.

Preiddwriaeth, s. m. (preiddiwr) The calling of a herdsman; the practice of a pillager.

Preiddyn, s. m. dim. (praid) A beast of chase.

Preiddyn oedd ei gwyn cyn nol gwyddaw.

For the booty was his anxiety before his fall. Cyuddelo.

Preiniad, s. m. (prain) A carousing, a feasting.

Preiniaw, v. a. (prain) To carouse, to feast.

Preiniawg, a. (prain) Abounding with feasts.

Mi a'h arwyne add bre breiniawg.

Breiniawg, a'hail hael, o hll Madawg.

I will extol thee, chief of the hill of feasting, a mighty lion, holding bounty, of the life of Madoc. Ll. P. Moch, i Llywelyn II.

Dau ychen Dewi ardderchwyr oeddynt;

Dau gryn a gerdynat yn gyd breiniawg.

The two oxen of Dewi majestic were; two that walked hoof to hoof together enjoying feasts. Gw. Brycheiniawg.

Y melyn gwanwyn, ac ych brych, yn ddau gyd breiniawg a fynaf.

The yellow ox of spring, and the two brindled oxen, being two feeding together, those I will have. H. Culwch—Mabynogion.

Preiniawl, a. (prain) Belonging to a feast.

Preinrudd, a. (prain—rudd) Ruddy with feasting

Cyrcled, tremyniad, tra mor add dy gas,

Dy gosorodd yn breinrudd.

An assaulter, a scout, beyond the British sea extends thy hale, thy retinue seem ruddy with festivity. Ll. P. Moch, i Llywelyn II.

Preithiad, s. m. (praith) A practising, a using.

Preithiaw, v. a. (praith) To practise, to use.

Preithiawg, a. (praith) Having practice.

Preithiawl, a. (praith) Practical, operative.

Preithiedig, a. (preithiad) Practised, or used.

Preithig, a. (praith) Belonging to practice.

Pren, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pre) A tree, a timber, a piece of wood. Pren treed, gweddig, bre, a last; pren ceri, a modular tree; pren y gerwyn, the bay tree; pren melyn, pren y clefyd melyn, the barberry-tree; pren awyr, mistletoe.

Pren yn nghod arall bies.

A tree in a wood another owns. Adage.

Prenaid, a. (pren) Lignous, or like wood.

Prenfol, s. m.—pl. t. au (pren—bol) A wooden coffer, box or chest.

Prenial, s. m. (pren) A coffer or shrine of wood.

Prenial gweddes, podair ar a'gaint a dal.

A warping trough, its value is twenty-four pence. Welsh Laws.

Prenial dyral gal ygwra

Gorug ar Loegr lu cyngrwn i

Bedd Gwen fab Llywarch llen yw hwn.

The shrine of the fierce overbearing foe, that vanquished the circularly-compact army of Lloegrus; the grave of Gwen the son of old Llywarch is this. Llywarch Hen.

Preniaw, v. a. (pren) To apply timber or wood to any thing; to fasten with a wooden bar.

—Y nos—

Na ad na drws, nodwa drws

Heb ar unwaith ei breiniaw.

He will not leave a single door, we may yonder note, without barring it at once. G. ab I. ab Llywelyn Pychen.

Prenol, s. m.—pl. t. au (pren) A busk.

Prensaer, s. m.—pl. prensaeri (pren—saer) A wright or worker in wood; a carpenter.

Pres, s. m.—pl. t. i (pre—es) That is imminent; that is quick or ready; that is sharp or smart; that overruns; brushwood, or whatever overruns the ground, as stubble, straw, and the like; fuel wood; fodder; frequency; haste; a crib, or cratch; also brass. Pres fflwr, fuel for the oven; Pres y moch, the resort or sty of the pigs; pres y cwn, the kennel of the dogs.

Truan o anian iai o anawbyd.

Trachara present, pres gynahwyd.

A miserable state is fallen to us from indolence, to excess loving the present, a stichel involved in darkness. Melys ab Gwathwal.

Pres, a. (pre—es) Imminent, at hand, quick; ready; hasty; sharp; overrunning, frequent; present. Pres gynahwaf, a quick harvest; this pres, a sharp or shrill voice. Sil.

Dig yw eis hwy, dygwra helyat

Yn brw a'r tair gorwes gynt.

Vexations is our condition, we take an abrupt course, like the three molestations of ancient time. Ll. ab Owen.

Presal, s. m.—pl. preselon (pres) A pole put across a river for hindering cattle.

Presawl, a. (pres) Imminent; close upon; quick.

Preseb, s. m. (pres—ab) A crib, or a stall.

Presebu, v. a. (preseb) To crib, to stall.

Presedig, a. (pres) Rendered imminent; quickened; hastened; made a resort.

Presel, s. f.—pl. t. au (pres) A place overgrown, as with furze and the like, a brake. Sil.

Preselaid, a. (presel) Tending to be braky.

Preselawg, a. (presel) Overgrown with shrubs.

Preseldir, s. m. (presel—tir) Land overgrown with brushwood, foal land.

Preseliad, s. m. (presel) An overrunning with brushwood; a becoming wild.

Preselu, v. a. (presel) To become wild or overrun. Mae y tir yn preselu gauto, the land grows foul under his care. Sil.

Preselyn, s. m. dim. (presel) A brake, a thicket.

Presen, s. f. (pres) The present, the present time or age; the present life.

Nid aeth neb i nef or bosthyr y brwna.

No one went to heaven for the landing of his present. Taliesin.

Nid oes o'r presen,

O'r dechreu hyd orphen,

Un orig o ddyd,

Wrth y fuchod drwygwyd.

There is not of the present, from the beginning to the end, an hour of day, compared with the state of clearing. Taliesin.

Pyffid Ddawrd, add presen,

Erechwyd gwneuthur cadwau

Yn ebyr cywrydd Pagan.

Fiercely would Ddawrd rage, the chief of the present, with mind elate for combat, against the strife of Pagan. Llywarch Hen.

Presennawl, a. (present) Being imminent, near, or ready; present.

Presennoldeb, s. m. (presennawl) The state of being at, or upon; a present state; present.

Presennwr, s. m. (present) One who is present.

Friedawr Frydais presen priddid;

Presennwr, pryswr pres o'len.

A prince of Britain with feast of spoils; a present man, the dweller in a splendid abode. Cyuddelo, Iv. argl. Rhys.

Present, s. m. (presen) The present state.

Pan fyw Daw dy delfinur

O dyllid presen, o brwydr traw,

Cyd a'h fo di goled, goira anaw,

Na'h pydd, eidd ar ei addaw.

When God should please to annihilate thy frame of the state of the present state, of the shade of terror, though thou expect possess wealth, and splendid goods, let them detain thee not, let at his call depart. Melys ab Gwathwal.

Presiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pres) A hastening, a being quick or ready; a frequenting.

Prest, s. m. (pres) Quickness, smartness. a. Ready, quick; soon.

Prestl, s. m. (prest) Smart, talk, repartee. a. Smart, ready, fluent.

*Shared yn bresti shared yn ddosti:
Shared yn wosti shared anast.*

A talking smartly in talking elegantly, a talking (unusually) in a talking inelegantly. Adage.

Prestlaid, a. (prestl) Disposed to prattle.

Prestlawg, a. (prestl) Full of smart talk.

Prestledd, s. m. (prestl) Smartness of discourse.

Prestliad, s. m. (prestl) A talking smartly.

Prestla, v. a. (prestl) To talk smartly or wittily; to repartee; to prattle.

Prestina, a. (prestl) Of smart or witty talk.

Press, v. a. (pres) To render imminent, near, or ready at hand; to hasten, to quicken; to frequent, to resort; to render present; to become present.

Preswyl, s. m. (pres—gwyll) The state of being present or in readiness; a tarrying; a habitation. a. Being present or in readiness; waiting, tarrying. March preswyl, a horse kept in readiness, or a horse of attendance.

Gwasgawd alyn a ddyg of furch yn gwyll i'r ysgwad lly, i lleswyl pan y myn.

The groom of the reign shall bring his horse furnished to the judge of the palace, to be in readiness at his will. Welsh Laws.

Preswyledd, s. m. (preswyl) A state of abiding.

Preswylfa, s. f.—pl. preswylfydd (preswyl) A place taken up as an abode; a camp; a dwelling-place, a habitation.

Yn yr amser y caethlwid Iwda, deg preswylfa onadant a syn i'r goll.

In the time when Juda was led into captivity, ten tribes of them became lost. Old Chronicle.

Preswylfodd, s. m. (preswyl—medd) That is kept in readiness.

Preswylfoddu, v. a. (preswylfodd) To keep in readiness, to take care of constantly.

Preswylfod, s. m. (preswyl—bod) A dwelling place.

Preswylfoddawg, a. (preswyl—boddawg) Having an habitation, or a constant abiding at will.

Offriad y frenin;—Offriad y frenin hagen a guil yn preswylfoddawg.

The chaplain of the queen, the offering of the queen he shall have constantly at his will. Welsh Laws.

Preswylgoll, s. m. (preswyl—coll) Loss of dwelling. a. Home-lost.

Full amser, pwyllaf, y dogair, Preswylgoll, hwydoli enig.

A failure to him, I will foretell, there will be allotted, loss of home, a painful privation. Cynddelw.

Preswyliaid, s. m. (preswyl) A being present; a tarrying or abiding; a taking up a residence.

Preswylfinaeth, s. m. (preswyl) The act of frequenting, or resorting; inhabitancy.

Preswylfianawli, a. (preswylfiant) Relating to habitation, dwelling or abiding.

Preswylfianu, v. a. (preswylfiant) To make a resort; to settle a habitation.

Preswylfiant, s. m. (preswyl) The act of taking up a residence or a dwelling.

Preswylfaw, v. a. (preswyl) To fix a residence, to dwell, to inhabit; to tarry in a place.

*Plant Adad phawgion fawt;
Yn y prwsen preswylfiant;
Gan Ddu yn Roster llewybant.*

The children of Adam, graftings have they been; in the present state they have sojourned; with God in splendor they will shine. Melyr ab Gwalchmai.

*Dw bwa—
Y byd, pawb awd, pob aent,
Is hawlwen, ynddo a preswylfiant.*

To God belong the world, every one existing, all of life, beneath the radiant sun, therein who dwell. W. Middleton.

Preswylhawg, a. (preswyl) Having a resort; having an abode; being attended.

Preswawr, Ffawr plus cloy;

Preswylhawg farchawg (eirch gwisu).

A present man, a dweller in a splendid place; a warrior constantly attended with bay steeds. Cynddelw. U'r argl. Rhyt.

Preswylledig, a. (preswyliaid) Inhabited.

Preswylledigaeth, s. m. (preswylledig) The act of taking up an abode or dwelling.

Preswylwr, s. m.—pl. preswylwyr (preswyl—gwr) A dweller, or an inhabitant.

Preswylydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (preswyl) An inhabitant, or a dweller.

Pri, s. m.—pl. f. on (py—rhi) An increment; an origin, or cause; that is prime or first.

Priad, s. m. (pri) A forming an increment, or source of increase; a rendering prime, a becoming prime, or original.

Prialen, s. f. (pri—gall) Privet; also called priellyn and yswydd.

Priawd, s. m. (pri) That is appropriate, peculiar, proper, or fitting; that is possessed or owned; a married person, the same as gwrraig bywi, or a spouse. a. Appropriate, peculiar, fitting; possessed; married.

Ni ddyt gwraig na phryna na gwerthu, o bydd priawd, heb ganiad ei gwr.

A woman ought neither to buy, nor to sell, if she be a married one, without the consent of her husband. Welsh Laws.

*Mai cofain cywraia Cywryd, fardd Dunawd,
Mau i'm draig priawd gwawd, ni bo gwrd.*

Like the correct memorial song of Cywryd, the bard of Dmud, to my proper lord is my praise, which shall not be faulty. Gw. Ddu o Arfon, m. G. Llyw.

Pric, s. m.—pl. f. ian (pri) A small piece of wood; a broach; a skewer. Wyd sythed â phe llyncastid bric edafedd, thou art as stiff as if thou hadst swallowed a yarn stick.

Pricaid, s. m.—pl. preiceldiau (pric) What is held on a stick; the quantity of yarn taken off the spindle and put upon a stick.

Prid, s. m. (pri) That is in unison or equivalent; price, value; ransom. a. Valuable, precious, dear. Pryned hwna yn brid, that has been dearly bought. Sil.

Ni cheir geirda heb brid.

There will be no good word had without desert. Adage.

Nid prid pryngair tag.

The purchase of a good word is not dear. Adage.

Cywrydd Prydain y sy bryder yn;

Y sy brid i lawer.

Armes ger gwythlawn ei ober;

Arglaidrind, ffoliad, ffolid nifer.

The contention of Britain is afflicting to us; dear to many is the fate of the man of wrathful achievement, the protection, the foremost one, the wolf of a host.

Cynddelw, m. E. ab M. ab Iddow.

Ancwra Mynyddawg awawg y gaweth;

A phrid er pryna breithell Gairneith.

The dainty of Mynyddog, notably it worked; and was the price for purchasing the battle of Cautraeth. Aneurin.

Pridawdy, a. (prid) Capable of being equivalent.

Pridaw, v. a. (prid) To render equivalent; to become equivalent; to expiate.

Pridiad, s. m. (prid) A rendering an equivalent; a pledging; a ransoming.

Pridiannawl, a. (pridiant) Tending to be an equivalent; expiatory.

Pridiannu, v. a. (pridiant) To render an equivalent; to become an equivalent.

Pridiannus, a. (pridiant) Tending to be equivalent; expiatory.

Pridiannusaw, v. a. (pridiannus) To render of an equivalent consideration; to become equivalent; to become expiatory.

Pridiant, s. m.—pl. pridiannan (prid) The act of pledging a value; a ransoming; expiation.
Pridiaw, v. a. (prid) To give a price, value, or equivalent; to lay a pawn or pledge; to ransom, to expiate.

Ni bu ond Crist ar y groes,
 Yn dyddied gloes i'n pridiaw.

There has been none else but Christ upon the cross,
 To suffer, us to ransom.
Morgan Tielai.

Pridiawg, a. (prid) Having a value, price, or equivalent; being an equivalent.

Pridiawl, a. (prid) Equivalent; redeeming.

Pridiedig, u. (pridiad) Made equivalent; ransomed, expiated.

Pridioldeb, s. m. (pridiawl) Equivalency.

Pridioli, v. a. (pridiawl) To render equivalent; to render deserved; to become equivalent.

Pridiwr, s. m.—pl. pridwyr (prid—gwr) One who gives a price; a ransom; an expiator.

Pridwerth, s. m. (prid—gwerth) Value given as a ransom, the thing given as an equivalent.

Am ei bridwerth, ni pherthyn
 Ymlw a Duw, mai a dyn;
 Rhaid fydd lle rho Duw ei far
 Dynw eglawn yn gynnar.

Concerning his demand, it belongs not to man to question the will of God; it will be necessary where God sends his wrath for the effect soon to appear.
T. Aled.

Pridd, s. m. aggr. (pri—idd) Mould, or earth; also a delicate term used for the ordure of an animal. Sil. Pridd y wradd, a mole-hill; llestri priddion, earthen ware.

Priddaw, v. a. (pridd) To mould, to earth, to put in the mould, to cover with earth.

Bum yn claddu hen gydymmaith
 A gododd yn fy mhen i ranwaith;
 Ac 'r wyn 'n ofni ei ei briddo,
 Y cyfyd yn fy mhen i eto.

I have been burying an old companion, who flew to my head a hundred times; and I fear, though he be buried, that he will fly to my head again.
Aled rhianus wedi hys haid.

Priddawl, a. (pridd) Of the nature of earth, or mould; earthly.

Priddawr, s. m.—pl. priddorion (pridd) A potter.

Priddell, s. f.—pl. t. i. (pridd) A mass, or clod of earth; a piece of pottery; a tile.

Cyfreued a phriddell.

As brittle as a piece of pottery.

Aldge.

Priddellian, s. f. dim. (priddell) A small mass of earth; a small tile, or piece of pottery.

Priddellawg, a. (priddell) consisting of masses of earth, glebous.

Priddellig, s. f. (priddell) A small mass of earth.

Priddellwaith, s. m. (priddell—gwaith) Tile-work

Priddellwr, s. m. (priddell—gwr) A tile-maker.

Priddellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (priddell) A tiler.

Pridden, s. f.—pl. t. i. (pridd) An earthen vessel.

Priddenig, s. f. (pridden) A little earthen vessel.

Priddfaen, s. m.—pl. priddfeini (maen) A brick.

Priddfaenwaith, s. m. (priddfaen) Brick-work.

Priddgalch, s. m. (pridd—calch) Calcareous earth; fuller's earth; a mixture of earth and lime, a manure so prepared.

Priddgalchwag, a. (priddgalch) Abounding with calcareous earth, being of earth and lime.

Priddgalchiad, s. m. (priddgalch) A doing with calcareous earth; a manuring with a mixture of earth and lime.

Priddgalchu, v. a. (priddgalch) To manure with a mixture of earth and lime.

Priddgist, s. m. (pridd—giat) Potters' clay.

Priddiad, s. m. (pridd) A doing with earth; a putting in earth; a returning to earth.

Priddin, a. (pridd) Of the nature of earth.

Priddlestr, s. m.—pl. t. i. (pridd—llestr) An earthen vessel, or a piece of pottery.

Priddlestrwr, s. m.—pl. priddlestrwyr (priddlestr—gwr) Earthenware man.

Priddlestrydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (priddlestr) A dealer in earthenware.

Priddlyd, a. (pridd) Earthly, mixed with mould.

Priddlydrwydd, s. m. (priddlyd) Earthiness.

Priddlydu, v. a. (priddlyd) To render earthy.

Priddred, s. m. (pridd—rhed) An earthly course, an earthly state.

O bridd, o briddred
 Pae ym digoned—

Of earth, of an earthly course when I was favoured—Taliain.

Priddwal, s. m. (pridd—gwal) An earth coach.

Minnaw sy gwg, heb dog dal,
 Yna'n priddaw newn priddwal.

I am also horse, without a fair reward, here vexing in a bed of earth.
Ellen Arwyll.

Priddwr, s. m.—pl. priddwyr (pridd—gwr) One who puts in earth.

Priddyn, s. m. dim. (pridd) That is formed of earth; an earthly being.

Prif, s. m.—pl. t. ion (prif) That is a source; that tends to increase; that is prime, chief or principal; the first day of the new moon; the golden number. a. Prime, first, principal, chief.

Tri prif anfudd sbect: awgon, anghaf ac awgon.

The three primary misfortunes of the circle of inclination: necessity, loss of memory, and death.
Barddon.

Prifachaw, s. m.—pl. prifachosion (prif—achaw) A primary cause, a principal cause.

Prifafon, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (prif—afon) A principal river; a law term for a river preserving its regular channel as a boundary of lands.

Prifalaethwr, s. m.—pl. prifalaethwyr (prif—alaethwr) A chief mourner.

Prifanian, s. f. (prif—anian) An original nature, a primary nature.

Prifansawdd, s. m.—pl. prifansoddion (prif—ansawdd) An original quality or element.

Yn nosparth a rheitholdd cerdd Ceraint Pardd Glas, at wair eithr deg prifansawdd; ser saw gorchan a chyngrwg.

In the grammar and rudiment of verse of Ceraint the Blue Bard, there are only ten primary elements; namely, nine restrictions and a canon of combination.
Barddon.

Prifardd, s. m.—pl. prifeirdd (pri—bardd) A primitive bard, a primary bard; a doctor, or professor of sciences.

Tri rhyw prifardd y ydd: bardd braint, man brithodd penodur, with faint defined a titular poet, a' iwydd ym llywodraeth; ofydd, with awen, yngais a dicitwale, a' iwydd ym llywodraeth; a derwydd, with byll, ansawdd, a gorffod, a' iwydd ym llywodraeth.

There are three degrees of primary bards: a bard of privilege, or a primary bard proper, according to the privilege of the custom and voice of a convention, and his office is to exercise authority; an ovate, following genius, exertion, and incision, and his office is to apply to works of genius; and a druid, according to the reason, nature, and necessity of things, and his office is to instruct.
Barddon.

Prifarddoni, s. m. (prifardd) The learning of the primitive bards; the bardic philosophy.

Prifawdl, s. f.—pl. prifodlau (prif—awdl) A primary or leading rhyme.

Prifdeg, a. (prif—deg) Primarily fair.

Prifder, s. m. (prif) Primeness or origin.

Prifdde, s. m. (prif—de) Original source.

Prifddeddf, s. f.—pl. t. au (prif—deddf) A primary law.

Prifddinas, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (prif—dinas) A principal city, or a metropolis.

Prifddinassawl, a. (prifddinas) Metropolitan.

Prifddall, s. f.—pl. t. ian (prif—dall) A primary form or manner.

Prifad, s. m. (prif) A thriving, & growing, or increasing; a prospering.

Prifaw, v. a. (prif) To grow up, to increase in stature, to thrive; to prosper.

Prifawli, a. (prif) Tending to grow.

Prifwr, s. m.—pl. t. prifwyr (prif—wr) One who increases, a thriver.

Priflad, s. m. (prif—lad) A sovereign grace.

Prifles, s. m. (prif—les) A supreme good.

Priflys, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (prif—lys) A principal court, a supreme court.

Prifswrd, s. m. (prif—swrd) An original habit.

Prifnod, s. m.—pl. t. au (prif—nod) A prime point or number; an epoch.

Prifod, s. m. (prif—od) A primitive age.

Prifoes, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (prif—oes) A first age; a primary life, a first existence.

Prifoes, s. f.—pl. t. yn (prif—oes) A primary share; a primary division.

Prifswrd, s. m. (prifswrd) A primary division.

But distinguished by itself as this: thus during brother: above rising order: and a chyloddd rhwng cyfrydwy.

These are three primary divisions of land: division among brothers; subdivision amongst cousins, and co-extended amongst cousin cousins. Welsh Laws.

Prifred, s. f. (prif—rhad) A primary course.

Prifrhawdd, s. f.—pl. t. as (prif—rhawdd) A cardinal virtue.

Prifsymudai, s. c. (prif—symudai) A primura mobile; a first cause of motion.

Prifswth, s. m. (prif—gwaith) A chief work.

Prifswyd, s. m. (prif—gwyd) A chief sin. Y saith brifswyd, the seven deadly sins.

Prifswydd, s. pl. (prif—gwydd) Primary trees.

Thag llyth yn hachawd prifswydd, prifswydd llyth dda a gwynedd.

From the bark of the eight original sin of the primary wood, the Son of God had purchased a good cooperation. Epiphany.

Prifwynt, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (prif—gwynt) A principal wind.

Prifysgol, s. f.—pl. t. ion (prif—ysgol) A principal school, a primary school.

Prifffordd, s. f.—pl. t. prifffordd (prif—ffordd) A principal road, a high road.

Kingdom upon prifffordd bob awnwr adref i ddaw ddydd Fawr.

For us there is a high road at all hours homewards to the skirts of the Great Yggwyd. L. G. Child.

Prill, s. m.—pl. t. ian (rhill) A rill.

Prin, s. m. (py—rhin) That partly appears, or breaks through; that is of slight trace.

Prin, a. (py—rhin) Scarce, rare, scant, spare. ed. Scarce, hardly; sparingly.

*Llyma walis amler
O hys hys echer Dyngwys.*

Behold the multitudes work from morn till eve of Friday. Audi p. Cress.

Prinhad, s. m. (prinhad) A rendering scarce or scanty; a becoming scarce; a diminishing.

Prinhawl, a. (prinhad) Tending to scarcity.

Prinhau, v. a. (prin) To make scarce, scanty or small; to diminish; to grow scarce; to be diminished.

Prinder, s. m. (prin) Scarcity; scantiness.

Prindra, s. m. (prin) Scarcity, scantiness.

Print, s. m.—pl. t. ian (py—rhint) That forms a notch, or scratch; a print.

Printiad, s. m. (print) A printing, a marking.

Printaw, v. a. (print) To imprint, to print.

Printiedig, a. (printiad) Imprinted, or printed.

Vol. II.

Prinwydd, s. pl. aggr. (prif—gwydd) Scarlet-oak.

Prinwydden, s. f. (prinwydd) The scarlet oak.

Priodadwy, a. (priawd) Capable of being appropriated; marriageable.

Priodas, s. f.—pl. t. an (priawd) A marriage.

Priodas Sala a Gwyddolap, addidaw dda y rhyddell.

The marriage of an Englishman and an Irishwoman, jumping over the hump.

Priodas a wneuthwyd er dibechu cydgnawd y rhwng gwr a gwyddolap, ac er small plant.

Marriage was established for divesting of sin a carnal union between man and woman, and for begotting children. L. G. Hyfford.

Nid er dillu priodas, na'i thywyll, yddym ni yn dyddiad, gpi mab i foreyr; oher addidaw yddym ni ei galleddad et.

It is not for annulling marriage, nor for obscuring it, that we are saying, a son is born to a virgin; but the setting aside his birth is what we do. Ysfor Silester.

Priodasawl, a. (priodas) Matrimonial.

Priodasfab, s. m. (priodas—mab) A bridegroom.

Priodasferch, s. f. (priodas—merch) A bride.

Priodasgan, s. f. (priodas—gan) A bridal song.

Priodasgerdd, s. f.—pl. t. i (priodas—cerdd) An epithalamium, or a bridal song.

Priodawl, a. (priawd) Appropriate, peculiar; legitimate; belonging to marriage; married.

Dau fab gyfethiliawri briodolion.

Two sons legitimate ones of marriage. Welsh Laws.

Priodawr, s. m.—pl. priodolion (priawd) A proprietary, a hereditary possessor of land; a prince; one who has a natural claim; a native.

Yn hachawr yw ydd i dya yn briodawl.

As a fourth person with a man becomes a hereditary proprietor. Welsh Laws.

Eldr, priodawl o'r Gogledd:—Ceneu ab Cael Hen, priodawl o'r Gogledd.

Eldr, a prince from the North:—Ceneu son of Cael the Aged, a prince from the North. Hanau.

Priododig, a. (priawd) Appropriated; wedded.

Priodfab, s. m.—pl. priodolion (priawd—mab) A bridegroom.

Priodferch, s. f.—pl. t. ed (merch) A bride.

Priodi, v. a. (priawd) To render appropriate; to espouse; to marry; to be married.

Y ferch a ddol i'r priod, mwy y llaw i'r priodi.

The woman that comes to be tried, less will she come to be married. Idag.

Mor gadarn yd gadau hys Reges Mab Owain Frydain; priodas gwenedd Gwyddawr Eryce.

So powerfully will the son of Owain defend Britain as far as Rhege; the blood prince of the region of Eryri has appropriated the happy land. L. P. Moch, i. Roder.

Priodiad, s. m. (priodi) A marrying, a wedding.

Priodoldeb, s. m. (priodawl) Appropriateness.

Priodolder, s. m. (priodawl) Appropriateness, propriety; attribute; property, the right or title to a thing.

Oe y nawfed-dyn a ddaw i ofyn i'r priodoldeb yu ei briodoldeb, a hys a ddol ddaidd am ei fod yd ddaidd ei briodawl yu am-briodawl, ac ym y gwyddawl y kyfrail y ddaidd hys.

If the ninth person shall come to demand land entailed as to title and he shall give an outcry on account of his becoming from a proprietor to be one without property, therefore the law will then to that outcry. Welsh Laws.

Priodolledig, a. (priodawl) Appropriated.

Priodolodd, s. m. (priodawl) Appropriateness.

Priodoll, v. a. (priodawl) To appropriate, to make appropriate or proper; to become appropriate; to dedicate; to render peculiar.

Priodollad, s. m. (priodawl) An appropriating, a rendering peculiar; a dedication.

Priodollath, s. m.—pl. t. au (priodawl) Appropriation; the state of being peculiar.

Priodollathu, v. a. (priodollath) To make an appropriation; to assign an attribute.

Priodolrwydd, s. m. (priodawl) Appropriateness.

Priodolwr, s. m.—pl. priodolwyr (priodawl—gwr)

An appropriate man.

Priodori, v. a. (priodawr) To render a proprietor; to become a proprietor, or inheritor.

Priodoriaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (priodawr) A peculiar property; an inheritance.

Cynyddwys mawr wr mawr fresolaeth gwl,

Yn nghyanif ei brif briodoriaeth.

An exalted man has increased the great fertility of society, in the affliction of his primary inheritance. Lt. F. Moch, i Grist.

Prion, s. pl. eggr. (pri) Origination; animals in a first state of life; imps.

Prionyn, s. m. dim. (prion) A little imp.

Pig wenywaig anionawl;

Prionyn o dyddyn dianwl.

A spike of nature poisonous; an imp from the devil's territory. I. Gellin ab I. ab Llewelyn, i'r neidr.

Pris, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pri—ls) That is reckoned; that is taken; rate, value, price.

Prisiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pris) A valuation.

Prisiaw, v. a. (pris) To value, to appraise.

Prisiawl, a. (pris) Belonging to rate, or price.

Pro, s. m. (py—rho) That is counter, or against.

Probyll, s. m.—pl. t. au (pro—pwyll) The stilts of a plough.

Probyllas a rhagurawdd, colmawg a dal.

The stiles and the beam, the valve is a penny. Welsh Laws.

Proc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pro) A thrust, a drive.

Prociad, s. m.—pl. t. iau (proc) A thrusting.

Prociaw, v. a. (proc) To thrust, to stab.

Prociwr, s. m.—pl. t. iau (proc—gwr) A thruster, a stickler, a stabber.

Proest, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pro—est) A sequel in contrast with the first; a term in prosody for a counterchange of vowels; it is also called gorchen. Proest Cadwynawdl, a quadran stanza with alternate concatenated rhyme; proest cy/newidiawg, alternity interchanged; proest awndwl, a single rhymed alternity.

Proestawdl, s. f.—pl. proestodlau (proest—awdl) Rhyme with vowels interchanged.

Proestiad, s. m. (proest) Interchanging of vowels.

Proestiaw, v. a. (proest) To interchange vowels.

Proestlawn, a. (proest) Abounding with counterchanges of vowel sounds.

A dyrrydd ei fudd i feirdd proestlawn;

A dyran atau; atau ydd awn.

And he will bestow his bounty to Aeremonius bard; and he will set apart shares for us; to him let us go.

Cyunddlw, i O. Gwynedd.

Proestodlaeth, s. m. (proestawdl) The state of having rhyme with counterchanged vowels.

Proestodli, v. a. (proestawdl) To form rhyme with vowels counterchanged.

Proestodliad, s. m. (proestawdl) A rhyming with vowels counterchanged.

Profadwy, a. (prawf) Provable, or essayable.

Profawl, a. (prawf) Belonging to proof.

Profedig, a. (prawf) Proved, approved.

Profedigweth, s. m.—pl. t. au (profedig) The act of rendering proved; temptation.

Curied a bair i ddyn enogus y byd, a bod yn llawen mewn trallodau a phrofedigaethau.

Love will cause a man to condemn the world, and to be cheerful in afflictions and temptations. Merchawg Croyddred.

Profedigawl, a. (profedig) Probationary.

Profi, v. a. (prawf) To prove, to try, to examine; to attempt; to essay; to taste. Profi ymad, to examine for the function of a judge.

Nid erchie byrd ond ei brofi.

Virtuous only demanded to be tested.

Adage.

*Tair llaug y dachant hant hantri;
Tair profd prif llyngs wy llyngs brod:
Un o llyngs;
Arall arddogus
O'r llyngs llyngs,
Llyngs llyngs M.*

Three legends came in vessels of the food; three angels first of ships hastily to attempt him: one from Ireland; another of arms once of the Llochllydian men, long borders of the food.

Gwylchmet, i O. Gwynedd.

Profiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (prawf) A proving; a trying, or essaying; a probation; a tasting; an essay, or trial.

Profiadawl, a. (profiad) Probationary.

Profiadu, v. a. (profiad) To make a probation.

Profianuawl, a. (profiant) Probationary.

Profiannu, v. a. (profiant) To make probation.

Profianusaw, a. (profiant) Probationary.

Profianusaw, v. a. (profianusaw) To render probationary; to become probationary.

Profiant, s. m. (prawf) Probation; proof.

Profiator, ger. (profiad) In proving.

Profiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (profiad) A probator.

Profitor, sup. (prawf) To be proving.

Profwr, s. m.—pl. t. iau (prawf—gwr) A prover, a tryer, an examiner; one who attempts; a taster.

Profies, s. f.—pl. t. au (pro—ffies) A predetermination; a vow; a profession, a calling.

Cryddwyr, a doro ei broffies, nid gair ei hir.

A religious man who shall break his vow, his word is of no force. Welsh Laws.

Profiesawr, s. m.—pl. profiesorion (profies) A votary; a professor.

Profiesiad, s. m. (profies) A making a vow; an entering into an obligation; a professing.

Profiesu, v. a. (profies) To predetermine a course; to make a vow; to profess.

Profieswr, s. m.—pl. profieswyr (profies—gwr)

One who enters into a solemn obligation.

Profiesydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (profies) A person who predetermines; a professor.

Prophwyd, s. m.—pl. t. i (pro—pwyd) A prophet.

Nid prophwyd neb yn ei wlad ei hen.

No one is a prophet in his own country. Adage.

Prophwydaw, v. a. (prophwyd) To prophesy.

Prophwydoliaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (prophwydaw)

A prophecy, a prognostication.

Pru, s. m. (py—rhu) That tends out, or forward.

Prudd, a. (pru) Circumspect, prudent, discreet; serious; sad, sorrowful.

O gydgynghor twyrwgion Ffrainc, y rhoddwyd y llyngs i Llywelyn, a choron y deyrnas gydd i hi; a gwaith llyngs o lyngs y llyngs yn bradd ac yn ddoctus ac yn ddodwyrdd hyd i'r pwyll ei oes.

From the common advice of the princes of France, the maid was given to Llywelyn, and the crown of the kingdom with her; and after that he governed the realm discreetly and wisely and happily, as long as his life lasted. Gr. ab Arthur.

Pruddaaw, s. m. (pruddaaw) A rendering circumspect or prudent; a rendering serious; a becoming serious or thoughtful.

Pruddawl, a. (pruddaaw) Of a prudent tendency; tending to become serious or thoughtful.

Pruddau, v. a. (prudd) To use circumspection; to become prudent; to be serious; to become sad or sorrowful.

Prudddeb, s. m. (prudd) Prudence; seriousness.

Pruddder, s. m. (prudd) Seriousness; pensiveness.

Prudddra, v. a. (prudd) Discreetness.

Pruddedd, s. m. (prudd) Discreetness; sadness.

Prw, s. m. (py—rhw) Extension or a reach forward; a state of anxiety.

Prws, s. m. (prw) A state tending to; a state of activity, or business.

Prwst, s. m. (prws) Bustle; turmoil, tumult.
Prwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (prw) That tends onward.
Prwysaw, v. a. (prwy) To attain, or to reach.
Prwyawl, a. (prwy) Attaining, reaching.
Prwys, s. m. (py—rhws) A tendency to protrude.
Prwysaw, v. a. (prwys) To protrude, to reach out.
Prwysawl, a. (prwys) Protruding, reaching out.
Prwysg, s. m. (prwys) That protrudes; that is over, upon, or impending.
Prwysgaw, v. a. (prwysg) To surmount, to get upon, to get uppermost.

*Pan dyblat, prwysgaf fr brig,
 Gaeil anorch—*

*When he thought he might, he mounted to the top, thinking to have a treat—
 L. Mow, duchan Ll. ab Gwys.*

Prwysgawl, a. (prwysg) Surmounting, getting on.
Prwysgiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (prwysg) A surmounting, a getting uppermost.
Prwysgl, s. m. (prwysg) That is impending.
Prwysgliad, s. m. (prwysgl) An impending.
Prwysiad, s. m. (prwys) A protruding, thrusting.
Prwyst, s. m. (prwys) That is forward, or before; an obstacle; that causes anxiety, or care.
Prwysti, s. m. (prwyst) Solitude, or anxiety.

*Nac ofwch ormod prwysti,
 Bwyd a'r fwyach yn aghelli,
 Nid ardd, nid cwrdd iodi;
 Nid llwneach neb no hi.*

*Be not dejected with too much anxiety, more than the blackbird in a grove, who ploughs not, who has no ploughing done for her; there is none more cheerful than her. *Engwyllys Mow.

Prwystiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (prwyst) A rendering full of bustle; a becoming solicitous.
Prwystlaw, v. a. (prwyst) To bustle; to be full of anxiety, to be solicitous.
Prwystl, s. m. (prwyst) That is agitated, tumultuous or bustling. a. Tumultuous; bustling.

*Prwystl dydd ton, a tharan:
 Cyd bont brwystl eu gwahan,
 Yn dydd trin ni yw Trysian.*

*Tumultuous will be a wave, and a thunder; so long as their course may be tumultuous, in the day of conflict I am Trysian. *Ymdd. Trysian a Gwalech.

Prwystlad, s. m. (prwystl) A bustling; hurry.
Prwystlaw, v. a. (prwystl) To bustle, to hurry.
Prwystledd, s. m. (prwystl) A state of bustling.
Pry, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (py—rhy) That is extended; that is produced; that abounds; produce; food, victuals. Dos i hel dy bry, go and hunt for thy food, or seek for thy grub.
Pryd, s. m.—pl. t. iau (py—rhyd) That is present, that is an object or under cognizance; a stated period, set time, hour, or season; time; a meal time; also, the favour of the countenance, or visage; an aspect; also comeliness, handsomeness, beauty. O bryd bwy gilydd, from one time to another; pa bryd y doi yma? what time wilt thou come here?

Uw-pryd yr iau yn ysgubawr.

*The hen makes but one meal in a barn. *Adage.

Hwarddodig pryd with a glare.

*The countenance wears a smile towards such as he loved. *Adage.

Nid with bryd cerid gwreiddod.

*Not by the aspect do the women love. *Adage.

*Yr oedd it', or a ddywneon',
 Ragar bryd ring eiry bron.*

*There was to thee, whatever they may say, a countenance surrounding the ear of the hill. *Bede Brynlllys.

Pryd, adv. (py—rhyd) Seeing that; as it happens.
Pryd nad cluit, seeing that thou wouldst not go.
Prydain, a. (pryd) Exhibiting presence or cognizance; exhibiting an open or fair aspect; full of beauty, well-seeming, beautiful; polished or civilised with respect to morals. YNYV PRYD-AIN, the Fair Island, the Isle of Britain.

Tri enw Yny Prydain: cyn el chyfnodd y Gwl Gwl el gwial Cws Merddin; gwedi el chafael, y Fel Yny; a gwedi cael el Brydyn ab Aedd Mawr hi, Yny Prydyn.

*The three names of the Isle of Britain: before it was inhabited the Hord Gwl used to call it the Water-girl Green Flat; after obtaining it, the Honey Island; and after Prydyn son of Aedd the Great had obtained it, the Isle of PRYDYN. *Triardd.

Triegain cantref Prydain y dydd dau Cado Hen.

*The three score hundreds of BRITAIN are under Cado the Aged. *H. Cuthbert—Mabington.

Prydawl, a. (pryd) Belonging to what is present or an object of cognizance; seasonable.

Prydeiniad, s. m.—pl. prydeiniad (prydain) An inhabitant of Britain, a Briton.

Pryder, s. m. (prw) Anxiety, solicitude, care.

Ni wyr pryder nis prydero ac nis prmo.

*He knows not anxiety that does not consider and that does not experience. *Adage.

*Mi nid wyf iawn o lawenydd bryd,
 Am bryder yr unydd;
 Am Owain, am ddwyrafn dyrydd,
 Am deyrn, am gedyra gelydd.*

*I am not cheerful from cheerfulness of mind, because of the trouble of that one day; for Owain, for excited rancorosity, for a prince, for the companion of the mighty. *D. Alwyn Mow.

Pryderawl, a. (pryder) Solicitous, anxious, considerate, provident, careful, thoughtful.

Pryderl, s. m. (pryder) Anxiety, deep thought.

Pryderiad, s. m. (pryder) A causing anxiety; a considering anxiously.

Prydern, v. n. (pryder) To be anxious, to be solicitous; to consider; to provide.

Dihunid a brydero.

*Let such as will be anxious be divested of sleep. *Adage.

Gweddor ar wraig, y nall iau yn caeglo, y llall yn rhauu, ac el phen yn prydero.

*Seemly on a woman, the one hand collecting, and the other distributing, and her head considering. *Triodd Mow.

Pryderus, a. (pryder) Anxious, pensive.

Pryderusaw, v. a. (pryderus) To render anxious; to become solicitous, to become thoughtful.

Pryderusedd, s. m. (pryderus) Anxiousness.

Pryderuswydd, s. m. (pryderus) Anxiousness, solicitousness; pensiveness; contemplativeness.

Pryderwawd, s. m. (pryder—gwawd) A profoundly considered eulogy.

Pryderwawd cendawd cyfoerthi ni wn.

*Profound praise of the energetic mind I am not master of. *Elion ab Gwalech.

Prydfalch, a. (pryd—balch) Of a superb aspect.

Prydfardd, s. m.—pl. prydfeirdd (pryd—bardd)

A bard who delineates; a recording bard.

*Gwaedd uchel dwyn Hywel bardd;
 Gwaeth yw dwyn brawdfarth brydfardd.*

*A loud outcry for the taking away of Hywel the Sovereign: none is the taking the foster-brother of a recording bard. *Iolo Goch.

Prydfawr, a. (pryd—mawr) Magnificent.

*Graesaw anaw enghudd yn Mhrydain
 I'm mhydfawr ddadenudd.*

*The gratulation of the public ministry in Britain to my magnificent restorer. *Lt. P. Moch, i G. ab Llwyelyn.

Prydferth, a. (pryd—berth) Of fair time, seasonable; handsome, decent, or seemly.

Cymeryd alltides heddyw yn wraig it, ni wyddost it pa le pan hwyb, a gurtlawd fy merch llnau; etnebydd hagen nad pryderth it llyn, ac nad dibrid llyd tra pario nerth yn y brach deus hwn.

*Taking this day a stranger for thy wife, whom thou dost not know whence descended, and refusing also my daughter; know therefore that such a thing is not Asadom in those, and it shall not be unrequited, whilst there is strength in this right arm. *Gr. ab Arthwr.

Prydferthedd, s. m. (prydferth) Becomingness.

Prydferthiad, s. m. (prydferth) A rendering handsome, a becoming comely or graceful.

Prydferthwydd, s. m. (prydferth) Becomingness, comeliness; gracefulness.
Prydferthu, v. a. (prydferth) To render becoming; to beautify; to become comely.
Prydferthwch, s. m. (prydferth) Becomingness, handsomeness, comeliness, gracefulness.
Prydiad, s. m. (pryd) A delineating of nature; a composing of poetry; poetry.

Pa yw mydr, neu brydiad!

What is metre, or poetry?

Sim. Fyfeham.

Prydiaith, s. f. (pryd—iaith) Poetic language.
Prydiaw, v. a. (pryd) To represent an object; to record an event; to render seasonable; to set apart a time; to become seasonable.

*Difl i Alaisd gwyf drefd durtir,
 I ddeol o Brydain ffrain iwyd;
 Dybi o Lydaw prydaw gysgwydd,
 Gedyr ar gadairch, ni phetirch os henydd.*

There comes from Alaisd bold faithful men, to drive away war from fair Britain; there comes from Lydaw an auxiliary becoming seasonable, heroes on steeds of war who will not respect their home.

Gwynedd, Armes Prydain.

Prydiawl, a. (pryd) Objective; belonging to an event; seasonable, or of due time.
Prydiaeth, s. m. (pryd—Haeth) The quantity of milk milked at one time.
Prydlawn, a. (pryd—llawn) Seasonable, timely.
Prydlonhad, s. m. (prydlonau) A rendering seasonable; a becoming timely.
Prydlonau, v. a. (prydlaen) To render seasonable; to become seasonable or timely.
Prydlonder, s. m. (prydlaen) Seasonableness.
Prydlonedd, s. m. (prydlaen) Seasonableness.
Prydloni, v. a. (prydlaen) To render seasonable.
Prydnawn, s. m.—pl. t. au (pryd—nawn) The time from mid-day to the sixth hour; the afternoon.

*Prydain, ddyrnau dda,
 Agerth, aberth iau,
 A bwr, a hwn,
 A phrydnawn hysg.*

The twilight, when bounty rises, the hour of vapour, of acceptable sacrifice, and morning, and noon, and afternoon late.

L. G. Geth.

Prydnawnawl, a. (prydawn) Afternoon tide.
Prydnawnbryd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (prydawn—bryd) An afternoon meal; a dinner.
Prydnawnbryd, s. m. (prydawn—bryd) Afternoon meat; a dinner.
Prydnawnwaith, s. m. (prydawn—gwaith) A certain afternoon.
Prydnawnl, v. n. (prydawn) To grow late in the day, or in the afternoon.

*Trach i ddyr o'i wya a'i yn na dlaw,
 Cyn i'w ddydd brydnawnl.*

It is ample for a man, that from his lust and his ardour he doth not come, ere his day grows towards a close.

Edm. Fry.

Prydnawnlad, s. m. (prydawn) A becoming late in the afternoon.

Prydred, s. m. (pryd—rhed) Chronology.
Prydu, v. a. (pryd) To represent an object; to represent an event; to record time; to delineate, to form; to compose; to compose poetry.

Prydu geiriau chwarem;—Yr Argydded a bryddod y pader.

To treat playful words;—The Lord composed the paternoster.

H. Car. Neg.—Mabington.

Sef a orug Hengist, erbyn y dydd hwn, pryd teyll, nid aangen no rhoddid cyllid hir i bob gwr onadynat.

What did Hengist, against that day, was to contrive treachery, nothing less than giving a long knife to every man of them.

Gr. ab Arthur.

*Dewlawn ddurhan Dafydd
 Cyn pryd ym glocwrym giod
 O arall—*

I would rather choose the satire of David, than to have composed for me splendid praise by another.

Gr. Grog.

Prydu, a. (pryd) Slightly, comely; seasonable.
Prydasau, v. a. (prydau) To render comely or handsome; to become comely; to become reasonable or timely.
Prydasura, v. m. (prydau) Comeliness; beauty; seasonableness.
Prydasedd, s. m. (prydau) Comeliness, beauty; seasonableness.
Prydasurwydd, s. m. (prydau) Comeliness.
Prydwen, s. f. (pryd—gwen) That is white.

Tarian a gymral Arthur ar ddydd, ff hwn a ddydd Prydwen.

A shield did Arthur take upon his shoulder, the which was called Prydwen.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Prydydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pryd) One who describes or represents, a recorder of events; one who forms or composes; a delineator of what is beautiful; a teacher of what is fair, in a moral sense, a civilizer; a poet.

Tir pheth a wnant brydydd; awen, gwybodaeth a chysgwydd.

Three things form a poet; genius, knowledge, and instruction.

Barddon.

Prydyddaid, a. (prydydd) Like a poet, poetic.
Prydyddawl, a. (prydydd) Poetic, poetical.
Prydyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (prydydd) A poetess.
Prydyddiad, s. m. (prydydd) A poetising.
Prydyddiaeth, s. m. (prydydd) The composition of poetry, poetry.

Tair dyben prydyddiaeth; cynydd ddaeth, cynydd ddaeth, a chysgwydd ddaeth.

The three intentions of poetry; the increase of speech, the increase of understanding, and the increase of happiness.

Barddon.

Prydydd, v. a. (prydydd) To poetize, to compose poetry, to write verses, or to versify.
Prydyn, a. m. (pryd) A name synonymous with Prydain, or Britain, and sometimes used for it; but in general applied to Scotland.

*Hon a orogyn
 Holi Loegr a Phrydyn.*

She will conquer all England and Scotland.

Taliesin.

Prydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pry) That is teeming with produce; a luxuriant spot.

*A'r bedwerydd
 Rhaw mewn tir pryd,
 Yn ddyr ddydd
 Ar ei gawd i
 A'r bryn a'r pryd
 A yst ddydd;
 A'r dyn a fo
 Ychydig iddo,
 Cool mae hwynt
 Y gair a'i gadw.*

And the fourth part in rich land, producing fruit a hundred fold; and the fifth kind dale was happy; and the person who is similar to that, he receives the word and keeps it.

T. ab Ior. ab Rhys.

Prydd, a. (pry) Good, teeming with good; rich, or luxuriant; comfortable, happy. Eyn y brydd, to live well; gwlad brydd iawn, a country abounding with every comfort; llaeth pryd, rich milk; yd pryd, fine corn. Sil.

*Tragwyddoldech yw dy oes brydd;
 Pa'w cruddiwyd i ddaeth.*

Extremity is thy happy life; all other beings are to end.

Sir R. Owen.

*Mae gant y bryddid gorau,
 A'w o'i bryddid a brydd.*

He has the best of victims, and all of his meals comfortable.

Dafydd yr Hen.

Pryddad, s. m. (pryddau) A teeming with good; a becoming luxuriant; a being comfortable.
Pryddawl, a. (pryddau) Of a luxuriant tendency; tending to be comfortable.
Pryddau, v. a. (prydd) To become teeming with luxuriance; to be productive.
Pryddedd, s. m. (pryddau) Luxuriantness, fertility.

Prydded, s. f.—pl. t. au (pry—deat) A rule or law of poetry; metre; song. Prydded diadodl, blank verse.

Pryddeddi Cynwro, cyfaddoddi cyfwrth.
Nodh Cynwroder s'cyfwrth!

The service of Wales, expressive of social harmony, shall all Cyddeddi maintain them!

Pryddastawd, s. m. (pryddest) Poetic composition

Gofed yd o'm rhannu rhyddia
Mae'n dda i'r ffrith ydydd
Pryddastawd o'r Drindawd drwg
Tfethod hollat i'w ffrith ydydd.

Best set me from thy Lord to be pre-destined with the silent oratory of poetry in a primitive tongue, a composition speaking of the Trinity, a discourse of praise, a tribute due to be paid.

Eller Dda.

Pryddastawl, s. (pryddest) Metrical, poetical.

Pryddestid, s. m. (pryddest) A forming of metre

Pryddestn, v. a. (pryddest) To form rules of poetry; to make metrical compositions.

Pryddestwr, s. m.—pl. pryddestwyr (pryddest—gwr) A versifier, a minstrel.

Pryddiawr, s. (prydd) Greatly teeming or rich.

Pryddiad, s. m. (prydd) A teeming with produce; a redering luxuriant.

Pryddineb, s. m. (prydd) Luxuriantness.

Pryddus, s. (prydd) Of a productive nature.

Pryf, s. m.—pl. t. ed (pry) Any thing produced, or generated; any small animal, a vermin; a worm. Pryf ffyrnig yd y neidr, the snake is a noxious vermin; pryf cyfrwys yd llwynnarg, a fox is a cunning animal; y pryf, the vermin; a term often used for an animal that is hunted for prey, but more particularly applied to the hare. Pryf llwyd, pryf penffrith, a badger; also called brech and mechyn bychan; pryf oedach-ang, pryf y gwirwngodd, blewog amdroed, a palmerworm; pryf y daid, pryf y caul, pryf y bre-tych, blindys, a caterpillar; pryf cinn, chwitten olust, an earwig; pryf y ganyyll, pryf y golen-od, pryf y malingydd, pryf dillad, a moth; pryf coggyn, alar cop, a spider; pryf y gwelld, pryf gogoch, a caterpillar; pryf gr yd, ydyd, the caterpillar.

Pryfad, s. m.—pl. pryfaid (pryf) An animal state; an animal; a vermin; a worm.

Pryfadawg, a. (pryfad) Full of vermin; vermiculous; mothy.

Pryfawr, a. (pryf) Verminous; vermicular.

Pryfed, a. pl. aggr. (pryf) Vermin; worms.

Trefnodd wrth dderm affeithuonhau
Trefnod i bryfed, lle yd ymrofnau.

Those didst prepare the slough of hell suitable for Satan; the habitation for worms, where they will be in mutual strife.

Cannodyn.

Pryfediad, s. m. (pryfed) Vermination.

Pryfedig, a. (pryfed) Affected by worms. Pren pryfedig, worm-eaten wood.

Pryfedu, v. a. (pryfed) To become worms; to breed worms, to verminate.

Pryfea, s. f.—pl. t. au (pryf) A vermin of the female kind.

Y bryfa, gryfda pabach
A'r garna s'r berau bach.

The animal, the wazmy clad here, with the small chaute and head.

T. Fry.

Pryfeta, v. a. (pryfed) To gather vermin, to hunt for vermin.

Pryfetai, s. c.—pl. pryfetelon (pryfed) A vermin-catcher.

Pryfig, a. (pryf) Having worms, vermiculous.

Pryfigodd, s. f. (pryfig) A breeding of worms.

Pryfydd, a. m.—pl. t. lon (pryf) A vermin-killer.

Pryfyddieth, s. m. (pryfydd) The killing of a vermin-killer.

Pryfyn, s. m. dim. (pryf) A small vermin; a little worm; a single vermin.

Nid gwr deus, nid gwr deus
Nid par wyf, ond pryfyn.

Not a brave man, not a best person, not pure am I, but a small worm.

W. Rhodri.

Pryfiau, s. m. (pry—ffaw) A spreading radiation

Pryfwn, s. m. (pry—ffwn) A source of spreading.

a. Excellent, principal, superior.

Gogwa Ddaew, pryfwn y proffwyd.

I know God, the one set forth of the prophets. L. F. Moch.

Gwladodd ym rhoddes—
O borro, o bryfwn ffaw,
O holl, we mae ac ariant.

Godments be bestowed on me, of purple, of superior linen, of velvet, and gold and silver.

L. F. Moch.

Pryfwnt, s. m. (pryfwnt) A source of spreading; a centre; a principal.

Quoth-while, a bynnydd hwa
Priford y bobl, a's pryfwnt.

I forsook, and I turned off the people's high road, and their central point.

B. M. Dwyll.

Prylen, s. m. (pry—flea) A fluent utterance.

Prym, s. m. (pry) A take, a taking to one's self; a purchase; desert, merit. a. Bought.

Gwell an spawyr pry na dan spawyr parawd.

Better is one wit bought than two wits ready.

Adge.

Gwell addon gwrth neg na pry.

Better a selling heart than a bought one.

Adge.

Prynadwy, a. (pryn) Purchasable; buyable.

Prynator, ger. (pryn) In purchasing.

Prynawl, a. (pryn) Purchasing, buying.

Pryned, s. f.—pl. t. au (pryn) A holder, or that takes hold; a hand.

Prynedig, a. (pryn) Being purchased; redeemed

Prynedigaeth, s. m. (prynedig) The act of taking, buying, or purchasing; redemption.

Prynedigawl, a. (prynedig) Belonging to purchase; redemptory.

Pryngar, a. (pryn) Addicted to buying.

Pryniad, s. m.—pl. t. f. au (pryn) A buying, a purchasing; a redeeming.

Pryniadawl, a. (pryniad) Purchasing; redeeming

Pryniawd, s. m. (pryn) The act of buying.

Pryniawdwr, s. m.—pl. pryniawdwyr (pryniawd—gwr) A purchaser or a buyer; a redeemer.

Pryniawdr, s. m.—pl. prynlodron (pryniawd) A purchaser or a buyer; a redeemer.

Prynitor, sup. (pryn) To be purchasing.

Prynn, v. a. (pryn) To take, to lay hold of; to purchase, to buy; to redeem; to deserve, to merit. Prynaa hyn, buy this much.

Gwirth dy wybodaeth i brynn spawyr.

Sell thy knowledge to buy scums.

Adge.

Cae dyn a brynn heb poth na heb canll ar dda.

Odious the person who buys every thing without gaining upon any.

Adge.

Cred yn New a yth waeth; mae Ddaew a yth brynnys; ac ofna Ddaew a yth barna.

Believe in God who made thee; love God who redeemed thee; and fear God who will judge thee.

Berddas.

Nid mau modd dewi heb honi pwy oeddynt;

Prynnysu eu moth.

In no wise can I be mute, without asserting who they were; they deserved to be entailed.

Cwethched.

Prynnwr, s. m.—pl. prynnwyr (pryn—gwr) Buyer

Prynydd, s. m.—pl. t. lon (pryn) A buyer.

Prys, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pry—ys) A covert; a resort, or an abode; brushwood, underwood.

It forms the names of several places: as Bron

y Prye; Pryseddod, Pryseddod, Prye Ior-westi, Prye Gaga, Prystaly, Prye Dolfyn.

*Twrif gawt gorwyddawr gochwyn,
Mae twrif torwynt am bys.*

The din of the shout of the tolling steel-mounted warriors, like the tumult of a whirlwind over the brushwood.

Siclyll Bryffwrch.

Pryssain, a. (prys) Abounding with coverts; abounding with brushwood. s. f. A place covered with brushwood.

Pryssawl, a. (prys) Belonging to a covert; frequented; overrun with brushwood.

Prysedd, s. m. (prys) State of being frequented. Prysedda, v. a. (prysedd) To make a resort; to make an abode, to dwell, to inhabit.

Pryseddawl, a. (prysedd) Belonging to a dwelling Pryseddfa, s. f.—pl. t. on (prysedd) A place of resort; a dwelling place.

Pryseddfod, s. f.—pl. t. au (prysedd—bod) A dwelling place, or a habitation.

Pryseddiad, s. m. (prysedd) A making a resort; a fixing an abode; a dwelling.

Pryseddu, v. a. (prysedd) To make a resort; to take up an abode; to dwell.

*Y nos hene y doal Colien adref i'w guddigi, ac y gweddolai ar
Ddew am gael lle i bryseddu tra byddai by.*

That night Colien came home to his hermitage, and he prayed to God for obtaining a place to dwell whilst he should live.

Buchedd Colien.

Prysel, s. m.—pl. t. au (prys) A place overgrown with brushwood, a thicket.

Pryseliad, s. m. (prysel) A becoming covered with brushwood, a growing to a thicket.

Pryselu, v. n. (prysel) To become overgrown with brushwood, or to become a thicket.

Prysg, s. m.—pl. t. au (prys) That extends or stretches over; also brushwood, or underwood. There are several mountains of this name; as the Prysg Du, in Radnorshire, Y Prysg, in Glamorganshire.

Prysgawl, a. (prysg) Expanding over, covering. Prysgiad, s. m. (prysg) A stretching over; also a becoming covered with brushwood.

Prysgl, s. m. (prysg) A copse; brushwood. Prysgliach, s. pl. aggr. (prysgl) Stunted straggling trees.

Prysglwyn, s. m.—pl. t. i (prysg—llwyn) Copse. Prysgoed, s. pl. aggr. (prys—coed) Brushwood.

Prysgwydd, s. pl. (prysg—gwydd) Brushwood. Prysgwydden, s. f. dim. (prysgwydd) A coppice-tree.

Prysgyll, s. m. (prys—cyll) A place overgrown with small hazel wood, a hazel copse.

Prysiad, s. m. (prys) A forming a covert; a making a resort; a becoming overrun.

Prystell, s. f. (prwat) Tumult, or uproar. Prystellach, s. f. (prystell) A state of uproar. v. a. To make an uproar or a tumult.

Y rhai drwg—pan drengout wy y daw y cythreulid yn heitian a phrynciellach fawr ganhynt yn greu lawa i byrth uffern.

The wicked ones, when they are deceased, the devils will urge in armies with dire uproar horribly to the gates of hell.

Elucidarius.

Prysu, v. a. (prys) To form a covert; to make a resort; to overrun; to cover with brushwood.

Prysur, a. (prws) Assiduous, diligent, busy; making haste; serious. Yr wyf yn prysur iawn wrth dy waith, thou art very busy at thy work; gweda imi yn prysur, tell me seriously. Dyfed.

*Rhaid yw ymddillwng tyllwedd present,
Canyu prysur ei boferodd!*

It is necessary to depart from the station of the present, for sneering is the reality of it.

Elidr Sali.

Prysuraw, v. a. (prysur) To make haste with what is in hand; to be assiduous; to hasten. to be serious or intent upon a thing.

Prysurawl, a. (prysur) Tending to be assiduous, tending to hasten; of a serious turn.

Prysurdeb, s. m. (prysur) Assiduity, diligence; business; haste; earnestness, attentiveness.

Prysuredig, a. (prysur) Being hurried, hastened. Prysurriad, s. m. (prysur) A being diligent, a baying; a hastening, a giving attention.

Prysuriaeth, s. m. (prysur) The state of being diligent; a state of bustle; attention.

*Och Ddew! os ddaw of cwnach,
I yswag trwm trwm trwm trwm
Yn nghyfafr prysuriaeth.*

Would to God that he were to come again, to trouble the oppression, of the most violent oppressors, in the urgency of execution.

Elidr Sali.

Prysurwch, s. m. (prysur) Diligence; earnestness; a state of bustle or haste.

Prysurwr, s. m.—pl. prysurwyr (prysur—gwr) A bustling; a hastener.

Pryswr, s. m.—pl. prysawyr (prys—gwr) A resorter, a frequenter; a dweller.

Puch, s. m.—pl. t. ion (py—uch) A sigh; earnest desire, a wish.

Puchaw, v. a. (puch) To sigh; to long, to wish.

*Ar eu pechodau pechodau arwydd crog;
Yn dwys croes Crist ar fy ysgwydd;
Angen yr enaid i'w ddiwedd
A dda am barchu am becherydd.*

On their sins I would have desired the sign of the cross; that I might bear the cross of Christ on my shoulder; the death of the soul, an untoward fate, will come for leaving their sickedness.

Elidr Sali.

Puchedig, a. (puch) Being longed for or desired. Puchiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (puch) A sighing after; a desiring earnestly; a desiring.

Puchianawl, a. (puchiant) Panting; sighing; earnestly desirous; greatly longing after.

Puchianus, v. a. (puchiant) To make a sighing; to desire earnestly, to long or to pant after.

Puchianus, a. (puchiant) Sighing; longing.

Puchiant, s. m. (puch) A sighing; earnest desire.

*Daw llystwadwr—
Duddidid di'wneidd a'm dweiddo byd frawd;
Dedawd dibechwyl yn a budo;
O buechiant na'wrodd ei a'm dweiddo
Roddion ordywyll a'm diwylio!*

God the supreme ruler, with uncorrupted love may he guide me for judgement; a sinless habit may he add for me; from is greatly existing anxiety may he bestow on me supreme gifts that shall undecieve me.

Elidr Sali.

Puchlaw, v. a. (puch) To sigh, to desire earnestly Puchlawl, a. (puch) Sighing, longing, wishing.

Puchwr, s. m.—pl. puchwyr (puch—gwr) One who sighs, one who longs.

Pud, s. m. (py—ud) That tends to allure. Pudd, s. m. (py—udd) Aptness to stop.

Pul, s. m.—pl. t. on (py—al) That tends to straiten.

Pum, s. m. (py—nm) That tends to form, or to aggregate; the number five, used as a prefix,
in composition.

Pumban, s. m.—pl. t. an (pum—ban) A term is prosody for a stanza of five verses.

Pumbanawg, a. (pumban) Consisting of five verses or lines.

Pumbya, s. pl. (pum—bys) Five fingers. a. Five-fingered; common cinquefoil: pumbya yr athen, procumbent albidia.

Pumcanfed, s. m. (pumcant) The five hundredth part. a. Five hundredth.

Pumcanmil, s. m. (pumcant—mil) Five hundred thousand. a. Five hundred thousand.

Pumcanallied, s. m. (pumcanall) Five hundred thousandth part. a. Five hundred thousandth.

Pumcanmyrdd, s. m. (pumcant—myrdd) The number of five hundred myriads, or five millions. a. Five hundred myriads.

Pumcant, s. m. (pum—cant) Five hundred.

Pumcanwaith, s. m. (pumcant—gwaith) Five hundred times.

Pumdalen, s. f. (pum—dalen) A cinquefoil. a. Five-leaved.

Pumdalenawg, a. (pumdalen) Having five leaves.

Pumdeg, s. m. (pum—deg) Fifty. a. Fifty.

Pumdegawl, a. (pumdeg) Belonging to fifty.

Pumdegfed, s. m. (pumdeg) The fiftieth part.

Pumdegmil, s. m. (pumdeg—mil) Fifty thousand. a. Fifty thousand.

Pumdryll, s. pl. (pum—dryll) Five pieces. a. Consisting of five pieces.

Pumloes, s. pl. (pum—loes) The five agonies; a term in theology.

Pumlleng, s. pl. (pum—lleng) Five legions. a. Consisting of five legions.

Pumlllyfr, s. pl. (pum—llyfr) The pentateuch.

Pumped, s. m. (pum) The fifth. a. Fifth.

Pumpedban, s. m. (pummed—ban) A fifth line.

Pumpedmis, s. (pummed—mis) The fifth month.

Pumpednos, s. f. (pummed—nos) A fifth night.

Pumpedran, s. f. (pummed—rhan) A fifth part.

Pummil, s. m. (pum—mil) Five thousand.

Pummilfed, s. f. (pummil) The five thousandth part. a. Five thousandth.

Pummis, s. pl. (pum—mis) Five months. a. Of five months.

Pummysyriad, s. m.—pl. pummysyriad (pum—syriad) What is five years of age.

Pummwnt, s. m. (pum—mwnt) Five hundred thousand.

Pumnalen, s. f. (pum—dalen) Cinquefoil.

Pumnalenawg, a. (pumnalen) Cinquefoil.

Pumochr, s. m. (pum—ochr) A pentagon. a. Of five sides.

Pumochrawg, a. (pumochr) Five-sided, pentagon.

Pumood, s. pl. (pum—oed) Five ages; a term used sometimes for Pumoes.

Pumoes, s. pl. (pum—oes) Five lives, or five periods; a term in theology for the period before the coming of Christ.

Achaws pumoes byd y b iddaw,
Uchawr mirain, ber drain drwyddaw.

For the sake of the five ages of the world, the glorious exalted one was placed with the point of thorns. D. Benfras.

Pumongl, s. m. (pum—ongl) That has five angles. a. Of five angles.

Pumonglawg, a. (pumongl) Pentagonal.

Pump, s. m. (pum) Five, used only absolutely.

Pumpyg, s. m. (pum—plyg) What is doubled five times. a. Quintuple.

Pumpygawl, a. (pumpyg) Quintuple.

Pumrhan, s. pl. (pum—rhan) Five shares.

Pumrhanawl, a. (pumrhan) Quinquapartite.

Pumail, s. pl. (pum—sill) Five syllables. a. Of five syllables.

Pumailawg, a. (pumail) Of five syllables.

Pumtant, s. m. (pum—fant) A pentachord.

Pumtro, s. pl. (pum—tro) Five turns. a. Of five turns; five times.

Pumwaith, s. pl. (pum—gwaith) Five times.

Pumwan, s. pl. (pum—gwan) Five wounds, a term in christian theology.

Can dag pumwan Crist pumoes o geith—
Since the five wounds of Christ bear the five ages out of bondage. LL. P. Mech.

Pumwr, s. pl. (pum—gwr) Five men.

Pumwriad, s. m.—pl. pumwriad (pumwr) One who is over five men.

Pan, s. m. (py—en) That is equal, even, or equivalent. a. Equal, equivalent.

Panwar pan brodyr o'm be,
Ac i bob a'n pentoleu;
Ni wyt Tren berchen llyd.

Four equal brothers to me have been, and each was allotted to be the head of a family; but Tren knows to itself no owner. Llywelyn Hen.

Punt, s. f.—pl. punnoedd (pun) A denomination for the sum of twenty shillings, or a pound.

Pnr, s. m. (py—ur) That is pure or without alloy. a. Pure, clean; undefiled, perfect; sincere.

Iolaf hair, o bered arwar,
A beris amsod ac adar.

I will adore the Cause, from so pure a source did produce revolving things and birds. Llywelyn Fardd.

Pur, adv. (py—ur) Essentially; very. Pur dda, very good; pur dost, very severe.

Parad, s. m. (pur) Depuration, a purifying.

Paradwy, a. (parad) Capable of being pure.

Puraidd, a. (pur) Somewhat pure or clean.

Purain, a. (pur) Abounding with purity.

Puraw, v. a. (pur) To purify, to cleanse.

Purawd, s. m. (pur) Purgation, or cleansing.

Purawl, a. (pur) Purifying, cleansing.

Purawr, s. m. (pur) A purifier, a purger.

Pordan, s. m. (pur—tan) Purgatory.

Purdeb, s. m. (pur) Purity; sincerity.

Tair cynnedd purdeb ar leith; prif amawd, prif arfer, a phrifddwydd.

The three principles of purity in a language; an established idiom, an established usage, and established application. Borliden.

Purdra, s. m. (pur) Purenness, or purity.

Puredig, a. (purad) Purified, cleansed.

Puredigaeth, s. m.—pl. t. an (puredig) The being purified; a purification; a lustration.

Puredigaethawl, a. (puredigaeth) Purificative.

Puredigaethu, v. a. (puredigaeth) To make a purification, to make a lustration.

Puredigaw, v. a. (puredig) To render purified.

Puredigawl, a. (puredig) Purificatory.

Puredd, s. m. (pur) Purity, pureness, cleanness.

Pureidd-dra, s. m. (puraidd) A purified state.

Pureiddiad, s. m. (puraidd) A rendering purified.

Pureiddiaw, v. a. (puraidd) To render pure; to become of a pure nature; to lustrate.

Pureiddiedig, a. (pureiddiad) Being purified.

Pureiddiedigawl, a. (pureiddiedig) Purificative.

Pureiddrwydd, s. m. (puraidd) Pureness, parity.

Puren, s. f.—pl. t. an (pur) A purifying machine, a sifting skreen.

Puriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (pur) A making pure; a becoming pure; a purifying; a lustration.

Puriannawl, a. (puriant) Purificative.

Puriannu, v. a. (puriant) To depurate.

Puriannus, a. (puriant) Depuratory, purifying.

Puriannusaw, v. a. (puriannus) To render purificatory; to become purificative.

Puriant, s. m. (pur) Purgation, depuration.

Purior, ger. (purad) In purifying.

Puriedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pariad) A purifier.

Purineb, s. m. (pur) A state of purity.

Purion, adv. (pur) Essentially, purely; very well.

Wyd burion i gyrchu angu ar wr boneddig.

Thou art very well to fetch death to a nobleman. Adage, applied to a dilatory one.

Puritor, sup. (pur) To be purifying.

Purian, a. (pur—glan) Purely clean.

Purwr, s. m.—pl. purwyr (pur—gwr) One who makes purp, a purifier.

Puten, s. f.—pl. t. od (put) A whore.

Puteinera, s. m. (puten) Putanism, whoredom.

Puteindy, s. m. (puten—ty) A hawdy-dodge.

Puteiniad, s. f.—pl. puteiniad (puten) A whore.

Puteiniaw, v. a. (puten) To commit whoredom.

Puteiniaw, a. (puten) Meretricious.

Puteinig, a. (puten) Wherish, adulterous.

Puteinigrwydd, s. m. (puten) Whorishness.

Puteinlwr, s. m.—pl. puteinlwyf (puten—gwr) A whoremonger, a fornicator.

Puteiniyd, a. (puten) Addicted to fornication.

PW, s. m. r. That tends to push, or pass off; a tendency to pass off, or to separate.

Pwca, s. m.—pl. t. od (pwg) A hobgoblin.

Pwcl, s. m.—pl. t. od (pwg) A hobgoblin.

Pwd, s. m. (pw—wd) A rot; the rot in sheep.

Pwdr, a. (pwd) Rotten, corrupt, putrid.

Pwff, s. m.—pl. pyffian (pw) A puff.

Pwffiaw, v. a. (pwff) To puff; to come in puffs.

Pwg, s. m. (pw—wg) That pushes or swells out.

Pwl, s. m. (py—wl) That is blunt, or obtuse; that is dull. Pwl dall, a blind worm.

Pwl, a. (py—wl) Blunt, obtuse; dull, stupid.

Dyn pwl sy'n meddwl am eoi;

How a man byd yr clwyd.

The simple man is anxious about life; God ordains the length of existence. W. Adams.

Pwlongl, s. f.—pl. pwlonglawn (pwl—engl) An obtuse angle.

Pwlonglawg, a. (pwlongl) Having obtuse angles.

Pwll, s. m.—pl. pyllau (py—wll) A small pool, a pit. Pwll mawn, a peat pit; pwll lif, a saw pit.

Pwm, s. m. (py—wm) That swells out.

Pwmp, s. m. (pwm) A round mass. Pwmp o ddyn, a large heavy man.

Pwmpa, s. m. (pwm) A round lump; a large kind of apple.

Pwmpiad, s. m. (pwm) A forming a round mass; a thumping, a banging.

Pwmpiaw, v. a. (pwm) To form a round mass; to thump, to bang.

Pwmpwl, s. m.—pl. pwmpwlau (pwm) A knob, a boss; also the drop of a drawer.

Pwmplaw, s. a. (pwmpl) To boss, to knob.

Pwmplawg, a. (pwmpl) Knobbed, or bossed.

Pwn, s. m.—pl. pynau (pw) An aggregate; a pack; a burden, a load.

A phan-pyn llyn gar ei llaw.

And a hundred pool flows close at hand. Adams.

Pwnc, s. m.—pl. pyncian (py—wnc) That is present or in the instant; a point of time; a point; a note in music; a subject, or what is under observation; a point or stop, in grammar.

Pwniad, s. m. (pwn) A laying on a burden, a loading; a beating, a banging.

Pwntaw, v. a. (pwn) To load, to load; to beat, to thump.

Pwnt, s. m. (pwn) That is collected, or aggregated; a reservoir. Pwnt melyn, a mill dam.

Pwng, s. m.—pl. t. au (py—wng) That is in contact, upon, or together; a cluster; a caop, as of a field, of a tree, or the like. Sil.

Amgylch llyn—

Gaudd yd kyrrh cyanng o'i gynnif pwng.

Around the chief fens habitually throng together from his gathering steam. E. ab M. Rhodri.

Pwnga, s. m. (pwng) That is collected together; a push, a wheel, a blister.

Pwngaldd, a. (pwng) Tending to cluster.

Pwngaw, s. a. (pwng) To team; to cluster.

Pwngawl, a. (pwng) Teaming; clustering.

Pwngiad, s. m. (pwng) A teaming; a clustering.

Pwnga, v. a. (pwng) To team; to cluster.

Pwr, s. m. (pw—wr) That extends; a woman.

Pwr dall, pwr dall, a blind woman, a slow woman.

Pws, s. m. (pw—ws) That is uttered, or expelled.

Pwsach, s. m. (pws) A forcible utterance; an outcry. Brecon.

Pwt, s. m.—pl. pytian (py—wt) Any short thing.

Pwt o lwy, a short piece of wood; pwt o ddyn, a squab of a person; pwt o gloddof, a short bit of a sword; pwt y gynnen, a mischief maker.

Pwda, s. f. dim. (pwt) A squat female.

Pwtiad, s. m. (pwt) A butting, a poking.

Pwtian, v. a. (pwt) To but, to poke, to thrust.

Pwtiaw, v. a. (pwt) To but, or to thrust against.

Pwtledydd, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pwtiad) A thruster.

Pwtienydd, s. m. (pwtian) A thruster, a pokes.

Pwtiwr, s. m.—pl. pwtiwyf (pwt—gwr) Thruster.

Pwtog, s. f. dim. (pwt) A short thick woman.

Pwtwn, s. m. (pwt) A kind of liquor; probably the same as the poteen whisky of the Irish.

Cwre ioch, o frig cedyr y tw,

Yw pwtwn, twl gwin ffrwy.

Solitary pie, from the tops of the peaks of the hills, in the Pwtwn, like Polton's wife. Craig y Glyn.

Pwtyn, s. m. dim. (pwt) A short round body, Pwtyn o bren, a short piece of wood; pwtyn o ddyn, a short squab of a man.

Pwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (pw) A beat, a knock; a but; a thrust.

Oipal'r bala, o pwy o'r big,

Ar y ddwy-dorth cwrddig.

Like the obel holes of a coat, the mark of a part of the back, on the two useful masses. Gr. Hibernia, y ffrwyd.

Pwy, pron. (pw) Who, which person; what.

Ni wddan pan enor dweran a pwy;

Ni wddan pan hysg a pwy o'r gwynedd;

Py fa dda; py dir a' blwyd.

They knew not when the darkness and the dawn divide; or the wind of what course; what the cause of its agitation; which the place of its termination; which the region that surrounds it. Taliesin.

Parch a'ih harcho pwy byna bo.

Respect him that respects thee who soever he be. Adams.

A wddan hwy pwy yw pwyll!

Do they know what is reason! D. ab Gwilym.

Pwy, adv. (pw) In a forward or advanced position; forward, to; in a past state. Cwyddw o le pwy gilydd, to wander from one place to another.

Ni wddan o'r mor hwy'r mor

Marchwng a fal wddan.

I have not beheld from the sea to the sea a warrior that could be worse. Taliesin.

Pwyad, s. m. (pwy) A beating, a striking.

Pwyaw, v. a. (pwy) To beat, to bang, to batter.

Ni thyr befyd, newn bryd baw,

A bwyll, rhag ei bwyaw,

Talawg, m chynauclaw.

It will not be cast, in a timid mind, with a hatchet, lest he may be beaten, by a chair, nor by feet gathering. Gr. Bryg, y pwn.

Pwyawd, s. m. (pwy) A beat, a stroke, a bang.

Pwyawdr, s. m.—pl. pwyadran (pwyawd) A pounder, a hammer, a beetle, a pastor's beetle.

Pwyawl, a. (pwy) Beating, striking, banging.

Pwybyneg, pron. (pwy—pynag) Whosoever.

Pwyd, s. m. (pwy) The act of putting by, or passing.

It is a termination forming the impersonal preterite used for pwyd, in some parts.

Pwyedig, a. (pwyad) Beaten, banged; pached.

Pwyedigneth, s. m. (pwyedig) The act of beating, striking, or banging.

Pwyllydd, ade. (pwy—clydd) To another.

Pwyll, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pwy—yll) That clears a course forward, an opening a way; impulse; reason, sense, wit, discretion, prudence, perseverance. Pwyll certh, sharp wit.

Athrew doeth pwyll, athraw amnoeth dylith.

The instructor of the wise is reason, the instructor of the unwise is example. Adage.

Gwell pwyll nag awr.

Prudence is better than gold. Adage.

A fo da ei bwyll a fydd diboen.

He that will be of good discretion will be free from pain. Adage.

Fyil wya—

Pwyll iau trwy lwmn.

Fair Fyil of a course of fire through a chimney. Llywarch Hen.

On pwyll canwyll rhag cynnes,
Gores canwyll yw pwyll pen.

If sense be a lamp to avoid contention, the best lamp is common sense. H. C. Llywd.

A'r bwyll a cyrth o'r bellen,

A'r byd a degyrwyd ar ben.

And the impulsive power will fall out of the globe, and the world will come to an end. Llywarch ab Owain.

Pwyll, a. (pwy—yll) Tending onward, forward; wary, discreet.

Par yw ei gleidd, por y Glyn,

Pwyll rwyngwr polt orngyn.

Pure is his sword, the lord of the Vale, the forward hero far conquering. Iolo Goch.

Pwyllad, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pwyll) An impelling, or guiding forward; a reasoning; a reasoning faculty.

Fy Naw, fy nerthedd,

A ddolau trwy fy lad

Kaidd i'm pwyllad.

My God, my strengthener did before through my temple a goal for my guidance. Taliesin.

Pwylladwy, a. (pwyllad) Capable of reasoning.

Pwyllad, s. c.—pl. pwyllleion (pwyll) That is impulsive; one who uses discretion.

Pwyllator, ger. (pwyllad) In impelling, or investigating; in reasoning.

Pwyllaw, s. a. (pwyll) To clear a way forward, to open a course; to impel; to reason, to think, to deliberate; to act discreetly; to call to mind, to contemplate, to think of.

Pwyllad Dmawd farchaw gwain,

Ei rhydded gwastadur celain,

Yn crybi crynodd Owain.

Demand the active warrior would impel onward, expecting to make a corpse, against the busy onset of Owain. Llywarch Hen.

Mab Daw, dylaf dy bwyllaw.

Son of God, I ought to think of thee. D. Benfras.

Pwyllawd, s. m. (pwyll) Impulsion; guidance forward; exertion of the mind.

Pwyllawg, a. (pwyll) Having impulse; rational, prudent, discreet, considerate, well-advised; circumspect, wary.

Fedrydawg, pwyllawg pwyll goddailth,

Pell ei giod o giodaw sarthailth.

Vigorous, impelling forward like the impulse of a conflagration, far his flame for collecting spoil. Cynddalar, i O. ab Medawg.

Pwyllawr, s. m. (pwyll) An impulse; a motive; reasoning faculty.

Pwyllid, s. f.—pl. t. au (pwyll—tid) A loop.

Pwylledig, a. (pwyllad) Ended with impulse.

Pwyllodd, s. m. (pwyll) Discreetness, wariness.

Pwyllgall, a. (pwyll—call) Rationally wise.

Pwylliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwyll) An impelling, or guiding forward; a reasoning, exertion of the mind; contemplation.

Gwethle i felch cymrudd o gad;

A gwedy gaur garw bwylliad.

I beheld steeds barged with martial toil from battle; and after the shoot a frightful impelling. Llywarch Hen.

VOL. II.

Nes goren dan bwyllad nerthedd pwyllad.

Were not the exertion of a hero bent under discretion. Samur.

Nis myn pwyllad.

He will not receive direction. Adage.

Pwylliad, s. m.—pl. pwylliad (pwyll) A pilot.

Pwylliadu, v. a. (pwylliad) To guide as a pilot.

Pwylllawr, s. m. (pwyll) Impulse; motive.

Daw dauw-wir, pellir pwyllawr o'n cynhen.

God of active truth, reason is far driven from our contention. L. F. Meek.

Pwyllig, a. (pwyll) Rational; discreet, wary. Mae yn dawed yn bwyllig iawn, he is coming very leisurely. Dyfed.

Nid pwyllig y dyn a ddolau genfren.

The person who harbours envy is not prudent. Adage.

Pwylligrwydd, s. m. (pwyllig) Rationality.

Pwyllineb, s. m. (pwyll) Rationality, prudence.

Pwylllogi, v. a. (pwyllawg) To endue with reason, to become rational.

Pwyllogrwydd, s. m. (pwyllawg) Rationality, considerateness.

Pwyllus, a. (pwyll) Impulsive, rational, discreet.

Pwyllusaw, v. a. (pwyllus) To grow rational.

Pwyllusrwydd, s. m. (pwyllus) Impulsiveness; rationality, discreetness.

Pwyllwr, s. m.—pl. pwyllwyr (pwyll—gwr) One who impels; a discreet man.

Pwyn, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pwy—yn) A point.

Pwyned, s. f.—pl. t. i (pwyn) A branch; a fork.

Tri pheth hofaldid i wrar ei alaw: cylllel awch; pwynded fawell; ac alaw glan.

Three things seemly for a person at his dinner: a keen knife; a sharp-pointed branch; and a clean plate. Trioddad Meor.

Pwyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwyn) Any pointed tool; a spike; a skewer.

Tri anharddwch gwr mawr gwidd; pwyniad ryfer, cylllel fawel, ac y saig ya mhell.

Three things unseemly to a man in a banquet: a skewer too short, a blunt-edged knife, and the victuals at a distance. Trioddad Meor.

Pwyniaw, v. a. (pwyn) To spike, to skewer.

Pwynt, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pwyn) An end, or point; a state, condition, case, or plight; good case.

A wyddant hwy pwy, o'm pwynt,

O drall ym, a droes samhwyst!

Do they know who, out of my good condition, out of treachery to me, has brought about indisposition. Nede Brwynllys.

Pwyntel, s. m.—pl. t. i (pwynt) Any pointed tool; a pencil, a painter's brush or tool.

Un dall yw'r byd cyngyd oel

A phawdiwr daie a phwyntel.

Of the same manner is the world of hidden design as a painter of an image with a pencil. Dr. S. Crut.

Pwyntiad, s. m. (pwynt) A bringing to a point; a putting into good case or plight.

Pwyntlaw, v. a. (pwynt) To point, to bring to a point; to put in good case or plight.

Brastlaid, tewychlaid, pwyntlaid.

Thou hast become large, thou hast become fat, thou hast become of good case. Died. 32. 14.

Pwyntawl, a. (pwynt) Tending to a point; tending to be of good condition.

Pwyntiedig, a. (pwyntiad) Pointed, being made of good condition.

Pwyntiwr, s. m.—pl. pwyntwyr (pwynt—gwr) One who points; a fattener.

Pwyntl, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwynt) A pointed end; a tag. Pwyntl carai, tag of a lace; a poniard.

Pwys, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwy—ys) The state of being put down or at rest; the state of being down or upon; pressure, weight; a pound weight. Pwys cwyrr, pwys bach, a pound avoirdupoise; pwys cystein, pwys y gareg, but varying in weight: in Melrion it is two pounds avoirdupoise, and in Mon it is five. Dos writh dy brys, go at thy leisure; cymera brys, take a seat. Dyfed.

Mynd trwy yr afon a phont ar brys.

To go through the river with a bridge on the spot. Adage.

Pwysadwy, a. (pwys) Ponderable, capable of being weighed.

Pwysaw, v. a. (pwys) To throw upon, to throw down; to press, to weigh; to incline; to lean; to be a pressure, to be a burden: to take rest. Pwysa y bel, serve thou the ball; pwysaw at yr amser, to draw near the time; a wael di brysawd wilt thou take rest? Dyfed. Gwraig brys, or gwraig briawd, a wedded wife; carriad-wraig, a love wife, or concubine.

Pwysawd, s. m. (pwys) The act of pressing, or weighing down; a weighing.

Pwysawdr, s. m.—pl. pwysawron (pwysawd) Any thing to press down with; a rammer.

Pwysawg, a. (pwys) Having a pressure; being of weight, being heavy.

Pwysawl, a. (pwys) Pressing; weighing.

Pwysedig, a. (pwys) Being pressed, weighed.

Pwysfawr, a. (pwys—mawr) Ponderous, weighty, momentous, of great consequence.

Pwysgar, a. (pwys) Tending to press.

Pwysgarwch, s. m. (pwysgar) Weightiness.

Pwysl, s. m. (pwys) Weight, heaviness.

Pwysiad, s. m. (pwys) A pressing; a weighing.

Pwysianawwl, a. (pwysiant) Depressive.

Pwysiannu, v. a. (pwysiant) To cause a depression; to become depressive.

Pwysiant, s. m. (pwys) Depression, pressure.

Pwysig, a. (pwys) Pressing, ponderous, emphatic.

Pwysigrwydd, s. m. (pwysig) Pressingness; ponderousness, weightiness.

Pwysineb, s. m. (pwys) Depressiveness.

Pwyswr, s. m.—pl. pwyswyr (pwys—gwr) One who presses, or bears down; a weigher.

Pwysydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pwys) One who presses, one who bears down; a weigher.

Pwyth, s. m.—pl. t. l (pwy—yth) That runs in; a thrust; a stitch; a point, an angle, or indenting; a retaliation, a requital, a return. This pwyth, to pay a point, or to return like for like; pwyth celwydd, the reward of a lie; Pwythion, requitals; certain presents given, according to old usage, to a newly married couple, by the persons invited to the wedding: Pwyth Meinas, the Narrow Green Point, the name of the place where Cæsar landed in Britain.

Pwythaw, v. a. (pwyth) To thrust in; to stitch.

Pwythawg, a. (pwyth) Having stitches.

Pwythawl, a. (pwyth) Stitching, sewing.

Pwythedig, a. (pwyth) Stitched, sewed.

Pwythiad, s. m. (pwyth) A stitching, a sticking.

Pwythwr, s. m.—pl. pwythwyr (pwyth—gwr) A stitcher.

Pwythydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pwyth) A stitcher.

PY, s. m. r. That is inward, that is inviolated; that is inversed. It is a prefix in the composition of words; but generally dropping the vowel, on account of its being the shortest and giving way to all the other vowels.

Py, pron. (py, s.) What; which. It is used for Pa. adu. why, for what reason. Py efalli? why so?

Y galyon oeddynt yn ymroddi i'w grotadig frad, yn golyddu goronau yr pwy, a'i ddiwyro: ac, i'w hith pob pwy, pwyth a wneir py wedd y gelynt gwacathur brad y breinia yn gytad.

The enemies were giving themselves up to their usual treachery, in trying to conquer the island, and to destroy it: and, amongst every thing, they were going to destroy what they could work the ruin of the king in the first place.

Brut y Brenhiniaid.

Nid rhaid tra dilyn pobl odn pwy i Py geid o'r goroldyfr rhag pob goroldyfr.

There need not be too much inquisitiveness in the asking whom; who will keep the bordering water from every nation.

L. P. Mech, i Lyswain IL.

Pyb, s. m. (py—yb) That is energetic or stout.

Pybl, s. m. (pyb) Vigour, potency, energy.

Rhos difro Benfro panfadden pybl;

Pobl ledydd rwy cygas.

The depopulated moor of Penfro whose strength is cut off: the people of Christendom have heard it.

L. P. Mech.

Pyblaidd, a. (pybl) Of a vigorous nature.

Pyblu, v. a. (pybl) To invigorate, to animate.

Pybyr, a. (pyb) Strenuous, stout, vigorous.

Pybyraidd, a. (pybyr) Somewhat strenuous.

Pybyriad, s. m. (pybyr) A rendering stout, or vigorous; a becoming vigorous; invigoration.

Pybyrn, v. a. (pybyr) To act stoutly; to exert.

Pwyl ar d'ot: pybyrn: do!

Pwyl o'i warch, yn hachos

Ynyfarnog fywlog fact.

Every one is after thee: cheer up; fy! every one is ready for his shout, if there should be occasion, thou little lively being.

T. Frys.

Pybyrwrch, a. m. (pybyr) Strenuousness; stoutness, vigorousness; valiantness.

Heddwch, pybyrwrch y byd,

Cyfoeth a fath helyd.

The peace, the vigor of the world, and wealth also be cherisheth.

T. Stead.

Pyd, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (py—yd) That sinks in a pit; a snare; danger. a. Dangerous.

Ar nid yw pwyll pyd yw.

If it be not prudence it is danger.

Adage.

Ni ho lawr yw pyd.

What is not just is dangerous.

Adage.

Pan ddynt i'r lle yr oedd y pyd i'w dydd, yn ddiwedd y cyfain gwyr Rheulain i'w dydd.

When they came to the place where the men were hidden for them, immediately the men of Rome rose up against them.

Brut y Brenhiniaid.

Pydaidd, a. (pyd) Tending to sink; dangerous.

Pydaw, s. m.—pl. t. au (pyd—aw) An oozing fluid; a quag; a well, or spring.

Pydawl, a. (pyd) Tending to sink; dangerous.

Pydewald, s. m. (pydaw) An oozing of water.

Pydewiwd, a. (pydaw) Apt to ooze with water.

Pydiad, s. m. (pyd) A sinking; a forming a snare; a creating of danger.

Pydiant, s. m. (pyd) A sinking in; a snaring; the act of bringing to danger.

Pydiaw, v. a. (pyd) To ensnare, to endanger, to expose to danger; to be in peril.

Ni bydd a Mab Daw dymunaw

A fo myaw byd y ei bydiaw.

He will not be without the possibility of perishing from the sin of God whom the perf of the world answers.

D. Brafra.

Pydiedig, a. (pydiad) Being ensnared, endangered, exposed to peril.

Pydoldeb, s. m. (pydawl) Dangerousness.

Rhos wab Tendorr a Soss i'r Iwerddon, rhag pydiedig y hoddol ef.

Rhos son of Tendorr fled into Ireland for fear of the danger that he would be slain.

Pydraidd, a. (pwrdr) Tending to rot, carious.

Pydrawl, a. (pwrdr) Tending to rot, corruptive.

Pydredig, a. (pwrdr) Being rotted, corrupted.

Pydredd, s. m. (pwrdr) Rotteness, putridity.

Pydriad, s. m. (pwrdr) A rotting; putrefaction.

Pydrni, s. m. (pwrdr) Rottenness, putridity.
Pydra, v. a. (pwrdr) To rot, or to putrefy.
Pydu, v. a. (pyd) To sink; to cause a sinking; to form a snare; to create danger; to endanger; to become dangerous.

—Mab pyd, mor fu parwad,
 By ddrfu, ya neithawr, ni be pwrwad
 Gan Dduw, py amgan plwyf, pydu dalarsawd.

The son of snaring, so ready was he, aptly did, in the marriage which was not appropriate to God, for want of other community, cause the earthly world.

Melgan, m. Cynddylan.

Pydus, a. (pyd) Tending to sink; dangerous.
Pydusaw, v. a. (pydus) To render sinking; to render dangerous; to become dangerous.
Pydusedd, s. m. (pydus) A state of sinking; a state of snaring; a state of danger.
Pydwern, s. f. (pyd—gwrn) A quaking bog.

Pan ddryf y Mab Rhod odd rhaid neithawr—
 I alltra, bydwern, heb adaw y chwaith;
 Yn an boregwath ei haereithaw.

When the Son of Gwece came there was a necessity for him; to hell, a quaggy bog, leaving not chance; in one morning tide it despoiling.

D. Brufas.

Pydwr, s. m.—pl. pydwyr (pyd—gwr) A sharer.
Pydd, s. m. (py—ydd) The state of running out.
Pyddawl, a. (pydd) Tending to spread out.
Pyddiad, s. m. (pydd) A running out.
Pydda, v. a. (pydd) To run out, to spread.
Pyg, s. m. (py—yg) Pitch, rosin of pine.
Pygawl, a. (pyg) Of a pitchy quality.
Pygoren, s. m.—pl. t. i (pyg—pren) Pitch tree.
Pygidig, a. (pyg) Covered with pitch.
Pygeda, s. m. (pyg) Pitchiness, a pitchy quality.
Pygiad, s. m. (pyg) A covering with pitch.
Pyglian, s. m. (pyg—llian) A cere-cloth.
Pygliw, s. m. (pyg—lliw) Pitch colour. a. Of a pitch colour.

Pyglyd, a. (pyg) Pitchy, of a pitchy quality.
Pyglydwydd, s. m. (pyglyd) Pitchiness.
Pyglyn, s. m. (pyg—llyn) Hog's fenel, fenale.
Pyga, v. a. (pyg) To pitch, to cover with pitch.
Pygwydd, s. pl. aggr. (pyg—gwydd) Common fir, or pitch-trees.

Pygwydden, s. f. dim. (pygwydd) A pitch-tree.
Pylaidd, a. (pwl) Somewhat blunt, bluntyish.
Pyledig, a. (pwl) Being made dull, blunted.
Pyledd, s. m. (pwl) Bluntness, or obtuseness.
Pylgain, s. m.—pl. pylgeiniau (pwl—cain) An indistinct light; the morning twilight, the morning, the dawn of day.

Pylgaint, s. m. (pylgain) The morning twilight.
Pylgeialawl, a. (pylgain) Belonging to the morning twilight; matin.

Pyl, s. m. (pwl) Bluntness, dullness.
Pyliaid, s. m.—pl. t. i. au (pwl) A blunting.
Pylai, s. m. (pwl) Bluntness, or dullness.
Pylor, s. m. (pwl) Dust, or powder.
Pyloraid, a. (pylor) Powdery, like dust.
Pyloraw, a. (pylor) Full of dust, powdery.
Pyloriad, s. m. (pylor) A reducing to powder.
Pylorn, v. a. (pylor) To reduce to powder.
Pyloryn, s. m. dim. (pylor) A grain of powder.
Pylrwydd, s. m. (pwl) Bluntness, dullness.
Pylu, v. a. (pwl) To make obtuse, to blunt; to become obtuse, blunt, or dull.

Pylas, a. (pwl) Tending to make blunt or dull.
Pylwr, s. m. (pwl—gwr) One who blunts.
Pyll, s. m. (py—yll) That is compact. a. Compact, concentrated.

Pylliaid, s. m.—pl. pyllidiau (pyll) The contents of a plash or puddle.

Y Byddedus gysa a odd yn rhodlaw newn-gwilyd; ac e ddryg ddaerwale hi a gwmpal newn pyliaid o'r gais.

The mouse came on a time was walking about in a tavern, and through off chaps she fell into a puddle of the wine.

Dauignon.

Pyllawg, a. (pyll) Full of pits, or puddles.
Pylliad, s. m. (pyll) A forming a pit or puddle.
Pylllogrwydd, s. m. (pyllawg) The state of being full of pits or puddles.
Pyllyn, s. m. dim. (pyll) A small puddle.
Pymtheg, s. m.—pl. t. au (pump—deg) Fifteen.
Pymthegfed, s. m. (pymtheg) A fifteenth.
Pymthegmas, s. m. (pymtheg—nos) The space of fifteen nights; a fortnight.
Pymthegwaith, s. pl. (pymtheg—gwaith) Fifteen times. a. Of fifteen times.
Pyn, s. m. (py—yn) What is open or in contact.
Pyna, adv. (py—yn) Otherwise, soever. It is used before words with consonant initials, and Pynag, before vowels.

Aggras—
 Babil ain trigolion,
 A gwna pa le byna bon?
 N'a'n gwyboda o'u gelydion.

Enumerates the tents of our inhabitants; and make what place soever they are in so that not one of our (sons) may be us.

H. D. ab Iwan.

Pynag, adv. (py—nag) Soever. Pa beth bynag, pynag pa beth, what thing soever; pwyl bynag, whosoever; pwyl yn bynag, pynag pwyl, what one soever: "Pe diastbetych di bynag," if thou wert to cry out ever so.

Pynas, s. f.—pl. t. au (pwn) That is collected together; that forms a compact body; a tribe.

A'm eirioley Mair a'y Mab cuse,
 Nad elwyl yn llegr, yn lloct lla!
 Na'm gais llyso, cyn deg pynas,
 Yn rhewin Kayu can Sathanas.

May I be interceded for by Mary with the gracious Son, that I go not to corruption, in the society of Judas! May I not be left by the Creator, before the ten tribes, in the destruction of Calah with the Sathanic host!

Edmon ab Gwladus mab.

Pynawr, s. m. (pwn) That is a load or burden.
Pynciad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwn) A noting of time. a. Noting; pointing; a decanting; a disquisition; a disputation; a playing at ball, by the players hitting of it to one another.

Pynciadawl, a. (pynciad) Relating to notation of time; relating to tanning; pointing.

Pynciaw, v. a. (pwn) To note or to point time; to note; to point; to decant; to make a disquisition; to play a kind of game at ball, by the players hitting of it to one another. Mwyned y pynciant yr adar! How sweetly do the birds trill the song!

Pynciawl, a. (pwn) Noting; timing; pointing.

Pynciedig, a. (pynciad) Noted; pointed; tuned.

Pynciwr, s. m.—pl. pynciawyr (pwn—gwr) A noter, or one who points; a tinner.

Pyner, s. m.—pl. t. i (pyn) That is upon or over; a covering.

Nis caulyn o'i dda, o'i ddifder ymdro,
 Oddo at ymdo, amgylch llynet.

There will not follow him of his deeds, of his means of protection, by his shroud, a wretched cover. Gr. ab yr Ynad Coch.

Pynfasc, s. m.—pl. pynfeirch (pwn—march) What serves to raise up, to aggregate, or to collect; also a pack horse, or sumpter-horse; an escheat. Pynfarch melin, a mill dam.

Wylh pynfarch breinia y dydd; mor; a ddifalith; se schanawg gwlad gail yn cerdded tir y breinia; a llyder; marw yn swith, y breinia blaun ran y marw o'r da o'i, ac ni chuddidus o ran y wraig a'i melhion; anaf y marw y cello ebeddy; cannyllus y cello ddorwy nes gwynawr i gathio.

There are eight holds of the king: the sea; and a wilderness; and a vagrant of another country travelling on the king's grounds; and a thief; a sudden death, the king owes the defenceless spirit of all the chieftains, but he shall not have any of the shares of the wife and the children; the infant of a defect from whom he receives heriot; and a criminal from whom he gets fine or pecuniary.

Welsh Laws.

Pyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwn) An aggregating, a heaping, a burdening, a loading.
Pyniaw, v. a. (pwn) To aggregate; to load.
Pyniawg, a. (pwn) Burdened, loaded.
Pyniawl, a. (pwn) Burdening, loading.
Pyniawr, s. m. (pwn) That is a load.
Pynledig, a. (pyniad) Burdened, loaded.
Pynloreg, s. f.—pl. t. au (pyniawr) What serves to bear a load; a pack-saddle.
Pynlori, v. a. (pyniawr) To put on a load.
Pynlwr, s. m.—pl. pyniawr (pwn—gwr) A burdener, a loader.
Pynoreg, s. f.—pl. t. au (pynawr) A pack-saddle. It is also called ystroder.
Pynoriad, s. m. (pynawr) A putting on a load.
Pynoriaw, v. a. (pynawr) To put on a load.
Pynoriawg, a. (pynawr) Having a load.
Pynoriedig, a. (pynawr) Being under a load.
Pynw, v. a. (pwn) To lay upon; to burden.
Pynwald, v. a. (pwn) To cluster; to swarm.
Pynawl, a. (pwn) Clustering; swarming.
Pyniglad, s. m.—pl. t. au (pwn) A clustering.
Pyngu, v. a. (pwn) To cluster; to swarm.

*Prun byriol sy'n y nefoedd fawr,
 Ac hyd y llawr ei gangau,
 A'i ffwrth yn prysu aro'n llawr,
 Yn rhed brydnawn a bore.*

In the great heaven there is a living tree, its branches spreading over the ground, with its fruit clustering fully on it, fruitly had evening and morning. W. Williams.

Pyr, s. m. (py—yr) That shoots out in a point or cone; the fir tree.

*Bira mynydd, coch blaen pyr;
 Llidawg lloerwyr ogyr.*

Snowy mountains, red the top of the fir; wrathful the peak of many spears. Llywarch Hen.

Pyr, adv. (py—yr) Forward, toward, onward.

*O foli pair deon pyrdaw!
 O ddor cor cooling cynawel.*

In praising the cause of the lord forward I come; after the mystery of the circle of forbidding I will conform. Cyddfai, i G. Gwynedd.

Pyras, adv. (py—rhag) Wherefore, why.

Pyradd, a. (pyr) Tending to a point; like a fir.

Pyrchwyn, s. m. (pyr—cwyn) A crest of a helmet.

Pyrwyn, s. m. (pyr—cwyn) A crest, or plume of a helmet.

Pyrnawn, s. m. (pyr—nawn) The afternoon.

Pyrdwyaw, v. a. (pyr—twyaw) To bear a spear pointed forward.

*Pan wraig Garamael gathol Cyddylian,
 A phyrddaw ei oon,
 Ni chafai Ffranc taw o'i ben.*

When Garamael should put on the war-coat of Cyddylian, and point forward his solemn shaft, a Franc would not obtain rest for his head. Llywarch Hen.

Pys, s. pl. agr. (py—ys) Pease, pulse. Pys y garanod, or pys yr acar, tares; pys y llygod, chit-pease; pys y coed, heath peas; pys y wig, vetch; pys y fygall, pedol y march, hatchet-vetch.

Pysen, s. f. dim. (pys) A single pea, a pea.

Pysg, s. m.—pl. t. od (py—ysg) Fish. Pysgod duon, llamidyddion, porpoises; pysgod bychain, sand-eels.

Mai y pyg am y dwf.

Like the fish for the water. Adagr.

Yn y dwf y gwasg of y pyg; ac yr adar yn y rhan tennol, o'lyu huan yr dwf.

In the water he creased the fish; and the birds in the most ruffled part, that is to say the air. Elucidario.

Pysgaldd, a. (pysg) Of the nature of fish; fishy.

Pysgawl, a. (pysg) Piscatory, of fish, like fish.

Pysgod, s. pl. agr. (pysg) Fishes. Pysgod y mor, morbysg, morbysgod, sea-fishes; pysgod afon, river fishes; pysgod duon, porpoises.

Mai y gath am y pygod.

Like the cat after the fishes. Adagr.

Pysgodawl, a. (pysgod) Having fishes.

Pysgodawl, a. (pysgod) Relating to fishes.

Pysgodfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (pysgod—ma) A fishery, a fishing-place; a fish-market.

Pysgodfwyd, s. m. (pysgod—bwyd) Fish-meat.

Ysgafu ar deo algion wyd, Esgodfaich eidd bygodfwyd.

Light art thou on the ocean wave, thou swiftly-eating bird whose food is fish. D. ab Gwilym 6'r wylan.

Pysgodlyn, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (pysgod—llyn) A fish-pond.

Pysgodwr, s. m.—pl. pysgodwyr (pysgod—gwr) A fisher, a fisherman.

Pysgodwriaeth, s. m. (pysgodwr) The vocation of a fisherman.

*Gwaswynwyd Taf; gwas mlaen!
 Dywyd y bygodwriaeth
 Gyda ni i gyd yn wasth.*

The Taf has been poisoned; Woe to me! the fishing trade with me is altogether worse. Long Leys.

Pysgodig, a. (pysgod) Teeming with fishes.

Pysgodyn, s. m. (pysgod) A single fish, a fish.

Pygota, v. a. (pysgod) To fish. Gwialen bygota, gwialen enwaer, genwaer, a fishing-rod.

Pygota yn mhau y rhydy.

To fish in the front of the net. Adagr.

Pygotwr, s. m. (pysgod—gwr) A fisherman.

Pygotty, s. m. (pysgod—ty) A fish-house.

Pysgydd, s. m.—pl. t. iom (pysg) An ichthyologist.

Pysgyddiaeth, s. m. (pysgydd) Ichthyology.

Pystyl, s. m.—pl. t. an (ystyl) A restless motion; the shank of a bow that is let into the yoke to fasten it on the neck of the ox.

Pystylad, s. m. (pystyl) A restless activity; the being agog; the restlessness or capering of a horse under restraint. "Gwerydd y mwrch d'u pystylad" the neighing of the steeds and their capering.

*Amogyl cad,
 Diffredid gwad,
 Gwadd am ddaud
 Llwril bygwyl
 Pystylad llwril,
 Ac yfed curwl.*

Thou inclination to battle, the protection of a country, on thy account there has been the capering of the coward; the capering of the coward with drinking of ale. Taliesin.

Pystyled, v. a. (pystyl) To jump about. Mac y bachgen yn pystyled, the boy is capering.

Pystyliad, s. m. (pystyl) A capering about.

Pystylu, v. a. (pystyl) To move about in a restless manner; to caper.

Pystylwyn, s. m.—pl. t. an (pystyl—gwyn) A crupper of a saddle.

Pywydden, s. f. (pys—gwydd) Bean-trefail tree.

Pyth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (py—yth) A space, revolution or period of time; a world; the duration of the world; ever, never.

Tri pheth yn gall amryw Daw: dyddodf pythmodd y cymant; cywydd a phob cyfar bob newidaw; a roed gwedd a newydd wr bob peth, heb ei roi ar goli.

Three things which God only can accomplish: to endure the revolutions of eternity, to participate with every atom without changing, and to impart immortality and security to every thing without causing a loss of its originality. Barddas.

Trengdd a phenydd a phyg.

The day after to-morrow and daily and forever. L. G. Cuth.

Pythagoras, s. f. (pythagori) Explanation of the universe; cosmogony.

Pythagori, v. a. (pyth—agori) To explain the system of the universe.

Pythawd, s. m. (pyth) A great period or world.
Pythawl, a. (pyth) Eternal, everlasting, ever.
Pythawr, v. n. (py—tawr) To be anxious.

A'r moth bythorod o thyf.

And the arrow thou wouldst regret were it to break.
D. ab Gwilym.

Pythefnos, s. m. (pymthegnos) A fortnight.
Python, s. m. (pyth) A system of the universe.
Pythonas, s. f. (python) A system of cosmogony.
Pythones, s. f.—pl. t. au (python) A female cosmogonist.

Pythoni, v. a. (python) To treat of cosmogony.
Pythonydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (python) A cosmogonist; a systemizer of worlds.

Pyw, s. m.—pl. t. ion (py) That is together or in unison; that is in order, or perfect; a member, a limb. Dyna fe yn cerdded ar ei bedwar pyw, neu ar ei bedwar agor, There he is walking upon all fours. Sil.

Pyw, a. (py) In order of unison, regular, complete, perfect. Dyn pyw, a well-formed man; brethyn pyw, cloth of good quality. Silurian.

R.

RHA, s. m. r. That forces or drives onward.
Rhāwd, s. m. (rha) A forcing, or impelling.
Rhab, s. m. (rha) Force, constraint, control.
Rhabedd, s. m. (rhab) Controlment, constraint.
Rhabs, v. a. (rhab) To constrain, to check.
Rhac, s. m.—pl. t. au (rha—ac) What is in advance, forward, upper, or opposite; the wrist of a cross-bow; the spine of a quadruped, also called glais cefn.

Rhac, prep. (rha—ac) Before, fore; from; for, lest. It is dialectically used for rhag.

Rhaca, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhac) What is brought before; a spectacle, or show.

Rhacai, s. m.—pl. rhacelon (rhac) A rake.

Rhacan, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhac) A rake, a scraper.

Rhacmied, s. m. (rhacan) A raking, a scraping.

Rhacanu, v. a. (rhacan) To rake, to use a rake.

Rhacauwr, s. m. (rhacan—gwr) A raker.

Rhaciad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhac) The fore-running, the beginning, or first appearance; a coming forward; a coming in opposition.

Rhaciad y wawr, the first breaking of the dawn.

Rhaciannawl, a. (rhaciant) Tending to advance.

Rhaciannu, v. a. (rhaciant) To make an advancement, to take a forward position.

Rhaciant, s. m. (rhac) Advancement, the act of putting forward; a precursor.

Rhaciaw, v. a. (rhac) To advance, to move forward; to come in opposition. Daw y wawr yn rhaciaw, yonder the dawn is appearing.

Rhaco, adv. (rhac) Yonder, in the advance, in the distant view. Sylla di rhaco, behold thou yonder.

Dos i gyfrwch a'r dya rhaco.

Go to meet with yonder man. H. Cuthuch—Mabinogion.

Rhacu, v. a. (rhac) To put before, to put forward; to advance; to take the lead.

Rhach, s. m. (rhac) That is forced out.

Rhad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rha—ad) That comes freely, that is given freely; prosperity; good luck; a blessing; grace, favour. Nid oes rad ar a wneio, there is no prosperity on what he does: Rhad Duw yma! Be the blessing of God here! Rhad Duw yn y ty! Be the blessing of God in the house! Rhad Duw ar yr adgor! Rhad Duw ar y da! Be the blessing of God on the cattle! Rhad Duw arnoch! Rhad Duw ar y gwaiith! God prosper the work! Rhad pen llad, Grace the supreme blessing: Rhad Duw ar ei fam! God's blessing on its mother! said to the people in milking: Rhad Duw ar bob rhadferth-wch! The blessing of God on every gracious gift! Rhad Duw ar bob cywir galon! The blessing of God on every faithful heart! Rhad Duw ar bob ymgais dda! The blessing of God on every good undertaking! Rhad Duw ar bob llaw ddifin! The blessing of God on every industrious hand! common expressions of greeting.

Deddydd, Dofydd ei rhydd rhad.

The aniduous, the Creator will give him grace. Adage.

Argwydd hachyst gwynt, a gwyllt ffriddau mor, Mawr dy rad, a'th wyrthau!

Lord of the course of the wind, and the wild torrents of the sea, great thy grace, and thy wonders. G. ab M. ab Dofydd.

Rhad, a. (rha—ad) Free, gratuitous; cheap. Y Mab Rhad, The Son of Grace, the Saviour.

Rhadawl, a. (rhad) Gracious, or beneficent.

Rhadbryn, s. m. (rhad—bryn) A free purchase.

Rhadbryniad, s. m. (rhadbryn) A cheap buying.

Rhadbrynnu, v. a. (rhadbryn) To buy cheaply.

Rhadedd, s. m. (rhad) Freeness; cheapness.

Rhadfawr, a. (rhad—mawr) Gracious.

Tri cillidyrn Ynys Prydain—rhoddedd tynredd iddynt am eu campan ac eu cynneddion clodforion a rhadforion.

The three plebeian princes of the Isle of Britain—had principalities conferred on them for their acts and principles, praiseworthy and virtuous. Triad.

Rhadferth, a. (rhad—berth) Graciously placid.

Rhadferthwch, s. m. (rhadferth) Beneficent.

Rhadforedd, s. m. (rhadfawr) Graciousness.

Rhadgar, a. (rhad—car) Grace-loved.

Rhadgareidig, a. rhadgar) Grace-beloved.

Hanpach gwell, y radgareidig! yr Argwydd yu y gyd a thi!

All hail, thou grace favoured one! the Lord is with thee! M. Salisbury.

Rhadgariad, s. m. (rhadgar) Free love.

Rhadgaru, v. a. (rhadgar) To love freely.

Rhadlawn, a. (rhad) Gracious; gentle; serene.

Rhadlonaeth, s. m. (rhadlawn) Graciousness.

Ef bina radu rhadlonaeth, Uch naw loryf naw tywyogaeth.

He possesses the virtues of beneficence, over the nine multitudes of nine principalities. Cynderw.

Rhadlondeb, s. m. (rhadlawn) Graciousness.

Rhadlonder, s. m. (rhadlawn) Graciousness.

Rhadlondra, s. m. (rhadlawn) Graciousness.

Rhadlonedd, s. m. (rhadlawn) Graciousness.

Rhadlioni, v. a. (rhadlawn) To render generous; to become gracious; to be generous; to become gentle or placid.

Nid hawdd rhadlioni ondigen.

It is not easy to render malice generous. Adage.

Rhadrodd, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhad—rhodd) A free gift
Rhadroddedigaeth, s. m. (rhadroddedig) The act of giving freely; the state of being freely given or conferred.

Pawb a chwynychant gael brainn yn ei radroddedigaeth.

Every one is desirous of obtaining a title in his free offering. Ier. Owain.

Rhadu, v. a. (rhad) To render free, to bestow grace; to render cheap; to become free.
Rhadwehyn, s. m. (rhad—gwehyn) A pouring of grace. a. Grace-diffusing.
Rhadwehynawl, a. (rhadwehyn) Grace-diffusing.
Rhadwehyniad, s. m. (rhadwehyn) A shedding of grace, a pouring of grace.
Rhadwehynu, v. a. (rhadwehyn) To shed grace.
Rhadd, s. m. (rha—add) An advance, a state of progression, or going onward.
Rhae, s. f.—pl. rheuan (rha) A constraint, a battle; also a chain; otherwise called tid, syg, tres, cadwen, and cadwyn.

O nod ffresau hynod ffrowys
 Gwr a dywys y gwr duon,
 Ys da reuau wyl ydywys
 At drwy Bowys.

From the mark of the wrappings of the noted turbulence of a man who leads the sable men, if good the battles excelling in craft, he would go through Powys. T. Pry.

Rhacaw, v. a. (rhae) To put to a stand still. Rhacaw gwyr, to startle people.
Rhaet, s. m. (rha—el) Bent, or inclination.

Wrth welwy marchod mor awchus eu rhac!
 A minnau yn fab iwanac heb ddim lldd gael—
 —Mae yn ayn!

When I saw the young women of so greedy a disposition, and I a young man not prospering, it is grievous! Cant.

Rhaf, s. m. (rha—af) A spread, a diffusion.
Rhafn, s. m. (rhaf) A tendency to diffuse.
Rhafnwydd, s. pl. aggr. (rhafn—gwydd) Witchelms.
Rhafnwydden, s. f. dim. (rhafnwydd) A witch-elm

Tri phoen nid rhydd eu thri, heb eiddad gwlad ac eiddadad:
 meibion, sef derwen, bedwen, a rhafnwydden.

Three trees not to be cut, without the permission of the country and the lord: acorn tree, or oak; the birch tree, and the witch-elm. Triandd Dyfyni.

Rhafol, s. pl. aggr. (rhaf—ol) The berries of the service-tree; also called cyrfaol, and cyrfaon.
Rhafon, s. pl. aggr. (rhaf) Berries growing in clusters; the fruit of the service-tree.
Rhafu, v. a. (rhaf) To spread out, or to diffuse.
Rhafn, s. m. (rhaf) That is spread or diffused.
Rhaff, s. f.—pl. i. au (rha—aff) A rope.
Rhaffaid, a. (rhaff) Like a rope; like a cord.
Rhaffan, s. f. dim. (rhaff) A small rope, a cord.
Gware rhaffan or siglan danner, swinging.
Rhaffawl, a. (rhaff) Formed like a rope.
Rhaffiad, s. m. (rhaff) A roping; a cording.
Rhaffiaw, v. a. (rhaff) To rope, to make a rope.
Rhaffwr, s. m.—pl. rhaffwyr (rhaff—gwr) A roper.
Rhag, s. m.—pl. i. ion (rha—ag) A front, a presence, a van; an entrance. It is used as a compositive prefix. O dy rag, o yth blaen, from before thee, before thee.

Rhag pobyl Madog, poe atgori,
 Nafyn un o xant yal delai.

The entrance of the tents of Madog, when he returns, only one of a hundred therein doth come. Amorin.

Seren o'r rhag yn rhod golau:

A star before them giving light. T. Brund Madog.

Rhag, prep. (rha—ag) Before, fore; from; for, lest, lest that; because. Dos rhag dy faen, go straight forward. Rhagwyl, rhagddwyf, rhagof, rhagddaf, before me; rhagot, rhagddot, before thee; rhago, rhagddo, before him or it; rhagi, rhagddi, before her; rhagom, rhagddom, before us; rhagoch, rhagddoch, before you; rhagynt, rhagddynt, rhagddudd, before them.

Pe rhag dryg-dir, ar na fo rhag dryg arglwydd.

We will fly from a bad land that flies not from a bad lord. Adage.

Adwyn rhag achwyn rhagdo.

Complaining for fear of a complaint against him. Adage.

Torl ygwyr yn gwad yn nghymman
 Turi rhag cad rhag Cawdyllwra.

An exhausted host well-trained to combat flies from battle before the tribe of Short-caps. Cynyddin, Gwel. Powys.

Rhaguchub, v. a. (achub) To save the vantage; to obtain a priority; to-become before.

Rhaguchubwn ei wilyb—a charwn sailth iddwn; cwyse kyrtwydd mawr yw Dew.

Let us come before his presence; and let us stay patient to him; for a mighty Lord is God. D. Ddu o Shreddy.

Rhagachubawl, a. (rhagachub) Tending to obtain advantage or priority; coming before.

Rhagachubiad, s. m. (rhagachub) A coming before; a getting a priority.

Rhagachubiaeth, s. m. (rhagachub) The act of obtaining a priority, the state of having a priority; the state of coming before.

Rhagachubwr, s. m.—pl. rhagachubwyr (rhagachub—gwr) One who comes before.

Rhagadail, s. f. (adail) An out-building.

Rhagadeiladu, v. a. (rhagadail) To build an out-work; to make an outbuilding.

Rhagadnabod, v. a. (adnabod) To know beforehand, to get a previous acquaintance.

Rhagadnabodawl, a. (rhagadnabod) Previously acquainted; previously recognising.

Rhagadnabyddawl, a. (rhagadnabod) Previously acquainted, previously known.

Rhagadnabyddiaeth, s. m. (rhagadnabod) A previous acquaintance.

Rhagadrawdd, s. m.—pl. rhagadroddion (adrawdd) A preface, a preamble. v. a. To preface.

Rhagadroddawl, a. (rhagadrawdd) Prefatory, introductory.

Rhagadroddiad, s. m. (rhagadrawdd) A preface.

Rhagaddeus, a. (addeus) Previously sitting.

Rhagaddasawl, a. (rhagaddas) Tending to adapt or to make fit beforehand.

Rhagaddasiad, s. m. (rhagaddas) A sitting before.

Rhagaddasu, v. a. (rhagaddas) To adapt or to fit beforehand.

Rhagaddaw, v. a. (addaw) To promise before.

Rhagaddewid, a. f.—pl. i. ion (rhagaddaw) A previous promise.

Rhagaddfed, a. (addfed) Premature, precocious.

Rhagaddfedawl, a. (rhagaddfed) Tending to ripen beforehand, of early maturity.

Rhagaddfediad, s. m. (rhagaddfed) A ripening beforehand, to become precocious.

Rhagaddfedrwydd, s. m. (rhagaddfed) Precocity.

Rhagaddfedu, v. a. (rhagaddfed) To ripen before.

Rhagafael, s. m. (gafael) A previous hold; a forehold or seizure.

Rhagafaeliad, s. m. (rhagafael) A previously holding; a taking a first hold.

Rhagafaelu, v. a. (rhagafael) To hold previously.

Rhagagawr, s. m. (agawr) An opening before. v. a. To open before.

Rhagagori, v. a. (rhagagawr) To open before.

Rhagagoriad, s. m. (rhagagawr) A fore-opening.

Rhagagwedd, s. f. (agwedd) A prior form, a prior appearance.

Rhagagweddiad, s. m. (rhagagwedd) Preformation.

Rhagagwedda, v. a. (rhagagwedd) To preform.

Rhagair, s. m.—pl. rhageirian (gair) A leading word, a catch-word.

Rhagalw, v. a. (galw) To call beforehand.

Rhagalwad, s. m. (rhagalw) A calling beforehand.

Rhagallu, s. m. (gallu) A previous power; a being able beforehand.

Rhagallwedd, s. m. (galla) Ability beforehand.
Rhagamcan, s. m.—pl. t. ion (amcan) A prior purpose, or design; a preintion.
Rhagamcanawl, a. (rhagamcan) Previously purposing, presupposing.
Rhagamcaniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagamcan) A purposing beforehand; a pre-supposition.
Rhagamcanu, v. a. (rhagamcan) To form a design beforehand; to pre-suppose.
Rhagamcanus, a. (rhagamcan) Previously purposing; having a previous intention.
Rhagamcanwyr, s. m.—pl. rhagamcanwyr (rhagamcan—gwr) One who designs beforehand.
Rhagamddifyn, v. a. (amddifyn) To defend beforehand, to make a previous defence.
Rhagamddifynawl, a. (rhagamddifyn) Previously defending or protecting.
Rhagamddifyniad, s. m. (rhagamddifyn) A defending or protecting beforehand.
Rhagammbheu, v. a. (ammheu) To pre-surmise.
Rhagammod, s. f.—pl. t. au (ammod) A preliminary agreement or contract.
Rhagammodawl, a. (rhagammod) Belonging to a preliminary agreement.
Rhagammodi, v. a. (rhagammod) To agree beforehand; to make a previous contract.
Rhagammodiad, s. m. (rhagammod) A covenanting beforehand.
Rhagammodwyr, s. m.—pl. rhagammodwyr (rhagammod—gwr) One who agrees beforehand.
Rhagamnaid, s. f. (amnaid) A previous signal.
Rhagamnaidiad, s. m. (rhagamnaid) A making a previous signal.
Rhagamnaidiaw, v. a. (rhagamnaid) To make a previous signal.
Rhagamnaidiawl, a. (rhagamnaid) Belonging to a previous signal.
Rhagamser, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (amser) A previous or prior time.
Rhagamserawl, a. (rhagamser) Belonging to previous time, of a previous season.
Rhagamseru, v. a. (rhagamser) To fix a previous time, to antedate.
Rhaganfon, v. a. (anfon) To send beforehand.
Rhaganfonawdy, v. (rhaganfon) Capable of being sent beforehand.
Rhaganfonawl, a. (rhaganfon) Being sent beforehand, premitive.
Rhaganfonedig, a. (rhaganfon) Being sent beforehand; a premission.
Rhaganfonedigacth, s. m. (rhaganfonedig) The act of sending before.
Rhaganfoniad, s. m. (rhaganfon) A sending before; a sending a previous messenger.
Rhaganfonwyr, s. m.—pl. rhaganfonwyr (rhaganfon—gwr) One who sends beforehand.
Rhagansawdd, s. f.—pl. rhagansoddion (ansawdd) A prior nature or quality.
Rhagansoddadwy, a. (rhagansawdd) Capable of being endued with an original nature.
Rhagansoddawl, a. (rhagansawdd) Of an original nature or quality.
Rhagansoddi, v. a. (rhagansawdd) To endue with an original nature.
Rhagansoddiad, s. m. (rhagansawdd) A forming an original nature.
Rhagangen, s. f. (angen) A previous necessity.
Rhagangenawl, a. (rhagangen) Previously necessitated.
Rhagangeniad, s. m. (rhagangen) An ending with a previous necessity.

Rhagangenrhaid, s. f.—pl. rhagangenrheidiau (rhagangen—rhaid) A previous necessity.
Rhagangenrheidawl, v. a. (rhagangenrhaid) To render previously necessary.
Rhagangenrheidiaid, a. (rhagangenrhaid) Previously necessary.
Rhagangenrheidrwydd, s. m. (rhagangenrhaid) A previous necessity.
Rhagangennu, v. a. (rhagangen) To endue with a prior necessity; to necessitate beforehand.
Rhagaraeth, s. f.—pl. rhagareithiau (araeth) A prefatory discourse.
Rhagarawd, s. f. (arawd) An introductory speech.
Rhagarchwæth, s. m.—pl. rhagarchwæthion (archwæth) A foretaste.
Rhagarchwæthawl, a. (archwæth) Foretasting.
Rhagarchwæthedig, a. (archwæth) Foretasted.
Rhagarschwæthiad, s. m. (rhagarchwæth) A foretasting.
Rhagarschwæthu, v. a. (archwæth) To foretaste.
Rhagaraethiad, s. m. (rhagaraeth) A making a prefatory speech.
Rhagareithaw, v. a. (rhagaraeth) To make a prefatory speech.
Rhagareithiwr, s. m.—pl. rhagareithwyr (rhagaraeth—gwr) One who makes an exordium.
Rhagarfaeth, s. f. (arfæth) Predetermination.
Rhagarfaethawl, a. (rhagarfaeth) Predeterminant; predisposing, pre-determining.
Rhagarfaethedig, a. (rhagarfaeth) Predetermined, predisposed, predetermined.
Rhagarfaethiad, s. m. (rhagarfaeth) A predetermination; a predisposition.
Rhagarfaethu, v. a. (rhagarfaeth) To predetermine; to predispose.
Rhagarfaethus, a. (rhagarfaeth) Predetermining.
Rhagarfaethydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhagarfaeth) A predeterminant.
Rhagarfawg, a. (arfawg) Being forearmed.
Rhagarfogi, v. a. (rhagarfawg) To arm beforehand, to forearm.
Rhagarfogiad, s. m. (rhagarfawg) An arming beforehand.
Rhagarfa, v. a. (arfa) To arm beforehand.
Rhagaranfod, a. m. (anganfod) A foreseeing.
v. n. To foresee, to forecast.
Rhargogel, s. f.—pl. t. ion (argogel) A foretoken.
Rhagian, s. pl. ager (agian) Earnest money.
Rhagariwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (arlwy) Food that is ready beforehand.
Rhagariwyd, s. m. (rhagariwy) A getting food ready beforehand.
Rhagariwyaw, v. a. (rhagariwy) To get food ready beforehand.
Rhagarsawdd, s. f. (arsawdd) A plough handle.
Rhagarwyd, a. m. (arswyd) A previous dread.
Rhagarowydaw, v. a. (rhagarwyd) To frighten beforehand, to have a previous dread.
Rhagarwain, v. a. (arwain) To lead before.
Rhagarweiniad, s. m. (rhagarwain) A conducting or leading before.
Rhagarweinawl, a. (rhagarwain) Leading beforehand; a previous conducting.
Rhagarwedd, s. f. (arwedd) Predisposition.
Rhagarweddiawl, a. (rhagarwedd) Predisposing.
Rhagarweddiad, s. m. (arwedd) A predisposing.
Rhagarweddu, v. a. (rhagarwedd) To predispose.
Rhagarwydd, s. f.—pl. t. ion (arwydd) A prognostic, a foretoken, a presage.
Rhagarwyddaw, v. a. (rhagarwydd) To prognosticate, to foresignify.

Rhagarwyddawg, a. (rhagarwydd) Foretokening.
Rhagarwyddawl, a. (rhagarwydd) Foretokening.
Rhagarwyddiad, s. m. (rhagarwydd) A prognostication.
Rhagarwyddocâd, s. m. (rhagarwyddocâu) A prognosticating, a foretokening.
Rhagarwyddocâwl, a. (rhagarwyddocâu) Prognosticating, foretokening, foresignifying.
Rhagarwyddocâu, v. a. (rhagarwyddawg) To prognosticate, to foresignify.
Rhagattal, s. m. (attal) A previous stopping.
Rhagattalgar, a. (rhagattal) Apt to stop before.
Rhagattaliad, s. m. (rhagattal) A stopping before.
Rhagatteb, s. m.—pl. t. ion (atteb) Prior answer.
Rhagattebawl, a. (rhagatteb) A first answering.
Rhagattebiad, s. m. (rhagatteb) An answering beforehand, a previously answering.
Rhagattebu, v. a. (rhagatteb) To answer before.
Rhagawd, s. m.—pl. rhagodion (rhag) The act of going before; the state of being before; an obstacle, let, or hindrance.

Nawdd y frenhines yw dwyn dyn dros derfyn y wlad, heb erlid, heb ragawd.

The protection of the queen is to convey the person over the borders of the country, without pursuit, without opposition.

Welsh Laws.

Rhagawd, v. a. (rhag) To go before; to go against; to stop, to hinder. Rhagodion, those who take the lead, or that are in advance.

Gwell erlid arfyrdd nos ei ragawd.

It is better to pursue a lord than to go against him. Adage.

*Gweth tyr yw marchogacheth
 I ragawd pryg o'r eigion.*

It is pleasant work to ride the wave to encounter the fishes of the deep. D. ab Gwilym.

Rhagawdl, s. f.—pl. rhagodiau (awdl) A first or leading rhyme, a primary rhyme.

Rhagawl, a. (rhag) Being against, opposite or in front; opposing.

Rhagbarawd, a. (parawd) Ready-beforehand.

Rhagbarodawl, a. (rhagbarawd) Tending to be ready or prepared beforehand.

Rhagbarodi, v. a. (rhagbarawd) To prepare or make ready beforehand.

Rhagbarodrwydd, s. m. (rhagbarawd) The state of being prepared or ready beforehand.

Rhagbarotâd, s. m. (rhagbarotol) A preparing or making ready beforehand.

Rhagbarotâwl, a. (rhagbarotol) Tending to be prepared or ready beforehand.

Rhagbarotol, v. a. (rhagbarawd) To prepare beforehand, to get ready beforehand.

Rhagbarotôwr, s. m.—pl. rhagbarotowyr (rhagbarotol—gwr) One who prepares beforehand.

Rhagbenaeth, s. m. (penaeth) A vice-chief.

Rhagbenawd, s. m. (penawd) A prior conclusion.

Rhagbenodawl, a. (penawd) Predetermined.

Rhagbenodi, v. a. (penawd) To predetermine.

Rhagbenodiad, s. m. (rhagbenawd) A predetermination; a previous conclusion.

Rhagborth, s. m.—pl. rhagbyrth (porth) An outer gate; a fore porch.

Rhagbrawf, s. m. (prawf) A previous trial.

Rhagbrofi, v. a. (rhagbrawf) To try beforehand.

Rhagbrofiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagbrawf) A trying-beforehand; a foretasting.

Rhagbrofwr, s. m.—pl. rhagbrofwyr (rhagbrawf gwr) One who tries beforehand.

Rhagbryder, s. m.—pl. t. au (pryder) Precaution.

Rhagbryderawl, a. (rhagbryder) Precautions.

Rhagbryderiad, s. m. (rhagbryder) A using precaution; circumspection.

Rhagbryderu, v. a. (pryder) To use precaution.

Rhagbryderus, a. (rhagbryder) Circumspective.

Rhagbryn, s. m. (pryn) A prior purchase.

Rhagbrynawl, a. (rhagbryn) Relating to a buying beforehand; a forestalling.

Rhagbryniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagbryn) A buying beforehand; a pre-emption.

Rhagbrynu, v. a. (rhagbryn) To buy beforehand; to forestall.

Rhagbrynwyr, s. m.—pl. rhagbrynwyr (rhagbryn—gwr) One who previously buys.

Rhagbwya, s. m. (pwya) A previous weighing.

Rhagbwysaw, v. a. (rhagbwys) To weigh before.

Rhagbwysawl, a. (rhagbwys) Being previously weighing, a fore-weighing.

Rhagbwysedig, a. (rhagbwys) Being weighed beforehand.

Rhagbwysiad, s. m. (rhagbwys) A weighing beforehand.

Rhagchwaeth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (chwaech) A foretaste.

Rhagchwaethawl, a. (rhagchwaeth) Foretasting.

Rhagchwaethiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagchwaeth) A pregustration, a foretasting.

Rhagchwaethu, v. a. (rhagchwaeth) To foretaste.

Rhagchware, s. m.—pl. t. on (chware) A prelude.

Rhagchwareu, v. a. (rhagchware) To make a prelude.

Rhagchwedl, s. m.—pl. rhagchwedlan (chwedl) A prior report, a preamble.

Rhagchwedledd, s. m. (rhagchwedl) The state of being reported beforehand.

Rhagchwedliad, s. m. (rhagchwedl) A reporting or rumouring beforehand.

Rhagchwedlu, v. a. (rhagchwedl) To make report beforehand; to make a preamble.

Rhagchwegr, s. f. (chwegr) A grandmother-in-law.

Rhagchwegrwn, s. m. (chwegrwn) A grandfather-in-law.

Rhagchwilliad, s. m. (chwilliad) A previously searching.

Rhagchwillaw, v. a. (chwillaw) To search before.

Rhagdaen, s. m. (taen) A fore-spreading.

Rhagdaeniad, s. m. (rhagdaen) A fore-spreading.

Rhagdaennu, v. a. (rhagdaen) To spread before.

Rhagdal, s. m.—pl. t. au (tal) What is in front; a frontlet, a frontal, a frontpiece.

Rhagdai, s. m. (tâl) Payment before; earnest.

Rhagdaliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagdai) A paying beforehand, a paying as earnest.

Rhagdalu, v. a. (rhagdai) To pay beforehand.

Rhagdaluwr, s. m.—pl. rhagdaluwr (rhagdai—gwr) One who pays beforehand.

Rhagdebygiad, s. m. (tebygiad) A fore-deciding.

Rhagdebygu, v. a. (tebygu) To presuppose.

Rhagdeilyngdawd, s. m. (teilyngdawd) The state of being previously suitable.

Rhagdeilyngu, v. a. (teilyngu) To make suitable or appropriate beforehand.

Rhagdeimlad, s. m. (teimlad) A feeling before.

Rhagdeimlaw, v. a. (teimlaw) To feel beforehand.

Rhagder, s. m. (rhag) The state of being before, leading, or against; resistance, opposition.

Pair cawwr, cawwr yu amlwyr;

Par sawr, sawr yu rhagder.

A cause of energy removed for bravery; a spear of energy, not a stripping in the advanced post. Cynhadron, i G. Gwynedd.

Rhagder ei sifer, naif heolau ei lla.

The foremost of his host, a chief of elegant race. Edwin Wen.

Rhagderfyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (terfyn) A prior conclusion, end, or determination.

Rhagderfynedig, a. (rhagderfyn) Predetermined.

Rhagderfyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagderfyn) Predetermination, a prior conclusion.

Rhagderfynu, v. a. (terfyn) To predetermine.

Rhagdestyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (testyn) A preliminary theme, or discourse.

Rhagdestyniad, s. m. (rhagdestyn) A making a preliminary theme.

Rhagdestynu, v. a. (rhagdestyn) To form a preliminary theme.

Rhagdor, s. m. (tor) A prior fracture or break.

Rhagdori, v. a. (rhagdor) To break before.

Rhagdoriad, s. m. (rhagdor) A breaking before.

Rhagdraddawd, s. m. (traddawd) A prior passing

Rhagdraddodawl, a. (rhagdraddawd) Being previously passed over, of previous tradition.

Rhagdraddodi, v. a. (rhagdraddawd) To pass over previously; to give a previous tradition.

Rhagdraddodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagdraddawd) A previously passing over; a former tradition

Rhagdraethawd, s. f. (traethawd) An introductory discourse.

Rhagdraethu, v. a. (traethu) To recite before.

Rhagdraigl, s. m. (traigl) A previous turn.

Rhagdrefn, s. f.—pl. rhagdrefnu (trefn) A pre-ordination; predestination.

Rhagdrefnadwy, a. (rhagdrefn) Capable of pre-ordination.

Rhagdrefnawl, a. (rhagdrefn) Tending to pre-ordain; fore-ordaining.

Rhagdrefnedig, a. (rhagdrefn) Fore-ordained.

Rhagdrefniad, s. m. (rhagdrefn) A preordination, a preordaining; predestination.

Rhagdrefnu, v. a. (rhagdrefn) To order beforehand, to preordain; to predispose.

Rhagdreigl, s. m. (rhagdraigl) A revolving before; a previous revolution.

Rhagdreiglau, v. a. (rhagdraigl) To revolve before; to make a previous revolution.

Rhagdreymyn, s. m. (treymyn) A first glance.

Rhagdreymynawl, a. (rhagdreymyn) Being looked over beforehand; having foresight.

Rhagdreymniad, s. m. (rhagdreymyn) A glancing over beforehand.

Rhagdreymnt, s. m. (rhagdreymyn) A previous glance; a foresight.

Rhagdreymnu, v. a. (rhagdreymyn) To glance over beforehand; to have foresight.

Rhagdrin, s. m. (trin) To put in order, or to manage beforehand.

Rhagdriniad, s. m. (rhagdrin) A managing or ordering beforehand.

Rhagdriniaeth, s. m. (rhagdrin) A previous management; a previous arrangement.

Rhagdrochi, v. a. (trochi) To immerse before.

Rhagdrochiad, s. m. (trochiad) A prior immersion

Rhagdrochl, v. a. (trochl) To drive before.

Rhagdrwch, s. m.—pl. rhagdrychion (trwch) A fore-cut; a previous cut through.

Rhagdrychiad, s. m. (rhagdrwch) A cutting before; a fore-cutting.

Rhagdrychu, v. a. (rhagdrwch) To cut before.

Rhagdy, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ty) An outhouse.

Rhagdyb, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tyb) A preconceit.

Rhagdybiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagdyb) Presupposition, preopinion, prenotion.

Rhagdybied, v. a. (rhagdyb) To presuppose.

Rhagdyba, v. a. (rhagdyb) To presuppose.

Rhagdybus, a. (rhagdyb) Presuppositions.

Rhagdybuswr, v. a. (rhagdybus) To become presuppositions.

Rhagdybuswrydd, s. m. (rhagdybus) Previous suppositionness; a preconceived state.

Rhagdyddyn, s. m.—pl. t. od (tyddyn) An out-tenement; a bordering farm.

Rhagdyn, s. m. (tynd) A fore-draught.

Rhagdynyriad, s. m. (tyneriad) A previous softening or melioration.

Rhagdynyru, v. a. (tyneru) To soften beforehand

Rhagdyniad, s. m. (rhagdyn) A drawing before.

Rhagdynu, v. a. (rhagdyn) To draw before.

Rhagdyst, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tyst) A prior witness

Rhagdystiad, s. m. (rhagdyst) A previously testifying; a giving a previous testimony.

Rhagdystiaw, v. a. (rhagdyst) To testify beforehand; to witness beforehand.

Rhagdystiawl, a. (rhagdyst) First testifying.

Rhagdystiolaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhagdystiawl) A previous testimony.

Rhagdystiolaethu, v. a. (rhagdystiolaeth) To give a previous testimony.

Rhagdywyll, a. (tywyl) Being dark before.

Rhagdywyll, v. a. (rhagdywyll) To darken before

Rhagdywyn, s. m. (tywyn) A radiance before.

Rhagdywyniad, s. m. (rhagdywyn) A shining before; a previously shining.

Rhagdywynu, v. a. (rhagdywyn) To shine before.

Rhagdywys, v. a. (tywys) To lead before.

Rhagdywysaw, v. a. (rhagdywys) To fore-lead.

Rhagdywysiad, s. m. (rhagdywys) A leading before, or a leading in advance.

Rhagddadgan, v. a. (dadgan) To declare before.

Rhagddadganiad, s. m. (rhagddadgan) A declaring beforehand; previous declaration.

Rhagddadl, s. f.—pl. t. au (dadl) A previous debate, or previous question.

Rhagddadl, s. m. (rhagddadl) A previous argumentation.

Rhagddadlu, v. a. (rhagddadl) To debate before.

Rhagddal, v. a. (dal) To hold beforehand.

Rhagddaliad, s. m. (rhagddal) A first holding.

Rhagddanfon, v. a. (danfon) To send before.

Rhagddanfonawl, a. (rhagddanfon) Being sent beforehand; being of a previous mission.

Rhagddanfoniad, s. m. (rhagddanfon) A sending beforehand.

Rhagddant, s. m.—pl. rhagddannedd (dant) A foretooth, or a front tooth.

Rhagddangaws, v. a. (dangaws) To shew beforehand, to premonstrate.

Rhagddangosawl, a. (dangaws) Premonstrating.

Rhagddangosiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagddangaws) A prognostication; a premonstration.

Rhagddangoswr, s. m.—pl. rhagddangoswyr (rhagddangaws—gwr) A prognosticator.

Rhagddarbod, s. m.—pl. t. au (darbod) Provision beforehand; circumspection.

Rhagddarbodaeth, s. m. (rhagddarbod) A preparation beforehand; providence.

Rhagddarbodawl, a. (rhagddarbod) Providential.

Rhagddarbodedig, a. (rhagddarbod) Being provided or furnished beforehand.

Rhagddarbodi, v. a. (rhagddarbod) To provide or furnish beforehand.

Rhagddarbodiad, s. m. (rhagddarbod) A providing or furnishing beforehand.

Rhagddarbodus, a. (rhagddarbod) Provident.

Rhagddarbodwr, s. m.—pl. rhagddarbodwyr (rhagddarbod—gwr) One who provides beforehand.

Rhagddarlun, s. m. (darlun) Prefiguration.

Rhagddarluniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagddarlun) A prefiguring.

Rhagddarluniaw, v. a. (rhagddarlun) To prefigure

Rhagddarluniedig, a. (rhagddarlun) Prefigured
Rhagddarmerth, s. m. (darmerth) Provision made beforehand; a previous preparation.
Rhagddarmerthawl, a. (rhagddarmerth) Provident
Rhagddarmerthu, v. a. (rhagddarmerth) To provide beforehand.
Rhagddarn, s. m.—pl. t. au (darn) A fore-piece.
Rhagddarpar, s. m.—pl. t. au (darpar) Previous order or disposition.
Rhagddarparawl, a. (rhagddarpar) Tending to furnish beforehand; providential.
Rhagddarparedig, a. (rhagddarpar) Being previously ordered; being previously furnished.
Rhagddarparedigaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagddarparedig) The being previously furnished.
Rhagddarparedigaw, v. a. (rhagddarparedig) To render complete beforehand.
Rhagddarparedd, s. m. (rhagddarpar) The state of being previously furnished.
Rhagddarpariad, s. m. (rhagddarpar) A providing or ordering beforehand.
Rhagddarparu, v. a. (darpar) To furnish before.
Rhagddarparwch, s. m. (rhagddarpar) Support previously given.

Na suturia fynd drwy yr bosynnas ac y cynallwynas hyn, cyn i ti weddïaw am ragddarparwch Duw.

Do not venture to go through these snares and ambuscades, before thou hast prayed for the provident support of God.

R. Fychan, Ym. Dwytydd.

Rhagddawd, s. m.—pl. rhagddodau (dawd) A prefix.
Rhagddawn, s. m.—pl. rhagddoniau (dawn) A previous gift or endowment.
Rhagddëall, s. m. (dëall) Previous knowledge.
Rhagddëalliad, s. m. (rhagddëall) A pre-apprehension.
Rhagddelw, s. f.—pl. t. au (delw) A prototype.
Rhagddelwad, s. m. (rhagddelw) Prefiguration.
Rhagddelwi, v. a. (rhagddelw) To prefigure.
Rhagdderbyn, v. a. (derbyn) To receive before.
Rhagdderbynal, s. c. (rhagdderbyn) A prolepsis Rhagdderbyniad, s. m. (rhagdderbyn) A receiving beforehand.
Rhagdderbyniawl, a. (rhagdderbyn) Previously receivable.
Rhagddewis, s. m. (dewis) A previous choice. v. a.
 To choose before.
Rhagddewisawl, a. (rhagddewis) Pre-elective.
Rhagddewisedig, a. (rhagddewis) Fore-chosen.
Rhagddewisiad, s. m. (rhagddewis) Pre-election
Rhagddial, s. m. (dial) A previous revenge.
Rhagddialiad, s. m. (rhagddial) A revenging beforehand.
Rhagddialn, v. a. (rhagddial) To revenge before.
Rhagddiddymiad, s. m. (diddymiad) A previous annihilation.
Rhagddiddymu, v. a. (diddymu) To annihilate
 beforehand.
Rhagddiogeliad, s. m. (diogeliad) A securing beforehand; a previously making safe.
Rhagddiogelu, v. a. (diogelu) To secure before.
Rhagddiogelwch, s. m. (diogelwch) A previous security.
Rhagddirnad, s. m. (dirnad) Presurmise.
Rhagddirnadawl, a. (rhagddirnad) Presurmising.
Rhagddirnadiad, s. m. (dirnad) A presurmising.
Rhagddirnadu, v. a. (dirnad) To presurmise.
Rhagddiryrawl, a. (dirymawl) Tending to debilitate beforehand.
Rhagddirywiad, s. m. (dirymiad) A previously debilitating or enervating.

Rhagddirywu, v. a. (dirymu) To debilitate beforehand.
Rhagddodadwy, v. a. (rhagddawd) Capable of being placed before.
Rhagddodawl, a. (rhagddawd) Prepositive.
Rhagddodedig, a. (rhagddawd) Being prefixed.
Rhagddodedigaeth, s. m. (rhagddodedig) The act of placing before, a prefixing.
Rhagddodedigawl, a. (rhagddodedig) Prepositive
Rhagddodi, v. a. (rhagddawd) To prepose.
Rhagddodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagddawd) Preposition.
Rhagddoniad, s. m. (rhagddawn) A gifting beforehand; a previously endowing.
Rhagddoniaw, v. a. (rhagddawn) To gift beforehand; to endow previously.
Rhagddoniawl, a. (rhagddawn) Tending to endow beforehand.
Rhagddor, s. f.—pl. t. au (dor) A fore-door; a wicket; a half-door.
Rhagddorig, s. f. dim. (rhagddor) A small wicket Rhagddrws, s. m.—pl. rhagddrysan (drws) A fore-door, an outer door.
Rhagddryll, s. m.—pl. t. iau (dryll) A fore-piece.
Rhagddychwelïad, s. m. (dychwelïad) A returning beforehand.
Rhagddychwelyd, v. a. (dychwelyd) To return
 beforehand.
Rhagddychymyg, s. f.—pl. t. ion (dychymyg) A prior device or invention; a presuppos.
Rhagddychymygadwy, a. (rhagddychymyg) Capable of being devised beforehand.
Rhagddychymygawl, a. (rhagddychymyg) Previously devising; presuppositional.
Rhagddychymygedig, a. (rhagddychymyg) Devised beforehand; presupposed.
Rhagddychymygiad, s. m. (rhagddychymyg) A devising beforehand; a presupposing.
Rhagddychymygu, v. a. (rhagddychymyg) To devise beforehand; to presuppose.
Rhagddydd, s. m.—pl. t. iau (dydd) A prior day
Rhagddyddiad, s. m. (rhagddydd) An antedating.
Rhagddyddïaw, v. a. (rhagddydd) To antedate.
Rhagddyfaliad, s. m. (dyfaliad) A describing beforehand.
Rhagddyfalu, v. a. (dyfalu) To fore-describe.
Rhagddyled, s. f.—pl. t. ion (dyled) Prior debt.
Rhagddyledus, a. (rhagddyled) Previously due.
Rhagddymchwl, s. m. (dymchwl) A previous turn over. v. a. To turn over previously.
Rhagddymchwellad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagddymchwl) A previously turning over.
Rhagddymchwelyd, v. a. (rhagddymchwl) To turn over beforehand.
Rhagddysg, s. m. (dysg) Previous instruction.
Rhagddysgawl, a. (rhagddysg) Tending to instruct beforehand.
Rhagddysgiad, s. m. (rhagddysg) A previously instructing.
Rhagddysgu, v. a. (rhagddysg) To fore-learn.
Rhagddywedawl, a. (dywedawl) Gainsaying.
Rhagddywededig, a. (dywed) Beforementioned.
Rhagddywedïad, s. m.—pl. t. au (dywedïad) A gainsaying; a speaking previously.
Rhagedrych, v. a. (edrych) To look before.
Rhagedrychiad, s. m. (rhagedrych) A foreseeing.
Rhagegawr, s. m. (egawr) An opening before.
v. n. To open before.
Rhagegorawl, a. (rhagegawr) Opening before.
Rhagegori, v. a. (rhagegawr) To open before.
Rhagegorïad, s. m. (rhagegawr) A fore-opening.

Rhaggymeriadawl, a. (rhaggymeriad) Of an anticipating tendency; prophetic.

Rhaghanfod, s. m. (hantod) Pre-existence.

Rhaghanfodawl, a. (rhaghanfod) Pre-existent.

Rhaghanfodi, v. a. (rhaghanfod) To pre-exist.

Rhaghanfodiad, s. m. (rhaghanfod) A pre-existing; a pre-existence.

Rhagham, s. f.—pl. rhagholion (haw) A previous question or claim.

Rhagheuddawl, a. (heuddawl) Premeriting.

Rhagheuddu, s. m. (heuddu) To premerit.

Rhagholl, v. a. (rhaghaw) To question before.

Rhaghollad, s. m.—pl. t. eu (rhaghaw) A questioning beforehand.

Rhagiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhag) A getting before; a coming before; a stopping.

Rhagiel, v. a. (rhag) To controvert.

Rhagiel, s. a. (isel) Having the fore part low.

Rhagiadd, s. a. (ladd) To cut before.

Rhagiaddawl, a. (rhagiadd) Cutting in front.

Rhagiaddad, s. m. (rhagiadd) A cutting before.

Rhaglafar, s. m. (llafar) A harangue made before or in public. a. Prolocutory.

Arghyad, add rhaglafar fod yn rhaglafar; ac wrth hwy y gellir yn a o dri mud gorwedd.

A sovereign, it is not requisite for him to be prolocutory; and therefore he is called one of the three males of court. Welsh Laws.

Rhaglafarawl, a. (rhaglafar) Speaking before.

Rhaglafariad, s. m. (rhaglafar) A speaking before.

Rhaglafaru, v. a. (rhaglafar) To speak before.

Rhaglafarwr, s. m. (rhaglafar—gwr) A prolocutor.

Rhaglam, s. m.—pl. t. au (llam) A forward step.

Rhaglamiad, s. m. (rhaglam) A stepping before.

Rhaglawn, v. a. (rhaglawn) To step forward.

Rhaglawn, s. m.—pl. t. iau (llaw) A deputy, a surrogate; a lieutenant; a vice-president.

Rhaglawn, s. m. (llawd) A first increase.

Rhaglawnieth, s. f. (rhaglawn) The office, or jurisdiction of a deputy; a lieutenantcy; a prefecture; a vice presidency.

Rhaglawniethawl, a. (rhaglawnieth) Belonging to the office of a deputy or lieutenant.

Rhaglawniethu, v. a. (rhaglawnieth) To perform the function of a deputy or lieutenant.

Rhaglawniaw, v. a. (rhaglawn) To make a deputy.

Rhaglawn, s. m. (llawn) A first silling or gathering in. Cylich rhaglawn, cylich rhaglawn, the circuit of first fruits, certain dues anciently paid by tenants to their lords.

Rhaglef, s. m. (llef) A proclamation.

Rhaglefain, s. a. (rhaglef) To proclaim.

Rhaglewych, s. m. (llewych) Illumination before.

Rhaglewychiad, s. m. (rhaglewych) A lighting first

Rhaglewychu, v. (rhaglewych) To illumine before.

Rhaglith, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (llith) A preface.

Rhaglithiad, s. m.—pl. t. aq (rhaglith) A making an introductory discourse.

Rhaglithiaw, v. a. (rhaglith) To preface.

Rhaglithiawl, a. (rhaglith) Prefatory, introductory Rhaglithiwr, s. m.—pl. rhaglithiwr (rhaglith—gwr) One who makes a preface.

Rhaglofdd, s. m. (rhaglawn) A vicegerent.

Rhaglun, s. m.—pl. t. iau (llun) A prior form.

Rhagluniad, s. m. (rhaglun) A performing.

Rhaglunieth, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhaglun) The act of forming beforehand; providence.

Rhagluniethawl, a. (rhaglunieth) Providential.

Rhagluniethu, v. a. (rhaglunieth) To carry on the dispensation of providence.

Rhagluniethus, a. (rhaglunieth) Providential.

Rhagleniaw, v. a. (rhaglen) To perform; to forecast, to foresee, to provide.

Sawt a rhaglenodd af, y rhag lenyn helpd a niwodd.

Such as he has formed before, those also he has called. W. Saltbury.

Rhagluniawl, a. (rhaglun) Tending to form beforehand.

Rhagluniedig, a. (rhaglun) Performed.

Rhaglwgr, s. m. (llwgr) A prior corruption.

Rhaglwyr, s. m.—pl. t. au (llwyr) A previous path; a path in front.

Rhaglwyrbaw, v. a. (rhaglwyr) To open a path before; to clear the way in front.

Rhaglwyrbawl, a. (rhaglwyr) Tending to open a path before.

Rhaglyd, s. m. (llyd) Providence, forecast.

Rhaglydaw, v. a. (rhaglyd) To use forecast.

Rhaglydawl, a. (rhaglyd) Providential.

Rhaglyfn, a. (llyfn) Previously smooth.

Rhaglyfnawl, a. (rhaglyfn) Tending to make smooth beforehand.

Rhaglyfniad, s. m. (rhaglyfn) A previously making smooth.

Rhaglyfnu, v. a. (rhaglyfn) To smooth before.

Gwelw rhaglunieth Daw yn dda rhaglyfnu peth ar y byd, drwy athrawieth y Groegiaid.

The divine providence saw it good previously to smooth the word a little, through the knowledge of the Greeks. C. Edwards, H. y Ffydd.

Rhaglygrawl, a. (rhaglwgr) Tending to corrupt beforehand.

Rhaglygriad, s. m. (rhaglwgr) A previously corrupting.

Rhaglygru, v. a. (rhaglwgr) To first corrupt.

Rhaglym, a. (llym) Sharp before; sharp-pointed.

Cynon lary fro—rhaglym a llymwr.

Cynon of humane breast, sharp in front the pushing of his spear. Aneurin.

Rhaglymiad, s. m. (rhaglym) A sharpening before; acuminat.

Rhaglymu, v. a. (rhaglym) To sharpen before; to make sharp-pointed.

Rhaglys, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (llys) An inferior court; the court of a comot, a court leet.

Rhaglyw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (llyw) A deputy governor.

Rhaglywiad, s. m.—pl. raglywiad (rhaglyw) One who governs as a deputy.

Gosodwn fod—rhaglywiad cymddan droo Gymrae.

We appoint that there be deputy constables of comotes over Wales. Good. Rhuddlan.

Rhaglywiaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhaglyw) A deputy governor, a vice presidency, a prefecture.

Rhaglywiaethawl, a. (rhaglywiaeth) Belonging to the office of a deputy or lieutenant.

Rhaglywiaethu, v. a. (rhaglywiaeth) To perform the function of a deputy governor.

Rhaglywiaw, v. a. (rhaglyw) To rule as a deputy.

Rhaglywiawd, s. m. (rhaglyw) The function of a deputy governor.

Rhaglywiawdr, s. m.—pl. rhaglywiawdr (rhaglywiawd) A deputy governor.

Rhaglawn, s. m. (llawn) Henceforth, in future.

Rhagnaid, s. f. (naid) A leap before.

Rhagnawdd, s. m. (nawdd) A refuge or protection before; a preservative.

Rhagnodd, s. m. (nedd) A station before.

*Gwelw isafar iau—
A lla rhagnodd
Yn rhaglywiad
Yn nydd gwedd
Yn nghywydd.*

There will be seen the noisy blade, and a host in an opposing station threatening, in the day of struggle in conflict. Aneurin.

Rhaguerthawl, a. (rhaguerth) Tending to strengthen beforehand.

Rhagnerthiad, s. m. (rhagnerth) A previously strengthening.

Rhagnerthu, v. a. (rhaguerth) To strengthen beforehand.

Rhagneuadd, s. f. (neuadd) A hall of entrance.

Rhagnod, s. m.—pl. t. au (nod) A mark before.

Rhagnodawl, a. (rhagnod) Marking before.

Rhagnodi, v. a. (rhagnod) To mark before.

Rhagnodiad, s. m. (rhagnod) A marking before.

Rhagnoddawl, a. (rhagnawdd) First protecting.

Rhagnoddi, v. a. (rhagnawdd) To protect before.

Rhagnoddiad, s. m. (rhagnawdd) A protecting beforehand.

Rhagnoeth, a. (noeth) Naked before.

Rhagnoethi, v. a. (rhagnoeth) To make naked before; to expose the front.

Rhagnoethiad, s. m. (rhagnoeth) A making naked before; an exposing of the front.

Rhagnyth, s. m.—pl. t. od (nyth) A prepared nest.

Rhagnythawl, a. (rhagnyth) Tending to nestle.

Rhagnythiad, s. m. (rhagnyth) A preparing a nest.

Rhagnythu, v. a. (rhagnyth) To prepare a nest.

Rhagnythed iar cyn dodwy.

Let the hen prepare a nest before laying.

Adapt.

Rhagnythydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhagnyth) One who prepares a nest.

Rhagochel, v. a. (gochel) To avoid previously.

Rhagocheliad, s. m. (rhagochel) A previously avoiding.

Rhagochelyd, v. a. (rhagochel) To avoid previously

Rhagodawl, a. (rhagawd) Coming before, coming against, coming in opposition.

Rhagodfa, s. f.—pl. t. on (rhagawd) A place for coming against; an ambuscade.

Rhagodi, v. a. (rhagawd) To come before, to come against; to oppose.

Rhagodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagawd) A coming before, a coming against.

Rhagodli, v. n. (rhagawdli) To form a leading rhyme.

Rhagodliad, s. m. (rhagawdli) A forming a leading rhyme.

Rhagodlig, a. (rhagawdli) Having the quality of a leading rhyme.

Pan fo y gwynn ragodlig yn ddauwynebawg, ni cill y gynghanedd fod yn groes ddyrchwiedig.

When the first rhyming consonant has a double aspect, the consonancy cannot be a reverted transition.

Gr. Roberts.

Rhagodwr, s. m.—pl. rhagodwyr (rhagawd—gwr) One who comes before or against.

Rhagodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhagawd) One who comes before or against; an opposer.

Rhagoddef, s. m. (goddef) A previous suffering.

Rhagoddefawl, a. (rhagoddef) Previously passive.

Rhagoddefiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagoddef) A suffering beforehand.

Rhagofal, s. m.—pl. t. on (gofal) Precantion.

Rhagofaliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagofal) A taking previous care, a taking precaution.

Rhagofalu, v. a. (rhagofal) To take precaution.

Rhagofalus, a. (rhagofal) Careful beforehand.

Rhagofalwr, s. m.—pl. rhagofalwyr (rhagofal—gwr) One who takes previous care.

Rhagofyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (gofyn) A pre-requisite; an adjunct requisite.

Tair swydd llys: canghellawr, canllaw, nes bieldwr, a rhingyll; sef rhagofynion llys eu gollwir, can y gellir llys hebddynt.

The three adjunct offices of a court: a chancellor, a conductor, or partizan, and an apparitor; for they are called adjunct requisites, as a court can be held without them.

Triodd Dyfnwst.

Rhagofyn, v. a. (gofyn) To bespeak.

Rhagofynawl, a. (rhagofyn) Bespeaking.

Rhagofyniad, s. m. (rhagofyn) A bespeaking.

Rhagolwg, s. m. (golwg) Prospect; foresight.

Rhagolwyn, s. f.—pl. t. ion (olwyn) Fore-wheel.

Rhagolygawd, s. m. (rhagolwg) A prospect.

Rhagolygawl, a. (rhagolwg) Prospective.

Rhagolygiad, s. m. (rhagolwg) A foreseeing.

Rhagolygu, v. a. (rhagolwg) To look forward.

Rhagongl, s. f. (ongl) A salient angle.

Rhagonglaidd, a. (rhagongl) Tending to a salient angle; of the nature of a salient angle.

Rhagongli, v. a. (rhagongl) To form a salient angle.

Rhagongliad, s. m. (rhagongl) A forming a salient angle.

Rhagor, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhag—gor) The state of being before; excellence; attribute; superiority; difference; more. Rhagoriaen, excellencies; yn rhagor, in a greater degree, more. Mac rhagor mawr rhyngot ti a mi, there is a great difference betwixt thee and me.

Tair dyben barddoniaeth; gwelid mewn a ddawd; cynnal hedd-wch; a moli pob daionus a rhagor.

The three intentions of bardism; to improve manners and habit; to maintain peace; and to praise all the good and the excellent.

Barddon.

D'ofn a drig, dwfn dy ragor,

Od ofn mha dwfn o'r mor.

Thy dread will remain, profound thy superiority, if a profound part of the sea be dreaded.

Elpis Cam.

Ei rad—

Archaf ar air, a chaf yr awron

Er ei wir garlad, a'i ragoriaen,

Ac er a wyddiad o geryddon—

Er ei wyth allu, a'i archbillion.

His grace I crave verbally, and at the present hour I shall have it, for the sake of his true love, and his attributes, and on account of what he has known of reproaches; for the sake of his eight energies, and his wounds.

G. ab I. ab Llywelyn Ithael.

Rhagorawl, a. (rhagor) Excellent, or superior.

Rhagorbarch, s. (rhagor—parch) Pre-eminency.

Rhagorbryd, s. m. (rhagor—pryd) Superior appearance.

Rhagorbwyll, s. m. (pwyll) Superior discretion.

Rhagorddawn, s. m. (rhagor—dawn) Superior talent or endowment.

Rhagorddull, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhagor—dull) A superior form.

Rhagorddwyn, a. (rhagor—dwyn) Bearing a superiority; excelling. Pethau godidogion a rhagorddwyn, eminent and superlative things.

Rhagorddysg, s. (rhagor—dysg) Superior learning.

Rhagoredig, a. (rhagor) Being made superior.

Rhagoredigaeth, s. m. (rhagoredig) Superiority.

Rhagoredd, s. m. (rhagor) Excellency.

Rhagoresgyn, v. a. (goresgyn) To come upon first.

s. m. A prior coming upon; a prior conquest.

Rhagoresgynawl, a. (rhagoresgyn) Belonging to prior conquest.

Rhagoresgyniad, s. m. (rhagoresgyn) A previously overcoming or surmounting.

Rhagorfraind, s. m.—pl. rhagorfreintian (braind)

A prerogative.

Rhagorgamp, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhagor—camp) Superior feat or exploit.

Rhagorgampus, a. (rhagorgamp) Pancratical.

Rhagori, v. a. (rhagor) To go before, to go beyond; to excel, to surpass; to cause a difference; to differ.

Rhagoriad, s. m. (rhagor) An excelling, a surpassing; a differing.

Rhagoriaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagor) A state of being beyond, or surpassing; difference.

Tri rhagoriaeth canu: iawn fydryddu, iawn ddyladu, ac iawn ymddyddu.

The three excellencies of song: just proudly, just descriptively, and just tendency.

Barddon.

Rhagoriaethawl, a. (rhagoriaeth) Relating to excellence; differential.

Rhagoriaethu, v. a. (rhagoriaeth) To form a state of excellence; to make a difference.

Rhagoriannawl, a. (rhagorian) Surpassing, superlative; differential.

Rhagoriannu, v. a. (rhagorian) To render superlative; to create a difference.

Rhagorian, s. m. (rhagor) Excellence; difference

Pob peth anweiddig, megys angel, a folir heru;dd yr anawdd, ac y rhagoriaat y sydd arno.

Every thing lovable, as an angel, is praised according to the nature, and excellence pertaining to it. Barddas.

Rhagoriawd, s. m. (rhagor) The act or state of excelling; a difference.

Rhagoriawdr, s. m. (rhagoriawd) One who excels.

Rhagorineb, s. m. (rhagor) Excellency, superiority; preference; difference.

Rhagoroldeb, s. m. (rhagorawl) Preference.

Rhagorolrwydd, s. m. (rhagorawl) Excellentness.

Rhagosawd, v. a. (gosawd) To set previously; to set before, to prefix.

Rhagosodawl, a. (rhagosawd) Prepositive.

Rhagosodedig, a. (rhagosawd) Being set before; fore-appointed, pre-established; prefixed.

Rhagosodedigaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhagosodedig) Pre-establishment, pre-ordination.

Rhagosodedigawl, a. (rhagosodedig) Prepositive.

Rhagosodiad, s. m. (rhagosawd) A setting before.

Rhagosodwr, s. m.—pl. rhagosodwyr (rhagosawd gwr) One who sets before.

Rhagraith, s. f.—pl. rhagreithian (rhaith) A previous adjustment; a prejudication.

Rhagran, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhan) A prior share.

Rhagranawl, a. (rhagran) Of a prior sharing.

Rhagranlad, s. m. (rhagran) A previously sharing.

Rhagranu, v. a. (rhagran) To share previously.

Rhagre, s. f. (rhe) A first setting off, a preamble.

Rhagred, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhed) A prior course.

Rhagredawl, a. (rhagred) Forerunning, antecedent, procatartec.

Rhagrede, v. a. (rhagred) To forerun.

Rhagrediad, s. m. (rhagred) A forerunning.

Rhagredwr, s. m.—pl. rhagredwyr (rhagred—gwr) A precursor, a forerunner, a harbinger.

Rhagreithiad, s. m. (rhagraith) A previously rectifying; consideration.

Rhagreithiannawl, a. (rhagreithiant) Tending to previous rectitude; deliberative.

Rhagreithlannu, v. a. (rhagreithiant) To make a previous adjustment.

Rhagreithiant, s. m. (rhagraith) Previous adjustment; deliberation.

Rhagreithlaw, v. a. (rhagraith) To adjust beforehand; to consider.

Rhagreithia dy air cyn noi ddodi.

Consider thy word before it is given.

Adage.

Gurdy dasffo i'yr henuriaid rhagreithlaw eu cynwys, a chadarnau ei doli trwy dwng, yna i' dylant y brawdwyr, fynd ar neillte, a hanes barwydd yr henuriaid.

When the elders shall have finished considering their sentiment, and supported its form by oath, then the judges ought to go aside, and pass sentence according to the elders. Welsh Laws.

Rhagreithlaw, a. (rhagraith) Previously rectified.

Rhagreithiedig, a. (rhagreithiad) Previously rectified; considered, deliberated.

Rhagreithiwr, s. m.—pl. rhagreithwyr (rhagraith—gwr) One who rectifies before-hand.

Rhagreithus, a. (rhagraith) Considerate.

Rhagrif, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhif) A prior number.

Rhagrifaw, v. a. (rhagrif) To reckon beforehand.

Rhagrifawl, a. (rhagrif) Of previous numbering.

Rhagrifiad, s. m. (rhagrif) A reckoning before.

Rhagrith, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhith) Hypocrisy.

Rhagrithiad, s. m. (rhagrith) A practising of hypocrisy; dissimulation.

Rhagrithiannawl, a. (rhagrithiant) Of an hypocritical disposition.

Rhagrithiannu, v. a. (rhagrithiant) To use hypocrisy; to put on appearance.

Rhagrithiannu, s. a. (rhagrithiant) Apt to practise hypocrisy or dissimulation.

Rhagrithiant, s. m. (rhagrith) Simulation.

Rhagrithiaw, v. a. (rhagrith) To use hypocrisy.

Rhagrithiawg, a. (rhagrith) Using hypocrisy.

Rhagrithiawl, s. m. (rhagrith) Hypocritical.

Rhagrithiwr, s. m.—pl. rhagrithwyr (rhagrith—gwr) A dissimulator, a hypocrite.

Rhagrithus, a. (rhagrith) Hypocritical.

Rhagrodd, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhodd) A gift before.

Rhagroddedig, a. (rhagrodd) Being previously given.

Rhagroddi, v. a. (rhagrodd) To give beforehand.

Rhagroddiad, s. m. (rhagrodd) A giving before.

Rhagroddwr, s. m.—pl. rhagroddwyr (rhagrodd—gwr) One who gives beforehand.

Rhagruthr, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhathr) A rushing forward; a rushing to the front.

Rhagruthraw, v. a. (rhagruthr) To rush before.

*Gwawr onen rethren a ragruthr:
Rhag ofn gwir golofn gwyr a gllian.*

A giving ashen spear he would rush forward; for fear of a trusty pillar heroes would flee away.

Heilyn Fardd, neu Ll. Brydydd Hednant.

Rhagruthrawl, a. (rhagruthr) Rushing before.

Rhagruthriad, s. m. (rhagruthr) A rushing before; a rushing forward.

Rhagrwym, s. m. (rhwym) A previous bond or tie.

Rhagrwymaw, v. a. (rhagrwym) To bind before.

Rhagrwymawl, a. (rhagrwym) First binding.

Rhagrwymedig, a. (rhagrwym) Bound before.

Rhagrwymiad, s. m. (rhagrwym) A previously binding.

Rhagrwysr, s. m. (rhwystr) A previous hindrance or obstacle.

Rhagrwystraw, v. a. (rhagrwysr) To preclude.

Rhagrwystrawl, a. (rhagrwysr) Previously hindering; precluding.

Rhagrwystriad, s. m. (rhagrwysr) A previously hindering or precluding.

Rhagrybudd, s. m. (rhybudd) Premonishment.

Rhagrybuddiad, s. m. (rhagrybudd) Premonition.

Rhagrybuddiaw, v. a. (rhagrybudd) To forewarn.

Rhagrybuddiawl, a. (rhagrybudd) Premonitory.

Rhagrybuddiwr, s. m. (rhagrybudd—gwr) A premonisher, a forewarner.

Rhagsaf, s. f. (saf) A stand before or in front.

Rhagsall, s. f. (sall) A prior foundation.

Rhagsain, s. f.—pl. rhagseinian (sain) A prior or leading sound.

Rhagsathr, s. m. (sathr) A tread before.

Rhagsathrawl, a. (rhagsathr) Treading before.

Rhagsathriad, s. m. (rhagsathr) A treading before; a treading in front.

Rhagsathru, v. a. (rhagsathr) To tread before.

Rhagsefydlawg, a. (sefydlawg) Pre-established.

Rhagsefydlad, s. m. (sefydlad) A fixing or establishing beforehand, a pre-establishing.

Rhagsefydlu, v. a. (sefydlu) To pre-establish.

Rhagsefyll, v. a. (sefyll) To stand before.

Rhagseiliad, s. m. (rhagsail) A laying a previous foundation.

Rhagseiliaw, v. a. (rhagsail) To lay a previous foundation.

Rhagseiniad, s. m. (rhagsain) A sounding before.
Rhagseiniaw, v. a. (rhagsain) To sound before.
Rhagseiniawl, a. (rhagsain) Previously sounding.
Rhagser, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (sen) A prior reproof.
Rhagsenawl, a. (rhagsen) Previously reproving.
Rhagseniad, s. m. (rhagsen) A first reproving.
Rhagsennu, v. a. (rhagsen) To reprove before.
Rhagswydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (swydd) A prior office; an adjunct office.
Rhagswyddiad, s. m. (rhagswydd) A filling a prior office; a previously officiating.
Rhagswyn, s. f. (swyn) Preventive charm.
Rhagswynaw, v. a. (rhagswyn) To charm before.
Rhagswynawl, a. (rhagswyn) Fore-charming.
Rhagswyniad, s. m. (rhagswyn) A charming beforehand; a preventive charm.
Rhagsylw, s. m. (sylw) A previous remark.
Rhagsylwad, s. m. (rhagsylw) A previously remarking or noticing.
Rhagsylwi, v. a. (rhagsylw) To remark before.
Rhagsyll, s. m. (syll) A look forward or before.
Rhagsylliad, s. m. (rhagsyll) A looking forward.
Rhagsyllu, v. a. (rhagsyll) To look forward.
Rhagsyniad, s. m. (syniad) Pre-apprehension.
Rhagsyniawl, a. (syniawl) Premeditating.
Rhagsynied, v. a. (synied) To premeditate.
Rhagsyniedig, a. (rhagsyniad) Premeditated.
Rhagsyniedigaeth, s. m. (rhagsyniedig) The exercise of previous thought, premeditation.
Rhagsyniedigawl, a. (rhagsyniedig) Inducing premeditation.
Rhagsyniwr, s. m.—pl. rhagsyniwr (syniwr) One who premeditates.
Rhagu, v. a. (rhag) To go before, to go in front; to get before; to oppose, to withstand.
Rhagus, a. (rhag) Tending to go before; opposing; contrary, adverse.
Rhagwahan, a. m. (gwahan) A leading division.
Rhagwahanawl, a. (rhagwahan) Belonging to a leading division.
Rhagwahaniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagwahan) A forming a leading division.
Rhagwahanod, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhagwahan—od) A leading division point, a semicolon.
Rhagwahanu, v. a. (rhagwahan) To form a leading division; to use a semicolon.
Rhagwan, s. m. (gwan) An advance or front division.
Rhagwanawl, a. (rhagwan) Belonging to an advanced division.
Rhagwaniad, s. m. (rhagwan) A forming an advanced division.
Rhagwant, s. m.—pl. t. au (gwant) The advanced division; a term in prosody for the accented part of the second pause of a verse, of Unawd unen, or the fifth syllable, concatenating with a preceding sound.
Rhagwannu, v. a. (rhagwan) To make a division or opening before.

Cyfras yn rhagwan rhag byddinawr.
A party opening a forward way before the host. Aneurin.

Rhagwas, s. m.—pl. rhagweision (gwas) A preceding minister; a harbinger; a deputy servant; a term used for the article, by some grammarians; and by others for the adverb.

Gwas i rhagwas: neu, gwas i was y cwn.
A servant to an under-servant; or, a servant to the servant of the dog. Adeys.

Rhagwasnaeth, s. m. (gwasnaeth) Previous servitude; a prior ministration.

Rhagwasnaethawl, a. (rhagwasnaeth) Previously serving; a ministering before.
Rhagwasnaethiad, s. m. (rhagwasnaeth) A serving beforehand.
Rhagwasnaethu, v. a. (rhagwasnaeth) To serve beforehand; to minister before.
Rhagwedd, s. f. (gwedd) A presence; a front.

Rhagwedd rhoddid i ffordd y byd.
A countenance was given to the bards of the world. Taliesin.

Gwyr Gogledd yn arwyddid yn ei cyrchyn
Yn mhawddid eu rhagwedd y deysyrn.
The men of the North, in the portal around them, in the midst of their place of presence descended. Galdreid, Arm. Prydd.

Rhagwini, v. a. (gwini) To serve before.
Rhagwinydd, a. m.—pl. t. iaid (rhagwini) One who ministereth before.

Tri rhagwinyddid doethiad: addug diddidiwr, uddwr uddwr, a uddwr uddwr.
The three precursors of wisdom: moral instruction, an advice habit, and an implanted fondness. Caring Ddud.

Rhagwel, s. m. (gwel) Foresight, or prescience.

De udd pŵl rhagwel dyw. /
It is happy that the prescience of such extends not far. Adeys.

Rhagweladwy, a. (rhagwel) Capable of being foreseen.
Rhagweled, v. a. (rhagwel) To foresee.

Aegus a rhagwelwr at ddwr byth arddel.
Heed that is foreseen will never come upon the other. Adeys.
Yn y dywedd Arthur—Fy hysbysing ar y gwirfawr yn dda yn y blaen ym ddeithion, pan ddeler ar y gwirfawr hysbys y dywedd.
Thereupon Arthur says, whatever thing shall be foreseen by the wise as good in the beginning, when we come into action it will be borne with greater ease. Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhagwelediad, s. m. (rhagweled) A foreseeing.
Rhagweledig, a. (rhagweled) Foreseen.

Ni tholygaf i galle o neb o bennaf i reidi cywethwr gwisgwr, ni chrydwrch, ni doethwrch, ni bwrch a rhagweledig rhagweledig doethwrch ar yrwydd Arthur.
I do not think that any of us could give a more valuable advice, or more complete, or wiser than this, which the provident wisdom of the lord Arthur has pre-ordained. Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhagweledigaeth, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhagweledig) The act of foreseeing.
Rhagweledigaw, v. a. (rhagweledig) To reader foreseen.
Rhagweledigrwydd, s. m. (rhagweledig) The state of being foreseen.
Rhagwelgar, a. (rhagwel) Apt to foresee.
Rhagwellad, s. m. (rhagwel) A foreseeing.
Rhagwelliedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhagwellad) One who foresees.
Rhagwelwr, s. m.—pl. rhagwelwr (rhagwel—wr) One who foresees.
Rhagwerth, s. m. (gwerth) A prior sale.
Rhagwerthawl, a. (rhagwerth) Relating to a previous selling.
Rhagwerthiad, s. m. (rhagwerth) A selling beforehand; a previous selling.
Rhagwerthu, v. a. (rhagwerth) To sell beforehand.
Rhagwerthwr, s. m.—pl. rhagwerthwr (rhagwerth—wr) One who sells beforehand.
Rhagwiniad, s. m. (gwiniad) A previously affirming or certifying.
Rhagwiriaw, v. a. (gwiriaw) To certify beforehand.
Rhagwiriawl, a. (gwiriawl) Previously certifying.
Rhagwiriwr, s. m.—pl. rhagwiriwr (gwiriwr) One who certifies beforehand.
Rhagwisg, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (gwisg) A fore-garment; a prior dress.
Rhagwisgaw, v. a. (rhagwisg) To dress previously.
Rhagwisgiad, s. m. (rhagwisg) A first dressing.

Rhagwa, s. m. (rhag) A scarecrow.
Rhagwybod, v. n. (gwybod) To foreknow.
Rhagwybodadwy, a. (rhagwybod) Capable of being foreknown.
Rhagwybodaeth, s. f. (rhagwybod) Precognition.
Rhagwybodawl, a. (rhagwybod) Belonging to prescience.
Rhagwybodus, a. (rhagwybod) Prescient.
Rhagwyl, s. f. (gwy) A previous watch.
Rhagwylid, s. m. (rhagwyl) A fore watching.
Rhagwylid, v. a. (rhagwyl) To watch before.
Rhagwylwr, s. m.—pl. rhagwylwyr (rhagwyl—gwr) One who watches before.
Rhagwyneb, prep. (gwyneb) Before, in presence.
a. Ensuing, forthcoming, following.

*Yn y ffordd rhagwylid y Rhoddaid atfodol.
 In the year ensuing was slain Thomas the Redhead.
 Caradawc o Langorfan.*

Rhagwynebawl, a. (rhagwyneb) Tending to come forward, forthcoming.
Rhagwynebiad, s. m. (rhagwyneb) A coming before, a coming forward.
Rhagwynebu, v. a. (rhagwyneb) To come before.
Rhagwys, s. f.—pl. t. iau (gwys) A previous sunning; a premonition; a forewarning.

*Rhyddur—
 Y rhagwys o Langorfan
 Y rhag bron y brenin.*

He brought the forewarning of the Lloerdd race to the king's presence.
Ld. P. Mech.

Rhagwysiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagwys) A previously citing; a forewarning.
Rhagwysiaw, v. a. (rhagwys) To cite previously.
Rhagwysawl, a. (rhagwys) Premonitory.
Rhagwysa, adv. (yna) Henceforth; hence.
Rhagymadrawd, s. m.—pl. rhagymadroddion (ymadrodd) A prolegomena, a preface.
Rhagymadroddawl, a. (rhagymadrodd) Prefatory.
Rhagymadroddi, v. a. (rhagymadrodd) To make a preface, or introduction.
Rhagymadroddwr, s. m.—pl. rhagymadroddwyr (rhagymadrodd—gwr) A professor.
Rhagymadwyn, s. m. (ymadwyn) A prolepsis.
Rhagymegniad, s. m. (ymegniad) A previous exertion of one's self.
Rhagymegniaw, v. a. (ymegniaw) To exert one's self beforehand.
Rhagymegniawl, a. (ymegniawl) Previously exerting one's self.
Rhagymgadw, v. a. (ymgadw) To refrain previously; to keep one's self beforehand.
Rhagymgais, s. f. (ymgais) A previous attempt.
Rhagymgaisiad, s. m. (rhagymgais) A previously attempting or trying.
Rhagymgaisaw, v. a. (rhagymgais) To attempt before; to exert one's self beforehand.
Rhagymgaisawl, a. (rhagymgais) Previously attempting, trying or seeking.
Rhagymgodawl, a. (ymgodawl) Previously rising.
Rhagymgodl, v. a. (ymgodl) To raise one's self beforehand.
Rhagymgodiad, s. m. (ymgodiad) A previously raising one's self.
Rhagymgudd, s. m. (ymgudd) A previous hiding of one's self.
Rhagymguddiad, s. m. (rhagymgudd) A previously hiding one's self.
Rhagymguddiaw, v. a. (rhagymgudd) To hide one's self previously.
Rhagymguddawl, a. (rhagymgudd) Previously hiding one's self.

VOL. II.

Rhagymgymeryd, v. a. (ymgymeryd) To take one's self beforehand.
Rhagymgyrek, s. m. (ymgyrek) A previous resort.
Rhagymgyrchawl, a. (rhagymgyrch) Previously resorting mutually.
Rhagymgyrchiad, s. m. (rhagymgyrch) A previously resorting mutually.
Rhagymgyrchu, v. a. (rhagymgyrch) To resort beforehand mutually.
Rhagymladd, v. a. (ymladd) To fight before.
Rhagymladdawl, a. (rhagymladd) Fore-fighting.
Rhagymladdiad, s. m. (rhagymladd) A fighting before.
Rhagymlid, v. a. (ymlid) To pursue before.
Rhagymliadiad, s. m. (rhagymlid) A previously pursuing, or following.
Rhagymliadiawl, a. (rhagymlid) Fore-pursuing.
Rhagymmorchest, s. f.—pl. t. ion (ymorchest) A previous exertion of one's self.
Rhagymmorchestawl, a. (rhagymmorchest) Tending to previous exertion of one's self.
Rhagymmorchestiad, s. m. (rhagymmorchest) A previously exerting of one's self.
Rhagymmorchestu, v. a. (rhagymmorchest) To exert one's self beforehand.
Rhagymrith, s. m. (ymrith) A previous appearance.
Rhagymrithiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhagymrith) A previously appearing.
Rhagymrithiaw, v. a. (rhagymrith) To appear beforehand.
Rhagymrithiawl, a. (rhagymrith) Tending to appear beforehand.
Rhagymroddawl, a. (ymroddawl) Tending to become previously resigned.
Rhagymroddi, v. a. (ymroddi) To resign one's self beforehand, to become previously resigned.
Rhagymroddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhoddiad) A previously resigning one's self.
Rhagymrwymaw, v. a. (ymrwymaw) To become bound beforehand; to fore bid one's self.
Rhagymrwymawl, a. (ymrwymawl) Tending to become previously bound.
Rhagymrwymiad, s. m. (ymrwymiad) A becoming previously bound.
Rhagyna, adv. (yna) Thenceforth, thenceforward.
Rhagyno, adv. (yno) Thenceforth, from that point of place or time forward.
Rhagynys, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ynys) An adjacent or neighbouring island.

Tair rhagynys yr Gwynedd.

The three adjacent isles of the land of Gwynedd.
L. G. Cethi.

Rhagyrwedd, s. f. (gyr—gwedd) A forbidding aspect; a threatening.

*A gwrthf i'm rhwyf o'm rhagyrwedd,
 Rhagor na'm rhwyf, na'm rhagyrwedd.*

What I may sing to my chief from my reception, more than my favour, than my threatening.
Gyddellw.

Rhagysbys, a. (ysbys) Previously known.
Rhagysbysawl, a. (rhagysbys) Premonstrating.
Rhagysbysiad, s. m. (rhagysbys) A previously shewing or declaring; a premonishing.
Rhagysbysu, v. a. (rhagysbys) To make known beforehand; to premonish.
Rhagysgrif, s. f.—pl. t. ion (ysgrif) A prior writing; a prescript.
Rhagysgrifaw, v. a. (rhagysgrif) To write beforehand; to write for, to prescribe.
Rhagysgrifawl, a. (rhagysgrif) Belonging to an original writing.
Rhagysgrifen, s. f. (rhagysgrif) A prior writing; an original writing.

3 M

Rhagysgrifenedig, a. (rhagysgrifen) Being previously written.

Rhagysgrifeniad, s. m. (rhagysgrifen) A writing beforehand.

Rhagysgrifenu, v. a. (rhagysgrifen) To write beforehand.

Rhagysgrifiad, s. m. (rhagysgrif) A previously writing.

Rhagysgythrawl, a. (ysgythrawl) Fore-lopping.

Rhagysgythriad, s. m. (ysgythriad) A previously lopping.

Rhagysgythru, v. a. (ysgythru) To lop before.

Rhagystafell, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ystafell) An antechamber.

Rhagystawd, s. f.—pl. rhagystodion (ystawd) A prior layer; a foremost layer.

Rhagystodawl, a. (rhagystawd) Belonging to a foremost layer.

Rhagystodi, v. a. (rhagystawd) To form a prior layer; to put a forward layer.

Rhagystodiad, s. m. (rhagystawd) A putting a previous layer; to put a foremost layer.

Rhagystum, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ystum) A prior bend or form.

Rhagystumliad, s. m. (rhagystum) A previously bending or forming.

Rhagystumliaw, v. a. (rhagystum) To mould into form beforehand.

Rhagystumiawl, a. (rhagystum) Belonging to previous formation.

Rhagystyr, s. m. (ystyr) A first idea; forethought.

Rhagystyriad, s. m. (rhagystyr) A considering beforehand, precogitation.

Rhagystyriaw, v. a. (rhagystyr) To precogitate.

Rhagystyriawl, a. (rhagystyr) Precogitating.

Rhagystyried, v. a. (rhagystyr) To precogitate.

Rhagystyriedig, a. (rhagystyriad) Being previously considered.

Rhagystyriwr, s. m.—pl. rhagystyriwyr (rhagystyr—gwr) One who precogitates.

Rhal, s. pl. aggr. (rha) Such as be separate or standing forward; a few, some. Dyro i mi rui, give some to me; rhyw rui, some ones, some persons.

*Pe caiff pawb a ffrwd,
Ni byddai hirachwng neb rhal.
If every body could obtain what he wished, not any would be long.
Rhan o bob addug, rhal 'u blyddion,
Weithiau rhal creili yn grybhorion,
Creili yn deynorion wyl uchel,
Rhal a lledd ol, creili a ddon'.
A little of every lore, some being pipers, now and then some others being crowders, others being harpers on the high festival, some go where he goes, others come.
L. G. Colld.*

Rhaiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhai) A radiation.

Rhaiadawl, a. (rhaiad) Radiating, radiant.

Rhaiadr, s. m.—pl. rheleidr (rhaiad) A spout or stream of falling water, a cataract.

*Rhad drwy'r mlaen rheleidr mollit.
There will pervade the rocks cataracts of lightning.
G. O. Owain.
A rhaiadu o win yn agwylch rhaiad
Rydyr, mywa aur a gwyr muner gwawdu.
And a cataract of wine surrounding chiefs of intrepidity, in the gold and glass of the exciter of enlogies. G. O. M. ab Dafydd.*

Rhaiadrawl, a. (rhaiadr) Tending to spout forward as a cataract.

Rhaiadriad, s. m. (rhaiadr) A spouting forward as a cataract.

Rhaiadru, v. s. (rhaiadr) To spout out, to flow or to stream in a cataract.

Rhaiadu, v. a. (rhaiad) To radiate, to gleam.

Rhaib, s. f.—pl. rheibiau (rha—ib) A seizing or catching in the clutches, a snatch; a greediness, or voracity; a bewitching. Rhaib yr engh, gwacw yr engh, newyn y pridd, a craving appetite sometimes attending the mortal turn of a disease.

Rhaid, s. m.—pl. rheidiau (rha—id) An impetus; need, necessity. Rheidiau, necessities.

*Geogorid Myrddin, curwyd yr rhaid,
Gwrth eo gwriad o fodd fu on haid.
The retinue of Myrddin, abounding with gold in security, the price of their feast of mood were their souls.
Ameth.*

*Uben nŷth chwyr ya sydd rhaid!
Och, Cynbailig, na beot wralg!
A leader, thou wilt not be called in the day of trial: Oh, Cynbailig, that thou wert not a woman!
Llywarch Hen.*

*Troi rhaid yn rhwym.
To make a virtue of necessity.
Adap.*

Rhaid, a. (rha—id) Needful, necessary. Rheidiai fyddai i ti gadw dy arian, more necessary would it be for thee to keep thy money; mas yn rhaid i agwy fod, it is necessary for that to be.

*Tri amser collyddyd; pan fo lawr, pan fo hardd, a phan fo mŷth.
The three times of an art: when it is proper, when it is well coming, and when it is necessary.
Dafydd.*

Rhaid, adv. (rha—id) It is necessary. Rhaid i mi fed yno, I must be there: A raid i fithen? most thou likewise? na raid, it is not necessary.

*Nid rhaid i ddodwydd oad ei oad.
The prudent has no occasion but to be born.
Adap.*

*Nid rhaid dodi clorch iau fwrwyl yr yfyl.
It is not necessary to put a ball round the neck of a fool.
Adap.*

*Nid rhaid dangosw dirlid i gwn.
It is not necessary to point the marchiness to the dog.
Adap.*

Rhaidd, s. f.—pl. rheiddiau (rha—idd) A ray; what is cast forward; spear. Rhaidd gyrrin, a shivered lance.

Rhaien, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhai) A ray, the ray-fish.

Rhai, s. f.—pl. rheillion (rha—ll) That divided, or parts off; that is divided; a rail; a paddle-staff, a paddle. Cad-rail, a war fence. There is a dike of this kind, still called the Cad Rail, crossing the south-east of Scotland, in a north-east direction, from the borders of Northumberland to Gala Shieles in Selkshire.

Rhain, s. pl. aggr. (rha—in) Lances, spears.

*Nid yfardd i neb ddwywa llyr med;
Cyd agwylch rhag gwyr rhain rhaiden.
Is it not fair prey for any man to take a bold cow; support each other against them with ready spears.
Yfardd.*

Rhain, a. (rha—in) Having a tendency to run forward or to pervade.

Rhaint, s. m. (rhain) That runs through.

Rhaith, s. f.—pl. rheithiau (rha—ith) That is straight forward, right, or just; that is set right; decision, verdict; right; law; a jury. Rhaith gwlad, the law or voice of the country.

*Rhaith gwlad yw ddu gwyr a deugawt o wyr dduw ddu i brown.
The jury of a country is the oath of fifty men, of whom the half hand under the king.
W. L. Llew.*

*Pen rhaith y Dew.
God is supreme arbiter.
Dr. J. Col.*

Rhal, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rha) A particular, a specific part; a characteristic. Dyn a rai rhyfedd wyd ti, thou art a person of an odd disposition. Sil.

*Hyd yr amser, yn mhob rhal,
Y pery'r diad crowsuol,
O ffrwyddu ac Brydain ber,
Yw dwy a hanner lloer.
The length of the time, in every particular, that the cruel vengeance shall continue, of years over Britain fraught with sorrow, are exactly two and a half.
H. William o Phawr Gwent.*

Rhabodd, s. m. (rhal) Particularity; characteristic.
Rhalad, s. m. (rhal) A characterizing.

Rhala, v. a. (rhal) To characterize; to form a trait of disposition.

Rham, s. m. (rha-am) A rise over, a reach over or beyond.

Rhamant, s. f.—pl. t. an (rham) A rising up, an extending over, a vaulting, or springing; an omen, sign, or token of future events; a figurative expression; a romance. a. Rising boldly.

Man's rhamant fy moliant man.

My genius is of a tendency to exalt. G. Ll. ab D. ab Eirian.

Gwio lli rhywais gwyddus rhamant.

Excellently have I combined highly-aspiring ideas to her. D. ab Edmund.

Rhamanta, v. a. (rhamant) To rise or extend over; to reach to a distance; to dive into futurity; to divine, to observe by omens; to romance; to allegorize.

*Oer fawr y'r barag, a'r la,
 A'r menyll, i rhamanta.*

The hearer and the ice and the smould'ring clouds are chilling for me to be feverish in speech. D. ab Gwilym.

Rhamantawl, a. (rhamant) Of a soaring tendency; hyperbolic; romantic.

Rhamantedd, s. m. (rhamant) A state of soaring; figurative language.

Rhamantiad, s. m. (rhamant) A soaring; the using figurative language; a romancing.

Rhamantu, v. a. (rhamant) To use high-flown language; to speak in a romantic style.

Rhamantus, a. (rhamant) Highly soaring; romantic; hyperbolic; portentous.

Rhamantwr, s. m.—pl. rhamantwyr (rhamant-gwr) One who speaks in a figurative style.

Rhamind, s. m. (rham) A rising over, a reaching over or beyond; a soaring.

Rhamp, s. m. (rham) A running or reaching out.

Rhamu, v. a. (rham) To rise over, to reach over or beyond; to soar, to vault.

Rhan, s. f.—pl. t. au (rha) A part, share, or portion; division. O ym rhan i, on my part; e ran and eili, because thou canst not.

Dryod pob samhwylt ei ran.

Every indiscretion spoils its part. Adage.

Dryod samhwylt ei ran.

The indiscreet doth mar his share. Adage.

Rhan, adv. (rha) On the part of, in respect, on account of; because. Rhan hyny, serch hyny, in respect of that.

Rhanadwy, a. (rhan) Capable of being shared.

Rhanawg, a. (rhan) Having a share, or participating; being divided, or parted. s. m. One who shares, a participator.

Rhanawl, a. (rhan) Sharing, parting, or dividing.

Rhanc, s. m. (rha-anc) Desire, craving, want; appetite; voracity. a. Content, satisfactory.

Dywed y cawr, da yw y gwath; rhanc bodd yw genyf.

The giant said, the deed is good; it is content of mind to me. H. Culwch—Mabynogion.

Rhanc fu gan bawb onadnyd kyngbor Gwrlais.

Satisfactory to all of them was the advice of Gwrlais. Bruni y Brynodd.

A maint rheag y grafneg grin.

With all the groods of the nigard hand. D. ab Gwilym, i'r fren.

Rhancawl, a. (rhanc) Craving, or wanting.

Rhancbodd, s. m. (rhanc-bodd) Content, satisfaction, pleasure.

O arwyddus ddolcous, pa byneg pw ydy, ni adolygaf i ti yn ydyf, os gelyf fod y rhancbodd geuyd, fy helpu allan o'r gorw bawg ben!

Oh, beneficent lady, whosoever thou art, I humbly intrust thee, if thou canst be a pleasure to thee, to help me out of this prison enough! Marchion Craydred.

Rhancboddawl, a. (rhancbodd) Tending to give contentment or pleasure; satisfactory.

Rhancboddliad, s. m. (rhancbodd) A yielding satisfaction of mind.

Rhancboddiaeth, s. m. (rhancbodd) Satisfaction of mind; enjoyment, pleasure.

Yr holl rhancboddiaeth hyny, myf a'i parodaf i ti, a mfoedd rhagor hefyd, os yr arwyddus Gwrlais.

The whole of that enjoyment, I will prepare it for thee, and thou shalt beside likewise, said the lady Fruky. Marchion Craydred.

Rhancboddliaw, v. a. (rhancbodd) To yield satisfaction of mind or contentment; to please.

Rhanciad, s. m. (rhanc) A craving, a wanting.

Rhancu, v. a. (rhanc) To crave, or to want.

Rhandir, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (rhan-tir) A portion of land; an inheritance; a shareland; a certain quantity of land.

*Cabba dy fro dda i'n gwyd ni,
 A'th rhandir, a thro yndi.*

Run down thy good country in our presence, and thy inheritance, and turn thyself therein. L. G. Caid.

Pedair rhandir ya mhob gafael; pedair gafael ya mhob tref.

Four sharelands in every townement: four townements in every hamlet. Welsh Laws.

Rhandwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhan—twy) A dividend, a portion, or allotment.

Rhandy, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhan—ty) A house-room, an apartment where a guest dwells.

Rhanedig, a. (rhan) Shared, parted, divided.

Rhanedigaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhanedig) Distribution, the act of sharing or dividing.

Rhanedigaethawl, a. (rhanedigaeth) Distributive.

Rhanedigawl, a. (rhanedig) Distributive.

Rhanodd, s. m. (rhan) The state of participating.

Ni'm gwneid heb ranodd Moll'th drwgaredd.

It will not make me without a share, to praise thy mercy. Telfair, Armes Dydd Brawd.

Rhangymerawl, a. (rhan—cymerawl) Participial.
Rhangymeriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhan—cymeriad) A participle.

Rhangymeriadawl, a. (rhangymeriad) Participial.

Rhangymeryd, v. a. (rhan—cymeryd) To take in part, to take in allotment.

Rhaniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhan) A parting, sharing, or dividing; partition, distribution.

Rhaniator, ger. (raniad) In dividing.

Rhaniedydd, a. m.—pl. t. ion (raniad) A divisor.

Rhanitor, sup. (rhan) To be sharing.

Rhant, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhan) That separates.

Rhanu, v. a. (rhan) To part, to share, to divide, to distribute; to fix an allowance. Dylid rhannu arno, he ought to be allowedance.

Nu chryned llaw a rannu i raddus.

May the hand not tremble that distributes to the needy. Adage.

*Daw a ranodd
 Nef a guffod.*

God did dispense, heaven he did obtain. Adage.

Dyn a ran da yw ei ruid;

Daw a ran da'r eusid.

Man distributes a benefit according to his want; God distributes a benefit to the soul. Guto y Glyn.

Rhanwr, s. m.—pl. rhanwyr (rhan—gwr) A sharer, a distributor, an allotter.

Lloial rhan rhan rhanwr.

The trust share the share of a sharer. Adage.

Rhang, s. f. (rha—ang) An over content.

Rhangawl, a. (rhang) Tending to fulfil.

Rhangiad, s. m. (rhang) A fulfilling, a pleasing.

Rhangu, v. a. (rhang) To render replete; to fulfil; to satisfy, to render content.

Y clyddi a ddarfa ei writh; a'i roddi a orag Cal ya llaw Wrach glaw, y maelpl i gylrch a rasgal ei fodd.

The sword, you put in order; and Cal gave it into the hand of Gwrach the Old, as if it were to see if it would answer his purpose. M. Cuthbach—Mabinogion.

Can rhangwedd bodi yr Arglwydd ei bohl dda ddwyrd.

For the will of the Lord was fulfilled by his good and prudent people. D. Dafydd o Hiraclaw.

Rhangus, a. (rhang) Tending to fulfil.

Rhangwr, s. m.—pl. rhangwyr (rhang—gwr) One who makes over-full; a fulfiller.

Rhasg, s. f. (rhy—ag) That is forcibly shaved off.

Rhasgl, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhasg) A slicer; a draw-knife, a tool used by carpenters.

Rhasgliad, s. m. (rhasgl) A slicing, a paring.

Rhasgliaw, v. a. (rhasgl) To cut with a slicer.

Rhasgliwr, s. m.—pl. rhasgliwyr (rhasgl—gwr) One who slices.

Rhath, s. m.—pl. t. au (rha—ath) A smooth eminence, mound, or hill.

*Y fedwen harid—a ddeuth o'r rhath,
Nid oes ei bath ya bod.*

The fair brook, which came from the hill, its tide doth not exist. Gr. Morgy.

Rhathawl, a. (rath) Stripping; rubbing.

Rhathedig, a. (rath) Stripped, rubbed, rasped.

Rhathell, s. f.—pl. t. au (rath) A rasp.

Rhathelliad, s. m. (rathell) A rasping, a grating.

Rhathellu, v. a. (rathell) To rasp, to grate.

Rhathiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rath) A making bare or plain; a stripping, a rubbing off.

Rhathu, v. a. (rath) To make clear, bare, plain, or smooth; to rub off, to rub; to strip; to rasp, to grate. Rhathu plas, to strip feathers off; rhathu dail, to strip off leaves; rhathu croen, to strip off a skin. Sil.

Rhathu y croen oddiar gefn a'i dyco.

To strip the skin from the back of him that bears it. Adage.

Rhathwr, s. m.—pl. rhathwyr (rath—gwr) One who makes bare, rubs, or strips off.

Rhan, s. f.—pl. rheuoedd (rha) A band, a chain.

Cethern gaeth-ran, an infernal crew confined in chains.

Rhaw, s. f.—pl. t. tan (rhe) That collects together; a shovel. Rhaw dyowarch, a paring shovel; rhaw fawn, a peat cutter.

Rhawaid, s. f.—pl. rhaweidiau (rhaw) A shovel-full; as much as a spade will hold.

Rhawbal, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhaw—pal) A kind of spade made all of one piece of wood, having the head rounded and edged with iron.

Rhawbalar, s. f. (rhawbal) A delving spade.

Rhawch, s. m. (rha—wch) That is imminent; that is extreme or urgent.

*—Teyrnfaedd, neu gwiddewch,
Periglew glew a glywawch,
Fair Prydain, pryd nad oedd rawch.*

Royal bards, do you not know; you heard of extreme action administered to a hero, the chief of Britain, when it was not accomplishable. Li. P. Moch, m. G. ab C. ab Owain.

Rhawd, s. f.—pl. rhodion (rha—wd) A way, course, or race; a rout. Rhawd o goed, a float or raft of trees; rhawd o foch, a drove of pigs.

*Can orlod cymmod o'm camweddas,
Cyn wyf rawd beddraw ymlith beddas,
Cyn dyfod chwerau rhyfod chwedlas,
Cyn adiant puchiant pechodas,
Daw s'm gad cariad y mywa ceruas sof;
Daw a glyw fy lliet yn llus frydas.*

By obtaining reconciliation for my iniquities, ere I am resorting the earthly course amongst the graves, ere the tide of bitter tales occur, ere the return of remorse for sins, may God in his love grant me the mansions of heaven; God will hear my voice for my lukewarm thoughts. Eitien ab Gwackmari.

Rhawdd, s. f. dim. (rhawd) A footstep.

Rhawdd, s. m. (rha—wdd) That is clear or open.

Rhawd, s. m. (rhaw) That is clustered.

Rhawffon, s. f.—pl. rhawffyn (rhaw—ffon) A shovel-handle.

Rhawg, adv. (yrhawg) For a long while.

*Rhawgdyd fydd rhawg, dyddwyr llo,
Ai oafio hi mawr cyfno.*

At liberty for a long while, a paragon's good, will be in the oblique in comparison. I. p. R. ab I. Llwyd, 5 Ofrwm.

*Fy wyneb, am ddyd farwalli,
Ni bydd y rhawg heb ddyd halli.*

My face, on account of the fair one with thee here, it will not be for a long time without salt tears. Bede Brynallu.

Rhawiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhaw) A shovelling.

Rhawiw, v. a. (rhaw) To throw with a shovel.

Rhawiw, s. m. (rhaw—gwr) A shoveller.

Rhawlech, s. f.—pl. t. i (chaw—llech) A slice, or shovel.

Rhawn, s. m. aggr. (rhy—awn) The long or coarse hair of beasts, the hair of a horse's tail.

Telyn rawn, a harp string with hair; rhaf rawn, a hair rope; certhraen rawn, a hair cloth; rhawn a bogel, a line and plummet; rhawn gy ebawl, colts' tail, stonewort; rhawn y gaeaf, mare's tail; rhawn y march, horse-tail.

Rhawnawg, a. (rhawn) Having long hair.

Rhawngoch, a. (rhawn—coch) Having red hair.

Y rhawngoch, y rhonellgock, the redstart.

Rhawnt, v. n. (rhawn) To grow into long hair.

Rhawriad, s. m. (rhawn) A growing of long hair.

Rhawnt, s. m. (rhawn) Vigour, spirit, vivacity.

Yn llawen zhall, yn llawn rhawnt.

Exuberantly merry, full of spirit. D. ab Gwilym.

Rhawryn, s. m. dim. (rhawn) A coarse hair.

Rhawol, s. m. (rhaw) A cluster, or a bunch.

Rhawr, s. f.—pl. rhawra (gawr) A roar, as of the sea or a cataraet.

Rhawter, s. f. (rhawd) A multitude in motion.

Rhawtiad, s. m. (rhawd) A hurrying onward.

Rhawtiaw, v. a. (rhawd) To proceed onward in a hurrying manner; to rout.

Rhawtiawl, a. (rhawd) Hurrying; routing.

Rhawtiwr, s. m.—pl. rhawtiwyr (rhawd—gwr) One who hurries forward.

Rhawth, s. m. (rha—wth) Greediness. a. Greedy

Yr oedd efe yn bwya yn rhawth rhag malat ei awryn.

He was eating greedily from the greatness of his hunger. Helen Gervais.

RHE, s. f. r.—pl. t. on: A swift motion, a race. a. Fleet, speedy; active.

A'm rhoddes melch rhe, Rhewyd a danu,

He bestowed on me fleet steeds, neighing under me. Taliesin.

Oedd ro raddant dan ffordwyr Gervais, Gervaision.

There were swift runners under the thigh of Gervais, with long shanks. Eitien ab Gwackmari.

Byddai re y rhawthra i wegw.

I was active in thrusting a spear. Llywarch Hen.

Rhead, s. f. (rhe) A running, a currency.

Rheadawl, a. (rhead) Running, current.

Rheadu, v. a. (rhead) To cause a running.

Rhean, s. f. (rhe) That runs; a streamlet.

Rheadw, s. f. (rhe) The act or faculty of running.

Rheadwr, s. m.—pl. rheodron (rheadw) That performs a race or course.

Yn myw Rheu rheadwr dybedd.

In the lifetime of Rheu the runner of a course of pence.

Rheadwl, a. (rhe) Running, or current.

Rheb, s. m. (rhe—eb) A run by, a going off.

Rhebydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rheb) That takes away or destroys; a destroyer, a demolisher.

*Dynoddd gwynn gwyn Cyngorwyr Fydd
Mach a hysgwr, rhedgwr a hysgwr.*

The wags are about the white Cyngorwyr Mountain of Mer-va Rhedol, the destruction of Rhedgwr.

Ni thrys rhydd, hael rhydd, rhedaw.

Warning is of no avail against him, the generous spoiler.
Llywarch Hen.

Gwaind rheg Owain Gwynedd
Ac o de Rhedol rhydd y ngraid.

A man before Owain the Angles meet their fate, and by the side of the Rhedol the destroyer strayed in secret. Gwaind.

Rhecgwd, s. m.—pl. rhecodan (rheg) That is hackneyed or over-used.

Rheciad, s. m. (rheg) A hackneying, or abusing.

Rheclain, v. a. (rheg) To make frequent use of a thing, to overwork.

Rheclaw, v. a. (rheg) To use much, to hackney.

Rheclwr, s. m. (rheg—gwr) A hackneyer.

Rhech, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhy—ech) A forcible breaking out; a report; a fart.

Rhechain, v. a. (rhech) To make report; to fart.

Rhechawl, a. (rhech) Breaking wind.

Rhechdor, s. m.—pl. rhechdyr (rhech—dyr) That forcibly breaks out or ravages.

Trachaf, cwmwl cwmwl gwr y fwrn,
Rheddwynn en heryr;

Cychod mawr, rheddyr,
Cyth ly rhydd yn ei rhydd.

I will record, I will celebrate a hundred thousand spring man, whose eagle freely court; glittering mawr, rheddwynn the stars outnumbering surround my chief in his raptures.

Ll. P. Mech, i L. ab Iormach.

Gwrwl hawl hwygyst hyst hirlidwg,
A'i rhydd, a'i wyl, wyl wredolwg.

A manly pursuit they followed through a long wretched course;
his raptures with his men they were human.
Llywarch Hen, i L. ab G. ab Medwg.

Rhechdyr Croesorwllt crydant an ddraig.

The demolishers of Croesorwllt crydant an ddraig round the chief.
Ll. P. Mech.

Rhechiad, s. m. (rhech) A breaking wind.

Rhechlyd, a. (rhech) Apt to be breaking wind.

Rhechwr, s. m.—pl. rhechwyr (rhech—gwr) One who breaks wind.

Rhed, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhe—ed) A course, a race.

Rhedady, a. (rhech) Capable of running.

Rhedain, v. a. (rhed) To run continually.

Rhedain, a. (rhed) Running; fleet, swift.

Rhedain gorwydd, rhydd pob trach.

Swift the steed, open every strand. Llywarch Hen.

Rhedant, s. m.—pl. rhedaint (rhed) A courser.

Bid fuan redaint,

Be swift the racers. Llywarch Hen.

Ogylt re redaint dan forddwyd Gwalp.

There were fleet runners under the thigh of Gwalp.
Llywarch Hen.

Rhedator, ger. (rhed) In running, in coursing.

Rhedawl, a. (rhed) Current; running, racing.

Rhedofion, wanderers, or strayers.

Rhedawr, s. m.—pl. rhedorion (rhed) A runner.

Rhededig, a. (rhed) Being made to run.

Rhedeg, s. m. (rhed) A course, a run, a race.
a. Running.

Nid ar reddeg y mae arddig.

Not upon the race is ploughing to be done. Adagr.

Rhedeg, v. a. (rhed) To perform a course, to run; to race, to run a race.

Rhedegai, s. c. (rhedeg) One that runs, a racer.

Rhedegain, v. a. (rhedeg) To run continually.

Rhedegal, s. m. (rhedeg) Running matter. Rhedegal y derw, rhedegawg y derw, tree lichen.

Rhedegawl, s. m. (rhedeg) The act of running.

Rhedegawg, a. (rhedeg—running, current, Rhedegawg y derw, tree lichen, or lichenwort.

Rhedegdwys, a. (rhedeg—twys) Being led on a running pace.

Rhedegfa, s. f.—pl. rhedegfydd (rhedeg) A place of running, a course. Haul yn ei rhedegfa, the sun in his course.

Rhedegfan, s. f. (rhedeg—man) A race-course.

Rhedegfarch, s. m.—pl. rhedegfarch (rhedeg—march) A running horse.

Rhedegfrys, a. (rhedeg—brys) Of quick haste.

Rhedegiad, s. m. (rhedeg) A running, a racing.

Rhedegwr, s. m.—pl. rhedegwyr (rhedeg—gwr)
A man who runs, a runner.

Rhedegydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhedeg) A runner.

Rhedfa, s. f.—pl. rhedfeydd (rhed) A course.

Rhedfawr, a. (rhed) Apt to run much.

Rhedfawr gorwyddwr ar derw.

Steeds we apt to run about much in hot weather. Tytlle.

Rhedgun, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhed—gun) A wedge.

Rhediad, s. m. (rhed) A running; a currency.

Dyn rhyddwr yn dwysa rhedid
Gormawr ar lawer y wind.

An important fellow taking a range of intrusion on the shirt of the country. Rhed. ab. D. Llywarch, i Rhedid.

Rhedjannawl, a. (rhediant) Current, running.

Rhedjannu, v. a. (rhediant) To give currency.

Rhediant, s. m. (rhed) A currency, a course.

Rhediantydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhediant) A racer.

Rheditor, sup. (rhed) To be running.

Rhedle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhed—lle) A place for running, a course.

Ger llaw gwr yn gwrdd Rhedle
Rhedle y dyddol Rhedlewn—Rhodalia.

By the purple borders that were replete, the course of grateful waters, I did range. Dr. S. Crist.

Rhednwyf, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhed—nwyf) A smuggled commodity.

Rhedu, v. a. (rhed) To run, to race, to course.

Nid a red a gelf y bodd.

It will not be him that runs who will get the benefit. Adagr.

I bant y rhed y dwf.

The water will run to the hollow. Adagr.

Rhedus, a. (rhed) Apt to run about, straying.

Calmag beirdd byd bechod rheduson.

The portion of the birds of the world is the life of wanderers.
Cynddole.

Rhedusaw, v. a. (rhedus) To render straying; to become vagrant; to be of strolling habit.

Rhedusiad, s. m.—pl. rhedusiad (rhedus) A wanderer, a strayer, or a stroller.

Rhedwas, s. m.—pl. rhedweision (rhed—gwas) A running-footman.

Rhedwell, s. f.—pl. t. on (rhed—gwell) An artery

Rhedwelliawg, a. (rhedwell) Having arteries.

Rhedwelliawl, a. (rhedwell) Arterial.

Rhedwr, s. m.—pl. rhedwyr (rhed—gwr) A man who runs; a runner.

Rhedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhed) A runner.

Rhedyd, s. pl. aggr. (rhed) Fern. *Rhedyd y cad-naw, marchredyn gwyrw, male fern; rhedyd benyw, female shield-fern; rhedyd y derw, or llawredynen, and rhedyd y fagwyr, common polypody; rhedyd y clogwyn, or rhedyd y graig, forked spleenwort; rhedyd cyfrdwy, osmund royal; rhedyd cryraid, or adain redyn, brakes;
rhedyd gwib, rough spleenwort; rhedyd mair,*

beath shield-fern: rhedyn gogofus, common scaly spleenwort; marckredyn, wall-fern.

Byddai well gwyf fyw ar y mynydd, a bwyta gwralld rhedyn nos gmoestng llydnt.
I would rather live on the mountain, and eat the roots of fern, than submit to them. Adapt.

Rhedyna, v. a. (rhedyn) To gather fern.
Rhedynach, s. m. dim. (rhedyn) Filmy leaved fern.
Rhedynaid, a. (rhedyn) Of the nature of fern.
Rhedynawg, a. (rhedyn) Abounding with fern.
s. f. A place where fern grows.
Rhedynidir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhedyn—thr) Fern land; or land overgrown with fern.
Rhedyneg, s. f. (rhedyn) A fern brake.
Rhedynen, s. f. dim. (rhedyn) A single fern.
Rhedyniach, s. pl. dim. (rhedyn) Small fern.
Rhedynllwyn, s. m. (rhedyn—llwyn) A fern brake.

Ydd wyf yn debyg i'w ddwyn i danfyrth mewn rhedynllwyn.
Carrying that round me, I am like a blade in a fern-brake.
I. Du y Blysg i'r Gwn Coch.

Rhedynos, s. pl. dim. (rhedyn) A fern-brake.

Ymchwyliat ar fo, gan ymddirgola ac ymadduall yn arogoftas, a llynyas, a rhedynnydd, ac ollydd, a ddwyas, a choro-ydd, a dryswch, a cherys, ac yn mhob rhyw leocddi crall.

The returned on retreat, with secreting themselves and hiding themselves in caves, and groves, and fern-brakes, and cliffs, and steep, and bogs, and wilds, and stones, and in every other place of the kind. Buch. G. ab Cynon.

Rhedd, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhy—edd) A joint.
Rheddawl, a. (rhedd) Being separated or jointed.
Rheddedig, a. (rhedd) Being separate or jointed.
Rheddiad, s. m. (rhedd) A jointing; articulation.
Rhedda, v. a. (rhedd) To open by a joint.
Rheen, s. m. (rhe—en) A pervading principle; an epithet for the supreme being; the Lord.

Awch rhoddef arwdd orwedd gyffes:
With awch bodd awch bod yn fawr;
With awch bryd awch bruiat o feigou.

To you I dedicate an oration of ingenious confidence: To you your Lord has granted with contentment of mind that you should be glad; according to your desire your privilege from Meigou.
Cynidrith, Gwel. Fawys.

Rhef, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhe—ef) That is collected together, or thick; a bundle. a. Banded; thick. Cyfrifed ag y myne, as thick as he pleases.

Ys dir llydd y llyda wrth rufed y troed.

It is that the blade will cut from the handle being so thick. Adapt.

Rhefawg, a. (rhef) Binding or encompassing.
s. f. That binds or contains; a binder, a bandage.
Nyddu potair guilem, a gwnesur potair rhefawg i rwyneuw Ollier a corygnt.

The twisting of four rods, and making four bandages to bind Ollier was what they did. H. Cor. Meg.—Mabingion.

Rhefawl, a. (rhef) Thickening, aggregating.
Rhefder, s. m. (rhef) Bigness about, thickness.
Rhefdra, s. m. (rhef) Thickness, an aggregate.
Rhefdd, s. m. (rhef) Thickness.
Rhefiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhef) A thickening.
Rhefiannawl, a. (rhefiant) Of a tendency to thicken in compass.
Rhefiannu, v. a. (rhefiant) To render thick in compass.
Rhefiannus, a. (rhefiant) Tending to render or to become thick round.
Rhefiant, s. m. (rhef) Thickness or bigness.
Rhefi, s. m. (rhef) That tends to grow thick.
Rhefiawg, a. (rhefi) Being grown thick or full; blubbering.
Rhefin, v. a. (rhefi) To grow thick or blubbering.

Rhefr, s. f.—pl. rhefras (rhef) The gut of the fundament, the anus. Rhefr medol, the tent of a company of reapers.

Rhefrawg, a. (rhefr) Having a large fundament.
Rhefrawl, a. (rhefr) Belonging to the anus.
Rhefrwrth, a. (rhefr—rwrth) Loose in the anus.
Rhefrwysu, s. m. (rhefr—rhwym) Costiveness.
Rhefrwymaw, v. a. (rhefrwym) To render costive; to become costive.
Rhefrwymawl, a. (rhefrwym) Costive.
Rhefrwymiad, s. m. (rhefrwym) A rendering costive; a becoming costive.
Rhefrwymus, a. (rhefrwym) Being costive.
Rhefu, v. a. (rhef) To thicken in compass.
Rheffyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (rhaff) A small rope.
Rheffynawl, a. (rheffyn) Relating to cording.
Rheffyniad, s. m. (rheffyn) A cording, a tying with a rope.

Rheffynu, v. a. (rheffyn) To tie with a rope.
Rheffynwr, s. m.—pl. rheffynwyr (rheffyn—gwr) A corder; one who uses a rope.

Rheg, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhe—eg) A sending out, or utterance; a present, a gift; a giving up, or consigning; a ban, a curse, or imprecation.

—Cursf canu canred,
Can s'm rheddes fy rheon rug adduned.

I love to sing of the redemption, as thus my God has conferred a longed-for gift. Llywelyn Fardd.

Mawr fyddai o'r clofyd hwn, a gwrnall a fyst ddihas; a rheg dofydd ynt y gwralldd wethion.

I shall be dead of this disease, and then another wife will then take; and the blessing of the Lord are the women now. H. Culbach—Mabingion.

Nid aderyth rheg ni haddod.

A curse that is not deserved will do no harm. Adapt.

Rhegdwy, a. (rheg) Capable of being given.
Rhegain, v. a. (rheg) To be sending out a murmuring noise; to mutter, to whisper.

Ni ddaw bennat lwyd-halet loss
i regain llyth i Rhegion.

Age oppressed with heavy influence will never come to Rhegion to make a muttering. Gwynn Wlliam.

Rhegawl, a. (rheg) Consigning, giving; caring.
Rheged, s. f. (rheg) Liberality, or bounty.

Dyw iau—dallwyd yn olwydd
Gwir wared, i'r rheged rhegwydd,
Gwawr eurgled, eis gwir arghwydd.

On Thursday was apprehended suddenly the true reason, the coverage of iron bounty, a glorious light, our Iron Lord.
Grafudd ab yr Fud Coch.

Rhegedig, a. (rheg) Consigned, presented, curved.
Rhegedd, s. m. (rheg) The state of being given up; a cursed state.

Rhegen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. od (rheg) A name for some birds of a screaming note. Rhegen y pl.
rhegen y rhyck, soffler, the crex, dakerbes, or quail; rhegen y dafur, a water-ousel.

Ni thaw mwy no rhegen yn y rhyck.

He will not be silent more than the quail in the furrow. Adapt.

Rhegi, v. a. (rheg) To consign, to give up; to present; to curse, to imprecate.

Rhegiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rheg) A consigning, a giving up; a presenting; a cursing.

Rheglyd, a. (rheg) Apt to curse, cursing.
Rhegofydd, s. m. (rheg—ofydd) The shedder of gifts.

Rhegn, v. a. (rheg) To consign; to give; to present; to curse, to imprecate.

Rhegwr, s. m.—pl. rhegwyr (rheg—gwr) One who utters, gives, or consigns; a curser.

Rhegydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rheg) One who consigns or gives up; a presenter; a curser.

Rheind, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhaf) A radiating.
Rheinn, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhaf) A streak. Rheinn
lws, a blue streak or weal.
Rheinnawg, a. (rheinn) Having streaks or weals.
Rheinnawli, a. (rheinn) Tending to streak.
Rheinnau, v. a. (rheinn) To streak, or to stripe.
Rheinnw, v. a. (rhaf) To radiate; to gleam.
Rheinnwg, a. (rhaf) Abounding with radiation.

*Dylan breudd Lloegr yn llyddawg;
 Cyd daeth of mid uch yn warthegwg;
 Rh yn Eryri yn rheinnwg.*

The king of England came with a numerous host; though he came he did not return with spoil: We were gleaming in Eryri.
Melior.

Rheiwli, a. (rhaf) Darting, gleaming, shooting.
Rheiwyr, s. m. (rhaf) That darts or that gleams.

*Cras cyrchyst, cyrnyllast reiwyr,
 Yn cyman mai tawr twrf anawr.*

Blood they sought, the gleamers assembled, tumultuous like thunder the din of battle.

Rheibes, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhaib) A witch.
Rheibiad, s. m. (rhaib) An overpowering; a forcing from; a fascination, a bewitching.
Rheibiadaeth, s. m. (rheibiad) Witchery.
Rheibiadu, v. a. (rheibiad) To overcome by invincible power; to fascinate.
Rheibiadu, a. (rheibiad) Fascinating, bewitching Rheibiadwy, a. (rheibiad) Capable of being overcome or fascinated.
Rheibineth, s. m. (rhaib) Rapacity; witchery.
Rheibiannawli, a. (rheibiant) Fascinating.
Rheibiannau, v. a. (rheibiant) To fascinate.
Rheibiannus, a. (rheibiant) Fascinating.
Rheibiant, s. m. (rhaib) A forcibly possessing;
 fascination; a bewitching.
Rheibiator, ger. (rheibiad) In fascinating.
Rheibiaw, v. a. (rhaib) To snatch by force; to captivate, to fascinate, to bewitch.
Rheibiawg, a. (rhaib) Having a power; rapacious,
 fascinating, bewitching.
Rheibiawl, a. (rhaib) Forcing, overpowering;
 fascinating, bewitching.
Rheibiedig, a. (rheibiad) Being taken by force;
 fascinated, bewitched.
Rheibiedigeth, s. m. (rheibiedig) Fascination.
Rheibiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rheibiad) One who forcibly captivates, a fascinator.
Rheibioldeb, s. m. (rheibiawl) The state of being captivated or fascinated.
Rheibioli, v. a. (rheibiawl) To render fascinating.
Rheibitor, sup. (rhaib) To be captivating.
Rheibiwr, s. m.—pl. rheibwyr (rhaib—gwr) A captivator, a fascinator.
Rheibog, s. f. (rhaib) The power of digestion.

A rheib rheibog oeth of chyllia'n tlawr.

And losing a power of digestion her stomach became as ashes.
Medwyn Dwygraig.

Rheibus, a. (rhaib) Rapacious; bewitching.

*Rheibwyr on yn holl wlad Gwynedd
 Yn'r on ddrwyddawg a wyl llofr.*

The most rapacious one in the whole country of Wales is the one with two legs who is worst to harangue.
Adage.

Rheibusaw, v. a. (rheibus) To become rapacious.
Rheibuswydd, s. m. (rheibus) Rapaciousness.
Rheidedd, s. m. (rhaid) Necessity, or want.

*Tori newyn tlawd bob tro,
 A cyched liw be rhadedd.*

Bringing the hunger of the poor at all times, and the want of drink where necessity exists.
Sienc. S. Hywel.

Rheidgawd, s. m. (rhaid—gawd) A natural or habitual need.

*Idi gwis gaw, of gawd gawd—
 Rhid gawd rhaidgawd rhaidgawd.*

It is no false word, he is the most virtuous person, for suffering the habitual need of necessities often.
Cynddda, i O. Gwynedd.

Rheidid, s. m. (rhaid) A necessitating.
Rheididannawli, a. (rheidiant) Necessitating.
Rheididannau, v. a. (rheidiant) To necessitate.
Rheidiant, s. m. (rhaid) Necessity, or need.
Rheidiau, v. a. (rhaid) To necessitate, to need.
Rheidiau, a. (rhaid) Necessitous, necessary.
Rheidiau, a. (rhaid) Necessary, needful.
Rheididoldeb, s. m. (rheidiau) Necessariness.
Rheididoldeb, s. m. (rheidiau) Necessariness.

Tri chyfystyr deudiddeb; rheididoldeb, moduriddeb, a baididoldeb.

The three considerations of wisdom; necessity, means, and benefit.
Craig Ddwrth.

Rheididoldeb, s. m. (rheidiau) Necessariness.
Rheididoldeb, s. m. (rheidiau) Requisition.
Rheididoli, v. a. (rheidiau) To render necessary.
Rheididolrwydd, s. m. (rheidiau) Necessariness.
Rheididolrwydd, s. m. (rhaid) Necessity, or need.
Rheidus, a. (rhaid) Necessitous, needy. Rheid- usion, needy ones, beggars.

Gwedi dawed Bratir Hir i berth Hwamwyl i dir, of a symoral wlad rhaidus anddano, ac yn rhai anghwamwyl herdded—ac yn gwynwyl a rheidusion a chraig, y rhai a oeddynt yn arwain oedion yn mhorth llys y brenin.

After the coming of Bratir to the port of Hwamwyl to land, he put on a bigger garb, and under the appearance of want he proceeded, and mixed with necessitous ones, the which were waiting for alms in the gate of the king's palace.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Rheidusaid, a. (rheidus) Somewhat needy.
Rheidusaw, v. a. (rheidus) To become necessitous.
Rheidusydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rheidus—dyn) A necessitous person.
Rheidusedd, s. m. (rheidus) Neediness, poverty.
Rheidusni, s. m. (rheidus) Neediness, poverty.
Rheidusarwydd, s. m. (rheidus) Necessitousness.
Rheidusyn, s. m. dim. (rheidus) A pauper.
Rheidw, s. m. (rhaid) A necessary thing.
Rheidwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhaid) A voyage.

*Grefodd a cychwys of long ac a ymchweith o'i raddwy byd yn
 Aber Menai.*

Grefodd succeeded his ship and returned from his expedition unto Aber Menai.
Sienc. Gr. of Gwynedd.

Rheidid, s. m. (rheidid) A casting rays.
Rheididaw, v. a. (rheidid) To beam, to cast rays;
 to lance, or to cast a lance.

Ar bob rhai rheidid yn eir-rheididawg.

Upon all he would beam with golden beams.
Melior.

Rheididawd, s. m. (rheidid) A radiation; a lancing.
Rheididawg, a. (rheidid) Having rays; pervading, apt to cast forward; bearing a lance.

Rheididawg schenawg ar ff.

The necessitous on flight is violently impelled.
Adage.

*Rheidid a'm rhodder Hywel
 Rheididawg, feniawg, feniawg all;
 Cefais gan ddruth orddodol
 Tawr leg Talgarth yn agwathal.*

Freely did Hywel bestow on me a scattering, sleek, and spotted beam; obtained as a choice contribution the fair ball of Talgarth in the year.
Cynddda, i H. ab Ieuaf.

Rheididawli, a. (rheidid) Radiating; lancing.
Rheididawr, s. m. (rheidid) That beams; lancer.
Rheidid, a. (rheidid) Tending to radiate or to dart; pervading; profuse.

*Daw Dwydd dymrwyl rheidid awen ber,
 Rhaf o bair Cyddaw.*

God the supreme ruler on me bestows the ready melodious muse, as if from the caudex of Cyddaw.
L. P. Moch.

Rheididlym, a. (rheidid—lym) Sharp-lanced.
Rheididrudd, a. (rheidid—rhudd) Ruddy-lanced.

Rheiddan, s. m. (rhaidd) One who darts or throws forward; a profuse one, one who thrusts.

Dr. H.

O Rhagwyr Gwynedd, gwinfaeth reiddan.

They desert to their Rhagwyr Gwynedd, a wine-faeth profuse one.

Rheiddus, a. (rhaidd) Radiating, darting; pervasive; profuse, or lavish.

Rheiddwar, a. (rhaidd—gwar) Mildly profuse.

Rheiddym, s. m. dim. (rhaidd) A dart, or glance.

Rheiniad, s. m.—pl. rheiniad (rhain) A lancing.

Did ian Rhain; bid diwath ariad;

Did reined yn nghyfarth;

Did wring dargw a mynydd writh.

Let the camp be green; let the peacemaker be void of reproach; be there a spearing in the dells; be the bad woman bearing frequent shame.

Llywarch Hen.

Rheiniaw, v. a. (rhain) To use a lance, to lance.

Rheiniawg, a. (rhain) Having a lance, lance-bearing. a. m. A spear-bearer.

He gylid wno a gylig;

He a cuppen chyn Rhainig;

Egydd gylid dda gwarwyr Ddaig.

For what of wine I from a cup have drunk, he would rush forth against the spear-bearer: the glances of the spear of Ddaig were in the wings of the morning.

Llywarch Hen.

Rheiniawl, a. (rhain) Lancing, or spearing.

Rheiniwr, s. m.—pl. rheiniwyr (rhain—gwr) A lancer; one who bears a lance.

Rheinydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhain) A lancer.

Rheithawr, s. m.—pl. rheithorion (rhaith) Rector

Rheitheg, s. f. (rhaith) Canon of speech.

Rheithfawr, a. (rhaith) Of great rectitude.

Rheithfawrion, severely just ones.

Urdded red rheithfawr, gwawr gwar.

Thy Supreme Lord strictly just, high benign.

Gyneddon.

Rheithiad, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhaith) The act of setting right; regulation.

Ni ddylai fod gair yn anghar Gymrueg, ac y wrthwyneb i reithiad, ac lawdwyb, ac uniaid, ac uniaid.

There should not be a word of impure Welsh; that is, contrary to regulation, and just sense, and nature, and intention.

Llywelyn o Langwrydd.

Rheithiadawl, a. (rheithiad) Canonical.

Rheithiadu, v. a. (rheithiad) To establish a principle of right; to fix a canon or rule.

Rheithiadur, s. m.—pl. t. on (rheithiad) A principle of regulation, a canon.

Rheithiadus, a. (rheithiad) Canonical, regular.

Rheithiaw, v. a. (rhaith) To set right, to establish as law; to appoint a jury.

Rheithlawg, a. (rhaith) Having an established rule, law, or canon; having a jury.

Rheithlawi, a. (rhaith) Established as a law.

Rheithlawr, s. m. (rhaith) A right principle.

Rheithliol, v. a. (rheithlawi) To render canonical

Rheithloreg, s. f. (rheithlawr) Rhetoric.

Rheithiwr, s. m. (rhaith) One who sets right, one who gives effect to law; one sworn to do right; a jurymen, a juror.

Llew rheithiwr yw bod yn debydd gantio fod yn wir yr hyn a dygso.

The oath of a juror implies that what he swears appears most likely to him to be true.

Welsh Laws.

Rheithlen, s. m. (rhaith—llen) The light of righteousness, the luminary of justice.

Ged rybyr! gan fy rhwyf, rwy gwaw.

Rheithlen rhithlen rhu red gyfa.

Rheithlen ddaith rhyf cyfoeth ddaith.

Whilst I shall have been with my director, amply may the Supreme Being, the light of justice to princes, perform a complete act of grace; may he regard the beautiful ruler of the realm.

Rheithwraig, s. f.—pl. rheithwraigedd (rhaith—wraig) A jury-woman.

Rhel, s. m. (rhe) That is flagging or trailing.

Rhelyw, s. m. (rhe) What comes after; a trail; retreating; rest, or residue.

Rhem, s. m. (rhe—em) That is apt to run out to extreme; that projects out.

Rhemawg, a. (rhem) Having a protuberance.

Rhemialus, v. a. (rhemus) To swagger.

Mac all yn rhydd i rhemialus yd.

He is going there to be swaggering.

Rhemiad, s. m. (rhem) A running out, a swelling out; a projecting.

Rhemial, s. m. (rham) A confused talk; a muttering, a murmuring. v. a. To make a muttering noise.

Pa rhemial, ar bob trefnig.

A good o' that gya' is gmaic.

What muttering on every front form, is had from thy bag along with thy song!

Dr. H.

Rhemiala, v. a. (rhemial) To make a muttering.

Rhemialus, a. (rhemial) Muttering, babbling.

Rhemmawr, s. m. (rhem) A gorbelly, a paunch.

Rhemmog, s. f. (rhem) A swelling paunch.

Rhemmp, s. f. (rhem) An extreme; an excess; that is notorious. Mac rhempwr, he is under an infatuation. a. Bewitched, infatuated. Mac hi yn rhemp, she is bewitched, or notoriously bad.

Quoted rhemp id be camp.

Some eccentricity accompanies extensiveness.

Adapt.

Rhempiad, s. m. (rhetip) A running to extreme; a rendering notorious; a becoming notorious; infatuation; a bewitching.

Rhempiaw, v. a. (rhem) To snatch up, to devour greedily. Et rumpia a wnaid i gyd, they will snatch it all up.

Rhemplaw, v. a. (rhem) To run to an extreme; to bewitch; to be infatuated.

Rhemplwr, s. m.—pl. rhempwyr (rhem—gwr) One who snatches up; a gourmandizer.

Rhempus, a. (rhem) Notorious; infatuated.

Rhempsurwydd, s. m. (rhempos) Notoriousness, the state of being infatuated.

Rhen, s. m. (rhe—on) A pervading principle, an influence; the Eternal.

Rhenc, s. f.—pl. t. hna (rheng) A row, a rank.

Rhenciad, s. m. (rhenc) A placing in a row.

Rhenclaw, v. a. (rhenc) To dispose in a row.

Rhencledig, a. (rhencled) Placed in a row.

Rhencliwr, s. m.—pl. rhencliwyr (rhenc—gwr) One who places in a row or rank.

Rhent, s. m.—pl. t. i (rhen) An income; a coming in; an income: rent.

Nid rhent ond ddyddwyrdd.

There is no income like industry.

Adapt.

Gwawd yn Rhentwnt post awgion,

Ac ymorth, a thorth, a thir o'r gorau.

The characteristic of Great is the produce of perfume, and meat, and a loaf, and land of the best.

Bygon Cyfoethig.

Gwr ni wir gwaith arian;

Ond y rhent yn dda rhia;

Un fwr iys, a' rhia o' rhia,

Wrth yr awyrd fwr rhentwyr;

Yr all i rhentwyr a rhy;

At yr addid mae'r rhydd.

A man who knows not what it is to hoard money; for the income is in three portions; one for his host, where the wine-dishes lie from his hand, at the fire-side to be enjoyed; the second to the poor he gives; towards the building is the third.

Gwawd Cyfoethig.

Rhentawl, a. (rhent) Yielding a produce; belonging to income; belonging to rent.

Rhentiad, s. m. (rhent) A producing; a yielding an income; a renting.

Rhentw, v. a. (rhent) To produce, to get a produce; to have an income; to rent.

Rhesg, s. f.—pl. t. odd (rhe—eng) A row, a rank.

Rhesg ddalus rhwng y ddwyrlas.

A purple streak between the two banks. R. Ddu, i ddim.

Rhengiad, s. m. (rheng) A placing in a row.

Rhengiaw, v. a. (rheng) To set in a row, or rank.

Rhengiaw, a. (rheng) Running in rows.

Rhengiedig, a. (rhengiad) Being set in a row.

Rhengiwr, s. m.—pl. rhengiwywr (rheng—gwr)

One who places in a row.

Rheodig, a. (rheawd) Persevering on a course.

Dothw i Ddewi, diffreiddig teg,

Rheo mawr, Moa wladig, reodig rag.

There came to Dewi, of fair protection, after a great career,

the Sovereign of Moa, with a continuing gift.

Gwyn. Brycheiniawg.

Rheol, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhe—ol) Rule, or order.

Goruchel Reen, rool ddyfryd;

Goleuawg arlywyddi rhesedd byd,

Gorpyf, Grawwr awf, nerth y genyd,

Gobryd gwelod galedig yn bodd ynyd!

The Most High Eternal, whose providence is a refuge; mighty Lord the light of the world, be there to me, Gromer of heaven, strength from thee, in due time to see a feast in felicity without end!

Melgr ad Gwackmai.

Pawb ol-yn-ol

Gwneud trwy rool

Ran wylfann,

O nos i nos

Falchusant aros

Oyfrasant.

Every body in succession would according to rule bear a part in vigils, from night to night, as if faithfully waiting for presents.

Medwag ad Gwackmai.

Rheolaidd, a. (rheol) Orderly, or regular.

Rheoledig, a. (rheol) Ordered, or regulated.

Rheoledigweth, s. f. (rheoledig) Regulation.

Rheoleiddiad, s. m. (rheolaidd) A rendering regular; a becoming orderly or regular.

Rheoleiddiaw, v. a. (rheolaidd) To render orderly.

Rheoleiddrwydd, s. m. (rheolaidd) Canonicalness.

Rheoli, v. a. (rheol) To order, to rule, to sway.

Rheoliad, s. m. (rheol) An ordering, a directing.

Rheolus, a. (rheol) Orderly; easily ruled.

Rheolusedd, s. m. (rheolus) Orderliness.

Rheolusrwydd, s. m. (rheolus) Orderliness.

Rheolwr, s. m.—pl. rheolwyr (rheol—gwr) One who orders; a ruler, a conductor.

Rheonllys, s. m. (rhe—llys) Rhubarb.

Rhes, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhe—es) A row, or rank.

Rhesawl, a. (rhes) Belonging to a row or rank.

Rhesedig, a. (rhes) Being ranged or set in a row.

Rhesel, s. m.—pl. t. i (rhes) A rack, a grate.

Rhesclawg, a. (rhesel) Having a rack or grate.

Rheseliad, s. m. (rhesel) A forming into a rack.

Rheselu, v. a. (rhesel) To form a rack or grate.

Rhesiad, s. m. (rhes) A placing in a row.

Rhesiaw, v. a. (rhes) To place in a row or rank.

Rhest, s. m. (rhes) What is set in parallel rows.

Rhest, s. m.—pl. rhestlan (rhest) A rack.

Rhestog, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhest) Plaited mat.

Rhestr, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhest) Array, rank.

Rhestraid, a. (rhestr) Partly ranged in rows.

Rhestrawg, a. (rhestr) Having rows or ranges; plaited, or matted; rowed. s. f. A plaited target, or backler.

Rhestrawl, a. (rhestr) Ordinal; arrayed. Rhestr- olion, ordinal numbers.

Rhestredig, a. (rhestr) Ranged or arrayed.

Rhestredigweth, s. m. (rhestredig) Arrangement.

Rhestriad, s. m. (rhestr) A ranging; a marshalling.

Rhestrig, s. f. dim. (rhestr) A row, or range.

Calfeistrig restrig yn lle rhwystron.

A stony ridge where we should be impeded. T. Frys.

Rhestru, v. a. (rhestr) To range, to marshal.

Rhestrwr, s. m.—pl. rhestrwyr (rhestr—gwr) A man who sets in order, a marshaller.

Vol. II.

Rhesu, v. a. (rhes) To set in a row, to range.

Rheswydd, s. pl. aggr. (rhes—gwydd) Joists.

Rheswyddaw, v. a. (rheswydd) To lay joists.

Rheswydden, s. f. dim. (rheswydd) A joist.

Rhetgyr, s. m. (rhet—cyr) A projecting snout.

Olan y parchellau, y parchell ddaewydd,

Na chlaidd dy rhyr yn mhen myydd.

Hart, thou pigling, the happy pig, burrow not thy snout on the top of the mountain. Myrddin.

Rheth, s. f. (rhe) A pervading quality.

Rhethr, s. f.—pl. rhethran (rhethr) That pervades or runs into.

Rhethrawr, s. m. (rhethr) That thrusts a pike.

Rhethren, s. f. dim. (rhethr) A pike, a lance.

—Dy hwy! i Brydain

With dost bring 't' th' wlad was,

A'th ruthr 'f'r mae s'th rethren, —Llywedd!

Thy course to Britain, while opening a track in thy white garb, and thy onset to the field with thy pike, be thou prosperous! G. Ll. ad D. ad Eirian.

Rheu, v. a. (rhe) To run about; to move.

Eiddid hen hwy'r yd re.

Slender the aged, slowly he moves along. Llywarch Hen.

Rheuedd, s. m. (rheu) Activity, agility, speed.

Mor yw eilon mygr maint ei rheuedd.

How great the activity of the beauteous hinds! Hywel ad Owain.

Dynalw! bobl ni borthant lawnedd,

Iawn i Ddew diflawn eu rheuedd.

Human kind who maintains not equity, it is just for God to take away their activity. Cynddelw.

Rheuedda, v. a. (rheuedd) To obtain activity.

Rheueddawl, a. (rheuedd) Of an active nature.

Rheufawl, a. (rheu—mawl) Of continuous praise.

Ergiwr ddaig tawd yn gnodaw' erch!

Trafarredd i, fy rhi rheufawl!

Hear the querulous wretch habitually craving mercy of thee, my Lord, whose praise is universal. Riader Sais.

Rheufedd, s. m. (rheu—medd) Movable property; affluence, plenty.

Rheufedd teyrnedd id blas i ddris.

The property of princes is thine by force. Ll. P. Meck.

Hill lowwerth cannerth cain wallaw rheufedd.

The race of lowwerth maintains the splendid distribution of wealth. Bloddyn Fardd.

Rheufeddawg, a. (rheufedd) Having abundance.

Pan fal gyfnydd o wyr gwydwag,

Algoryn' deyrnedd yn rheufeddawg.

If there should be an assemblage of gallant men, the leaders would retain with abundance. Millyr.

Rhew, s. m. (rhe) That is beyond a current state, or become fixed; ice, frost.

Lleis rhew, lleis giew.

As the ice is diminished, activity is diminished. Adage.

Dybrdd rhew i lyffant.

There will be frost for the frog. Adage.

Haws diredw rhew no dityrow rhwy.

It is easier to unfreeze ice than to change the nature of a thing. Adage.

Rhewi, v. a. (rhew) To produce ice; to freeze.

Rhewiad, s. m. (rhew) A producing ice; a becoming ice, a freezing.

Rhewiedig, a. (rhewiad) Become iced; frozen.

Rhewin, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhew) A sudden glide, fall, or slip; a downfall, destruction, ruin. a.

Ruinous.

A draig Moa, mor ddruad el eiddyd yn aer,

Y bu teryng tagr, a haer bwl;

A rhagiddo rhewys dwys dyffwr,

A rhewin, a thrio, a thraac cymmri.

Against the dragon of Moa, so bold his kindred in the slaughter, there was a violent tumult, and insulting claims; and before him ran dire confusion, and ruin, with conflict, and the end of pre-eminence. Gwackmai.

3 N

Rhewiniad, s. m. (rhewin) A shipping; or falling down; a ruining; ruination.
Rhewiniaw, v. a. (rhewin) To cause to slip or to fall; to destroy; to ruin.

Pŷ ddyrchelw mynydd cyn rhewiniaw eithydd!

Who uplifted the mountains before the elements fell! Talliesin.

A rhewiniaw Guyondd O'i heithaf a'i phierfedd.

And destroy Guyondd from his utmost bound to its centre. Talliesin.

Rhewiniawd, s. m. (rhewin) The act of falling.
Rhewiniawg, a. (rhewin) Ruinous, decayed.
Rhewiniaw, a. (rhewin) Falling, ruinous.
Rhewintor, sup. (rhewin) To be falling.

Diwedd pob rhywyl rhewintor.

The end of every leader is to be falling. Talliesin.

Rhewlyd, a. (rhew) Freezing, or frosty.
Rhewlydrwydd, s. m. (rhewlyd) Frostiness.
Rhewydd, s. m. (rhew) Instability, fickleness; wantonness, lust. a. Fickle; wanton, lustful.

Ghwad gos rwydd rhydwirid.

The swan is apt to fling his neck. Adage.

Can rwyddid a'i pŷl fydd ridd.

With wantonness the secret will not continue long. Adage.

*Breddwyd a welyn adhwyr,
Y cyfiedd o debyglo;
Rhydwirid i rwydd;
Rŷ gwyddid ar ŷis gwlad.*

A dream I happened to see last night, clever he must be who can explain it; I shall be declared to the swan; it will not be known to such as do not see it. Meliant.

Rhewyddaw, a. (rhewydd) Apt to be wanton.
Rhewyddid, s. m. (rhewydd) A wantoning.
Rhewyddu, v. a. (rhewydd) To satisfy lust.

Rhewyddu, mal aillioffid.

To satisfy lust, like horses. Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhewyn, s. m. dim. (rhew) A drain, a gutter.
Rhewys, a. (rhew) Wanton; lusting. Casge rweys, a proud mare. Welsh Laws.

RHI, s. m. r.—pl. t. an. That is an origin; a source; a sire; a chief.

Gwasd rhian en rhodan yn wagarawg.

Chastisement for chiefs that their bonds are spread abroad. Adage.

*Dwyn fy rhywyl, a dwyn fy rhyddid;
Dwyn fy ner, fy nen cywilydd!*

Take away my prince, and take my chief; take my sovereign, my supreme supporter! Deinod.

*Ty had—
Gwasl fwyfach bygarfach gerdd,
Y glynod y llawn gha-gerdd;—
A'r ŷon ar fy wiall;
Rhion pryddeion dall.*

The summer would make the blackbird of lovely emulating note, and woody glade to team with song; and on the verdant spray the nightingale, the chiefs of minstrels among leaves. D. ab Gwaldim, Gr Haf.

Rhiad, s. m. (rhi) An originating; a rendering as a source.

Rhiadwn, s. m. (rhiad) That is notable or special; that is eminent or supreme.

Rhegi yn ymwithryn rhys rhiadwn.

Successfully withstanding the terror of the supreme sirr. Anserin.

Rhiadd, a. (rhi) Relating to a source or sire.
Rhial, s. f. (rhi—al) A special or original stock, a primary race or lineage.

Un a dri chyfforddwy Yaya Prydalo, a ddyweinid gan Gae-walawn—dwyf for hyd yn ŷnir Geli Llydaw, a hanoeddynt o rai y Cymry.

One of the three invading armies of the Isle of Britain, which was conducted by Gae-walawn over the sea to the land of the Gosh of Llydaw, was descended from the primary stock of the Cymry. Triodd.

Rhianna, s. m.—pl. t. odd (rhi—anna) The power of a sovereign, army of a country; also the number of one hundred thousands.

Dag mydd yb y rhianna, dag rhianna yn y ffrith, dag mydd yn y ffrith.

Ten myrads in the rhianna, ten times the rhianna in the myrads, ten times the myrads in the rhianna.

Rhian, s. f.—pl. t. odd (rhi) A woman in the prime of life; a dame, a lady.

Tair gwraigdd Arthur, sef oeddynt ei dair prif rian; aia anghu, Gwenevyr ferch Gwryd Gwent; a Gwenevyr ferch Gwryd ferch Gwriad, a Gwenevyr ferch Gwriad Gwent.

The three wives of Arthur, who were his three principal ladies, namely, Gwenevyr daughter of Gwryd Gwent, Gwenevyr daughter of Gwryd ferch Gwriad, and Gwenevyr daughter of Gwriad the Great. Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhianald, a. (rhian) Feminine; lady-like.
Rhianon, s. f. (rhian) A paragon of the female sex; a goddess, a mythological person.

*Ei phryd a guddwyd a phrid;
Dyga godon rianon rodd!*

Her countenance has been covered with earth; severe the recollections of the goddess given! Gr. Gwynn.

Rhiant, s. m.—pl. rhiant (rhi) A parent.

Nac amharuoch yd rhiant, na budyddid allor.

Be not irreverent to thy parents, nor the pastor of the altar. Guing Deoth.

Can amharuoch rhiant.

It is hateful to be disrespectful to parents. Adage.

Rhiawd, a. m. (rhi) The being a source or origin; parental state, the state of being eminent or chief.

Sef i celf y pwydded o ddyddid yn mawr o rind.

The head of a tribe shall have his maintenance under the patronage of his parentship. Friends Dyfed.

Rhiawdr, s. m.—pl. rhodron (rhiawd) Chieftain.
Rhiawi, a. (rhi) Belonging to a chieftain.

Rhib, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhi—ib) What is thinly laid in a row or streak; a dribblet.

Rhibiad, s. m. (rhib) A scattering in a scanty row; a streaking; a dribbling.

Rhibiaw, v. a. (rhib) To place in a scanty row.

Rhibiawi, a. (rhib) With intermissions; dribbling.

Rhibib, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhi—pib) A reed pipe.

*Un a chwrth—
O'r ŷis bai arall a'i llyb,
A rhyw rhyw a rhibib.*

One with a rhibib, where another might be with his pipe, and some dirty chap with a rhibib. L. G. Cuth.

Rhibin, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhib) A narrow row, streak, or scanty dribblet.

Rhibiniad, s. m. (rhibin) A throwing into a narrow row or streak; a dribbling.

Rhibiniaw, v. a. (rhibin) To lay in a narrow row or streak, to make a dribbling row.

Rhibiniaw, a. (rhibin) Running in narrow streaks.

Rhibyn, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhib) A row, as of hay.

Dyfed. The name as earthen and rhennu.

Rhic, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhi—ic) A notch, a groove.

Rhiad, s. m. (rhic) A notching; a grooving.

Rhician, v. a. (rhic) To be notching, to groove.

Rhiciaw, v. a. (rhic) To notch; to groove.

Rhiciawg, a. (rhic) Having a notch, notched.

Rhiciaw, a. (rhic) Notching, or grooving.

Rhiciedig, a. (rhiciad) Being notched, grooved.

Rhiciw, s. m.—pl. rhiciwyr (rhic—gwr) A notcher.

Rhid, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhi—id) That is secreted; that cooes, or drains; semen, sperm.

Rhidid, s. m. (rhid) A secretion; an oozing; a draining; impregnation; a blissoming.

Rhidiaw, v. a. (rhid) To secrete; to drain; to impregnate with sperm; to blissom.

Pan fo addod ar y grif y bychod a rhidid.

When the goats have their season the bucks will be drained. Adage.

Rhidiawg, a. (rhid) Abounding with secretion; having an oozing or drain; having sperm.
Rhidiawl, a. (rhid) Secretory; oozing, draining.
Rhiddiedig, a. (rhiddid) Secreted; impregnated.
Rhidyll, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhid) A riddle, a sieve.
Rhidylliad, s. m. (rhidyll) A riddling; a sifting.
Rhidylliaw, v. a. (rhidyll) To riddle, to sift.
Rhidy, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhid) A very small stream or rill; a drain.

—Rhdy ocsodd;
 Wrth ridyddas meinion
 Proffodd megys prifafon.

For ages it will run: compared with little rills it has proved a primary stream. Rice Jones.

Rhidydd, s. m. (rhidy) A flowing in a rill.
Rhidyddaw, v. a. (rhidy) To flow in a very small quantity; to flow as a rill; to dribble.
Rhidd, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhid) That is central; that is an obstacle; that repels.
Rhiddiad, s. m. (rhidd) A rendering central; a becoming central; a repelling.
Rhiddiaw, v. a. (rhidd) To place central; to repel, to drive back; to recoil.
Rhiedd, s. m. (rhi) Paternal governance.

Daw o'm ddu, yn ddu anrhydded,
 I'm weary'd, I'm red, I'm ridded.

God will take me, for my complete honour, to his bright kingdom, to his grace, to his governance. Cynyddol.

Rhieddawg, a. (rhiedd) Having high origin.

Ririg of rethen rhieddawg.

Splendid his commanding spear. Tolkier, i Weibung.

Brwyg rhydd, yn rhydd, yn rhydd mawr
 Y gwra Rhy rhieddawg o dlawd.

The mighty ravager freely and with good nature Rhy would make the poor one noble. Cynyddol.

Rhieddawl, a. (rhiedd) A paternal authority.
Rhieddu, v. a. (rhiedd) To have authority.
Rhieingader, a. f. (rhian—cader) The seat or throne of a lady or queen.
Rhieingod, s. f. (rhian—cad) A female treasure.

Gwynn at fyd pedyw Daw yd rangyr Rhieingod.

Blessed is he on whom God may bestow a female treasure. Gwalchmai.

Reieingerdd, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhian—cerdd) A song or elegy in praise of the fair sex.

Rhieingerdd Eha a fawrhyfai
 Trewn y tradditlon trua a godwynl.

The female elegy on Eha they would extol, with a glance I could observe the order they were used to keep. Cynyddol.

Rhieingylch, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhian—cylch) The circuit of the female, by which vessels furnished a table for the queen, in certain cases.

Unwuth yn y fwyddyn y gwedd i bawd fyned yn llydd i cyrrind, gada'r llydd, o myn; o ym y llydd a ddyll rhyegylch.

Once in the year it is meet for every body to go in the army, to the horizon, with the king, if he so desire; and thus the queen is entitled to a female circuit. Welsh Laws.

Rhieiniadd, a. (rhian) Feminine.

Rhieiniadd fawr, rhieiniadd fawr.

Delicate maid, she has distributed a bounty. D. ab Owlgyn, i Angharad.

Rhieiniawl, a. (rhian) Feminine, abounding with female softness.

Mae Gwenswyfar—
 Yn rhieiniawl
 Yn rhagorawl
 Yn ahragorodd.

Gwenswyfar, of feminine softness, in mercy doth excel. Gwens Ddu.

Rhieni, s. pl. aggr. (rhiant) Parentage; forefathers, ancestry; parents.

Rhieni dyn yw ei ddad, a'i brawd, a'i orbwedd.

A person's ancestry are his father, and his grandfather, and his great grandfather. Welsh Laws.

Rhieniant, a. m. (rhieni) Parentage, ancestry.
Rhieniawl, a. (rhieni) Relating to ancestry.
Rhies, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhi) A dame, or a lady.
Rhif, a. m.—pl. t. on (rhi—iff) That divides, or separates; a number.
Rhifadwy, a. (rhif) Capable of being reckoned.
Rhifaw, v. a. (rhif) To number, to numerate.

I'll say what I say, I'll say what I say,
 I'll say what I say, I'll say what I say,
 I'll say what I say, I'll say what I say,
 I'll say what I say, I'll say what I say.

That is of the hue of the fair spraying foam before the white wave, the ninth share of my pain, since she was born, no one has felt or imagined. I will not reckon of the damage that she is cruel. Cynyddol, i Eira och Madrug.

Rhifawl, a. (rhif) Numeral, or numerical.
Rhifed, s. m. (rhif) A number, numeration.

Rhifed eyr cyrthiant yn agau,
 O'n grynau, o'n grynau.

Of the number of the stars they fell in blood, from thy conflict, from thy struggles. Gwalchmai.

Rhifedi, s. m. (rhifed) A number.
Rhifedig, a. (rhifed) Numbered. Rhifedigion, those that are numbered.
Rhifedigaeth, s. m. (rhifedig) Numeration.
Rhifedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhifed) Numerator.
Rhifedyddawl, a. (rhifedydd) Numerary.
Rhifedyddiaeth, s. m. (rhifedydd) The science or skill of numbering.
Rhifedd, s. m. (rhif) Numerousness; number.
Rhifgoel, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhif—coel) The property of chance belonging to numbers.
Rhifgoelydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhifgoel) Numerist.
Rhifiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhif) A numbering.
Rhifianawl, a. (rhifiant) Numerary.
Rhifianu, v. a. (rhifiant) To numerate.
Rhifiant, s. m. (rhif) Numeration.
Rhifawg, a. (rhif) Having a number; numerous.

Cadarn Rh Madrug rhifawg reafedi.

The mighty son of Madrug of multitudinous wealth. G. ab D., ab Tudgr.

Rhifedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhifad) Numerator.
Rhifnod, s. c.—pl. t. au (rhif—nod) A numeral.
Rhifnodawl, a. (rhifnod) Numerical.
Rhifnodi, v. a. (rhifnod) To numerate.
Rhifnodlad, s. m. (rhifnod) Numeration.
Rhifnodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhifnod) Numerator.
Rhiffrill, s. f. (rhif—rhill) A numerical notch.
Rhifwr, s. m.—pl. rhifwyr (rhif—gwr) One who numbers, a reckoner.
Rhifydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhif) A numberer.
Rhifydddeg, s. f. (rhifydd) Science of numbers.
Rhifydddegawl, a. (rhifydddeg) Arithmetical.
Rhifydddegwr, s. m.—pl. rhifydddegwyr (rhifydddeg—gwr) An arithmetician.
Rhifyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhifydd) A female accountant, or arithmetician.
Rhifyddiaeth, s. m. (rhifydd) Numeration.
Rhifyn, s. m. dim. (rhif) A single number.
Rhif, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhi—iff) That tends to divide or to separate.
Rhifft, s. m. (rhifft) That is divided or cleaved.
Rhifwnt, s. m. (rhi—ffwnt) The jaundice.
Rhig, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhi—ig) A notch; a groove, also a pillory.
Rhigaw, v. a. (rhig) To notch; to indent.
Rhigawd, s. m.—pl. rhigodau (rhig) A pillory.
Rhigawl, a. (rhig) Notching; indenting.
Rhigid, s. m. (rhig) A notching, a grooving.
Rhign, s. m. dim. (rhig) A notch; a groove.

Rhignedd, s. m. (rhign) A notched or furrowed part; a notch or indenting.

Cet wrach i grafa dy gefn, a dynai y glau a'r gwythl gyda phob byt, o gwne dy wegl i fignodd dy din.

Thou shalt have a bag to scratch thy back, who would draw the muscles and the veins with every finger, from the nape of thy neck to the partition of thy buttock. Aradn Gugen.

Rhigodi, v. a. (rhig) To put in a pillory.

Rhigol, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (rhig—ol) A grove; a trench, a furrow; a drill; a small ditch, a drain

Rhigolawg, a. (rhigol) Grooved; furrowed; having a trench or drain.

Rhigoli, v. a. (rhigol) To groove; to trench.

Rhigoliad, s. m. (rhigol) A grooving; a trenching

Rhigolwr, s. m.—pl. rhigolwyr (rhigol—gwr) One who makes a groove or trench.

Rhigolydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhigol) What makes a groove or trench; a groove-plane.

Rhigwm, s. m.—pl. rhigymau (rhig) A long rote.

Rhigymiad, s. m. (rhigwm) A saying by rote.

Rhigymu, v. a. (rhigwm) To say by rote.

Rhigymwr, s. m.—pl. rhigymwyr (rhigwm—gwr)

One who speaks by rote.

Rhill, s. m. (rhi—il) An interstice.

Rhill, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhi—ill) A row; a small trench or furrow; a drill.

Rhilliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhill) A drilling.

Rhilliaw, v. a. (rhill) To trench; to drill.

Rhilliawg, a. (rhill) Trenched; drilled.

Rhilliedig, a. (rhilliad) Being drilled.

Rhilliwr, s. m.—pl. rhilliwyr (rhill—gwr) One who trenches; a driller.

Rhim, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhi) A rim, or edge.

Rhimiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhim) An edging.

Rhimlaw, v. a. (rhim) To edge, or to rim.

Rhimlawl, a. (rhim) Edging, or rimming.

Rhimiedig, a. (rhimiad) Being rimmed.

Rhimp, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhim) An edge, rim, or boundary; a limit, or ending.

Rhimpyu, s. m. (rhimp) A close; rhyme.

Rhimpyniad, s. m. (rhimpyn) A terminating, or ending; a rhyming.

Rhimpynu, v. a. (rhimpyn) To form an ending, or termination; to rhyme.

Rhimyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (rhim) A rim.

Rhimynawl, a. (rhimyn) Being formed to a rim.

Rhimyniad, s. m. (rhimyn) A forming an edge.

Rhimynu, v. a. (rhimyn) To make a rim or edge.

Rhin, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhi—in) That runs through or pervades; a channel which carries off lesser waters; in draining a name for the secondary dykes, which receive the small ditches, and convey the water to the gwyth fawr, or great channel; a furrow between lauds. Powys. also a pervading quality, a virtue; a secret, a mystery; a charm.

Gochel ddamwgu dy rin.

Beware to allegorise thy secret.

Adaga.

*Rhin deudyn cyfrin yw,
Rhin tridyn cannyu ai clyw.*

The secret of two persons is a mutual pledge; the secret of three persons a hundred persons will hear.

Adaga.

*Pob math rin a doethioeb
Bydd arnau yn aed pob.*

Every kind of virtue and wisdom thou dost possess above any one.

T. Pry.

Y gair dodd cyntaf sydd yn gwabardd rhinlau, a swynlon, a chyfarwddion.

The first expression of the law doth forbid mystery, and charms, and incantations.

Elucidarius.

Rhinaw, v. a. (rhin) To endue with a hidden quality; to be mysterious; to use spells.

*Gwasgawd nalet am giewdd caer,
A minnas a rhinaw
Ygwydd bydd brw cys techaf.*

May the torrents spread about the wall of the fort, and I will divine that the shield will be broken ere I recede.

Llymorch Hen.

Rhinc, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhing) A creak; a gnash; a continued sharp noise; also the quail. Rhinc y tes, rhinc y llin, the sand-cricket; glo rhinc, a sort of hard coal.

Canu rhinc o'r cennau rhenna.

The tottering whelp muttering his creak.

T. Alad.

Rhinciad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhinc) A creaking.

Rhinciaw, v. a. (rhinc) To creak; to gnash.

Conferen—

*Rhinciau y bydd, yn rhonca
A'i chrus-fasi, arw-ddant ar dda.*

Easy, with her lantern jaw, will be gnashing a snagging tooth on what is good.

Gra. Owen.

Rhinciaw, v. a. (rhinc) To creak, to gnash.

Rhinciawl, a. (rhinc) Creaking; gnashing.

Rhincyn, s. m. dim. (rhinc) A creak, a clink; a gnash, a grinding noise; a habit of scolding.

Cadw rhincyn, to keep scolding continually.

Rhinddyg, s. m. (rhin—dyg) A cabala.

Rhinddygiad, s. m. (rhinddyg) A following of cabalistic learning.

Rhinddysgawd, s. m. (rhinddyg) Cabalistic lore.

Rhinddysgawdr, s. m.—pl. rhinddygodron (rhinddyg) A cabalist.

Rhinfawr, a. (rhin) Endowed with great virtue.

Cal feddygon—

*Ea gwl'u ddawian, brau bryd
W'r rhinfawr, yn yr henfyd.*

Physicians had the appetition of gods, open of countenance the greatly endowed men, in the ancient world.

L. Morris.

Rhiniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhin) A pervading; an enduing with some hidden quality or virtue; a using of mystery; a charming.

Rhiniaw, v. a. (rhin) To pervade; to endue with a quality or virtue; to use mystery, to charm, to talk secrets, to whisper.

Rhiniawg, a. (rhin) Having some hidden quality, or virtue; possessed of a mystery or secret.

Rhiniawl, a. (rhin) Relating to a secret quality or virtue; mysterious.

Rhiniedig, a. (rhiniad) Rendered mysterious.

Rhiniwr, s. m.—pl. rhiniwyr (rhin—gwr) One possessed of some hidden virtue or power; one possessed of a secret; or dealer in spells.

Maent fel y neidr fyddar, yr hon a gau ei chustianu, ac ai wneydy ar iale y rhiniwyr.

They are like the deaf adder, which shuts her ears, and will not listen to the voice of the charmers.

Ev. Davies.

Rhinon, s. m. (rhin) A pattern of virtue.

Rhint, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhin) A groove, a notch.

Rhintach, a. (rhint) Grooved; notched; jagged.

Rhintachrwydd, s. m. (rhintach) Jaggedness.

Rhinwedd, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhin—gwedd) A virtue; a mystery; a sacrament. Rhinweddau da, good qualities: Saitia rinwedd eglwys, the seven sacraments of the church.

*On da gwaed mewn on deg wadd,
Er hyn y gwail yn rhinwedd.*

If in the splendid scene of life noble blood is prized, nevertheless virtue is more excellent.

Ellis Howland.

Rhinweddawg, a. (rhinwedd) Having virtue.

Rhinweddawl, a. (rhinwedd) Being virtuous.

Rhinweddiad, s. m. (rhinwedd) A conferring of virtue; a becoming possessed of virtue.

Rhinweddiath, s. f. (rhinwedd) The practice of virtue; virtuous conduct.

Rhinweddoldeb, s. m. (rhinwedd) Virtuousness.
Rhinweddolder, s. m. (rhinwedd) Virtuousness.
Rhinweddoli, v. a. (rhinweddawl) To render virtuous; to become virtuous.
Rhinwedu, v. a. (rhinwedd) To endue with virtue; to acquire a virtuous habit.
Rhinweddus, a. (rhinwedd) Virtuous.
Rhinweddusaw, v. a. (rhinweddus) To render virtuous; to become virtuous.
Rhinweddusarwydd, s. (rhinwedd) Virtuousness.
Rhinwraig, s. f.—pl. rhinwreigedd (rhin—gwraig) A woman who performs mysteries or charms.
Rhing, s. m. (rhi—ing) A creak, or clink.
Rhingwar, s. m. (rhing—gwar) A clamp.
Rhingyll, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhing) A citer, an apparitor, a summoner, a sergeant.

Tri oes rhingyll ydyd; gwaedd gwlad, a garw gychwedi w y cyngheiliwr, a rhingyll.

The three names of an apparitor; the cry of a country, and the chancellor's terrible talcbearer, and the apparitor.

Welsh Laws.

Ieuan Fedyddiwr oedd ringyll o faen yr laen.

John the Baptist was a heringer before Ieuan. Blacidianus.

Rhingyllaeth, s. m. (rhingyll) Serjeantship.

Gwrthodas ryngyr rhingyllaeth.

It rejected unaccountable serjeantship. Cynddelin.

Rhingylliad, s. m. (rhingyll) A performing the office of an apparitor.

Rhingyllu, v. a. (rhingyll) To do the duty of a serjeant or an apparitor.

Rhiolawd, s. m. (rhiawl) Management.

Rhiolawdr, s. m.—pl. rhiolodron (rhiolawd) A manager, a ruler, or a director.

Rhioledd, s. m. (rhiawl) Management, or sway.

Rhioli, v. a. (rhiawl) To manage, to rule.

Rhion, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (rhi) A sire.

Rhip, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhib) That runs with intermission; an overskip.

Rhipal, s. c. (rhip) A batchel. See heislen.

Rhipiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhip) An over-skippping

Rhipiaw, v. a. (rhip) To pass over, to skip.

Rhipiawg, a. (rhip) Abounding with intermissions or lapses.

Rhipiawl, a. (rhip) Tending to skip or pass over.

Rhipiedig, a. (rhipiad) Being over-skippped.

Rhipiwr, s. m.—pl. rhipwyr (rhip—gwr) One who passes over, or skips.

Rhis, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhi—i) That tends to a point; that is broken into points; mince.

Rhisellt, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhis) A grater, a rasp.

Rhisg, s. m. aggr. (rhy—rhig) Bark, or rind.

Mai y rhig am y pren.

Like the bark about the tree.

Adage.

Rhisgaw, v. m. (rhig) To bark; to strip off bark.

Rhisgawg, a. (rhig) Having bark or rind.

Rhisgawl, a. (rhig) Belonging to the bark.

Rhisgedig, a. (rhig) Barked; stripped of bark.

Rhisgen, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhig) A vessel made of bark; a dish, or bowl.

Rhisgen, ffring a del;—Rhisgen ymaenys tair dyrsafedd o led, a thair dyrsafedd o dewedd, heb ffol.

A bark dish, its value is a farthing;—A bowl of butter is three hands in breadth, and three hands in thickness, without a top.

Welsh Laws.

Rhisgiad, s. m. (rhig) A forming of bark; a barking, or a stripping of bark.

Rhisgl, s. m. (rhig) Bark, rind, or peel.

Rhisglad, s. m. (rhig) A forming of bark; a stripping of bark, a barking.

Rhisglaw, v. a. (rhig) To form bark; to bark.

Rhisglawg, a. (rhig) Having bark or rind.

Rhisgledig, a. (rhig) Barked; stripped of Rhisglen, s. f. dim. (rhig) A piece of bark.

Rhisglyn, s. m. dim. (rhig) A piece of bark.

Rhisgyn, s. m. dim. (rhig) A piece of bark; a vessel of bark.

Rhisgynald, s. m.—pl. rhisgynaidlau (rhisgyn)

The quantity contained in a bark bowl. Rhisgynaid o ymaenys, a bark bowlful of butter.

Rhit, s. m. (rhi) A tendency or move forward.

Rhith, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhi—ith) That tends to break out or to appear; an outward form, shape, or figure; appearance, guise; embryo.

Blasen cledid athrow a rhith gwirionedd.

To point the sword of detection with the semblance of truth.

Adage.

Yn mhob rhith y daw anghu.

In every shape death will come.

Adage.

Felly, 'mhob rhith ffaithlawl

Gwlad y dyn a gwis dawl.

Therefore, in every cursed shape the devil doth man entice.

T. Frye.

Rhithedd, s. m. (rhith) Apparentness, semblance

Rhithgwsg, s. m. (rhith—cwg) Apparent sleep.

Rhithiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhith) An appearing, a seeming; a taking a shape, or form.

Rhithiadwy, a. (rhithiad) Capable of appearing; capable of taking a shape or form.

Rhithiannawl, a. (rhithiant) Being apparent.

Rhithiannu, v. a. (rhithiant) To make an appearance; to take a form; to become apparent.

Rhithiant, s. m. (rhith) Appearance; semblance.

Rhithiator, ger. (rhithiad) In appearing.

Rhithiaw, v. a. (rhith) To tend to break out; to appear; to seem; to be formed or shaped; to become an embryo; to knit, as fruit; to change from one form to another.

Angus—

Yn mhob cyfrith y rhithi.

Death, in every combination thou dost appear. Ieuan Tew.

Rhithiawg, a. (rhith) Having an appearance.

Rhithiawl, a. (rhith) Appearing, or seeming.

Rhithiedig, a. (rhithiad) Having appeared.

Rhithiogaeth, s. m. (rhithiawg) The state or act of appearing; a particular form.

All rhithiogaeth y rhyw gyntaf ar droell—ymadrawd yw gwastawr gerd.

The second variety of the first species of figurative expression is irony.

H. Perri.

Rhithiogl, v. a. (rhithiawg) To endue with an appearance; to have an appearance.

Rhithioli, v. a. (rhithiawl) To make apparent.

Rhithitor, exp. (rhith) To be appearing.

Rhithiwr, s. m.—pl. rhithwyr (rhith—gwr) An appearer, a seemer; a dissembler.

Rhiw, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhi) A slope, or side of a mountain. It forms the names of many places; as Rhiwlas, green slope; Rhiwelen, yellow slope, and the like.

RHO, s. m. r. That is put or extended from.

Rhoad, s. m. (rho) A giving, or a bestowing.

Rhoadl, a. (rho) Giving, or bestowing.

Rhoc, s. m. (rhy—oc) That shoots out in different ways; a motion in different directions.

Rhocas, s. m. (rhoc) A stripling, or youth.

Rhocian, v. a. (rhoc) To be moving in contrary directions; to rock.

Rhocos, s. pl. dim. (rhoc) Points, or irregularities shooting out; broken particles. Mae y llaeth wedi suraw, oni welst di o yn rhocos? the milk is sour, dost thou not see it broken?

Rhoc, s. f. (rhy—och) A broken or rough utterance; a grunt, a groan.

Rhochein, v. a. (rhech) To grunt like swine.
Rhocchan, s. m. (rhoch) A grunting; a groaning.
Rhochi, v. a. (rhoch) To grunt; to growl.
Rhochiad, s. m. (rhoch) A grunting; a groaning.
Rhochus, a. (rhoch) Grunting, or grumbling.
Rhod, s. f.—pl. t. au (rho—od) An orb, a circle; a wheel; the ecliptic; the space between the solstices; a season. Trôad y rhod, the turning of the circle, or the solstitial change.

Codi rhal y caed y rhod, A'u goetwng o frig ylod.

It was found that the wheel exalted some, and lowered them from the summit of the station. Edm. Frye.

Rhodawg, s. (rhod) Having a wheel; wheeled; orb'd. s. f. That is wheeled, or orb'd; an epithet for a shield; that wheels; any wheeled vehicle; a chariot.

Boddawg ei rodawg i rodiau torfoedd.

Ready is his chariot to range amid armies. Cynddelio.

*Fleu y rhodawg redd faran aerlle;
 A'i lloerfadd gyr ei bas;
 Pwy bris uch bron-y-farch can;
 Pwy di henw, bynod gyfran!*

To whom belongs the car of the crimson face of the field of slaughter; and who its desolating wolf on its front, who deals wounds above the white prancing steeds; what his name, whose lot is so glorious! Llywarch Hen.

Rhodawl, s. (rhod) Of the form of a wheel; orbical; wheeling; turning; having a tendency to turn about; vagrant, wandering.

*Ban yd ran ei rad i rodolion byd;
 Balch ei famrys; balch ei fion.*

Conspicuously he distributes his bounty to the wandering ones of the world; aspiring is his mind; proud are his subjects. Gwalchmai.

Rhodawr, s. f.—pl. rhodorion (rhod) That wheels, that forms an orb; an epithet for a shield; a chariot; also the goatsucker.

*Caeawg, cybaerawg man y delai;
 Diffyn yn mlaen bun, modd y deiai
 Twll tal ei rodawr, yn y cyfal
 Awr, ai rodol aawd, maiat dilynal.*

Caeawg, supreme wherever he appears; affording protection to the maid, as the front opening of his chariot comes where he bears a shout, no merry would he grant, whilst he perused. Anseria.

Rhodedd, s. m. (rhawd) A state of going forward.
Rhodell, s. f. (rhod) A whirl, a spindle; the cat's tail, or reed-mace; also called cynffon y gath.
Rhodelen, s. f. dim. (rhodell) A whirl for a spindle. It is also called chwawen.

Rhodellaid, s. (rhodell) Apt to whirl or whisk.
Rhodellawg, s. (rhodell) Having whirls or turns.
Rhodellid, s. m. (rhodell) A whirling, a twirling.
Rhodella, v. a. (rhodell) To whirl, or to twirl.
Rhoden, s. f. dim. (rhawd) A switch, a whip.
Rhodfa, s. f.—pl. rhodfeydd (rhod) A circular course, an orbit.

Rhodiad, s. m.—pl. rhodiaid (rhawd) A goer up and down, a wanderer, a stroller.

Rhodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhod) A wheeling.
Rhodiadur, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhodiad) A perambulator, one who walks about.

Nid diffithawch gwenith a laddio ffordd rhodiadur.

The wheat that obstructs the way of the perambulator is not a wilderness. Adge.

Rhodian, s. m. (rhawd) A being traversing.
Rhodiane, v. a. (rhodian) To be traversing; to be going about; to walk about.

Rhodianawll, a. (rhodian) Ambulatory, strolling.
Rhodiar, s. f. (rhawd) That traverses, a ranger.

Hyfner arf, rydwr rodiaur byddinoedd, i boddwddu.

A glittering weapon, the vehement ranger through armies, a consuming fire to thousands. Edwin Lane.

Rhodiaw, v. a. (rhawd) To traverse, to ambulate, to walk about, to take a walk, to range.

*Nid da rhodiaw yn y gwylt,
 Lle ddaio diawl i gawylt.*

It is not good to walk in the light, where the devil holds the candle. *Rhoddi fy agwyl, rhodiad fy agwyl;
 Rhod i'r boddwdd y rhodiaw'r byd.*

The gift of my festival, gratulation is my wealth; it is free for the birds to traverse the world. Llywarch Hen.

Rhodiawg, a. (rhawd) Given to strolling.

Rhodiawl, a. (rhawd) Ambulatory; strolling.

Rhodiedig, a. (rhodiad) Being walked or strolled.

Rhodienaw, v. a. (rhodian) To walk up and down.

Rhodiennad, s. m. (rhodian) A strolling about.

Rhodiennal, s. f. (rhodian) A gadding gossip.

Rhodiennawll, a. (rhodian) Ambulatory; vagrant.

Rhodiennwr, s. m.—pl. rhodiennwyr (rhodian—gwr) An ambulator; a stroller.

Rhodiwr, s. m.—pl. rhodiwyr (rhawd—gwr) An ambulator, one who walks about.

Rhodl, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhawd) A paddle; a scull.

Rhodliath, s. f. (rhawd—liath) A walking staff.

Rhodle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhawd—lle) A course.

*Caelu yn addfwrta rodle yn mwr rheg Uria
 Yn cywyl am eis traw gwad ar dda.*

Briskly in the glorious course, before Urias with the dawn, round our feet falls the blood where death prevails. Taliesin.

*Eis rheiddus—
 Yn rhodle gwyach gwyarthys.*

Our leader in the course of the valours of the blood stream. Cynddelio.

Rhodli, v. a. (rhodl) To paddle, to scull.

Rhodliad, s. m. (rhodl) A paddling, a sculling.

Rhodiwr, s. m.—pl. rhodiwyr (rhodl—gwr) A paddler.

Rhodlydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhodl) A paddler.

Rhodol, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhawd) A paddle, a scull.

Rhodre, s. f. (rhawd—rhe) A career, a course.

Megys ei bodedd, o'r red rodre.

Like his grandfather, in his homestead course. Ll. F. Nash.

Rhodres, s. m. (rhyodres) Ostentation, vainglory; a flaunting, or swaggering.

Rhodresidd, a. (rhodres) Apt to be ostentatious; somewhat pragmatical; flaunting.

Rhodresawl, a. (rhodres) Ostentatious.

Rhodresgar, a. (rhodres) Pragmatical; flaunting.

Rhodresgarwch, s. m. (rhodres) Superciliousness.

Rhodresiad, s. m. (rhodres) A practising of ostentation; a swaggering, a flaunting.

Rhodresoirwydd, s. m. (rhodres) Superciliousness.

Rhodresu, v. a. (rhodres) To act ostentatiously; to swagger, to flaunt.

*Lle rhodreser,
 Yeo deawr,
 Ar eu trawer,
 Y rhal trawies.*

Where a great display is made, there be the smart, in full battle, of forward men. T. Frye.

Rhodresus, a. (rhodres) Ostentatious, flaunting.

Rhodreswr, s. m.—pl. rhodreswyr (rhodres—gwr)

An ostentatious man; a swaggerer.

Rhodri, s. m. (rhod—rhi) Raddish; also called rhuddygi.

Rhodredd, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhod—gweidd) An orbicular course; a course.

*Ni derfydd awen i ar derwedd traw,
 Tra to floor a haul ar on rhodredd.*

The muse will not be exhausted from excess of use, while there shall be moon and sun on their course. Phyllis Brydydd.

Rhodwr, s. m. (rhod—gwr) A wheeler.

Rhodwydd, s. m. (rhawd—gwydd) An open course; a centry ground.

Ar rodwydd fortis gwydd.

On the course of Marston I will watch. Llywarch Hen.

Ni sheir o wyl, a wreiddwrdd hysg.
A llywysgw yn rhoddydd.
Rhodde gwyr baw dywydd,
Yn nydd llywys, rhag baw ei arghwydd.

From truth, from great heronry, and rushing on the war course, there shall not be paid the heaviest of a wounded man, falling dramatically in the day of battle, in the presence of his lord.
Cyfrinach.

Rhodd, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rho) A gift, a present.
a. Given, gratis.

Nid edrychir yn hygydd march rhodd.
The eye of a gift horse will not be examined. Adage.

Rhodd gwyr Erging.
The gift of the men of Erging. Adage.

Yn rhodd, fy athraw, beith yn gobenydd cerdd, a chymysiad, a dylwyf gynghraeddi.

Graciously, my master, what is the peace of a song, and repeltion, and false commendation?
T. Pryd.

Rhoddadwy, a. (rhodd) Capable of being given.

Rhoddai, s. s. (rhodd) That gives; a dative case.

Rhoddawg, a. (rhodd) Abound with gift; giving.

Fy bwrh cenhwy
O ddad rhoddawg!

Who chased coils of current suffer?
Taliesin.

Rhoddawg braw llaw i ddrang.
The spreader of terror is a hand to destroy. Taliesin.

Rhoddaw, a. (rhodd) Giving, or conferring.

Rhoddedig, a. (rhodd) Given. Rhoddedigion, data.

Tri phrif rhoddedigion Daw: awen, deall, a rhodferthwch.
The three chief gifts of God; genius, understanding, and virtue. Cating Dedeith.

Rhoddedigaeith, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhoddedig) Donation.

Rhoddedigawl, a. (rhoddedig) Giving; dative.

Rhoddffawl, a. (rhodd—mawl) Praise-bestowing.

Rhoddffawr, a. (rhodd) Greatly giving; sacred.

Rhoddffygied, a. (rhodd—mygied) Of gift.

Rhoddged, a. (rhodd—ced) Munificent.

Rhoddgymer, a. (rhodd—cymer) Gift-receiving.

Rhoddgymeriad, s. m. (rhoddgymer) A giving.

Rhoddgymeriawd, a. (cymer) Gift-reception.

Rhoddgymeriawdr, s. m. (rhoddgymeriawd) A receiver or acceptor of gifts.

Rhoddgymeryd, v. a. (rhodd—cymeryd) To receive or to accept gifts.

Rhoddi, v. a. (rhodd) To give, to bestow, to confer.

Goren gwareded, goredwya faw,
Goleysu polwry gobwyl o bonaw;
Gwerth yn rhoddied, dylw dyneid dmlwr,
A'n rhoddai gwynn baw gw ioddai;
Faw fyw Daw dy dderiaw
O dyllest present, a phawwyl fraw,
Cod a'n h to di goid golw anaw.

The best deliverance, of glorious copiance, to purchase a sward meet of consideration; for the value then best bestowed on the mortal man attend, I give the counsel in which no hate doth lurk: When God shall please to dissolve thee from thy present state, and dwelling of delight, be thou possessed of the true-ness of the sons of glory. Meirg ab Gwalchmai.

Rhoddiaid, s. m.—pl. rhoddiaid (rhodd) A giver,
a donor; also, a giving, or bestowing.

Ed yn wyl yn olad reddiad.
He is diffidently the bestower of wealth. Ll. P. Mech.

Rhoddianaw, a. (rhoddiaid) Donative; giving.

Rhoddianaw, v. a. (rhoddiaid) To make donation.

Rhoddiaid, s. m. (rhodd) A donation, a behest.

Rhoddiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhoddiaid) A donor.

Rhoddwr, s. m.—pl. rhoddwyr (rhodd—gwr) A giver.

Rhogi, s. m.—pl. rhogiau (rhy—ogi) The power or sense of smelling; smell, scent.

Rhogiawg, a. (rhogi) Having a smell, scented.

Rhogiedig, a. (rhogi) Being smelled; scented.

Rhogiaid, s. m. (rhogi) The state of having a smell; scentedness.

Rhogli, v. a. (rhogi) To smell; to scent.

O rogli rhogla deffwddwyrdd.

In scenting have the scent of harmoniousness.
Cating ab Gwynlliw.

Rhogliad, s. m. (rhogi) A smelling, a scenting.

Rhogliant, s. m. (rhogi) A sneezing; a scenting.

Rhogius, a. (rhogi) Olfactory; olidous; the stinking goose-foot.

Rhoi, v. a. (rho) To give, to bestow, to present.

Rhoi rhod dani i lloft.

It is necessary to give information to a stranger. Adage.

Ni bawn ei gair a gwynn chwytas iad dy gyngbor.

I would not give the thought of a flea-skin for thy advice. Adage.

I was trust y rhoi win trwm;

I gdwam y rhoi godwam.

To the dejected working thou wouldst give happy wine; to the mighty thou wouldst give a fall. G. ab Ieuan Hen.

Daw, troy dan dig awm—
I roi cadarn farn ar fydd.

He will come, with consuming fire, to give a mighty judgement on a world. H. D. ab Iwan.

Rhòl, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rho—ol) A roll, a cylinder. Mae fe yn rhòl, he is like a buck.

Rholaidd, a. (rho) Tending to roll, rolling.

Rholbren, s. m. (rho—pren) A rolling-pin.

Rholbreniad, s. m. (rholbren) A working with a rolling-pin.

Rholbrenu, v. a. (rholbren) To use a rolling-pin.

Rhòlen, s. f. dim. (rhòl) A roll, a roller. Dyma rolen o lodes, there is a bouncing lass.

Rholiad, s. m. (rhòl) A rolling; a turning round.

Rholian, v. a. (rhòl) To be rolling about.

Rholiaw, v. a. (rhòl) To roll. Rholiaw gwlan, to card wool into rolls for spinning.

Rholiawg, a. (rhòl) In the form of a roll, rolled.

Rholiwr, s. m. (rho—gwr) One who rolls.

Rholyn, s. m. dim. (rhòl) A roll, a roller. Rholyn o wlan, a roller of wool: rholyn o ddyn, a fat hale man.

Rhon, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rho—on) A tail; also a pike, or lance. Gwlan rhonix, the wool of tails: rhon darcwl, dovetail, in joinery.

Rhonc, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhy—onc) A swag.

Rhonca, a. (rhonc) Sinking, falling, swagging.

Rhoncaedd, s. m. (rhonca) A sinking or falling state, swaggingness; a hollowiness.

Rhonciad, s. m. (rhonc) A sinking; a swagging;

a becoming hollow, loose, or goggling.

Rhoncian, v. a. (rhonc) To swag; to goggle.

Rhonceo, a. (rhonc) Swaggy; goggling.

Rhonell, s. f.—pl. t. od (rhawn) The whisk or the whole hair of a tail; a tail. Rhonell y march, marchronell, the horsetail; rhonell y wneaf, axe-vetch; rhonell y ci, the dog's-tail grass;
rhonell y cadnaw, fox-tail grass; rhonell y gaff, cat's-tail grass.

Rhonellawg, a. (rhonell) Having a tail.

Rhonellgoch, a. (rhonell—coch) Red-tailed. Y rhonellgoch, y rhawngoch, y disbeth, coch y berllan, the redstart.

Rhongymynlan, s. f. (rhon—cymynu) A kind of battle-axe with a long handle; a poetical epithet for Arthur's battle-axe.

Rhonos, s. pl. dim. (rhon) Small particles.

Rhont, s. f.—pl. t. iau (rhon) A frisk, a skip.

Rhonta, v. a. (rhont) To frisk, to gambol.

Rhontai, s. c. (rhont) One who gambols.

Rhontig, a. (rhonta) Apt to gambol; frisky.

Rhonten, s. f. dim. (rhont) A frisker.

Rhontiad, s. m. (rhont) A gamboling, a frisking.

Rhontyn, s. m. dim. (rhont) A frisker.

Rhonwyn, s. (rhon—gwyn) White-tailed.

*Madyn rhwyn, rhywir
Melingi gwyb, myni gig tr.*

White tailed reynard, surnamed the clever slender dog, thou wilt have fresh flesh. R. Goch Eryri.

Rhonyn, s. m. dim. (rhon) A small body, or particle, of a cylindrical form.

Rhos, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (rhy—os) That is parched; a dry meadow; a moor. Gwair rhos, moor-land hay. It forms the name of many places.

Rhos, s. pl. aggr. What is convolved; roses. Rhos cochion, red roses; rhos gwynion, white roses; rhos y cwm, dog-roses. See Breila.

Rhosaid, a. (rhos) Tending to be parched.

Rhosawg, a. (rhos) Abounding with dry grass.

Rhosawl, a. (rhos) Of a parching nature.

Rhosb, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhy—osb) A whim, a trick. Gware rhosbau, to play at crambo.

A hofio ei rosb hofio a'i cob.

He that loves his whim let him love him who corrects it. Adage.

Rhosba, v. a. (rhosb) To play at crambo.

Rhosbai, s. c. (rhosb) One who plays at crambo; a doggerel rhymater.

Rhosbawl, a. (rhosb) Belonging to crambo play.

Rhosbêig, a. (rhosba) Apt to play at crambo.

Rhosbiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhosb) A playing at crambo; a making of doggerel rhymes.

Rhosbwr, s. m.—pl. rhosbwr (rhosb—gwr) One who makes doggerel rhymes.

Rhosdir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhos—tir) Dry ground.

Rhosedd, s. m. (rhos) A state of extending over; superabundance, superfluity.

Rhoslyd, a. (rhos) Of a parched quality.

Rhoslydu, v. n. (rhoslyd) To become parched.

Rhost, s. m. (rhy—ost) That is dried or crimped; that is browned; a roast. a. Roast, roasted.

Cael rhost, nid er host, ardy y bwn.

Obtaining roasted meat, for the sake of bonst, and bitterness too. L. G. Cofal.

Rhostawg, s. m. (rhost) A plover. It is also called bronddu y twynau. Rhostawg coch, the red godwit.

Rhostiad, s. m. (rhost) A roasting; a toasting.

Rhostiaw, v. a. (rhost) To roast; to toast.

Rhostiawl, a. (rhost) Tending to roast, roasting.

Rhostiedig, a. (rhostiad) Roasted; toasted.

Rhostiwr, s. m. (rhost—gwr) A roaster.

Rhosyn, s. m. dim. (rhos) A rose. It is otherwise called breila and breilly. Rhosyn y mynydd, blodau y brenin, mountain rose.

Rhoth, a. (f. of rhwth) Loose, hollow, swaggy.

RHU, s. m. r. A forcible sending out; a loud utterance; a roar.

Rhuad, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhu) A roaring; a talking loudly; loquacity.

Rhuadaidd, a. (rhuad) Apt to roar; noisy.

Rhuadawl, a. (rhuad) Roaring; blustering.

Rhuadu, v. a. (rhuad) To make a roaring.

Rhuadus, a. (rhuad) Roaring; loquacious.

Rhuadusaw, v. a. (rhuadus) To render loquacious, to become loquacious.

Rhuadwr, s. m.—pl. rhuadwyr (rhuad—gwr) A roarer; a boaster, a blusterer.

Rhuadwy, a. (rhuad) Roaring; loquacious. Llew rhuadwy, a roaring lion.

Rhuain, a. (rhu) Roaring; blustering.

Rhuaw, v. a. (rhu) To roar; to talk loudly; to bluster. Rhuaw tarw yna, a bull roars there.

Rhuawd, s. m. (rhu) A roaring; a loud talk.

Rhuawdr, s. m.—pl. rhuadron (rhuawd) A roarer.

Rhuawl, a. (rhu) Roaring; loquacious.

Rhuch, s. m. (rhy—uch) A coat, a film, a husk.

Rhuchaw, v. a. (rhuch) To coat over, to husk.

Rhuchawl, a. (rhuch) Tending to coat over.

Rhuchen, s. f. dim. (rhuch) A coat, a skin; a leathern jerkin; a web in the eye.

Mychlad a rhuchben a groen undano.

A ewincherd with a coat of skin about him.

H. Culluch—Mallorquin.

Rhuchiad, s. m. (rhuch) A coating, a husking.

Rhuchlaw, v. a. (rhuch) To coat over, to husk.

Rhuchiedig, a. (rhuchiad) Coated, husked.

Rhuchion, s. pl. (rhuch) Husks, gurgions.

Rhuchionald, a. (rhuchion) Apt to be husky.

Rhuchionawg, a. (rhuchion) Having husks.

Rhuchioni, v. a. (rhuchion) To clear of husks.

Rhuchionllyd, a. (rhuchion) Full of husks.

Rhuchionyn, s. m. dim. (rhuchion) An outside covering, or film; a thin husk.

Rhuchlawr, s. m.—pl. rhuchlawyr (rhuch—gwr)

One who skins, one who clears of husks.

Rhud, s. m. (rhy—ud) A cast or drive forward; rue; also called gorddawn.

Rhudd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhy—udd) A ruddy or crimson colour. a. Ruddy, crimson; callow.

Yn Llongborth gwelid i waedffus.

Ac ddaew rhag arfys.

A gwyrr rhudd rhag rhuthr angus.

In Llongborth I saw a blood stream, and here houses of arms and red men from the manseil of death. Llywarch Hu.

Rhuddain, a. (rhudd) Of a crimson colour.

Rhuddaur, s. m. (rhudd—aur) Ruddy gold.

Rhuddaw, v. a. (rhudd) To make of a crimson colour; to become of a crimson hue.

Rhuddawg, a. (rhudd) Having a redness. Y rhuddawg, the redbreast.

Rhuddawl, a. (rhudd) Tending to redden.

Rhuddbar, s. f. (rhudd—par) A ruddy spear.

Rhudded, s. m. (rhudd) A red streak; a path.

Rhuddedig, a. (rhudd) Being made ruddy.

Rhuddel, s. f. (rhudd) A ruddy tinge; a glow.

Y seren—

Yn ganad ruddel felan.

The star appearing a luminary of yellow glow. Iolo Goch.

Rhuddell, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhudd—eli) A red alive.

Rhuddelin, a. (rhuddel) Of a ruddy tinge.

Rhuddell, s. f. (rhudd) A crimson colour; red ochre, or ruddle, also called red cock; menial.

Rhuddellen, s. f. (rhuddell) One of a ruddy hue.

Y ferch hygar ruddellen.

The maid that is a lovely one of ruddy hue. D. al Gwilym.

Rhuddelliad, s. m. (rhuddell) A streaking with crimson, a staining with crimson.

Rhuddellu, v. a. (rhuddell) To stain with crimson.

Rhuddem, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhudd—gem) A ruby.

Ac y dan ruddem ruddau fodwyr.

And beneath the ruby a ring of ruddy gold. Cyddallu.

Rhuden, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhudd) What is of a crimson hue; a red streak; a ruby.

Rhuddenn, v. a. (rhudden) To streak with red.

Rhuddewr, a. (rhudd—erw) Surrounded with red.

Marwor rhuddewr, red glowing embers.

Rhuddfa, s. f.—pl. rhuddfeydd (rhudd) A red-dened spot; a spot of ground parched or made bare of grass.

Rhuddfaawg, a. (rhuddfa) Abounding with crimson spots: An epithet for a warrior, synonymous with rhuddfaawg.

Helm-gribawg rhuddfawg fydd.

With helm high-crowned stained with crimson he will be. Adage.

Rhuddfan, s. f. (rhudd—man) A crimson spot.
Rhuddfanawg, a. (rhuddfan) Crimson spotted.

Tri rhuddfanogion Ys Prydai: Arthur, Morgan Mwynawr, a Rhun fab Bell. Ser pan elyot i ryfel, ni fynai neb arawo gartref, rhag pwynt yn cerdd.

The three crimson spotted ones of the tale of Britain; Arthur, Morgan the Courtous, and Rhun the son of Bell. Because, when they went to war, no body would wish to stay at home; so they were so greatly beloved.

Rhuddfand, v. a. (rhuddfan) To spot with red.
Rhuddfand, s. f. (rhudd—medel) A suddy reap.

Rhuddfand rhafel a ddiddan.

The crimson reap of war is thy delight.

Anarion.

Rhuddfelyu, s. m. (rhudd—melyn) An orange yellow. a. Of an orange yellow.

Rhuddgoch, s. m. (rhudd—coch) A crimson red, pink, purple colour. a. Of a pink colour.

Rhuddgochedd, s. m. (rhuddgoch) The state of being of a pink colour.

Rhuddgochi, v. a. (rhuddgoch) To turn to a pink.

Rhuddgochni, s. m. (rhuddgoch) The state of being of a pink colour.

Rhuddiad, s. m. (rhudd) A turning to a pink.

Rhuddiant, s. m. (rhudd) A turning to a pink.

Rhuddin, s. m. (rhudd) The heart of timber.

—Yr yrr pres yrrin.

A Rhuddierch ydy'r rhuddin.

—Is the vine tree; and Rhuddierch is the heart of oak.

H. Cae Llyed.

Rhuddinaw, v. n. (rhuddin) To form a core.

Rhuddinawg, a. (rhuddin) Having sound wood.

Rhuddinedd, s. m. (rhuddin) The soundness of timber.

Rhudding, s. m. (rhudd) The heart of timber.

Rhuddion, s. pl. aggr. (rhudd) Gurgions. Rhuddion gwenth, the husks or bran of wheat.

Rhuddionawg, a. (rhuddion) Having gurgions.

Rhuddioni, v. a. (rhuddion) To clear of gurgions.

Rhuddionllyd, a. (rhuddion) Full of gurgions.

Rhuddlas, s. m. (rhudd—glas) A crimson blue.

Rhuddlasad, s. m. (rhuddlas) A turning purple.

Rhuddlasa, v. a. (rhuddlas) To turn purple.

Rhuddlesi, s. m. (rhuddlas) A purple colour.

Rhuddlwyd, s. m. (rhudd—llwyd) A russet colour.

Rhuddlwydaw, v. n. (rhuddlwyd) To turn of a russet colour; to make of russet colour.

Rhuddos, s. pl. dim. (rhudd) Marigold. Rhuddos y morfa, or rhuddos y gors, marsh marigold.

Rhuddwern, s. pl. aggr. (rhudd—gwern) The bird-cherry trees.

Rhuddwern, s. f. (rhuddwern) A bird-cherry.

Rhuddyg, v. m. (rhudd) That is of crimson hue.

Rhuddyg, s. m. (rhuddyg) Raddish. Rhuddyg y Mawrik, or rhuddyg y meirch, march-ruddyg, horse-raddish.

Rhuedd, s. m. (rhu) A roaring; loquacity.

Rhueil, s. f. (rhueil) A clasion.

—Dwydd y rhueil.

Coron rhueilid eidd gellwra.

Gwydd y mawrik, the clasion born of our house.

Cynddelin.

Rhuf, s. m. (rhu) That tends forward; that breaks out; that is of a reddish hue.

Rhufain, s. f. Rome. Dinds Rhufain, the city of Rome.

Rhufellad, s. m.—pl. rhufellad (rhufain) A Roman, or inhabitant of Rome.

Rhufellaid, a. (rhufain) Romanized.

Rhufellig, a. (rhufain) Roman; of Rome.

Rhufell, s. f.—pl. t. od (rhuf) A roach.

Rhufon, s. m. (rhuf) That is reddened.

Rhug, s. m. (rhu) That is apt to move; that abounds with breaks or points.

Voz. II.

Rhugi, s. f. (rhug) Quickness; friction. a. Of free motion; free; ready; fluent; rife.

Rhugladd, a. (rhugi) Apt to be in motion.

Rhuglaw, v. a. (rhugi) To move about briskly; to use dexterity or readiness; to clear, to clear away; to smooth, to rub. Rhuglaw y baw i ffwrdd, shovel away the dirt.

Rhuglchwyrn, a. (rhugi—chwyrn) Of apt fluency.

Rhugledig, a. (rhugliad) Being cleared; rubbed.

Rhugledd, s. m. (rhugi) A brisk motion; friction; readiness; fluency. Rhugledd ymadrawdd, fluency of speech.

Rhuglen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (rhugi) A drum.

Rhuglfar, s. m. (rhugi—bar) Of ready wrath.

Rhuglffwng, a. (rhugi—ffwng) Apt to be sullen.

Rhuglgoen, s. f. (rhugi—croen) A rattle made of a dry hide, with stones in it, carried on a pole, used for scaring animals away.

Rhugliad, s. m. (rhugi) A moving briskly; a rubbing, a friction; a clearing away.

Rhuglwr, s. m.—pl. rhuglwyr (rhugi—gwr) One who rubs, makes smooth, or clears away.

Rhull, a. (rhu) Apt to break out; luxuriant; frank, free; rash, or hasty. Rhuddi yn rhull, to give frankly.

—O ddydd y'r brein ddol naban rhull, anghyfrwy yn frawd.

If the king should have appointed any due task and been expected to be a justiciary.

—Eidd of full i'w earth.

He will be called frank to the multitude.

Rhullder, s. m. (rhull) Luxuriance; profusion; promptness; rashness; frankness.

Rhuldra, s. m. (rhull) The state of being rife; frankness; rashness.

Rhulledd, s. m. (rhull) Rifeness; frankness.

Rhullfald, a. (rhull—fald) Rashly proud.

Llan brychan buan yw bod yn rhullfald.

—A'r hollid yd fwrddhod.

Small and transitory the benefit from being thoughtlessly proud, while the universe is like a wheel.

—D. ab Gwilym.

Rhullfald, s. m. (rhull) A being rife; a going on rashly; a frankly acting.

Rhulliant, s. m. (rhull) Rashness; frankness.

Rhum, s. m. (rhu) That tends out; that projects, that swells out.

Rhumawg, s. m. (rhum) Having a rotundity. s. f.

Rhumen, s. f. dim. (rhum) The paunch, or belly.

Nid iachach yr enaid er llenwi y rhumon.

The soul is not more sure for filling of the paunch.

—Adge.

Rhumad, s. m. (rhum) A forming a paunch.

Rhumwth, s. m. (rhum) A greedy-gut.

Rhun, s. m. (rhu—un) That is grand or awful.

Rhnon, s. m. (rhu) A ravager; a warrior.

Rhus, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhu) A beginning of motion; that starts out; a starting off, a recoil; a start from the effect of shyness; also an epithet for a fox, like reynard in English. In Siluria, the first starter of a fox calls hwi rhus!

Rhusaeth, s. m. (rhus) The act of starting.

Rhusaw, v. a. (rhus) To start off; to flit away; to start with fear; to hesitate.

Rhusawg, a. (rhus) Starting; hesitating; shy.

Rhusawl, a. (rhus) Starting; hesitating; shy.

Rhusedig, a. (rhus) Being made to start.

Rhusedd, s. m. (rhus) A state of starting; a state of hesitation; shyness.

Rhusfa, s. f.—pl. rhusfeydd (rhus) A starting.

Rhusgar, a. (rhus) Apt to start; restive.

3 0

Rhusgarweh, s. m. (rhusgar) Aptness to start.
Rhnsiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhus) A beginning to move; a starting; a hesitation.
Rhusiant, s. m. (rhus) A starting; hesitation.
Rhusoglyd, s. (rhusawg) Apt to start; restive.
Rhusogrydd, s. m. (rhusawg) The state of being subject to starting; restiveness.
Rhuswr, s. m.—pl. rhuswyr (rhus—gwr) A starter.
Rhuth, s. m. (rhu) A break out; a rush.
Rhuthr, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhuth) A sudden drive, gust, or rushing; an attack, assault, or onset; a stretch; a good while.

*Yn Llŷnborrh gwelais I rhythaf,
 Ac clorawr mwy na maint,
 A gwyr rhudd rhag rhuthr Geraint.*

In Llŷnborrh I beheld the desolation of wrath, and here not to be numbered, and warriors stained with blood from the assault of Geraint.
Llywarch Hen.

Gwedy treullaw rhuthr o amser, Caswallon ac Edwyn—a yn-chwelasant trach eu cefn i eu gwlad.

After consuming a length of time, Caswallon and Edwyn returned back to their country.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhuthrad, s. m. (rhuthr) A rushing forward.
Rhuthraw, v. a. (rhuthr) To make an onset, to rush, to assault, to fly or run at.
Rhuthrawg, a. (rhuthr) Apt to rush, apt to attack. Tarw rhuthrawg, a vicious bull.
Rhuthrawl, a. (rhuthr) Rushing, assaulting.
Rhuthredig, a. (rhuthrad) Being rushed upon.
Rhuthredd, s. m. (rhuthr) A state of rushing.
Rhuthriad, s. m. (rhuthr) A rushing onward.
Rhuthrlam, s. m. (rhuthr—llam) A rushing leap.
Rhuthrlym, a. (rhuthr—llym) Rushingly fierce or outrageous.
Rhuthrmaid, s. f.—pl. rhuthrneidiau (rhuthr—maid) A ramping leap.
Rhuthrwr, s. m.—pl. rhuthrwyr (rhuthr—gwr) One who rushes forward; an assaulter.
Rhuthrwyllt, a. (rhuthr—gwyllt) Rushingly wild, outrageous, or furious.
Rhuwch, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhu) An exterior coat, a rug; a rough garment. Gogyr rhuwoch, a ranging sieve, a bolter.

*Rhuwch mab allt LX a dal:
 Rhuwch talawg XXX a dal.*

A fine brown's rug is of the value of sixty pence; a villan's rug is worth thirty pence.
Welsh Laws.

Rhuwchen, s. f. dim. (rhuwch) An exterior coat; a rough cloak; a rug.
Rhuwr, s. m.—pl. rhuwyr (rhu—gwr) A roarer; a loquacious or noisy person.
RHW, s. m. r. What breaks or grows out.
Rhwawg, a. (rhw) Abounding with growth; having hair, full of hairs. Dyn rhwawg, a very hairy man, or one who has a thick strong beard. Sil. Iestyn Farfrawg, Iestyn with the thick beard.
Rhwb, s. m. (rhw—wb) A rub; a chafe.
Rhwbiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwb) A rubbing.
Rhwbiaw, v. a. (rhwb) To rub; to chafe.
Rhwbiawl, a. (rhwb) Rubbing, tending to rub.
Rhwbiwr, s. m. (rhwb—gwr) One who rubs.
Rhwch, s. m. (rhw) That is rough; a grunt.

Rhwy i hwb ei rhwch.

Genital to the sow is her grunt.

Adage.

Rhwchiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwch) A grunting.
Rhwchial, s. m. (rhwch) A grunting, such as a hog makes when he is shrill with it.
Rhwchiala, v. a. (rhwchial) To keep grunting.
Rhwchialw, v. a. (rhwch) To grunt; to grumble.

Rhwchiawl, a. (rhwch) Grunting, grumbling.
Rhwchws, s. m. (rhwch) A ray, or a skate.
Rhwd, s. m. (rhw—wd) What generates on a surface; rust; also the smut in corn. Rhwd kalarn, iron mould; rhwd lli, the crust or sediment left by a flood; rhwd tomydd, the draining of dunghills.
Rhwdawg, a. (rhwd) Covered with rust, rusty, of a rusty colour. Y rhwdarg, the redbreast; also called Y rhuddawg, brownhuddyn, and browgock.
Rhwf, s. m. (rhw) That breaks out; that swells or puffs out; a ravager.
Rhwg, s. m. (rhw) That projects; a rub.
Rhwgl, s. m. (rhwg) That tends to reach.
Rhwgu, s. m. (rhwg) A rub, a friction; a place rubbed or worn away.
Rhwg, s. m. (rhy—wm) That tends inward.
Rhwmai, s. m. (rhwmyn) That runs through; a main channel. There are several rivers so called. Gwia rhwmnai, rhenish wine.
Rhwmp, s. m. (rhwm) A borer, an auger.

Rhwmp, dwyrcialawg a dal.

A large auger, its value is two-pence.
Welsh Laws.

Rhwmyrn, s. m. (rhwm) That perforates.
Rhwn, s. m. (rhy—wn) That covers over.
Rhwnc, s. m. (rhy—wnc) A snort, a snore. Rhwn yn ngwddu, a rattle in the throat.
Rhwnciad, s. m. (rhwnc) A snorting; a guggling.
Rhwncian, s. m. (rhwnc) A snorting; a guggle.
Rhwncianu, v. a. (rhwncian) To make a continual snorting; to make a guggling.
Rhwnciaw, v. a. (rhwnc) To snort; to guggle.
Rhwnciawl, a. (rhwnc) Snorting; guggling.
Rhwnen, s. f. (rhwn) A single pear.
Rhwnai, s. m. (rhwn—si) A rough-coated horse.
Rhwnt, s. m. (rhwn) That covers over.
Rhwnyn, s. pl. aggr. (rhwn) Pears. They are also called gellaig, crain, and peranen.
Rhwnynen, s. f. dim. (rhwnyn) One of pears.
Rhwng, s. m. (rhy—wng) Intermediacy.
Rhwng, prep. (rhy—wng) Between. Rhwng, rhyngwyf, rhyngthof, rhyngthwyf, between me; rhyngot, rhyngthot, between thee; rhynga, rhyngtho, between him; rhyngt, rhyngthi, between her; rhyngom, rhyngthom, between us; rhyngoch, rhyngthoch, between you; rhyngyt, rhyngthyt, between them.

Cent pent yn y flwyddyn yw y gwahaniant rhwng dau a dyn.

A hundred pounds a year is the difference between go and cent.
Adage.

Rhws, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (rhws) A fertile country; a cultivated region, as opposed to the wilds. It is synonymous with bre.
Rhw, s. m. (rhws) That tends out, that is bulky; that is luxuriant. a. Bulky; luxuriant, fertile. Tŷ rhwng, rank land, that is rich, or apt to overrun with fern and the like.
Rhwriad, s. m. (rhwd) A corroding; a chafing.
Rhwriaw, v. a. (rhwd) To corrode; to fret, to rub.
Rhwriawg, a. (rhwd) Having a fret or chafe.
Rhwriawl, a. (rhwd) Corroding; chafing.
Rhwriedig, a. (rhwriad) Corroded; chafed.
Rhwrtion, s. pl. aggr. (rhwd) Particles; dregs.
Rhwrtion, v. a. (rhwtion) To produce dregs.
Rhwrtws, s. pl. dim. (rhwd) Small unconnected particles; dregs, dross.
Rhwrtionlyd, a. (rhwtion) Drossy, or dreggy.
Rhwth, s. m. (rhw—wth) That is open or wide.
a. Wide, open, gaping, yawning; greedy.

Rhwy, s. m. (rhw) That runs out, or through; excess, superfluity.

*Nid mawr i'rh gerid,
Os rhwy a erchid.*

Not greatly wouldst thou be loved, if thou shouldst ask for too much.

Rhwy, adv. (rhw) Too much, to excess; utterly.

A gwyso rhwy ni rygwyaion.

He that complains of too much does not complain at all.

*Angen cad ordwy, rhwy rhymcoddeu;
Angen a'm lloed gwen; gwae, rwy galles —Cadwaladr!*

The death of devastating war has afflicted me to excess; necessity restrains my smile; alas, utterly lost is Cadwaladr!

Rhwyad, s. m. (rhwy) A producing excess; the fish called a pike.

Rhwyaw, v. a. (rhwy) To produce an excess.

Rhwyawl, a. (rhwy) Excessive, superfluous.

Rhwyach, s. f. (rhwy) That extends out.

Rhwyd, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhwy) That abounds with openings or holes; a net. Rhwyd gibliad, a hoop net; rhwyd dŷn, a drag net; rhwyd cōg-iad, rhwyd balleg, ballegrwyd, a salmon net; rhwyd ddwyffon, a net between two stiffs; rhwyd aden, a wing net; rhwyd adera, a birding net.

*Detholais fy rhwyf yn rhwyd geilynol,
Gai ymlai yn malyngawyd.*

I have chosen my leader as the snare of fens, a wild opponent in the conflict.

Rhwydadwy, a. (rhwyd) Capable of being netted.

Rhwydaw, v. a. (rhwyd) To make a net, to net; to take in a net; to entangle, to ensnare.

Rhwydawl, a. (rhwyd) Reticulated, netted.

Rhwydawl, a. (rhwyd) Reticular, ensnaring.

*Rhwyd free-foi rhwydol, rhodia y creigran,
Rhadrau, was mwythas, a'rh oemethia.*

With thy loose rotten belly entangled, stroll about the rocks, son of dainties, entrails shall be thy food.

R. Goch Bryri, i hwyang.

Rhwydedig, a. (rhwyd) Reticulated; ensnared.

Rhwyden, s. f. dim. (rhwyd) A net; a caul.

Rhwyddiad, s. m. (rhwyd) Reticulation, netting.

Rhwydronell, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhwyd—rhonell) A lace; a snare, a gin.

Rhwydwaith, s. m. (rhwyd—gwaith) A net-work, a caul.

Rhwydwydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwyd—gwëydd) A net-maker.

Rhwydwr, s. m. (rhwyd—gwr) A net man.

Rhwydd, a. (rhwy) Open, clear, or free of obstruction; easy to be accomplished; easy, frank; prosperous; tolerable, pretty well. Rhwydd gaus, tolerable singing. adverb, Tolerably. Rhwydd iach, tolerably well; rhwydd debyg, tolerably like.

Rhwydd ni bo dyrry.

What is not entangled is unobstructed.

Adage.

Ni welais i iam rhwydd i ewig.

I have not seen an unobstructed leap for a doe.

Adage.

Rhwyddiad, s. m. (rhwydd) A rendering clear free, or easy; a becoming unobstructed.

Rhwyddadwy, a. (rhwydd) Capable of being free, easy, or unobstructed.

Rhwyddaid, a. (rhwydd) Somewhat open or easy

Rhwyddân, v. a. (rhwydd) To clear of obstruction; to make easy; to facilitate, to speed.

Rhwyddaw, v. a. (rhwydd) To free, to clear, to make easy; to become unobstructed.

Rhwyddawl, a. (rhwydd) Facilitating, freeing.

Rhwyddawr, s. m.—pl. rhwyddawyr (rhwyddân—gwr) One who clears from obstruction.

Rhwydd-deb, s. m. (rhwydd) Clearness from obstruction; facility; success, prosperity.

Rhwydd-deb iti! Success attend thee!

Rhwydded, s. f. (rhwydd) Free course; success.

Rhwyddedig, a. (rhwydd) Being facilitated.

Rhwyddfodd, s. m. (rhwydd—bodd) A free will, good pleasure. a. Of free will.

Rhwyddfudd, s. f. (rhwydd—budd) Benefit easily obtained. a. Liberal of benefit.

Rhwyddgadw, v. (rhwydd—cadw) To keep freely.

Nfm rhwyddgeidr Rhodri.

Rhodri will not freely support me.

Gwalchmai.

Rhwyddgael, v. a. (rhwydd—cael) To get easily.

Rhwyddged, s. f. (rhwydd—ced) Treasure easily obtained. a. Free of treasure.

Rhwyddgof, s. m. (rhwydd—cof) A clear memory.

Rhwyddhynt, s. f. (rhwydd—hynt) Free course.

Rhwyddiad, s. m. (rhwydd) A rendering clear, open, easy, or unobstructed; a facilitating.

Rhwyddiannawl, a. (rhwyddiant) Facilitating.

Rhwyddiannu, v. a. (rhwyddiant) To render clear, easy, or unobstructed, to make facile.

Rhwyddiant, s. m. (rhwydd) Facility, or easiness.

Rhwyddiat, ger. (rhwyddiad) In facilitating.

Rhwyddineb, s. m. (rhwydd) The state of being clear, easy, or unobstructed.

*Tri rhagoriath mydr; cywreiddob, rhwyddineb, ac accan ber.
The three excellencies of metre; accuracy, polish, and harmonious accent.*

Dardur.

Rhwydditor, sup. (rhwydd) To be facilitating.

Rhwyddles, s. m. (rhwydd—lles) Unobstructed benefit. a. Of unrestrained advantage.

Rhwyddlwyn, s. m. (rhwydd—llwyn) The speedwell; also called lysiau Llywelyn. Rhwyddlwyn blewynawg, germander speedwell.

Rhwyddoldeb, s. m. (rhwyddawl) The state of being clear, easy, or unobstructed.

Rhwyddoli, v. a. (rhwyddawl) To facilitate.

Rhwyddrad, s. m. (rhwydd—rhad) Free grace; free bounty. a. Of unrestrained grace.

Rheiddrudd reddiad, rhwyddrad run.

A ruddy-lanced distributor, a prodigal of unrestrained bounty.

Cynddelw, i hwyangwyn.

Rhwyddred, s. f. (rhwydd—rhed) A free course. a. Of unobstructed course.

Rhwyddrwyg, s. m. (rhwydd—rhwyg) Freeway a. Of unrestrained sway.

Rhwyddyn, s. m. (rhwydd) That is loose or easy.

Rhwyddyndawd, s. m. (rhwyddyn) Facility.

Rhwyddynedd, s. m. (rhwyddyn) The state of being free, easy, or unrestricted.

Yn wir dymbl—

Rhwyddynedd buddedig rhwydd rhelthau.

In truth to me there shall come the freedom of the advantageous abundance of the chiefs of the laws.

Telvisin.

Rhwyddynn, v. a. (rhwyddyn) To facilitate.

Rhwyf, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhwy) That tends forward, impels, or directs; a tendency forward; ambition; a commander, a ruler; also an oar.

Llong ddwyrywyf, dwyrywyfan, a ship with two oars.

*Yr haf bynaw, rhwyf hion,
O'm erch amadad nac'tu son!
Dychwel yn ol i'r dolydd
Yn dram draw er gwigaw gwydd.*

Thou genial summer, sovereign of serenity, my theme is of my love for thee! Return to the dais again, in fair order there to deck the wood.

D. ab Gwilym.

*Bwlthron, trawnon, mawr gw'a rhwyf,
I'm fo'm ar nwyf yn porthi.*

Proud ones, froward ones, great is our arrogance, whilst on our passion we are borne.

T. ab Iwan Madwg.

Rhwyfad, s. m. (rhwyf) An impelling forward; a directing; a swaying.
Rhwyfadin, s. f. (rhwyf+adin) A guiding wing; a guiding or impelling fin.

Tau dy fron—
 Ddwy adain dda odineth;
 Ac ar dy gefn gwyd gain,
 I fudo dy rhwyfadu.

Beneath thy breast two wings excellently good; and on thy back of fair extent, to move along, thy directing fin.

T. Prys, yr gleisiad,

Rhwyfadr, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwyfad) One who sways; a ruler; a guider, a director.
Rhwyfal, s. c. (rhwyf) That sways, dominator.
Rhwyfain, v. a. (rhwyf) To be swaying.
Rhwyfah, s. m. (rhwyf) That sends or directs forward; rule, sway, direction. "Oer rwyfan tymhestl," the cold sway of the tempest.
Rhwyfan, v. a. (rhwyf) To guide, to direct; to bear sway, to dominate.

Rhyrfeldiaf naſ northawg ddgyrchu,
 Yn rhwyfan teulu, rhwyf teuluwng.

With confidence I will venture to approach the mighty chief, conducting a family, a lord of a numerous race.

L. P. Moch, i Llewelyn ab Iorwerth.

Llaw oſtrech wrth rwyfan Mordwyll.

An overpowering hand whilst sweeping on the wiggery course.

L. P. Moch.

Rhwyfanawl, a. (rhwyfan) Swaying; directing.
Rhwyfanes, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhwyfan) A female who rules, guides, or directs.
Rhwyfaniad, s. m. (rhwyfan) A swaying; a directing; domination.
Rhwyfaniaeth, s. m. (rhwyfan) Domination.
Rhwyfanu, v. a. (rhwyfan) To dominate.
Rhwyfanus, a. (rhwyfan) Dominative; ruling.

Gwelonau ſfrath bid arſtuthur;
 Yd fyddant wyr rhemaſt ryd rwyfanus.

Loquacious youths let them be full of designs; aspiring men will be of imperious course.

Myrddin.

Rhwyfaw, v. a. (rhwyf) To tend forward; to guide; to impel; to rule; to sway; also to row.
Rhwyfawl, a. (rhwyf) Ruling, swaying; directing; rowing.
Rhwyfedig, a. (rhwyf) Swayed; directed; rowed.
Rhwyfennydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwyfan) A ruler.

Y profwy fy marddirio,
 Gysedn uch cynnas,
 Bedd Rhafawn rwyfennydd ran.

So as to prove my bardic lore, of superior lot, this is the grave of Rhafawn with the aspect of an imperious one.

Tallies.

Rhwyfiad, s. m. (rhwyf) A tending forward; a directing; a swaying; a rowing.
Rhwyfiadawl, a. (rhwyfiad) Dominative.
Rhwyfiadu, v. a. (rhwyfiad) To dominate.
Rhwyfiadr, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhwyfiad) One who sways, rules, or directs; a governor.

Oſann barchellian—
 Cladd yn lle argel yu argoeddyd,
 Rhag arwy Rhyderch Hael, rhwyfiadr fydd.

Listen, little pig: burrow in a secret place in the bordering woods, for fear of the chase of Rhyderch the Generous, leader of the faith.

Myrddin.

Rhwyfiadus, a. (rhwyfiad) Dominative.
Rhwyfiant, s. m. (rhwyf) Domination.
Rhwyfiator, ger. (rhwyfiad) In directing.
Rhwyfiheb, s. m. (rhwyf) Guidance; sway.
Rhwyfiator, sup. (rhwyf) To be swaying.
Rhwyfiolaeth, s. m. (rhwyfiawl) Dictatorship.
Rhwyfoldeb, s. m. (rhwyfiawl) A state of sway, direction, or authority; a dictatorial state.
Rhwyfoli, v. a. (rhwyfiawl) To render dominant; to become possessed of sway, to become dictatorial.

Rhwyfus, a. (rhwyf) Fond of sway; haughty.

Gwnae ddilyn cyngor gwyf boneddigion iwaſac rhwyfus gyt na dangosodd gwyf araf doethlawn.

He would follow the advice of proud young men of noble rank sooner than the direction of moderate wise men.

Manwyllyr Crypdyll.

Rhwyfusaw, v. a. (rhwyfus) To render imperious or haughty; to become dictatorial.
Rhwyfusedd, s. m. (rhwyfus) Imperiousness.
Rhwyfwr, s. m.—pl. rhwyfwyr (rhwyf—gwr) One who leads or impels forward; a rower.
Rhwyfydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwyf) One who guides or directs; a rower.
Rhwyg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwy) A rent, a rupture.
Rhwygawdy, a. (rhwyg) Capable of being rent.
Rhwygaw, v. a. (rhwyg) To rend, or to tear.
Rhwygawl, a. (rhwyg) Rending, lacerating.
Rhwygedig, a. (rhwyg) Rent, torn, lacerated.
Rhwygiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwyg) A tearing.

Per cynhyſtor rador, parau rwygſt tris,
 Paſau gwirodion wis, pen gwirodſt.

A chief of superior council who would condone the tearing of conflict, the displayer of unskill wine, supreme deliverer.

D. M. Gwynn.

Rhwygiant, s. m. (rhwyg) A tearing, a rending.
Rhwygiator, ger. (rhwygiad) In tearing.
Rhwygitor, sup. (rhwyg) To be tearing.
Rhwygwr, s. m. (rhwyg—gwr) A tearer.
Rhwyi, s. m.—pl. t. on (rhwy) An open space; a clear enclosed spot; a ring-fence; court.

Rhwyi Careg Hŏle calas ynddu
 Gwedd Sŏnwes, lladron yn eo Rŏnwes.

The Hall of Cŏrŏg Hŏle had in it the abode of Sŏnwes, those who were reduced to dust.

Llywŏd Gwr, i Gŏ. Rŏnwes.

Rhwyllaw, v. a. (rhwyll) To make an opening; to form a paddock, or enclosure.
Rhwyllwaith, s. m. (rhwyll—gwaith) Open-work; a curious interlaced work.

Rhwyll, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhwy) A narrow aperture; a hole; a mortise; an interstice; a passage; a casement; also a fretwork, or open work. Rhwyllan botymas, button-holes; rhwyllan gwydd, brwyllan gwydd, a weaver's reeds.

A rhwyll yn aghael pob gŏd.

And a fretwork in the midst of every circle.

W. Lloyd, i Jŏ.

Tri llaw, glas fal yr ŏur,
 Triw wyll dan, o'r taŕ rhwyll dan.

Three lions, blue like azure sky, through velvet dan, behind three fŏtes of steel.

Iolo Goch, i Jŏ. Llewŏd.

Rhwyllaw, v. a. (rhwyll) To make narrow aperture; to make fretwork; to make lattice-work.
Rhwyllaw edafedd, to wind thread.
Rhwyllawg, a. (rhwyll) Abounding with holes or interstices; fretted, consisting of lattice-work, chequered, cross-barred.

Yr oedd hen wing o hŏll rhwyllawg ŏndant.

There was an old garment of fretted velvet about her.

R. Ffrench—Mŏkington.

Rhwylledig, a. (rhwyll) Perforated with crevices; fretted, grated; latticed.
Rhwylliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwyll) A forming of narrow apertures; a fretting; a grating, a making lattice-work.
Rhwyllwaith, s. m. (rhwyll—gwaith) A fret-work.
Rhwyllwr, s. m.—pl. rhwyllwyr (rhwyll—gwr) One who makes interstices, or fretwork.
Rhwyim, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwy) That circumscribes or contains; a bond, a tie. a Bound.

Dyga ran dy garennydd;
 Dwg ai o'r rhwym dygn y rhwyd!

Take the portion of thy hindred; take us from our wryne hand and set us free!

Iolo Goch, i Gŏ. Gŏndwr.

Rhwymaw, v. a. (rhwym) To bind, to tie.

Rhwymaw gwartheg, to tie or to house cattle.

Rhwymawl, a. (rhwym) Tending to bind; binding; restrictive; obligatory.

Rhwymbleth, s. f.—pl. t. i (rhwym—pleth) An entwined wreath.

Rhwymed, s. m. (rhwym) A bounden state.

Rhwymedi, t. m. (rhwym) That keeps bound; a power to bind or to restrain.

*Ymdeh heb rhwymedi;
A thost ymdeh a thl!*

To part without a power to prevent, and afflicting it to part with grief.
W. Llyn.

Rhwymedig, a. (rhwym) Bounden, tied; obliged

Rhwymedigweth, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwymedig) The state of being bound; restriction.

*Dygal, o'r rhwymedigweth,
Dda i'w naf, da i'w swath.*

He conducted, owing to his confinement, two hosts to heaven; a good deed by that performed.
Rep. The. Paphig.

Rhwymedigaw, v. a. (rhwymedig) To render bounden; to become bounden.

Rhwymedigawl, a. (rhwymedig) Obligatory.

Rhwymedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwym) Oblige

Rhwymedd, s. m. (rhwym) A bounden state.

Rhwymiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwym) A tying; a binding; a bandage; restriction; obligation.

Rhwymianawl, a. (rhwymiant) Restrictive.

Rhwymianaw, v. a. (rhwymiant) To make a restriction, to make an obligation.

Rhwymiant, a. m. (rhwym) Restriction; bond.

Rhwymwr, s. m.—pl. rhwymwyr (rhwym—gwr) One who binds.

Rhwymydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwym) A binder.

Rhwymyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (rhwym) A band, a bandage; a swathe, a swaddling-band.

Rhwymyn y coed, black briony.

Rhwymynawl, a. (rhwymyn) Tying, binding.

Rhwymyniad, s. m. (rhwymyn) A tying on a bandage; a swaddling.

Rhwymynw, s. m.—pl. rhwymynwyr (rhwymyn—gwr) One who puts on a bandage.

Rhwy, s. m. (rhwy) A stretching round, a wind, or twist.

Rhwynaw, v. a. (rhwyn) To stretch round.

Rhwyniad, s. m. (rhwyn) A stretching round.

Rhwyoli, v. a. (rhwyawl) To render excessive or superfluous; to become prodigal.

Rhwys, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwy) Vigour; wantonness; luxuriance. a. Vigorous, lively, wanton; luxuriant.

*Tydi yr haf, tad y rhwys,
A'ih goed-frig berth gaudrhws,*

Cawn geudy y byd o'i ben.

These summer-fishes of spring, with thy fair regalling hypocotes thickly spreading, of these we shall have the world all before us.
D. ab Gwilym.

Rhwysaw, v. a. (rhwys) To render vigorous; to render luxuriant; to become vigorous.

Rhwysawg, a. (rhwys) Full of vigour; luxuriant

*Y got—
A thraswrch f'ih deith rhwysawg
Yn minio gwaed—Clyw f.*

The cuckoo, with thy lively language filled with fond love, expressing praise, listen to me.
D. ab Gwilym.

Rhwysawl, a. (rhwys) Invigorating; enlivening.

Rhwysdawd, s. m. (rhwys) Vigorosity; luxuriance; liveliness, wantonness.

Rhwysdeb, s. m. (rhwys) Vigorosity; vivacity

Rhwysder, s. m. (rhwys) Vigorosity; vivacity.

Rhwysdra, s. m. (rhwys) Vigorosity; luxuriance, fertility; liveliness; wantonness.

Rhwysedig, a. (rhwys) Invigorated; enlivened.

Rhwysedd, s. m. (rhwys) Vigorosity; vivacity.

Rhwysfawr, a. (rhwys) Full of vigour; greatly luxuriant; full of vivacity.

Rhwysg, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhy—gwyg) A career,

a course; forwardness; sway; pomp; grandeur.

Rhwysg mawen, a snail's track; more efe yd fawt ei rwyg, he takes upon himself great sway.

Rhwysgaw, v. a. (rhwyg) To make a career, to run a course; to go forward, to risk; to take upon one's self to sway, to be forward.

Rhwysgawd, s. m. (rhwyg) The act of taking a career or swaying; a taking a career.

Rhwysgawg, a. (rhwyg) Having an open course or career; having sway; forward.

Rhwysgawl, a. (rhwyg) Going an unrestrained course; risking, swaying; forward.

Rhwysgedig, a. (rhwyg) Being made to run headlong; unrestrained.

Rhwysgedd, s. m. (rhwyg) The state of having; unobstructed course or sway.

Rhwysgawr, a. (rhwyg) Of great sway; of pomp.

Rhwysgoredd, s. m. (rhwygawr) Greatness of sway; unrestrained course; pomposity.

Rhwysglad, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwyg) A taking an unrestrained course; a swaying.

Rhwysgl, s. m. (rhwyg) A tendency to go headlong.

Rhwysglaw, v. a. (rhwygl) To run headlong.

Rhwysgliad, s. m. (rhwygl) A going headlong.

Rhwysglyd, a. (rhwygl) Forward, or resolute.

Rhwysgus, a. (rhwyg) Apt to start, starting.

March rhwysgus, a starting horse.

Rhwysgwr, s. m.—pl. rhwysgwyr (rhwyg—gwr) One who takes an unrestrained course.

Rhwysiad, s. m. (rhwys) An invigoration.

Rhwysiannawl, a. (rhwysiant) Invigorating.

Rhwysiannu, v. a. (rhwysiant) To invigorate; to become vigorous; to luxuriate.

Rhwysiant, s. m. (rhwys) An invigoration.

Rhwysineb, s. m. (rhwys) Vigorosity.

Rhwysogt, v. a. (rhwysawg) To render vigorous; to become vigorous; to luxuriate.

Rhwysoldeb, s. m. (rhwysawl) Vigorosity.

Rhwysolder, s. m. (rhwysawl) Vigorosity.

Rhwysoldd, s. m. (rhwysawl) Vigorosity.

Rhwysoli, v. a. (rhwysawl) To invigorate.

Rhwysr, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhy—gwyst) Opposition, hindrance, impediment, let, or obstacle.

*Nid traib ond tan;
Nid rhwysr ond dwf.*

There is no violence but fire; there is no obstruction but water.

Adage.

Rhwysrad, s. m. (rhwysr) An opposing; a hindering; opposition, obstruction.

Rhwysradwyr, a. (rhwysr) Capable of opposing, obstructing, or hindering.

Rhwysraw, v. a. (rhwysr) To go before; to oppose, to hinder; to become hindered.

Rhwysrawg, a. (rhwysr) Abounding with opposition or hindrance; restrictive.

Rhwysrawl, a. (rhwysr) Opposing, hindering.

Rhwystredig, a. (rhwysr) Opposed, hindered.

Rhwystredigweth, s. m. (rhwystredig) The act of opposing, obstruction, hindrance.

Rhwystredigawl, a. (rhwystredig) Obstructive.

Rhwystredd, s. m. (rhwysr) A state of opposition

Rhwysr, s. m. (rhwysr) Hindrance, or let.

*Yn myned i rhyw Eidd,
Er ymued o bob rhwysr.*

Going to the tale of Eidd, for deliverance from every obstruction.

Adage.

Rhwystriad, s. m.—pl. rhwystriaid (rhwystri) An obstructor, a hinderer.
Rhwystriadawl, a. (rhwystriad) Obstructive.
Rhwystrius, a. (rhwystri) Having opposition or obstacle; hindering, entangled, encumbered.
Rhwystriusaw, v. a. (rhwystrius) To render obstructive; to become obstructive.
Rhwystriusedd, s. m. (rhwystrius) Obstructiveness.
Rhwystriusi, s. m. (rhwystrius) Hindrance.
Rhwystriuswydd, s. m. (rhwystrius) A state of opposition or hindrance; clumsiness.
Rhwystriwr, s. m.—pl. rhwystriwyr (rhwystri-gwr) A hinderer, an obstructor.
Rhwysawd, s. m. (rhwys—gawd) Vigorous flow of genius.
Rhwyth, s. m. (rhw) That pervades; juice.

*Ardwyf, profaf grifawd, m. cyll,
 Eurged rhith yfed, nid rhwyth cyll.*

I will manage, I will carry a high strain of praise, not to perish, to the golden law of drinking, not of crab-tree juice.

Frydded Broom.

Rhwythaw, v. a. (rhw) To pervade.
Rhwythawl, a. (rhw) Pervasive, penetrant.
Rhwythawr, s. m.—pl. rhwythorion (rhw) A pervisor. Rhwythawr llawr, the pervisor of the ground.

RHY, s. m.—pl. t. on. The state of being beyond or over; excess. It is used very generally as a preposition of emphasis, especially with verbs. Prefixed to the preterite of a verb it forms the preterpluperfect tense; with the present tense, it implies the action done in a signal manner: and with the future it implies a time still further. Ni rhyngwyllyst, they had not previously seen one another.

Nid da rhy o ddim.

The excess of any thing is not good.

Adage.

Rhy, ade. (rhy, s.) Over, beyond, too much; very, excessively; too. It is often compounded with the first and second pronouns singular and plural: as rhym dorat, it would much concern me: rhith welid, thou wert previously seen: Dofydd rhy'n digones, the Lord did abundantly provide for us.

*Rhy ddirwy, dyrwr ei hollon;
 Rhy ddylaweb eirchlad ag aithion;
 Rhy ddylindd yn ddorad ras cannoo couid;
 Rhy ddylus aithiond.*

He fines excessively, he impels his claims; greatly he encourages petitioners with gifts; most boldly he slays the portion of the whelps of sculk; he completely keeps off strangers.

Cynddelo, t. B. ab Owain.

*Rhanwr pob pwnc rhy unlawn;
 Rhan ar wir yn rhannu'r iawn.*

The giver of every point meet just; a party on the side of truth dispensing justice.

L. G. Colli.

Rhyachub, v. a. (achub) Completely to save.
Rhyachubaw, v. a. (rhyachub) Completely to save.
Rhyachubawl, a. (rhyachub) Fully saving.
Rhyachubiad, s. m. (rhyachub) A fully saving.
Rhyachwyn, v. a. (achwyn) To complain overmuch.
Rhyachwynawl, a. (rhyachwyn) Too complaining.
Rhyachwyniad, s. m. (rhyachwyn) A complaining overmuch; a greatly complaining.
Rhyadaw, v. a. (gadaw) To leave utterly.
Rhyadawiad, s. m. (rhyadaw) A leaving utterly.
Rhyadfarn, s. f. (adfarn) A full rejudgment.
Rhyadfarniad, s. m. (rhyadfarn) A rejudging.
Rhyadfarnu, v. a. (rhyadfarn) To rejudge entirely; to revoke a judgment.

Os addef a wna yr unddifyfwr, addefed i'r hawler yr addo, yn hawwydd rhyadfarnu gyfrakh a fo gyt.

If the defendant shall make an acknowledgment, let him restore to the claimant the property, so as to rejudge entirely the sentence formerly given.

Welsh Laws.

Rhyaddaw, v. a. (addaw) To promise greatly.
Rhyaddawiad, s. m. (rhyaddaw) A promising overmuch.
Rhyaddewid, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhyaddaw) A too great a promise.
Rhyafael, s. m.—pl. t. ion (gafael) Too great a hold; an excessive grasp.
Rhyafaelgar, a. (rhyafael) Grasping overmuch.
Rhyafaeliad, s. m. (rhyafael) An over-grasping.
Rhyal, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (al) Procreation.
Rhyaledd, s. m. (rhyal) Procreativity.
Rhyaliad, s. m. (rhyal) A procreating.
Rhyalu, v. a. (rhyal) To procreate, to beget.
Rhyalus, a. (rhyal) Procreative; procreant.
Rhyall, s. m. (gall) Superior power. a. Of superior power; invincible.

*Carecew fabon, modd bardd arall,
 Mdycew awgob, a fydd rhyal.*

The crowned infant, says another bard, Mdycew the bishop will be invincible.

Rhy. Kean.

Rhyallad, s. m. (rhyall) Supreme power.

*Pon a borthaf yn angad fy llaw,
 Llary add llywial wlad
 Fec post Prydain rhyallad.*

A head I bear in the grasp of my hand, a mild overlord who governed a country, the chief pillar of Britain's supreme power.

Llywarch Hen.

Rhyallu, v. a. (rhyall) To have superior or complete power; to be fully competent.

Arynglwg ac ofnas a orng Coel rymhdd yn ei orng; cysu d giod a gadarnad na rhyallu en breidd gwrthwyneid dda.

Coel became intimidated and fearful of fighting against him; for his fame had strengthened the idea that not one sovereign could have had the power to withstand him.

Gr. d. Arthur.

Rhyamcan, s. m.—pl. t. ion (amcan) Too great a design.

Rhyamcanawl, a. (rhyamcan) Over designing.
Rhyamcaniad, s. m. (rhyamcan) A designing overmuch.

Rhyamcanu, v. a. (rhyamcan) To design overmuch.
Rhyanfodd, s. m. (anfodd) Over difficulty of pleasing or giving satisfaction.

Rhyanfoddawg, a. (rhyanfodd) Being too difficult to please; very hard to please.

Ni cheif rhyanfoddawg rybach.

He that is over difficult to please will not get much respect.

Adage.

Rhyanfoddiad, s. m. (rhyanfodd) A displeasing overmuch; a satisfying with difficulty.

Rhyanfoddiaw, v. a. (rhyanfodd) To over-displease.
Rhyanfon, v. a. (anfon) To send fully.

Gwodes Daw, wegya brwnu cyfhoethw, llyw addawyd llyd, a elwir tawda nol;—ac i'r llyd bono i rhagwada o rhyd bono rif kyryd o etholedigton.

God, like a powerful king, established for him a magnificent court, which is called the kingdom of heaven; and to the court he foretold that he should have to send a certain number of chosen ones.

Elucidator.

Rhyanfonawl, a. (anfon) Completely sending.
Rhyanfoniad, s. m. (anfon) A sending fully.
Rhyanhael, a. (anhael) Illiberal to excess.
Rhyanllad, a. (anllad) Wanton to excess.
Rhyanlladwydd, s. m. (rhyanllad) Excess of wantonness; a state of excessive lust.
Rhyanlladu, v. (rhyanllad) To be too wanton.
Rhyanllodi, v. a. (anllodi) To over-enrich.

*Corrw o'i yfed,
 A chain drefred,
 A chain daddod,
 Ym rhyanllodi.*

Alc to be drunk, and fair habitation, and splendid return, they have been profusely bestowed on me.

Taliesin.

Rhyanllodiad, s. m. (anllodiad) A profusely enriching; an endowing overmuch.

Rhyannog, s. m. (annog) Too much excitement.
v. a. To excite overmuch.

- Rhyannogawl, a. (rhyannog) Over exciting.
Rhyannogi, s. a. (rhyannog) To excite greedily.
Rhyannogiad, s. m. (rhyannog) An exciting over-much; a greatly impelling.
Rhyannosbarth, s. m. (annosbarth) Excess of indiscrimination.
Rhyannosbarthawl, a. (rhyannosbarth) Very indiscriminate.
Rhyannosbarthu, v. a. (rhyannosbarth) To render or become too indiscriminate.
Rhyannwyd, s. m. (annwyd) Excess of chilliness.
Rhyar, s. m. (rhy—ar) Great agitation; a torrent.
Rhyaraf, a. (araf) Slow overmuch.
Rhyarafedd, s. m. (rhyaraf) Excess of slowness.
Rhyarafu, v. a. (rhyaraf) To make too slow.
Rhyarfeiddiad, s. m. (arfeiddiad) A behaving with too much assurance.
Rhyarfeiddiaw, v. a. (arfeiddiaw) To dare or to presume overmuch.
Rhyarfeiddiawl, a. (arfeiddiawl) Too presuming, apt to take too great a liberty.
Rhyarfer, s. f. (arfer) Excess of use.
Rhyarferiad, s. m. (rhyarfer) An over-using.
Rhyarferu, v. a. (rhyarfer) To use overmuch.
Rhyarganfod, v. a. (arganfod) To perceive completely, to over-scrutinize.
Rhyarw, a. (garw) Very rough; very severe.
Rhyattal, v. a. (attal) To stop overmuch.
Rhyattaliad, s. m. (rhyattal) A stopping or withstanding overmuch.
Rhyathu, v. a. (athu) To go completely.

Glenn, wedi cael y gwr, a'i gorogyn, a gwngura y marnedd, cychwyn a wari ar ol Gwerydd a rhybodd hyd yn Nghaer Wynt.

Glenn, after having obtained the city, and subdued it, and demolished the walls, what he did was to set off after Gwerydd, who had gone so far as Winchester. Gr. ab Arthur.

- Rhyawd, s. m. (rhy) A producing an extreme.
Rhyawl, a. (rhy) Tending to an extreme.
Rhyb, s. m. (rhy—yb) Tendency forward.
Rhyball, a. (pall) Extremely fallible or faulty.
Rhyballiad, s. m. (rhyball) A falling extremely.
Rhybellu, v. a. (rhyball) To fail extremely.
Rhybarawd, a. (parawd) Extremely ready.
Rhybarch, s. m. (paroch) Excess of respect; s. Overmuch of respect; extreme regard.

Ni bydd rhybarch rhyngwladu.

Too much familiarity will not be over-respected. Adage.

- Rhybarchu, v. a. (rhybarch) To respect much.
Rhybech, s. m. (poch) Excess of sin. a. Very sinful.
Rhybechu, v. a. (rhybech) To sin extremely.
Rhybed, s. m. (ped) That is fixed by clinching.
Rhybediad, s. m. (rhybed) A clinching.
Rhybediaw, v. a. (rhybed) To clinch.
Rhybenyd, s. m. (penyd) Extreme penitence.

Addwyn rhybenyd i bechawd.

Happyn in extreme penance for sin.

Tallies.

- Rhybenydiad, s. m. (rhybenyd) A performing extreme penance.
Rhybenydiaw, v. a. (rhybenyd) To perform extreme penance; to be over-penitent.
Rhybinc, a. (plnc) Over-affected; too smart.
Rhybinciaw, v. a. (rhybinc) To adorn overmuch; to be too affected.
Rhyblann, v. a. (planu) To plant fully.
Rhyblyg, a. (plyg) Over doubled; redoubled.
Rhyblygiad, s. m. (rhyblyg) Reduplication.
Rhyblygu, v. a. (rhyblyg) To double completely.
Rhyborth, s. m. (porth) Complete support.
Rhyborthi, v. a. (rhyborth) To maintain or to support completely.

Lly Owain, ar bridd yd rhybodd edroed.

The hall of Owain, on spoil it has been completely supported always. O. Cyffwrdd.

Beirid ganlaw gannorth borth rhyborthu.

Bards claiming a splendid portion he greatly maintained. Cynddair.

- Rhyborthiad, s. m. (rhyborth) A completely bearing or upholding.
Rhybrid, a. (prid) Fully equivalent; of full price.
Rhybridiad, s. m. (rhybrid) A rendering or becoming fully equivalent; full expiation.
Rhybridiaw, v. a. (rhybrid) To expiate fully.
Rhybris, a. (prin) Extremely scarce or scanty.
Rhybrinder, s. m. (rhybrin) Extreme scarcity.
Rhybrudd, a. (prudd) Extremely pensive or sad.

*A chwareded Palestina guth
 El chwethia aeth yn rhybrudd.*

And let enthralled Palestina smile: her laughter is turned extremely sad. Edm. Fryx.

- Rhybruddiaw, v. a. (rhybrudd) To be very sad.
Rhybrudd-der, s. m. (rhybrudd) Extreme sadness.
Rhybryd, v. a. (pryd) To give a full description, to sing completely.

*Mydyf Dallenia;
 Rhybrydai lawdha,
 Parlawd hyd Elin
 Yn nghydwel Elin.*

I am Tallies, I will fully sing of the just offspring: let it continue to the end in the right of Elin. Tallies.

- Rhybryn, s. m. (pryn) That is previously secured; that is fully purchased.
Rhybryniad, s. m. (rhybryn) A previously securing; a purchasing beforehand.
Rhybrynu, v. a. (rhybryn) To secure fully or previously; to purchase previously.

Rhybrynudd barlawg a elch.

A bearded one has previously made sure of what he may ask for. Adage.

- Rhybrysur, a. (prysur) Over-bustling, over-busy.
Rhybrysuraw, v. a. (rhybrysur) To hasten extremely; to be in extreme bustle or hurry.
Rhybrysurdeb, s. m. (rhybrysur) Overhastiness.
Rhybuch, s. m. (puch) Earnest longing.
Rhybuchaw, v. a. (rhybuch) To wish earnestly.

Nid eostyn llaw ni rhybuch calon.

The hand will not reach what the heart does not long for. Adage.

*Rhybrysur rhybu, yd rhybu rhybu,
 Dy rhybu, Rhybu, a rhybuch.*

For the fault of obtaining, if there shall be no distribution of profit, thy warning, Gruffydd, would be earnestly sought for. Ed. P. Bock.

- Rhybuced, s. f. (rhybuch) The fulfilment of the will; a donation of a gift asked for.

Craf a'm rhoddeu rhybuced wadd.

I love the one who gave me the wished-for boon of woad. H. ab Owain.

*Bychan lawr a rhybuced
 A gair gnyll o gad.*

Very little indeed as a boon will be had of treasure from me. Gr. Gwyg.

Y nath y rhoddeu y breinia dir llo yd gylwys, neu yn rhybuced wadd.

To whomsoever the king shall give land as an acknowledgment for service, or any other donation. Welsh Laws.

- Rhybachedig, a. (rhybuch) Earnestly longed-for.

Oweli careddigon gwanau a gylwys rhybachedig, ar fynder, mwy ymddiried arall, hi a fynno o'i brawd auaidd y lly; ac a ddangoedd llo yd dwin, yr eidd yn ei gylwys.

After affectionate kisses and endearing words, presently, turning to another discourse, she declared to her brother the condition of the court; and she showed him the wizard, whom he was seeking for. Gr. ab Arthur.

- Rhybachiad, s. m. (rhybuch) A desiring earnestly.
Rhybachianawl, a. (rhybachiant) Inducing earnest longing or desire.

Rhydech, s. m. (tech) Extreme aptness to run

Rhydechriad, s. m. (rhydech) A skulking greatly.
Rhydechru, v. a. (rhydech) To skulk extremely;
 to become completely concealed.

Ni rhydechro rhyddgyr.

Who will not conceal himself/ greatly will be completely taken away.

Rhydechwr, s. m.—pl. rhydechwyr (rhydech—gwr) One who skulks overmuch; a coward.
Rhydedig, a. (rhyd) Being made into a ford.
Rhydedd, s. m. (têdd) Presidency, or supremacy.
Rhydeddawg, a. (rhydedd) Having supremacy.
Rhydeddawl, a. (rhydedd) Apt to be supreme.
Rhydeddiad, s. m. (rhydedd) A making supreme.
Rhydeddu, v. a. (rhydedd) To render supreme or exalted; to become exalted.
Rhydeddus, a. (rhydedd) Superior, or exalted.
Rhydeg, a. (rhy—teg) Extremely fair or fine.
Rhederig, a. (terig) Excessive or continual aptitude to copulate; a term applied to barren animals. Buwch rhyderig, a cow that doth not calve; kacch rhyderig, a barren sow.
Rhydewi, v. a. (rhydaw) To be very tacit.

*Ni rygar trugar tra ebydwyd;
 Ni rydaw answ o'i anwytyd.*

The merciful will not be over fond of extreme pride; the miser will not be quite silenced about the object of his love.

Cynyddolus, i Dduw.

Rhydgoch, s. m. (rhwd—coch) A rusty red; a russet colour; also called rhuddlyd.
Rhydiad, s. m. (rhyd) A forming a ford; a fording.
Rhydiad, s. m. (rhwd) A rusting; a corrosion.
Rhydiaw, v. a. (rhyd) To form a ford; to ford.

Rhwdd rhydiaw ffordd ploddyn.

It is easy to ford the stream of a piddie.

Adage.

Rhydiawg, v. (rhyd) Having a rippling course; having a ford.
Rhydiawl, a. (rhyd) Relating to a ford.
Rhydid, s. m. (tid) That is out of bond; liberty.
Rhydle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhyd—lle) A passage place, a fording place; opportunity.
Rhydlyd, a. (rhwd) Full of rust; rusty.

Bid llyd dy haderna; bid rhydlyd dy arfan.

Be thy blade smooth, be thy weapons rusty.

Adage.

Rhydlydrwydd, s. m. (rhydlyd) Rustiness.
Rhydlydu, v. a. (rhydlyd) To become rusty.
Rhydni, s. m. (rhwd) Rustiness, or rust.
Rhydo, s. m. (to) A complete covering.
Rhyddod, s. m. (rhydo) A covering over fully.
Rhyddogaeth, s. m. (rhyddawg) Deliverance.

*O Dduw na chaeu rhyddogaeth
 Y 'trais oddiwrth y bonceth!
 Os tebygna' idd eu rhyw
 Angharnald yw'r gaeledaeth.*

Would to God we had a deliverance of our tribe from the whole! If they prove like their kind unamiable is the generation.

W. Davies o Lanfair Fawr.

Rhyddi, v. a. (rhydo) To cover over fully; to overspread; to overwhelm.

*Seithenys, na di allan,
 Ac edrych werydre faranres:
 Mor Muan Gwyddo rhyddes.*

Seithenys, do thou stand out, and behold the fertile land of thy subjects: the sea has overspread the plain of Gwyddo.

Gwyddo.

Rhyddolt, s. m. (rhwd—ollt) Saw-dust.
Rhydraeth, s. m. (traeth) The state of being pre-uttered.

Rhydraethawd, s. f. (rhydraeth) A prediction.
Rhydraethiad, s. m. (rhydraeth) A predicting.
Rhydraethn, v. a. (rhydraeth) To predict.

*Dias ddarogant
 I Adhaf a'i blant
 Y rhydraethysant
 Y proffwyd.*

A certain prophecy with respect to Adam and his progeny the prophets did predict.

Metig.

VOL. II.

Rhydraidd, s. m. (traidd) Extreme pervasion.
Rhydrais, s. m. (trais) Extreme violence.
Rhydraul, s. f. (traul) Excess of consumption; excessive waste; excess of expence.
Rhydraws, a. (traws) Extremely thwarting; excessively froward or perverse.
Rhydreiddiad, s. m. (rhydraidd) A pervading extremely; superimpregnation.
Rhydreiddiaw, v. a. (rhydraidd) To pervade extremely, to penetrate thoroughly.
Rhydreislad, s. m. (rhydrais) A using extreme violence; a tyrannizing to excess.
Rhydreislaw, v. a. (rhydrais) To use extreme violence; greatly to tyrannize.
Rhydres, s. m. (tres) Arrogance; pragmatism.
Rhydresawl, a. (rhydres) Pragmatical.
Rhydresgar, a. (rhydres) Arrogant, assuming; ostentatious, supercilious, flaunting.
Rhydresgarwch, s. m. (rhydres) Arrogance, assumingness, pragmatism; superciliousness.
Rhydrealliad, s. m. (rhydraul) A consuming extremely; a wasting overmuch.
Rhydreulaw, v. a. (rhydraul) To consume to excess; to waste overmuch.
Rhydrig, s. m. (trig) Over-continnance or delay.
Rhydrigaw, v. a. (rhydrig) To tarry too long.
Rhydrigiad, s. m. (rhydrig) An over-tarrying.
Rhydriat, a. (trist) Extremely dejected or sad.
Rhydriatwch, s. m. (rhydriat) Extreme sadness.
Rhydrws, s. m. (trws) Too much dressing.
Rhydrwsiad, s. m. (rhydrws) An over-dressing.
Rhydrwsiaw, v. a. (rhydrws) To deck extremely.
Rhydu, v. a. (rhwd) To generate rust, to rust.

*Ni ad, mwy na'i dad, o'i dy,
 Ar y frydyr, ar'i ryda.*

No more than his father, will he suffer, from his house, for a weapon to rust, in time of battle.

Gut. Owain, m. T. Tudgr.

Rhydwell, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhyd—gwell) An artery.

*Mae brw aeth i'm ber-ais i,
 A thrwy dai wrth rhydwell.*

There is an arrow wound below my rib, and through my temple a throbbing vein.

S. Tudgr.

Rhydwf, s. m. (twf) Excess of growth; exuberance.
Rhydwl, s. m.—pl. rhydyllau (twll) A perforation.
Rhydwng, s. m. (twng) An anathema.
Rhydwr, s. m.—pl. rhydyrau (twr) An over-heap.
Rhydyddiad, s. m. (tyddiad) A completing an arrangement, bargain, or compact; a final settlement.

Rhydyddiaw, v. a. (tyddiaw) To complete an arrangement, bargain, or compact. Dyfed.

Rhydyfawl, a. (rhydwf) Tending to overgrow.

Rhydyfiad, s. m. (rhydwf) An overgrowing; a supercrescence, superexcrescence.

Rhydyfu, v. a. (rhydwf) To overgrow.

Rhydylliad, s. m. (rhydwl) A perforating.

Rhydyllu, v. a. (rhydwl) To perforate.

*A'i ddwyllaw tr-ward o ddolurion;
 A'i drued oll lleislad rhydyllion.*

And his hands reeking with blood from wounds; and his feet all livid they pierced extremely.

G. ab Iwan, ab Ll. Pychen.

Rhydyn, a. (tynd) Overtight; overstress.

Rhydyniad, s. m. (rhydyn) A drawing overmuch, a superstraining.

Rhydynn, v. a. (rhydyn) To draw to excess.

Rhydyngawl, a. (rhydwng) Anathematical.

Rhydyngiad, s. m. (rhydwng) An anathematizing.

Rhydyngu, v. a. (rhydwng) To anathematise.

Llith pawb pan rhydyngir.

Every body will be put away when there shall be anathematizing.

Adage.

3 P

Rhydyriad, s. m. (rhydwr) An over-heaping.
Rhydyru, v. a. (rhydwr) To over-heap; to gather together extremely.

*Atan rhydyran', o'! lan lloerdd;
 Rhyddyllf cynuif can fodd Dolydd.*

To as they will seek extremely, of his fair multitude; misery will be fully relieved through the will of the Supreme.
Llywelyn Fardd, i Godfan.

Rhydd, s. m. (rhy—ydd) The state of being open, loose, or at large; liberty, freedom.

Tri chyntegaueth cyfwr dyn: cynnall cynaf ar wybodaeth, cariad, a nerth, heb anghy; ac mae gellir byn yn wreidd rhydd a dewis rhy ddyddad; ac y tri hyn a siwir y tri gortwch.

The three principal things in the state of humanity: the accumulations of knowledge, love, and power, without undergoing dissolution; and this cannot be done as of liberty and choice previous to humanity; and these three are called the three victories.
Bardd.

Rhydd, a. (rhy—ydd) Open, loose, at large; free.

Or tery dyn rhydd ddyn cuth, taled ddeuddeg ceiniau lldo.

If a free person shall strike a bondman, let him pay to such twelve pence.
Welsh Laws.

Nid oedd yr all a fal can ddoethed a Helen Llyddaw yn y celfyddydau rhydd.

There was not another that was so wise as Helen the Warlike in the liberal sciences.
Gr. ab Arthur.

*Mae rhai n'a goiwr yn rhydd,
 Yn gweled beuan' rhydd.*

There are some with their sight unrestrained, perceiving the faults of each other.
G. ab Hywel ab Tudgr.

Rhyddiad, s. m. (rhyddiad) A loosening, an enlarging, a freeing; liberation.

Rhyddiadawl, a. (rhyddiad) Loosening, enlarging.

Rhyddadeni, u. (dadeni) To be fully reproduced.

Rhyddadi, s. f.—pl. rhyddadiau (dadl) Excess of dispute, contention, or debate.

Rhyddadiad, s. m. (rhyddadi) An over-disputing.

Rhyddadin, v. a. (rhyddadi) To over-dispute.

Rhyddail, s. pl. aggr. (dail) Over-leaves; the second growth of leaves.

Rhyddal, v. a. (dal) An excessive holding.

Rhyddaliad, s. m. (rhyddal) A holding to excess.

Rhyddaly, v. a. (rhyddal) To hold overmuch.

Rhyddarogan, s. f.—pl. t. au (darogan) A superior prediction.

Rhyddaroganiad, s. m. (rhyddarogan) A delivering a superior oracle or prognostication.

Rhyddarogannu, v. a. (rhyddarogan) To deliver a superior prediction.

*Morion Brythom,
 Rhyddarogannu';
 A medd beon
 Am Hafren afon.*

The Morion Britons, their fate will be fully predicted; and the reaping of heroes about Hafren river.
Tallies.

Rhyddau, v. a. (rhydd) To set open, to loosen, to set at large; to free, to liberate; to deliver, to release, to acquit.

Rhyddawn, s. m.—pl. rhyddonion (dawn) Superior gift, endowment, or virtue.

Rhyddawr, s. m. (dawr) Extreme concern.

Rhyddawr, s. m.—pl. rhyddawyr (rhyddau—gwr)

One who sets free, one who loosens.

Rhydded, s. f. (rhydd) A state of liberty, freedom.

Rhyddedawg, a. (rhydded) Having liberty; enlarged, released, exempted, dispensed with.

Rhyddedogi, v. a. (rhyddedawg) To set at liberty; to render exempted; to become at liberty.

Rhyddeisyf, s. m. (deisyf) Earnest entreaty. v. a.

To entreat earnestly; to crave overmuch.

Rhyddeisyfawl, a. (rhyddeisyf) Greatly entreating

Rhyddeisyfiad, s. m. (rhyddeisyf) An entreating earnestly; a craving or begging overmuch.

Rhyddeisyfyn, v. a. (rhyddeisyf) To entreat greatly

Rhydderchafawl, a. (derchafawl) Over-exalting.

Rhydderchafawl, s. m. (derchafawl) An exalting overmuch, a being uplifted overmuch.

Rhydderchafu, v. a. (derchafu) To over-exalt.

Rhydderchafuyn Cymry; cad a waidd.

The hosts of Cadwaladr mightily they would come; they would extremely exalt the Cymry; they would bring on a battle.
Gwynedd.

Rhyddiaeth, s. m. (rhydd) A state of freedom.

Rhyddiaith, s. f. (rhydd—iaith) Free language.

Rhyddiant, s. m. (rhydd) Relaxation; liberation.

Rhyddiawg, a. (diawg) Lazy overmuch.

Rhyddid, s. m. (rhydd) Liberty, freedom; immunity, exemption; licence, leave.

Tri chyfwr hanfod bywddigion; cyfwr aml yn awr, cyfwr rhyddid yn nyddod, a chyfwr cariad, ael gyfwr, yn y m.

The three states of existence of living beings: the state of labor in the fruit deep, the state of liberty in humanity, and the state of love, that is felicity, in heaven.
Bardd.

Rhyddieithiad, a. (rhyddiaith) Like prose.

Rhyddieithawl, a. (rhyddiaith) Prosaic.

Rhyddieithiau, v. a. (dieithiau) To exonerate ball fully; to free a surety fully.

Rhyddifoneddu, v. a. (difoneddu) To direct completely of nobility.

Rhyddig, a. (dig) Extremely wroth or angry.

Rhyddigon, s. m. (digon) A more than enough.

Rhyddigonedd, s. m. (digon) Over-sufficiency.

Rhyddigoni, v. a. (rhyddigon) To satiate.

Rhyddilyn, a. (dilyn) Smart to excess.

Rhyddillynedd, s. m. (rhyddilyn) Affectation.

Rhyddineb, s. m. (rhydd) Exemption from restraint, freedom, facility, readiness, fluency.

Rhyddiogi, v. n. (rhyddiawg) To become extremely lazy, or indolent.

*Ni gofio noeth yn rhydd;
 Fawb faw rhyddogwr yd hwl.*

The naked is not bold amongst thistles; every body who over-dressed very idle, will feel.
Tallies.

Rhyddiriad, s. m. (diriad) Excess of iteration; a being troublesome to excess; a being very mischievous.

Rhyddiriaw, v. a. (diriaw) To iterate to excess.

Un rodd orwng ni rhyddiriaw a gad.

One empty gift of treasure I would not greatly iterate.
Gm. Owen.

Rhyddiriawl, a. (diriawl) Excessively iterating.

Rhyddisyn, s. m. (disyn) A bringing down fully, v. a. To alight completely.

Rhyddisyniad, s. m. (rhyddisyn) A completely bringing down or alighting.

Rhyddisynnu, v. a. (rhyddisyn) To bring or put down completely; to alight fully.

Gwedi dawed ohono hyd gerllaw glyn, oedd yn agori i ger Caint, of gwelw yn y lle hwno lle gwyr Eiddad ag os pwylio ac os lloctas, gwedi rhyddisynnu yn y glyn.

After he had come close to a valley, which was near to Catterbury, he saw in that place the army of the sons of Rhodri, with their tents and their spoils having been quite taken down in the valley.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhyddodawl, a. (dodawl) Superinducing.

Rhyddodi, v. a. (dodi) To superinduce.

Rhyddodiad, s. m. (dodiad) Superinduction.

Rhyddoeth, a. (doeth) Wise overmuch.

Rhyddoethedd, s. m. (rhyddoeth) Over-wisdom.

Rhyddogn, s. m. (dogn) An over-quantity.

Rhyddogedd, s. m. (rhyddogn) Over-quantity.

Rhyddogni, v. a. (rhyddogn) To give an over-quantity; to satiate.

*Ale o'm dygodd yd yn degodd;
 Rhyddogedd fawr-gedd am ei fawr-gedd.*

With grievous severity I have been punished; I dedicated a superfluity of exalted song for his great treasure.
Gwynedd, i Gwynedd.

Rhyddogniad, s. m. (rhyddogn) A giving an over-quantity; a satiating.

Rhyddonad, s. m. (rhyddawn) A gifting with superior talent or endowment:
Rhyddoniaeth, s. m. (rhyddawn) Superior gift.

Gwn na welw—
 Wr an fath rhyddonath rym,
 Na gwahda'r wael Gwilym.

I know that we shall not see a portion of like education with the energy of superior talent, nor such a leader as Gwilym would make.

Rhys Goch Bryi.

Rhyddonlaw, v. &. (thyddawu) To gift in a superior manner.

Diriedion ddynion, ni rhyddonch, Tad,
 Diridd fydd ffeid, brad a'i brudych.

Much more men, whom thou dost not endow with grace, Father, without a way to escape through faith, ruin will destroy them.

Cynodlyn.

Rhyddorawl, a. (rhyddawr) Of extreme concern.
Rhyddori, v. a. (rhyddawr) To give extreme concern; to be extremely concerned.

Rhyddoriad, s. m. (rhyddawr) A rendering or becoming of great concern.

Rhyddrent, s. m. (rhydd—rhent) Gavel-kind. Sil.

Rhyddrud, a. (drud) Over-bold; dear to excess.

Rhyddwylly, s. m. (rhydd—gwyllys) Free will.

Eis rhyddwylly nid ydyw yn cyfarwyddaw rhad Dew; ond rhad Dew yn cyfarwyddaw eis rhyddwylly.

Our free will doth not influence the grace of God; but the grace of God doth influence our free will.

Marching Craydad.

Rhyddwyn, v. a. (dwyn) To over-carry.

Rhyddyd, s. m. (rhydd) Liberty, or freedom.

Rhyddyddiad, s. m. (dyddiad) A making a compact

Rhyddyddiaw, v. a. (dyddiaw) To make a compact

Rhyddygiad, s. m. (dygiad) An over-carrying;

superfétation, superconception.

Rhyddygn, a. (dygn) Being excessively severe.

Rhyddygnawl, a. (rhyddygn) Over-toiling.

Rhyddygu, v. a. (rhyddygn) To toil to excess.

Rhyddygydd, v. a. (dygydd) To over-happen.

Rhyddygyddawl, a. (rhyddygydd) Previously happening or coming to pass.

Rhyddygyddiad, s. m. (rhyddygydd) A previously happening; superconsequence.

Rhyddygd, v. a. (dygyd) To over-carry; to superferate; to take away overmuch.

Rhyddyhan, a. (dyhan) Previously slumbering.

Rhyddyhanaw, v. a. (rhyddyhan) To be taking a slumber previously.

Rhyddyhanaw dremid.

I will previously take a nap awhile.

Tafelina.

Rhyddylawch, s. m. (dylawch) Excess of solace.

Rhyddylif, s. m. (dylif) A complete flowing away.

Rhyddylifaw, v. a. (rhyddylif) To be flowing or passing away completely.

Rhyddyllochi, v. a. (rhyddylawch) To encourage extremely; to be cherishing greatly.

Rhyddylawch circhid ag eirchhos.

He will extremely cherish the petitioner with requests.

Cynadelu.

Rhyddyllochiad, s. m. (rhyddylawch) A cherishing or protecting extremely.

Rhyddylud, s. m. (dylud) Extreme pursuit.

Rhyddyludaw, v. a. (rhyddylud) To follow, or to pursue excessively. Rhyddylud alludion, fo- reignors he pursues extremely.

Rhyddyly, v. a. (dily) To be fully incumbent.

Rhyddyly dilyn gweliddeion.

Rhyddyly cynall cadion;

Rhyderyll rwyf, drwg rhodolion, eirchhaid

Rhyddant eu rhodolion.

The fasting ones ought to be extremely incited fully to cause the affliction of fields of battle to pass away; a chief of gloomy count, the resort of wanderers, petitioners who will fully repay their gifts.

Cynadelu, i H. ab Owain.

Rhyddymnaw, v. &. (dymenaw) To desire earnestly, to wish extremely.

Rhyddymnawl, a. (dymenawl) Extremely desirous; extremely wishful.

Rhyddymniad, s. m. (dymeniad) A desiring earnestly; a wishing extremely.

Rhyddydded, v. a. (dydded) To suffer greatly.

Rhyddyddediad, s. m. (rhyddydded) A suffering or bearing extremely.

Rhyddyrchawl, a. (dyrchawl) Apt to over-exalt.

Rhyddyrchiad, s. m. (dyrchiad) An over-exalting.

Rhyddyrchu, v. a. (dyrchu) To over-exalt.

Rhyddyrllid, v. a. (dyrllid) To flow extremely.

Rhyddyrllid fy ngherdd yn nghelion o fedd

Yn nghyntedd teyrnos.

My muse will be greatly made to flow in carousals of merriment in the hall of princes.

Cynadelu, i H. ab Owain.

Rhyddyag, s. m. (dyag) Profound learning.

Rhyddyagawl, a. (rhyddyag) Being over-learned.

Rhyddygiad, s. m. (rhyddyag) A learning greatly

Rhyddyagu, v. a. (rhyddyag) To instruct profoundly; to become extremely learned.

Rhyddyagawl ddygywen farddon.

I will profoundly instruct illustrious bards.

Cynadelu.

Rhyddyagwyl, v. a. (dyagwyl) To be expecting extremely, or earnestly looking for.

Rhyddyagwylad, s. m. (rhyddyagwyl) A being expecting extremely.

Rhyddyagwylaw, v. a. (rhyddyagwyl) To be expecting extremely.

Rhyddygyrch, s. m. (dysgyrch) Excess of resorting

Rhyddygyrchawl, a. (rhyddygyrch) Being resorting extremely.

Rhyddygyrchiad, s. m. (rhyddygyrch) A being resorting extremely.

Rhyddygyrchu, v. a. (rhyddygyrch) To be re-

sorting extremely.

Rhaith ahoiaith rhyddygyrchuad;

Yn nghorben eu trethas angus a wladant.

The shades of derangement they have resorted to extremely: in the conclusion of their impositions they experienced death.

Golgaden.

Rhyddywedid, s. m. (dywedid) A previously saying, a fully declaring.

Rhyddywedyd, v. a. (dywedyd) To say previously; to declare fully.

Gwedi gwelod o Wl Cahan y llythyr hwn, yn ddinodod paratol ei lysoes o orgr, he prawn gwyn, wrth ei lenwl o'i weithred, yr hyn a ryddwedid Gwawfawr.

After Julius Caesar had seen that letter, immediately he prepared his fleet, and waited for wind, which should accomplish the act that he had before intimated to Caswallon.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhyedd, s. m. (rhy) The state of being extreme.

Rhyeidid, a. (eiddid) Extremely slender, or slim

Rhyeididaw, v. a. (rhyeidid) To render extremely slender; to become very slender.

Rhyeididliad, s. m. (rhyeidid) A making extremely slender, a becoming very slim.

Rhyeididlwch, s. m. (rhyeidid) Great slenderness

Rhyeistedd, s. m. (eistedd) A sitting before; presidency. v. a. To sit over; to preside.

Rhyeisteddawl, a. (rhyeistedd) Presiding.

Rhyeisteddiad, s. m. (rhyeistedd) A presiding.

Rhyeni, v. a. (geni) To be born previously.

Ar gher eilydd

Ei rhyeistedd

Ni rhyedd.

On the face of the earth, his equal was not born before.

Tafelina.

Rhyerchi, v. a. (erchi) To beseech earnestly.

Rhyerchiwys a rhyerchi.

He has sought very dear who has importuned much.

Rhyerfyniad, s. m. (erfyniad) An entreating or imploring extremely.

Rhyerfyniaw, v. a. (erfyniaw) To entreat extremely, to implore earnestly.

Rhyerfyniawl, a. (erfyniawl) Extremely imploring, earnestly beseeching.

Rhyesgeulus, a. (esgeulus) Over-careless.

Rhyesgeulusaw, v. a. (rhyesgeulus) To act extremely careless; to be over-careless.

Rhyesgeulusdawd, s. m. (rhyesgeulus) Extreme carelessness, or negligence.

Rhyesgeulusiad, s. m. (rhyesgeulus) A neglecting overmuch; a being careless overmuch.

Rhyesgyn, s. m. (esgyn) An ascent before; an ascent over. v. a. To ascend before.

Rhyesgynawl, a. (rhyesgyn) Previously ascending.

Rhyesgyniad, s. m. (rhyesgyn) A previously ascending; an ascending overmuch.

Rhyesgynu, v. a. (rhyesgyn) To ascend beyond.

Rhyf, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhy) That enlarges or swells out; what is rife or abundant; a swell or puff out; arrogance, pride; also a berry; a currant.

*Afraid i briddin afryn,
Rh'of i a Duw, faint fo rhyf dyn,
Llanaw baich llawn o bechod!
Lle rhyfedd i faldedd fod!*

It is needless for frail chy, between me and God, however great man's presumption may be, to form a full load of sin; what a place for pride to exist! Gwyl. ab Sefyn, i bwyg.

Rhyfab, s. m.—pl. rhyfeibion (rhy—mab) A boy under age, or an infant. Welsh Laws.

Rhyfaeddawl, a. (rhyfaedd) Being much dragged.

Rhyfaeddiad, s. m. (rhyfaedd) A dragging much.

Rhyfaeddu, v. a. (rhyfaedd) To drag about extremely; to buffet extremely.

Rhyfael, s. f. (mael) Excessive gain or profit.

Rhyfaeliad, s. m. (rhyfael) A gaining excessively.

Rhyfaeln, v. a. (rhyfael) To gain extremely.

Rhyfaeth, s. m. (maeth) Much nurture.

Rhyfaethawl, a. (rhyfaeth) Greatly nourishing.

Rhyfaethiad, s. m. (rhyfaeth) A nourishing greatly; a being over-nursed.

Rhyfaethu, v. a. (rhyfaeth) To over-nourish.

Rhyfagawl, a. (magawl) Much nursed.

Rhyfagiad, s. m. (magiad) An over-nursing.

Rhyfagl, s. f.—pl. rhyfaglau (magl) A snare.

Rhyfagliad, s. m. (rhyfagl) An ensnaring.

Rhyfaglu, v. a. (rhyfagl) To ensnare fully.

Rhyfagu, v. a. (magu) To rear up or to nourish extremely; to be over-nursed.

Twyllid rhyfegid rhyfagid.

Deceived has been who has been much nourished with presumption. Adage.

Nid perthyn rhyfag rhyfagid i'm byd.

Not proper the presumption that I have much nourished in my mind. Cyddellu.

Rhyfagwyr, s. f. (magwyr) An advanced wall.

*Clod wellwell chudaw allan
Good mawr yn flogodau man;
O wartha'r rhaf'n wrth yr hywr
Arfogion a'u rhyfagwyr.*

With increasing fame carrying out large trees as they bundles; behind these at evening came armed men having their ensnarement. H. ab D. ab I. ab Rhys.

Rhyfal, s. m.—pl. rhyfeiau (bai) Extreme fault.

Rhyfaidd, s. m. (baidd) An over-daring.

Rhyfall, s. m. (mail) Prepossession.

Rhyfaint, s. m. (maint) Excess of quantity.

Fflwg i ddawg nid rhyfaint.

Prosperity to the life is not an excess. Adage.

Rhyfalu, v. a. (malu) To grind very small.

Rhyfaniad, s. m. (maniad) A making an extreme impression, a making an over-effect.

Rhyfann, v. a. (manu) To make an extreme mark or impression.

Fflwg i ddiddid ni rhyfann.

Prosperity to the mischievous will not take effect. Adage.

Rhyfarn, s. f. (barn) An over-opinion; prejudice.

Rhyfarnawi, a. (rhyfarn) Prejudging.

Rhyfarniad, s. m. (rhyfarn) A judging overmuch; a condemning extremely.

Rhyfarnu, v. a. (rhyfarn) To judge overmuch; to condemn extremely; to prejudice.

Rhyfas, a. (bas) Extremely or very shallow.

Rhyfasiad, s. m. (rhyfas) A rendering very shallow; a becoming extremely shallow.

Rhyfasu, v. a. (rhyfas) To render very shallow; to become very shallow.

Rhyfawl, a. (rhyf) Assuming or arrogant.

Rhyfawi, s. f. (mawi) Extreme praise; flattery.

Rhyfawr, s. m. (rhyf) A frequent stretching about or scrambling.

Rhyfawrth, s. m. (mawrth) The beginning of the storms of March.

Rhyfawrthin, s. f. (rhyfawrth—hin) The equinoctial weather or storms of March.

Mawrth a'i rhyfawrthin.

March with the spring-forerunning weather. Iolo Goch.

Rhyfedd, a. (medd) Being over possession or scope; wonderful, marvellous, strange.

Iach rydd rhyfedd pa gwyn.

With health at liberty it is wonderful what the complaint. Adage.

Rhyfeddawl, s. f.—pl. rhyfeddodau (rhyfedd)

What is surprising or extraordinary, a rarity; a wonder, a miracle.

Rhowyd pob rhyfeddawl.

Every wonder is changeable. Adage.

Rhyfeddawl, a. (rhyfedd) Wonderful, strange.

Rhyfeddeb, s. f. (rhyfedd) Exclamation, admiration; a term in rhetoric.

Rhyfeddoldeb, s. m. (rhyfeddawl) Extraordinariness; miraculousness; marvellousness.

Rhyfeddoli, v. a. (rhyfeddawl) To render marvellous; to become wonderful.

Rhyfeddolrwydd, s. m. (rhyfedd) Wonderfulness.

Rhyfeddu, v. a. (rhyfedd) To wonder, to marvel.

Rhyfeddwl, s. m.—pl. rhyfeddyllian (meddwl) An over-thought; a previous thought.

Rhyfeddylliad, s. m. (rhyfeddwl) Premeditation.

Rhyfeddyllaw, v. a. (rhyfeddwl) To premeditate.

Nid porth penyd rhyfeddyllaw.

To undergo penance I have not premeditated. Cyddellu.

Rhyfeiad, s. m. (rhyfal) An over-criminating.

Rhyfeilaw, v. a. (rhyfal) To over-criminate.

Rhyfeiddiad, s. m. (rhyfaidd) An over-daring.

Rhyfeiddlaw, v. a. (rhyfaidd) To over-dare.

Rhyfeiliad, s. m. (rhyfall) A prepossessing.

Rhyfeiliaw, v. a. (rhyfal) To prepossess.

Rhyfeilius, a. (rhyfall) Prepossessing.

Rhyfeius, a. (rhyfal) Over-faulty.

Rhyfel, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (bel) War, or warfare.

Golochwyd diawl amwg rhyfel.

The religion of the devil is to instigate war. Adage.

Yn mhob rhyfel mae gofal.

In every warfare there is anxiety. Adage.

Mae gofialth gwr o ryfel, nid gofialth neb o'r bodd.

There is hope for a man from war, there is no hope for any one from the grave. Adage.

Gwibuch y dweh—
A fo cryf a fag rhyfel;
Rhyfel a fag rhyw afar
Tudl, byth at lid a bar;
Tyfod, trwm trwm
A fo caeth, a fag heddwch.

Beware of the wheel: that is powerful will begot war; war will begot some misfortune of poverty, ever disposed to anger and wrath; poverty, distressful the misery of such as be captive, will begot peace.

T. Ald.

Rhyfela, v. a. (rhyfel) To war, to wage war.
Rhyfelawd, s. m. (rhyfel) An hostile act.
Rhyfelawg, a. (rhyfel) Belligerent; belligerent.
Rhyfelbeiriant, s. m. (peiriant) A war engine.
Rhyfeldir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhyfel—tir) A place where war is carried on, a seat of war.

Pa rhyfeldir bynag y cerddynat ynddo, ni waelld drwg iddynt.

What hostile land cover they might walk in, no harm would be done to them.

Breidd. Marxen.

Rhyfeledig, a. (rhyfel) Being warred. Arfaen rhyfeledig, warlike implements.
Rhyfeledigaeth, s. m. (rhyfeledig) The act of carrying on war.

Rhyfelfa, s. f. (rhyfel) A seat of war.
Rhyfelgar, a. (rhyfel) Apt to war, warlike.
Rhyfelgarwch, s. m. (rhyfelgar) Warlikeness.
Rhyfeliad, s. m. (rhyfel) A waging of war.
Rhyfelloffer, s. m. (rhyfel—offer) A war engine.
Rhyfelogi, v. a. (rhyfelawg) To render warring; to become subject to wars and fightings.
Rhyfelogrydd, s. m. (rhyfelawg) A state of war.
Rhyfelu, v. a. (rhyfel) To war, to wage war.
Rhyfelus, a. (rhyfel) Warring, belligerent.
Rhyfelusaw, v. a. (rhyfelus) To render warring.
Rhyfelusawydd, s. m. (rhyfelus) A state of war.
Rhyfelwr, s. m.—pl. rhyfelwyr (rhyfel—gwr) A warrior, or a man of war.

Cas a fo rhyfelwr llwg, ac ni ddymuno heddwch o than rhyfel.

Others is he who is a feeble warrior, and doth not desire peace rather than war.

Adage.

Rhyfelwynt, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhyfel—gwynt) A hurricane.

Rhyfelydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhyfel) A warrior.
Rhyfer, a. (mer) Over-teeming with moisture.
Rhyferad, s. m. (rhyfer) A drivelling.

*Rheo a wael a rhyw nad,
A briw ferw, ab rhyferad.*

He would utter with a sort of din, and grind his spittle, the drivelling monkey.

D. ab Gwilym, Er lafudd.

Rhyferig, a. (rhyfer) Drivelling, snivelling.
Rhyferth, s. m. (rhy—merth) A violent gust.
Rhyferthin, s. m. (rhyferth) A violent gushing.

Yna y ddygual rhyferthin o wylaw ar Amic.

Therupon a severe gust of weeping fell upon Amic.

Cyd. Emlyn on Amic.

Rhyferthwy, s. m. (rhyferth—gwy) An inundation, a torrent; a tempest. Rhyferthwy Mawrth, the tempest of the vernal equinox; Rhyferthwy Medi, the tempest of the autumnal equinox.

Hir argae a fag rhyferthwy.

A long damming will collect a torrent.

Adage.

Un o'r tri enghir ddechwyn—dychryn y tan rhyferthwy, pan holltw y ddalar hyd awn, ag y dified y rhan fwyaf o bob byw.

One of the three awful events; the transmutation of the torrent fire, when the earth was rent the great deep, so that the greatest part of every life was destroyed.

Barddas.

Rhyferthwyad, s. m. (rhyferthwy) An overflowing, an over-whelming, an inundating.

Rhyferthwyaw, v. a. (rhyferthwy) To overspread in a torrent, to overflow.

Rhyferthwyawg, a. (rhyferthwy) Having an inundation; apt to overflow.

Rhyferthwyawl, a. (rhyferthwy) Overwhelming.
Rhyferw, s. m. (berw) An over-boiling.

Rhyferwad, s. m. (rhyferw) An over-boiling.
Rhyferwi, v. a. (rhyferw) To over-boil.
Rhyfeth, s. m. (meth) Extreme failing.
Rhyfethiant, s. m. (rhyfeth) Extreme debility.
Rhyfethu, v. m. (rhyfeth) To fail extremely.
Rhyfiad, s. m. (rhyf) A stretching out; an arrogating, or assuming.
Rhyfig, a. (rhyf) Apt to be assuming.
Rhyffin, a. (blin) Over-tiresome; teasing.
Rhyffinaw, v. a. (rhyffin) To over-tire.
Rhyfifinder, s. m. (rhyffin) Extreme tiresomeness.
Rhyfod, v. (bod) To be before; to be fully.

*Minnas o'm rhadau, rhyffiant
Yn rhaddau, yn rhyfodd ardduamant.*

I also from my gifts, which were to me completely of ruddy gold, was in ample honour.

L. P. Moch.

Rhyfodd, s. m. (bodd) Unrestrained desire.
Rhyfoddawg, a. (rhyfodd) Of unconstrained will.

Rhyfoddawg rhy ffwr a wyl.

The over-indulged casts his eye on too much.

Adage.

Rhyfoddaw, v. a. (rhyfodd) To give full will.
Rhyfoes, s. f.—pl. t. au (moes) Over-ceremony.
Rhyfoeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (moeth) Extreme daintiness; an over-pampered state.
Rhyfoethus, a. (rhyfoeth) Being over-dainty.
Rhyfoll, v. a. (rhyfawl) To praise extremely.

*Rhyfollant anant anaw cymet;
Rhyfollant at wir, at orobor.*

The minstrel of accordant melody will greatly praise; his justice, his exploit will be greatly praised.

Ein. ab Gwganen, i L. d. Isorwerth.

*Rhagorae careu, cerddd ni haeddal!
Rhal a'r rhyfoll, llawr hufelydd.*

The fair lover did excel, she could not merit reproach; some would flatter her, abject as the ground.

Sefyn, i Wenhwysfer.

Rhyfollant, s. m. (rhyfawl) Extreme praise.
Rhyfon, s. pl. aggr. (rhyf) Currants.
Rhyforiad, s. m. (rhyfawr) A stretching about, a scrambling; a sawing the air with the hands.
Rhyforiaw, v. a. (rhyfawr) To stretch about; to scramble; to saw the air with the hands.

I Fangor, i rhyforiaw, Gwr cul, bob dyw Sul y daw.

To Bangor, to scramble about, the measure night will on every Sunday come.

R. ab Dafydd Llwyd.

Rhyfrys, s. m. (brys) Precipitation. a. Precipitate; impatient, over-hurrying.

*Rhyr rhyfrys enys, amiged byrddodion;
Rhyr byrddodion o lys ar lla cerddorion.*

Rhyr with impatient steeds, and birds of many gifts; Rhyr whose court is conspicuous for the benefit of minstrel.

Einion Offeriald.

Rhyfrysiad, s. m. (rhyfrys) A hurrying extremely; an acting with impatience.

Rhyfrysiaw, v. a. (rhyfrys) To make too much haste, to precipitate.

Rhyfrysiawl, a. (rhyfrys) Over-hastening.
Rhyfunaw, v. a. (rhyf—unaw) To unite fully.
Rhyfus, a. (rhyf) Apt to bear away; presuming.
Rhyfusaw, v. a. (rhyfus) To render presuming; to become stubborn or froward.

Rhyfusedd, s. m. (rhyfus) Stubbornness.
Rhyfwydd, s. pl. (rhyf—gwydd) Currant trees.
Rhyfwydden, s. f. dim. (rhyfwydd) A currant tree.
Rhyfychan, s. m. (bychan) Extreme littleness. a. Very little; too little, over-small.

Nid gwell gormodd na rhyfychan.

Excess is not better than too little.

Adage.

Rhyfychawd, s. m. (bychawd) Extreme smallness.

Rhyw fu rhyfychawd gyanen.

The very little constellation was too much.

Adage.

Rhyfyg, s. m. (rhyf) Presumption, arrogance.
Rhyfygaid, s. m. (rhyfyg) Presumption.
Rhyfygawl, a. (rhyfyg) Presuming, insolent.
Rhyfygiad, s. m. (rhyfyg) A presuming.
Rhyfygu, v. a. (rhyfyg) To presume, to dare; to act arrogantly or insolently.
Rhyfygus, a. (rhyfyg) Presumptuous, arrogant.
Rhyfygusaw, v. a. (rhyfygus) To render presumptuous; to become presuming.
Rhyfygusedd, s. m. (rhyfyg) Presumptuousness.
Rhyfygusarwydd, s. m. (rhyfyg) Presumptuousness.
Rhyfygwr, s. m.—pl. rhyfygwyr (rhyfyg—gwr) One who presumes, an arrogant man.
Rhyfynych, a. (mynych) Frequent overmuch.
Rhyfynychiad, s. m. (rhyfynych) A frequenting overmuch; an occurring too often.
Rhyfynychu, v. a. (rhyfynych) To render very frequent; to frequent overmuch.
Rhyfyg, s. m. (myg) Extreme mixture; confusion. a. Confused.
Rhyfygiad, s. m. (rhyfyg) A confusion.
Rhyfygu, v. a. (rhyfyg) To confuse.
Rhyfaeth, a. (faeth) Over ripe, too mellow.
Rhyfaethiad, s. m. (rhyfaeth) A rendering over-mellow; a becoming over-mellow.
Rhyfaethu, v. a. (rhyfaeth) To render over-mellow; to become over-mellow.
Rhyffle, s. m. (ffle) An extreme verge or border.
Rhyffwch, a. (ffwch) Extremely apt; very rife.
Rhyffo, s. m. (ffo) Extreme flight or escape.
Rhyffod, s. m. (rhyffo) A fleeing overmuch.
Rhyffol, v. a. (rhyffo) To flee overmuch.
Rhyffrau, s. m. (ffrau) An extreme flow; a respiration; a violent breathing.
Rhyffrenad, s. m. (rhyffrau) A respiring.
Rhyffresaw, v. a. (rhyffrau) To respire greatly.

Rhyffedd—
 Nae gwddant ya ddiu;
 Eidd pwy ei hadnos;
 Fwy llyd ei hadnos;
 Fy bwrh gan ddydd;
 Fy wynt a rhyffu.

I am surprised that they know not, without a doubt, concerning the seal, which is her seal; her members of what form; through what part she cannot to pass out; what air she doth respire.
Taloria.

Rhyffrom, a. (ffrom) Extremely irritable or testy.
Rhyffromi, v. a. (rhyffrom) To taunt or to irritate overmuch; to become very testy.
Rhyffromiad, s. m. (rhyffrom) A taunting overmuch, a becoming very testy.
Rhyffrost, s. m. (ffrost) Extreme vaunting.
Rhyffrostiad, s. m. (rhyffrost) A vaunting or swaggering overmuch.
Rhyffrostiau, v. a. (rhyffrost) To over-vaunt.
Rhyffrostiawl, a. (rhyffrost) Extremely vaunting.
Rhyg, s. m.—pl. & an (rhy—yg) Rye.

Po hynaf fo y rhyg tebycaf fydd i'w ddi.

By so much older the rye may be the more like it will be to its father.
Adapt.

Coll-mab Collfrewt a ddol ar gynth a bodd gwnaf i Yare Prydaie, lle nid-oedd cyn na hyry manya cwrch a rhyg.

Coll the son of Collfrewt brought wheat and barley first into the Isle of Britain, where there were before then only oats and rye.
Triad.

Rhyga, s. a. (rhyg) To gather or collect rye.
Rhygabl, a. m. (cabl) Extreme calumny.
Rhygabliadd, a. (rhygabl) Very calumnious.
Rhygabredd, a. m. (rhygabl) Extreme calumny.
Rhygabliad, s. m. (rhygabl) A calumniating extremely; a greatly scandalizing.
Rhygablu, v. a. (rhygabl) To shew extreme contempt; to calumniate extremely.

*A gylch rhyl, ddeon, a dy weddi;
 A dyfnewt rhian ni rhygabl?*

Do you hear, stranger, what is said; what a lady says it will not be severely derided?
Cynulle.

Rhygadw, v. a. (cadw) To keep extremely.
Rhygaffael, v. a. (caffael) To over-get; to obtain previously.

Pencerdd a ddyly bodair ar agallt y gae bob gwrng i gys gan wr, or nis rhygadw y gae gyt.

A chief of song is entitled to twenty-four pence from every woman who sleeps with a husband, if he has not previously obtained it of her.
Welsh Law.

Rhygaffaliad, s. m. (rhygaffael) An over-obtaining; a previously getting.

Rhygais, s. m. (cais) An over-attempt or trial.

Rhygall, a. (call) Extremely discreet.

Ni bydd cyfhoethwyr rhygall.

The powerful will not be discreet overmuch.
Adapt.

Rhygalledd, s. m. (rhygall) Excess of causing.
Rhygallineb, s. m. (rhygall) Excess of causing.

Rhygam, a. (cam) Extremely crooked.

Rhygamiad, s. m. (rhygam) A bending extremely, an over-bending.

Rhygamu, v. a. (rhygam) To bend extremely.

Rhygant, s. m.—pl. f. an (cant) An extreme or outmost circle.

Rhygant, v. a. (cant) To strag before.

*Cerdd newydd i'w rhydd rhygant
 Cais swen, gan swet bygide.*

A new song to my chiefs the stragg then his before, with the gale of the morning.
Cynulle.

Rhygardd, s. m. (cardd) A violent drive or thrust.
Rhygardeiad, s. m. (rhygardd) A chasing or driving overmuch; a violently afflicting.

Rhygardda, v. a. (rhygardd) To over-impel.

*Rhygardd ydy fydd;
 Fy rhydd, mawr dda!*

My bosom has been severely rushed; my heart is not broken!
Llywarch Hen.

Rhygariad, s. m. (cariad) Extreme fondness.

Rhygaru, v. a. (caru) To love extremely.

Ti a noddyd

*A rhygaru
 O bob caru.*

Thou wouldst protect such as thou shouldst surely love him every bending.
Taloria.

Rhygas, s. m. (cas) Extreme hate. a. Very hateful.

Rhygas rhywyl.

That is extremely hated will be soon too soon.
Adapt.

*A gylwedd a gant Rhydderch,
 Trydd hael corchwyr serch;
 Gwedd rhygas gwedd Rhydderch!*

Hast thou heard how Rhydderch sang, the third stanza of cordial affection; common is extreme hate when extreme love!
Engl. y Cynul.

Rhygashad, s. m. (rhygashu) An over-hating.

Rhygashu, v. a. (rhygas) To hate extremely.

Rhygastelliad, s. m. (castellid) A completely spreading round.

Rhygastellu, v. a. (castellu) To raise a complete fence round about.

Rhygawdd, s. m. (cawdd) An extreme affront.

Rhygawg, a. (rhyg) Abounding with rye.

Rhygawl, a. (rhyg) Of the quality of rye.

Rhyged, s. f. (ced) Excess of treasure. a. Very bountiful; lavish; prodigal.

Rhygeiad, s. m. (rhygais) An over-attempting.

Rhygeislau, v. a. (rhygais) To over-attempt.

Rhygel, s. m. (cel) A complete concealment.

Rhygeliad, s. m. (rhygel) A fully concealing.

Rhygeilu, v. a. (rhygel) To conceal fully.

Ni rhygeilu dryllau.

My infernals will not be fully concealed.
Adapt.

Rhygen, a. f. ddiu (rhyg) A grain of rye.

Rhygethig, a. (cethig) Excelling in song.
Rhygethydd, a. m. (cethydd) A master in song.

Unle rhygethig, rhygethig,
 Rhygethydd; rhygethig i wladig.

The station of the complete singer, excellence of song, I ardently desire; I will greatly sing to a sovereign.

Rhygil, a. m. (cil) A complete recession.
Rhygiliad, s. m. (rhygil) A fully receding.
Rhygiliaw, v. a. (rhygil) To recede fully.
Rhygiplaw, v. a. (ciplaw) To snatch violently.
Rhygloff, a. (clloff) Extremely lame or halting.
Rhygloffedd, s. m. (rhygloff) Extreme lameness.
Rhygloff, v. a. (rhygloff) To lame extremely.
Rhygloffiad, s. m. (rhygloff) A rendering very lame; a becoming extremely lame.
Rhyglud, s. m. (clad) An over-carriage.
Rhygludaw, v. a. (rhyglud) To over-carry.
Rhygludiad, s. m. (rhyglud) An over-carrying.
Rhyglydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rhwyg) Desert, merit

Myn walson, rhygludian ciod;
 Mwy na neb myn ei sabod.

He will have abundance, from-deserving ease; more than say he will will cause himself to be known.

Ira. Tm. i Syr E. Herbert.

Rhyglyddedd, a. (rhyglydd) Of a meritorious or a deserving tendency.
Rhyglyddawd, s. m. (rhyglydd) A meriting.
Rhyglyddawl, a. (rhyglydd) Meritorious.
Rhyglyddedig, a. (rhyglydd) Merited, deserved.
Rhyglyddedigath, s. m. (rhyglyddedig) Meritoriousness.
Rhyglyddiad, s. m. (rhyglydd) A meriting.
Rhyglyddiannawl, a. (rhyglyddiant) Meritorious.
Rhyglyddiannaw, v. a. (rhyglyddiant) To render meritorious; to become deserving.
Rhyglyddiannus, a. (rhyglyddiant) Meritorious.
Rhyglyddiannusaw, v. a. (rhyglyddiannus) To render meritorious; to become deserving.
Rhyglyddiant, s. m.—pl. rhyglyddiannau (rhyglydd) Merit, desert, worth, reward, claim.
Rhyglyddu, v. n. (rhyglydd) To deserve, to merit

Galves Arthur ar lawb i an lle, i dala an gwanaweth iddym;
 a bynyd i rhyglyddu.

Arthur called every body to one place, to reward them for their service, and that according as they might deserve.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Rhygliw, s. m. (clyw) A full hearing; a previous hearing.
Rhygliwed, v. a. (rhaglyw) A fully hearing; a previously hearing.
Rhygnawg, a. (rhawn) Having friction; having scores or hacks.
Rhygnawl, a. (rhygn) Rubbing; scoring.
Rhygnbren, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhygn—bren) A stick for scoring upon, a tally.
Rhygnedig, a. (rhawn) Rubbed, chafed; scored.
Rhygnedd, s. m. (rhawn) A state of friction; the state of being scored or hacked.
Rhygnell, s. f. (rhawn) A whipsaw.
Rhygnem, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhawn) A file.
Rhygniad, s. m. (rhawn) A rubbing, a chafing; a scoring; a hacking.
Rhygnogrydd, s. m. (rhygnawg) The state of being rubbed, chafed, or scored.
Rhygnu, v. a. (rhawn) To rub, to chafe; to score; to hack.

Rhag Told, yn lori iwr main,
 Rhygnawt i'r naw cast celain.

Before Told, demolishing a stone tower, they scored the number of glass hundred corpses.

En. ab Owen.

Rhygnwr, s. m.—pl. rhygnwyr (rhawn—gwr) One who rubs; a scorer.
Rhygnoddaw, a. (rhygnawd) Very insulting.

Rhygodded, a. f. (rhygawdd) Extreme insult.
Rhygoddedig, a. (rhygodded) Extremely thwarted.
Rhygoddi, v. a. (rhygawdd) To vex extremely.

A rhygoddy gaw, gwylod rhygoddy;
 Gwawd yw ei ddygnawd ddefnyddi coddied.

Who greatly insults the brave, let him beware; from his being irritated generally proceeds a cause of trouble.

U. Cyfrillawg.

Rhygoddiad, s. m. (rhygawdd) A thwarting extremely or overmuch.
Rhygoddiant, s. m. (rhygawdd) Extreme vexation; extreme insult.
Rhygoddwr, s. m.—pl. rhygoddwyr (rhygawdd—gwr) One who vexes extremely.
Rhygoel, s. f.—pl. t. ion (coel) Superstition.
Rhygoeladd, s. m. (rhygoel) Superstitiousness.
Rhygoeliad, s. m. (rhygoel) A believing overmuch.
Rhygoeliaw, v. a. (rhygoel) To believe overmuch.
Rhygoelus, a. (rhygoel) Being superstitious.
Rhygoll, s. f. (coll) Extreme loss. a. Over apt to lose.

Lloegr aeth o'r llaw rhygoll;
 I'r llaw grof yr aeth lloegr oll.

England is gone from the greatly losing hand; to the strong hand is all England gone.

D. Llyw, i Henri VI.

Rhygolled, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhygoll) Extreme loss.
Rhygolledig, a. (rhygolled) Being totally lost.
Rhygolledu, v. a. (rhygolled) To cause extreme loss; to damage extremely.
Rhygolli, v. a. (rhy—goll) To lose overmuch.

Ni rhygolliwyd Daw o dderwydd byt;
 Ni rhygolles na'i ni fo ynyd.

May I not totally lose God through the gaiety of the world; he has not completely lost heaven who is not mad.

Ll. P. Mech.

Rhygread, s. m. (cread) A perfectly creating.
Rhygred, s. f. (cred) Over-belief; credulity.
Rhygrediad, s. m. (rhygred) An over-believing.
Rhygredu, v. n. (rhygred) To be credulous.
Rhygreu, v. a. (creu) To create perfectly.

Ac ya ores dyn Daw rhygreu.

And the best man God did perfectly create him.

Gwalechael.

Rhygrin, a. (crin) Being extremely brittle.
Rhygrinaw, v. n. (rhygrin) To become extremely dry, parched, or brittle.
Rhygriniad, s. m. (rhygrin) An over-drying.
Rhygrinawl, a. (cronawl) Tending to collect overmuch; very accumulating.
Rhygroni, v. a. (croni) To collect overmuch.
Rhygroniad, s. m. (croniad) An over-collecting.
Rhygu, s. m. (cu) Over-fondness. a. Over-fond.

Rhygu pob rhygchawd.

Over-previous every thing very small.

Adage.

Ni bu rygu na-bul rygu.

There has been no over-fondness but there would be excess of hate.

Adage.

Rhygudd, s. f. (cudd) A full hiding. a. Being completely concealed.
Rhyguddiad, s. m. (rhygudd) A fully hiding.
Rhyguddiaw, v. a. (rhygudd) To hide fully.

Och mor drwm yw ych marw draw;
 Och roi gwedd i'ch rhyguddiaw!

Alas! how mad that you should ponder this: to put a covering so completely to hide you how direct!

Rhye Fynglwyd.

Rhygwelit, s. m. (rhyg—gwelit) Rye-grass.
Rhygwag, s. m. (cwag) Extreme sleep.
Rhygwydd, s. m. (cwydd) An extreme fall.
Rhygwyddaw, v. n. (rhygwydd) To fall extremely.
Rhygwyddawl, a. (rhygwydd) Tending to fall extremely; being very apt to tumble.
Rhygwyddiad, s. m. (rhygwydd) An over-falling.
Rhygwyn, s. f. (owyw) Extreme complaint.
Rhygwynaw, v. a. (rhygwyn) To complain extremely; to be very querulous.

Rhyhiraethiad, s. m. (rhyhiraeth) A longing or wishing extremely.

Rhyhiraethu, v. a. (rhyhiraeth) To long or wish extremely.

Endwraig i enny gŵm oherwydd hysbysu ei gŵm. Gwalchmai.

Rhyhodi, v. a. (rhyhodi) Apt to long much.

Rhyhodi, v. a. (rhyhodi) To soar greatly.

Rhyhodi, v. a. (rhyhodi) Extremely aspiring.

*Doddyf! Dygwyl! I awyrion;
Rhygole fy argyfydd yn agwdd deon,
A Maelgwyn, fwyaf ei achwynon,
Eiddin prydol rhyhodiogion.*

I came to Dyganwy to contend; I liberated my lord in the presence of strangers, and of Maelgwyn, the greatest in arguments: Eiddin the sovereign of greatly aspiring ones. Taliesin, i ferb Llyr.

Rhyhoddiad, s. m. (hoddiad) Over-facilitating.

Rhyhoddiaw, v. a. (hoddiaw) To over-facilitate.

Rhyhodi, v. a. (hodi) Extremely fond, over-fond.

Rhyhoffawl, a. (rhyhoff) Apt to be over-fond.

Rhyhoff, v. a. (rhyhoff) To be over-fond.

Rhyhoffiad, s. m. (rhyhoff) An over-loving.

Rhyhwyr, a. (hwyr) Too late; high time; far-extending. Mae gyn rhyhwyr iaf beidiaw, it is high time for us to leave off.

*Hydwr ydd a chod, rodd rhyhwyr.
Hyd ydd aeth hwyf hawl a' oyr.*

Fame will swiftly fly the far extending circle, which the cooing of one and stars have traced. L. P. Moeh.

Rhyhwyrdiad, s. m. (rhyhwyrd) A rendering over-late; a growing over-late.

Rhyhwyrd, v. (rhyhwyrd) To become over-late.

Rhyhwyredd, s. m. (rhyhwyrd) An over-lateness.

Rhyhy, a. (hy) Over-held, over-forward.

Rhyhyd, a. (hyd) Extremely long, over-long.

Woe to the son of man from loving vice for too long to excess. Cyniddeu.

Rhyhyder, s. m. (hyder) Excess of confidence.

Rhyhyderiad, s. m. (rhyhyder) A confiding much.

Rhyhyderu, v. a. (rhyhyder) To confide much.

Rhyhyderus, a. (rhyhyder) Over-confiding.

Rhyladd, v. a. (ladd) To cut off completely.

Rhyladdiad, s. m. (rhyladd) A fully cutting off.

Rhylaes, a. (laes) Trailing or falling very low.

Rhylafur, s. m. (lafur) Over-labouring.

Rhylafuriaw, v. a. (rhylafur) To labour much.

Rhylafuriaw, a. (rhylafur) Very laborious.

Rhylam, s. m.—pl. t. au (llam) An over-step.

Rhylamaw, a. (rhylam) Over-stepping.

Rhylamiad, s. m. (rhylam) An over-stepping.

Rhylamu, v. a. (rhylam) To over-step.

Rhylanw, s. m. (llanw) An over-fulness.

Rhylar, a. (llar) Very mild or soothing.

Rhylarwch, s. m. (rhylar) Extreme mildness.

Rhylarychiad, s. m. (rhylarwch) A much assuaging.

Rhylarychnu, v. a. (rhylarwch) To assuage greatly.

Rhylas, a. (glas) Very blue; very vivid. 'Rhylaswedd fy nghran!' Of very pale hue may brow!

Rhylasiad, s. m. (rhylas) A making very blue.

Rhylasu, v. a. (rhylas) To become very blue.

Rhylathr, a. (llathr) Extremely glittering.

Rhylathriad, a. (rhylathr) Extremely glittering.

Rhylathrawl, a. (rhylathr) Very glittering.

Rhylathredd, s. m. (rhylathr) Extreme glitter.

Rhylathriad, s. m. (rhylathr) A making very glittering, a polishing extremely.

Rhylathru, v. a. (rhylathr) To make very glittering, to polish extremely; to glitter much.

Rhylaw, a. (llaw) Redundant, over-full.

Rhylawnder, s. m. (rhylaw) A redundancy.

Vol. II.

Rhylawnedd, s. m. (law) Over-place; superiority.

Rhylaw, v. (law) To over-place; superiority.

A bitter trick, not diversions for superiority. Gwalchmai.

Rhylêad, s. m. (rhyê) An over-placing; a giving a superior place.

Prif gyfarch gelydd par rhylêad.

An orifal first greeting will ensure an over-placing. Taliesin.

Rhylêawl, a. (rhyê) Tending to over-place.

Rhylêf, s. m. (lêf) An extreme cry.

Rhylêfain, v. a. (rhyêf) To cry out much.

Rhylenwi, v. a. (rhylenw) To over-charge, to fill over; to abound to excess.

Rhylesgu, v. a. (rhy—llesgu) To relax.

Rhylid, s. m. (lilid) Extreme rage or anger.

Rhyliadiad, s. m. (rhylid) A greatly irritating.

Rhyliadiaw, v. a. (rhylid) To irritate greatly.

Rhylithr, s. m. (lithr) That is slippery overmuch; a diarrhoea. a. Too slippery.

Rhylithrow, v. a. (rhylithr) To slip extremely.

Rhylithrowl, a. (rhylithr) Very slippery.

Rhylithrowd, s. m. (rhylithr) Extreme slipperiness.

Rhylithrowiad, s. m. (rhylithr) A slipping extremely.

Rhyliw, s. m.—pl. t. ian (lliw) A high colour.

Rhyliwiad, s. m. (rhyliw) A colouring highly.

Rhyliwiad, v. a. (rhyliw) To colour highly.

Rhyliwiadw, a. (rhyliw) Of high colour.

Rhylofi, v. a. (lofi) To bestow greatly.

O'r dawn rhylofiat rhy llofi wyl.

From the talent thou hast amply conferred too loquacious am I. Meirion ab Iwan.

Rhylofiad, s. m. (lofiad) A greatly bestowing.

Rhylog, s. m.—pl. t. au (llog) Over-hire.

Rhylogawl, a. (rhylog) Relating to over-hire.

Rhylogi, v. a. (rhylog) To over-hire; to deal unreasonably.

Rhylogiad, s. m. (rhylog) An over-hiring.

Rhylog, s. m. (llosg) An extreme burning.

Rhyloggedd, s. m. (rhylog) Extreme burning.

Rhylogi, v. a. (rhylog) To burn extremely.

Rhylogiad, s. m. (rhylog) Over-burning.

Rhyludd, s. m. (ludd) Extreme hinderance.

Rhyluddiad, s. m. (rhyludd) A hindering much.

Rhyluddiaw, v. a. (rhyludd) To hinder greatly.

Rhylun, s. m. (llun) A complete form; a preform.

Rhyluniad, s. m. (rhylun) A fully forming.

Rhyluniaeth, s. m. (rhylun) Complete formation.

Rhyluniaethawl, a. (rhyluniaeth) Tending to complete formation.

Rhyluniaethiad, s. m. (rhyluniaeth) Preformation.

Rhyluniaethu, v. a. (rhyluniaeth) To form completely; to preform.

O'r ddaith y rhyluniaethir

Air, aeth gwaed i'w gwyl.

From my language will be completely formed a report of thee, the truth will be to disgrace. D. ab Gwilym, i llyr.

Rhyluniaw, v. a. (rhylun) To form fully.

Rhylwgr, s. m. (llwgr) Extreme damage or hurt.

Rhylwne, s. m. (llwne) An extreme swallow.

Rhylwyth, s. m. (llywyth) An over-load.

Rhylwythaw, v. a. (rhylwyth) To over-load.

Rhylwythawg, a. (rhylwyth) Over-loaded.

Rhylwythiad, s. m. (rhylwyth) Over-loading.

Rhyly, a. (lly) Extremely apt to move.

Yn gerdd gylfod rodd rhyly.

Being an amiable song of the most aptly moving circle. Prwydd Bychan.

Rhylygrawl, a. (rhylwgr) Tending to damage extremely; extremely dealing.

3 Q

Rhylygru, s. m. (rhylygr) The state of being ly; a defiling extreme defilement.
Rhylygru, v. a. (rhylygr) To damage extreme to pollute extremely.

Rhylyncawl, a. (rhylync) Folly swallowing.
Rhylynciad, s. m. (rhylync) A fully swallowing.
Rhylyncu, v. a. (rhylync) To swallow fully.
Rhyll, s. m. (rhy-yl) A rift, cleft, or parting.
Rhym, s. m. (rhy-ym) That stretches round.

Rhym, pronom. prep. (rhy-ym) Signally mine; me signally; me before.

*Rhym a fal biw blith yr haf;
 Rhym a fal addystod y gwaif;
 Rhym a fal win glow.*

Peculiarly mine were the milch kine of summer; peculiarly mine were the harnessed steeds of winter; peculiarly mine was the sparkling wine.—Taliesin.

*Rhym gwlwr yn fyrr, yn ffyg arab hwy!
 Yn arbbawli derfyr.*

I particularly shall be called the powerful, the quick of blithe some course in the joy-inciting tumult.—Cynddylan.

*Rhodri mawr rhwym llawr; rhym lloes,
 A rydd budd i bawb ei gymhes.*

Great Rodri the ground doth bind; he before endowed me, who gives to every one his appropriate good.
Ll. P. Mech, t R. ab Owain.

Rhymofyn, v. a. (ymofyn) Particularly to enquire, seek, or demand.

*Rhymofyn Ceiwydd cyreifalet;
 Ei folawd rhy bydd rhy caint.*

The Fountain of love peculiarly demands contrition; his praise will be supremely the first of songs.—Migrant, m. Cynddylan.

Rhymofynawl, a. (rhymofyn) Particularly enquiring or demanding.

Rhymofyniad, s. m. (rhymofyn) A peculiarly enquiring or demanding.

Rhyn, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhy-yn) That reaches, shoots, or extends into; that causes to run into; a principle of motion; impulse; a shiver, or shake; dread; an instant; a small space; a small quantity; a point, or cape. s. f. Rhen, a torrent, a brook. Hence Aedden and Owren.

O amddifad fethlon ac ereill ryn.

Of orphan children and others a few.—Taliesin.

Rhyn, a. (rhy-yn) Pervading; agitating, shivering; terrible.

*Myndid gyfaried yn gyfarhwg
 A Gwynwynnys, ryn rhyf llawng.*

Thou didst seek to meet in arms with Gwynwynnys, the terrible chief of many hosts.—Ll. P. Mech, t R. ab Iorwerth.

*Ys gorwyn cwyn rhy yn rhedeg;
 Ys gwrdd yn fonnwr mawr morfroeg.*

Supremely white is the shivering foam in rearing; in January how mightily the great surging of the sea.—D. Benfras.

Rhyn, pronom. prep. (rhy-yn) Ours peculiarly; us signally; us before.

*Ni'm gawry Rheon yn rhan adden!
 Rhoddydd i Ddew yn na dechren,
 Rhod per paradwys para golau;
 Rhys parau Daw heb ddin eistes.*

May my Creator not leave me in the discarded party! There was given of God to us our beginning; in the blessed circle of paradise of continuing light; we originally God had caused void of every want.—Migrant ab Gwethmei.

Rhynald, a. (rhy) Tending to be shivering.

Rhynaig, a. (rhy) Tremulous, or trembling.

Rhynawl, s. m. (rhy) Pervasion, a running into; agitation; that is fleeting or passing; a moment; a while; a small space; a small quantity. Rhynawl yn y coed, a little way in the wood.

Digawr yw gware rhynawl.

Sufficient is the play of a moment.—Adage.

Rhag rhynawl tan dychyffwrwg.

From the agitation of fire smoke will be raised.—Taliesin.

Rhynawl, a. (rhy) Agitating; shivering.

Rhyndawd, s. m. (rhy) A shivering, a quake.

Rhynded, s. f. (rhy) That runs in; a small space, a small quantity; a moment.

Rhyndig, a. (rhy) Agitated; shivered.

(rhy) A state of agitation.

Ohaa a phedwar a ffedwar, a ffedwar, a ffedwar.

Tence yw fy lloes, a ffedwar, a ffedwar.

Listening with a pigling, with a little pig of trembling, my covering, for me there is no contentment.—Myddin.

Rhyniad, s. m. (rhy) An agitation; a shivering.
Rhynlaw, v. a. (rhy) To pervade; to agitate; to have instinct; to follow instinct.

O seith lloesad—

Ua yw a rhyad!

A dia y rhyad!

A thri a rhyad!

A phedwar a ffedwar;

A phedwar a ffedwar;

A phedwar a ffedwar;

A phedwar a ffedwar;

A phedwar a ffedwar;

A phedwar a ffedwar.

Of seven faculties: one is what I know by instinct; with the second I touch; with the third I call; with the fourth I hear; with the fifth I see; with the sixth I hear; with the seventh I smell.—Taliesin.

Ci i dym, march i dym, Eiddon i was, huch i dym.

A dog to pull, a horse to move, a kine to cure, a cow to nurse.—Taliesin.

Rhynlaw, a. (rhy) Being pervaded; being agitated; having instinct.

Rhynlaw, a. (rhy) Pervasive; apt to agitate.

Rhynlon, s. pl. (rhy) Oats cleared of the husks.

Rhynllyd, a. (rhy) Full of shivering.

Rhynllydrwydd, s. m. (rhynllyd) Shiveringness.

Rhynswch, s. m.—pl. rhynychau (rhy-sweh) The trunk of an elephant.

Rhynu, v. a. (rhy) To cause an emotion; to extend into; to cause a shivering or quaking; to shiver, to shake with cold; to be chilled. Wg yn rhynu, I am shivering with cold.

Rhyngad, s. m. (rhwyng) Intervention.

Rhyngadwy, a. (rhwyng) Capable of intervening, capable of fulfilling.

Rhyngadwy fodd gwyn bob pwr amni.

Agreeable to our will is every article of it.—Brutus Dwydd y Wen.

Rhyngawd, s. m. (rhwyng) An intervention.

Rhyngawg, a. (rhwyng) Having intervention. a. m. That mediates.

Bid rhyngawg cleirch.

Let him elder be a mediator.—Llywarch Hw.

Rhyngawl, a. (rhwyng) Intervening; mediate.

Rhyngawr, s. m. (rhwyng) That intervenes.

Rhyngdawd, s. m. (rhwyng) Intervention.

Rhyngedig, a. (rhwyng) Intervening.

Rhyngedd, s. m. (rhwyng) Intermediateness.

Rhyngiad, s. m. (rhwyng) An intervention.

Rhynglinell, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhwyng-linell) An intervening line.

Rhynglinellawl, a. (rhynglinell) Interlinear.

Rhynglinellad, s. m. (rhynglinell) Interlinear.

Rhynglinellu, v. a. (rhynglinell) To interline.

Rhyngsang, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhwyng-sang) A diacope, in rhetoric.

Rhyngyn, v. a. (rhwyng) To intervene; to mediate; to bring to pass; to content. "A rhyngyn fodd di hyn?" Will that be agreeable to thy will?

Rhyddidawg, a. (godidawg) Superexcellent.

Rhyddres, s. m. (godres) Ostentation, or pomp.

Caftan fydd a fforddau ei llo

O fodd Rodri ryddres.

A myriad of birds will find their good from praising the pomp of Rodri.—Ll. P. Mech.

Oedd chrysothryst eua y teyrnasoedd pell i writh, maint clad ei lly, a rhyodres ei deula.

Early filled the kingdoms far from him, for the fame of his court and the pomp of his family. Gr. ab Arthur.

- Rhyoddef, v. a. (goddef) To bear extremely.
Rhyoddefawl, a. (rhyoddef) Over-patient.
Rhyoddefiad, s. m. (rhyoddef) A bearing much.
Rhyoddefu, v. a. (rhyoddef) To bear extremely.
Rhyoed, s. m. (oed) Over-age, extreme age.
Rhyoedran, s. m. (rhyoed) Extreme age.
Rhyoedranus, a. (rhyoedran) Superannuated.
Rhyofal, s. m. (gofal) Extreme care.
Rhyofalu, v. a. (rhyofal) To act very cautiously; to be over-anxious.
Rhyofalus, s. m. (rhyofal) Over-careful.
Rhyofn, a. (ofn) Extreme terror or fear.
Rhyofnawg, a. (rhyofn) Over-fearful.
Rhyofni, v. a. (rhyofn) To fear extremely.
Rhyofniad, s. m. (rhyofn) A fearing extremely.
Rhyogwydd, s. m. (gogwydd) An over-bias.
Rhyogwyddaw, v. a. (rhyogwydd) To over-bias.
Rhyogwyddawl, a. (rhyogwydd) Over-inclining.
Rhyogwyddiad, s. m. (rhyogwydd) An inclining extremely; an over-biasing.
Rhyorchwyl, s. f.—pl. t. ion (gorchwyl) An over-performance, supererogation.
Rhyorchwylaw, v. (rhyorchwyl) To supererogate.
Rhyorchwylad, s. m. (gorchwyl) Supererogation.
Rhyorchwylas, a. (rhyorchwyl) Supererogatory.
Rhyoreagyn, s. m. (goreagyn) A full subjection.
Rhyoreagynawl, a. (rhyoreagyn) Fully subduing.
Rhyoreagyniad, s. m. (rhyoreagyn) A fully subduing; a completely overcoming.
Rhyoreagynu, v. (rhyoreagyn) To subdue fully.
Rhyorfof, v. a. (gorfof) To overcome fully; to be fully necessitated.

Gwedi gwreidd o Wl Cador rhyorfof arno, rhyddid ag ychydig o'i nifer ydd ai ar fo yn ei loegras, a chymeryd diogelwch y mor yu amddiffyn iddo.

After Julius Cæsar had perceived that he was completely overcome, with a small part of his army he retreated to his ships, and took the security of the sea for his protection. Gr. ab Arthur.

- Rhyorfodawg, a. (rhyorfof) Being completely overcome; under full subjection.
Rhyorfofawl, a. (rhyorfof) Tending to overcome completely.
Rhyorfofiad, s. m. (rhyorfof) A fully overcoming, a making a complete conquest.
Rhyorngaw, v. a. (gorngaw) To perform, to make completely, to accomplish fully.

Rhyorngaw Duw dda—
 Rhyorngaw fy awen,
 I ddal fy rhan:
 Myda yf Taliesin,
 Arachd iſf dewin.

God originally formed good; he originally formed my muse, to praise my sovereign: I am Taliesin with flowing speech of prophecy. Taliesin.

- Rhyorngawl, a. (gorngawl) Tending to do fully.
Rhyorngiad, s. m. (gorngiad) A doing fully.
Rhyosgoew, a. (gosgoew) Having a very contrary direction or bearing.
Rhyran, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhan) Extreme part.
Rhyranawl, a. (rhyran) Tending to over-divide.
Rhyraniad, s. m. (rhyran) An over-dividing.
Rhyranu, v. a. (rhyran) To over-divide.
Rhyrawd, s. f. (rhawd) An extreme course.
Rhyred, s. f. (rhed) An extreme running.

Ac yu iſi feddy, a fedd gwared an gau,
 A ddrws innau yu ynddrdded;
 Ysodd arglwydd nef a nerthad,
 I ddiofryd gwyd gowdi rhyred.

And to us there is a physician, who has the power to put away our frailty, and let us then place our dependence; for it is the Lord of heaven who is endowed with power, to put aside vice after an excessive course. Gwaelchmai.

- Rhyredawl, a. (rhyred) Tending to run beyond.
Rhyredege, v. a. (rhyred) To run extremely.
Rhyrediad, s. m. (rhyred) A running extremely.
Rhyrif, s. m. (rhif) An over-number.
Rhyrifaw, v. a. (rhyrif) To over-number.
Rhyrifawl, a. (rhyrif) Supernumerary.
Rhyrifiad, s. m. (rhyrif) An over-numbering.
Rhyrith, s. m. (rhith) A prior appearance.
Rhyrithiad, s. m. (rhyrith) A previously appearing; an over-appearing.
Rhyrithiaw, v. a. (rhyrith) To appear before.
Rhyrithiawl, a. (rhyrith) Previously appearing.
Rhyrodiaid, s. m. (rhyrawd) A rambling overmuch.
Rhyrodiaw, v. a. (rhyrawd) To ramble overmuch.
Rhyrodiawl, a. (rhyrawd) Apt to stroll much.
Rhyrodd, s. f.—pl. t. ion (rhodd) An over-gift.
Rhyroddawl, a. (rhyrodd) Over-giving.
Rhyroddi, v. a. (rhyrodd) To give overmuch.
Rhyroddiad, s. m. (rhyrodd) An over-giving.
Rhyrwym, s. m. (rhwym) Extreme stricture.
Rhyrwymaw, v. a. (rhyrwym) To bind extremely.
Rhyrwymawl, a. (rhyrwym) Over-binding.
Rhyrwymiad, s. m. (rhyrwym) An over-binding.
Rhyrys, s. m. (rhys) Extreme strait or difficulty.

Nis deudl rhyrs.

There would not come a great difficulty. Taliesin.

- Rhyrsiaw, v. a. (rhyrys) To hesitate extremely.
Rhyrsiawl, a. (rhyrys) Extremely hesitating.
Rhys, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (rhy—ys) Extreme arduity; extreme tendency; aptitude to set off, begin, pervade, or to overrun; a rushing; a strait; a trial, a difficulty.

Dyrnod Rhysdun y dawl
 Y rhys a'r afwydd ar rai.

Myrdin said that there would come a certain difficulty and misfortune upon some. From Tre.

- Rhys, pronom. prep. (rhy—ys) That signally; of that particularly.

Rhys gwllychwyf rwyf rhyfoiddas,
 Can digones Daw o'i ddechydias.

That above all may I adore the Lord of wisdom, since God has formed him from his materials. Meilir ab Gwaelchmai.

- Rhysaeth, s. m. (rhys) The act of putting in a moving tendency; a putting in a course; a running a course; a straitening.
Rhysall, s. f.—pl. rhyselliau (sail) An extreme or first foundation.
Rhysawl, a. (rhys) Rushing; over-running.
Rhyse, s. m. (ae) Extreme fixedness; the state of being quite fixed or determined.

Gnawd gwedi rhyserch ryse.

Frequently after extreme fondness comes excess of abstinence. Gwaelchmai.

- Rhysedd, s. m.—pl. t. an (rhws) Superfluity, excess, an over-abundance.

Gwell golud no rhysedd.

Better are means than superfluity. Adapt.

- Rhysedd, s. m. (rhys) A rush, or violent course.

Pan amag Tegedri, iag rhysedd
 Rhysed cad Cadellion fowid
 Oedd trwmawr trwmawr yu dyhodd.

When he defended Tegedri, splendid the career on the course of battle of Cadell's progeny, innumerable those to death consigned falling to silence. Cynadeiwr m. O. Gwynedd.

- Rhysedda, v. a. (rhysedd) To rush on; to rush into difficulty or trial.

Gwell dyhodd no rhysedda.

Better is forbearance than to rush into contest. Adapt.

Gwell rhwydd no rhysedda.

Better what is easy than to encounter difficulties. Llrford.

- Rhyseddawg, a. (rhysedd) Having superfluity.

Rhyseddu, v. a. (rhysedd) To make a superfluity.
Rhyseiliad, s. m. (rhyseil) A laying a complete foundation.
Rhyseiliaw, v. a. (rhyseil) To lay a complete foundation.

Gannd wodi rhyseir rhyseiliaw cas.

Commonly after over-fondness leads to completely imprudent.

Gweldhwal.

Rhyseiliawg, a. (rhyseil) Having a complete foundation; completely implanted.
Rhyseiliedig, a. (rhyseil) Completely founded.
Rhyseil, s. m. (seil) A steadfast look, a stare.
Rhyseiliad, s. m. (rhyseil) A viewing steadfastly.
Rhyseilu, v. a. (rhyseil) To view steadfastly.
Rhyseu, s. f.—pl. t. au (sen) An extreme rebuke

*—Kerys hen
 A ddryseidd, pond oddi rhyseu
 Brach haelwedd bris uchelwyr.*

Old Ambrose became embarrassed, was it not an extreme check, he that was the frank and liberal arm of nobility?

March. at Moor.

Rhyseuawl, a. (rhyseu) Severely checking.
Rhyseuad, s. m. (rhyseu) A severely chiding.
Rhyseu, v. a. (rhyseu) To chide extremely.
Rhyserch, s. m. (serch) An over-fondness.
Rhyserchawg, a. (rhyserch) Being over-fond.
Rhyserchawl, a. (rhyserch) Over-fondling.
Rhyserchiad, s. m. (rhyserch) A loving greatly.
Rhyserchu, v. a. (rhyserch) To love extremely.
Rhyseu, v. a. (rhyse) To remain firm; to be very stubborn.

*Dy gloddidd yd hwyddi Fih hwyddi glod;
 Dy gloddidd dy glod rhyseu.*

Thy assembling birds are gay in thy sumptuous mansion; thy sword hath firmly established thy throne.

Ll. F. Mech, i L. at Iorwerth.

Rhysefa, s. f.—pl. rhysefydd (rhyse) A course.
Rhysegain, a. (rhwsg) Tending to overrun.
Rhysegawg, a. (rhwsg) Being covered with luxuriance; overgrown. Tir rhysegawg, land overgrown or run wild.
Rhysegawl, a. (rhwsg) Tending to be overgrown.
Rhysegiad, s. m. (rhwsg) A growing luxuriantly; an overgrowing, a running wild.
Rhysegwydd, s. m. (rhyse—gwydd) Succour; patronage, protection.

Rhysegwydd gweddus, car dileithriad.

The succour of the widow, the friend of strangers.

R. Frickard's Landdyfri.

Rhysegwyddaw, v. a. (rhysegwydd) To succour.
Rhysegwyddawl, a. (rhysegwydd) Succouring.
Rhysegwyddiad, s. m. (rhysegwydd) A succouring.
Rhysegyr, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhyse—gyr) Violence; a furious assault, onset, or attack.

*Noddod h'm rhoddod rhag rhysegyr arfus,
 Arfod Cai a Bedwyr.*

Protection was not afforded me against the violence of arms, like the stroke of Cai and Bedwyr.

Blair Bell, in Edm. Fychan.

Rhysegyrawl, a. (rhysegyr) Furiously assaulting.
Rhysegyriad, s. m. (rhysegyr) A fiercely assaulting.
Rhysegyru, v. a. (rhysegyr) To assault fiercely.
Rhyseiad, s. m. (rhyse) A rushing violently; agitation; a straitening; or a putting to trial.
Rhyseianawl, a. (rhyseiant) Fiercely rushing.
Rhyseiantu, v. a. (rhyseiant) To rush onward.
Rhyseiant, s. m. (rhyse) A rushing course.
Rhyseiau, v. a. (rhyse) To rush violently; to straiten; to entangle.
Rhyseilawg, a. (rhyse) Full of violence; straitened.
Rhyseawl, a. (rhyse) Violently-rushing; tending to straiten or cause obstruction.

Rhyseledig, a. (rhyseled) Rendered violent.

Rhyseledig a dig, y dyra o ddaneidd

Rhyseledig mawr.

Ardent and angry, his teeth work a profusion of a forest of land.

D. at Gwilym, i L. at Iorwerth.

Rhyseod, s. pl. aggr. (rhyse) Burning embers; glowing cinders; also called marcer.
Rhyseodiad, v. n. (rhyseod) To turn to embers.
Rhyseodiad, s. m. (rhyseod) A turning to embers.
Rhyseodyn, s. m. dim. (rhyseod) A hot ember.
Rhyseu, v. a. (rhyse) To render straitened or difficult; to entangle. Gwells wedi rhyseu, hair become entangled.
Rhysewr, s. m.—pl. rhysewyr (rhyse—gyr) A man insured to violence, difficulty, or trial; a champion, a combatant; a savage.

Syll di ruto dan rhysewr.

See that youder the fire of a cottage.

R. Calhach—Mabllang.

Y mysgedd hagen, y be y fwydd rhydd, a oiw chydawd y wdd y Mynedd Curi; alyr yw hwydd y mysgedd; chwydd yw y mysgedd gwynedd o hwn a dan yr hwn y chwydd gwynedd yw aglydd oedd gryn.

Now the mountain, on which the battle was, is called by the people of the country the Curi Mountain; that is to say, the mountain of the tumbler; for in that place there is an immense heap of stones, under which was buried a champion in primitive ages of antiquity.

Beuch. Gr. at Gwyn.

Rhysewrieth, s. m. (rhysewr) The warfare of a champion; warfare.

Gwynedd yw rhysewr yw rhysewrieth gryn.

A gwynedd hwn yw oedd.

Mai tref alyr twydd hwn; Maf ton trale twydd trale dnoeth.

Gwynedd in conflict in the warfare of the chief, they heard where he was, like a host whom grief doth not move; like an empty wave, of brisk tumult, over the strand.

Ll. F. Mech, i L. at Iorwerth.

Rhysewydd, s. pl. (rhwsgwydd) Privet wood.

Er angyddwch bywyd.

Rhysewydd a gwydd.

For life's security, priest and woodman.

Beuch.

Rhysewydden, s. f. dim. (rhysewydd) Privet tree.
Rhyseyn, s. m. dim. (rhyse) A burning ember.
Rhyseyrch, s. m. (syrech) Extreme affection.

Trwydd Llywelyn llyw rhyseyrch Prydain, Ffidi i Lloegr o ddyn.

Behold Llywelyn the identical chief of Britain, whom Lloegr has cause not to love.

Ll. F. Mech, i L. at Iorwerth.

Rhyseyrchawl, a. (rhyseyrch) Very affectionate.
Rhyseyrchiad, s. m. (rhyseyrch) A loving greatly.
Rhyseyrchu, v. a. (rhyseyrch) To love extremely.
Rhytion, s. pl. aggr. (rhwd) Particles worn off by friction; scorings.
Rhyth, pronom. prep. (rhy—yth) Thee signally; thine extremely or signally.

Mi rhyth iolaf, boddig Feli,

Ab Mynogan si;

Rhyddwdd tethi

Ysfa Feli Belli;

Teddawg oedd Mdi.

I with thee fervently worship, victorious Bell, son of Mynogan the chief; Bell will preserve the rights of the Beauty beloved; for he was qualified for it.

Blair Bell.

Rhythawl, a. (rhwth) Tending to gape or to open widely; yawning.

Rhythedd, s. m. (rhwth) A state of gaping.
Rhythfol, s. m. (rhwth—bol) A gorbelly.
Rhythfoliawg, a. (rhythfol) Gorbellied.
Rhythgi, s. m. (rhwth—ci) A greedy dog.
Rhythguawd, s. m. (rhwth—cnaud) Bloating flesh.
Rhythiad, s. m. (rhwth) Distention, a gaping.
Rhythni, s. m. (rhwth) A state of gaping.
Rhython, s. pl. aggr. (rhwth) Cockles. Rhythion y brain, clams.
Rhythu, v. a. (rhwth) To stretch out, to make wide, open, or large. Rhythu Hysgaid, to open the eyes very wide, to stare.

Rhythwch, s. m. (rhwth) A gaping, a yawning.

*Bon haw, bon hawhwb,
Bon gawr yu rhythwch.*

I have been a boar, I have been a sow, I have been a about in a snout. Taliesin.

Rhythwr, s. m.—pl. rhythwyr (rhythu—gwr) One who gapes; a yawner.

Rhyw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhy—yw) A kind, a species, a sort; a sex; some.

*Eni rhyw ar barch pa yw.
Let kind belong to what is meet.*

Adage.

*Pob byw wrth ei ryw yr noth.
Every living to his kind is joined.*

Isoddien.

Rhyw, s. (rhy—yw) Some. Rhyw rif, some number; rhyw rai, some ones; rhyw faint, some quantity; rhyw dro, some time.

Rhyw, adv. (rhy—yw) It is genial or natural.

Rhyw i fab wrth lannu.

It is genial for the young roe to skip. Adage.

Rhywad, s. m. (gwad) Extreme denial.

Rhywadawl, s. (rhywad) Being fully denying.

Rhywada, v. a. (rhywad) To deny extremely.

Rhywan, s. m. (gwan) An extreme division; an extreme wound or stab.

Rhywaniad, s. m. (rhywan) A dividing extremely; a wounding extremely.

Rhywann, v. a. (rhywan) To make an extreme division; to wound extremely.

Rhyward, s. m. (gward) Full deliverance.

Rhywardawl, s. (rhyward) Tending to complete deliverance.

Rhywardiad, s. m. (rhyward) Full deliverance

Rhywardu, v. a. (rhyward) To deliver fully.

Rhywasgar, s. m. (gwasgar) Extreme dispersal.

Rhywasgaraw, s. (rhywasgar) Being extremely scattered or dispersed.

Rhywasgarawl, s. (rhywasgar) Tending to scatter extremely; a greatly dispersing.

Rhywasgariad, s. m. (rhywasgar) A scattering extremely; a being greatly dispersed.

Rhywasgaru, v. a. (rhywasgar) To scatter much.

Rhywawg, s. (rhyw) Having a sexual distinction, sexual, of a particular kind.

Rhywbeth, s. m. (rhyw—peth) Something.

Rhywbryd, s. m. (rhyw—pryd) Sometime. adv. Sometime, once on a time; formerly.

Rhyweilydd, s. m. (gweilydd) One that is very sparing, parsimonious, or frugal.

Rhyweilyddu, v. a. (rhyweilydd) To be very sparing, to be over parsimonious.

*Gogwybydd Dafydd daddyl Eiddi,
Na rhyweilyddol ei rwydd.*

Conscious is Dafydd of the making of Eiddi, that to be profuse will not make us very sparing. Lt. P. Nich, i Dr. ab Owen.

Rhywel, s. m. (gwel) Extreme sight; foresight.

Rhywelod, v. a. (rhywel) To see beyond.

*Ferryt rhyfel rhywelod;
A pla fydd helyd yu hwn.*

The danger of war we foresee; and what a world likewise is this. Dr. S. Cent.

Rhywelodig, s. (rhywel) Being foreseen.

Rhyweliad, s. m. (rhywel) A foreseeing.

Rhywfaint, s. m. (rhyw—mair) Some quantity.

Cred air o bob deg a rhyw, a thi a gyl rhywfaint bech o wir.

Believe a word of every ten thou shalt hear, and thou wilt obtain some little truth. Adage.

Rhywerth, s. m. (gwerth) Extreme price.

Rhywerthiad, s. m. (rhywerth) An over-selling, a selling extravagantly.

Rhywerthu, v. a. (rhywerth) To over-sell.

Rhywestliad, s. m. (gwestliad) A tormenting.

Rhywestliu, v. a. (gwestliu) To torment greatly.

Rhywfan, s. f. (rhyw—man) A particular place. adv. Somewhere.

Rhywiad, s. m. (rhyw) A giving a specific character; a partaking of a specific character.

Rhywiaeth, s. m. (rhyw) Distinction of species.

Rhywiaw, v. a. (rhyw) To endue with a specific or sexual distinction; to be specific; to partake of a sort or species.

Rhywiawg, s. (rhyw) Kindly, kind; genial; of good kind. Amfel rhywiawg, a kind animal; tir rhywiawg, land of good quality.

Ni cheir gwian rhywiawg dr gien gaff.

No fine wool can be had from a goat's shoulder. Adage.

Rhywiawl, s. (rhyw) Special; sexual.

Rhywiogaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhywiawg) The state of being specific, or of a particular sort; distinction, sort, or species.

*Tair prif rywiogaeth y cyd ar gerdd; mawr, galar, a dychan.
There are three primary distinctions of song; eulogy, elegy, and satire.* Isoddien.

Rhywiogaethawl, s. (rhywiogaeth) General.

Rhywiogaethiad, s. (rhywiogaeth) Specification.

Rhywiogaethu, v. a. (rhywiogaeth) To endue with a specific distinction.

Rhywiogaidd, s. (rhywiawg) Somewhat genial.

Rhywiogedd, s. m. (rhywiawg) Genialness.

Rhywiogeldiad, s. m. (rhywiogaidd) A rendering or becoming genial in a degree.

Rhywiogeldiaw, v. a. (rhywiogaidd) To render somewhat genial; to become somewhat genial.

Rhywiogeldrwydd, s. m. (rhywiogaidd) A genial or kindly disposition.

Rhywiogi, v. a. (rhywiawg) To render genial or kindly; to become genial.

Rhywiogrwydd, s. m. (rhywiawg) Genialness.

Rhywiolaeth, s. m. (rhywiawl) Sexual distinction; a specific difference.

Rhywioli, v. a. (rhywiawl) To render specifically different; to have a specific difference.

Rhywir, s. m. (gwr) Complete truth. a. Very true; too true.

Rhygas pob rhywir.

Extremely offensive is every naked truth. Adage.

Rhywriad, s. m. (rhywir) A fully certifying.

Rhywriaw, v. a. (rhywir) To certify fully.

Rhywlaw, s. m. (glaw) Excessive rain.

Rhywlawiad, s. m. (rhywlaw) A raining greatly.

Rhywlawlaw, v. (rhywlaw) To rain excessively.

Rhywle, s. m. (rhyw—lle) A certain place. adv. Somewhere.

Rhywnethur, v. a. (gwnethur) To over-perform, to supererogate.

Rhywnethurawl, s. (rhywnethur) Supererogatory; tending to over do.

Rhywnethuriad, s. m. (rhywnethur) Supererogation; an over doing.

Rhywogaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhywawg) The state of being specific; a kind, or species.

Rhywr, s. m.—pl. rhywyr (gwr) One that is more than human.

Rhywres, s. m. (gwres) Extreme warmth.

*Mawr ddaw digoose
Heal haf a'i rhyres;
Ac of digoose
Budd codd a mawr.*

The great God did cause the sun of summer with its extreme warmth; and he did cause the abundance of the wood and field. Taliesin.

Rhywresawg, s. (rhywres) Being over warm.

Rhywresawl, s. (rhywres) Over-heating.

Rhywresiad, s. m. (rhywres) An over-heating.

Rhywresogi, v. a. (rhywresawg) To acquire too much warmth, to cause over-heat.

Rhywresu, v. a. (rhywres) To become too warm.

Rhywrys, s. m. (gwrys) Extreme ardency or zeal. a. Over-ardent.

*Yn mhryffwrn rhywrys
Yn rhywoli gwrys
Yn Mrydalen Yrys
Gwys un gweith.*

In the height of extreme ardency augmenting of zeal in the British Isle he proclaims our visitations.

Ll. P. Moch, i L. ab Iorwerth.

Rhywryslad, s. m. (rhywrys) A rendering over-ardent; a becoming very ardent or zealous.

Rhywrysiaw, v. a. (rhywrys) To act with extreme ardency or warmth.

Rhywrysiawl, a. (rhywrys) Being very ardent.

Rhywun, s. m. (rhyw—un) Some one, somebody.

Rhywyl, s. m. (gwyl) A very sharp look out.

Rhywyliad, s. m. (rhywyl) A watching greatly.

Rhywyllaw, v. a. (rhywyl) To watch extremely.

Rhywyllt, a. (gwyllt) Extremely wild.

Rhywylliad, s. m. (rhywyllt) A rendering very wild; a becoming extremely wild.

Rhywylltiaw, v. a. (rhywyllt) To make extremely wild; to scare extremely.

Rhywynt, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (gwynt) A hurricane.

Ardwyad can-cad—

To cynt so rhywynt uch rudd wybren.

The master of a hundred conflicts; being more active than the violent wind over the ruddy atmosphere.

Ll. P. Moch.

Rhywyr, a. (gwyr) Oblique overmuch.

Rhywyrw, v. a. (rhywyr) To make over-oblique.

Rhywyrwl, a. (rhywyr) Of extreme obliquity.

Rhywryiad, s. m. (rhywyr) A rendering extremely oblique; a becoming over-oblique.

Rhywystl, s. m.—pl. t. on (gwystl) An over-pledge; a previous pledge.

Rhywystlaw, v. a. (rhywystl) To give an over-pledge; to pledge previously.

Rhywystliaw, a. (rhywystl) Over-pledged.

Rhywystliad, s. m. (rhywystl) An over-pledging.

Rhywyth, s. m. (gwyth) Extreme violence.

Rhywythaw, v. a. (rhywyth) To enrage extremely; to be extremely enraged.

Rhywythawg, a. (rhywyth) Full of extreme rage.

Rhywythiad, s. m. (rhywyth) An enraging extremely; a being extremely enraged.

Rhŷymadaw, v. a. (ymadaw) To go away utterly; to forsake utterly.

Rhŷymadawiad, s. m. (rhŷymadaw) A going away utterly; a forsaking utterly.

Rhŷymgadw, v. a. (ymgadaw) To keep or preserve one's self fully; fully to abstain.

Rhŷyrwl, a. (gyrawl) Extremely impulsive.

Rhŷyriad, s. m. (gyriad) A driving extremely.

Rhŷyru, v. a. (gyru) To drive on extremely.

S.

SA, s. m. r. A negative of motion; a state of opposition; a fixed state; a firm, steady, or even state; a standing.

Sach, s. f.—pl. t. an (sa—ach) A sack, or bag.

Sach diawl, a demoniac, or one possessed.

Sachaid, s. f.—pl. sacheldiau (sach) A sackful.

Sachawl, a. (sach) Sacking, or bagging.

Sachbwn, s. m. (sach—pwn) A bale.

Sachedig, a. (sach) Being put in a sack, sacked.

Sachell, s. f. dim. (sach) A small sack, or a bag.

Sachelliad, s. m. (sachell) A bagging; a padding, or stuffing out, as with wool or the like.

Sachellu, v. a. (sach) To bag; to stuff in; to pad.

Sachiad, s. m. (sach) A putting in a sack.

Sachlian, s. m. (sach—llian) Sackcloth.

Sachu, v. a. (sach) To put in a sack, to stuff.

Sachwisg, s. f. (sach—gwisg) Sackcloth covering.

Sachwr, s. m.—pl. sachwyr (sach—gwr) A man who sacks or puts in a bag.

Sad, a. (sa—ad) Permanent, firm; discreet, sober.

Merch sad, a discreet woman.

Sol yn sad heb un gadwyn.

She will stand firmly without any chain. R. Dafydd Llwyd.

Sadell, s. f.—pl. t. i (sad) A dorse, or a pannel.

Sadelliad, s. m. (sadell) A putting on a packsaddle.

Sadelliath, s. m. (sadell) The use of a packsaddle.

Sadellu, v. a. (sadell) To put on a packsaddle.

Sadellwr, s. m.—pl. sadellwyr (sadell—gwr) A maker of packsaddles.

Sadiad, s. m. (sad) A rendering firm or steady.

Sadiaw, v. a. (sad) To render firm or steady.

Sadiawl, a. (sad) Of a firm or steady tendency.

Sadiedig, a. (sad) Rendered firm or steady.

Sadrwydd, s. m. (sad) Firmness, steadiness.

Sadwrn, s. m. (sad—gwrn) A fixt or firm point; a centre point: also the name of Saturn.

Sac, s. m. (sa) A kind of woollen stuff, say.

*Gwag a ddanfod—
Is dail yr, o sae du.*

*A robe has been sent to thee, under the leaves, of black say.
D. ab Gwilym.*

Saen, s. f.—pl. t. i (sa—en) A vehicle, a carriage.

Saer, s. m.—pl. seiri (sa—er) A wright, an artificer, an artisan.

Saer coed, saer pren, pra-saer, a carpenter; saer maen, maen-saer, a stone-mason; saer melin, a millwright; saer pridd-faen, a bricklayer; saer cist, a cabinet-maker; saer lleng, a shipwright; saer llestri gwall, a straw-joiner.

Pen saer pob perchennwg.

Every proprietor is the chief artificer.

Adys.

Un o dri meddyrfaiddion Ysya Prydain—Morddal Gwr Cwch, saer Ceriant ab Gredidwr, a defnyddiodd mewn a chloch gryn i gwneid y Cymru.

One of the three beneficial inventors of the Isle of Britain: Morddal the Man of the Torrent, the architect of Ceriant son of Gredidwr, who first taught the work of stone and lime to the nation of the Cymru.

Triad.

Saerlaid, a. saer Wright-like, workman-like.

Saerawl, a. (saer) Artificial; architectural.

Saerlad, s. m. (saer) A forming a wright or artisan.

Saerlannawl, a. (saerlant) Architectonic.

Saerlannu, v. a. (saerlant) To practise or carry on architecture or the work of a wright.

Saeriant, s. m. (saer) Architecture.

Saerl, s. m. (saer) A wright's work.

Saerlaid, s. m. (saerlaid) The calling of a wright or artificer; the art of building or framing; mechanism; architecture.

Saerlaidhaw, a. (saerlaidhaw) Architectonic.

Saerlaidhiad, s. m. (saerlaidhiad) A constructing a piece of work, or mechanism.

Saerlaidhu, v. a. (saerlaidhu) To carry on the calling of a wright; to construct a piece of work or mechanism.

Saerniaidd, a. (saerni) Like the work of an artist; masterly; mechanical; architectonic.
Saerniaw, v. a. (saerni) To work as a wright.
Saerniawl, a. (saerni) Architectural.
Saernieiddiad, s. m. (saerniaidd) A rendering workman-like; a becoming mechanical.
Saernieiddiaw, v. a. (saerniaidd) To render workman-like; to become mechanical.
Saernieiddrwydd, s. m. (saerniaidd) Masterliness, as a wright, that is workman-like.
Saer... (saer) To work as an artisan.
Saesoneg, f. (saer-gwaith) A wright's work.
English language. The Saxon language; the Saesones, s. f. (saeson) An Englishman.
Saeson, s. pl. (saes) Saxons; Englishmen.
Saesonach, s. pl. dim. (saeson) Saxon herds.
Saesoniaidd, a. (saeson) Saxon like; English.
Saesoniad, s. m.—pl. saesonaid (saeson) A Saxon.

Saerwr yr holl Saesonaid.
 The same of all the Saxons.

Llondedd.

Saesoniog, a. (saeson) Saxon, or English.
Saesyn, s. m. dim. (saes) An Englishman.
Saeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (sa-aeth) An arrow.

Gwneid seith saeth i syberw; or
 Gwneid seith saeth syberw.

Let love make an arrow for the courtoise.

Adage.

Saethawd, s. m. (saeth) The act of shooting.
Saethawl, a. (saeth) Tending to shoot; ejective.
Saethbenig, s. m. (saeth—pen) Arrow-grass.
Saethbawl, s. m.—pl. saethbolion (saeth—ebawl)
 A cast foal, an epithet for a young colt.

Ni ddylir daly ebawl yn ol ei fam; a hwnw a elwir saethbawl.
 It is not proper to lay hold of a colt after its dam; and that is called a cast foal.

Welsh Laws.

Saethedig, a. (saeth) Being ejected or shotten.
Saethflew, s. m. aggr. (saeth—blew) The hairs which rise through the fur, in some animals.
Saethiad, s. m. (saeth) A shooting; ejection.
Saethiant, s. m. (saeth) The act of shooting.
Saethlys, s. m. (saeth—llys) Common arrowhead.
Saethu, v. a. (saeth) To shoot, or to dart.

Haws barnu no saethu.

It is easier to judge than to shoot.

Adage.

Wid rhydd i neb saethu anifell y bo helyriaeth arno, pan fo yn ei cwmwthra, tan bennu colli ei ffa a'i saeth i sgwydd y tir.

It is not free for any body to shoot an animal of the chase, when it shall be in its state of rest, under pain of forfeiting his bow and his arrow to the lord of the land.

Cyfraith Ely.

Saethwr, s. m.—pl. saethwyr (saeth—gwr) A shooter; an archer.

Saethwriaeth, s. m. (saethwr) The act of shooting; archery.

Saethwrym, s. m.—pl. t. ian (saeth—gwrwym) The sagittal suture.

Saethyd, s. m. (saeth) A shooting, or a darting.

Saethydd, s. m. (saeth) A shooter; an archer.

—Caried

Saethodd, briwodd fli'm bron;
 Syth cuddaw y saethyddion.

—Love did shoot, did wound me in my breast: the sturdy idol of the archers.

R. Tudgr.

Saethyta, v. a. (saethyd) To shoot, or dart about; to frolick; to banter, to jest.

Dywawd Yabiddaden Bencawr: Na saethyta f bellach, onid dy fawr a fyni.

Said Yabiddaden Bencawr: Saerwr na no further, unless thou hast a mind to die.

H. Culwch—Birmingham.

Saethytawl, a. (saethyd) Frolicsome.

Saethytiad, s. m. (saethyd) A playing of frolick.

Saf, s. f. (sa) A stand; the act of standing.

Safadwy, a. (saf) Capable of standing; permanent, lasting, durable.

Safaeth, s. m. (saf) A standing still, rest; a stand.

Safawl, a. (saf) Standing; permanent; resting.

Safdal, s. m. (saf—tal) Pitching money paid for stands in a fair.

Safdoll, s. f. (saf—toll) Pitching toll.

Safedig, a. (saf) Being made to stand; established, fixed, confirmed.

Safedigawl, a. (safedig) Having a tendency or power of standing. Ew safedigawl, noun substantive. G. Roberts.

Safedd, s. m. (saf) A fixed state, stationariness.

Safiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (saf) A remaining still, or resting; a standing; stature.

Saf yn aed heb un gwybys;
 Safiad fwl dafed ar dŵyn.

She will stand without any change; a standing like a sheep on the hill.

R. Dafydd Llwyd, i hen gae.

Safiadawl, a. (safiad) Stationary, standing.

Safiadu, v. a. (safiad) To render stationary; to become stationary.

Safianawl, a. (safiant) Stationary, standing.

Safiannu, v. a. (safiant) To render stationary; to become stationary.

Safiant, s. m. (saf) The act of standing; posture.

Safiator, ger. (safiad) In standing.

Savitor, sup. (saf) To be standing.

Safle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (saf—lle) A station.

Sydd pob mla o'i safle
 Ac aed a gwyf yd ag e.

Removed by every month from its place, and let the festival go along with it.

Geo. Owles.

Safn, s. f.—pl. t. an (saf) The upper region of the mouth; the mouth, the chop.

Cae dy safn, ac agor dy giast a'rh llygad.

Shut thy mouth, and open thine ear and thine eye.

Adage.

Safnau, s. f.—pl. safneidiau (safn) A chopful, a mouthful.

Safnawg, a. (safn) Having a large wide mouth.

Safnawl, a. (safn) Relating to the palate.

Safndrom, a. (safn—trom) Of heavy jaw, of drawling enunciation.

Safndrwm, a. (safn—trwm) Drawling.

Safndrymedd, s. m. (trwm) Slowness of speech.

Safneidiad, s. m. (safnau) A taking a mouthful.

Safneidiaw, v. (safnau) To swallow by mouthfuls.

Safnau, s. m. (safn) A monthing; a gaping.

Safnrwth, a. (safn—rhwth) Wide-mouthed.

Safnrwthiad, s. m. (safnrwth) A stretching the mouth widely; a gaping.

Safnrwthni, s. m. (safnrwth) Wideness of mouth.

Safnrwthu, v. a. (safnrwth) To open the mouth widely, to gape.

Safnrwthwr, s. m.—pl. safnrwthwyr (safnrwth—gwr) One who makes a wide month.

Safn, v. a. (saf) To stand; to become fixed.

Ni saif gogan ar gadarn.

Slender will not stand on the mighty.

Adage.

Safwr, s. m.—pl. safwyr (saf—gwr) A stander.

Safwyr, a. m. (saf—gwr) Savour; odour, scent.

Safwyr hwn sy fwy'r llaenor,
 Fwl pwn o silius per.

The odour of this is greater by half, like a load of sweet apples.

D. ab Edmund.

Safwyrw, v. a. (safwyr) To produce a savour.

Safwyrwyl, a. (safwyr) Savoury; odorous.

Safwyrber, a. (safwyr—per) Sweet-savoured.

Safwyrriad, s. m. (safwyr) A savouring.

Safwyrus, a. (safwyr) Savoury; odorous.

Saff, s. m. (sa) That stands or shoots out.

Saffar, s. m. (saff) A spike, a spire.

Ergymant eu bar, seiff saffar an.
They will tremble at their rage, serpents with sting of reproof.
Cynddylan.

Saffrwm, s. m. (saffr) Saffron, or crocus.

Saffrym, v. a. (saffrwm) To blend with saffron.

Saffwn, s. m. (saff) A beam, or a shaft.

Saffwn praff edid ystid ei saffar.

A shaft, of simple wrath in its spike. Cynddylan.

Saffwy, s. f.—pl. i. on (saff) A pike or a lance.

Rhoddraff ei saffwy, ni sylw a'i olwg

O blind was rhoddwy.

Ready and thick his lance, he spurs not his sight on wealth that he will not touch. Cynddylan.

Gwr praff with baladr saffwy.

An athletic man by the shaft of a lance.

Saffwyad, s. m. (saffwy) A pike or lance.

Saffwyaw, v. a. (saffwy) To use a pike or lance.

Saffwyawg, a. (saffwy) Having a pike or lance.

Ni thraethal ar weid Cyron celidh

Ye couldst have saffwyawg.

He could make no declaration that Cyron would put up a corpse in harness bearing lance. Anwyl.

Saffywyl, a. (saffwy) Belonging to a pike.

Saffwyawr, s. m. (saffwy) A lancer, a pikeman.

Saffr, s. m. (saff) Saffron. Meddygon Myddfai.

Sag, s. m. (sa—ag) A squeeze of the gullet.

Sagfa, s. f.—pl. sagfeydd (sag) That is closed up, a choke; a squeeze in the gullet.

Sagiad, s. m. (sag) A squeezing together; a stifling

Sagiaw, v. a. (sag) To close up, to choke; to stifle; to squeeze in the chops.

Saglawi, a. (sag) Choking, or stifling.

Sagiedig, a. (sagiad) Choked, or stifled.

Sagmwrn, s. m. (sag—mwrn) A strangle, a choke.

Sagmwrnial, s. m. (sagmwrn) A strangling.

Sagmwrniaw, v. a. (sagmwrn) To strangle, to throttle, or to choke.

Sagmwrniawl, a. (sagmwrn) Strangling, choking.

Sagmwrniwr, s. m.—pl. sagmwrniwyr (sagmwrn —gwr) A strangler, a throttler, a choker.

Sai, s. m. (sa) That is still or at rest.

Saib, s. m. (sa—ib) The state of standing about;

a state of rest or leisure; sedateness; a state of mausing or study. a. Sedate, quiet, resting.

Pwy barchon moses awen saib;

Pwy a'i tramwy o'r trimaith!

Who is possessed of the morality of studious genius; who will travel in of the three sons? Idm. Fyng.

Said, s. m.—pl. seidiaw (sa—id) That is inserted;

the tongue or the part of a tool that is inserted in the handle; a haft, or hilt. Cleddyf cryn- seid, a sword with a round handle.

A gwn ni saif, gwna o said,

Debraur y penderbiniad.

And I know there will not stand, being weak of arm, the sinners for three hours' work. W. Middlem.

Saig, s. m.—pl. seigian (sa—ig) Mess; a meal.

Yr all mlig anrhyddedusaf yd y llys a ddyly y pentenid ei cha-ffael: a hyn yd gwnaf gwedd y brenin.

The second most honourable dish in the palace is due for the patron of the family to obtain; and that the first after the king. Welsh Laws.

Sail, s. f.—pl. seilian (sa—H) A base, foundation, or ground-work.

Tair sail awen; rhodd Daw, yngale dyn, a damwain bywyd.

The three foundations of genius; the gift of God, the exertion of man, and the event of life. Barddas.

Tair sail gwybodaeth: pwyll, anian, a thyst.

The three bases of knowledge: reason, nature, and evidence. Barddas.

Saim, s. m.—pl. seimiau (sa—im) Grease.

Sain, s. m.—pl. seilau (sa—In) A sound, a tone.

Gwr awn wyl, gwr ei sain;

Drad llyd, heb dued, heb sain.

A wonderful being art thou, of sound terrible; the ranger of the world, without foot, without wing. D. ab Gwilym, Fy gwynt.

Sais, s. m. (sai) That is stiff, quiet, or soft.

Sais, s. m.—pl. saeson. A Saxon; an Englishman.

Saith, s. m.—pl. seithiau (sa—ith) That separates;

that is separated; an essence; a candore; a crucible; the number seven. a. Seven. Truth saith, a small sandy cove in Llanarth, C.

Saith mlynedd y dymunir ymgyddiedig. Adey.

For seven years? A safety; plight; relief.

Sai, s. f.—pl. seilau (sa—In) A sound, a tone.

Drwg yr' ai, ei ai, ei ai;

Drydded gorllewin a llyd.

Sad, as the spot of discord, is the plight of anger-tempering storm. D. ab Gwilym.

Gwneud yr eiddad heb ei

Rhag blinder, heb gwbl undal,

O thy fal y troes y corff.

Was to the soul without a collar from blindness, without complete release, if it turns as the body has turned. D. ab Gwilym.

Sai, a. (sa—al) Safe, secure; precious; safe.

Aur ail ym a roes o'r law.

Precious gold he gave me from his hand. D. ab Edmwnd.

Salaidd, a. (sal) Somewhat hale or firm.

Salaü, v. a. (sal) To render same, or safe.

Salder, s. m. (sal) Safety, good plight.

Salw, a. (sal) Vile, base, sorry, frail; poor; ill, sick. Dillad seilwion, poor clothes; gwertheg

seilwion, poor cattle; tir salw, poor land; dyn salw, a sick man; pa fyd sydd arall? go salw, how goes the world with thee? rather imif-ferent.

Salwtd, s. m. (salwau) A rendering frail or mean; a becoming frail or despicable.

Salwawl, a. (salwau) Of a frail tendency.

Salwau, v. a. (salw) To render frail or mean; to become frail or despicable; to become ill.

Ti a ymgidol a m, y boreu, pan na chafych i; an hi gwn gwybodaeth, ac an na ddarbyddiaeth o'n Dow, nag eiddaeth cyngor, ac eiddaeth y ngarbyddiaeth.

Thou wilt be seeking for me, in the morning, when thou shalt not find me; for that thou hast heard knowledge, and knowest thou dost not receive the fear of God, nor follow my advice, but despise my reproof. Mathewus Crystallus.

Salwdr, s. m. (salw) Frailty, meanness; illness.

Nid aber y gwyneth, nid moth salwdr.

He did not so shortly, he not the arrow of frailty.

Cynddylan.

Salwdra, s. m. (salw) Frailty, debility, illness.

Salwedd, s. m. (salw) Illness; sorriens.

Salwin, a. (salw) Of a frail nature.

Salwinaw, v. a. (salwin) To render frail, or ill.

Salwineb, s. m. (salwin) Frailty, debility.

Salwintad, s. m. (salwin) A becoming debilitated.

Salwredd, s. f. (salw—gredd) A frail appearance.

Maddeu y Salwa

Maddeu min wadd!

Setting aside the Sabbath, moonly-sunning manners. Idm. Gwl.

Sall, s. m. (sy—all) That is out, or exposed.

Sallawg, a. (sall) Being exposed; outcast.

Difer a fy Nor, rhag arff eiddaeth.

At perished called, colling ydd eiddaeth.

Afrydd eiddaeth eiddaeth, eiddaeth eiddaeth.

Protect me, my Lord, from the torment of hell flame, and let thee be my refuge, with me, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

cast, the outcast, the outcast, the outcast, the out-

Salltrig, s. m.—pl. t. au (sallt—rhing) Snuffers; also called Gleiniadur.

Salltu, v. a. (sallt) To go out, to go off; to go away to hide, whilst the eyes of the seeker is covered, in the play of hide and seek. Gwara alltu, the play of hide and seek. Sil, It is also called Mio ynguddiau.

Samp, s. m.—pl. t. au (sy—amp) A mole, or mark on the skin.

San, s. m. (sa—an) The state of being out, beside, apart, or divested; a state of being wary; a gaze; a maze. a. Aware; wary.

Sânaw, a. (sân) Gazing; amazed, stupified.

Sânedig, a. (sân) Being made to gaze; amazed.

Sânedigaeith, s. m. (sânedig) Amazement.

Sânad, s. m. (sân) A gazing; a rendering amazed.

Sant, s. m.—pl. seintian (san) A saint. a. Holy.

Santaidd, a. (sant) Sanctified, hallowed, holy.

Santaw, a. (sant) Saintly, hallowed, or holy.

Santeiddiad, s. m. (santaidd) Sanctification.

Santeiddiaeith, s. m. (santaidd) Sanctification.

Santeiddiaw, v. a. (santaidd) To sanctify.

Santeiddlaw, a. (santaidd) Having holiness.

Santeiddiawl, a. (santaidd) Sanctified, holy.

Santeiddiedig, a. (santeiddiad) Sanctified.

Santeiddiedigaeith, s. m.—pl. t. au (santeiddiedig) Sanctification.

Santeiddiedigawl, a. (santeiddiedig) Of a sanctifying or hallowing tendency.

Santeiddrwydd, s. m. (santaidd) Holiness.

Santes, s. f.—pl. t. au (sant) A female saint.

Santolaeth, s. m. (santaw) Sanctitude.

Eglur oddi o'i santolaeth a'i ffeithedd.

He was conspicuous for his sanctity and his course of life.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Sân, v. a. (san) To gaze; to astonish, to amaze.

Sang, s. f.—pl. t. au (sa—ang) A tread; a trample.

Sanged, s. f.—pl. t. au (sang) A treading.

Sangawd, s. m. (sang) The act of treading.

Bredigad gwy,

Brython Lly,

Joeff ddiifrand;

Mri Brython

Brant ddaen

Sangawd.

The confused conflict of men, like the shore swells, Lloegr's rym; the story of the Brython is the trampling of the privilege of Saxons.

Cyddfede.

Sangawl, a. (sang) Treading; trampling.

Sangedig, a. (sang) Trodden; trampled.

Sangedigaeith, s. m. (sangedig) The act of treading.

Sangiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sang) A treading.

Sangiar, s. f. (sang) A treading place; a doorway, a gateway.

Sangu, v. a. (sang) To tread; to trample.

Ne sang ar droad ei chwera.

Tread not on the foot of a sorry dog.

Adagr.

Sangwr, s. m.—pl. sangwyr (sang—gwr) Treader.

Sar, a. m. (sa—ar) That is on or along; that is apt to cast down; fury, insolence; insult.

Sarad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sar) A throwing upon;

a discarding; an abusing, an insulting, an affronting; an injuring; a disgracing; reproach; offence.

Tair ffordd y gwair sarad i'r brein: un yw, pan dorer ei gwedd, pan roddir, a'r ddwy a'r llall; all yw, pan ddaer ddaer i'r cyd-dedyn o uchawr ymarfoll; ac yn ngwyd y ddaer ffordd o'r i'r halli wr i'r tian; trydydd yw, comarier o'i wrad.

In three ways may an insult be given to the king: one is, when his protection is broken, from his giving protection to a person and who may be killed; the second is, when two kings come upon their mutual boundaries, for the sake of an interview, and in the presence of the two kings, a man be longed to one like a man of the other side; the third is, to have improper connexion with his wife.

Welsh Laws.

VOL. II.

Saradu, v. a. (sarad) To give an insult.

Saradaw, a. (sarad) Insulting, affrontive.

Saradawl, a. (sarad) Abusive; insulting.

Sarad, s. f.—pl. t. au (sarad) Abuse; insult, affront, offence; injury; reproach.

Mi ei tangneddodaf a'r emherawdr; cana, o gwraeth ei sarad i mi, digawn o lawr yn cwyf i'w llaen, a'i lod ei yn erchi i'r agharad.

I will pacify him and the emperor; say, if he has done me an injury, enough of satisfaction is it with me then, that he doth crave my mercy.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Sarau, v. a. (sar) To throw off; to abuse; to insult; to affront; to offend; to injure.

Pwybydd a gwybodd, o wraig—Deheubarth, Gwynedd, Powys, a Lloegr, taled beirid bu a phedwar ugaint arian.

Whoever shall insult another, of the people of South Wales, North Wales, Powys, and England, let him pay four cows and four-score pieces of silver.

Welsh Laws.

Saraw, a. (sarau) Insulting, offensive; abusive.

Saradaw, v. a. (saraw) To become insulting.

Saradawdra, s. m. (saraw) A disposition to insult.

Saradodd, s. m. (saraw) Offensiveness; abuse.

Saradurwydd, s. m. (saraw) Offensiveness.

Sarch, s. m.—pl. seirch (sar) What is upon, or covers; a piece of harness.

Sarchawl, a. (sarch) Covering, as a harness.

Sarchiad, s. m. (sarch) A harnessing; a furnishing.

Sarchu, v. a. (sarch) To cover, as with harness.

Sard, s. m.—pl. t. iau (sar) A beat down; a rebuff.

Sardiad, s. m. (sard) A beating down; a rebuffing; a chiding, a chastising.

Sardiaw, v. a. (sard) To beat down; to rebuff; to chastise, to reprove, to rebuke, to chide.

Sardia feith yn sarad faw;

Od oes gwg nid ysgogsa.

He would beat down proud ones to dust; if there be a frown he will not go aside.

Iosef Brydd.

Ar hyn mi drowd at ffoliob, ac a ddochreulid ei sardo.

Upon that I turned to folly, and I began to rebuke her.

Marchwng Cwyddad.

Sardiawl, a. (sard) Beating down; chastising.

Sardiedig, a. (sardiad) Beaten down; chastised.

Sardiwr, s. m.—pl. sardiwyr (sard—gwr) One who beats down; a chastiser, a rebuker.

Sardd, s. m.—pl. t. au (sar) That is recumbent.

Sarddai, a. (sardd) Reptile, or creeping.

Sardden, s. f.—pl. t. au (sardd) A creeping thing.

Sarddaw, a. (sardd) Reptitious, reptile.

Sarddedig, a. (sardd) Being rendered creeping.

Sarddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sardd) A coming to creep, a creeping.

Sarddu, v. a. (sardd) To cast down; to creep.

Sarddus, a. (sardd) Causing to creep, or crawl.

Sarddusaw, v. a. (sarddus) To render creeping.

Sarddusdra, s. m. (sarddus) A creeping state.

Sarddusrwydd, s. m. (sarddus) A creeping state.

Sarf, s. m. (sar) That is prone, or on the ground.

Sarf, s. f.—pl. seirff (sar) A serpent; also the true service-tree.

Gwelom wely hwlau yn dwyn corch, yn yr hwn yr oedd gwraig yn gwrwdd yn aeth, a sarff yn ei brachiedd.

We could perceive an iron bed red hot, in which there was a woman lying naked, with a serpent embracing her.

Marchwng Cwyddad.

North sarff yn ei chloren.

The strength of a serpent in her tail.

Adagr.

Sarfaidd, a. (sarff) Like a serpent; serpentine.

Sarfawl, a. (sarff) Of the nature of a serpent.

Sarfes, s. f. (sarff) A female serpent.

Sarfwydd, s. pl. agr. (sarff—gwydd) Service trees.

Sarfwydden, s. f. (sarffwydd) True service tree.

Sariad, s. m. (sar) A rendering haughty or arrogant; a becoming overbearing.

3 R

Sarid, s. m. (sar) What is thrown over; what is given additionally in selling; an overplus.

Sarig, a. (sar) Haughty, froward, stern; saucy.

Sarita, v. a. (sarid) To collect remains.

Sarilach, s. m. (sar—llach) Riotous mirth.

*Er a gylaw gerddau, a gloddet, a sarilach, yn y seithlawr.
He could hear songs, and festal, and riotous mirth, in the marriage.
H. Glan—Mabington.*

Sarn, s. f.—pl. t. au (sar) What is laid down or along; a litter; a causeway; stepping stones.

Sarnaid, a. (sarn) Like a floor, or pavement.

Sarnawl, a. (sarn) Strewing, or covering as a crust, or pavement; like a causeway.

Sarnedig, a. (sarn) Strewed; laid as a causeway.

Sarniad, s. m. (sarn) A laying or strewing along; a littering; a making a causeway.

Sarnilyd, a. (sarn) Tending to cover; strewing.

*Geddwyl y dilyn ladd sarnilyd ar ei ol.
The deluge left an incrustating mire after it. Ier. Owain.*

Sarnu, v. a. (sarn) To strew, to spread; to trample
Sarnwr, s. m.—pl. sarnwyr (sarn—gwr) One who strews along; a trampler.

Sarnydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sarn) One who strews; one who lays a causeway.

Sarth, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (sar) A reptile; a scorpion; a serpent; a hedgehog; a severe sarcasm.

Sarthawl, a. (sarth) Reptilitious, reptile.

Sarthes, s. f.—pl. t. au (sarth) A reptile.

Sarthu, v. a. (sarth) To creep or crawl along.

Sarug, a. (sar) Haughty, froward, stubborn; severe; surly, stern; dogged, cynical.

*Madawg oedd marchwyr meirch sarug caln;
Wr all Cyfawr Cadgaddug;
Dywan garu! Daw s'a gorug
Dan eys poen dygn pan y dag.*

*Madog was a cavalier with splendid high-mettled steeds; a man like Cyfawr the Lowering Cloud of Battle; gone is our idol! God brought us under the yoke of pain by taking him away.
Selys.*

Sarugald, a. (sarug) Somewhat severe or surly.
Sarugaw, s. a. (sarug) To render froward, stern, or surly; to become stern or surly.

Sarugawl, a. (sarug) Apt to be stern or surly.

Sarugedd, s. f. (sarug) Frowardness; surliness.

Sarugiad, s. m. (sarug) A rendering haughty, froward, or severe; a becoming surly.

Sarugrwydd, s. m. (sarug) Frowardness, perverseness; surliness, asperity.

Sarugyn, s. m. dim. (sarug) A froward one; a surly fellow, a sour cur.

Sath, s. m. (sa—ath) The state of being set, put, or fixed; a state of opposition.

Sathan, s. m. (sath) An adversary; Satan.

*Trefnais dalar fawr, a'i chlawr achlan;
Trefnais warn effer, a'fath Sathan
Trefnais i bryfed, lle yd ymbroddu.*

*They did order the ample earth, with the whole of its surface; they did order the slough of hell, the portion of Satan, a habitation for worms, where they shall be striving.
Carnedyn.*

Sathanes, s. f. (sathan) A female devil.

Sathar, s. m. (sath) A tread; a trample. a. Treading; trampling. Meirch sathar, trampling steeds.

Meirw seugi, mal sari sathar.

*The treading of the dead, like the trampling of furze.
Ll. P. Mech.*

Sathr, s. m. (sath) A tread; a trampling.

Sathraid, a. (sathr) Trodden; trampled.

Sathrawl, a. (sathr) Treading, trampling.

Sathredig, a. (sathr) Trodden, trampled.

Sathrfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (sathr) A trodden place.

Sathriad, s. m. (sathr) A treading, a trampling.

Sathraarn, s. f. (sathr—sarn) A trodden place.

Sathru, v. a. (sathr) To tread; to trample.

Sathrwr, s. m.—pl. sathwyr (sath—gwr) A treader, a trampler.

Saw, s. f. (sa) That encloses, or causes to stop.

Oedd lawr saw Seoson Chwedd y Cawcia.

*Terror was the stop of the English of Cawcia Dyhr.
D. Brufus.*

Sawch, s. m. (sa—awch) A heap, a pile; a load.

Sawchl, v. a. (sawch) To heap up, or to pile.

*Digau sawchl awchl
Yn erbyn dolyddied.*

*Enough of loading of iniquity against the coming of the Lord.
Tolentin.*

Sawd, s. m.—pl. soddion (sa—awd) Drift, tendency; juncture; plight; extremity; limit, border, or verge; a siege. Sawd y mor, a sea beach; wyf dan sawd oer, I am under a sad plight. Merdyr sawd, a voyage of extremity.

Sawdawl, a. (sawd) Tending, verging; limiting.

Sawdiad, s. m. (sawd) A tending, a verging.

Sawdiaw, v. a. (sawd) To tend, to verge.

Sawdl, s. m.—pl. soddiau (sawd) A heel. Sawdl crydd, mercury goosefoot.

Sawdr, s. m. (sawd) A verge; a juncture.

Sawdriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sawdr) A joining.

Sawdriaw, v. a. (sawdr) To join; to soder.

Sawdriaw yn awl, and yw'r nod.

*Joining in the brow, and in the mark.
Bodo Brwynllydys, i awl march.*

Sawdur, s. m. (sawd) Juncture; soder.

Sawduriad, s. m. (sawdur) A joining; a sodering.

Sawduriaw, v. a. (sawdur) To join; to soder.

*I oeddi o ddali ydd awl,
Ac oeddi chod ac sawdr.
Ac a'i law sawdriaw awl.*

*To a force of leaves she reached, gaining them and compassing, and with her hand rivetting fastness.
D. ab Gwilym, i Fwydd.*

Sawdwr, s. m.—pl. sawdwyr (sawd—gwr) A man of the verge or border; a soldier.

Sawdd, s. m.—pl. soddion (sa—awdd) A bottom; a depth; a sink, a sinking, or plunging in; a root, or power of numbers. a. Sinking.

*Cal arddio ffordd y cawdd.
Hyd dwr sawdd, a dalar sych.*

*Then shall have honour the way those goest, over sinking water and dry earth.
Id. Dwydd.*

Sawell, s. f.—pl. t. i (saw) An outlet; a smoke hole, a chimney.

Tri pheth a ystyr wr o'i dy; crowsiwyd ddyfnydd, sawell ty-lyd, a guraid gubnachlyd.

*Three things that will cause a man to leave his house; a nest through which water drops in, a smoky chimney, and a scolding wife.
Cedwig Ddydd.*

*Mad dodes o fforddwr dros oeddi
Ei cwydd, o wng ac o bell;
Fyll pwyll tan ddrwy sawell.*

*Early he threw his thigh over the saddle of his horse, on the rear end of side; Fyll whose course is like fire through a chimney.
Llywarch Hen.*

Yn sawell ym gyrrawr.

*Into a hole me impelling.
Tolentin.*

Sawf, s. m. (saw) That is stooped or standing.

Sawliad, s. m. (saw) A stopping or standing.

Sawl, s. pl. aggr. (sa—awl) That is out or not in reach. pron. Those. a. Such.

Dyg hyd aggru; ac aggru i'r awl un ddydd.

*Learn until death; and death to such as will not learn.
Adger.*

Sawyr, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (sa—gwyr) Savour, taste.

Sawyriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sawyr) A rendering savoury; a becoming savoury.

Sawyriannawl, a. (sawyriant) Tending to savour.

Sawyriann, v. a. (sawyriant) To make savoury.

Sawyriant, s. m. (sawyr) A making savoury.

Sawyriaw, v. (sawyr) To savour; to yield odour.

Sawyrus, u. (sawyr) Savoury, odorous.
Sawyrusaw, v. a. (sawyrus) To render savoury;
 to become savoury, or odorous.
SE, a. f. r.—pl. t. on. That continues, remains, is fixed, or stated; a star.

*Ef cyrch cerddorion,
 Se cybarw soon.*

To him minstrels will resort, the star of magnificent stars.
Taliesin.

*Astrus chwedl—
 All yrth, all yrth se.*

A woeft tale: like the concussion, like the fall of a star.
Gwaleghmai.

Se, adv. As stated, to wit, so, thus.

Se y meddyhais ei cheidaw.

So I have thought to obtain her. D. ab Gwilym.

Sēad, s. m. (se) A stating, or a fixing.

Sēawl, a. (se) Being stated, or fixed.

Seb, s. m. (se—eb) A tendency to hem in.

Sebach, a. (seb) Straitened, confined; shrill.

*Syrnafi'r wrach, sebach son,
 Syre! prawi 'thais surion.*

Then muttered the hag, of squeaking tone, Sir, thou shalt taste sour apples. T. Penllyn.

Sebon, s. m. (seb) Soap. Agalen o sebon, a bar of soap.

Sebonaid, a. (sebon) Like soap; soapy.

Sebonawg, a. (sebon) Abounding with soap.

Sebonawl, a. (sebon) Saponaceous, soapy.

Seboni, v. a. (sebon) To soap; to lather.

Sebonlyd, a. (sebon) Soapy, dawbed with soap.

Sebonwr, s. m.—pl. sebonwyr (sebon—gwr) A soap-man, a dealer in soap; a soapmaker.

Sebonydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sebon) A soapmaker.

Gwell dwylaw y cyddydd na dwylaw y sebonydd.

Better the hands of the butcher than the hands of the soapmaker.
Adage.

Sech, a. (f. of sych) Dry, dried, or parched.

Sechi, v. a. (sach) To fill a sack; to stuff.

Sechiad, s. m. (sach) A bagging, or a stuffing.

Sedd, s. f.—pl. t. au (se—edd) The state of being without motion; a seat.

*Cydydd medd ar sedd serch!
 Cydderdd codd a gordderch.*

Drinking together of mead on the seat of love; together walking woods with a mistress. D. ab Gwilym.

Sedda, v. a. (sedd) To sit habitually, to sit often.

Seddawg, a. (sedd) Being in a sitting posture.

Seddawl, a. (sedd) Sedentary, or sitting.

Seddedig, a. (sedd) Seated; made to sit.

Seddiad, s. m. (sedd) A being seating, a sitting.

Seddoldeb, s. m. (seddawl) Sedentariness.

Seddoll, v. a. (seddawl) To render sedentary.

Seddu, v. a. (sedd) To seat; to become seated.

Sef, a. (se—ef) Certain; truly. adv. To wit, that is to say, namely.

Sef, a lodd a gryhudd.

Thus, he that kills will accuse. Adage.

Sef a lwydd i fell ei cheis.

Truly it will prosper for disgrace that it be concealed. Adage.

Sef y gwelai wrag wneid deidiw.

So he could perceive a beautiful brown woman.
H. Peredur.

Sefnig, s. f. dim. (safn) The gullet, the throat.

Sefyd, v. a. (saf) To stand, to become still.

Da yw a safac ni wneir.

That will stand and not be separated is good. Adage.

Sefyd, s. m. (sefyd) That is stationary.

Sefydawg, a. (sefyd) Standing, stationary; standy, staple, steadfast, constant.

Sefydledig, a. (sefyd) Stationed; settled.

Sefydledigaeth, s. m. (sefydledig) Settledness.

Sefydledigrwydd, s. m. (sefydledig) Settledness.

Sefydliad, s. m. (sefydli) An establishing.

Sefydlogrwydd, s. m. (sefydlog) Stability.

Sefydln, v. a. (sefydli) To settle, to make to stand,
 to establish, to fix.

Sefydliwr, s. m. (sefydli—gwr) An establisher.

Sefydlydd, s. m. (sefydli) An establisher.

Sefydlyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (sefydli—lyn) A plash.

Sefyll, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (saf) A standing, a position. v. a. To stand.

Tri dyn a safant yn hawl a braind brodyr a chwiorydd: amddifed, gwoddw, ac talfed.

Three persons who stand in the light and privilege of brothers and sisters: an orphan, a widow, and a stranger. Bardeas.

Sefyllfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (sefyll) A standing place, a station, a situation.

Sefyllfan, s. f.—pl. t. au (sefyll—mân) A standing place, a station; a fixed abode.

Sefyllfod, s. f. (sefyll—bod) A fixed abode.

Erbys i mi dddebru, gwelwn ein bod wedi dawed i'rw sefyllfod.

By the time that I was recovered, I could see that we were come to some station. His Wgn, B. Cwg.

Sefylliad, s. m. (sefyll) A stationing; a standing.

Sefyllian, v. a. (sefyll) To stand often; to loiter.

Sefylliannawl, a. (sefylliant) Stationary.

Sefyllhannu, v. a. (sefylliant) To render stationary, to become stationary.

Sefyllhannwr, s. m. (sefyllian—gwr) A loiterer.

Sefylliant, s. m. (sefyll) A stationing.

Sefylllaw, v. a. (sefyll) To fix a station.

Sefylllawg, a. (sefyll) Being apt to stand; loiter-
 ing. s. m. A loiterer.

Sefylllwr, s. m. (sefyll—gwr) One who stations.

Seg, s. m. (se—eg) That is without access.

Segaid, a. (seg) Like a covering.

Segan, s. f.—pl. t. au (seg) A covering, a cloak.

*Segan curied rhinodd;
 Gwyr'r newt gytyrwr medd,
 Mi blaen'r beg.—*

The love cloak of the ladies; Gwto the panegyrist, a lodger amongst mead, know that mine is the garment. I. ab H. Sordwal.

Segawi, a. (seg) Tending to envelope.

Segenfab, s. m. (segen—mab) Gownsmen, monk.

Segiad, a. (seg) An enveloping; a cloaking.

Segr, s. m. (seg) That keeps apart; that is apart or enclosed; that is sacred; a memorial.

Segrawl, a. (segr) Being secret or apart.

Segredig, a. (segr) Being secreted or hidden.

Segrffug, a. (segr—ffug) Secretly false. Urddawl segrffug, a noble secretly false. Taliesin.

Segrind, s. m.—pl. t. au (segr) A secreting.

Segru, v. a. (segr) To secrete, to put apart.

Segrwydd, s. m. (seg) The state of being enclosed

Segur, a. (car) Being composed; void of trouble, or at leisure, or idle.

Llygad y segur a wel.

The eye of the one at leisure will see. Adage.

Ni moch wna da dyn segur.

An idle man will not soon do any good. Adage.

Segura, v. a. (segur) To pursue ease or leisure;
 to be at leisure; to be idle; to trifle.

Y rhai a alwyd i weithdogaeth y gair, y maent wedi eu gair i wneud seith poenau, ac nid i segura.

Those who have been called to the ministry of the word, they are called to a laborious service, and not to be idling about.
Ier. Owein.

Segurdawd, s. m. (segur) Idleness, or laziness.

Segurdawd a meddwadawd a wneut groyddion yn grythawg.

Idleness and drunkenness will make hangman rich. Adage.

Segurddyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (segur—dyn) Idler.

Seguredd, s. m. (segur) A state of leisure.
Seguren, s. f. dim. (segur) An idling female.
Seguriad, s. m. (segur) An enjoying of leisure.
Segurillyd, a. (segur) Loving leisure; idle.
Segurwaa, s. m. (segur—gwas) An idle youth.
Segurwyr, s. m.—pl. segurwyr (segur—gwr) One who enjoys leisure; an idler.

Tri pheth sydd yn llygru y byd: balchder, afraid, a seguryd.
Three things do corrupt the world: pride, excess, and idleness.
Barddas.

Seğuryñ, s. m. dim. (seğur) An idler.
Seibad, s. m. (saib) A standing at leisure.
Seibianpaw, a. (seibiant) Leisureable.
Seibiaeth, s. m. (saib) A state of rest; sabbath.
Seibianau, v. a. (seibiant) To procure leisure.
Seibiant, s. m. (saib) A standing about, a resting, or stopping; a respite; leisure.
Seibiau, v. a. (saib) To stand about, to take respite; to be at leisure.

Seibawl, a. (said) Leisurely; resting, at rest.
Seldiad, s. m. (said) An insertion; the insertion of a tong into the handle.

Seldaw, v. a. (said) To insert; to insert a tool into a handle.

Seidlawg, a. (said) Having an insertion; tonged.
Seidyn, s. m. dim. (said) The part of a tool that is inserted in the hit.

Seifad, s. m.—pl. seifaid (saf) A stander.
Seigen, s. f. den. (saig) A little mess or meal.
Seiglad, s. m. (saig) A messing; a taking a meal.
Seiglaw, v. a. (saig) To mess, to partake of a meal; to serve up dishes or meates.

Seigiawī, a. (saig) Relating to a mess or meal.
Seigiwr, s. m.—pl. seigwyr (saig—gwr) A messer Selladar, s. f.—pl. selladeri (sail—dar) A main beam or pillar: a prop: a foundation pile.

Seiddarluaniad, s. m. (darluaniad) An ichnography
Seiddor, s. f.—pl. t. an (sail—dor) A threshold.
Setler, s. f.—pl. t. i (sail) A foundation space; a ground floor; a cellar.

Scilfaen, s. m.—pl. seilfethi (sail—maen) A foundation stone.

Seilgam, a. (sall—cam) Having a wry tread.
Seilgamlad, a. m. (seilgam) A treading awry.
Seilgamm, v. a. (seilgam) To tread a sole awry.

Seiliad, s. m.—pl. f. an (sull) A foundation.
Seillannawl, u. (seillant) A base, or foundation.
Seillannu, v. a. (seillant) To make a foundation.

Seiliant, v. a. (seilant) To make a foundation.
Seiliant, s. m. (sail) Relating to foundation.
Seiliaw, v. a. (sail) To found, to lay a foundation.
Seiliawd, s. m. (sail) A being made a foundation.

Selllawg, a. (sail) Having a foundation.

Seiliwr, s. m. (sail—gwr) One who founds.
 Seilwaith, s. m. (sail—gwaith) Ground-work.
 Seilydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sail) A founder.

Seimlad, s. m. (saim) A greasing.
Seimiaw, v. a. (saim) To grease, to make greasy.
Sejinlawg, a. (saim) Abounding with grease.

Seimiaw, a. (saim) Abounding with grease.
Seimiawl, a. (saim) Of a greasy quality.
Seimiedig, a. (saim) Greased; made greasy.
Seimiwr, s.m.—pl. seimiwyr (saim—gwr) Greaser.

Seimlyd, a. (saim) Of a greasy quality.
Seindraws, a. (sain--traws) Transversely sounding. Coughedd seindraws a transversely

Seindwll, a. m. (sain—twll) A sound-hole.

Seinglawr, s. m. (sain—clawr) A sounding-board
Seingroes, a. (sain—croes) Transversely sounding. Cynghanedd seingroes, a transversely sounding consonancy.

Seingudd, a. (sain—cudd) Of concealed sound.
Seinguddgyswilt, s. m. (seingudd—cyswilt) A junction of concealed sound.

Seinguddgysylltgroes, a. (seinguddgysyllt) Being of transversely conjoined concealed sound.
Seinguddhannergysylltgroes, a. (seingudd—han-mer—cyswllt—croes) Being of half transversely conjoined concealed sound.

Seiniad, s. m.—pl. t. an (sain) A sounding.

Seiniannawl, a. (seiniant) Productive of sound.
Seiniannu, v. a. (seiniant) To produce a sound.
Seiniant, s. m. (saln) A making a sound.

Seinlaw, v. a. (sain) To sound, to resound.
 Seinlawd, s. m. (sain) A resounding, a sounding.
 Seinlawdr, s. m.—pl. seinlodron (seiniawd) That yields a sound.

Molwch yr Arglwydd—
Molwch ef ar seiniadros gyich.
 Praise ye the Lord ; praise him ye both that are Aigh something.

Seiniawg, a. (sain) Having a sound or tone.
Seiniawl, a. (sain) Sounding; toned.

Seiniedig, a. (seiniaid) Sounded; toned.
 Seiniedigaeth, s. m. (seiniedig) Act of sounding.
 Seiniwr, s. m.—pl. seiniwyr (sain—gwr) One who Seintiaw, v. a. (saint) To canonize.

Seintiawl, a. (saint) Sanctified, saintly.
Seintiedig, a. (seintiad) Canonized, ~~sainted~~.
Seintiolaeth, s. m. (seintiawl) Sanctitude.

Seintwar, s. f. (saint—gwar) A sanctuary.
 Seintwar i'r adar gŵyd.
 The sanctuary of the feathered tribe art thou.

Seirch, s. pl. aggr. (sarch) Equipage, horse trappings, furniture, or harness, a set of harness.

A superior man on his many-coloured (rings), who would give horses to the sailor.

Dyphorthyut ei welch welch rhygyngawg.
Ambling steeds conveyed his equipage. Metaphr.
Seirchind : e m (seirch) A harnessing

Seirchiad, s. m. (seirch) A harnessing.
Seirchiaw, v. a. (seirch) To harness, to equip.
Seirchiawg, a. (seirch) Harnesses, equipped.
Seirchiawl, a. (seirch) Belonging to harness.

Seirchlawl, a. (seirch) Belonging to harness.
Seirchiedig, a. (seirchlad) Harassed, equipped.
Seiriad, s. m. (ser) A sparkling like stars.
Seirion, a. m. f. (ser) A sparkling.

Seithddog, s. m. (saith—dog) Seventy.
Seithddegfed, s. m. (seithddog) A seventieth.
Seithddergwaith, a. pl. aggr. (seithddog—gwaith)
 Seventy times. a. Seventy times.
Seithfan, a. pl. aggr. (saith—han) Seven verses or lines. a. Of seven lines.
Seithfanawg, a. (seithfan) Having seven verses.
Seithfed, a. f. (saith) A seventh. a. Seventh.

Col dy bamp ar dy seithfed.

These shaks take thy promise on thy seventh.

Typtic.

Seithfeddydd, a. m. (seithfed—dydd) The seventh day, the ancient name for Sunday.
Seithganfed, s. m. (seithgant) A seven hundredth Seithgant, a. pl. (saith—cant) Seven hundreds.
Seithganwaith, a. pl. (seithgant—gwaith) Seven hundred times. a. Seven hundred times.
Seithl, s. m. (saith) Frustration; disappointment.

Corrdorion allan heb ran seithl.

My mistress abroad without a portion of disappointment.

Mysidd.

Seithlawi, a. (saith) Septenary, of seven.
Seithlwydd, s. pl. aggr. (saith—lwydd) Seven years. a. Septennial.
Seithnalen, s. f. (saith—dalen) Tormentil.
Seithnyn, s. pl. aggr. (saith—dyn) Seven persons.
a. Consisting of seven persons.
Seithochr, a. pl. aggr. (saith—ochr) Seven sides;
 a heptagon. a. Seven sided.

*A seithochr ym m. seithlwydd;
 A seith-ochr ym m. seithlwydd.*

With a seven-sided spear due shot me; with sevenfold Rob of bounding eloquence.

D. m. Gwilym, i. Gwilym.

Seithochr, a. (seithochr) Heptagonal.
Seithochrawl, a. (seithochr) Heptagonal.
Seithochri, v. u. (seithochr) To be seven-sided.
Seithongl, s. pl. aggr. (saith—ongl) Seven angles; a septangle. a. Septangular.
Seithonglwg, a. (seithongl) Septangular.
Seithongl, v. a. (seithongl) To render septanga-lar, or to render of seven angles.
Seithor, s. pl. aggr. (saith—gor) Seven regions or sides; a heptagon. a. Of seven regions.
Seithrad, a. pl. aggr. (saith—rad) Seven endowments, seven virtues. Seithrad eiddo, the seven endowments of a bishop.
Seithran, a. pl. aggr. (saith—ran) Seven parts;
 that is of seven parts. a. Of seven parts.

*Saith meth Eilifer, saith gwyr has brofer,
 Saith gwaw ni ochel ya ed seithran.*

The seven sons of Eilifer, seven men when tried by seven spears they shun not on their seven parts.

Tullien.

Seithramwl, a. (seithram) Of seven parts.
Seithrif, a. pl. aggr. (saith—rif) Seven numbers; seven times a number. a. Seven times the number.
Seithrifed, a. (seithrif) Seven times the number.
Seithrill, s. pl. aggr. (saith—rill) Seven syllables;
 that consists of seven syllables.
Seithrillwg, a. (seithrill) Of seven syllables.
Seithing, a. (saith) Being frustrated; futile, vain.
Seithridd, s. pl. aggr. (saith—gwaith) Seven times. a. Seven times.
Seithredd, a. pl. aggr. (saith—gwaith) Seven forms; that is of seven forms. a. Septiform.
Seithwr, a. pl. aggr. (saith—gwr) Septemviri. *a.
 Consisting of seven men.*
Seithwyl, s. m. (seithwr) Septemviri.
Seithygiad, s. m. (seithyng) A frustrating, a rendering futile; a becoming futile.
Seithygiath, s. m. (seithyng) A frustration.
Seithygiat, s. m. (seithyng) A frustration.

Saethygiad, v. a. (seithyng) To frustrate, to render futile or vain; to disappoint.
Saethygiat, a. (seithyng) Frustrating.
Sel, s. m. (se—el) An espying, sight at a distance
Seldeb, s. m. (sel) Keen-sightedness.
Seldr, s. m. (sel) Keen-sightedness.
Seldra, s. m. (sel) Keen-sightedness.
Seldrem, a. f.—pl. t. au (sel—trem) A prospect;
 a perspective view; a vanishing line or point;
 arrangement; what is placed in a straight line;
 a layer, as of corn after the reaper.

*Pryll, a. chrebyll, a. sylredd, a. seldrem, a. bara, a. dychymg,
 a. ysty, a. meddwl; a. o. hyn godidawr, Gymmeryn a. dactyl.*

Reason, idea, observation, perspicacity, judgement, invention, significance, and thought; and from these the excellency of the Welsh language proceeds.

Bardic.

My sight leaves not a dry prospect.

O. d. Gwilym.

Seldremiad, s. m. (seldrem) A putting in prospect Seldremiaw, v. a. (seldrem) To put in prospect;
 to place in view; to lay in a strait line or row.

*Tellyngdawd a thellyt yr llyth Gymmeryn—y wddawd—pob peth
 a. o. hyn godidawr, a. dychymg, a. seldremiaw, a. dactyl.*

The merit and characteristics of the Welsh language are, that it can express every thing, which the thought and the mind may be able to conceive, to arrange, and to substantiate.

Bardic.

Seldremiawg, a. (seldrem) Perspicuous.
Seldremiaw, a. (seldrem) Perspicacious.
Seldremiwr, s. m.—pl. seldremwyr (seldrem—gwr) One who makes perspicuous.
Seldremw, v. a. (seldrem) To place perspicuously; to place in layers.

Selidig, a. (sel) Perceived, or observed.
Selidigeth, v. a. (selidig) Observation.

Seliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sel) A desecrating, an espying; perception; observation. Dyn seliad, a person of observation, or of quick wit.

Seliadwy, a. (seliad) Perceivable, observable.

Seliannaw, a. (seliant) Perceptive.

Seliannu, v. a. (seliant) To render perceptive.

Seliant, s. m. (sel) Perception, observation.

Selais, s. f.—pl. t. od (sel—sig) A sausage.

No hola i fel, no gwrwg i selais.

Then a marten to honey, then a woman to a pudding.

Selais, s. f. d. m. (selais) A packing, a sausage.
Selu, v. a. (sel) To spy, to perceive, to behold;
 to gaze.

*Chel dychyng
 Chel dychyng
 Chel dychyng
 Chel dychyng*

Being able to conceal the wound of the arrow shot, as apparently can be had to behold thee, the warm luminary of generous ones.

W. Llwyn.

*Selidig, cryf dychyng heb cur oshon;
 Selidig, a. dychyng heb cur oshon;
 Selidig, a. dychyng heb cur oshon;
 Selidig, a. dychyng heb cur oshon.*

*Thou didst found, thou didst firmly build all throbbling cases;
 thou didst spy, thou didst take the way of defence; beholding, smiling at the brow supremely smiling love, the passing sensitive scene of sportive ideas.*

W. Llwyn.

Selus, a. (sel) Apt to spy; perspicacious.
Selusaw, v. a. (selus) To render perspicacious.
Selusdra, s. m. (selus) Perspicacity.
Selwedd, s. m. (sel—gwaith) Perceptivity.
Selweddawl, a. (selwedd) Perspicacious.
Selweddad, s. m. (selwedd) A perceiving.
Selwedd, v. a. (selwedd) To endue with percep-tivity; to exert perspicacity.
Selweddus, a. (selwedd) Perspicacious.
Selwr, s. m.—pl. selwyr (sel—gwr) An spyer.
Selydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sel) An spyer.
Selit, s. m. (selit) A limit or border.
Selid, s. m. (selit) An exploring; a seek out, the play of hide and seek.

Selltdad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sellt) Exploration.
Selltu, v. a. (sellt) To explore, to seek out.
Sên, s. f.—pl. t. au (sy—en) The state of being extended; that is capable of affecting; a taunt, a scoff; a chide.

Senadwy, a. (sên) Liable of being chided.
Senaid, a. (sên) Inveictive, reproachful.
Senawi, a. (sên) Censorious; taunting, scoffing, reprehending; reproaching.
Senedig, a. (sên) Scoffed, reproached, rebuked.
Senedigaeth, s. m. (senedig) Reprehension.
Senedigawl, a. (senedig) Reprehensive.
Senedd, s. f.—pl. t. au (sen) A synod; a senate.
Senedd wyllt, wild senate; an epithet used for the bishop's visitation.

Senedda, v. a. (senedd) To resort to a synod.
Seneddawl, a. (senedd) Synodal; senatorial.
Seneddu, v. a. (senedd) To form a synod.
Seneddwr, s. m.—pl. seneddwr (senedd—gwr) A member of a synod; a senator.
Seneddwriaeth, s. m. (seneddwr) Senatorship.
Senferw, a. (sên—berw) Censure-brooding.
Sêngar, a. (sên) Censorious; taunting, scoffing.
Sengarwch, a. (sêngar) Censoriousness, reproachfulness; aptness to chide.

Sênlad, s. m. (sên) A reprehension, a chiding.
Senoldeb, s. m. (sênawl) Censoriousness.
Senolder, s. m. (sênawl) Censoriousness.
Senoli, v. a. (sênawl) To render censorious.
Senolrwydd, s. m. (sênawl) Censoriousness.
Sensigl, s. m.—pl. t. on (sên—sigl) The great daisy, or white ox-eye.

Sênw, v. a. (sên) To censure, to chide, to reprehend; to reproach; to taunt, to scoff.

Senw, s. m. (sên) That is past a chide; boldness.

Law heb enw.

A name without dignity.

Adage.

Law heb enw oddi ei henw hi.

A name without dignity was her name.

Iolo Goch.

Senwad, s. m. (senw) A giving boldness.
Senwawl, a. (senw) Tending to embolden.
Senwi, v. a. (senw) To give confidence.
Sênwr, s. m.—pl. senwyr (sen—gwr) A censorer.
Sennyllt, s. m. (sên) A seneschal; a constable.

*Craes fab Llywarch ddifafserch dâred,
 Nid ei borthl gwrth gorwedd;
 Sennyllt a'i loedri llawn medd.*

Craes the son of Llywarch magnanimously bold, he would not support the reproach of a convention: a seneschal with his vessel full of mead.

Aneurin.

Sengi, s. m. (sang) A treading; a trampling
v. a. To tread about; to trample.

Sêr, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (sy—er) That tends to, that is apt to enclose; a bill, a tool so called.

Ser, dimol a dal.

A bill-hook, its value is a halfpenny.

Welsh Laws.

Ser, s. pl. aggr. (se—er) Stars. Poets also give them the appellations of syrr, and in the singular as and sy. Ser-ygall, common star-thistle.

Cyffodd a'r cwn yn cyfarth y ser.

As foolish as the dogs barking the stars.

Adage.

*Ser y bore a ddyffyrat,
 Ys hi i gydganu gyt.*

The stars of the morning were wont to rise, assembled to sing in harmony of yore.

Gro. Owain.

Seralld, a. (ser) Like stars; sidereal; starred.
Serawg, a. (ser) Starry, studded with stars.
Serawl, a. (ser) Sideral, astral, starry.
Serch, s. m. (ser) Appulsion; desire; affection, love. Serch anlad, wanton desire; rhais fy serch arnat, I have placed my affection on thee.

*Traffu hwyra a'i llyf i'w llyfwr eiddo;
 Treigia'm bron serch serch dyrrha.*

He leads the horses of battle with his gleaming sword the ruin of England; to him my breast returns the greeting of love incessant.

G. ab M. ab Dyfidd.

*El garbeth a'i argybon,
 Gwr meddw serch a gwrmedd eon.*

With his odious instrument and its torment, a fellow drunk with love and poetry to excite.

H. ab D. ab I. ab Elyn.

Serch, prep. (ser) With respect to, because of, for. ade. Notwithstanding. Ni wisu iti serch hwy, it is no use for thee because of that; ni wacth ganio serch hwy, he is not sorry notwithstanding that.

Serchalld, a. (serch) Tending to excite desire.

Serchawg, a. (serch) Having desire; amorous.

Eiddig—

*Ni ddaw hwn o'i ddaw haf;
 Rhodd ei gylfod o'r graff;
 A rhan serchogion yu'r haf.*

The jealous one—he will not come unless summer comes: contemporary with him was winter given; and the portion of loving ones is summer.

H. ab Gwilym.

Serchawl, a. (serch) Exciting love; lovely.

Serchedig, a. (serch) Being rendered loving.

Serchedd, s. m. (serch) A state of desire; fondness.

Sercheiddiad, s. m. (serchalld) A disposing to love

Sercheiddiaw, v. a. (sercheidd) To dispose to fondness; to become disposed to fondness.

Serchfawr, a. (serch) Very fond or affectionate.

Serchiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (serch) Appulsion; a desiring; a creating love or fondness.

Serchladaeth, s. m. (serchiad) A causing to love.

Serchladawl, a. (serchiad) Love-exciting.

Serchiadu, v. a. (serchiad) To excite fondness.

Serchiant, s. m. (serch) Affection, fondness.

Serchiator, ger. (serchiad) In loving or fondling.

Serchitor, sup. (serch) To be loving or fondling.

Serchlawn, a. (serch) Amorous, full of love.

Serchloudeb, s. m. (serchlawn) Amorousness.

Serchlonedd, s. m. (serchlawn) Amorousness.

Serchlowl, v. a. (serchlawn) To fill with love.

Serchogaeth, s. m. (serchawg) State of fondness.

Serchogaid, a. (serchawg) Somewhat amorous.

Serchogiddiad, s. m. (serchogaid) A rendering or becoming somewhat amorous.

Serchogeiddiaw, v. a. (serchogaid) To render somewhat loving; to become a little amorous.

Serchogi, v. a. (serchawg) To render fond or amorous; to become amorous.

Serchogiad, s. m. (serchawg) A rendering fond or amorous; a becoming amorous.

Sercholddeb, s. m. (serchawl) Amorousness.

Sercholi, v. a. (serchawl) To become amorous.

Serchu, v. a. (serch) To desire; to affect; to be affected; to have affection; to love.

Serchus, a. (serch) Creating fondness; agreeable.

Serchusaw, v. a. (serchus) To tend to fondness.

Serchusdra, s. m. (serchus) Fondness.

Serchusedd, s. m. (serchus) Lovingness, fondness.

Serchuswydd, s. m. (serchus) Desirableness; agreeableness; affectionateness, fondness.

Serchwr, s. m.—pl. serchwyr (serch—gwr) One who fixes his desire; one who is fond or loving.

Serddewin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ser—dewin) An astrologer, one who foretells by the stars.

Serddewindeb, s. m. (serddewin) Astrology.

Serddewiniad, s. m. (serddewin) A divining by the stars; a practising of astrology.

Serddewiniaeth, s. m. (serddewin) Astrology.

Serddewiniaw, v. a. (serddewin) To astrologise.

Serddewiniawl, a. (serddewin) Astrological.

Seren, s. f. dim. (ser) A star. Seren walltanog, seren gyffonog, seren y gyffion, seren loegyrrang, a blazing star, a meteor.

*Mawr yw seren y morwr;
Mawr yw seorn o'r mawr yrr.*

Grand is the star of the mariners; greater than a crowd of tiny spangles. L. G. Colth.

*Ni roe neb, ac ni rown i
Seren brau er ei sori.*

Nobody would give, and I would not give a star of wood for offending him. Gr. Grog.

Serenawli, a. (seren) Sparkling like a star.
Sereniad, s. m. (seren) A sparkling.
Serenig, s. f. dim. (seren) An asterisk.
Serenillya, s. pl. (seren—llys) Starwort.
Serenu, v. a. (seren) To sparkle, to glitter.
Serenwyl, s. f.—pl. t. lau (seren—gwyll) Epiphany. It is also called Ystwyll.
Serenyn, s. m. dim. (seren) The vernal squill.
Serf, a. (sy—erf) Whirling; dizzy or giddy.
Serfan, a. (serf) Tending to dizzy; dizzied.
Serfanawli, a. (serfan) Startling; staring.
Serfaniad, s. m. (serfan) A startling.
Serfannu, v. a. (serfan) To start; to stare; to dizzy. Serfannu llygaid, to turn about the eyes wildly; to astonish.
Serfawl, a. (serf) Whirling; dizzying.
Serfiad, s. m. (serf) A startling; a dizzying.
Serfa, v. a. (serf) To startle; to dizzy.
Serfyll, a. (serf) Dependent; ready to fall, unsteady, wagging; shattered; crazy.

*Serfyll o'r bebwl yw'r byd;
Somew ar bob rhyw synyd.*

A crazy old tent is the world; a deceiver on every sort of change. S. Tudgr.

Serfylldra, s. m. (serfyll) Craziness.
Serfylliad, s. m. (serfyll) A crazing, a shattering.
Serfyllaw, v. a. (serfyll) To craze, to shatter.
Serfyllrwydd, s. m. (serfyll) Craziness.
Serfyllus, s. m. (serfyll) Tending to fall; tending to become crazy.
Seri, s. pl. aggr. (sar) Sullen ones, furies.

Mawr seugi, mawr seri aml.

The trampling of the dead, like the trampling of furies. Ll. P. Meek.

Serig, a. (ser) Starred, studded with stars.
Serigl, s. m. (serig) That is spangled, or studded.
a. Studded with stars. Arfan serigfriau, arms with spangled surface.

Edola-farch a seirig serig cyrwa.

Winged steeds and harness with spangled borders. Ll. P. Meek.

Seriglaw, v. a. (serigl) To stud with stars.
Seriglad, s. m. (serigl) A spangling.
Seriliw, a. m. (ser—llw) Starlight.

*Mallion twyn, mawr llondd twyn,
Mawr seriliw mynawr llyw.*

Fair quagmire, which will fill the bush, the minute starlight of the beam of the verdant grove. Ian. Dowlwyn, 1 feddawn.

Serlloew, s. m. (ser—gloew) A star-glow. Mae yn serlloew heno, it is a star-glow to-night, or it is very starry. Sil.

Serlloew, a. (ser—gloew) Star-glowing.
Serrial, v. a. (sarn) To graze, to raise; to jar.
Serofydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ofydd) Astronomer.
Serofyddawl, a. (serofydd) Astronomical.
Serofyddiaeth, s. m. (serofydd) Astronomy.
Seroli, v. a. (serawl) To proceed as the stars.
Seroliaeth, s. m. (serawl) The starry system.

Rhy gwyn yw hwn ar ei byst, Phyllogaeth seroliaeth mawr.

Round to excess is this one on her course, through the community of the solemn starry system. D. ab Gwilym, Fr. Hened.

Seron, s. m. (ser) The system of the stars.

Seronawli, a. (ser) Astronomical.

Seroni, s. m. (seron) To systematize the stars; to pursue or study the science of astronomy.

Seronydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (seron) Astronomer.

Tri gwyn seronyddion Ynys Frydala: Idris Gwyr, a Gwydion, mab Don, a Gwyn ab Nudd; a chas faist eu gwyboda am y ser, a'r haniafau, an hanoeddau, y darogenynt a chwenychid ei wyboda.

The three excellent astronomers of the Isle of Britain: Idris the Mighty, and Gwydion son of Don, and Gwyn son of Nudd; and from the magnitude of their discoveries, respecting the stars, their names and their dispositions, they could forget whatever might be desired to be known. Triedd.

Serth, a. (ser) Inclination, tendency, bias, or fall; a steep.

Serth, a. (ser) Inclining, tending, falling; steep, abrupt, slippery; obscene.

*Fflam ddaidd ynydd safwrth
Yw tydd serth iafwrth serth.*

The fiery flame of monstrous folly is the fruit of the office of a foul tongue. Ed. Morris.

Serthadwy, a. (serth) Capable of precipitancy.

Serthaid, a. (serth) Somewhat inclined.

Serthair, s. m.—pl. serthairiau (serth—gair) An obscene word or expression.

Serthaf, s. f. (serth—gallt) A steep cliff.

Serthan, s. f. (serth) A precipice, a cliff.

Serthawl, a. (serth) Precipitous; obscene.

Serthedig, a. (serth) Inclined; precipitated.

Serthedd, s. m. (serth) Inclinedness; steepness; abruptness; alipperiness; obscenity.

Serthairiawg, a. (serthair) Having obscene words.

Serthfrwnt, a. (serth—brwnt) Grovellingly filthy.

Serthfryntni, s. m. (serthfrwnt) Grovelling filthiness or obscenity.

Serthi, s. m. (serth) A falling tendency; alipperiness; obscenity.

Serthiad, s. m. (serth) An inclining, a tending; a rendering steep; a becoming obscene.

Serthiannawl, a. (serthiant) Tending to be precipitous or steep.

Serthiannu, v. a. (serthiant) To render steep or declivous; to become steep.

Serthiant, s. m. (serth) Precipitancy, steepness.

Serthrwydd, s. m. (serth) A precipitous state.

Serthu, v. a. (serth) To render precipitous; to become steep; to act obscenely.

Serthus, a. (serth) Precipitous; declivous; obscene, vulgar.

Serthusaw, v. a. (serthus) To render precipitous; to become steep; to grow vulgar.

Serthusdra, s. m. (serthus) A precipitous state; vulgarity.

Serthusedd, s. m. (serthus) Steepness; vulgarity.

Serthusrwydd, s. m. (serthus) Steepness.

Serthyd, s. m. (serth) A steep or falling tendency; vulgarity, obscenity.

Tri harddwch cerdd; mawr heb droth, mawr heb saildrwydd, a dechrau heb serthyd.

The three ornaments of song; praise without flattery, gaiety without licentiousness, and satire without vulgarity. Barddas.

Serw, a. (ser) That is flat and opaque or dull.

Serydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ser) An astronomer.

Seryddawl, a. (serydd) Astronomical.

Seryddiaeth, s. m. (serydd) Astronomy.

*Y dyn a garaf nh digerau,
Yn seryddiaeth Don
Yn serydd Gwernarfon,
Aie ba ron dragon
Dreigiau Emral.*

The man I respect, whom I have not ceased to love, studying the astronomy of Don in the county of Caernarvon, where the shaft of the chief of the dragons of Emral has been. Gr. ab D., ab Tudur.

Seryddiannawl, a. (seryddiant) Astronomical.

Seryddiannu, v. a. (seryddiant) To follow the science of astronomy.

Seryddiant, s. m. (serydd) Astronomy.
Serys, v. a. (ser) To gaze upon; to spare. Er serys yr arian hys yr eithaf, though sparing of the money to the utmost.

Seith, a. (f. of syth) Stiff, rigid; being set or put up; erect, upright; disdainful.

Sêu, v. a. (se) To render fixed, or stated.

Sew, s. m.—pl. t. ion (se) Gravy; jelly.

Sowed, s. m. (se—gwed) Discourse of the stars.

Sowedawl, a. (sewed) Descriptive of the stars.

Sowedydd, a. m.—pl. t. ion (sewed) Astronomy.

Sowedyddawl, a. (sewedydd) Astronomical.

Sowedyddneth, s. m. (sewedydd) Astronomy.

Sewyd, a. (sew) Abounding with gravity.

Sewyd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (se—gwyd) A diffusion of stars. Sewyd am loer, a sprinkling of stars round the moon. Talesin.

SI, s. m. r. A hiss, a whiz; a buz; a tingling noise.

Siad, s. m. (si) A hissing, a whizzing; a buzzing.

Siad, s. f.—pl. t. au (sy—iad) The top of the skull, the crown of the head; the cranium.

Enillaw iroeth—

Ar ei siad, oer ydiw.

Shaving a ring on his saddle, strange it is.

I. R.

Daw a wyr gwydyr dy siad,

Sewi a baw dy siad.

God knows what noise thy head contains, nager canest thy talk.

P. Pryn.

Siadfoel, a. (siad—moel) Bald-pated.

Siar, s. m. (si—ar) An articulate sound.

Siarad, s. m.—pl. t. an (siar) A talking, a talk.

Gweddodd fal siarad gwyddu.

He cried out like the gabbling of geese.

B. ab Gwilym.

Siaradach, s. m. (siarad) Chit-chat, babbling, garrulity, dicalcity.

Siaradaidd, a. (siarad) Talkative, or prating.

Siaradawl, a. (siarad) Talking, or speaking.

Siaradfa, s. f.—pl. siaradfydd (siarad) A talking place, or a gossip shop.

Siaradgar, a. (siarad) Querulous, prating, talkative, garrulous, fond of talking.

Siaradgarwch, s. m. (siaradgar) Garrulity.

Siaradu, v. a. (siarad) To make a talking.

Siaradus, a. (siarad) Talkative, loquacious.

Tripheth nid hawdd en rhifw; banyneu y gwisg, gwirion hwy y dardda, a dicheillon cybyd.

Three things that are not easily numbered; the particles of light, the words of a talkative female, and the schemes of a miser.

Catwg Diddoch.

Siaradusaw, v. a. (siaradus) To render talkative; to become talkative.

Siaradusedd, s. m. (siaradus) Talkativeness.

Siaraduswydd, s. m. (siaradus) Talkativeness.

Siaradwr, s. m.—pl. siaradwyr (siarad—gwr) A talker; a prater.

Siaradwraig, s. f.—pl. siaradwrogeidd (siarad—gwraig) A talking woman, a gossip.

Siarad, v. a. (siar) To talk, to chat, to discourse.

Siarad cymaint a mab Seithgryn.

To talk as much as the son of Seithgryn.

Adage.

Siarad cymaint a Mordda ar baw.

To talk as much as Mordda on a pole.

Adage.

Siaw, v. a. (si) To hiss, to whiz, to buz; to tingle.

Siawl, a. (si) Hissing, whizzing, buzzing.

Sib, s. m. (si—ib) That tends to involve or to encircle.

Sibol, s. pl. aggr. (sib) Young onions, scallions.

Sibolen, s. f. dim. (sibol) A young onion.

Sibr, s. m. (sib) That is imbued or taken in.

Sibrad, s. m. (sibr) A dressing with sauce.

Sibraw, v. a. (sibr) To sauce, to do with sauce.

Sibrydawl, a. (sibrd) Doing with sauce.

Sibwl, s. pl. aggr. (sib) Young onions, scallions.

Sibyllen, s. f. dim. (sibwl) A small or young onion a scallion.

Siciad, s. m.—pl. t. an (sig) A steeping.

Sichant, s. m. (sig) A steeping, a soething.

Siciaw, v. a. (sig) To steep, to wet; to wash.

Siciawl, a. (sig) Steeping, or soething.

Siciedig, a. (siciad) Steeped, soethed, wetted.

Sielon, s. pl. aggr. (sig) Steepings, washings.

Sicioni, v. a. (sicion) To make steepings.

Sid, s. m. (si—id) A wind, a round, a circling.

Sidan, s. m.—pl. t. an (sid) Silk, satin. Sidan y wraen, cotton-grass, sidan y bwin, hair-wood.

Sidana, v. a. (sidan) To collect silk.

Sidanald, a. (sidan) Like silk, silky. Gwallt all-anaidd, silky hair.

Sidanawg, a. (sidan) Having silk; in silk.

Gweddlen am ben yn bethlawg.

A pole over man's headlawg.

Gelyntion Sionon sidanawg.

A veil of blood over the head conspicuous, and having in its base of small stones the Sionon has arrayed in silk.

L. P. Rhys.

Sidanawl, a. (sidan) Of the quality of silk.

Sidanblu, s. pl. (sidan—plu) Down feathers.

Gweddlen rai ar wlyddu sidanblu yn ymddangos mewn wythf wch.

We could perceive some on beds of down, suggesting a softness.

Edw. Wyn, L. Cuy.

Sidanen, s. f. dim. (sidan) That is silken, or made of silk. It is the name of an old tune; also an epithet for a fine woman; and has been applied particularly to queen Elizabeth.

Sidanlad, s. m. (sidan) A making of silk; making silky.

Sidanion, s. pl. aggr. (sidan) Silken things, silkenery.

Sidann, v. a. (sidan) To make silk; to wind; to make silky, or smooth; to coax, to wheedle.

Nyddu a sidann, to twist and to wind.

Mae y ddafl yn dda tra y sidann.

The devil is civil as long as he is content.

Adg.

Sidanwe, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (sidan—gwe) A silk web.

Sidanwëydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sidanwe) A silken weaver.

Sidanwr, s. m.—pl. sidanwyr (sidan—gwr) A silkmán.

Sidanydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sidan) Silk-mercer.

Sidedd, s. m. (sid) A state of twirling.

Sidell, s. f.—pl. t. i (sid) A winder; a whir; the rim of a wheel; a fly-wheel.

Sidellawg, a. (sidell) Having a whir or wheel.

Sidelliad, s. m. (sidell) A whirling round.

Sidellu, v. a. (sidell) To whirl round.

Ys dy lath, gortis dda is.

Ysdyllon yn sidellu.

A blade that is trusty, between two hosts a given whirling round.

P. Pryn.

Sidellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sidell) A winder.

Sider, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sid) That winds or twirls that is in ringlets; lace, fringe.

Sidera, v. a. (sider) To form into ringlets.

Sideraidd, a. (sider) Like twists or ringlets.

Siderawg, a. (sider) That is made up of twists or ringlets; full of fringes; fringed; laced.

Marchwyr siderawg dardda.

A cavalier dothed with lace.

B. ab Iwan Dda, i dda.

Siderawg, a. (sider) Formed into ringlets; fringed.

Sideriad, s. m. (sider) A twirling into ringlets; fringing.

Siderogwydd, s. m. (siderawg) The state of being in ringlets, or fringed.

Sideru, v. a. (sider) To make ringlets; to plait; to fringe; to make lace; to lace.

Siderwyr, s. m.—pl. siderwyr (sider—gwr) A maker of fringe.

Siderydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sider) Fringe maker.

Siddl, s. f. (sidd) A state of revolution. Caer sidd, a zone of revolving, the zodiac; also called caer sidd, and caer siddyd.

Sidlin, a. (sidd) Winding, or revolving.

*Mi a hun yn sgwblu'r sidd
Urch caer sidd;
A hono yn troi eidd
Rhwyng tri eiddyd.*

I have been in a talisman oval, above the revolving zone; and that contains turning between three elements. Taliesin.

Sidydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sidd) The agent of revolving; the zodiac. Caer sidydd, the circle of the zodiac, the ecliptic.

Sidyll, s. m.—pl. t. au (sidd) A whirl, a turn round, the circumference or rim of a wheel. Sidyll troell, the rim of a spinning wheel; Troŷ yn sidyll, to turn in a twirl.

Siff, s. m. (si—iff) An intermitted noise.

Siffr, s. m. (siff) A rattle; a whisper.

Siffraw, v. a. (siffr) To rattle; to murmur.

Siffrwd, s. m. (siffr) A soft rustling; a murmuring; a whispering, v. a. (siffr) To rustle; to murmur; to whisper.

Sig, s. m.—pl. t. ion (si—ig) A shatter; a bruise.

Sigaw, v. a. (sig) To shock, to crush, to shatter; to bruise.

Sigawl, a. (sig) Crazing, shattering; bruising.

Siglad, s. m. (sig) A shattering; a bruising.

Sigl, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sig) A shake, a rocking; a stir. a. Shaking, rocking. Sigl—dim y gwys, sigl—dim siome, tinsigl y gwys, brith y fuchs, the wag-tail; Sigl dyhoedon, siglathan, nen lincilith, the play of swinging.

Sigladwy, a. (siglad) Capable of being shaken.

Siglaeth, s. m. (sigl) A shaking; a swinging.

Siglaethan, s. f. dim. (sigl) A play of swinging.

Siglaw, v. a. (sigl) To shake, to rock; to stir; to be shaken. Sigla law, shake hand. Dimet.

Agw ei law i bob ci a sigl ei gyanon arno.

He opens his head to every dog that wags his tail at him.

Adage.

Rhwyg bod y sul heb siglaw.

For fear of being on Sundays without stirring.

Adage.

Siglawg, a. (sigl) Haying a shaking.

Sigledig, a. (sigl) Shaken, rocked; stirred.

Sigledigaeth, s. m. (sigledig) A shaking.

Sigledd, s. m. (sigl) The state of being shaken.

Siglen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. ydd (sigl) What shakes or rocks; a swing; a quag. Siglen downen, siglen done, siglen denyn, a swing rope.

Siglenawg, a. (siglen) A bounding with quag.

Siglwr, s. m.—pl. siglwyr (sigl—gwr) A shaker, a rocker; a stirrer.

Sil, s. m.—pl. t. ion (si—il) That is produced, or brought forth; issue, progeny; seedling; spawn, or fry; also the cleansing or hulling of grain. Sil pysgod, fry of fish; sil penwraig, herring fry; Siliau sil, husks or hullings of oats.

Silen, s. f. dim. (sil) A single issue; a seedling; a single spawn or fry.

Sill, s. m. (sil) A state of teeming, a shoaling.

Sillad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sil) A producing; a spawning; a hulling of grain; grain that is bulled.

Silladu, v. a. (siliad) To produce an issue; to produce a spawning.

VOL. II.

Siliannawl, a. (siliant) Belonging to the act of producing; spawning.

Siliannu, v. a. (siliant) To cause an issuing; to cause a spawning.

Siliant, s. m. (sil) The state of being produced, or issued; a spawning; a hulling of grain.

Sillaw, v. a. (sil) To produce, to bring forth; to spawn; to hull grain. Sillaw ceirch, to hull oats.

Siliawg, a. (sil) Having issue; having spawn.

Silled, s. m. (sil) That is produced; cleared grain, as the grits of oats, and the like.

Silledig, a. (siliad) Produced as young; spawned; divested or separated from the bull.

Silledyn, s. m. dim. (siliad) An individual issue; a single grain divested of the hull.

Silod, s. pl. aggr. (sil) Seedlings, spawns, fry, or young fishes. Silod brithion, brith y gro, samlets; silod y mor, sea fry; silod y dam, brithyll-iaid y dom, pysgod y gath, sticklebacks.

Silodi, v. a. (silod) To issue seedlings, fry, or spawn; to form a fry.

Silodyn, s. m. dim. (silod) A single one of a fry.

Sityn, s. m. dim. (sil) A single issue, a single seedling, fry, or spawn.

Syll, s. f.—pl. t. au (si—ill) A component part, fragment, or element; a syllable; a word. Ni chlywais i sill amdani, I have not heard a syllable about her. Sil.

*Heb wybod—
Na farf un sill ar ei phen,
Na thorpd un llythren.*

Knowing not the form of one syllable apart, nor the cutting of a single letter. Ieu. ab Hywel Spretwal.

Silldraw, a. (sill—trwm) Of a heavy syllable.

Silleb, s. f.—pl. t. au (si—eb) An elementary part of speech; a syllable.

Sillebawl, d. (silleb) Elementary of speech.

Sillebiad, s. m. (silleb) A forming the elements of speech.

Sillebu, v. a. (silleb) To syllablize; to form the elements of speech.

Sillad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sill) A forming of syllables; a spelling.

Silladaeth, s. m. (silliad) The system or formation of syllables.

*Un sbail ai adnwydd—
Yn ngyfias'r anawdon rydd;
Na's buhu'n'rhob gobydd,
A llef silladaeth helyd.*

A feeble one doth not recognize, in words, what qualities there are; nor their feet in every pause, and the secret of the syllabic system. Ieu. ab Hywel Spretwal.

Silladawl, a. (silliad) Syllabic, syllabical.

Silladu, v. a. (silliad) To syllablize; to spell.

Silliau, v. a. (sill) To arrange into elements or parts; to syllablize.

Silliau, v. a. (sill) Consisting of elements; consisting of syllables.

Silliedig, a. (silliad) Formed of syllables.

Silledigaeth, s. m. (silliedig) Formation of elementary parts or syllables.

Sillt, s. f.—pl. t. au (sill) An elementary part; a syllable.

*Dwell silltas o'n gwan'r gerdd,
Yw cyswrtgorn cyswrtgorn.*

To understand the syllables which combine the song is the key of correct versification. Ieu. ab Hywel Spretwal.

Silltaer, s. f.—pl. t. au (sillt—aer) A connection of links; a chain. Silltaerau heicira oddieithr arfau, links of iron on the outside of the armour.

Silltaeren, s. f.—pl. t. au (silltaer) A link.

*Caeu silltaeraw serch,
Er gwawd y tafawd, how-ferch,
A roddais.—*

Wreaths of the links of love, for the praise of the tongue, lively maid, which I bestowed. D. ab Gwilym.

Silltiad, s. m. (sillt) A forming an elementary part; a forming a kindred.

Silltiaw, v. a. (sillt) To connect, to form a part; to be joined, to be a component part.

*O faith wylla'r byd, af i'f'f' ellydd;
At Adda silltin', a'i' ellitydd.*

From the tedious station of the world, I will go to thy element; to Adam I will become connected, and his progeny.

Ieuan Brydydd Hir.

Silltiawg, a. (sillt) Consisting of parts; having syllables.

Silltiawl, a. (sillt) Component, kindred.

Silltiedig, a. (silltiad) Connected by parts; formed into syllables.

Sillydd, s. m. (sillt) That forms an elementary or a component part; a kindred.

Sillydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sill) A syllabary.

Sillyddiad, s. m. (sillydd) An arranging of syllables

Sillyddiaeth, s. m. (sillydd) The system of arranging syllables; prosody.

*Trefn sillyddiaeth oedd gaeth gyn,
I bob gair bawb ei geryn.*

The order of prosody was strict of yore, to every word each his kindred one.

Ieuan ab Iwanol Surdwal.

Sillyddu, v. a. (sillydd) To arrange syllables.

Sim, s. m.—pl. t. od (si—im) That is light, flip-pant, or full of motion.

Sitrach, s. m. (sim) A monkey, an ape.

Cymwythach corach a simach.

The mutual complacency of the pigmy and the monkey.

Adage.

Simdde, s. f.—pl. t. au (sim—de) A chimney.

Simer, s. m. (sim) Levity, trifling; a frik.

Simera, v. a. (simer) To play or frik about; to trifle, to dally.

Simiawl, a. (sim) Full of motion, flip-pant.

Simne, s. f.—pl. t. iau (sim—ne) A chimney.

Simp, s. m. (sim) The state of being instable; a flutter.

Simpl, a. (simp) Tottering, ready to fall.

Simplaidd, a. (simpl) Seeming to fall.

Simplaw, v. a. (simpl) To totter.

Simplad, s. m. (simpl) A tottering.

Simsan, a. (sim—san) Tottering, ready to fall.

Simwr, s. m.—pl. t. an (sim—wr) A kind of ves-ture; a chimmar.

Sin, s. m. (si—in) That is an outside or surface; donation, alms.

*Sin dylan gweilion o gan;
Sin i orwll sy'n arian.*

The alms of poor persons of white flour; the alms of others be in money.

L. O. Cethi.

Sinach, s. m.—pl. t. au (sin) A mere or landmark; a balk, a ridge; jungle; but, in Rhos and about Conwy, it is any spot of wild land in a cultivated field.

Terfyn dwy erw, dwy gwyn, a hwnw a elwir sinach.

The boundary of two acres consists of two furrows, and that is called a ridge.

Welsh Laws.

Sinachad, s. m. (sinach) A cutting into dribblets.

Paid â sinachad y bara, cease with mangling the bread.

Dyfed.

Sinachu, v. a. (sinach) To cut into dribblets.

Sindal, s. m. (sin—fal) Sindon, fine linen; cambric

A Dewi fab Sant sindal dodedd.

And Dewi son of Sant with a fine linen vest.

Gw. Brycheiniawg.

Sindw, s. pl. aggr. (sin—tw) That is forced to the surface; the scoria or cinders of a forge.

Siniad, s. m. (sin) A burning to cinders.

Siniaw, v. a. (sin) To reduce to cinders; to be-come cinders.

Siniawg, a. (sin) Abounding with cinders. s. f.

The part of a hearth which holds the cinders.

Siniawl, a. (sin) Of the quality of cinders.

Sinid, s. m. (sin) Surface, or scam.

Sinidr, s. m. (sinid) The scoria or dross of iron.

Sinidraw, v. a. (sinidr) To form dross.

Siob, s. f.—pl. t. an (si—ob) A tuft; a tassel.

Sioba, s. f. dim. (siob) A tuft; the crest of a bird.

Siobawg, a. (siob) Having a tuft, tufted.

Siobo, s. m. dim. (siob) A tuft; a sprinkle used in throwing holy water.

Tynol Colleen y siobo allan, ac a twrist y dwf bendigedig am ei pease; ac ar hyn y diflanynt o'i olwg.

Colleen pulled out the sprinkler, and he threw the holy water over them; and upon that they vanished out of his sight.

Bucknell Colleen.

Siobyn, s. m. dim. (siob) A small tuft.

Siobynawg, a. (siobyn) Tufted; crested.

Siobynu, v. a. (siobyn) To form a small tuft.

Siobo, s. f.—pl. t. au (si—och) That spreads out; bushy hair.

Siochen, s. f. dim. (sioch) A small tuft of hair; a bushy tuft.

Siochi, v. a. (sioch) To form a tuft, to make bushy.

Siol, s. m. (si—ol) The top of the head; the skull.

Siolyu, s. m. dim. (siol) A noddle.

Sionc, a. (si—onc) Brisk, nimble, active; flip-pant

Sioncald, a. (sionc) Somewhat brisk.

Sioncawl, a. (sionc) Tending to vivacity.

Sioncedd, s. m. (sionc) Briskness, nimbleness.

Sionci, v. a. (sionc) To make brisk; to become brisk, or lively.

Sioncrwydd, s. m. (sionc) Briskness, vivacity.

Onid mawr na feddal sioncrwydd Ffrainc

Rygyngw eulne ring angan!

How odd it is that the briskness of France should not drive us trip some time to escape from death!

Edw. Wynn, B. Cong.

Siopos, s. pl. aggr. (siob) What is all in shatter; a mass bruised or beat together.

Siplad, s. m. (siib) A sipping, a drawing with the lips, a drawing the lips together.

Siplan, s. m. (siib) A sipping, a smacking of lips.

Siplan, v. a. (siib) To keep sipping; to sip.

Siplaw, v. a. (siib) To draw the lips.

Siplawl, a. (siib) Sipping, drawing the lips.

Sipiedig, a. (siplad) Sipped, drawn with the lips.

Sipiwyr, s. m.—pl. sipiwyr (siib—gwr) A sipper.

Sipyn, s. m. dim. (siib) A single sip.

Sir, s. m. (si—ir) Cheer, solace, comfort.

Siriad, s. m. (sir) A cheering, a comforting.

Siriaw, v. a. (sir) To cheer, to be cheered.

Siriawl, a. (sir) Cheering, or cheerful.

Siriedig, a. (siriad) Cheered, comforted.

Siriolder, s. m. (siriawl) Cheerfulness.

Sirioledd, s. m. (siriawl) Cheerfulness.

Sirioli, v. a. (siriawl) To make cheerful; to be-come cheerful.

Sis, s. m. (si—is) A sharp low sound; a whisper.

Sisial, s. m. (sis) A gossip. v. a. To whisper.

Sisiala, v. a. (sisial) To keep whispering.

Sisialawg, a. (sisial) Full of whispering.

Sisialu, v. a. (sisial) To whisper, to mutter.

Sisialwr, s. m.—pl. sisialwyr (sisial—gwr) A whis-perer; a gossipier.

Sialw, v. imper. (sis) Only used to drive fowls.

Sialrain, v. a. (sis) To whisper, to buzz.

Sitell, s. f.—pl. t. i (siaid) A whisk, a brush.

Sitelllad, s. m. (sitell) A whisking round.

Sitellu, v. a. (sitell) To whisk round.

Sitiad, s. m. (siaid) A whirling, a whisking round.

Sitiaw, v. a. (siaid) To whirl, to whisk round.

Sitiawl, a. (siaid) Whirling, whisking round.

Sitiwr, s. m.—pl. sitiwyr (sitiaw—gwr) One who whirls, turns, or goes round.

*Sithi awr y benn
Yn cwrw'r berllan,
Cys cwrw'r a Siliaw, Sitiwr Tartara.*

Seven hours had they been guarding the garden, before meeting with Siliaw, the ranger of Tartara. Andi Ffrith.

Sitr, s. m. (sid) That jags, or that shreds.

Sitrach, s. m. (sitr) That is in jags or shreds, like a beaten end of a stick.

Sitrachawg, a. (sitrach) Jagged, or in shreds.

Sitrachiad, s. m. (sitrach) A jaggling, a shredding

Sitrachu, v. a. (sitrach) To jag, or to shred.

Siw, s. m. (si) A hiss. Siw! An exclamation used in driving fowls away.

Nid oedd na siw na maw.

There was not hiss nor maw.

Adage.

Siwen, s. m. (siw) An epithet for the mermaid, the general name for which is morforwyn.

Siwr, s. m.—pl. siwyr (si—gwr) A hisser.

SO, s. f. r. A spread out, along, or over.

Sob, s. m.—pl. t. an (sy—ob) A tuft; a bunch, a claster; a mass.

Soba, s. f. dim. (sob) A small tuft, bunch, claster, or mass.

Soban, s. f. dim. (sob) A small tuft, or bunch.

Socan, s. f. dim. (sog) A wallower. Socum ciru, socus lwyd, a fieldfare.

Socas, s. f. (sog) A wallower; the fieldfare.

Soeyn, s. m. dim. (sog) A pig; an urchin, a boy, in droll style.

Soch, s. f. (so—och) A sink, or a drain.

Sodawl, a. (sawd) Tending to fix, implant, or settle; characteristic.

Sodi, v. a. (sawd) To constitute, to fix, or to set.

Sodiad, s. m. (sawd) A constituting, a fixing, or implanting.

Sodlawg, a. (sawdl) Having a heel, heeled.

Sodli, v. a. (sawdl) To heel; to trip the heel.

Sodliad, s. m. (sawdl) A heeling; a tripping.

Sodwedd, s. f. (sawd—gwedd) A characteristic.

Soddadwy, a. (sawdd) Capable of being sunk.

Soddawl, a. (sawdd) Sinking; plunging.

Soddedig, a. (sawdd) Being sunk or plunged.

Soddedigath, s. m. (soddedig) The act of sinking

Soddi, v. a. (sawdd) To sink, to submerge.

Soddiad, s. m. (sawdd) A sinking; a plunging.

Soddwr, s. m.—pl. soddwyr (soddi—gwr) A sinker

Soeg, s. m. (so—eg) That is puffed by seething; grains of malt; druff.

A fegir gyda moch a ddyg fwyta soeg.

That is bred with swine will learn to eat grains.

Adage.

Yr huch a dau a fwyta y soeg.

The silent sow eats the druff.

Adage.

Hwch dy gyfallai, hi a ddyg hi fwyta soeg.

Be a sow thy companion, she will teach thee to eat grains.

Adage.

Soegen, s. f. dim. (soeg) A swaggy female.

Soegi, v. a. (soeg) To puff up with moisture; to steep; to slabber.

Soeglyd, a. (soeg) Puffed by steeping; slabbered

Soeglydrwydd, s. m. (soeglyd) A steeped state; slabbiness.

Sofi, s. m.—pl. sofydd (sawf) Stubble.

Soflawg, a. (sofi) Having stubble, stubbly.

Sofiar, s. f.—pl. sofieir (sofi—lar) A quail; also called Rhinc.

Soflyn, s. m. dim. (sofi) A single stubble.

Sog, s. f. (so—og) A wallow, a spread.

Soga, a. (sog) Wallowing; slovenly. Geneth soga, a slovenly girl. Sil.

Som, s. f.—pl. t. au (sy—om) A vacuity, a void; a balk, a disappointment.

Somawl, a. (som) Disappointing, balking.

Somedig, a. (som) Disappointed, balked.

Somedigaeth, s. f. (somedig) Disappointment.

Nid somedigaeth ond gwraig.

There is no deception equal to a woman.

Adage.

Somedigawl, a. (somedig) Disappointing.

Somedd, s. m. (som) A disappointment.

Somgar, a. (som) Apt to disappoint.

Somgar a soma o hunan yn y diwedd.

The deceitful will deceive himself at last.

Adage.

Somgarwch, s. m. (somgar) Aptness to balk.

Somi, v. a. (som) To balk, to disappoint.

Y crybwr deuth—

Diwyneith dau a somir.

The strong and the wise, two that suddenly will be deceived.

R. Bevan o Aber Dar.

Somiad, s. m. (som) A disappointing, a balking.

Somiant, s. m. (som) A disappointment.

Somwr, s. m.—pl. somwyr (som—gwr) A balker; a disappointer, a deceiver.

Son, s. m.—pl. t. ion (so—on) A noise; a report; a rumour; a mention. v. a. To noise; to report; to mention. Mac son amdani, there is talk about her; na wna son amdandad, do not cause a talk about thee:—Na son, do not say so; taw a son, hold thy tongue.

Son am y son amdano,

Ni cheir son dda o hane.

To talk of the talk about him, no good talk will be had from that.

Adage.

A fo deuth, ar fydd weithion,

A dwys air, fo dau a son.

Such as be wise, at present on the world, with a significant word, he will cease with talking.

T. Pry.

Sonfawr, a. (son) Noisy, or rumbling.

Songryf, a. (son—cryf) Of powerful noise.

Soniad, s. m. (son) A noising, a reporting, a rumouring, a mentioning.

Sonial, s. m. (son) A continued noise. v. a. To keep a continual noise.

O edwedd Morial

A gwedi Rhys mawr y sonial.

For the disappearing of Morial, and after Rhys great the lamentation.

Llywarch Hen.

Soniaw, v. a. (son) To noise; to report; to rumour; to make mention; to talk. Gostega dawb a sono amdandad, silence every body that shall talk about thee.

Sonwra belloch am—ddyledswyddau teulwedd.

We will mention now about domestic duties.

Thos. Evans.

Soniawl, a. (son) Noising, reporting, rumouring.

Soniawr, s. m. (son) That is noisy, or loud.

Ein hemaidd a drywanas drwy garawg soniawr ei li.

Our soul had been made to pass through a brook of noisy flood.

D. Ddu, ps. 131.

Soniedig, a (soniad) Noised, reported, rumoured, mentioned, talked.

Soniwr, s. m.—pl. soniwr (son—gwr) A man who makes a report or rumour; a mentioner; a talker.

Sopen, s. f.—pl. t. i (sob) Any mass squeezed or trussed together; a bundle, a truss. Sopen o gaws, a ball of cheese curds; sopen o flew, a bundle of hair; sopen o wair, a truss of hay.

Dos, y sopen front, Go, thou dirty baggage.

Sopenawg, a. (sopen) Being squeezed into a mass.

Sopeniad, s. m. (sopen) A squeezing into a mass, a making into a bundle.

Sopenu, v. a. (sopen) To bundle, to truss.

3 S 2

Sopiad, s. m. (sob) A pressing together into a mass; a bundling, a trussing.

Sopiaw, v. a. (sob) To press together into a mass; to bundle, to truss.

Sôr, s. m. (sy—or) The state of being pressed upon, chafed, or irritated; the being displeased or silently angry; sullenness. v. Sullen, sulky; angry; harsh, grating; sullen.

*Dist yn ôr am dori
Da gloa, Daw, dy eglwys di.*

Avenge harshly, for breaking a goodly sanctuary. God, thy church. R. Llanys ab Owlym.

Sôrïad, s. m. (sôr) A displeasing; a becoming displeased, sullen, or sulky.

Sôrïadwy, v. (sôrïad) Capable of displeasing.

Sôrïawl, a. (sôr) Displeasing, tending to sullenness.

Soredig, a. (sorad) Displeased, offended.

Soredigaeth, s. m. (soredig) The act of displeasing; displeasure, sullenness.

Sôrï, v. a. (sôr) To press upon; to chafe; to displease, to offend; to render sullen or sulky; to become displeased or offended; to grow sullen or sulky. Ystafell sôrï, a salking room: Na sôrïa writh dy fwyd, do not quarrel with thy victuals.

Nid sôrï yt ar dy fam.

Be there not for thee to be sulky to thy mother. Adage.

*Ni fydd am nid fo,
Na bryn, na thyno,
Na rhynged gode
Rhag gwyd pan coro.*

There can be no where free, nor hill, nor dale, nor the least of shelter from the wind when it shall rage. Taliesin.

Sôrïad, s. m.—pl. sôrïaid (sôr) A grating, chafing, or irritating; a becoming offended, sullen, or sulky.

Geir dy lawl, sôrïad wyf i.

The author of thy praise, an offended one am I. R. Ddu.

Sôrïannawl, a. (sôrïant) Tending to displeasure, offensive; tending to sullenness.

Sôrïanna, v. a. (sôrïant) To cause displeasure, offence, or sullenness.

Sôrïant, s. m. (sôr) Displeasure, disgust, offence; sullenness.

Sôrïg, a. (sôr) Apt to take offence; sulky.

Sôrïhyd, a. (sôr) Apt to grow angry, or sulky.

Sôrïhydrwydd, s. m. (sôrïhyd) Aptness to be offended, or sulky.

Sorod, s. pl. aggr. (sôr) Small particles, parts, or fragments; shatters; dregs, dross, sordes; also called sorrod.

Sorodi, v. a. (sorod) To yield dross or drega.

Sorth, s. f. (sôr) That is sudden, imminent, or upon; chance.

Sorth, a. (sôr) Sudden; imminent, falling; unwieldy; slothful; rude, rough, fell.

*Ffydd dda i'n cadw'n heff ddwetha,
O fwrn a mfa uffern sorth.*

Wholesome faith to keep as pleasantly without price, from the furnace had the Jew of preceptious bell. J. Meredydd.

Soth, s. m. (sy—oth) That is on the outside.

Sothach, s. pl. aggr. (soth) Refuse, dross.

*Llyw a'm dysgwdd hawdd hoddian gerdd beirfath,
Nid fal sothach-lath beirdd cuth Ceuw.*

A chief has instructed me with facility to acquire the perfect song, not like the refuse-speech of the slavish bards of Ceuw. Seftyn.

Sothachlyd, a. (sothach) Abounding with refuse.

Sothachu, v. a. (sothach) To cast a refuse.

SU, s. m. r. That tends to pervade; a buzz.

Suad, s. m. (su) A buzzing; a lulling; a lullaby.

Suaw, v. a. (su) To hush, to lull to rest.

Suawl, a. (su) Hushing, lulling to rest.

Sucan, s. m. (sug) Any thing seethed, or steeped; washbrew, gruel, flummery; small beer. Suan blaed, casol dŵr, water gruel; sucan gwyn, brewchan, candle, made with soured or seethed oatmeal, and sweetened.

Gwell sucan meddiant na gwin cŵrdŵd.

Better is small beer than is one's own than wine on charity. Adage.

Sucanald, a. (sucan) Of a washy quality.

Sud, s. m. (su—ud) A first glance; an exterior; appearance; condition, fashion, shape. A et ti yn dda dy sud? Art thou in a good way?

Sudd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (su—udd) That pervades or sinks in; moisture; juice, sap.

Suddadwy, a. (sudd) Capable of pervading; capable of containing juice.

Suddas, s. m. (sudd) A sinking, an immersion. Clych suddas, water bubbles.

Suddaw, v. a. (sudd) To sink in, to pervade; to sink; to become sunk. Suddaw llwyd, to sink a ship.

Suddaw, a. (sudd) Tending to sink in, to pervade; sinking.

Suddodig, a. (sudd) Pervaded as moisture; sunk.

Suddiad, s. m. (sudd) A sinking, a plunging.

Suddiant, s. m. (sudd) Pervasion of moisture; a sinking.

Sug, s. m.—pl. t. ion (su—ug) An imbibing principle; a suck, or drawing; what is imbibed; juice, sap.

Sugaeth, s. m. (sug) The state of being juicy; moisture; succulence.

Sugathan, s. m. (sugaeth) What is sucked; washbrew, candle; a poultice.

Sugaw, v. a. (sug) To imbibe; to fill with juice; to have juice.

Sugawl, a. (sug) Imbibing; juicy; succulent.

Sugedig, a. (sug) Imbibed; filled with juice.

Suger, s. m. (sug) Extracted juice; cyder.

Suglad, s. m. (sug) An imbibing of juice; a becoming juicy.

Suglian, s. m. (sug—llian) A cerecloth, a drawing plaster.

Sugn, s. m. (sug) A suck: sugn gŵst, woodbine, or honey-suckle.

Sugnad, s. m. (sugn) A sucking, an imbibing.

Sugnai, s. c. (sugn) That sucks or imbibes.

Sugnaw, v. a. (sugn) To suck, to imbibe.

Sugnawl, a. (sugn) Sucking, imbibing.

Sugneiriant, s. m. (sugn—peiriant) An hydraulic machine; a pump.

Sugnbib, s. f.—pl. t. an (sugn—pib) A drawing pipe; a syringe.

Sugndraeth, s. m.—pl. sugndreathydd (sug—traeth) A quicksand.

Sugndrec, s. m. (sugn—trec) A pump.

Sugneddydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sugnad) A sucker; a pump.

Sugneydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sugnai) A pumper.

Sugnfor, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (sugn—mor) A vortex in the sea; a quicksand.

Sugngostrel, s. m.—pl. t. an (sugn—costrel) A sucking-bottle.

Sugnïad, s. m. (sugn) A sucking, or imbibing.

Sugnwr, s. m.—pl. sugnwyrr (sugn—gwr) One who sucks, or imbibes.

Sugnydr, s. m.—pl. sugnwydr (sugn—gwydr) A cupping-glass.

Sugnydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sugn) A pump.

Sagoloth, s. m. (sagawl) Sarcology.

Sagoli, v. a. (sugawl) To render juicy; to become juicy or succulent.

Sagr, s. m.—pl. sagron (sug) An extracted juice crystallized; sugar.

Sagraw, v. a. (sagr) To sugar; to sweeten.

Sagrawl, v. a. (sagr) Of the quality of sugar.

Sul, s. m.—pl. t. iau (su—ni) That extends round; the sun. Dydd Sul, Sunday; also called Dynul, Dydd yr Arghwydd, and simply Sul. Sul, a gwyl, a gweth, Sunday, holiday, and work-day; Sul y gweddian, rogation Sunday.

Salgwyn, s. m. (sul—gwyn) Whitsunday.

Salw, s. m. (sul) Observation, notice, remark.

Del salw, take notice.

Salwy, s. m. (sulw) A scope round; exploration.

Sam, s. m.—pl. t. iau (su—am) Amplitude, magnitude, bulk, size; sum. Nid oes ynddo fawr o sam, it is of no great bulk.

Samiad, s. m. (sum) A bestowing amplitude, or magnitude; a becoming of bulk; a making observation as to size; a summing.

Samiaw, v. a. (sum) To endue with amplitude, or magnitude; to sum; to deduce the size or bulk of a thing by posing it in the hand.

Samiawl, a. (sum) Relating to amplitude.

Samiedig, a. (sumiad) Endued with bulk; measured as to size; summed.

Samiwr, s. m.—pl. sumwyr (sum—gwr) One who deduces the size of a body.

Sar, s. m. (su—ur) The state or quality of sourness; an acid. a. Sour, acid; stale. Llaeth sar, sour milk; afalau sarion, crab apples; cirin sarion, sloes.

Ni chadr nhai per ar bren sar.

No sweet apple can be had from a sour tree.

Adage.

Saraid, a. (sar) Somewhat sour, subacid.

Sarain, s. f.—pl. sarain (sar) The sorrel. Sarain yr yd, sheep's sorrel; sarain y maes, sarain y wach, common sorrel; sarain y fran, sorrel; sarain hirion, tafel y dafr, great water dock; sarain codawg, winter cherry; sarain y coed, sarain y gog, sarain tairdalen, wood sorrel.

Saracen, s. f. dim. (sarain) A sorrel. Saracen godawg, dagraw addaf, winter-cherry plant.

Saraw, v. a. (sar) To sour, to turn sour; to make sour.

Sarawl, a. (sar) Of a sour tendency.

Sarber, a. (sar—per) Of an acid sweetness.

Sarfwg, s. m. (sar—bwg) Sillabub.

Sardeb, s. m. (sar) Acidity, sourness; tartness.

Sarder, s. m. (sar) Acidity, sourness; tartness.

Surdoes, s. m. (sar—does) Sour dough, leaven.

Sardoesawg, a. (surdoes) Having leaven.

Sardoesawl, a. (surdoes) Leavening.

Sardoesl, v. a. (surdoes) To leaven.

Sardra, s. m. (sar) Acidity, or sourness.

Sardrwn, s. m. (sar—trwn) Stale urine.

Saredig, a. (sar) Acidulated or soured.

Saredd, s. m. (sar) Acidity, sourness.

Sarfedd, s. m. (sar—medd) A syrup.

Sarfelys, a. (sar—melys) Of an acid sweetness.

Surian, s. f.—pl. surlain (sar) A cherry.

Sarais waid—

'Er hwna blodau sarais.

I have ornamented an elegy for her who is of the hue of the cherry blossom.

cf. ab Ein. Llyfr.

Sarni, s. m. (sar) Sourness, tartness, acidity.

Sarwrn, s. f. (sar—gwrn) A sour swamp; also an epithet for hell, consonant to the bardic theology.

*A ffath gath gethen, sarwrn nid oych,
Lle mae llawer gwae weathwyrch amogwr
Lle de—*

Hell, the receptacle of a stivish crew, a sour swamp that dries not, where there is many a woe dimally uprising without relief of the black host.

Cennedyg.

Suryr, s. m. dim. (sar) Any acid thing.

Sut, s. m. (sud) An exterior; appearance; manner, condition, plight; shape. Pa sut sydd? How goes it? Neidia yna: Pa sut? Jump to there: which way? How?

*Wrth set on baruth ar son
Yr adwainir y dynion.*

By the manner of their discourse in talking with the persons be known.

cf. Brydydd Hir.

Sutiad, s. m. (sut) A seeming; giving a manner, form, or shape; a suiting.

Sutiaw, v. a. (sut) To endue with a manner, plight, or shape; to adapt, to suit.

Sutiawl, a. (sut) Relating to manner, condition, or shape; adapted, suiting, befitting.

Süwr, s. m.—pl. süwyr (su—gwr) A husher.

SW, s. m. r. That remains, that is on, fixed upon, or exterior.

Swb, s. m. (sw) That is piled, heaped, or pressed together; a bundle.

Swba, s. m. dim. (swb) A small bunch.

Swbach, s. m. (swb) That is drawn together in a heap.

Swbachiad, s. m. (swbach) A shrinking up.

Swbachn, v. a. (swbach) To shrink up; to become shrunk up or decrepit.

Swci, s. m. (swg) That is soaked; steepings. Oen swci, oen llawfaeth, a lamb reared by hand; llo swci, a calf reared by hand.

Swch, s. f.—pl. sychod (sw—wch) A snout; a soc. Swch eradr, ploughshare; swch cegid, the point of a shoe.

Sychu y swch i fnyd i'r ffilid.

To wipe the snout to go into the soil.

Adage.

Swchiad, s. m. (swch) A snouting, a turning about with the snout.

Swchiaw, v. a. (swch) To snout; to search with the snout, as a pig, or a dog; also to share a plough.

Swchiawl, a. (swch) Belonging to the snout; belonging to a ploughshare.

Swd, s. m. (sw—wd) An exterior; appearance, manner, condition, plight; shape.

SW.

Swdd, s. m. (sw—dd) A frame, beams put together to support any thing; what is piled together.

Swdden, s. f.—pl. t. i (swdd) A beam.

Swf, s. m. (sw) That is on; a spot, a space.

Swg, s. m. (sw—wg) A soak, or imbibing.

Swga, a. (swg) Tending to soak; soaked; filthy.

Mor swga wyt ti! how filthy thou art!

Swgan, s. f. (swg) A slat, or a slattern.

Swgawl, a. (swg) Tending to soak; soaking, drenching.

Swgiaw, v. a. (swg) To soak; to become soaked, to become flaccid; to become filthy.

Swgliad, s. m. (swg) A soaking, a drenching; a growing flaccid; a becoming filthy.

Swl, s. m. (sw—wl) A flat space, or surface, the ground; soil, dirt.

Swl, a. (sw—wl) Flat; grounded, soiled.

*Salw'th gwl, ryl-lith gwl;
Saf swch y dyllch a coe.*

Possible is thy attempt, with thy plain uniform speech; perch above the rather and talk away.

D. ab Einion, yr unenol.

Swla, a. (swl) Being grounded, or covered with soil; dirty. SW.

Swll, s. m.—pl. t. odd (sw—wl) That is clear or open; a scene, a prospect.
Swllt, s. m.—pl. syltlan (swll) That has a clear surface; a shilling; money; treasure.

*Rhoel ar ferch dmsrach a drig,
 Eyllt wedd, a swllt eiddig.
 I have fixed on a fair one foodless that will remain, with the form of Eyllt, and the treasure of a jealous calf. D. ab Gwilym.
 Y gwer a gymerynt, a chuddiedig swllt y clwddwyr a ranynt.
 The city they got possession of, and the concealed treasure of the citizens they divided. Gr. ab Arthur.*

Swm, s. m. (sw—wm) The state of being together.
Swmer, s. m.—pl. t. l (swm) That supports, or keeps together; a beam. Swmer car, the hind part of a drag or dray, which holds up the load.
Swmerfarch, s. m.—pl. swmerfeirch (swmer—march) A sumpter-horse.
Swmeriad, s. m. (swmer) A supporting, uphold- ing, or propping; a fixing a beam.
Swmeru, v. a. (swmer) To support, uphold, or prop; to fix a beam.
Swml, s. m.—pl. symlan (swm—yl) A goad.
Swmwyl, s. m.—pl. symylan (swm—wl) A goad.

*Syml lawr roi swmwl ynod.
 It was very simple to put a goad in thee. Ilywelyn Moel.
 Swn, s. m.—pl. syniau (sw—wn) A noise; a sound. Swm taran, the noise of thunder; swm llw, the noise of a multitude.
Swniad, s. m. (swn) A noising; a sounding.
Swniad, v. a. (swn) To make a continual noise; to make a clattering; to ring.
Swniaw, v. a. (swn) To noise; to sound.
Swniawl, a. (swn) Noisy, loud, sounding.
Swniedig, a. (swniad) Being noised, or sounded.
Swniwr, s. m.—pl. swniwyr (swn—gwr) One who makes a noise; a sounder.*

Swp, s. m.—pl. sypiu (swb) A squeezed lump or mass; a heap; a pile; a bunch, a cluster. Gwnaf di yn swp yn dy groen, I will beat thee all to a mummy; dyma fo yn un swp, here it is all in a heap.

Swpws, s. pl. aggr. (swp) A heap of things squeezed or beat together.

Swr, s. m. (sw) That is surly, sullen, or cross; a surly one.

Swr, a. (sw) Surly, sullen, salky, cross. Dyn swr iawn, a very ill-natured man.

Swri, s. m. (swr) Surliness; sullenness; a snarling, a barking. Swri! swri! words used to invite a dog to one.

Swrn, s. m.—pl. syrnau (sy—wrn) A small opening, space, or separation; a somewhat, a quantity, a little; the joint next to the foot of a quadruped; the pastern-joint or fetlock-joint.

A swrn byd ddyweddwrn sydd.

And a good space till Saturday there is. D. ab Gwilym.

Swrnach, s. m. (swrn) A snarl, or a grin.

Swrnach, v. a. (swrn) To grin, or to snarl.

Swrnderaw, v. a. (swrn—taraw) To cut or knock the pastern-joints together.

Swrth, s. m. (swr) That is sudden, imminent, or falling.

Swrth, a. (swr) Sudden; imminent, falling; drowsy; unwieldy; slothful; rude, rough, fell. Dyweddi yn swrth, thou speakest roughly. Sil.

Swrth pob diawl.

Every lazy one is clumsy. Adage.

Mor swrth y syrthodd march Paen!

How suddenly fell the steed of Paen! Llywarch Hen.

*Swrth oedd ei fyn'd, syrthodd fo
 Dwy oer i'ng i dir auro.*

Swd was his departing, he fell through severe affliction to the land of oblivion. Ed. Samson.

Swrthdrwm, a. (swrth—trwm) Of a drowsy heaviness.

Swrthlyd, a. (swrth) Apt to be drowsy.

Swrthyn, s. m. dim. (swrth) A clumsy one.

Swrw, s. m. (swr) Surly, snarling; sullen.

Swrwd, s. pl. aggr. (swr) Parts, fragments; shatters; dross, sordes. Mae e yn serwd yn ei groen, he is all to shatters in his skin.

Swta, s. m. (swd) That is volatile, flying, or sudden; also soot. a. Volatile, flying, sudden.

Lle swta mewn llw owt.

Satan's host in fiery of soot. Job Gm.

Swtan, s. m.—pl. swtain (swd) A whiting post. It is called baerd melinydd, and cod lwyd.

Swtiad, s. m. (swt) A flying about; a being of sudden motion.

Swtiaw, v. a. (swt) To fly about; to be volatile or sudden.

Swtr, s. m. (swd) A sudden crack, or crash.

Swtrach, s. pl. aggr. (swtr) Dross, dregs.

Swtrws, s. pl. aggr. (swtr) That is bruised. Twi yn swtrws, to bruise to a mash.

Swth, s. m. (sw—wth) A frame, or what keeps together; a pile, a heap.

Swy, s. m. (sw) That is on, over, or exterior.

Swydw, s. m. (swy) That extends over; awe.

Swydw, v. a. (swyd) To awe, to intimidate.

Swydwyl, a. (swyd) Tending to awe.

Swydlad, s. m. (swyd) A creating an awe.

Swydrws, a. (swyd) Tending to awe.

Swydd, s. f.—pl. t. an (swy) Employ, office, duty; suit; service, with respect to tenure; also a jurisdiction; a shire. Tir a swydd wrtho, land with service attached to it; tir heb swydd, land free of service; Eis yno yn un swydd, I went there on purpose.

Dwyg y swydd ni thol ei gwmnysu.

Had is the office that is not worth serving. Adage.

*A gado swydd afwyddawl
 Y gyfraith oddi hwi i ddawri.*

*And leave the intricate pursuit of the wicked law to the fool.
 Elen Llwyd Idr.*

Swyddawg, a. (swydd) Having an office. s. m.—pl. swyddogion. An officer. Swyddogion y lly, the officers of the court; swyddogion bwyll y llyn, purveyors of meat and drink; swyddog y dolfa, an officer of the customs.

Swyddawl, a. (swydd) Official, of office.

Swyddfa, s. f.—pl. swyddfeydd (swydd) A place of business, or office.

Swyddgar, a. (swydd) Officious, full of business.

Swyddgarwch, s. m. (swyddgar) Officiousness.

Swyddogaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (swyddawg) The sway or extent of an office; the jurisdiction of a county.

Had swyddogaeth a dyfaint yn mhob thr.

The ends of office will grow in every land. Adage.

Swyddogawl, a. (swyddawg) Belonging to office.

Swyddogedig, a. (swyddawg) Officered.

Swyddoges, s. f.—pl. t. au (swyddawg) A female officer.

Swyddogi, v. a. (swyddawg) To hold an office.

Swyddogiad, s. m. (swyddawg) A holding an office.

Swyddwial, s. f.—pl. swyddwial (swydd—gwial)

A rod of office.

Swyddwialen, s. f. (swyddwial) A rod of office.

Swyddwr, s. m.—pl. swyddwyr (swydd—gwr) An officer.

Swyddymgais, s. m. (swydd—ymgais) A seeking or looking after office.

Swyddymgeislad, s. m. (swyddymgeis) A seeking after an office.

Swyddymgeislaw, v. a. (swyddymgeis) To seek after an office.

Swyf, s. m.—pl. t. au (swy) That is on the surface; froth; yeast; also snet. See Ysgai.

Maer y blaenaf a gulf swyf a blonog ysgubri y llys.

The head steward shall have the surf and the head of the animals of the palace. Welsh Laws.

Swyfw, v. a. (swyf) To produce a scum or surface; to yield snet; to turn to snet.

Swyfwg, a. (swyf) Having a scum; having snet.

Swyfedd, s. m. (swyf) That becomes a surface or coating; snet.

Swyfen, s. f. (swyf) Scum, froth, or top.

Swyfi, s. m. (swyf) Scum, froth, or top.

Swyfiad, s. m. (swyf) A yielding scum or surface; a yielding snet.

Swyl, s. f.—pl. t. on (swy) A saving.

Swylaw, v. a. (swyl) To save, or to put by.

Swylaw ar y chys diweddol.

To save when reduced to the last scrap. Adage.

Swyn, s. f.—pl. t. lon (swy) A preservative, protection, or comfort; a remedy; a charm. Dwyf swyn, holy water; swyn ddrwg, bad comfort.

Gwas fi na allaf, hi ferch!

Dy dwyn gan wneudhar swyn sarch.

Woe to me that I cannot, oh maid! bear thee away by making a love charm. Irish Tris.

Swyna, v. a. (swyn) To collect preservatives or remedies; to deal in charms.

Swynaw, v. a. (swyn) To apply a preservative, comfort or cure; to charm; to bless; to save harmless; to excuse.

A'm swynawl Math,

Cyn bua ddiarod:

A'm swynaw'r Wilon;

Maer-ar y Bryllon;

O Ewrys, o Ebron,

O Ebron, o Fedron,

O bump paunant ceirddon

Athronen all Math.

Math had given one preserving name, before that I was made important; I was also made secure by Gwion, the mighty profound of the Bryllon; by Ewrys, by Ebron, by Ebron by Fedron, by five times five hundred thousand arts of doctors equal to Math. Tellevin.

Daw o nef a'th swyna.

God of heaven hath blessed thee.

L. P. Mack.

Swynawg, a. (swyn) Possessed of a preserving virtue.

Swynawl, a. (swyn) Preservative; tending to comfort; curative; blessing; tending to charm.

Swynedig, a. (swyn) Furnished with a preservative, or remedy; endowed with a charm.

Dwif a baken swynedig yn y bedydd.

Consecrated water and salt in the baptism.

Ll. Gwyn Hergest.

Swynedigaeith, s. f. (swynedig) The act of preserving or remedying by some hidden virtue; a preserving by charm.

Swynedigawl, a. (swynedig) Tending to preserve or to remedy by any hidden virtue.

Swynfri, s. m. (swyn—bri) The daisy.

Swyngfaredd, s. f.—pl. t. lon (swyna—cyfaredd) An amulet; witchcraft.

Swyngfareddawg, a. (swyngfaredd) Possessed of witchcraft.

Swyngfareddawf, a. (swyngfaredd) Belonging to witchcraft.

Swyngfareddiad, s. m. (swyngfaredd) A practising of witchcraft.

Swyngfareddu, v. a. (swyngfaredd) To practise or deal in witchcraft.

Swyngfareddw, s. m. (swyngfared—gwr) A dealer in witchcraft.

Swyniad, s. m. (swyn) A preserving, a comforting; the applying of a remedy; a charming; a blessing; a saving harmless; an excusing.

Swynogl, s. f.—pl. t. au (swynawg) An amulet, a charm.

Yno ffolneb a wisgol amdane'f ryw arall o harnais, yr hon a elwir olerogonant—'a'm banogol i ofyn cygaber i wreigedd y brynglas, ya writhwyneb i gyfrailh Daw.

Thereupon Folly arrayed me in another sort of attire, which is called raioglogy—that would instigate me to ask counsel from women who deal in charms, contrary to the law of God.

Merchawg Crypsedd.

Swynogli, v. a. (swynogl) To apply a preservative; to apply a remedy; to charm; to fascinate.

Y gelirais hyny a'm swynogol i, merys ag yr oedd hir genyf, o elwsu cael gweld i llys bafeld hwan.

Those words fascinated me, as it was tedious to me, for want of getting to see that palace of summer days.

Merchawg Crypsedd.

Swynoglad, s. m. (swynogl) Fascination.

Swynoglw, s. m.—pl. swynoglwyr (swynogl—gwr) A dealer in spells, a fascinator.

Swynwr, s. m.—pl. swynwyr (swyn—gwr) One who uses a preservative, or remedy; a comforter; a dealer in amulets, or charms; a magician. Swynwr drwg wyt ti, thou art a Job's comforter.

Swynwraig, s. f.—pl. swynwreigedd (swyn—gwraig) A woman who deals in charms.

Swynydd, s. m.—pl. t. lon (swyn) A wizard.

Swys, s. m.—pl. t. au (sy—wys) A scope round; emotion; impulse; a throb, a throw.

Cynnyddwn allnau, heb swysau saeth, Can an Daw fry frenhiniaeth.

We also shall grow up, without the arrow throws, in the kingdom of our God on high. Cynddelw.

Swysaw, v. a. (swys) To fill with emotion.

Swysawg, a. (swys) Having emotion, or impulse.

Bid swysawg ton to porth Wyr, Bid swysawg serchawg, banwg breyr.

Foamy be the wave towards the port of Gwyr, anxious be the lever, exalted be the chieftain. Gwalchmai.

Swysawl, a. (swys) Tending to give impulse.

Swysiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (swys) A producing emotion, impulse, or feeling.

Swyson, s. pl. aggr. (swys) Emotions; passions.

SV, s. m. r. That is, existeth, or remaineth; that is fixed or stated; a star. v. n. Is, existeth, or hath a being. It is used as a prefix in composition.

Pwybyng sy heb wraig sy heb ymryson.

Whoever is without a wife is without contention. Adage.

Syber, a. (swb—er) Having a low tendency; of good conduct, sober, staid.

Tri hardd byd: dwyfwl, celfydd, a syber.

The three ornaments of the world: the plow, the ingenious, and the one of sober conduct. Catwg ab Gwynlliw.

Syberedig, a. (syber) Being rendered of sober demeanour.

Syberl, s. m. (syber) A good demeanour; neatness; sobriety.

Syberw, a. (syber) Stately, magnificent, noble; courteous, generous; supercilious, haughty, highminded; elegant. Meirch syberw, proud steeds; ach syberw, a noble lineage.

Y neb a ddyweto yn syberw, neu yn hagr, with y brein, taled deir-ba camlwr.

Whoever shall speak superciliously, or unceremoniously, to the king, let him pay three times for compensation of injury. Welsh Laws.

A rhag syberwedd Rolant ef a eddw i ddo gyng.

And from Rolant being so magnanimous he suffered him to sleep. H. Cer. Hug—Mabiolion.

Pan gilywr bod enw breidd iddynt, syberwarch fyddent.

When it shall be heard that they possess the name of a king, more arrogant will they be.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Syberwad, s. m. (syberw) A rendering stately.
Syberwaidd, a. (syberw) Tending to be stately.
Syberweiddrwydd, s. m. (syberwaidd) Stateliness.
Syberwi, v. a. (syberw) To make stately, to become noble, high, or elated; to become elegant.
Syberwyd, s. m. (syberw) Stateliness, magnificence, nobleness; courtesy, generosity, munificence; highmindedness; haughtiness, elegance. Rhodd a syberwyd goracdd, the grant and courtesy of a convention. Barddas.

Owell syberwyd no bonedd.

Better is courtesy than nobility.

Adage.

Er dy syberwyd, pwylla wrtho heno.

For thy honour, be considerate to him this night.

H. Peredur—Mabinogion.

Llawer a beris Rolant eu colli o wyda, o'i syberwyd ef.

Many did Roland cause to perish of brave men, owing to his highmindedness.
H. Car. Mag—Mabinogion.

Sybid, s. m. (swb) That is all in a heap.
Sybidan, s. f. dim. (sybid) A weakly female.
Sybidyn, s. m. dim. (sybid) A worthless fellow.
Sybw, s. m. (swb—wb) A rumple, a pressing out of shape.
Sybwbiad, s. m. (sybw) A tumbling about; a rumpiling.
Sywbw, v. a. (sybw) To toss, to rumple.
Sywbw, s. m. (sybw) A tasser, a rumpier.
Sybwil, s. m.—pl. sybyllau (sy—pwil) A puddle, or a plash.
Sybrwn, s. m.—pl. sybrwn (sy—brwn) Bundle.
Sybydd, s. pl. aggr. (swb—gwydd) Pines, or fir-trees.
Sybydden, s. f. dim. (sybydd) A pine-tree.
Sybyllawg, a. (sybwil) Having puddles, plashy.
Sybyllir, s. m. (sybwil—tir) Plashy ground.
Sybyllu, v. a. (sybwil) To make plashy.
Sybyrnawg, a. (sybrwn) Bundled, trussed.
Sybyrnawl, a. (sybrwn) Like a bundle.
Sybyrniad, s. m. (sybrwn) A bundling.
Sybyrniaw, v. a. (sybrwn) To bundle.
Sybyrnyn, s. m. dim. (sybrwn) A little bundle.
Sych, s. m. (sy—ych) Drought. a. Dry. Dillad sychion, dry clothes.

Tri pheth anhwadw os cael: dwfr sych, tan gwlyb, a gwrtaid dawg.

Three things difficult to be obtained: dry water, wet fire, and a silent wife.

Adage.

Tri pheth a gryffiant y corff: gwrtaid os wely caled, wybrwn oslyd, a bwyd sych.

Three things that strengthen the body: a laying on a hard bed, a cold atmosphere, and dry victuals.

Adage.

Sychadwy, a. (sych) Capable of drying.
Sychawl, a. (sych) Tending to dry, drying.
Sychbilen, s. f.—pl. t. an (sych—phen) A dry film.
Sychder, s. m. (sych) Drought, or dryness.
Syched, s. m. (sych) Drought; thirst. Gad imi dori fy syched, let me quench my thirst.

Dymenaw yd wyf y dydd y cyfarfyddom ni ynghyd; canys syched os gwaed hwynt y dydd araaf.

I am wishing for the day when we shall meet together; for a thirst after their blood is upon me.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Sychedawl, a. (syched) Tending to cause thirst.
Sychediad, s. m. (syched) A thirsting; a causing thirst.

Sychedig, a. (syched) Being made dry; thirsty.
Sychedigaeth, s. m. (sychedig) A causing to be dry, or thirsty.

Sychedigawl, a. (sychedig) Tending to make dry.
Sychedigrwydd, s. m. (sychedig) A dried state.

Sychedu, v. a. (syched) To thirst, to be thirsty.
Sychedwr, s. m.—pl. sychedwyr (syched—gwr) A thirster.

Sychedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (syched) A thirster.

Sychfa, s. f.—pl. sychfeydd (sych) A drying place.

Sychgernyn, a. s. m. dim. (sych—cernyn) A dry scale, or scurf.

Sychin, s. f. (sych—hin) Dry weather.

Sychinawg, a. (sych—hin) Being dry weather.

Sychiad, s. m. (sych) A drying, a siccation.

Sychiadd, v. a. (sychiad) To desiccate, to sicate.

Sychiannawl, a. (sychiant) Desiccative, desiccant.

Sychiannu, v. a. (sychiant) To desiccate.

Sychiant, s. m. (sych) Desiccation, siccation.

Sychin, s. f. (sych) Drought, or dry weather.

Mes ar y sychia, phann ar y gwlith.

Now on the dry weather, plant on the wet weather. Adage.

Sychmer, s. m. (sych—mer) Paroxysm of a hectic.

Sychnrych, s. m. (sych—nych) A dry pining.

Sychnyehdawd, s. m. (sychnych) Consumption.

Sychnychiad, s. m. (sychnych) A pining of tubes.

Sychiannu, v. a. (sychnych) To pine with a tubes.

Sychrwyd, s. f.—pl. t. au (sych—rwyd) A dry web, or film, on the eye; also called sychgryn, sychbilen, and rhauchen.

Sychu, v. a. (sych) To dry, to wipe dry; to become dry. Sychu dy drwg, wipe thy nose.

Hyd y dda y gwelw, ac y gwlith gawl;

Hyd y chwyno haf, a hyd y sych;

Nf'm dawr o gawddod tra cerddych;

Nf'm dawr o fawredd pan o wedydd.

Whilst rain shall come, and winter drowse; whilst summer heat groweth, and whilst to drier; I shall not be contented for my course but whilst thou dost adjourn; I shall care not for house when thou shalt be laid down. for. Prydydd.

Sychwr, s. m.—pl. sychwyr (sych—gwr) A dryer, a wiper.

Sychwydd, s. pl. aggr. (sych—gwydd) Dry wood; fuel; also called tawydd, and cynad.

Sychydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sych) A desiccant.

Syddyn, a. (swd) Abrupt, quick, sudden.

Syddyrwydd, s. m. (syddyn) Abruptness.

Sydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (sy) That is, existeth, or remaineth; rest. v. a. Is, existeth, or hath a being. Pwy sydd yna? who is there?

Ffrower wen, brodyr a'rh fe,

Pan gilywyl gywenta fe,

Ni cello phid sydd gwyth.

Fair Ffrower, brothers hast thou had, when they should lay the din of army, their shade would not be left to cover thee. Adage.

Gwne id y ddraig goch, cawsy o hamlid sydd yn bydd.

Woe to her, the red dragon, for her destruction is approaching. Dargan yr Ery.

Syddawl, a. (sydd) Relating to being or dwelling.

Syddiad, s. m. (sydd) A being, a remaining.

Syddu, v. a. (sydd) To exist, to abide, to dwell.

Syddyn, s. m.—pl. t. an (sydd) A habitation; a tenement.

Cawsydd, lly can, fa syddyn,

Caws ywll a gwasgell glyn.

We shall have a coat, then of blossoms here, for our cloth, the fair branches and the green leaves of the glen. D. ab Dewi.

Syddynawl, a. (syddyn) Tenementary, of a farm.

Syddyniad, s. m. (syddyn) A holding a tenement.

Syddyn, v. a. (syddyn) To take up a settled abode; to hold a tenement.

Syddynaw, s. m.—pl. syddynawyr (syddyn—gwr) fixed inhabitant; a husbandman, a farmer.

Syfa, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (swf) A riddle; also called rhidyll.

A gylith yn y gylith a gylith yn y gylith.

What is lost in the riddle will be found in the stone. Adage.

Syfa, s. f.—pl. t. an (swf—eg) That is out-spreading.

Pwybyng a ffrwyd dy, taled—am y poilion syfaean, cetaiswg.

Whoever damages a house, let him pay for the poles for out-spreading, a penny. Welsh Laws.

Syfal, a. (sy—mal) Fickle, changeable.

Syfalad, s. m. (syfal) A rendering fickle.

Syfalau, v. a. (syfal) To render fickle; to become fickle or uncertain.

Syfalawd, s. m. (syfal) Fickleness, uncertainty.

Syfa, v. a. (syfal) To act with fickleness.

Syf, s. pl. aggr. (swf) Strawberries; also called meys.

Lle taml y syf taml y nakidredd.

Where the strawberries abound there snakes abound. Adage.

Syffan, s. f. dim. (syf) A single strawberry.

Syffan y mola huch.

A strawberry is a sow's belly.

Adage.

Syff, s. m. (swf) A tendency to move.

Syffad, s. m. (syff) A moving, a stirring.

Syffawg, a. (syff) Having motion or stir.

Syffiad, s. m. (syff) A moving, a stirring.

Syffwr, s. m.—pl. syffwyr (syff—gwr) A stirrer.

Syffyd, v. a. (syff) To move, to stir; to be moved.

Nu syffed un oddyna, let no one stir from there; o syff, if thou stirrest.

Syffn, a. (swf) Of a firm quality.

Syffnawl, a. (syffn) Of a firm quality.

Syffngawd, s. m. (syffn—cnawd) Firm flesh.

Gwng na ddiogor with newwath, Gwngawd mythas syffngawd mawth.

A garment that she will not put off for seven nights, the shouter of a delicate plump firm flesh. D. ab Gwilym.

Syffniad, s. m. (syffn) A making firm.

Syffu, v. a. (syffn) To make firm or hard.

Syfr, a. (swf) Tending to make hard or severe.

Syfrdan, s. m. (syfr—tan) A state of giddiness.

Yn mhob man syfrdan sydd, A bllaw heb lawenydd.

In every place there is distraction, and weariness void of pleasure. D. Benfras.

Syfrdan, a. (syfr—tan) Giddy, dizzy; stupefied; delirious.

Col! medd y fran, syfrdan son Ddegan, pan gafal ddigou; Felly'r gwyr a falgarant.

Col! quoth the raven, blundering with crazy noise, when she has had enough; so the men who falsely love. D. ab Dafydd Llwyd.

Syfrdanaidd, a. (syfrdan) Tending to be giddy, dizzy, or crazy; somewhat stupefied.

Syfrdanawl, a. (syfrdan) Stupefying.

Syfrdandawd, s. m. (syfrdan) Giddiness, dizziness; stupefaction; delirium; craziness.

Syfrdander, s. m. (syfrdan) Giddiness; craziness.

Syfrdanedd, s. m. (syfrdan) Giddiness, craziness.

Syfrdaniad, s. m. (syfrdan) A making giddy, dizzy, or crazy; a stupefying.

Syfrdau, v. a. (syfrdan) To make giddy, or dizzy, to stupefy; to astonish; to become giddy, dizzy, or stupefied.

Syfrdanus, a. (syfrdan) Tending to make giddy or dizzy; stupefying.

Syfrdanwr, s. m.—pl. syfrdanwyr (syfrdan—gwr) One who makes giddy; a stupefier.

Syffriad, s. m. (syfr) A rendering severe.

Syfr, v. a. (syfr) To render hard or severe.

Syfyd, s. m. (swf) That is gradual, that forms a space.

Syg, s. f.—pl. t. ian (sy—yg) A chain formed of links; a trace; also called tud, and rhu. Bou-egg, the chain extending from the plough beam to the yoke.

VOL. II.

Sygan, s. m. (sy—can) A whisper; a mutter.

Syganawl, a. (sygan) Whispering, muttering.

Syganlad, s. m. (sygan) A whispering, muttering.

Syganu, v. a. (sygan) To whisper, to mutter.

Sagana!r M cynal cwyr.

The pie would be muttering a burden of complaint.

D. ab Gwilym.

Sygu, s. f.—pl. sygnan (syg) A circle; a zodiacal sign.

Su Alexander, byd lywladur;

Hyd sygnodd nesoedd ni be segur.

There has been Alexander, the ruler of the world; even to the signs of heaven he was not idle. Cynaddeln.

Sygog, s. f. (sy—gog) A shove, a move.

Syggol, v. a. (syggog) To move about, to fidget; to be restless or fidgetting.

Syggolad, s. m. (syggog) A fidgetting, a being restless.

Syl, s. f. (sy—yl) A surface, ground, or foundation.

Sylch, s. f.—pl. t. au (syl) A furrow.

Sylchdan, s. m. (sylch—tan) A wheel plough.

Sylchiad, s. m. (sylch) The opening a surface.

Sylfa, s. f.—pl. t. on (syl) A foundation.

Sylfaen, s. f.—pl. sylfeini (syl—maen) A foundation stone.

Sylfaenedig, a. (sylfaen) Having a base stone.

Rhodd l'r dweilion fod mor sylfaenedig na cilir eu aglaw; mor biantald na cilir eu cyfrwyaw.

It is necessary for the godly to be so established that they cannot be moved; so like children that they cannot be made crafty. Morgan Llwyd, Y Tri Aderyn.

Sylfaeniad, s. m. (sylfaen) A laying a foundation stone; a foundation.

Sylfaenu, v. a. (sylfaen) To lay a foundation stone; to found.

Sylfaenwr, s. m.—pl. sylfaenwyr (sylfaen—gwr) One who lays a foundation stone.

Sylfaenydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sylfaen) A founder.

Sylfan, s. f.—pl. t. au (swl—man) A foundation.

Sylfanawl, a. (sylfan) Foundatory.

Sylfaniad, s. m. (sylfan) A laying a foundation.

Sylfon, s. m.—pl. t. au (swl—bon) A subject.

Sylgyngan, v. a. (swl—cyngan) To speak with a low voice, to mutter.

Syliad, s. m. (syl) A making a foundation.

Sylu, v. a. (syl) To make a foundation.

Sylw, s. m.—pl. t. au (swl) Observation, sight, view, regard, notice. Dal sylw, to take notice.

Sylwad, s. m. (sylw) A regarding, or observing.

Sylwaw, s. m. (syl—gwaew) A radical disease.

Nid sylwawc oidd salwedd.

Not a radical ailment but indisposition.

Gr. Grgy.

Sylweddig, a. (sylwad) Being observed.

Sylwedd, s. m.—pl. t. au (sylw) Observation.

Sylwedd, s. m.—pl. t. au (syl—gwedd) Substance.

Sylwedd yw pob ysbryd; ac nid yw y byd a wellir ond cyngawd o'r byd aie gwelir, yr hwn sy drwy y byd yma.

Every spirit is substance; and the world that is seen is but a shadow of the world that is not seen, and which pervades the world. Morgan Llwyd.

Sylweddawg, a. (sylwedd) Having substance.

Sylweddawl, a. (sylwedd) Substantial; corporeal.

Sylweddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (sylwedd) Substantiating.

Sylweddiannawl, a. (sylweddiant) Substantiating.

Sylweddiannu, v. a. (sylweddiant) To substantiate.

Sylweddiannus, a. (sylweddiant) Substantiating.

Sylweddiant, s. m. (sylwedd) Substantiality.

Sylweddogi, v. a. (sylweddawg) To substantiate.

Sylweddogiad, s. m. (sylweddawg) A rendering substantial, substantiation.

3 T

Sylweddoldeb, s. m. (sylweddawl) Substantialness; reality; corporeity, materiality.
Sylweddolder, s. m. (sylweddawl) Substantialness.
Sylweddoldra, s. m. (sylweddawl) Substantialness.
Sylweddoli, v. a. (sylweddawl) To render substantial; to realize; to consolidate.
Sylweddoliath, s. m. (sylweddawl) Materialism.
Sylweddolrwydd, s. (sylweddawl) Substantialness.
Sylweddu, v. a. (sylwedd) To make of substance.
Sylwedduis, a. (sylwedd) Substantial; corporeal.
Sylwedduisaw, v. a. (sylwedduis) To make substantial; to become substantial.
Sylwedduisder, s. m. (sylwedduis) Substantialness.
Sylwedduisrwydd, s. (sylwedduis) Substantialness.
Sylweddwyr, s. m.—pl. sylweddwyr (sylweddwyr) One who treats of substance or matter.
Sylwi, v. a. (sylw) To observe, to regard, to notice.

Tri pheth a ddylid sylwi yn bennaf ar bob peth: anian, agwedd, a gwellthred.

Three things should be principally regarded as to every thing: nature, appearance, and action. Cefngwlad Gwynedd.

Sylwyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sylw) A pryer.

Nid sylwyn ond cybydd.

There is no one that is such a pryer as a miser. Adage.

Syll, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sy—yll) A gaze, a stare; the act of beholding; sight, view.

Syllbeiriannaeth, s. m. (syllbeiriant) The science of optics.

Syllbeiriannawl, a. (syllbeiriant) Relating to optics
Syllbeiriant, s. m.—pl. syllbeiriannau (syllbeiriant) An optical instrument.

Syllid, s. m.—pl. t. au (swll—ty) A shop. Brethyn sylld, fine woollen cloth.

Syllgar, a. (syll) Keen of sight; speculative.

Syllgarwch, s. m. (syllgar) Speculativeness.

Sylliad, s. m. (syll) A gazing, a staring; a looking, a beholding; observation.

Sylliannawl, a. (sylliant) Speculative.

Sylliannu, v. a. (syll) Observation, speculation.

Sylliaw, v. a. (syll) To gaze; to behold, to observe.

Sylliawg, a. (syll) Endued with observation.

Sylliedig, a. (syllid) Being observed; endued with observation.

Syllt, s. m. (syll) That is fair or clear; a look.

Sylltiad, s. m. (swllt) A forming a surface.

Sylltiawg, a. (swllt) Having an exterior.

Sylltiawl, a. (swllt) Of a fair exterior.

Sylltty, s. m.—pl. t. au (swllt—ty) A treasury.

Sylltu, v. a. (syllt) To make a fair surface.

Syllu, v. a. (syll) To gaze, to stare; to look; to behold; to observe. Syll di radd, behold thou yonder.

Sefwch allan farwydion a sylwch werydion Cynddylan, Llys Penegwern neu dandde!

Stand ye out virgins and behold the fair region of Cynddylan, Is it not with fame pervaded! Llywarch Hen.

Da sy well wedi sylld.

Black is better after it has been seen. L. G. Cocks.

Syllwg, s. f. (syll) An open prospect.

Syllwr, s. m.—pl. syllywyr (syll—gwr) A spectator.

Syllwydr, s. m.—pl. syllywdraun (syll—gwydr) A spyglass.

Syllwydryn, s. m. dim. (syllwydr) A spyglass.

Syllwydrwr, s. m.—pl. syllywydrwyr (syllwydr—gwr) An optician.

Syllyr, s. m. (syll) That is open or prospective.

Sym, s. m.—pl. t. iau (sy—ym) That is integral; that is whole or complete.

Digrif oeddyn o sym serch; A mela yn ymuerch.

Happy were we from the enjoyment of love; and the fair one reigning herself. D. ab Gruffyd.

Symaeth, s. m. (sym) A middle or central state; a state of ease.

Symawl, a. (sym) Integral; middling. Pe syf y wyt ti? symawl: How dost thou do? pretty well.

Symedd, s. m. (sym) An integral condition.

Symerth, s. m. (sym—erth) Integral energy; simple power.

Symiad, s. m. (sym) A rendering integral.

Symiannawl, a. (symiant) Penetrating.

Symiannu, v. a. (symiant) To penetrate; to apprehend, to comprehend.

Symiant, s. m. (sym) Penetration; apprehension.

Symiaw, v. a. (sym) To penetrate; to apprehend.

Ni sym (twyll) mo byll y byd.

Deceit will not comprehend the sense of the world. Idem. Pym.

Symiedig, a. (symiad) Being comprehended.

Symiwr, s. m.—pl. symiwr (sym—gwr) One who enters into, penetrates, or perceives.

Symyl, s. m. (sym) That is simple. a. Simple.

Symiad, s. m. (symyl) A pointing; a simplifying.

Symiant, s. m. (symyl) Pointedness, simplicity.

Symlawg, a. (symyl) Of a simple nature.

Symiedig, a. (symiad) Pointed; simplified.

Symledd, s. m. (symyl) Simplicity, plainness.

Un o dair prif orchest bardd: callyddig gyfan rolyddid ad dal nis gellir cynnwedach o'r symledd.

One of the three chief excellencies of a bard; art to easily comprehend that nothing more known can be produced as to simplicity. Idem.

Symlen, s. f. dim. (symyl) A simple one. Symlen ben bys, the name of an old tune.

Symliad, s. m. (symyl) A pointing, a simplifying.

Symliaw, v. a. (symyl) To point, to simplify.

Symlogen, s. f. dim. (symlawg) A simple female, a simple yielding girl.

Symlu, v. a. (swml) To point; also to goad.

Symlau dar ya symlu dyn.

Like points of steel goading man. Iolo Goch, 1640.

Cygu wedi symlu son

A wretched, hoarse utterance.

After driving on the talk the foolish people went to sleep. D. ab Gruffyd.

Symlyr, s. m.—pl. symlywyr (swml—gwr) One who points; a goader.

Symlyn, s. m. dim. (symyl) A simpleton.

Symlynnid, a. (symlyn) Like a simpleton.

Symu, v. a. (sym) To render integral; to become whole or complete.

Symud, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sy—mad) Motion. a. a. To move, to remove; to change place.

Symudadwy, a. (symud) Capable of moving.

Symudaw, v. a. (symud) To move, to remove.

Symudaw addol ring dryg.

To move an abode for fear of evil. Idem.

Tri pheth y sydd a maledigedig yneb e'n symu; lle dr, byt dwf, ac arwydd ffordd ac arlywyr.

There are three things that render accursed such as shall so move them; a land mark, a watercourse, and a finger-post. Cefngwlad Gwynedd.

Symudawg, a. (symud) Being moved.

Symudawl, a. (symud) Moving, moveable.

Symudedig, a. (symud) Moved, removed.

Symudedigaeth, s. m. (symudedig) A removal.

Symudedigawl, a. (symudedig) Transitive.

Symudfa, s. f.—pl. symudfeydd (symud) A transposition.

Symudfa ar dynidus a chywairdus.

A transposition of the tractions and key strings. Cordwain.

Symudiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (symud) The act of moving, a moving; transmutation; conveyance.

Symudiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (symudiad) One that transmutates.

Symadliw, a. (symud—llw) Of various shades of colours; of changing hues; shot with divers colours.

Symudoldeb, s. m. (symudawl) Moveableness.

Symudolder, s. m. (symudawl) Mobility.

Symudoli, v. a. (symudawl) To render moveable; to become moveable or transitive.

Symudolrwydd, s. m. (symudawl) Moveableness.

Symudwr, s. m.—pl. symudwyr (symud—gwr) A mover, a remover.

Symudydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (symud) A mover.

Symwl, s. pl. aggr. (sym—wl) Common primroses.

These were held in great veneration amongst the Britons, on account of their many medicinal virtues.

Symwth, a. (sy—mwth) Of interrupted motion.

Us a braw aeth yn ei bron,
Mor symwth, am all-bloss.

One became with her bosom filled with dread, so embarrassed because of the word of blossom. D. ab Edmwnd, i Foir.

Symwyl, s. m. (sym) Ample, prominent.

Symylawg, a. (symwl) Having a point or goad.

Symylen, s. f. dim. (symwl) A primrose.

Mor ddwyr a symylen.

As uncontaminated as a primrose.

Adage.

Symyld, s. m. (symwl) A goading.

Symyla, v. a. (symwl) To egg on, to goad.

Symythawl, a. (symwth) Interruptive.

Symythiad, s. m. (symwth) Interruption.

Symythu, v. a. (symwth) To interrupt; to embarrass.

Syn, s. m. (sy—yn) That is upon or with; sense, feeling, sensibility, perception. a. Feeling, sensible, of quick sensation; overcome with feeling, concerned; amazed; stunned; confounded. Newydd syn iawn yw hwn, this is very distressing news.

Gawd syn sylm anghyfaith.

A simple stranger to a language must seem confused. Adage.

Syna, v. imper. (syn) Feel, be concerned; perceive; behold.

Synaldd, a. (syn) Somewhat sensitive.

Syndawd, s. m. (syn) Sensation; amazement; concern; the state of being stunned.

Syndeb, s. m. (syn) Sensation; anxiety. Teimlwn rym syndeb yno, I felt a kind of sensation within me.

Synder, s. m. (syn) Sensation; concern.

Syndra, s. m. (syn) Sensation; perceptivity.

Synedig, a. (syn) Having the sense affected; astonished, stunned.

Synedigaeith, s. m. (synedig) Sensation; astonishment, the act of stunning.

Synedigawl, a. (synedig) Sensitive; tending to stun.

Synedigrwydd, s. m. (synedig) Sensitiveness.

Synfeddwl, s. m.—pl. synfeddyliau (syn—meddwl) Deep thought.

Synfeddyliad, s. (synfeddwl) A deeply thinking.

Synfeddylaw, v. a. (synfeddwl) To think or meditate feelingly.

Syniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (syn) Sensation, feeling. Syniad y cnawd, carnal sensation.

Tri pheth a gynnull adwyrr; syniwr, syniad, a dychwain.

Three things accumulate instruction; reason, feeling, and inclination. Berddas.

Syniadawl, a. (syniad) Sensitive; sensuous.

Syniadwy, a. (syniad) Capable of sense; sensible.

Syniannawl, a. (syniant) Sensitive; sentimental.

Syniannu, v. a. (syniant) To give sensation; to become sensitive; to be sentimental.

Syniannus, a. (syniant) Sentimental.

Syniannusaw, v. a. (syniannus) To render sentimental; to become sentimental.

Syniant, s. m. (syn) Sensation; sentiment.

Syniaw, v. a. (syn) To feel, to perceive; to be sensible; to consider; to consult; to make up the mind. Synia y tylawd, consider the poor.

Cal fawr glod er cymmodi.

Synia, iarch: canno d.

Thou shalt have great praise for becoming reconciled: think, fair one: come kiss me. Redo Brynallty.

Duw a orug y nefoedd o ddali: yr haul a'r llor ei syniant, canys hwynt a gwlant eu cych, ac a drost dracheth kido ar eu rhoddes; y ddalir ei synia, canys hi a ddwyr fwydau a'u gwreiddiau yn amserau ac yn wastad: yr afonydd ei syniant, canys hwynt a ymchwlant drachem i'r lle y llitron o hwn; y mor a'r gwynoedd ei syniant, canys hwynt a ufoleddu kido, ac orphwyssant pan i harchu kilynt yn ddiannod.

God formed the heavens in wisdom: the sun and the moon do acknowledge him, for they preserve their course, and will return again to him who gave them; the earth doth acknowledge him, for she bears fruits with their roots in season and continually; the rivers do acknowledge him, for they recur again to the place from whence they glide; the sea and the winds acknowledge him; for they submit to him, and they rest when he commands them, without delay. Enciclarus.

Syniawg, a. (syn) Having the sense affected.

Syniawl, a. (syn) Sensible, perceptive, considerate.

Syniedig, a. (syniad) Considered; perceived.

Syniedigaeth, s. m. (syniedig) The faculty of feeling or knowing by the sense; sensation; consideration; contemplation.

Syniedigawl, a. (syniedig) Cognitive, perceptive, sensitive; considerate; contemplative.

Synig, a. (syn) Having a sensation.

Synigl, s. m. (synig) That stimulates, or eggs.

Syniglaw, v. a. (synigl) To agitate, to stimulate.

Synigliad, s. m. (synigl) A stimulation.

Syniolaeth, s. m. (syniawl) Perceptivity.

Synioldeb, s. m. (syniawl) Sensibility; perceptibility; consciousness; contemplation.

Syniolder, s. m. (syniawl) Sensibleness.

Synioldra, s. m. (syniawl) Sensibleness.

Synioledd, s. m. (syniawl) Considerateness.

Synioli, v. a. (syniawl) To render sensible; to become sensible or considerate.

Syniolrwydd, s. m. (syniawl) Considerateness.

Synu, v. a. (syn) To observe or to look stedfastly; to beware; to be affected; to be amazed, or surprised; to be overpowered with feeling; to be stunned. Syni pan welai di fo, thou wilt be astonished when thou seest it; tarawai fi onid oeddw yn synu, he struck me so that I was stunned.

Synwr, s. m.—pl. synwyr (syn—gwr) One whose sense is affected or looks astonished.

Synwyr, s. m.—pl. t. au (syn—gwr) Rational sense, wit; meaning. Synwyr pen, synwyr cyffredin, common sense.

Nid dysg heb synwyr.

There is no learning without sense.

Adage.

Gwell synwyr na chyfoeth.

Wit is better than wealth.

Adage.

Tair colofn synwyr; eglurich, llamder, a chysawnder.

The three supports of sense; perspicuity, amplitude, and justness. Berddas.

Y llyn dyfnaf o'r afon.

Deaf as half yw ei son.

Y deuth ni ddywed a wrr;

Nid o son y daw synwyr.

The deepest pool in the river, the least in the summer month its noise: the wise stutters not all he knows; it is not from noise that sense proceeds.

Que. ab Iwan Hen.

Synwyradd, a. (synwyr) Sensible, rational.

Synwyrw, v. a. (synwyr) To endue with sense, to make rational; to become sensible or rational; to gather sense.

Brenin myr a wrr a'm synwyrto!

The sovereign of mobilities and stars, may he endue me with sense! Neillor ab Gwethnos.

Trawd angen ferus fadden fyddan;
Ira by yw pob dyn os sygyrtau;
Trymder Lacifer's i losa affan.

Pierced by death's dying shafts they will be; bold to exclaim are all men that they will not think of the sad state of Lacifer with his pang of conflict. Carnodyn.

Synwyrwl, a. (synwyr) Sensible, rational.

Nid synwyrwl ond cydwybodus;
Nid cydwybodus ond cywir.

There is none available but the conscientious; no one is conscientious but the equitable. Adage.

Synwyrbell, a. (synwyr—pell) Of profound sense

Synwyrbwl, a. (synwyr—pwl) Dull-witted.

Synwyrdeb, s. m. (synwyr) Sensibleness.

Synwyrddig, a. (synwyr) Being endowed with sense

Synwyrddoeth, a. (synwyr—doeth) Sensibly wise

Synwyrdeb, s. f. (synwyr) A sentence; a paragraph

Synwyrredd, s. m. (synwyr) Rationality.

Synwyrreg, s. f.—pl. t. au (synwyr) A complete expression of the sense, or a sentence.

Synwyrfa, s. f. (synwyr) A sensory.

Synwyrfas, a. (synwyr—bas) Shallow-witted.

Synwyrfawr, a. (synwyr) Pregnant with sense.

Synwyrfael, a. (synwyr—cael) Wit-acquiring.

Synwyrfael, a. (synwyr—call) Keen-witted.

Synwyrgar, a. (synwyr) Sententious.

Synwyrgarwch, s. m. (synwyr) Sententiousness.

Synwyrroll, a. (synwyr—roll) Reason-losing.

Synwyrriad, s. m. (synwyr) An enduring with sense; a becoming rational.

Synwyrriawn, a. (synwyr) Pregnant with sense.

Synwyrhym, a. (synwyr—llym) Sharp-witted.

Synwyrroldeb, s. m. (synwyrwl) Sensibleness, the state of being endowed with good sense.

Synwyrrolder, s. m. (synwyrwl) Sensibleness.

Synwyrrodded, s. m. (synwyrwl) Sensibleness.

Synwyrroli, v. a. (synwyrwl) To render sensible; to become sensible or rational.

Synwyrroliad, s. m. (synwyrwl) Sensualization.

Synwyrrolrwydd, s. m. (synwyrwl) Sensibleness.

Synwyrus, a. (synwyr) Sensible, discreet.

Synwyrusaw, v. a. (synwyrus) To render sensible; to become sensible.

Synwyrusdra, s. m. (synwyrus) Sensibleness.

Synwyrusrwydd, s. m. (synwyrus) Sensibleness.

Synwyrwan, a. (synwyr—gwan) Weak-witted.

Syriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (swp) A heaping, or squeezing together; a bundling; a bunching.

Syriaw, v. a. (swp) To heap or squeeze together; to bundle or lap together; to form into a bundle or heap. Mi dy syriaf di, I will squeeze thee to a mummy.

Syriawl, a. (swp) Tending to heap or press together; being made into a bundle.

Syriedig, a. (syriad) Being bundled together.

Syriwr, s. m.—pl. syriwyr (swp—gwr) One who heaps or bundles together.

Sypyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (swp) A small bundle or packet; a little heap or mass.

Sypyniad, s. m. (sypyn) A forming a bundle.

Sypynn, v. a. (sypyn) To form a bundle.

✓ Syr, s. pl. aggr. (inflection of ser) The stars.

Trefnast sy'r a myr morawl dylan;
Trefnast dalar lawr a'i chlawr schlan.

Thou hast regulated stars and fluctuations of ocean tide; thou hast regulated the ample earth, and its surface all complete. Carnodyn.

Syrch, s. m. (serch inflected) Appulsion; approach; desire, affection, love.

Syrchawl, a. (syrch) Tending to cause desire.

Syrchiad, s. m. (syrch) A causing desire or love.

Syrchu, v. a. (syrch) To cause approach; to fill with desire; to cause love.

Syrn, adv. (inflection of swrn) Partly, half. Syn deg, tolerably fair; synr dabyg, somewhat like synr galed, rather hard; synr gryf, pretty strong.

Syrniad, s. m. (swrn) A forming into small shares. Syrnu, v. a. (swrn) To divide into parts.

Syrnyn, s. m. dim. (swrn) Some quantity, a very little, ever so little.

Syrth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (swrth inflected) A fall, a chance, a lot; a sort; inclination, propensity; also the offal, small parts, or cuttings of a carcass, as the feet, head, entrails, and the like. a. Falling, inclining, or steep. Goeddi syrth, after the fall.

A dim syrth nid ymserthna.

With any propensity I would not demean myself.
Rhys ab Rhys Brydd.

Tri pheth o'n deall a barant hoddwch: syrth nain, bust of lawnder, a llafur gwirionedd.

Three things from being understood will produce sense: the tendency of nature, pursuit of equity, and the promulgation of truth. Bardic.

Amcan cerdd, o bob rhyw a syrth, yw hysguddu ddiol a phryd; ac amhau doethineb.

The design of poetry of every kind and tendency, is to culpr the understanding and mind; and to increase wisdom. Bardic.

Syrthfa, s. f.—pl. syrthfeydd (syrth) Fallen state.

Cofnais hofyd y cariad, yr hwn a ddangosai i mi, pan y tynai of a allan o syrthfa pechawd.

I have remembered too the love, which he showed to me, when the drew me out from the fallen state of sin. Marchion Croydd.

Syrthiad, s. m. (syrth) A falling, a tumbling.

Syrthiadwy, a. (syrthiad) Capable of falling.

Syrthiannawl, a. (syrthiant) Of a falling tendency

Syrthiannu, v. a. (syrthiant) To render of a falling tendency; to become apt to fall.

Syrthiannus, a. (syrthiant) Of a falling tendency.

Syrthiant, s. m. (syrth) A falling; propensity.

Syrthiaw, v. a. (syrth) To fall, or to tumble.

Syrthiad mewn o gwall.

Evil wish is made to fall from the bosom. Adage.

Yna y syrthiwyd y gwyr brathodig yn mallu y hoddwedd, mgyr y syrthiad yd y cynnau, pan fyddant y myddwyr de y mgyrion.

Then the wounded men were falling amongst the both, in the corn of harvest might fall, when the skilled reapers were over them. Gr. ab Idris.

Cydwybod ian a gan yn ber,
Pan syrthio'r ser i'r ddalar.

A clear conscience will sweetly sing, when others shall fall to ward the earth. Iolo Morgannwg.

Syrthiawl, a. (syrth) Falling, or tumbling.

Syrthiedig, a. (syrthiad) Fallen, or tumbled.

Pawb a'i droed ar syrthiedig.

Every one with his foot on the fallen. Adage.

Syrthineb, s. m. (syrth) Propensity, tendency.

Syrthiwr, s. m.—pl. syrthiwr (syrth—gwr) One who falls or tumbles down.

Syrthini, s. m. (swrth) A heavy or unwieldy state; listlessness, torpidity.

Nid diogt ond syrthiad;
Nid syrthiad ond pechawd.

The essence of listlessness is torpidity; the essence of torpidity is sin. Adage.

Syth, s. m. (sy—yth) The state or quality of being stiff, rigid, or erect; that has a tendency to stiffen; that is put up, set, or erect; also size, or cement, as glue, starch, or paste; a stiffening.

Deigie'n nos, dwy ginn syth
Difan wyt, dan dda syth.

Draw nearer, with thy two optable cheeks, disengagedly thou art throwing thy slaver. Gr. Gryg, i. p. ab Idris.

Syth, a. (sy—yth) Stiff, rigid; being set or put up; erect, upright; disdainful.

*Sythaf ac uridaf, mewn gordwy, o'm lath,
All Math mab Mathonwy.*

The stout erect and most honourable, in the post of danger, of any who speak my speech, like Math son of Mathonwy.
Gw. Trw.

Sythadwy, a. (syth) Capable of being made stiff, or rigid; capable of being made erect.

Sythaw, v. a. (syth) To stiffen with size; to cement

Sythawl, a. (syth) Tending to make stiff, or rigid; tending to erectness; perpendicular.

Sythdant, s. m.—pl. sythdannau (syth—tant) A string that is of sharp discordancy.

Sythdeb, s. (syth) Stiffness, rigidity; erectness

Sythder, s. m. (syth) Stiffness, rigidity; erectness.

Sythdoes, s. m. (syth—toes) Patty.

Sythdra, s. m. (syth) Stiffness, rigidity, erectness

Sythedig, a. (syth) Stiffened; being made erect.

Sythedd, s. m. (syth) Stiffness, rigidity; erectness

Sythfalch, a. (syth—balch) Rigidity—proud.

Sythfachedd, s. m. (sythfalch) Stiff pride.

Sythi, s. m.—pl. t. on (syth) That stiffens or keeps erect; a beam in a building.

Sythiad, s. m. (syth) A rendering stiff, or rigid; a setting upright; a becoming erect, or perpendicular.

Sythiannawl, a. (sythiant) Tending to stiffness, or rigidity; tending to erectness.

Sythiannu, v. a. (sythiant) To render of a stiff quality; to tend to erectness; to become of a stiff or rigid nature.

Sythiant, s. m. (syth) A stiffening; erection, or a setting upright.

Sytholdeb, s. m. (sythawl) A tendency to rigidity; a tendency to erectness.

Sytholder, s. m. (sythawl) A tendency to be stiff; a tendency to erectness.

Sytholdra, s. m. (sythawl) A tendency to stiffness; a tendency to be erect.

Sytholedd, s. m. (sythawl) A tendency to stiffness; a tendency to erectness.

Sytholi, v. a. (sythawl) To render, or to become of a stiff tendency; to tend to erectness.

Sytholrwydd, s. m. (sythawl) A tendency to stiffness; a tendency to erectness.

Sythrwydd, s. m. (syth) Stiffness, erectness.

Sythu, v. a. (syth) To stiffen, to make rigid or erect; to put up, or to set erect; to stiffen with size; to starch; to become erect.

Sythus, a. (syth) Of a stiffening quality; tending to erectness.

Sythusaw, v. a. (sythus) To render of a rigid quality; to tend to erectness; to become of a rigid quality.

Sythusdeb, s. m. (sythus) A tendency to be stiff; a tendency to erectness.

Sythuder, s. m. (sythus) A tendency to be rigid; a tendency to erectness.

Sythudra, s. m. (sythus) Aptitude to be stiff or rigid; aptitude to erectness.

Sythusedd, s. m. (sythus) Aptness to be stiff; tendency to erectness.

Sythsarwydd, s. m. (sythus) A tendency to stiffness; a tendency to erectness.

Sythwr, s. m.—pl. sythwyr (syth—gwr) One who makes stiff, rigid, or erect; one who becomes rigid or erect.

Syw, s. m. (sy) That is circling, stated, or regular. a. Constant, stated, regular; trim, smart

Nid syw ond y hi.

There is nothing so smart as the magpie.

Adage.

Gores bod—

Morwyn y syw.

It is best for a maid to be smart.

Caing Ddoeth.

Dewi mawr Mynyw syw sywedydd.

Great Dewi of Mynyw a constant observer of the stars.

Y daeth i Fynyw syw synwras.

There came to Mynyw constant intellects.

Mab Sant syw gormant, gormes haint ni ad.

The son of Sant of constant platitude, no affliction of pestilence will be suffer to remain.

Gw. Brycheiniog, i Ddewi.

Y Hoer—

Molannu yw ei syw swydd.

The moon, praiseworthy in her constant duty.

D. ab Gwilym.

Sywdeb, s. m. (syw) Constancy; statedness; regularity; trimness, smartness.

Sywder, s. m. (syw) Constancy; smartness.

Sywdra, s. m. (syw) Constancy; smartness.

Sywed, s. m. (sy—gwed) Astronomy.

Sywedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (sywed) A speaker of the stars; an astronomer; an astrologer.

Ni chais sywedydd yn unfren.

An astronomer will not be restricted to one breast.

Adage.

Talhalarn y sydd

Mynyw sywedydd.

Talhalarn is the greatest astronomer.

Tellicin.

Selyf swynedig sywedydd,

Mab gwledig gorllawr gwarthegydd.

Selyf the ennobled astronomer, the son of a sovereign the possessor of immense herds.

Mirgwn, m. Cynddylan.

Selyf ben sywedyddion.

Selyf the chief of astronomers.

Ll. P. Moeb.

Sywedyddawl, a. (sywedydd) Astronomical.

Sywedyddiaeth, s. m. (sywedydd) Astronomy.

Sywiad, s. m. (syw) A rendering uniform; a trimming, a making smart.

Sywiaw, v. a. (syw) To make uniform; to trim.

Sywiach y llyseuall—

Sywiach, didrwyllwch dreulwydd.

Trim ye the herbaceous hay—trim ye, nip ye off the tops of the thorn-woods.

Edm. Prya.

Sywiawl, a. (syw) Tending to render regular.

Sywidw, s. f. (sy—gwid) A titmouse; also called yswidw, and yswigw.

Sywidw, ho ydydd

Wes y dryw, a'i sawdlwr wyd.

The titmouse, there below thou art the servant of the wren, and his soddier too art thou.

Guto y Glyn.

Sywin, a. (syw) Reing in constant turning.

Sywinaw, v. a. (sywin) To use continually.

Sywinaw yr arian yn ddin.

To dissipate the money to nothing.

Adage.

Sywiniaid, s. m. (sywin) A continually using.

Sywydd, s. m.—pl. t. on (sy—gwydd) Star-knowledge.

A'm swynwys sywydd

Sywyddon.

I have been made safe from harm by the astrology of astrologers.

Tellicin.

Sywyddaw, v. a. (sywydd) To study star-knowledge; to astrologize.

Sywydd sywedydd;

Ercwiff sywedd.

The astrologer death astrologize; Ercwiff was regulated.

Tellicin.

Sywyddawl, a. (sywydd) Having star-knowledge.

Sywyddiad, s. m. (sywydd) An astrologizing.

T.

T A C

TA, s. m. r. That spreads or extends onward; a superior or supreme one. Y ta wrddawl, the noble superior.

Tab, s. m. (ta—ab) A spread over; a surface.

Tabar, s. m.—pl. tebyr (tab—ar) A tabard.

Tabar hir tew i barus.

A long tabard, thick to last.

T. Alod, em wa.

Y celynlwyn—

Tew byr-walk was tabar-wydd.

The holly-bush, a thick short-haired youth in green tabard.

D. ab Gwilym.

Tabwrdd, s. m.—pl. tabyrddau (tab—gwrdd) A labour, a drum.

Tabyrddawl, a. (tabwrdd) Tabouring; drumming

Tabyrddiad, s. m. (tabwrdd) A tabouring.

Tabyrddu, v. a. (tabwrdd) To tabour; to drum.

Tabyrddwr, s. m.—pl. tabyrddwyr (tabwrdd—gwr) A tabourer; a drummer.

Tacl, s. m.—pl. t. au (tag) That combines; an instrument, or tool.

Taclau, s. pl. aggr. (tacl) Implements, tackling; accoutrements, equipage, furniture.

Taclidig, a. (tacl) Being put in repair.

Tacliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tacl) A repairing.

Taclu, v. a. (tacl) To put in order, to accoutre; to dress, to deck, to trim; to repair, or to set right.

Taclu melin, to repair a mill; taclu esgidiau, to mend shoes.

A daclwy a gerddwys.

He that hath made ready hath set off.

Adaf.

Taclus, a. (tacl) Being in order; accoutred; trim, neat, or tidy; complete. Dynes daclus iawn yw hi, she is a very tidy woman; dyna i fi dro taclus, there is for you a pretty piece of business.

Taclusaw, v. a. (taclus) To put in order; to set to right; to render neat or tidy.

Taclusedr, s. m. (taclus) Orderliness; neatness.

Taclusedra, s. m. (taclus) Orderliness; neatness.

Taclusedd, s. m. (taclus) A compact state.

Taclusiad, s. m. (taclus) A putting in order; a repairing; a smartening up.

Taclusiant, s. m. (taclus) The act of putting in order, or repair.

Taclusrwydd, s. m. (taclus) Orderliness; neatness

Tacluswr, s. m.—pl. tacluswyr (taclus—gwr) One who puts in good order or repair.

Tach, s. m. (ta—ach) That spreads, vanishes, or is diffused.

Tachwedd, s. m. (tach—gwedd) A receding appearance, a tending to a conclusion; an end or annihilation; a somewhat, a little quantity, or space; a remnant; also the month of November. Tachwedd a eriant, a small sum of money; tachwedd a yd, a small quantity of corn; amser tachwedd, the time of receding, or latter end of the season, the time of fattening cattle; that is from midsummer to the winter solstice.

*Pan amsw Tegingl, aeg gwedd,
Oedd trawer trawyd tachwedd;
Oedd trawid cyfawid cochwedd
Cleddyfai rian dywal diwedd!*

When he defended Tegingl, of splendid course, great beyond bounds appeared destruction; there was rapidly seen the interchange of red status from the lacerant sword-strokes of ruthless termination.

Cyddleir, i O. Gwynedd.

T A D

*Llyr hydra y gwyn, add gwyd, cer Aeror,
Cawredd gymhlyg;
Lloegrwys dachwedd arfoddyd,
Llaif auctym yn agrym, yn agryd.*

A court conspirator for resort; not of vice, by Aeror, of noble concern; its maxim is the extermination of the Aeror, with the ardently keen blade in energy, is the conflict. Hydr.

Tachweddawl, a. (tachwedd) Tending to an end.

Tachweddian, s. m. (tachwedd) A causing to disappear; a bringing to an end; a determining.

Tachweddau, v. a. (tachwedd) To cause to disappear; to bring to an end; to terminate.

*Llyr oia aer fwyngddol, a'r freiddde fruder;
Llawch feirdd, lor angor Eirgl dachwedd.*

Dreadful as Llyr in the precipitously-deep slaughter, with the black overwhelming added; he protects the hawk the daily chief exterminating the Angles. G. ab M. ab Dyfod.

Tad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ta—ad) That spreads a continuity; a father. Tad a mam, father and mother; tad cu, a father of fondness, an epithet for tad, or grandfather, in some parts of Wales; but in some districts of Powys tad da, or good father, is a grandfather, and tad cu, a great grandfather, or hondad, and hondad cu, is a gorhendad, or great great grandfather. Tad gwyn, a stepfather, in North Wales, but the same as tad cu, in parts of the South: Tad yn nghyfraith, a father in law; tad bedydd, a godfather.

Nid cyngor oed tad.

There is no counsel like a father.

Adaf.

Llaw gub yn llwys o ddad.

The hand of a son in the skirt of his father.

Adaf.

Tadaeth, s. m. (tad) Fatherhood, paternity.

Tadaidd, a. (tad) Fatherly, or paternal.

Tadawg, a. (tad) Having a father; patronal.

Tadawl, a. (tad) Belonging to a father; fatherly; paternal, patronal.

Alectus oedd yn llynddala: yn gwasgathu gwyth i'r addid ddwyaw.

Alectus was in London holding a festival to the tutelary god.
G. ab Idris.

Tadenw, s. m.—pl. t. au (tad—gwr) Patronymic.

Tadenwawg, a. (tadenw) Patronymical.

Tadenwawl, a. (tadenw) Patronymical.

Tadenwawl, a. (tadenwawg) Patronymical.

Tadiad, s. m. (tad) A fathering; a becoming a father.

Tadladd, s. m. (tad—ladd) A father-killing.

Tadladdawl, a. (tadladd) Parricidal.

Tadleiddiad, s. m. (tadladd) A killing a father.

Tadleiddiadawl, a. (tadleiddiad) Parricidal.

Tadmaeth, s. m. (tad—maeth) A foster-father.

Tadmaethawl, a. (tadmaeth) Belonging to a foster-father.

Tadmaethu, v. a. (tadmaeth) To act as a foster-father; to become as a foster-father.

Tadogaeth, s. m. (tadawg) Paternity, or fatherhood; also the origin of a word, etymology.

Tadogaethawl, a. (tadogaeth) Belonging to paternity; etymological.

Tadogaidd, a. (tadawg) Fatherly in a small degree.

Tadogair, s. m.—pl. tadogairia (tadawg—gair)
A radical word, or etymon.

Tadogawl, a. (tadawg) Paternal, patronymic.

Tadogi, v. a. (tadawg) To assign a father to; to have a father.

Tadolaid, a. (tadawl) Somewhat fatherly.
Tadoldeb, s. m. (tadawl) Fatherliness, paternity.
Tadolli, v. a. (tadawl) To become fatherly; to become a father.

Tadolliad, s. m. (tadawl) A rendering fatherly or paternal; a becoming paternal.

Tadolliath, s. m. (tadawl) Fatherhood.

Tadu, v. a. (tad) To father; to become a father.

Tadus, a. (tad) Paternal, or fatherly.

Taduswr, v. a. (tadus) To render fatherly; to become fatherly.

Tadusodd, s. m. (tadus) State of being fatherly.

Taduswydd, s. m. (tadus) Fatherliness.

Tadws, s. m. (tad) The sire of an animal.

Tadwy, s. m. (tad) Paternal; tutular.

*Mo'r fydd llywyd llywyd llaw dadwy;
 Mo'r swag pob chwag pan chwagwy.*

So prosperous will be the tranquillity of the paternal hand; so regalant will be every sweet when it becomes bitter.

Cynddelw.

Tadwys, s. m. (tad—gwys) A fatherhood, a father's side, connexion, or kindred.

O'n ddyys corau Llundain, ac y deyrwialen, o'r Seoton, Dyffwal Moelmuad odd frein ar yr ymys hoes; a mab odd eife i farli Cernys, o ferch brein Lloegr; a gweli diffodol tadwys y frein-iaeth y cofa yntau y deyrnas o gogel wrth fod yn dyr i frein.

Before the crown of London, and the sceptre, were taken by the Saxons, Dyffwal Moelmuad had been king over this island; and he was son to the earl of Cornwall, by a daughter of the king of Loegrin; and after the paternity of the sovereign power had become extinct he then obtained the kingdom by the staff, as being the grandson of a king.

Welsh Laws.

Tadwysiad, s. m. (tadwys) The obtaining or arriving at the state of fatherhood.

Tadwyslaw, v. a. (tadwys) To form a fatherhood.

Tadwyslawi, a. (tadwys) As to a fatherhood.

Taen, s. f.—pl. t. ion (ta—en) A spread; a sprinkle; a layer. Taen ioniar, the spread of a wave.

Taenadwy, a. (taen) Capable of spreading or diffusing; expansible.

Taenawd, s. m. (taen) Expansion; respiration.

Taenawl, a. (taen) Spreading, expansive.

Taenedig, a. (taen) Expanded; sprinkled.

Taenedigaeth, a. m. (taenedig) Expansion.

Taenell, s. f.—pl. t. au (taen) A small spread; a sprinkle; a small layer.

Taenellaidd, a. (taenell) Somewhat sprinkled.

Taenellawg, a. (taenell) Having a sprinkle.

Taenelledig, a. (taenell) Besprinkled, aspersed.

Taenelliad, s. m. (taenell) A sprinkling, a strewing.

Taenelliedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taenelliad) A sprinkler, one who strews.

Taenella, v. a. (taenell) To sprinkle, to besprinkle, to asperse, to strew.

Taenellwr, s. m.—pl. taenellwyr (taenell—gwr) One who sprinkles, or strews.

Taenellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taenell) A sprinkler.

Taenfa, s. f.—pl. taenfydd (taen) A spread of hay. Dyfed. The llanerch of N. Wales.

Taenferw, a. (taen—berw) Spreadingly boiling.

*Gwag ddechawg, eberw, celmyg;
 Llwg golau tanu taenferw gwenig.*

An aspect void of wantonness, courteous, magnificent, like the light hue of the breakings of the expandingly boiling waves.

Carnodyn.

Taeniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (taen) A spreading.

Taeniator, ger. (taeniad) In expanding.

Taenitor, sup. (taen) To be expanding.

Taenotor, sup. (taenawd) To be expanded.

Taenu, v. a. (taen) To spread, to expand; to sprinkle; to become spread, or scattered.

Taenu y gwely, to make the bed; lledu y gwely, Gwent; and cywetrilaw y gwely, in N. Wales.

Taenwr, s. m.—pl. taenwyr (taen—gwr) A spreader; a strower; a resperer.

Taenydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taen) A spreader.

Taer, s. m. (ta—er) The state of being eager, ardent, urgent, or importunate.

Taer, a. (ta—er) Eager, earnest, ardent, urgent, importunate.

*Taer rhygyl tryt tly anghaf;
 Diffrwd tost yw dy fryd tan!*

An urgent messenger art thou, oh death! severely bent on ruin is thy design.

Rhyg Junc.

*A drwg Mon, mor ddur ei eadwydd yn aer,
 Y ba laryng taer, a knor ho!*

With the dragon of Mon, so bold his kindred in the slaughter, there was urgent tumult and insatiable claim.

Gwalchmet.

Taeraidd, a. (taer) Somewhat eager or urgent.

Taerannog, s. m. (taer—annog) Eager excitement. v. a. To excite urgently.

Taerawg, a. (taer) Being eager; importunate.

Taerawydd, s. f. (taer—awydd) Ardent inclination.

Taerawl, a. (taer) Apt to be eager, or urgent.

Taerboen, s. f.—pl. t. au (taer—poen) Severe pain.

Taerdeb, s. m. (taer) Eagerness, earnestness.

Taerder, s. m. (taer) Eagerness; importunity.

Taerdra, s. m. (taer) Eagerness; ardency.

Taerdrais, s. m. (taer—trais) Violent oppression.

Taerdyn, a. (taer—tyu) Violently straining.

Taerdyniad, s. m. (taerdyn) A pulling ardently.

Taerdynu, v. a. (taerdyn) To pull ardently.

Taerddadl, s. f.—pl. taerddadlau (taer—dadl) An eager or violent dispute.

Taerddadliad, s. m. (taerddadl) A vehemently disputing; ardent disputation.

Taerddadlu, v. a. (taerddadl) To dispute violently.

Taerddymunaw, v. a. (taer—dymunaw) To desire earnestly.

Taerddymuniad, s. m. (taer—dymuniad) A desiring earnestly; an ardent desire.

Taeredig, a. (taer) Being eagerly disposed.

Taerodd, s. m. (taer) Eagerness, earnestness, ardency, vehemency; importunity.

Taererchi, v. a. (taer—erchi) To crave earnestly.

Taerfaith, a. (taer—maith) Ardently continuing.

Taerfalch, a. (taer—balch) Ardently proud.

Taerfalch fal Gwalchmai.

Ardently proud like Gwalchmai.

Cynddelw.

Taerfar, s. m. (taer—bar) Ardent wrath. Torf taer/er, a host of ardent wrath.

Taerferw, a. (taer—berw) Violently boiling.

Taerferwi, v. a. (taerferw) To boil violently.

Taerflin, a. (taer—blin) Severely tiring.

Taerflinaw, v. a. (taerflin) To tire severely.

Taergais, s. m. (taer—cals) An eager attempt.

Taergeisiad, s. m. (taergais) A trying eagerly.

Taergeisiaw, v. a. (taergais) To try eagerly.

Taergwyn, s. f.—pl. t. ion (taer—cwyn) An earnest or vehement complaint.

Taergwynaw, v. a. (taergwyn) To complain earnestly.

Taeriad, s. m. (taer) An acting eagerly in opposition; an insisting; a contending.

Taeriant, s. m. (taer) Importunity; contention.

Taerlew, a. (taer—glew) Ardently persevering. Taerlew bar, an ardently driving shaft.

Taerloes, s. f.—pl. t. au (taer—gloes) A severe pang.

Taerui, s. m. (taer) Eager opposition; importunity.

Taeru, v. a. (taer) To act with eagerness; to aver or to affirm vehemently, to insist; to contend.

Taerwr, s. m.—pl. taerwyr (taer—gwr) One who importunes; a contender.

Taerwres, s. m. (taer—gwres) Ardent heat.

Taerwrya, s. m. (taer—gwrys) Fierce contention.
Taeth, s. m. (ta—eth) That pervades; essence.
Taethawl, a. (taeth) Essential; fertilizing.
Taethedig, a. (taeth) Rendered of a fertilizing quality.
Taethiad, s. m. (taeth) A rendering of a fertilizing quality.
Taethu, v. a. (taeth) To render fertilizing.
Taethus, a. (taeth) Essential; fertilizing.
Taf, s. m.—pl. teifion (ta—af) A spread.
Tafad, s. m. (taf) A spreading; extension.
Tafal, s. f.—pl. tafeli (taf) A balance.

*Michael, dirgel ei dal,
 Dyfod a win o'r dafal.*

*Michael, with veiled front, come he will with the balance.
 Meth. ab Ilywelyn Goch.*

Tafar, s. m. (taf) That spreads or displays.
Tafarch, s. m. (taf—arch) A cricket bat. Pel dafarch, a cricket ball.
Tafarn, s. f.—pl. t. au (taf—arn) A tavern.
Tafarnud, s. m.—pl. t. au (tafarn—ty) A tavern.
Tafarnwr, s. m.—pl. tafarnwyr (tafarn—gwr) A tavern-keeper.
Tafarth, s. m. (tafar) That is spread or laminated.
Tafawd, s. m.—pl. tafodau (taf) A tongue. Tafawd drug, a scolding; tafawd clock, a bell clapper; Tafawd yr hydd, the sole fish; tafawd yr ych, the burt fish:—Also the name of many plants—Tafawd y bwch, or tafawd yr afr, common viper's bugloss; tafawd yr hydd, hart's tongue; tafawd y ci, broad-leaved pondweed; tafawd yr ych, tafawd y fawch, borage; tafawd yr oen, hoary plantain; tafawd y llew, bristly ox-tongue; tafawd y march, horse tongue; tafawd y neidr, adder's tongue; tafawd yr eden, common stitchwort; tafawd yr heddydd, larkspur; tafawd yr wydd, sneeze-wort yarrow; tafawd yr ych anwyw, evergreen alkanet; tafawd yr ych culddail, small bugloss.

Gores gwraig, gwraig heb dafawd,

The best wife is a wife without a tongue. Adage.

Do daist ring tafawd.

The teeth are good to stop the tongue. Adage.

*Un o dri ddefnyddion cerdd a chesawd roeddi y Cymry:
 Gwyddon Ganebon, a wmi gwrdd dafawd gynaf o'r byd.*

One of the three improvers of science and the art of composition of the nation of the Cymry: Gwyddon Ganebon, who was the first in the world that made vocal song. Barddas.

Tafawdlyg, a. (tafawd—llyg) Of slow moving tongue; plaintive.

*Yn ffridd cyrdd cerdd dafawdlyg,
 Yn bryddyd, yn brifardd dyg.*

In the ways of songs of the plaintive muse, a poet, a primary bard of learning. Cynddelw.

Tafawl, a. (taf) Spreading, expanding; an epithet for the various kinds of the dock plant. Dail tafawl, dock leaves; tafawl y mor, golden dock; tafawl y dafwr, tafawl hirion, great water-dock; tafawl mair, tafawl cochion, tobacco; tafawl newydd, gwelld newydd, new herbage. Welsh Laws.

Tafell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (taf) Any flat mass, piece, or spread, a tablet; a slice. Tafell o fara, a slice of bread.

Rhol y dorth a gofyn y dafell.

To give a loaf and ask for the slice. Adage.

Plu Maf caf welod ban yn—Dyfod dan wyrddion dafyll.

The mouth of May I shall see the maid resting under green foliage. D. ab Gwilym.

Tafellau, s. f. dim. (tafell) A small slice.

Tafellawg, a. (tafell) Being in thin masses; being in slices.

Tafelliad, s. m. (tafell) A spreading into a thin mass; a slicing.

Tafellu, v. a. (tafell) To form into a slice or flat mass; to slice; to spread as foliage.

Tafel, s. m.—pl. tafelan (taf) A spread, a cast; a throw, a sling; a balance. Ffon dafel, a sling; tafelau, a pair of scales.

Tafellawg, a. (tafel) Capable of being thrown down.

Tafelan, s. f.—pl. tafeleni (tafel) A balance.

Tafellawd, s. f.—pl. tafellodydd (tafel) A spread, or covering; a roof; the space next to the roof in a building; a loft, a garret. Tafellawd y genau, the roof of the mouth; tafellawd weir, a hay-loft; tafellawd ier, a hen-roost.

Tafellawg, a. (tafel) Having a throw; projectile.

Tafellu, s. f. (tafel) That serves for throwing.

Tafedig, a. (tafel) Being thrown, or flung.

Tafediggaeth, s. m. (tafedig) The act of throwing; projection; interjection.

Tafedigawl, a. (tafedig) Tending to throw.

Tafellodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taffiad) A hurler, a singer.

*Tithau—
 Tafellodydd, defnyddiwyd da,
 Brath y ffeidr.—*

Those too, the singers, with well-seasoned wood, went to thief. D. ab Gwilym, on Rhy Gwyn.

Tafien, s. f.—pl. t. au (tafi) That is spread out; a tablet; a table of figures.

Tafienawli, a. (tafien) Tabular.

Tafieniad, s. m. (tafien) A tabulation.

Tafienu, v. a. (tafien) To tabulate.

Taffiaen, s. m.—pl. taffienni (tafi—maen) A hurling stone.

Taffihual, s. m.—pl. t. au (tafi—haal) The genus of a hawk.

Y penabogdydd a ddytly groen hydd, yr hydref, ac y gwyrdd groen ewig, i wneudher masgwrth arwein o adur, a th hualau.

The chief falconer ought to have a stag skin in summer, and in the spring the skin of a doe, to make gloves for trying to take and for grooves. Welsh Laws.

Taffiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tafi) A throwing.

Taffielydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taffiad) A thrower.

Taffihual, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tafi—neth) A projectile power.

Taffiodawl, a. (taffiad) Interjective.

Taffodi, v. a. (taffiad) To interject.

Taffodiad, s. m.—pl. au (taffiad) Interjection.

Taffirwyd, s. f.—pl. t. au (tafi—rhwyd) A casting net.

Taffrym, s. m. (tafi—grym) Projectile force.

Tafu, v. a. (tafi) To throw, to cast, to fling, to hurl, to project. It is synonymous with lathu, bwro, luchlaw, taennu.

Mai dail yn taffu o fon.

Like the blind throwing his staff. Adage.

Gwell march hagr a'm dyco na march teg a'm taffu.

Better is an ugly horse that will carry me than a fine horse that will throw me. Adage.

Taffwr, s. m.—pl. taffiwr (tafi—gwr) A thrower.

Taffydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tafi) A thrower.

Tafodgaeth, s. m. (tafawd) Language.

Tafodawg, a. (tafawd) Having a tongue.

Tri pharff dafodogaeth llyu: arghwydd, brudwr, a march.

The three primary speakers of a court: the lord, the justice, and the bail. Triwedd Dafodogaeth.

Tafodawl, a. (tafawd) Belonging to the tongue.

Tafodi, v. a. (tafawd) To tongue; to use the tongue; to scold.

- Tafodiad, s. m. (tafawd) A tonguing.
Tafodiaeth, s. m. (tafawd) The action of the tongue, articulation of the voice; enunciation.
Tafodiawg, a. (tafawd) Having a tongue, tongued; having a good tongue; an epithet for an advocate or pleader; also for a single verbal evidence.
Tafodlalar, a. (tafawd—llafar) Articulated or expressed by the tongue.
Tafodlleferydd, s. m. (tafodlalar) Articulation of the tongue; a speaking out, or by rote; verbal evidence. Dywedw ar tafodlleferydd, say it off by heart.
Tafodogaeth, s. m. (tafodawg) The use of the tongue.
Tafodrudd, a. (tafawd—rhudd) Red-tongued; in the laws, an accessory to murder by information of the one to be murdered.
Tafodruddiaeth, s. m. (tafodrudd) A red-tongued act; a felonious information.

Cyfaif o naw afbaid galanaw yw tafodruddiaeth: mynegi y neb a luddir i'r neb a'i lloddio.

The first of the nine abetments of felony is the reddening of the tongue: the informing of the one to be slain to him who shall slay him. Welsh Laws.

- Tafodrwym, a. (tafawd—rhwym) Tongue-tied.
Tafodrydd, a. (tafawd—rhydd) Loose-tongued.
Tafodrydd-deb, s. m. (tafodrydd) Freedom of tongue.
Tafodrydd-der, s. (tafodrydd) Freedom of tongue.
Tafodrydd-dra, s. m. (tafodrydd) Freedom of tongue.
Tafodwr, s. m.—pl. tafodwyr (tafawd—gwr) One who uses his tongue.
Tafodwst, s. m. (tafawd—gwst) The tongue disease, incident to cattle, which swells the tongue so as to cause suffocation. It is called y bothell, in South Wales.
Tafodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tafawd) One who uses his tongue; a declaimer.
Tafolawg, a. (tafawl) Abounding with docks.
Tafolen, s. f. dim. (tafawl) A dock leaf: tafolen gach, or tafolen waeddyd, bloody-veined dock; tafolen grych, curled dock; tafolen mair, or trygthon, sharp dock.
Tafoll, v. a. (tafawl) To grow dock leaves.
Tafu, v. a. (taf) To overspread, to spread.
Taffithlen, s. f. dim. (ta—ffithlen) A glider.
Tag, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ta—ag) The state of being stuffed, or clogged; a strangle. Tag aradr, restharrow, or cammock; also called hwp yr ychais, and teguch meinwen.
Tagadwy, a. (tag) Capable of being choked.
Tagawl, a. (tag) Clogging; strangling.
Tagedig, a. (tag) Clogged; strangled, choked.
Tagedigaeth, s. m. (tagedig) The act of clogging; a choking.
Tagedigawl, a. (tagedig) Obstructive; strangling.
Tagell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (tag) A barb, any thing growing to the throat; a double chin; a dewlap; a wattle.
Tagellaid, a. (tagell) Tending to form a double chin; somewhat like a dewlap.
Tagellawg, a. (tagell) Barbed; having a double chin; having a dewlap, or wattle.
Tagelliad, s. m. (tagell) A forming a double chin; a forming a dewlap, or wattle.
Tagellu, v. a. (tagell) To make a double chin; to grow as a double chin, dewlap, or wattle.
Tagellwag, a. (tagell—gwag) Having an empty or loose double chin.

VOL. II.

Tagfa, s. f.—pl. tagfeydd (tag) An obstructed place; an obstruction; a stiffing, a strangling, a strangle, a choke.

Tagfagl, s. f.—pl. t. au (tag—magl) A springe.

Tagiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tag) A choking.

Cafas tagiad ei saw o herwydd ei fod yn atai cywdrant a thyniad ryw amser pan ddol mewn cerdd.

The clagging had its name on account of its stopping the key note and the drawing sometimes when it occurs in music. Cerddorfaeth.

Tagiant, s. m. (tag) A clogging; a choking.

Taglys, s. m. (tag—llys) Small bindweed: taglys yr yd, black bindweed; taglys mawr, great bindweed; also called tagwydd.

Tagu, v. a. (tag) To obstruct, to stop or clog up; to stifle, to strangle, to choke.

Bradd yw mygu i dagu.

Suffocation is brother to choking.

Adage.

Tagwr, s. m.—pl. tagwyr (tag—gwr) A choker.

Tagwydd, s. m. (tag—gwydd) Great-bindweed.

Tagwyg, s. m. aggr. (tag—gwyg) Tafted vetch.

Tai, s. m.—pl. teiau (ta) A stretch or a reach; the state of being stretched or at rest; the state of being held or possessed; also houses, used for the regular plural tyau.

Taiad, s. m. (tai) An overspreading; an enclosing, Talaw, v. a. (tal) To spread over; to close in.

Taiawg, a. (tai) Having an overspread; rustic, rude; having land on servile tenure. s. m.—pl. taiogion. A vassal, a villain, tenant in villanage; a tike, a churl, a husbandman, a peasant. Dyn taiawg, a clownish person.

Taiawg y bydd taiawg cyd be coronawg.

The clown will be clownish though he should wear a crown.

Adage.

Tratun byw y taiogaw, ac ac marw, a ddaw i'r macr ac y caug-bellawr.

The third of the live-stock of the villanage, and of their dead-stock, shall come to the steward and the chancellor.

Welsh Laws.

Tail, s. m. (ta—il) A spreading or growing principle; the surface of the earth, or soil; manure; dung, muck.

*Yn ei arch a'i dywarcheo
Dan y tai, mac'r dwned hen.*

In his shrine with his clod, beneath the soil, the ancient lore is put. Ieuan Madawg, m. Syr D. Trefor.

Tain, s. m. (ta—in) That is of a spreading quality.

*O fyg dy werin tain tawch
Dy heddiant, Daw, dy heddwch.*

From amongst thy people the disposition of the mist will be thy merit, God, thy peace. H. D. ab Ijan.

Taiogaeth, s. m. (taiawg) Vassalage.

Taiogaidd, a. (taiawg) Somewhat rustic.

Taiogdref, s. f.—pl. t. i (taiawg—tref) A villain-town.

Tair rhandir a fydd yn y dalogdref, yn mhob un o'r ddwy y bydd tri taiawg; a'r drydedd yn borth lldynt.

There shall be three sharelands in a villan town; in each one of the two there shall be three villanage; and the third shall be a pasture for them. Welsh Laws.

Taiogawl, a. (taiawg) Appertaining to a villain.

Taiogeiddiad, s. m. (taiogaidd) A rendering rustic; a becoming rusticated.

Taiogeiddiaw, v. a. (taiogaidd) To render rusticated; to become rusticated.

Taiogeidd-dra, s. m. (taiogaidd) Rusticity.

Taiogeiddrwydd, s. m. (taiogaidd) Boorishness.

Taioges, s. f.—pl. t. au (taiawg) A rustic female.

Taiogi, v. a. (taiawg) To make rustic; to become rustic.

Taiogrwydd, s. m. (taiawg) Boorishness, rusticity.

Gwell bonedd na thaiogrwydd.

Nobility is better than boorishness.

Adage.

Taiogyn, s. m. dim. (talawg) A rude fellow.
Taid, s. m.—pl. teidian (ta—id) That has spread a contingency; a grandfather. But in parts of Powys, and South Wales, taid is a great great grandfather; in others it is a father in the fifth degree, hendaid in the sixth, and gorhendaid in the seventh degree: See Tud.—Taid a wain, a grandfather and grandmother.

Tair, s. f. (ta—ir) Three of feminine gender. a. Three, speaking of females. Tair merch, tair o ferched, three women.

Tair ffynnon gwybodaeth: crabwyll, ystyriaeth, a dysgeidiaeth.
The three fountains of knowledge: imagination, meditation, and learning. Borladas.

Tairth, s. m. aggr.—pl. teirthion (tarth) An agree.
Tais, s. f.—pl. teision (ta—is) That spreads round; a cover, a dais, a canopy; a cake.

Taith, s. f.—pl. teithiau (ta—ith) A journey.

Cam droes y trothwy yw hanner y dailth.

A step over the threshold is half the journey. Adage.

Mehan a ddyl ei dailth.

Mehan deserves his journey. Adage.

Taiwr, s. m.—pl. taiwyr (tai—gwr) A rustic man.

Brad werthu ei bryd i wr

A fwyddal fwyd taiwr.

It was deceitful to sell his meal to a man who would eat the food of a ploughman. Syr Lewis Mowday.

Tal, s. f.—pl. t. ion (ta—al) A space spread out or over; that is even or clear; clearance; pay, reward, requital; an equivalent, or value. Pa a dal hwna? what is the value of that?

Llynn Forfudd ddilledryw,
A gaf o dai: godd yw.

Behold, Morfudd of undebared race, what of recompence I get: it is grief! D. ab Gwilym.

Dyston y'n cael dalion!
Dydd tal yw pob dydd i ti.

The multitudes are receiving benefit; a day of payment is every day to thee. Hyweli ab Reinalt.

Tâl, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ty—al) That is over, that tops, that is fronting, or upon; a front; the forehead. a. Towering; tall. In the names of places it answers to end; as Tal-y-Bont, Bridgend: In the names of men it denotes front; as Taliesin, Fair-front; Talarian, Silver-front; Talkaiarn, Iron-front.

Flawd pawb yn ei dâl.

Every body's fortune is in his forehead. Adage.

Dy lewyth, ddyn dâl ewyn,
Dy gorff a lunlodd Duw gwyn.

'Twas heav'n thy form, thy bloom, that gave,
Thy forehead like the foamy wave. S. Tudgr.

Telysior tâl awenydd,
Trythaw beirdd mewu traethau bydd.

The harper, bleat with lofty muse,
The bard is in briny floods imbued. Guto y Glynn.

O deir-lith y gwneaf darlawn clod Efa,
O dalau India hyd wai Llundain.

In three lectures I will read the praise of Efa, extending from the frontiers of India to the wall of London. L. G. Colki.

Talad, s. m. (tâl) To elevate; to grow tall.

Taladwy, a. (tal) Capable of being paid; payable.

Cusan cariad taladwy
Cefais: ni ddymunais mwy.

A kiss or due to faithful love
She gave; for that alone I strove. S. Tudgr.

Taladdurn, s. m.—pl. t. au (tal—addarn) A front ornament; a moulding.

Taladdurnaw, v. a. (taladdurn) To adorn the front.

Taladdurnawg, a. (taladdurn) Having an ornamented front.

Taladdurniad, s. m. (taladdurn) An adorning the front.

Talaeth, s. f.—pl. taleithiau (tâl) A front region; a frontier; a province, or dependent territory.

Ynys Prydain a gyancell dda'n goron a thair talaeth.

The Isle of Britain is held under one crown and three principies. W. G. Llew.

Talaidd, a. (tâl) Somewhat high; tallish.

Talals, s. f. (tal—ais) An empaneled jury.

A drudddeg o bryddion,
Yn dalals deg, dilyn dea.

With twelve poets, a fair jury, of certain voice. W. G. Llew.

Talals o wyr maintoli,
Trefn hardd, rhwng 'y mardd a mi.

A jury of men of property, a fair order, between my lord and me. Edm. Pry.

Talaith, s. f.—pl. taleithion (tâl—ait) A band worn round the head; a frontlet, a headband; a chaplet; a radial crown; a diadem.

Talar, s. f.—pl. taleri (tâl—ar) A headland in a field, at the end of ridges; a cross-ridge.

Talarawg, a. (talar) Having cross-ridges.

Talarriad, s. m. (talar) A forming cross-ridge.

Talaru, v. a. (talar) To form cross-ridges.

Talarw, a. (tâl—garw) Roughly fronted.

Telidw yn nghyngraia yn aghyfaen bwyd, ni reysyl cer grydder lorynt yn fuan.

The rough-fronted ones in the martial struggle of the short or the battle, the front of the gold-covered shield they would quickly break. O. Cyfrilung.

Talau, v. a. (tâl) To make high; to grow tall.

Talawd, s. m. (tal) A payment, a requital.

Talawdr, s. m.—pl. talodron (talawd) A payer.

Talawg, a. (tâl) High-fronted; bold-faced.

Talawr, s. m. (tal) One who makes equable; a rewarder; a payer.

Ef tarddo talawr,
Tarddod nef i lawr.

When the remunerator shall appear let the heavens appear below. Taliesin, ardded dydd.

Talben, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tal—pen) A settled price or standard value. In order to adjust transactions of barter, the law affixed to every thing a settled mean value; and if any article gives in payment fell short of its standard, the deficiency was made good in money.

Talbenig, a. (talben) Of current value. Talbenig- ion, things of standard value.

Eiddon a dalu ddog ar ugalut yw bryn talbenig;—dal yn ni ni benig, gwartheg heb dderchafael gydag llywod o bryn brydd.
An ox that is worth thirty pence is a kind of standard value.
Kine of standard value are those with which an advancement is made of fine-qualifying money. W. G. Llew.

Talbenigiad, s. m. (talbenig) A regulating to a standard value.

Talbenigiaw, v. a. (talbenig) To regulate to a standard value; to become of standard value.

Talbenigrwydd, s. m. (talbenig) The state of being of standard value.

Talbennu, v. a. (talben) To set a mean price.

Talbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (tâl—pren) A front log, or a stock of wood placed behind the fire; the same as talpentan.

Talcen, s. m.—pl. t. i (tâl—cen) The fore part or end of anything; the forehead; the end, of a building; the head, of a barrel, and the like.

Nid edrych angus pry draf ei talcen.

Death doth not regard who hath the fairest forehead. Adage.

Gradd pob un yn ei talcen.

Every one's condition is in his forehead. Adage.

Talcenawg, a. (talcen) Having a fore part or end; having a forehead; ample-fronted.

Talcenawl, a. (talcen) Relating to the fore part or end; belonging to the forehead.

Talcenbad, s. m. (talcen) A forming a forepart or end; a forming a forehead.

Talcennu, v. a. (talcen) To form a fore part or end; to form a forehead; to butt with the forehead. Talcennu ty, to raise the gable end of a house; talcennu bari, to put in the end of a barrel.

Talch, s. m.—pl. teilchion (ta—alch) A piece, a fragment, any thing broken; grist, or coarse meal. Dyna fo wedi tori yn deilchion man, there it is broken all to shatters.

Talchaidd, a. (talch) Somewhat broken or brayed.

Talchawg, a. (talch) Consisting of broken parts.

Talchedig, a. (talch) Made into fragments; fractured. Talchedigion, broken things.

Talcheiddiad, s. m. (talchaidd) A rendering somewhat broken; a rendering half broken.

Talcheiddiaw, v. a. (talchaidd) To render somewhat broken; to become partly broken.

Talcheiddrwydd, s. m. (talchaidd) A half broken state or condition.

Talchiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (talch) A making into fragments; a shattering.

Talchu, v. a. (talch) To fract, to break in pieces; to make grit.

Talchwyr, s. m.—pl. talchwyr (talch—gwr) A man who fracts; a shatterer; one who makes grit.

Talchydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (talch) One who brays; a shatterer; one who makes grit.

Taldal, a. (tal repeated) Being front to front.

*A'm dalaidd, be hawdd, bu hy,
Daldal yn aghosgi y daldal.*

He that caught me, if easy, was bold, tele-a-tele in the corner of the bow. D. ab Gwilym.

Talder, s. m. (tâl) Loftiness; tallness, stature.

Taldra, s. m. (tâl) Loftiness; tallness, stature.

Taldrwch, s. m.—pl. taldrychion (tal—trwch) bushiness, of the front; a forelock. a. Of front thickness; front-covered. Gwallt taldrwch, hair that is thick over the forehead.

Talddrws, s. m.—pl. talddrysau (tâl—drws) A front door.

Pentecost a ddyly cledod ar y tâl laf i'r newadd, ag ei law sawy ar y talddrws.

The patron of the family ought to sit at the lower end of the hall, with his left hand towards the front door. Welsh Laws.

Taledig, a. (tal) Being paid; required, rewarded.

Taledigaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (taledig) Payment, remuneration.

Taledigawl, a. (taledig) In a course to be paid; remunerative.

Taleithiad, s. m. (talaeth) A forming a province.

Taleithiaw, v. a. (talaeth) To form a province.

Am lunaw gwr yn mlaen, gynt, leds lwyth a daleithiaw.

For producing a man to lead, of yore, the tribe of Iuda they formed into a principality. R. Brynnaug.

Taleithiawg, a. (talaith) Wearing a diadem. s. m. One who wears a princely crown.

Tri thaleithiawg end Ynys Prydain: Trystau mab Talach, Hnall mab Caw, a Chai mab Cynyr Ceinfarchiawg; ac an oedd dabeddiawg arneddyt hwyntu i'n tî. Bedwyr mab Pedrwg oedd hwyntu.

The three diademed chiefs of the Isle of Britain; Trystau son of Talach, Hnall son of Caw, and Chai son of Cynyr the Splendid Knight; and one was a diademed chief over them three; this was Bedwyr son of Pedrog. Triad.

Faleithiawl, a. (talaeth) Being provincial.

Faleithiedig, a. (talaith) Diademed.

Faleithig, s. f. dim.—pl. t. ion (talaith) A fillet, a bandlet; a bandlet, in heraldry.

Faleithydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (talaeth) A provincial.

Talfa, s. f.—pl. talfeydd (tâl) A front place; a pediment; a projection.

Talfawg, a. (talfa) Having a pediment.

Talfædig, a. (talfa) Pedimented; projected in front.

Talfainc, s. f.—pl. talfainciau (tâl—mainc) A front form; a throne.

*Holl Ffrainc, ei thalfainc, ei thir,
A'i choros uwch a yrir.*

*All France, her throne, her wide domain,
And crown, will higher honour gain.*

S. Tudyr.

Talfedel, s. f. (tâl—medel) Garden angelica.

Talfodau, s. pl. aggr. (tâl—blodau) Festoons.

Talfodenwaith, s. m. (talfodau—gwaith) Festoon-work.

Talfodenyn, s. m. dim. (talfodau) A festoon.

Talfoel, a. (tâl—moel) Having a bald front.

Talfoeledig, a. (talfoel) Being grown bald-fronted

Talfoledd, s. m. (talfoel) A bald-fronted state.

Talfoeli, v. a. (talfoel) To render bald-fronted; to become bald-fronted; to expose the front.

Talfoeliad, s. m. (talfoel) An exposing the front.

Talfoelni, s. m. (talfoel) Front-baldness.

Talfrith, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tâl—brith) A variegated front. a. Of many-coloured front.

*Arwr a dwy ysgwydd y dan
Ei dalfrith, ag all tair Pryddan,
Bu trydar yu herfre, bu tan,
Bu ehad wasawer bu bean.*

*His painted front on ample shoulders soars,
Which marks the hero, swifter in his course
Than Pryddan, when the sound of war he hears,
And sees the thick incessant gleams of spears.*

Anacrin.

Talfrithaw, v. a. (talfrith) To adorn the front.

Talfrithawg, a. (talfrith) Of variegated front.

Talfrithedig, a. (talfrith) Front-painted.

Talfrithiad, s. m. (talfrith) A variegating the front

Talfrw, s. m.—pl. t. an (tâl—briw) A front wound or cut. a. Having a cut or bruised front.

*Llo melliethon cein-gatrawd rwydd rielle,
O Ddindwydd yn nysn-wydd o'n dyfnu,
Ysgwyd rygn ring tarw trîu talfrw fu.*

*Our faithful band in martial pomp array'd
Went'd from Dindwydd's deep and woolly glade, Clash'd front-brust'd shields before the bull of war.*

Anacrin.

Talfrwaw, v. a. (talfrw) To cut or hurt the front.

Talfrwiedig, a. (talfrw) Front-bruised.

Talfrwiad, s. m. (talfrw) A cutting the front.

Talfrwdd, s. m.—pl. talfrwddau (tâl—bwrdd) The front or upper table in a hall.

Talfyr, a. (tâl—bŷr) Short-fronted, short towards the front; brief, abrupt.

Talfyradwy, a. (talfyr) Capable of being fore-shortened; recissable.

Talfyredig, a. (talfyr) Foreshortened; abridged.

Talfyredigaeth, s. m. (talfyredig) The act of fore-shortening; abridgment.

Talfyredigawl, a. (talfyredig) Tending to fore-shorten; abbreviative.

Talfyriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (talfyr) A foreshortening; abbreviation; recission.

Talfyrn, v. a. (talfyr) To foreshorten; to abridge.

Talfyrwr, s. m.—pl. talfyrwr (talfyr—gwr) A foreshortener; an abbreviator.

Talfyrwyn, s. f.—pl. t. i (tâl—ffrwyn) The front-stall or fillet of a biddle.

Talgainc, s. f.—pl. talgeinciau (tâl—cainc) A browantler.

Talgeinciad, s. (talgaic) A forming browantlers.

Talgeinciau, v. m. (talgaic) To form browantlers.

Talgeinciawg, a. (talgaic) Having browantlers.

Talgell, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tâl—cell) A pantry.

Talgellawg, a. (tagell) Having a pantry.

Talgrib, s. f.—pl. t. au (tâl—crib) The frontboard that holds the spindle of a spinning-wheel.

Talgron, s. f.—pl. talgryniion (tâl—cron) That is round fronted; an abrupt turn; an inflection.

a. Front-turning; inflective. Sain dalgron, an inflective sound, a diphthong: Talgron gadr, of strong inflection, as gwaw; talgron ledde, of soft inflection, as how; talgron fud, mutely inflective, as gwyw; talgron gota, of short inflection, as marw; talgron wib, of transitive inflection, as gwawed.

Talgrwn, s. m.—pl. talgrynlion (tâl—crwn) That is round-fronted; precipitance. a. Precipitate, straightforward.

Oed a'm rhan—
A wnaethwn yn dalgrwn deg.

An assignation with my love I made
Straightways to meet her in the shelter'd glade.

D. ab Owilym.

Talgrych, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tâl—crych) A rough front; a wrinkled front. a. Rough-fronted; frowning. Dyna genawon talgrychion, those are rough-headed whelps.

Dirfald, nid telaid, talgrych wythlonder.

Mischievous, not comely, is rough-fronted cruelty.

Canvodyn.

Talgrychedd, s. m. (talgrych) Rough-fronted state
Talgrychiad, s. m. (talgrych) A ruffling the brow, a frowning.

Talgrychni, s. m. (talgrych) Roughness of the forehead.

Talgrychu, v. a. (talgrych) To knit the brow.
Talgrychwyr, s. m. talgrychwyr (talgrych—gwr) One who knits his brows; a frowner.

Talgryf, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tâl—cryf) That is hard-fronted. a. Hard-fronted; impudent.

Talgryfion a chaled-galon ydynt hwy.

Impudent ones and hard-hearted are they. Ezekiel 3. 7.

Talgrysfaad, s. m. (talgryf) A rendering impudent; a becoming impudent.

Talgrysfau, v. a. (talgryf) To render impudent; to have effrontery.

Talgrysfer, s. m. (talgryf) Effrontery.

Talgrynadwy, a. (talgrwn) Capable of inflection; capable of abbreviation.

Talgrynedig, a. (talgrwn) Inflected; abridged; precipitate; without hesitation.

Talgrynawl, a. (talgrwn) Inflective; precipitate.

Talgryniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (talgrwn) A rounding the front; inflection; precipitation.

Talgrynu, v. a. (talgrwn) To inflect; to precipitate.

Talgrynrwydd, s. m. (talgrwn) Roundness of front; aptness for inflection; promptness.

Gwedi dysylu eall y ffydd—y mae yn dysgu pawb i rodiaw mewn talgrynrwydd cydwybod.

After comprehending the ground-work of faith, every body becomes instructed how to walk in rectitude of conscience.

W. Salisbury.

Talgrynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (talgrwn) An inflector; an abbreviator; that precipitates.

Talgudyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (tâl—cdyn) A fore-lock; a love-lock. Hardded ei thalgudynau arianf, How beautiful her silver fore-locks.

Talgudynawg, a. (talgudyn) Having fore-locks.

Talgwn, s. m. (tal—own) A high front. a. High-fronted.

Talgynawd, s. m. (talgwn) Erection of the front.

Ni bu cyfergyriad, ni bu gynnwys
Talgynawd Urien y rhag f'owys.

He was not an aggressor, the uplifted front of Urien appeared not before Powys.

Taliesin.

Talgynedig, a. (talgwn) Being with elated front.

Talgynu, v. a. (talgwn) To uplift the front.

Taliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tal) A clearing, discharging, or paying; payment; remuneration.

Taliadawl, a. (taliad) Tending to clear, or to pay off; remunerative.

Taliadu, v. a. (taliad) To make a clearing or payment; to make a remuneration.

Taliant, s. m. (tal) A payment; requital.

Taliator, ger. (taliad) In paying; in requiring.

Talitor, sup. (tal) To be paying; to be requiring.

Talm, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (talym) Any thing that comes on abruptly; an impression; a short space, a while, a good while; a small quantity; a some, or somewhat; much, a rage of any thing in motion; a clap of thunder. Pa sut yr wyt er ys talm? How art thou since this good while? Ni welais i muni er ys hi dalu o amser, I have seen nothing of her for this long space of time: Nid oes digym o delu arno, there is not the least impression upon him: Mwy o dalu, more by much.

Sakh aml i gadw talu e'n tir.

Seven psalms to keep security from our land.

Gr. Hurwath.

Nawdd y peugwastrawd yw byd y parlo talu y march cydal
New, byd i'r parlo rodder y march bannad.

The protection of the hand-groom in whilst the course of the quickest horse shall continue: Or, whilst the run of the fastest horse continues.

W. Ch. Llew.

Ond talu gwedi, sef yn y chweched oes, newidid agwys i'r aln ei haderf.

But a short space after, that is in the sixth age, the church's Rome changed its practice.

C. Edwards, B. y Rhyl.

Talmedig, a. (talma) Interrupted; broken off; concluded.

Talmedd, s. m. (talma) Interruptedness.

Talmeithr, s. m. (talma—either) That is exempt from interruption. a. Uninterrupted.

Talmiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (talma) An affecting a coming on suddenly; a cessation.

Talmig, a. (talma) Having a course, having a sudden impulse; freakish. Talwmus talmig, a freakish domestic.

Talmu, v. a. (talma) To cause to come on abruptly; to be abrupt; to make impression, to move, to work upon; to assign a course or range; to make summary or brief; to draw to a conclusion, to draw to an end; to be at an end. Wys yn talmu ar hennaint, I am drawing to an old age: Wysf er dalumu, I am just at an end.

Nid yw yn talmu ar fy nghalon, byd y dydd deddfu, i mi holl.
It is not impressive upon my heart, to the present day, that I have obtained.

A. Trefn.

Talmus, a. (talma) Tending to break off.

Talmyrth, s. m. (talma—yrth) That suddenly strikes upon; an impression.

Talogi, v. a. (talawg) To render high-fronted; to become high-fronted or bold.

Talogiad, s. m. (talawg) A making haughty.

Talogrwydd, s. m. (talawg) Haughtiness.

Talon, s. m. (tâl) The protuberance of the belly.

Talp, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tâl) A mass, a lump, a piece. Prynu wrth y talp, prynu wrth y llaw, prynu yn y crynwith, prynu yn y cyfan, to buy by the lump, or piece.

Talpen, s. f. dim. (talp) A knoll, a knob.

Talpiad, s. m. (talp) A making into lumps.

Talpiaw, v. a. (talp) To form into lumps.

Talpiawg, a. (talp) Being in lumps.

Talpiedig, a. (talp) Broken into masses.

Talpentan, s. m. (tal—pentan) The fire-back.

Talrwn, s. m.—pl. talrynlion (tâl—grwn) A head ridge in a field, or a headland.

Talryniad, s. m. (talrwn) A forming a headland.

Talryniaw, v. a. (talrwn) To form a headland in a field.

Talrynllawg, a. (talrwn) Having a head ridge.
Talo, v. a. (tal) To make even or clear, to discharge, or to pay; to requite, to reward; to be worth; to answer a purpose. Os pryni hwn cei dalu amdano, if thou buyest this thou shalt pay for it: Pa á dal hwna? What is that worth? Pa beth a dal son am hyn? What is the use of talking about that?

Gwel y peth ai thal ei olyn.

It is a poor thing that is not worth asking for. Adogr.

Y gwlaw a'r hinoon a dalant yn gywir y nallir i'r lall.

The rain and the fair weather will repay equitably the one to the other. Adogr.

A foretold tale I crythawr.

He who dances let him pay the odder. Adogr.

Talwg, a. (tâl-gwg) Toweringly frowning.

*—Ar bob ty talwg
 Smaetall lle mawn mwg.*

On all highly-frowning houses chimneys where smoke generates. Iolo Goch i Iys G. Ghandwr.

Talwng, s. f. —pl. t. oedd (tâl-gwng) What is worn on the forehead, a head-dress.

Talwr, s. m. —pl. talwyr (tâl-gwr) A person who requites; a payer.

Talwrn, s. m. —pl. talyrnau (tâl-gwrn) What projects forward.

Talym, s. m. —pl. talmau (tâl) Any thing that comes on abruptly; an impression; a short space, a while; a good while; a small quantity; a some, or somewhat; a range of anything in motion; a clap of thunder. Nô buast yma er ys talu, then hast not been here for this good while.

*Oedd cywir ei alr erioed;
 Oedd hael talym ddrws tchid.*

Ever equitable was his word; he was the generous one of a period unobscured and splendid. Prydydd Bychan, m. Bledodyn.

Tall, s. m. (ta—all) A spread out or over.

Tallawg, a. (tall) Being spread out or over.

Talliad, s. m. (tall) A spreading out or over.

Tallu, v. a. (tall) To make a spread out or over.

Tallwch, s. m. (tall) The state of being spread.

Tam, s. m. —pl. t. ion (ta—an) A stretch over so as to take in; as much as can be bitten off; a morsel, a bite.

Hoff tam mab ni charer.

Sweet is the morsel of a child disliked. Adogr.

Nid tam o glaw ameth.

Not a morsel of a ploughman's dinner. D. ab Owilym.

Tama, s. m. (tam) Hard food, or that is to be masticated, as bread and flesh; and what is taken with it, as butter and the like, is called enllyn.

Coll—

El thymyr tlawd, a'i thama,

At chaws, drwg yw gnaws a'i gwas.

Losing her poor estate, her bread, and her cheese, and is the condition that is the cause. Madawg Drygryg.

Tamaid, s. m. —pl. tameidiau (tam) The quantity taken by a bite, a morsel, a bit, a bite, or mouthful. Bu raid iddo hwi ei damaid, he was obliged to beg his subsistence: Yr wyf yn braff dy damaid, thou goest on with ample bite, or with good appetite: Hwda damaid, take a bite: tamaid y cythraul, devil's bit scabious.

Bara ac ymenyn yw un tamaid.

Bread and butter make one morsel. Adogr.

Tameidiad, s. m. (tamaid) A forming a morsel; a breaking off a morsel.

Tameidiaw, v. a. (tamaid) To break into mouthfuls, to make morsels, to take bites; to bite off a morsel.

Tameidiawl, a. (tamaid) Like a mouthful.

Tameidiwr, s. m. —pl. tameidiwyr (tamaid—gwr) One who takes a mouthful.

Tameidyn, s. m. dim. (tamaid) A little mouthful.

Tamiad, s. m. (tam) A forming into bits.

Tamig, s. m. dim. —pl. t. ion (tam) A small morsel or bite.

Tamigaw, v. a. (tamig) To take a nibbling bite; to nibble; to nib.

Tamigawl, a. (tamig) Nibbling; nipping.

Tamigiad, s. m. —pl. t. an (tamig) A nibbling.

Tammorth, s. m. (tam—porth) Maintenance.

Neid angus Ffreuer a'm de hrood:

Am damborth brodyrdd,

Dihunaf, wylaf fore!

How the death of Freuer makes me solitary to-night! For the sustenance of the community, I will be awake, I will early weep. Llywarch Hen.

Near syllals i ddinile Ffrecon!

Ffreuer werydre

Hlirreth am damborth brodyrdd!

Have not I gazed on the camp plot of Wrecon! The fair patriotism of Freuer regrets the lost sustenance of the community. Llywarch Hen.

Tamp, s. m. (tam) That is pervasive.

Tampawg, a. (tamp) A fit of passion or anger.

Gochel y tampawg tros awr; gochel y gwedust tros fywyd.

Avoid a passion fit for an hour; avoid babbling for even. Adogr.

Tampr, s. m. —pl. tampran (tamp) A taper.

Maeddi hi of a thampwr cwr, can nid oedd wilien gentl, oai oeth ei enaid ohono agwra.

She did heat him with a wax taper, not having a stick by her, so that his soul went out of him almost. Bardd. y Sacron.

Tampriad, s. m. (tampr) A forming a taperlight; a burning as a torch.

Tampru, v. a. (tampr) To make a taper light; to burn as a torch.

Tamyn, s. m. dim. (tam) A small bit or morsel.

Tan, s. m. —pl. t. an (ta—an) An expanding principle; a cause of expansion; fire.

Awen heb ddoethineb, tan yn llaw ffolleth.

Talent without wisdom is a fire in the hand of folly. Adogr.

*Tri pheth cyd ar eu cymysg: tan, aed grolenn; ddiell, aef gwirionedd; ac enaid, aef byrd: a gorlod a wnant ar bob peth;
 ac yna divedd arodd.*

Three things are on their increase: fire, which is light; intellect, which is truth; and soul, which is life: and they will overcome all things; and then there will be an end of the inchoative state. Barddas.

Tri char-elys dyn: tan, dwfr, ac arglwydd.

The three cherished foes of man: fire, water, and a governor. Ceryn Ddoeth.

Tan y cy gorfforawl; ac ni allai gyfryw hyn boeni jedydd.

The fire is material; and what is of such a nature could not torment a spirit. Hanes Owid.

Tân, s. m. (ty—an) A spread or expansion; continuity. a. Spreading; flat, low; continuous. prep. To, till, until, as far; under, beneath, below. ad. Along; under. Tân yr oes hon, till this age; tân ammod, under covenant; y gorau tân hawl, the best under the sun. A verb, of the infinitive mood, preceded by tan, forms a participle. Dyna hi yn nysed tân ganu, there she is going singing along.

Prodded ni's parodd hi

Tan ael an tan eleni.

Dejection she has not caused beneath one brow until this year. W. Wyn.

El blwyf, yn gwbl ofeg,

Yw ei lu, dan ei law deg.

His parish, with entire concern, is his host, under his fair hand.

L. G. Coll, i Syr H. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Tanaf, pronom. prep. (tân) Under me. Tanaf, under thee; tano, under him, or it; tani, under her; tanom, under us; tanock, under you; tan-ynt, tanaddynt, under them. See Am prefixed to it, in amdanaf.—Maent yn codi dani, they are making an insurrection.

Y Deau, bid byd y bo,
A dwy Wynedd y deuo.

The South, as long as it endures, and the two Gwynedd, be they under him.

L. G. Cuth.

Tanadwy, a. (tan) Ignitable; capable of being fired
Tanaidd, a. (tan) Somewhat fiery, partly fiery.
Tanawg, a. (tan) Abounding with fire.
Tanawl, a. (tan) Expansive; igneous, fiery.

A dan yr enaint hwaŵ y gosodir ef dan heb ddifoddi byth, yn wreiddon nac yn lludw; namyn pan ddechreuai ddifoddi yna eil-waith ydd ymchwial yn danolion.

Under that action he placed a fire over without being extinguished, in sparks nor in ashes; but when it should begin to be extinguished, then again it would return in fiery particles.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Tanawl, a. (tan) Spreading, expanding.
Tanbaid, a. (tan—paid) Having the expansive power stopped; violent, vehement, fervent.
Llosgi yn danbaid, to burn vehemently; dyn tanbaid, a passionate man.

Y bwa—

Tanbaid ei naid yn ei ol;
Tanbeidiach no'r tan bydol.

The bow, violent its bound in returning: more violent than the natural fire.

T. Ald.

Tanbeidiad, s. m. (tanbaid) A rendering violent or vehement; a becoming violent.
Tanbeidiaw, v. a. (tanbaid) To render violent or ardent; to become violent.

Tanbeidiawl, a. (tanbaid) Of a violent tendency.
Tanbeidrwydd, s. m. (tanbaid) Violence.
Tanbeiriant, s. m.—pl. tanbeiriannau (tan—peiriant) A fire-engine.

Tanboer, s. m. (tan—poer) A spitfire. a. Fire-spitting.

Tanboerawl, a. (tanboer) Fire-spitting.
Tanboeri, v. a. (tanboer) To spit fire.
Tanboeriad, s. m. (tanboer) A spitting of fire.
Tanboerwr, s. m.—pl. tanboerwyr (tanboer—gwr) One who spits fire.

Tanc, s. m. (tan) A state of expansion; space; an unobstructed state; ease; a tranquil state; peace

Archaf danc cys tranc, trwy arbïoled.—

I crave for peace before dissolution, through intercession.

L. P. Mack.

Tair ciwdaud nawdd a ddaethant i Ynys Prydalo; ac yn nhanc a cheud cenedl y Cymry i ddynt, beb arf, heb bawd; cyntaf oddi ciwdaud Celyddon yn y Gogledd; ail oedd yr al Wyddyl, ac yn yr Alban y mae; trydydd, gwyr Galedin, a ddynt yn y llongau moelion hyd yn Ynys Wyth, pan soddas eu gwlad.

The three tribes of refuge who came to the Isle of Britain; and under the peace and consent of the nation of the Cymry did they come, without weapon, without assault; the first was the tribe of Celyddon in the North; the second was the primitive Gwyddelians, and in the Alban they remain; thirdly, the men of Galedin, who came in the bare ships to the Isle of Wyth, when their country was inundated.

Tricodd.

Tancwd, s. m. (tân—cwd) The scrotum.
Tanchwa, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tan—chwa) Fire blast, the fire damp, or noxious vapour in mines.
Tanchwydd, s. m. (tan—chwydd) An inflammatory swelling.
Tandawd, s. m. (tan) Ignition; a conflagration.
Tanddaiar, s. m. (tân—daiar) Subterranean.
Tanddaiarawg, a. (tanddaiar) Subterranean.
Tanddaiarawl, a. (tanddaiar) Subterraneous.

Pan yw yn enw yr leuol bob giliu bygu, yn gystal i'r nefollon, a dderollon, ac i danddaiarollon.

That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, as well of things in heaven, and things in earth, and of things under the earth.

W. Salisbury.

Tanddaiaroldeb, s. m. (tanddaiarawl) Subterraneousness; an under-ground state.

Tanddaiaroll, v. a. (tanddaiarawl) To render subterraneous; to become subterraneous.

Tandde, s. m. (tan—de) That is pervaded by fire; an inflammation.

Y gisarilys sy dda rhag tandde a gurus.

The brooklime is good against inflammation and heat.

L. Meddygionach.

Tanddewin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tan—dewin) One who divines by fire.

Tanddewiniad, s. m. (tanddewin) A divining by fire.

Tanddewiniaeth, s. m. (tanddewin) Pyromancy.

Tanddewiniaw, v. a. (tanddewin) To divine by fire.

Tanddodi, v. a. (tân—dodi) To place under.

Tanddodiad, s. m. (tân—dodiad) A placing under.

Tanddodyn, v. a. (tân—dwyn) To subduce.

Tanddygai, s. m. (tanddygyd) A subtrahend.

Tanddygiad, s. m. (tân—dygiad) Subduction, subtraction.

Tanddygyd, v. a. (tân—dygyd) To subduce, to subtract.

Tanedig, a. (tan) Being spread, expanded.

Tanedigaeth, s. m. (tanedig) The act of spreading.

Tanen, s. f. dim. (tan) A small particle of fire, a spark.

Tanfâ, s. f.—pl. tanfeydd (tan) An explosion; a fire damp; also called tanchwa.

Tanfaen, s. m.—pl. tanfeini (tan—maen) A fire-stone, a pyrite.

Tanfer, s. m. (tan—ber) Fiery violence.

Pryder am ddafer, pryddaf iddaw;
Pryddaf i rwyf trais, cyn trais iwas;
A thal cerddaf a fu eiddaf.

Sorrow for violence, I will sing to him; I have before me the leader of power, before the silent ruin; and of the loss of the golden horn he was possessed.

Cynddelo, a. Blyd.

Tanfre, s. m. (tan—bre) A pile of fire.

Molawd yw yn ngrif, mai yn ddaferu,
Eden-leirch a seirch sergri cywne.

He is the theme of praise in the toll, like a conflagration, was ed steeds with studded harness forming the front line.

L. P. Mack.

Tanfflam, s. f.—pl. t. au (tan—fflam) A fiery flame.

Tanfflamawl, a. (tanfflam) Fire-flaming.

Tanfflamiad, s. m. (tanfflam) A flaming with fire.

Tanfflamu, v. a. (tanfflam) To make a fire flame; to brandish a fire flame; to be in a fiery flame.

Angelion yn tanfflamu, angels flaming with fire.

Tanffon, s. f.—pl. tanffyn (tan—ffon) A poker.

Tangelfydd, a. (tan—celfydd) Pyrotechnic.

Tangelfyddawl, a. (tangelfydd) Pyrotechnical.

Tangelfyddyd, s. f.—pl. t. on (tangelfydd) Pyrotechny.

Tanglawdd, s. m.—pl. tangloddiau (tân—clawdd) An undermine, a mine.

Tangloddiaid, s. m. (tanglawdd) An undermining.

Tangloddiaw, v. a. (tanglawdd) To undermine.

Tangloddiauw, a. (tanglawdd) Undermined.

Taniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tan) A firing; ignition.

Taniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tan) A spreading.

Taniadawl, a. (taniad) Tending to fire, igniferous.

Taniadu, v. a. (taniad) To make a firing.

Tanial, v. a. (tan) To fire, to set on fire.

Rhyddas mab Gradd, rwydd ei arth,
Cymru yn daniol, rhyfel ar gau.

The son of Gradd, of fluent speech, retailed, Wales burned; war on the slaves.

Ym. Llochl y Dydd.

Taniaw, v. a. (tan) To fire; to set on fire.

Taniedig, a. (taniad) Being fired, set on fire.

Taniedigaeth, s. m. (taniedig) A setting on fire.

Tanlen, s. f.—pl. t. i (tan—llen) A fire-screw.

Tanlwydd, a. (tân—llwydd) Subject, obedient.

Tanlwyddiad, s. m.—pl. tanlwyddiaid (tanlwydd) A subject.

Daw a'ch rwyddo oll i fod—ya danlwyddiaid fyddlawn, yn trodyr anegor.

God prosper you all to be faithful subjects, to be inseparable H. Ferri.

Tanllachar, a. (tan—llachar) Fire-gleaming.
Tanllestr, s. m.—pl. tanllestri (tan—llestr) A lantern.

*Rhy bell yw y ddwrprwyaw
Llatal drad i'w they draw—
Nu dwyn o'n blaen danllestri,
Na phyt cwy, pan fo hwy'r hi.*

Too far is it for me to commission an audacious messenger to her lodging yonder; nor to have born before me lamps nor tapers of wax, when it happens to be laid. D. ab Uallym.

Tanll, s. m. (tan—lli) A fire glow. a. Ignifuous; span new.

*Cyflét—
Tanll gallestr ddr-restr don
Ufyl wrych efalli wreicdon.*

A little span new, steel-rayed striking from the flint spitting fire the sparks of a forge. Rhys Goch Bryri.

Tanllw, s. m. (tan—llw) Flame-colour. a. Of same-colour; bran new.

Tanllwynawg, a. m. (tan—llwynawg) Alopecia.
Tanllwyth, s. m.—pl. t. i (tan—llwyth) A great blazing fire.

Tanllyd, a. (tan) Flery, full of fire.

Tanllydrwydd, s. m. (tanllyd) Fieriness.

Tanllydu, v. a. (tanllyd) To render fiery; to grow fiery.

Tannawg, a. (tant) Having sudden starts, or flights

Tanniad, s. m. (tant) A stretching; a starting; a causing a sudden impulse; a throbbing.

Tannorth, s. m. (tan—dorth) An overspreading; a substitute.

*Pan ddylu y Mab Rhad oedd raid wrtho,
Er porth, ya dannaorth a dawa arno.*

When the Son of Grace did come, there was a necessity for him, as a help, as a substitute endowed with virtue. D. Benfras.

Tanna, v. a. (tan) To stretch; to start, to give a sudden impulse; to throb, to ache; to stretch a string.

Tano, prep. (tàn) Below, beneath.

Tano, pronem. prep. (tàn) Under it, under him.

Tanoedd, prep. (tàn) Under, beneath, below.

Tanogan, s. m.—pl. t. au (tan—gogan) Pyromancy.

Tanoganawl, a. (tanogan) Belonging to pyromancy.

Tanoganiad, s. m. (tanogan) A divining by fire.

Tanogann, v. a. (tanogan) To divine by fire.

Tanradd, s. f.—pl. t. au (tàn—gradd) An inferior rank.

Tanre, s. f. (tan—rhe) A fire course. a. Perverted by fire.

Tanrew, s. m. (tan—rhew) A nipping frost.

Tânriif, s. m.—pl. t. iôn (tân—rhif) An inferior number.

Tânryw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tân—rhyw) An inferior kind.

Tansang, s. f.—pl. t. au (tân—sang) Au under-tread.

Tansangawl, a. (tansang) Subpedaneous.

Tansangiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tansang) An under-treading.

Tansangu, v. a. (tansang) To under-tread.

Tansawdd, s. m.—pl. t. au (tansawdd) Submerion.

Tansawddawl, a. (tansawdd) Submersing.

Tansoddi, v. a. (tansawdd) To submerge.

Tansoddiad, s. m. (tansawdd) A submerion.

Tanswydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (tân—swydd) An inferior office.

Tanswyddawg, a. (tanswydd) Subaltern. s. m. A subaltern; a subdelegate.

Tanswyddiad, s. m. (tanswydd) A subdelegation.

Tant, s. m.—pl. tannau (tan) A stretch, or distension; a sudden start, or impulse; a spasm, a throb, or agony; a gust of passion, flight, or whim; what is stretched; a string; a string of a musical instrument. Rhyfedd yw dy dannau di, thou hast strange whims; tannau o lawenydd, sudden fits of joy; tannau gwylltion, wild fits; tannau poethion, violent passions; tannau dolur, the prickings or agonies of a sore; tannau yr gwisnew, the sharp pains occasioned by being frost-bitten: Tant telyn, a harp string; tant rhwyd, a net-line.

Tantawr, s. m.—pl. tantorion (tant) A player on a stringed instrument; a musician.

*North tantawr ya ei fys;
North llwrf ei droed hffys.*

The power of the musician is in his finger; the power of the blind is in his nimble foot. Catwg ab Gwynllin.

Tantiad, s. m. (tant) A stretching, or tightening; a starting; a taking a sudden fit; a throbbing; a stringing.

Tantiaw, v. a. (tant) To stretch, to tighten; to start, to cause a sudden impulse; to take a fit; to produce a spasm; to throb; to string.

Tanu, v. a. (tân) To spread, to scatter.

Tanu, v. a. (tan) To fire, to set on fire.

Hawdd tanu criawell.

It is easy to fire parched grass.

Adage.

Hawdd tanu eithla crialon, nid hawdd eu difawdd.

It is easy to fire parched furze, it is not easy to extinguish them. Adage.

Tanwaith, s. m. (tan—gwaith) Fire-work.

Tanwr, s. m.—pl. tanwyr (tan—gwr) A fire-man; a fuel-man.

Tânwr, s. m.—pl. tânwyr (tân—gwr) A spreader.

Tanwyd, s. m. (tan—gwyd) A breaking out of fire.

Tanwydyn, s. m. (tanwyd) A fiery meteor.

*Mai rhod tanwydyn tros elfydd,
Mai ion eithianig Llwyfanydd.*

Like an orb of kindling meteor over the humid plain, like the burning wave is he who justly ways Llwyfanydd. Taldan.

Tanwydr, s. m.—pl. tanwydrau (tan—gwydr) A burning-glass.

Tanwydd, s. m. (tan—gwydd) Fire-wood.

Tanysgrif, s. f. (tân—ysgrif) A subscription.

Tanysgrifaw, v. a. (tanysgrif) To underwrite.

Tanysgrifiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tanysgrif) An underwriting.

Tangnef, s. m. (tanc—nef) Celestial expansion; tranquillity, peace.

*Aed lle mac'r eang dangnef;
Ac aed y gerdd g'dang efi!*

May he go to where there is extensive tranquillity; and with him go the song! Iolo Goch, m. D. ab Uallym.

Tair ciweddau ddwyn Ynys Prydain: cyntaf oedd cenedl y Cymry, a ddoynt gyda Hu Gadarn i Ynys Prydain, aed al ffnal of wlad a throedd o ymladd ac ymlid, aithr o gyfawnder ac yn nhangnef; all oedd al y Lloegrwys, a ddoynt o dir Gwasgwyn, ac a hanoeddant o brif gaeadi y Cymry; trydydd oeddant y Brython, ac o dir Llydaw y ddoynt, ac oedd hanes o gyfada al y Cymry.

The three beneficent tribes of the Isle of Britain: the first was the nation of the Cymry who came with Hu the Mighty to the Isle of Britain, who would not possess nor country nor lands through fighting and persecution, but of equity and in peace; the second was the stock of the Lloegrwys, who came from the land of Gwasgwyn, and were descended from the primitive nation of the Cymry; the third were the Brython, and from the land of Llydaw they came, having their descent from the primary stock of the Cymry. Friends.

Tangnefawl, a. (tangnef) Tranquillous.

Tangnefedd, s. m. (tangnef) A state of celestial expansion; heavenly tranquillity; tranquillity.

*Christ, thou—
Oen tangnefedd a heddweh!*

Christ, thou Lamb of Assembly rest and peace! Gato y Glyn.

*Christ crowned—
Christ oen, cofola tangnefedd.*

Christ the Creator, Christ the mysterious one, the pillar of tranquillity.

L. P. Moch.

Tangnefeddawl, a. (tangnefedd) Tranquillizing.

Tangnefeddiad, s. m. (tangnefedd) A tranquillizing; a producing peace.

Tangnefeddu, v. a. (tangnefedd) To tranquillize.

Tangnefeddus, a. (tangnefedd) Tranquillous.

Heddweh tangnefeddus, tranquil peace.

Tangnefeddusaw, v. a. (tangnefeddus) To render tranquil; to become tranquillizing.

Tangnefeddusder, s. m. (tangnefeddus) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefeddusdra, s. m. (tangnefeddus) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefeddusodd, s. m. (tangnefeddus) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefeddusiad, s. m. (tangnefeddus) A rendering tranquil; a becoming tranquillous.

Tangnefedduswydd, s. m. (tangnefeddus) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefeddwr, s. m.—pl. tangnefeddwyr (tangnefedd—gwr) A tranquillizer; a peace-maker.

Tangnefiad, s. m. (tangnef) A tranquillizing.

Tangnefig, a. (tangnef) Tranquillous.

Owledig pob tangnefig.

Patriotic is every thing tranquillous.

Adage.

Tangnefoldeb, s. m. (tangnefawl) Tranquillousness; a state of peace.

Tangnefolder, s. m. (tangnefawl) Tranquillousness; a state of peace.

Tangnefoledd, s. (tangnefawl) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefoli, v. a. (tangnefawl) To render tranquil; to become tranquil.

Tangnefolrwydd, s. m. (tangnefawl) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefu, v. a. (tangnef) To tranquillize.

*Amherawdr mor a thir,
Calfwyl uof, lle tangnefu!*

Sovereign of sea and land, may I obtain heaven, where tranquillity takes place!

Dafydd y Coed.

Tangnefus, a. (tangnef) Tranquillous.

Rhyel Dda—a lywodraethol yn gydwytbodus yn mhob llawder tangnefus.

Rhyel the Good was wont to govern conscientiously in every tranquillizing equity.

Car. Llanguwen.

Tangnefusaw, v. a. (tangnefus) To render tranquil; to become tranquillous.

Tangnefusedd, s. m. (tangnefus) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefusiad, s. m. (tangnefus) A rendering tranquil; a becoming tranquillous.

Tangnefusrwydd, s. m. (tangnefus) Tranquillousness.

Tangnefwr, s. m.—pl. tangnefwyr (tangnef—gwr) A tranquillizer.

Tangnefydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tangnef) A tranquillizer.

Tangwedd, s. f. (tanc—gwedd) A tranquil aspect.

Tangweddawg, a. (tangwedd) Of tranquil aspect.

Ystadl thr Penryrs a Gwallawg, Teyrn teyrnodd tangweddawg.

The support of the head of Penryrs and Gwallawg, the king of the kings of tranquil aspect.

Talliesin.

Tangweddawl, a. (tangwedd) Tranquillous.

Tangweddiad, s. m. (tangwedd) A tranquillizing.

Tangweddu, v. a. (tangwedd) To tranquillize.

Tangweddus, a. (tangwedd) Tranquillous.

Tangwystl, s. m.—pl. tangwystlon (tanc—gwystl)

A pledge of tranquillity; a hostage of peace.

Tref tangwystl, a town delivered as a pledge of peace.

Pen ddyholer tangwystl yn llyr o dir Gwynedd, Dybydd seithnionlog o bryd gan wryst gogwedd.

When there shall be a long seeking for a pledge of peace from the land of Gwynedd, there will be seven hundred ships on a coast with the northern wind.

Merridan, Maenan.

Tangwystlaw, v. a. (tangwystl) To give a pledge of tranquillity.

Tangwystliad, s. m. (tangwystl) A pledging of peace or tranquillity.

Tangwystlwr, s. m.—pl. tangwystlwyr (tangwystl—gwr) One who pledges peace.

Tap, s. m.—pl. t. ian (tab) A projecting ledge or shelf; a projecting rock. Tap egrid, the heel of a shoe.

Tapiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (tap) A shelving, a ledge.

Taplaw, v. a. (tap) To form a step, or ledge.

Taplawg, a. (tap) Abounding with steps, shelves, or ledges; abounding with precipices.

Tapig, s. m. dim. (tap) A small step, or ledge.

Taplas, s. m.—pl. t. on (tap—llas) A gambol; a dance.

O gwledychs meddoway, a chariad y gwreidd, a sgwyl, tapias, a gwyddwyl, colly y glawder ac y wurdwedd.

If drunkenness should reign, and the love of women, tell its news, and dancing, and chessplaying, how wild be the course and the strength.

Drach y Brwmwedd.

Taplasa, v. a. (taplas) To gambol; to dance.

Taplasawl, a. (taplas) Skipping; dancing.

Taplasiad, s. m. (taplas) A skipping; a dancing.

Taplasu, v. a. (taplas) To gambol; to dance.

Taplaswr, s. m.—pl. taplaswyr (taplas—gwr) A person who gambols.

Tapyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. an (tap) A small projection, ledge, or shelf. Tapyn fust, tapig fust, the capping of a stall.

Tapyan, v. a. (tapyn) To form a ledge or shelf.

Tar, s. m. (ta—ar) A pervading principle.

Tarad, s. m. (tar) A pervasion, a striking through; taste, flavour.

Taradr, s. m.—pl. t. on (tarad) That pervades: a ray; a piercer; an auger. Taradr y coed, the woodpecker.

Huan haf—

Helwng trwy wydr teyrdr tes.

Sun of summer, ood through the glass rays of heat.

D. of Gwydyr.

Taradr perffedd, cetauw a dal.

A medium auger its value is a penny.

Welsh Lan.

Taradriad, s. m. (taradr) A penetrating, a piercing, a boring.

Taradru, v. a. (taradr) To penetrate, to pierce; to bore with an auger.

Taradrydd, s. m. (taradr) One who bores.

Taran, s. f.—pl. t. an (tar) That pervades, impels, or gives a shock; a clap of thunder, a thunder. Mellt a tharannu, lightnings and thunders: Maen taran, a thunderstone.

*Tua a dwr yn ymwrtau
Yw tarannu droigiau drew.*

Fire and water striving for mastery are the thunders of your lightnings.

D. of Gwydyr.

Y march—

*A'i wddi anwr fal taran,
A'i brennan dig fal fwrn dan.*

The horse with neck like thunder, breaking no restraint, and his nostrils abroad as a fiery furnace.

Gw. Gwyn.

Taran, a. (tar) Of goodly size or magnitude.

Cymoral Gwladon ei halltad ac y teyrwr Gildwyr yd fodd yn daron ewig.

Gwladon took his wand of illusion and struck Gildwyr, so that he becomes a well sized hind.

Mathew! Math.

Taranad, s. m. (taran) A thundering, fulmination.
Taranadu, v. a. (taran) To make a thundering or fulmination.

Taranawg, a. (taran) Charged with thunder.
Taranawl, a. (taran) Fulminant, thundering.
Tarandrwt, s. m. (taran—trwt) A thunder-rumbling. a. Thunder-rumbling.

Homer—
Daw, a'i fara tarandrwt,
i god—

Homer will speak, with his thunder-rumbling table, to maintain the battle. Gro. Owein.

Tarandwrf, s. m. (taran—twrf) A thunder-tumult; a thunderstorm. a. Thunder-dinling.

Taramid, s. m.—pl. t. au (taran) Intonation, fulmination; a thundering.

Tasmedeb, s. m. (taranawl) A fulminatory state.
Taranolder, s. m. (taranawl) A fulminant state.

Taranoli, v. a. (taranawl) To render fulminant; to become fulminant.

Taranorwydd, s. m. (taranawl) A fulminant state.

Taranon, s. m. (taran) That is pervasive; that is impulsive, or apt to produce a shock; a thunderer.

Taranu, v. a. (taran) To fulminate; to thunder.
Ofni pan darano, thou wilt fear when it thunders.

Pindar—
A'i lloedd o'i gylchoedd gant
Mae trinoedd y tarannu.

Pindar with his bolts about him in hoarsest tones, they will thunder through the war. Gro. Owein.

Tarannu, a. (taran) Fulminant, thunderous.

Id id—
Dle ni wyddo neb fy hyn,
Ar ygwedd gwynk tarannu.

I will go where no one may know my course, lest like the thundering wind. Gylfaun.

Taranwlaw, s. m. (taran—gwrlw) A thunder-shower.

Taranwr, s. m.—pl. taranwyr (taran—gwr) A thunderer.

Ni thrallu heb ond y Taranwr hollallnawg ty nerth.

No one but the almighty Thunderer would overcome my power. Eidd Wym, B. Crag.

Taranydd, a. m.—pl. t. ion (taran) A thunderer.

Taraw, s. m. (tar) A shock, a collision, a stroke; an effect or impression; a hit. Nid oes arni fawr o daraw, she is under no great hardship: Ytelli hyny heb daraw yn y byd, thou canst do so without any trouble in the world.

O dair ffordd y ardrir pob dyn yn y byd: o daraw, a goceud, a dwyn trallu i ardd.

By three means may every person in the world be insulted: by striking, and attacking, and by forcing from him. Welsh Laws.

O bal ar fawr dero,
Trey ni y tarawllo.

Of any difficulty should be no danger, through a thousand would be strike. L. G. Colli.

Taraw, v. a. (tar) To produce a shock, or collision; to strike, to hit; to affect. Taraw a ffon, to strike with a stick: Tarawis writhi o ddamwain, I met her by chance: Taraw dy glan i lawr, eat thyself down.

Meddyg a ddiglyb, pan darawer dyn ar ei ffon, o bob sgwrn uch cymen hysack cmlawg gwa; sgwrn is cymen polair cmlawg cyfrick.

A doctor should have, when a person shall be struck on the head, for every bone on the skull region four cartilaginous pieces; a bone below the cranium four pieces in law. Welsh Laws.

Tarawd, s. m. (tar) A pervasion; impulsion.

Tarawiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (taraw) A collision.

Tarawwr, s. m.—pl. tarawwyr (taraw—gwr) A striker, or one who gives a stroke.

Tarawydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taraw) A striker.

Tardd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tar) A state of breaking through, issuing, or proceeding from; an issue, or vent, a bubbling, flow, or spring; a budding, or sprouting.

Tri pheth tardd o'r tri an cyatodig: pob bywyd, pob ddaeni, a phob galu.

There are three things the effect of the three principal offices: all of life, all of good, and all of power. Barddas.

Tarddawg, a. (tardd) Having an issue or spring.

Tarddawl, a. (tardd) Issuing; springing.

Rhaeg yran Cynan tan tarddawl;
Cafoddw'r a'i cwyn.

Before the front of Cynan there was the tearing fire; Godwal-adr mourns it. Tuller.

Tarddadwy, a. (tardd) Capable of breaking out, issuing, or springing.

Tarddain, v. a. (tardd) To break out, to ooze.

Tardedig, a. (tardd) Being sprung; being made to break out, or to appear; derived.

Tarddedigaeth, s. m. (tarddedig) The act of breaking through, issuing, or springing.

Tarddell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (tardd) An issue, a spring.

Tarddelliad, s. m. (tarddell) A running out, or springing. Tarddelliad gwaged, a hemorrhage.

Tarddellu, v. a. (tarddell) To issue, to spring, or to run out; to bubble out.

Tardden, s. f.—pl. t. i (tardd) The orifice of any efflux or issue; the mouth of a spring.

Tarddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tardd) A pervasion; a breaking out, emanation, effusion, or eruption, an issuing; a derivation; a proceeding; a springing; a spouting; a budding.

Tarddiadawl, a. (tarddiad) Effluent, effusive, efflorescent.

Tarddiadu, v. a. (tarddiad) To cause an effusion or springing; to become effusive.

Tarddiannawl, a. (tarddiant) Pervasive; eruptive; tending to issue; derivative.

Tarddiannu, v. a. (tarddiant) To render pervasive or eruptive; to become a spring.

Tarddiannus, a. (tarddiant) Tending to cause an effusion or breaking out.

Tarddiannusaw, v. a. (tarddiannus) To render effusive; to become of a springing tendency.

Tarddiannuswydd, s. m. (tarddiannus) Effusiveness, a tendency to break out.

Tarddiant, s. m.—pl. tarddiannau (tardd) An issuing, or proceeding; an emanation.

Tarddolddeb, s. m. (tarddawl) Effusiveness; a state of springing or breaking out.

Tarddolder, s. m. (tarddawl) A state of breaking out, springing, or effusion.

Tarddoldra, s. m. (tarddawl) Effusiveness.

Tarddoli, v. a. (tarddawl) To render effusive; a breaking out; to become effusive.

Tarddu, v. a. (tardd) To pervade; to cause to break out; to break out, to issue, to proceed, to emanate; to spring, to bud, to sprout. Darw y mawr yn tarddu, yonder see the dawn appearing.

Tarddus, a. (tardd) Tending to break out.

Tarddusaw, v. a. (tarddus) To render effusive; to become of a tendency to break out.

Tarddusedd, s. m. (tarddus) Aptness to break out.

Tarddwraint, s. m. (tardd—gwraint) A tetter.

Tarddwreimen, s. f. dim. (tarddwraint) A ring-worm, or tetter; also called tarwden, tarwyden, and taroden. SH.

Tarddwreinnyn, s. m. dim. (tarddwraint) A tetter.

Tared, s. m. (tar) That is uttered; noise, clamour.

Bel cyman eain dardd wedi cyffwr ond.

Consonant was the joyous clamour after the agitation of battle. Anceirin.

Taredd, s. m. (tar) A tendency to pervade.

Tarell, s. f. dim. (tar) An issue, or a spring.

Taren, s. f.—pl. t. i (tar) What breaks through or shoots out; a spot; a tump, or knoll; a spot of wild land, overgrown with furze. Taren o dir, a spot of ground. Taren hwyf, rather late. Dyfed.

Be mewn hir garchar y ges Owain, mewn diffeithwch a tharen.
He was in long confinement under Owain, in wild and broken.
Brut. W. Llwyn.

Tarenawg, a. (taren) Abounding with excrescences, tumps, or knolls.

Tarenawl, a. (taren) Tending to grow out.

Tareniad, s. m. (taren) A growing out; a forming a tump or knoll.

Tarenig, s. f. dim. (taren) A small tump.

Tarenu, v. a. (taren) To form a tump.

Tarf, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tar) A violent throw out, or expulsion; a sudden drive; a scattering; a scaring; dispersion; flight.

*Rhys rwy anaw,
Gwanal drwy gorf,
A barfar farf,
Ac Eingsi ar darf,
Godwrf giliaw.*

Rhys the theme of the name, he would break through a ring, with beard on board, and Angles on flight, avoiding the rising storm.
Selyll Dryf-gwarch.

Tarfaidd, a. (tarf) Tending to scatter; scaring.

Tarfawg, a. (tarf) Being driven; scared.

Tarfawl, a. (tarf) Expulsive, scaring.

Tarfedig, a. (tarf) Expelled, dispelled, chased, driven away, put to flight; scared.

Tarfgyrd, s. m. (tarf—cryd) The common fever-few; also called amrannu.

Tarfutan, s. m.—pl. t. od (tarf—hutan) A scare-crow.

Tarfiad, s. m. (tarf) A violently driving out, dispersing, or expelling; a scaring.

Tarfiadu, v. a. (tarfiad) To cause a dispersion; to cause a scaring.

Tarfle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tarf—lle) A place of flight. Tarfle Saeson, the Saxons' place of flight.

Tarflyd, a. (tarf) Easily scared; skittish.

Tarflydrwydd, s. m. (tarflyd) Aptness to scare.

Tarf, v. a. (tarf) To expel; to chase; to put to flight; to scare. Tarf a darf ar awen, tumult will dismay the muse.

Llais dalen yn y gwynt a darf gydwybod awng.

The rustling of a leaf to the wind awakes a guilty conscience.
Adage.

Tarfus, a. (tarf) Expulsive; tending to scare.

Tarfusaw, v. a. (tarfus) To render expulsive; to become dismayed.

Tarfusdra, s. m. (tarfus) A state of dismay.

Tarfwgan, s. f. (tarf—gwan) Perforated St. John's wort.

Tarfwr, s. m.—pl. tarfwyr (tarf—gwr) A putter to flight; a scarer.

Tarfydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tarf) That puts to flight; a scarer.

Targ, s. m. (tar) A percussion; a clash.

Targed, s. f.—pl. t. i (targ) A target.

Tariad, s. m. (tar) A striking against, a collision; a stopping; a staying, a tarrying.

Tarian, s. f.—pl. t. au (tar) A clasher; a shield; defence. Lluch a tharian, lightning and thunder. Canodyn.

Goreu tarian cyfnewider.

The best shield is righteousness.
Car dy gymydwg, ond na ro lido na'th gledd na'th darian.
Love thy neighbour, but give him not thy sword nor thy shield.
Adage.

Nid amddiffyn ond tarian.

The only defence is a shield.
Adage.

Tariana, v. a. (tarian) To clash a shield; to make use of a shield.

Tarianad, s. m. (tarian) The using a shield.

Tarianaid, a. (tarian) Like a shield.

Tarianawg, a. (tarian) Having a shield.

*Aswynaf newdd hadd haddion Dderborth,
Dderborth corddorion,
A'th darf o'th darianegion,
A'th darf o'th derra-folion.*

I will secure the ready protection of the generous ones of South Wales, the sure support of minstrels, and thy best of shield-bearing men, and thy throng of princely ones.
Cynaddeu, i Rys at Gwydd.

Tarianedig, a. (tarian) Being shielded.

Tarianedigaeth, s. m. (tarianedig) The act of shielding.

Tariann, v. a. (tarian) To shield, to use a shield.

Tarianwr, s. m.—pl. tarianwyr (tarian—gwr) One who makes use of a shield.

Tariannydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tarian) A shielder.

Tariaw, v. a. (tar) To strike against, to come in contact; to stop; to stay, to tarry.

Tarlais, s. m.—pl. tarleisiau (tar—llais) A piercing noise.

Tarleisiad, s. m. (tarlais) A making a sharp noise.

Tarleisiaw, v. a. (tarlais) To make a clashing noise.

Tarleisiawg, a. (tarlais) Having a harsh noise.

Tarleisiawl, a. (tarlais) Yielding a harsh noise.

Tarleisiwr, s. m.—pl. tarleisiwyr (tarlais—gwr) One who makes a harsh noise.

Tarlwnc, s. m. (tar—llwnc) An eructation.

Tarlwng, s. m. (tar—llwng) An eructation.

Tarlwnciad, s. m. (tarlwn) A belching.

Tarlwncu, v. a. (tarlwn) To belch, to eructate.

Tarn, s. m.—pl. t. au (tar) A wipe, the act of wiping up any liquid, or absorbing.

Tarnawl, a. (tarn) Absorbent, drying.

Tarnedig, a. (tarn) Absorbed, dried up.

Tarniad, s. m. (tarn) An absorption.

Tarnu, v. a. (tarn) To absorb, to dry up.

Petrian faban, tarn dy deigran.

Commanding prince, wipe thy tears.

Mordir.

*Llywarch ben, na fydd di wyl,
Trwydded a gall di awyl!
Tarn dy lygaid, taw na wyl.*

Old Llywarch, be thou not ashamed, charming recognition thou shalt have: wipe thine eyes, be silent and weep not.
Llywarch Ben.

Taroden, s. f. dim. (tarawd) A tetter. | ✓

Tarodwll, s. m.—pl. tarodyllau (taraw—twll) A punch-hole.

Tarth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tar) Vapour, exhalation.

*Goleith dy cygnau amant dy fro,
Mai tan iwyd tart yn yd fro.*

The slaughter of the fow about the borders of thy country, be sure it heats a vapour where it happens to be.
Tafin.

Tarthadwy, a. (arth) Capable of evaporating.

Tarthain, v. a. (arth) To cause a continual exhalation; to puff out the breath.

Tarthawg, a. (arth) Abounding with vapour.

Tarthawl, a. (arth) Vaporous; foggy.

Tarthedig, a. (arth) Being evaporated.

Tarthedigaeth, s. m. (arthedig) Vaporation.

Tarthiad, s. m. (arth) Evaporation, exhalation.

Tarthlyd, a. (arth) Apt to be vaporous; foggy.

Tarthlydrwydd, s. m. (arthlyd) Fogginess.

Tarthu, v. a. (arth) To exhale, to rise in vapour.

Tarthus, a. (arth) Vaporiferous; hazy.

Tarthusaw, v. a. (arthus) To render vaporiferous; to become vaporiferous.

Tarthusdra, s. m. (arthus) Vaporiferousness.

Tarthusedd, s. m. (arthus) Vaporiferousness.

Tarthusrwydd, s. m. (arthus) Vaporiferousness.

Tarw, s. m.—pl. teirw (tar) That strikes against; a bull. Tarw trefgerdd, a bull kept by a town.

ship; tarw tris, tarw cad, tarw byddin, a bull of conflict, bull of battle, bull of armies.

Nerth tarw yn ei dwyfrao.

The strength of a bull is in his breast.

Adgr.

Gwerth tarw trufordd yw tarw arall, a allo lamsu, a buchw o'i ffon ac arall yn ei ol.

The value of a township bull is another bull, which can leap, with a cow before him and another after him.

Welsh Laws.

Tri tharw cad Ynys Prydain: Cynawr Cad Cadawg mab Cynwyd Cynwydion, Gwenddoion mab Celdiaw, ac Urien ab Cynfarch.

The three bulls of conflict of the Isle of Britain: Cynawr Cad Cadawg son of Cynwyd Cynwydion, Gwenddoion son of Celdiaw, and Urien son of Cynfarch.

Yr Eidd.

Tarwain, s. m. (tar—gwain) A spout, a gush; a flutter. v. a. To spout; to be spouting, to gush; to flutter.

Gweithia i gelaia fain a brat ar gwaed, ac arall ar darwain gwaed grain cleddyfawd.

I beheld a delicate corpse with crows feeding on flesh, and another on a flutter from the fell wound of a sword stroke.

Golyddan, der. Cadwaladr.

Gweddaw ar darwedd, gwedd ar darwain.

A blood-head at work, blood in a state of spouting.

Cynyddion.

Tarwedd, s. m. (tar—gwedd) The state of being pervaded; a ferment.

Tarw y rhing huan, yn ddogo rhwag deylaw, a'i ddodi ar darwedd mewn llestr i saraw, a'i fragodi a barth geifr.

Put that bark in a bundle between both hands, and place it in a steep in a vessel to sour, then breaking it with goat's milk.

Meddygyn Myddyl.

Ac oddoch gwadnan gwedd ar darwedd.

And above the soles of the feet blood on a ferment.

Llydd Gwr.

Mi dderfydd awen i ar darwedd traul.

Genius will not be exhausted from the operation of wear.

Ph. Brydydd.

Tarweddawdy, a. (tarwedd) Fermentable. Tarweddawg, a. (tarwedd) Having a ferment. Tarweddawli, a. (tarwedd) Fermentarious. Tarweddedig, a. (tarwedd) Fermented. Tarweddian, s. m. (tarwedd) Fermentation. Tarwedu, v. a. (tarwedd) To put in a state of pervasion; to ferment.

Tarweddus, a. (tarwedd) Fermentative.

Tarwgi, s. m.—pl. t. on (tarw—ci) A bull-dog.

Tarwhaid, s. f.—pl. tarwhaidiau (tarw—haid) The bull swarm, the second swarm of bees that leaves the hive.

Tas, s. m.—pl. t. au (ta—as) That hems in, combines, or binds together; fascia; a band.

Tasawli, a. (tas) Tending to combine.

Tasedd, s. m. (tas) A combined state.

Tasel, s. m.—pl. t. i (tas) A bandage; a sash; a fringe; a tassel.

Taselawg, a. (tasel) Sashed; fringed; tasselled.

Tasellad, s. m. (tasel) A sashing; a fringing; a tasselling.

Taselu, v. a. (tasel) To sash; to fringe; to tassell.

Tasg, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tas) That is set aside, that is fixed; a bond, a pledge; that is settled, or agreed, as to be done; a job, a piece of work; a task. Medi ar dasg, to reap by the piece; gweithiau ar dasg, to work by the job; a rei di dasg i mi? wilt thou give me a job?

Have goyd, trwy nawe tywydd, ar dasg, bob amser o'r dydd, ffigaw gweith.

More ready art thou, with increasing aridity, on task every hour of the day, to pick up wheat.

D. ab Gwilym, i'r Fran.

Tasgawi, a. (tasg) Tending to bind, being fixed, rated, or set as a job; starting, springing.

Tasged, s. f. (tasg) That is tense or strict.

Tasgedig, a. (tasg) Bound, settled, or fixed to be done; set as a task, or job.

Tasgell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (tasg) A bandlet, a band, what fastens or confines; a bunch, a whisk; a handful; also a closet, or pantry. tasgyll o flodau, bunches of flowers; tasgell o wellt, tasw o wellt, a whisk of straw; tasgell cio, the spring of a lock.

—Tasw gwyrdd,

Tasgyll yn sefyll yn aed.

A green whisk, bunches standing like stubble.

D. ab Gwilym, i Fodwrn.

Tasgellawg, a. (tasgell) Being in bundles.

Tasgelliad, s. m. (tasgell) A tying, a forming into a bunch or whisk.

Tasgellu, v. a. (tasgell) To tie, to form into a small bundle, to form a whisk.

Tasgiad, s. m. (tasg) A binding, a settling to be done, a rating; a setting a job or task.

Tasgu, v. a. (tasg) To set, settle, assign, or fix; to rate; to job; to task; also to spring, to rebound, to start, or to leap back; to cause to start; to urge. Na thasgu arni, do not urge her to do much. Tan yn tasgu o bedolau march, fire striking from the shoes of the horse. Dyf.

Llew glew gieddym, gryn gryd thasycha; Lloer corff cad, cointed canon dasgu.

A courageous lion with keen blade, of gleaming energy in the conflict; the pillar of the centre of battle, assigning a task to the composer of song.

G. ab M. ab Dyfed.

Tasgwr, s. m.—pl. tasgwyr (tasg—gwr) One who assigns a task.

Tasgydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tasg) A tasker.

Tasiad, s. m. (tas) A tying or combining together.

Tasiaw, v. a. (tas) To tie together, to combine.

Tau, s. m. (ta) A stretch, a reach; the state of being at rest; the state of being held or possessed. v. a. To stretch out, to extend; to become still, or silent.

Tau, pres. (ta) Thine. It is used after a noun in the genitive case; as y tad tau, the father thine.

Gwartheg arall yn adnos, Pan fo cawcwal ai bydd tas.

The cattle of another in pledge, when it shall be most fair they will not be thine.

Adgr.

Taw, s. m. (ta) The state of being spread or extended; rest, quiet; silence. a. Still; silent. Gryn tau ar un, to urge silence upon one; gyr dau arno, make him to be silent; awr dau, a silent hour.

Teyrn tud anaw, Ye mae i gwynaw, Oni fyf y dydd tau.

The sovereign of the region of harmony, it is my lot to mourn him, until I shall be at the day of silence.

Talliesia, Gerchan Cynfelyn.

Boloch fydd dau.

Wretched will be silent.

Adgr.

Goreu tau tau tewi.

The best silence the silence of effacing.

Adgr.

Taw, conj. (ta) That. It is used in Gwent and Dyfed, synonymously with mai. Chyweis tasw e oedd, I have heard that it was him; gwedir tau celwydd yw, it is said that it is a falsehood.

Pan wyba tau o gyfoeth Herod yr hanoedd, ef ei danfonos at Herod.

When he knew that of the dominion of Herod he was descended, he sent him to Herod.

W. Salisbury.

Tawch, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tau) That rises, or stretches over; vapour, exhalation, steam, damp, haze, fog. a. Humid, hazy, foggy. Mer tauwch, a hazy sea; also the name of the German Ocean. Clych tauwch, bubbles.

Y llong—

Llud bellbell y'n gymbellir Lie mae tauwch, lle amhaus tr.

3 X 2

Thou ship, to cut farther and further thou wilt be expelled, where there is a Aeze, where land is imagined.

*Cawn dywydd cawn-dawel,
Nid tawch a gwynf schol.*

We shall have weather fairly-serene, not an overcast with high wind.

*Ni wyf heddyw yn eddfyr,
Och, rof mor tawch rho'm a'r thr!*

It is not known to-day but we may sink; woe that a Aezy sea is placed between us and the land?

*Dwy a wylch—
Dafnas tawch, wedi I'nn tad!*

Tears I have wept, thick drops, after my only father.

Tawchlyd, a. (tawch) Vaporous, hazy; sultry.

Tawd, s. m. (taw) A spread, a distension.

Tawdd, s. m.—pl. toddion (taw) What is in a dissolved state; a melting. a. Melted. Toddion, drippings, as of meat that is roasting: Delw tawdd, a molten image.

Tawddigrech, s. m. (tawdd—cyrch) That is meltingly recurrent; a term in prosody.

Tawddloddf, a. (tawdd—lloddf) Meltingly-pliant; a term in prosody.

Tawddlestr, s. m. (tawdd—lestr) A melting-pot.

Tawed, s. m. (taw) A state of silence.

Tawedawg, a. (tawed) Tacit, silent, reserved.

Tawedawg, law of ddrwg.

The reserved is full of mischief.

*Nid tawedawg ond goddefus;
Nid goddefus ond synwrawl.*

No one is silent but the patient; no one is patient but the sensible.

Tawedig, a. (taw) Silenced, being hushed.

Tawedogrydd, s. m. (tawedawg) Taciturnity.

Coson a gwaspar dechibeb tawedogrydd.

The best of the feats of wisdom is taciturnity.

Tawedwat, a. (tawed—gwat) Murmuring.

Tawel, a. (taw—el) Calm, tranquil, serene, gentle; silent. Dyn tawel, a tacit person. Taweled yw yr hin! How serene the weather is!

*Tawel tawel, ti hwylio:
Odd a fo moledyw,
Nam Urien, can nid yw?*

Gently-breathing gale, wistfully art thou heard; scarcely is there one meriting thine, after Urien, since he is not!

Llywarch Hira.

*Tros y rhw toros yr haul
Wen bore wynob arsal;
Haw's dog wden dydd,
Tawel twydd.*

Over the brow of the hill the sun has spread the morning smile of cheering countenance; fair is the verge of day, serene the weather.

Gro. Owain.

Tawelidd, a. (tawel) Calm in a small degree.

Tawelawg, a. (tawel) Abounding with calmness.

Taweldra, s. m. (tawel) Calmness; serenity.

Taweledig, a. (tawel) Calmed, tranquillized.

Taweledigaeth, s. m. (taweledig) The state of being made calm or serene.

Taweledd, s. m. (tawel) Calmness, serenity.

Taweli, s. m. (tawel) A calm or still state.

Taweliad, s. m. (tawel) A calming, a stilling.

Taweliannawl, a. (taweliant) Tranquillous.

Taweliannu, v. a. (taweliant) To produce calmness; to become a calm.

Taweliannos, a. (taweliant) Tranquillous.

Taweliant, s. m. (tawel) A making serene.

Tawelin, a. (tawel) Of a calm tendency.

Oen Ddu—Brenin tawelin wyt ti!

Lamb of God, a tranquillizing king art thou.

H. D. ob Iſan.

Tawelu, v. a. (tawel) To calm, to tranquillize, to soothe; to silence; to become calm or serene: Pan dawelo ton y mor, when the wave of the sea grows calm: Fi ddaig, tawelo dy far, thou man, calm thy rage.

Tawelus, a. (tawel) Of a serene tendency.

Tawelusaw, v. a. (tawelus) To render of a serene tendency; to become tranquillous.

Tawelusder, s. m. (tawelus) Tranquillousness.

Tawelusdra, s. m. (tawelus) Tranquillousness.

Taweluswydd, s. m. (tawelus) Tranquillousness, calmness, serenity.

Tawelwch, s. m. (tawel) Calmness, serenity; gentleness; stillness. Tawelwch egeu, the stillness of death.

Tawelwr, s. m.—pl. tawelwys (tawel—gus) A calmer, one who makes still.

Tawf, s. m. (taw) A stretched or extended state.

Tawg, s. f. (taw) That is lengthened, or stretched out in length.

Tawgar, a. (taw) Disposed to be silent.

Doeth pob tawgar.

Wise is every silent one.

Adage.

Tawiad, s. m. (taw) A quelling, a attacking.

Tawi, s. m.—pl. tollon (ta—awl) A cast off, a throw; a take off; a separation; a cut off; an interruption; a diminishing.

*Gorowgy rwyng gwlodd,
Caer ar aer, car awrawl,
Gollodd awgrym, ddwyng dawl.*

Gorowgy of spout course, the bulwark of battle, a heretic trial, the detector of the mighty ones, a meritorious throw.

G. ob H. ob Dafydd.

Tawifwrdd, s. m.—pl. tawifyrddau (tawf—bwrdd) A throw board, a certain game, seemingly like the present game of backgammon.

*Tawifwrdd chroegubia dal; ac fal hyn y rhestr, tringant y
y weryt yndon, a thringant y y trawf o'r weryt.*

A three-board its value is six move papers; and in them partitioned, three more on the white map, and three more on the lay and his map.

Tawiffon, s. f.—pl. tawiffyn (tawf—ffon) A throwing staff, an engine for throwing darts.

Tawigar, a. (tawf) Apt to put aside; apt to throw off; interruptive.

Tawigarwch, s. m. (tawigar) Apt to put aside, aptness to throw off.

Tawliad, s. m. (tawf) A casting off; a throwing; a taking off; a separating; a cutting off; a diminishing; an interrupting.

Tawlinerth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tawf—nerth) Projectile force.

Tawlyrm, s. m.—pl. t. ian (tawf—grym) Projectile power.

Tawlu, v. a. (tawf) To cast off, to throw; to take off; to separate; to interrupt.

Gwell awgrym a'm dyco na mawr a'm tawlu.

Better an awg that will carry me than a horse that will throw me.

Tawr, s. m.—pl. torion (taw) A covering, surface.

*Awn fr hwynt arllwngodd,
A thecod tawr y llawr flakki.*

Let us go to the pleasure inciting groves, as the covering of the luxuriant ground is so fair.

H. D. ob Dafydd.

TE, s. m. r. That is spread or extended.

Teb, s. m. (te—eb) The state of being astonished; a type.

Tebed, s. m. (teb) A prospect, a spectacle.

*Fell debed by hyd o lwarddon,
Taw llaw dillyngiaw Caeorgion.*

A far prospect of extending from lwarddon, the splendid prospect of sending away the men of Caeorg. Ym. Lludd. Hwyr.

Gwlad, o arddw apeth Orlwdd, Riallnoedd truch, tebed wrodd.

I have seen, from the stroke of the warlike son of Gwlad, broken armies, a scene of wonder.

Gwlad.

Tebedawg, a. (tebed) Having a prospect.

A' lluswg tebedwg i'r moeddyr afa.

With his blue streamer displayed within the blue range the sea.
Amwrta.

Tebedu, v. a. (tebed) To render prospective.

Tebyg, a. (teb) Similar, like; probable.

Mid of a byrth dyn ai debyg.

A person will not bear his like.

Adage.

Tebu, a. a. (teb) To assimilate; to typify.

Tebyg, a. (teb) Similar, like. Tebyg iawn, very likely. Tebyced yw hwn i ti! how like this is to thee! Tebycaf peth, the most likely thing.

Tri pheth tebyg y maff fy hollis ymddangos deg heb yd, maff deg heb ddawd, a merch deg heb ei geirio.

Three things similar to one another: a fine barn without corn, a fine goblet without drink, and a fine woman without her reputation.
Cating Ddaeth.

Mid tebyg hys i ddrych cennau: ei tebygwyl hys i eglunon, a fywyt wneudwyt trid, a goryngyn gwledodod.

This is not like the appearance of messengers; more like is this to enemies, that would commit a trespass, and compare enemies.
Gn. of Arthur.

Tebygadwy, a. (tebyg) Capable of being like; comparable; presumable.

Tebygawl, a. (tebyg) Tending to be like or similar; likely, probable, presumptive. Tebygawl gwyf y byddi di yma, I presume that thou wilt be there.

Tebygedig, a. (tebyg) Being likened; assimilated; compared; imagined.

Tebygiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (tebyg) A likening, a comparing; a thinking probable.

Tebygiaeth, a. m. (tebyg) The act of likening or comparing; comparison; imagination.

Mid wyl i'w fwr ddaedus yn parhauw iddo, yn awgrym ar ddyw ymddawd o debygiad.

I am not upon the intention of upbraiding him with one sin, otherwise than through speaking from comparison. S. Trefedyn.

Tebygiannawl, a. (tebygiant) Tending to simulate; comparative; conjectural.

Tebygiannu, v. a. (tebygiant) To make a similitude; to make a comparison.

Tebygiant, s. m. (tebyg) A similitude.

Tebygoldeb, s. m. (tebygawl) Similarity; probability.

Tebygoll, v. a. (tebygawl) To render similar; to render likely or probable; to compare.

Tebygolrwydd, s. m. (tebygawl) Similarity; likeness; likelihood, probability.

Tebygrwydd, s. m. (tebyg) Similitude; likelihood; probability; conjecture.

Tebygu, v. a. (tebyg) To render similar; to assimilate; to compare; to presume, to think probable, to deem, to conjecture; to be like.

Hen a wyr, leuac a debyg.

The aged knows, the young supposes.

Adage.

Cas a debyoc ordd a fochdod.

Hateful is he that thinks to overcome through haughtiness.

Adage.

Tebygal ai wyddant hwy ddim i wrth dderfnet, wrth eu bod yn gwyf i'w llywod y byd yn awgrym yr eglunon; ac ymddaw, hwydd y tebygal, fydd eu cynhell hwynt i ddu teyrned.

I think it likely that they know nothing of military matters, from their being ignorant without the world is the ocean; and easy, so I imagine, will it be to compel them to pay tribute.
Gn. of Arthur.

Tebygwr, s. m.—pl. tebygwyr (tebyg—gwr) One who supposes, one who compares.

Techad, s. m. (teg) A rendering fair or fine; a becoming fair or beautiful.

Tri theclad cerdd: hardd gribwyll, bardd berthysos, a hardd gywilyddurp ar fyddau.

The three ornaments of song: fine conception, fine connexion, and a fine mastery skill in the metre.
Barddas.

Techawl, a. (techu) Tending to make fair or fine; tending to become fair.

Techu, v. a. (teg) To make fair; to become fair.

Teclyn, s. m. dim. (tecl) A tool, an instrument.

Tech, s. m. (te—ech) A sculk, a lark, a hide.

Techawg, a. (tech) Of a disposition to sculk.

Techawl, a. (tech) Sculking, or lurking.

Techiad, s. m.—pl. t. m. (tech) A sculking.

Techial, s. m. (tech) A frequent sculking. v. a.

To be sculking continually.

Techialn, v. a. (techial) To sculk continually.

Techu, v. a. (tech) To sculk, to lurk, to lie hidden.

Cyddyddan, ni theclai troedfedd byth.

Cyddyddan, he would never sculk a foot. Llywarch Hen.

Aerwalech eirl ni theclai, ni theclai.

The daughter-bomb of eyes will not sculk, will not sculk.
Fryddid Dyddan.

Techus, a. (tech) Disposed to sculk or lurk.

Techusaw, v. a. (techus) To render sculking; to become disposed to sculk.

Techusdra, s. m. (techus) Aptness to sculk.

Techwr, s. m.—pl. techwyr (tech—gwr) A sculker, a lurker.

Techydd, s. m.—pl. t. l. ion (tech) A sculker.

Techyn, s. m. dim. (tech) A sculking fellow.

Ted, s. m. (te—ed) A stretch, a distended state.

Tedu, v. a. (ted) To stretch out, to distend.

Tedyn, s. m. dim. (ted) Anything distended.

Tedd, s. m. (te—edd) A spread; a display; a range, a row.

*Rifer hys, os nef ar byst
dyn i'w gwrth, i'w gwrth
Ar ddi' egl rhod, fof futhrie,
Ar ddi' egl rhod, fof futhrie,
Ar ddi' egl rhod, fof futhrie,
Ar ddi' egl rhod, fof futhrie.*

This number, if heaven were of course to be obtained, they would keep themselves aloof; after the roasted viand, a roasted fare, and the fine white linen and wigs, and the female, and the emulating games, and the women bedecked with gold, a fair display.
S. Crut.

Teddawg, a. (tedd) Being spread, displayed.

Teddawl, a. (tedd) Spreading, displayed.

Teddian, a. m. (tedd) A spreading out; a displaying; a disposing in a row.

Teddu, v. a. (tedd) To spread out, to display.

Teddus, a. (tedd) Tending to spread or display.

Teddyf, s. m. (tedd) A socket, a hollow for receiving a handle, or the like.

Y goll llys a ddylly—gwoedus rhedid a llys yn rhad, eithr tri pheth; sef yd y rhai hyn, gwarthaf chaf callawr, a chwell cwlir, a theddyf bysall gynnau a phan gwynnau.

The smith of the palace ought to perform all the jobs of the palace gratuitously, except three things: those are particularly, the rim of a pot, the edge of a coultter, and the socket of a hatchet and of a spear head.
Speech Ebor.

Tefawg, a. (taf) Respectable, or of repute. Dyn tefawg, a respectable person. Dyfed.

Tefig, a. (taf) Over-spreading; sovereign.

*Pen nig a'w, pen a'w gwynnau,
Pen deig pob pen difeth.*

The supreme source of heaven, the supreme that made us, the sovereign head of every inhabitable head.
L. S. Cuth.

Tefn, a. (taf) Of a spreading tendency.

Tefydd, s. m. (taf) That is ample or large.

Tefyddawg, a. (tefydd) Having possession. Dyn tefyddawg, a person of consequence.

Tefu, v. a. (taf) To spread, to become spread.

Teg, a. (te—eg) That opens out, that is clear or smooth; clear, fair; beautiful, pretty, bland. Hin deg, fair weather; chwara teg, fair play; gwartheg teg, fine cattle.

A ddallu air hwr rhod adeg teg.

He that would revenge a harsh word let him give a gentle reply.
Adage.

Ni thet pen ar dywedyd yn deg.

The head will not break on account of speaking fairly. Adage.

Teg yd gwa yr adaryn ar borwyd bron,
Uch pen Gwenn, cys et olo tan dywarch;
Brwyd gwich Llywarch Hen.

Fair the song of the bird on the apple tree, over the head of Gwenn, before he was covered under the sod; he was wont to bruise the armour of old Llywarch Hen. Llywarch Hen.

Tegad, s. m. (tegan) A rendering fair or fine; an adorning; a becoming fair.

Tegawl, a. (tegan) Tending to render fair; tending to become fair; beautifying.

Tegald, a. (teg) Somewhat fair; fairish.

Tegan, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (teg) A pretty thing, a toy, a bauble, a jewel.

Awyrbod a ddengys yn fesa a wyr, fal plantyn yn dangwys tegus.

The ignorant will quickly show all he knows, like a child showing his toy. Adage.

Teganaidd, a. (tegan) Like a plaything.

Teganaawg, a. (tegan) Having a plaything.

Teganwaith, s. m. (tegan—gwaith) Toywork.

Teganwr, s. m.—pl. teganwyr (tegan—gwr) A toymen.

Tegan, v. a. (teg) To render clear, smooth, or fair, to beautify; to appease; to become clear, smooth, or fair.

Tegawl, a. (teg) Tending to make fair.

Tegedd, s. m. (teg) Fairness, clearness, fineness.

Tegelrian, s. m. (teg—eirian) Orchis, cullions, or dog's stones, also called baldar, ceillian y ci, cirix y ci, tegelrian y wacen, meadow orchis.

Tegid, s. m. (teg) Fairness, or beauty.

Tegrwydd, s. m. (teg) Fairness, fineness.

Tegu, v. a. (teg) To make fair, to beautify.

Tegwch, s. m. (teg) Clearness, fairness, fineness; beauty; fine weather. Gwir degwch, perfect beauty.

Tegwch a goegodd dyniaw—cyn y derfydd ac y diffana, nos awnoddwch blodau y gwanwyn.

The beauty and symmetry of the human form, will sooner and be less, than the feetingness of the blossom of the spring. Rhenn Dinodd Arthur.

Tegwddawg, a. (teg—gweddawg) Fair spoken.

Tegwedd, s. f. (teg—gwedd) A fair appearance. a. Of a fair appearance.

Tegwel, s. m. (teg—gwel) A fair countenance. a. Of a fair aspect.

A phan ei leuanctyd ymawl,
A'i degwel digna,
—Ni ddaw ei wallth.

So when youth shall pass away, with its fair aspect, it will not come a second time. H. Morris.

Tegychawl, a. (tegwch) Of a tendency to fairness; beautifying, adorning.

Tegychiad, s. m. (tegwch) A rendering fair or fine; an embellishing; a becoming fair.

Tegychu, v. a. (tegwch) To render of a clear or fair aspect; to adorn, to embellish; to become fair; to become fine weather.

Teidiawg, a. (taid) Having a grandfather.

Teidiawl, a. (taid) Belonging to a grandfather.

Teilai, s. m. (tel) The dipsacus, or teasel: teilai gwyllt, wild teasel; teilai mawr, fuller's teasel.

Tellaw, v. a. (tail) To spread manure.

Tellawg, a. (tail) Manured, having dung.

Tellichion, s. pl. aggr. (talch) Fragments, pieces, shatters. Dyna fo yn deilichion mun, there it is all in shatters.

Teilfa, s. f. (tail) A place for manure; a dunghill.

Teilfforch, s. f.—pl. teilffyrch (tail—fforch) A dung-fork.

Teiliad, s. m. (tail) A spreading of manure.

Teilledig, a. (teiliad) Covered with manure.

Tellig, a. (tel) Tending to cover, enveloping.

Telling, a. (tel) Meet to cover, enveloping; meet. Llaryg deiling, an enveloping armour.

Nog y bydd cyfng gwyld telling gwield.

Then there shall be scanty the covering deficiency of the banquet. G. ab Owgwen.

Telliwr, s. m.—pl. telliwr (telu—gwr) A maker of habits, a tailor.

Telliwriaeth, s. m. (telliwr) A tailor's trade.

Telliwriaw, v. a. (telliwr) To work as a tailor.

Teilw, a. (tel) Gentle, or yielding; complying.

Owain—
Gwr telaid trawoedd lochi;
Gwr teilw, teilwng of foll.

Owain, a comely man protecting of families; a man, worthy to be praised. H. Ford ab Grifft.

Tellwng, a. (tal—wng) Worthy, meritorious; merited, deserved, genuine.

Telliwr, s. m.—pl. telliwr (tail—gwr) A manurer; a dungman, a muckman.

Tellyngawl, a. (teiling) Tending to render worthy; meritorious.

Tellyngdawl, s. m. (teiling) Merit, desert, right, deservedness, worthiness.

Cyfoed Eudaf larti Erging ac Eann yn crynu y tywngwng, a ry adawed Cytenya yn cynnal yr ywng wrth Eudaf larti Eudaf.

Eudaf the earl of Erging and Eann rose against the prince, which had been left by Constantine to maintain the island under the Roman jurisdiction. Gr. ab Arthur.

Tellyngdra, s. m. (teiling) Meritoriousness.

Tellyngedig, a. (teiling) Being deserved.

Tellyngedd, s. m. (teiling) Meritoriousness.

Tellyngiad, s. m. (teiling) A rendering worthy.

Tellyngrwydd, s. m. (teiling) Worthiness.

Tellyngu, v. a. (teiling) To render worthy; to think worthy; to vouchsafe.

Tellyngus, a. (teiling) Tending to make worthy.

Tellyngwr, s. m.—pl. telliwywr (teiling—gwr) One who makes worthy.

Teimlad, s. m.—pl. t. au (teimyl) A sensation.

Teimladaidd, a. (teimlad) Somewhat sensible.

Teimladawl, a. (teimlad) Of a feeling nature.

Teimladedig, a. (teimlad) Endued with feeling.

Teimladedd, s. m. (teimlad) Feelingness.

Teimladrwydd, s. m. (teimlad) Feelingness.

Teimladwy, a. (teimlad) Capable of feeling, sensible; capable of being felt.

Teimlaw, v. a. (teimyl) To feel; to feel by the touch; to be sensible.

Hon y teimlar engydion a goed yn leuan.

In age will be felt the blow that have been obtained to youth. Adage.

Na fyne welid of yndwyrdd hoddw, ft at teimla a fary.

He that desires not to see his foolishness to-day he will feel it to-morrow. Adage.

Teiml a codelw a'u hyndrin
Ar y llafargwr wria,
Gwas a'u teimyl! gwas dyngedwria!

The tyranny of the mighty and their trepan on the laboring multitude, was to such as feel them! dreadful was! Cervant Fordd Olan.

Teimlawd, s. m. (teimyl) Feeling, sensation.

Teimledig, a. (teimyl) Being felt; touched.

Teimledigaeth, s. m. (teimledig) A being ended with feeling.

Teimlfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (teimyl) The seat of feeling.

Teimlaid, s. m.—pl. teimlaid (teimyl) A feeling, a touching.

Teimlwr, s. m.—pl. teimlwyr (teimyl—gwr) A feeler.

Teimlydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (teimyl) A feeler, a toucher.

Isul odd dnd pob teimlydd tolyn ac organ.

Isul was the father of every one who handles the harp and organ.
Genoel 4. 31.

Teimyl, s. m. (tem) The faculty of feeling.

Teirawdl, s. pl. aggr. (tair—awdl) Three rhymes.

a. Consisting of three rhymes. Englyn teirawdl, englyn milar, triben.

Teirawr, s. pl. aggr. (tair—awr) Three hours.

a. Of three hours duration.

Teirblwydd, s. pl. aggr. (tair—blwydd) Three years.

a. Of three years.

Teircaill, s. m. (tair—caill) The small ragwort.

Teirdalen, s. pl. aggr. (tair—dalen) Three leaves.

a. Three-leaved, trefoil. Swata teirdalen, wood-sorrel.

Teirgwaith, s. pl. aggr. (tair—gwaith) Three times.

a. Of three times.

Doeth a dwylir teirgwaith, ni thwyllir dnd ond anwaith.

The wise will be deceived three times, the bold will be deceived but once.
Adagr.

Teirialth, s. pl. aggr. (tair—ialth) Three languages.

a. Of three languages.

Teirialthawg, a. (teirialth) Having three languages

Teirnos, s. pl. aggr. (tair—nos) Three nights.

a. Of three nights.

Teirodlawg, a. (teirawdl) Having three rhymes.

Teirongl, s. pl. aggr. (tair—ongl) Three angles;

that is of three angles. a. Of three angles.

Teironglawg, a. (teirongl) Triangular.

Teirongil, v. a. (teirongl) To form a triangle.

Teirrhaw, s. pl. aggr. (tair—rhaw) Three parts or shares.

a. Of three shares.

Teirrhawwl, a. (teirrhaw) Tripartite.

Teirthon, s. f. (tarth) An ague fit; a fever.

Pedair teirthon y sydd.

There are four sorts of fevers. Meddygon Myddfai.

Teisban, s. f.—pl. t. au (tais—pan) A middle space, a central point; an origin, or stock; what spreads out, an overspread; any cloth worked over; a piece of tapestry; a quilt; a hassock; a kind of seat or stool made of straw-work; otherwise called tispan; also an epithet for a fat heavy wench. Teisban y ddwyffroen, the gristle that divides the nostrils: Doda teisban arno yn ei wely, put a quilt over him in his bed.

Gwethaf Pr yd rhyfel teisban.

The worst for the core is an intestine war.
Adagr.

Oed Crist 777—y by rhyfel teisban rhwng y Dehwyr y'r brenin.

The year of Christ 777 there was an intestine war between the South Wales men and their king.
Corad. Llangarfan.

Teisbanawg, a. (teisban) Having a central space; central, intestine; having a spread.

Teisbanteulu, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (teisban—teulu) The central place of a family; a family stock; a representative of a family.

Galwes Hywel ato holl brwnceneddodd gwlad, a's teisbanteulu oedd, a phob doethion a dygredigion o wyr fân a llywion, yn dygrynall gorwedd, hyd y Ty Gwyn.

Hywel called to him all the heads of tribes of the country, with their family representatives, and all the wise and the learned men of the laity and the clergy, in a general convention, to the White House.
Cor. Llangarfan.

Teisbantyle, s. m. (teisban—tyle) A dormitory squab or couch; a centre or representative of a family; a mediator, an arbitrator.

Teisbantyle, oef yw hwyw gur cyfrwng, yn llyu, ac yn llyu, ac yn ngbannawr, ac yn mhob peilwngweth; oes a fydd o ddandwyl y genedi, gan rith penfudrodd y genedi, ac yn gydyfarni ag y penododd, yn mhob rhan a dygrynall gwlad.

The representative, who is the mediating man, in court, and in congresses, and in council, and in every foreign affair; he is to be of the wise men of the tribe, by the vote of the heads of families of the tribe, and to be a confidant with the head of the tribe, in every vote and convention of a country.
Tyfoedd Dyfnwal.

Tri marchogweth a ddychwyl faint oys, cryd ac gallo hwynt: marchogweth 1 llydd, a ddach, a llyu. Sef fydd efe yna teisbantyle; ac mwy fydd y gosh am ei ladd, no phetl ar ei wedd ei hun.

Three cavalades extend the right of a man, at the time he can perform them: to ride to warfare, to a court of law, and to church. For he is then a family representative; and more will be the punishment for killing him, than if he were on his own concern.
Welsh Laws.

Teisbann, v. a. (teisban) To form a central space; to originate; to spread out; to form a hassock.

Teisen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (tais) A cake. Teisen briedas, a bride cake.

Gores rhan o'r teisen an a guth.

The best share of the cake is the one that is obtained.
Adagr.

Teisenan, s. f. dim. (teisen) A little cake.

Teiseniad, s. m. (teisen) A caking.

Teisenig, s. f. dim. (teisen) A small cake.

Teisennu, v. a. (teisen) To form into a cake.

Teithawl, a. (taith) Wayfaring, itinerant.

Teithdrwydded, s. f.—pl. t. au (taith—trwydded) A passport.

Teithedig, a. (taith) Journeyed, or travelled.

Teithgynnwys, s. m. (taith—cynnwys) A passport.

Teithi, s. m. (taeth) Faculty, quality, characteristic; the peculiar trait, which distinguishes one thing from others; the peculiar state of a being, or its perfection. Teithi gwraig, the female catamenia. Welsh Laws.

Teithi trais yw, huf, a chorn, a chwyn.

The characteristics of trespass are, a shout, and horn, and complaint.
Welsh Laws.

O bala dyn 34 l'r mach, a dywydd o'r amddiffynwys mai 12 a ddyl efo, ac yr hawl yn edryd y mach; ac o'r ystaf a dywydd mai 6 rheollog y rhod efo yn feth, talc y cwyl, am na wneith teithi mach, am na ddwyd yr un o'r ddau edryd.

If a person should sue the bail for twenty-four pence, and the defendant should say that what he owes is twelve pence, let the claim be referred to the statement of the bail; but if he should say that for six-pence he was held to bail, let him pay the whole, forasmuch as he did not perform the functions of a surety, because he declares neither of the two statements.
Welsh Laws.

Teithi cath yw, bod yn gyflwyn, gyflwyn, gyflwyn, gyflwyn, difan o dan, a lliad llygod, ac na chalteria bob lloer, ac na yst ei chenswon: a'i gwerth yw ei teithi.

The perfections of a cat are, that she be complete in ears, complete in eyes, complete in nails, complete in tail, not spotted with fire, and killing mice, and that she doth not go a rustling every moon, and that she devours not her young; and her value are her perfections.
Welsh Laws.

Mi Feilir Brydydd, bererin i Bedr, Porthawr a gymmedr gymmedr duthi.

I Feilir the Poet, a pilgrim to Peter, a porter who regulates appropriate perfections.
Feilir.

Teithiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (taith) A travelling.

Am y fan—

*Adwythedig ei delthadun
A fwrw bradan drwy lawr bryddiad.*

On account of the fair one, vexations his journeyings, who forms deceptions, through great study.
Gwyn Owain.

Teithiannawl, a. (teithiant) Itinerary.

Teithiannu, v. a. (teithiant) To make a journey.

Teithiannus, a. (teithiant) Itinerant.

Teithiant, s. m. (taith) A journeying.

Teithiator, ger. (teithiad) In journeying.

Teithiaw, v. a. (taith) To travel, to journey.

Teithiawg, a. (teithi) Having faculties, qualities, or traits; characteristic; perfect as to character.

Arddwydd-hael a bil ddiwyll;
Arddwyll gorwlad, gwerddin teithi;
Teithiwy Pryddol,
Teyrnid afdwyll Cymru,
Teyrnad ni graia, ni grawn rei.

I will thank the bounteous one of the offspring of Rodri; the cure of the country's border, enclosed with the characteristics of an illustrious race; having a right to Britain's throne, Owain the active one in the course of wrath, a prince who will not succumb, who would not part.

Guarantism.

I would Arthur, nothing more than a great teithiwy, neu i goldawr a ddyco ei gerdd, ni oher i newn.

Into the hall of Arthur, except the son of a king of a country of acknowledged right, or to an artist who brings his art, none will be suffered to enter.

H. Calanek—Welshman.

Teithiawl, a. (taith) Journeying, travelling.

Teithiawl, a. (teithi) Of perfect concurrency, character, faculty, or quality; characteristic;
perfect. Anifol teithiawl, a beast in which all natural qualities are perfect: March teithiawl, a sound horse.

Nawddydd Mal y dylw bwech fod yn deithiawl; dawed llaeth
o ben pob both llaeth; ac ynddith o'i lle saw cam yn ei bol.

The sixth day of May a cow ought to be complete as to natural qualities; the milk coming through the end of every dug;
and that her calf walk nine paces after her.

Welsh Laws.

Teithiedig, a. (teithiad) Journeyed, travelled.

Teithig, a. (taith) Being characteristic.

Teithigrwydd, s.m. (teithig) Characteristicness.

Ych ya ei gyllwa deithigrwydd.

An ox in his complete state of natural qualities.

With Laws.

Teithiwr, s. m.—pl. teithiwyrr (taith—gwr) A journeyer, a traveller.

Teithiwyrr, s. m.—pl. t. au (taith—llyfr) A journey-book, an itinerary.

Teithwg, s. m. (taith) A wayfaring, a journeying.

Teithydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (taith) A traveller.

Teithygawl, a. (teithwg) Belonging to wayfaring.

Teithygiad, s. m. (teithwg) A making a journey.

Teithygu, v. a. (teithwg) To make a journey.

Tel, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ty—el) That is straight, that is drawn tight or strict, that is on a stretch,
a tightness; a stricture; that keeps on a stretch,
or props up; a straight line; a warp, in weaving;
telau are also tents, as of a sow, and of a bitch;
also a suppressed laugh, titter, or giggle. a. Tel, tight, strict, compact, stretched, on the stretch;
straight, prompt. Ddiu ddiu y gwir, to keep strictly to the truth. Dacthio yn ddiu iawn y fordd hon, thou didst come very exactly that way.

Deu a'ith ddiu, was Tel; neu ffol, rhodia
At bydder dy hwn.

Away with thy sister, then thy fellow; and thy folly is complete, venge about on the credit of thy memory.

How Dyl. Probert.

Tel, s. m.—pl. t. au (te—el) That is even, regular, smooth, or compact; that is fair; a regulator, or standard measure of capacity, and of length; in South Wales, a corn measure, equal to 5½ bushels, and in North Wales 4 bushels, divided into 8 parts. In some places Tel is for capacity, and Ystaca, for long measure; but in others they are reversed. a. Even, regular, compact; fair.

Telal, s. m.—pl. teleion (tél) That is strained or even; that is regular; a kind of thistle; the teasel. Telal gwyllt, telal gwyllt, the common or wild teasel.

Telaid, s. m. (tél) That is stretched, or tightened;
that is even, smooth, or of fair appearance.
a. Fair, beautiful, graceful. Teleidion, graceful ones, the graces.

Llyr telaid honaid hael.

A mild graceful one famed for being generous.

Steddyr Ford.

El gwyllt, gwyllt a ddwydd;
El telaid, el telaid telaid.

He is the greatest, no minstrel declare; he the most generous,
he the fairest graceful one.

Ll. P. Mach, i R. ab Owen.

Gward tawel yn telaid.

It is gentle for the silent to be graceful.

Marg.

Bendigoch ddaw telaid.

Thus ye God full of grace.

Dwydd Tel.

Telaid, s. m.—pl. teleidian (tél) The measure, or contents, of a tel, a tel-full.

Telaidd, a. (tel) Somewhat strained, tight, taw, or compact; harmonious.

Telain, v. a. (tél) To put on a stretch; to break out as a suppressed laugh; to titter, to giggle.

Telain, a. (tel) Being on the stretch; being made smooth, fair or tight.

Telan, s. f.—pl. f. au (tél) A harp; but telau is now the general name for it.

Telawd, s. m. (tél) The act of stretching or tightening.

Telawr, s. m.—pl. telorion (tél) A warbler; the goldfinch, also called plac; telawr y coed, the woodlark.

Telc, s. m. (tél) A straightened state; a shrill.

Telcni, s. m. (telc) A shrinking, a crumple.

Telcu, v. a. (telc) To shrink up, to crumple.

Telchyn, s. m. (telch) A small fragment.

Telch, s. m. (tel) That is stretched or strained.

Telcdawg, a. (telcd) Being on the stretch, or strained. a. m. A telcdau one.

Telcdig, a. (tel) Handsome, or comely.

Telcdigrwydd, s. m. (telcdig) Handsomeness.

Telcdi, a. (telcd) Compact; perfect of fit aspect, comely, handsome, beautiful. One telcdig, a handsome youth; rhian telcdig, a beautiful woman; telcdig telcdig, a beast that is perfect in its kind.

Telcdigrwydd, s. m. (telcdig) Compactness;
comeliness, handsomeness; gracefulness.

Ych a ymadaw a' telcdigrwydd, ni ddyddid ei ddiwyll y
grawd i a tel; wneid ei worth yn ei telcdigrwydd ond i.

An ox that shall lose his gracefulness, should not be praised a rate which he is perfect; for his value is in his perfectness to be praised.

Welsh Laws.

Helen a' telcdig, ych a ymadaw a' telcdigrwydd, ni ddyddid ei ddiwyll y grawd i a tel; wneid ei worth yn ei telcdigrwydd ond i.

Helen with the numerous host, so to her hope then and in gracefulness, there should not be found in the least want to say to compare with her.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Teleidion, a. m. (teleid) A rendering comely, beautiful, or graceful; a becoming-comely, or graceful.

Teleidiaw, v. a. (teleid) To render comely, elegant, or graceful; to become comely or graceful.

Teleidiawg, a. (teleid) Abounding with comeliness, elegance, or grace.

Teleidiawl, a. (teleid) Tending to render comely, or graceful; tending to become elegant.

Teleidrwydd, s. m. (teleid) Comeliness; elegance;
gracefulness.

Teleiddiad, s. m. (teleid) A rendering comely, elegant, or harmonious.

Teleiddaw, v. a. (teleid) To produce harmony;
to practise minstrelsy.

Teleiddwr, s. m.—pl. teleiddwyrr (teleid—gwr)
A minstrel, a songster.

Cwydd cerddorion cydd,
a telcdigrwydd, awyrydd m.

Let correct minstrel's complaints, and minstrel's, a decent pleasant man.

Welsh Laws.

Welsh Laws.

Teleiddyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (teleid) A composer.

Teleidion, s. m. (teleid) A playing the harp.

Teleiniaw, v. a. (teleid) To play the harp.

Telcniwr, s. m.—pl. telcniwyr (telan—gwr) A harper. Ll. Llandaf.

Teler, s. m.—pl. t. au (tèl) That keeps tight or stretched: a stretcher; a compact, or condition. Teler llif hir, the handle, and frame, of a long saw: Ar y telennau hynny, on those conditions. Dyfed.

Telg, s. m. (tel) A straitened state, a shrink, a crimple.

Telging, a. (tel—ing) Constricted; crimped:

Wyt telging, enaid Talgarth.

Thou art constricted, thou soul of Talgarth. D. ab Edmunt.

Telgorn, s. m.—pl. telgyrn (tel—corn) A hantboy.

Telgwn, s. m. (telc—wn) A rebound; a stagger.

Telgwng, s. m. (telg—wng) A crimping.

Telgynawd, s. m. (telgwn) A resiliency.

Telgyniad, s. m. (telgwn) A rebounding.

Telgyrn, v. a. (telgwn) To rebound; to stagger.

Telgynawd, s. m. (telgwng) A crimping.

Telgyngawg, a. (telgwng) Crimping; staggering.

Telgyngiad, s. m. (telgwng) A crimping.

Telgyngn, v. a. (telgwng) To crimp; to stagger, to falter. Cei ddymwad a wna i ti delgyngn, thou shalt have a blow that will cause thee to stagger.

Teli, s. m.—pl. t. an (tèl) The being compact, or tight; exactness; an art.

Teliad, s. m.—pl. t. an (tèl) A rendering stretched, a tightening; a making smooth or fair.

Teliad, s. m. (teli) A rendering compact; an acting ingeniously.

Teliadd, a. (teli) Being compact, or tightly put together; ingenious. Dyn teliadd iawn, a very ingenious person. Sil.

*Chwi rydd heb—
Na bri teliadd, na brain
Rheuan, oed a fyn benant.*

You are without any ingenious pre-eminence, or active quality, save what old age doth claim. Gw. Williams.

Teliaw, v. a. (tel) To strain, to tighten; to make accordant.

Teliaw, v. a. (teli) To put compactly together; to practise any ingenious art.

Al Ceratist farid Otho yn farid tellaw at Aelfryd frenin Lloegr.

Cerast the Blue Bard, went as a bard of art to Alfred king of England. Ed. Dafydd.

Telid, s. m.—pl. t. an (tèl) That is combined tightly; a compact frame; elegance; gracefulness.

*Gwneynt eu perorion
Oferwynt heb don;
Gwneynt eu telidau
Yn oes oenan
Dydwysu ddyddgawd
O ddyfnwedydd gwawd.*

Their musicians would produce a fruitless wind without sound; their instruments would ever make from the effect of vibration a profound flow of praise. Taliesin.

Teliter, sup. (tai) To be requiring; to be paying.

Os llygrh yd i oeb yn ymyl trefgordd, ac na chaffo y perchennau dail yn llyw am, cynewyd efe grair a doed i'r ddi: ac o'tyngant i'r durnod, talent yd i rîd y llyda: a'r g;fruth hono a elwir teliter gwedi halsawg.

If the corn of any shall be damaged on the border of a township, and the owner shall not be able to catch one beast upon it, let him take the relics and then come to the town; and if they shall swear an oath of ignorance of the fact, let them pay for the corn to the number of the beast: and that law is called paying after a polluted oath. Welsh Laws.

Teliw, a. (tèl) Being stretched or expanded.

Telm, s. f.—pl. t. au (tèl) A gimcrack; a toy; a springle.

*Y farren—
Telm yw ar loter bron talar.*

The briar, a snare is it on the headland slope. D. ab Gwilym.

Telma, v. a. (telm) To play with toys; to trifle.

Telmaidd, a. (telm) Toyish; like a snare.

Telmiad, s. m. (telm) A toying; a laying a snare.

Telmu, v. a. (telm) To form a toy; to snare.

Telmyn, s. m. dim. (telm) A little toy; a trap.

Telori, v. a. (telawr) To warble, to be warbling.

Telpyn, s. m.—dim.—pl. t. au (talp) A small lump.

Telpynawg, a. (telpyn) Having small lumps.

Telpyniad, s. m. (telpyn) A forming small lumps.

Telpynu, v. a. (telpyn) To form small lumps.

Teln, v. a. (tèl) To put on a stretch, to strain; to make compact or regular.

Telwr, s. m.—pl. telwyr (tel—gwr) One who strains; one who makes compact.

Telydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tèl) One who strains or draws tight; a harmonist.

Telyn, s. f.—pl. t. an (tèl) What is stretched, what is compact or straight, what is in even row; a harp; also the ribs and whole side of a carcass, when divided into two. Sil.

Pencerd a ddyl i gan y cerddorion leuanic, pan ymadawnt a thelyn newn, a myn bod yn gerddorion rywahan, se yn elrechid, pedair ar ugain o arian yn ei obwy.

The master of art ought to receive from young minstrels, when they leave of the hair-strung harp, and desire to become associated minstrels, and sutors, the sum of twenty-four of silver for his fee. Welsh Laws.

*Nid oes nag angel, na dyn,
Nad wyl pan gawd delya.*

There is nor angel, nor man, but would weep, when the harp recounts. D. ab Edmunt.

Telynai, s. c.—pl. telyneion (telyn) A harpiat.

Telynaidd, a. (telyn) Of the form of a harp.

Telynawr, s. m.—pl. telynorion (telyn) A harpist.

*Telyn ar telynorion,
Ti sydd yn tewi a son!*

The golden harp of the harpists, thou art becoming silent! D. ab Edmunt, m. S. Bos.

*Cor o saint—
Cw en hoddau cyhydel,
Gwynion delynorion nef.*

A choir of saints, lovely their accordant strains, the white-robed minstrels of heaven. Gw. Uwens.

Telyniad, s. m.—pl. t. an (telyn) A harping.

Telyniawr, s. m. (telyn) A harp player.

Telyniwr, s. m.—pl. telynlwyr (telyn—gwr) A harper, a harp player.

Telynores, s. f.—pl. t. au (telynawr) A female harpist.

*Enwawg yll uwelr, gair gyrdwbyll,
Armes, telynores twyll.*

Emment art thou made, of thought professed, the word, predicting thee the fair minstrel of deceit. D. ab Gwilym, i Farfudd.

Telynoriad, s. m. (telynawr) A playing a harp.

Telynoriaw, v. a. (telyn) To play on the harp.

Telynwr, s. m.—pl. telynwyr (telyn—gwr) Harper

Telyr, s. m. (tèl) That constricts, or tightens.

Telyraw, v. a. (telr) To keep on the stretch; to keep on, to persevere. Pa le buost, er ys llawer dydd, yr hen was, yn telyraw? Where hast thou been, for these many days, old boy, keeping it up? Sil.

Telyw, s. m. (tel) A covering, a garment.

*Llem swet, llem bendy er byw,
Pan orawg coed telyw haf;
Telydd glaf wyf heddyw.*

Sharp the gale, it is bare punishment to live, when the woods wear the robe of summer: I am severely ill this day. Llywarch Hen.

Teli, s. m. (te—ell) The state of being stretched over. a. Being stretched over.

Telliad, s. m. (teli) A stretching over; a covering.

Tellu, v. a. (teli) To stretch over; to cover.

Tellwedd, s. f. (tall—gweidd) A covered aspect; a covered state; an amnesty, or indemnity, in law.

Meddyg a ddylly gymeryd tellwedd i gan y genedi am arholled-
i, a bydd naru o'r fadduginaeth a wnel efi; ac onis cymers, gwrtweped droa ei weithred.

A doctor ought to require an amnesty from the family for the wounded, in case he should die under the operation he may perform; and if he doth not take it, let him answer for his act.
Welsh Laws.

Dall fydder cyn tellwedd!

Blind and deaf before the grace!

Gr. ab Gurgeneu.

Tellweddiad, s. m. (tellwedd) A burying in oblivion; a giving a release.

Tellweddu, v. a. (tellwedd) To bury in oblivion;
to grant a release; to save harmless.

Tem, s. m. (te—em) A round spread or space.

Temig, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (tam) A particle, a small part, or portion. Yn demigan, by parts, by morsels, severally, or particularly. Sil.

Teml, s. m.—pl. t. au (tem) A temple, a church.

Teml, s. m. (tem) That is extended or expanded;
that extends; a seat, a place of sitting.

Yn eistedd ar deml o llyfrwyn—gwelld mawr.

Sitting on a seat of green rushes, a youth was seen.

H. Arthur—Mabinogion.

Temliad, s. m. (teml) A forming an expanse; a forming a seat; a forming a temple.

Temlu, v. a. (teml) To form an expanse; to form a seat.

Ten, a. (f. of tyn) Stretched, drawn, tight.

Tenau, a. (tan) Thin, rare, rarefied; lean.

Teneu, a. (tan) Thin, rare, rarefied; lean.

Teneuâd, s. m. (teneuâu) Attenuation.

Teneuâwl, a. (teneuâu) Tending to thinness, attenuating, rarefying.

Teneuad, s. m. (tenau) Emaciation, attenuation;
rarification; a making thin.

Teneuadwy, a. (teneuad) Capable of thinning.

Teneuâu, v. a. (tenau) To make thin, to attenuate; to rarefy; to become thin.

Teneuaw, v. a. (tenau) To make thin; to become thin, to emaciate.

Teneuawl, a. (tenau) Tending to thinness, attenuating, emaciating.

Teneudeb, s. m. (tenau) Thinness; tenuity.

Teneuder, s. m. (tenau) Thinness; leanness.

Teneudra, s. m. (tenau) Thinness; leanness.

Teneuedig, a. (teneuad) Being thinned.

Teneuedd, s. m. (tenau) Thinness, tenuity.

Teneurwydd, s. m. (tenau) Thinness; leanness.

Teneuwe, s. f. (tenau—gwe) A fine web.

Tenewyn, s. m. (tan—gwyn) What is extended or stretched; a flank of an animal.

Tenlli, s. m. (tan—lli) That is thinly wove; Linsey-woolsey; shalloon.

Ni bydd tenlli yn llawdr rhingyll.

There shall be no shalloon in the trowse of a serjeant.

Welsh Laws.

Tennyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. od (tant) A cord, a rope, a halter. Tennyn pen bawd, a rope made by twisting the stuff about the thumb.

Tent, s. m. (ten) That is stretched, or drawn tightly; a tent. a. Tightly drawn.

*Mewn crys gwyn, tyn mal tent,
Yr af hunau i'r fywnt.*

In a white shirt, tight like a tent, I also shall go to the grave.

Bede Brwynllyn.

Y llong—Gwelligan gwelld, Cocwlg dent, celiw lingo di.

The ship, with a wake foaming the torrent, with stretched group of timbers, lingo will there preserve. Rhye Nanmor, i'r llong.

Teng, s. m. (te—eng) That is tough. a. Tough, tenacious.

Tengl, s. f.—pl. t. au (teng) A girth.

Tengliad, s. m. (tengl) A tying with a girth.

Tenglu, v. a. (tengl) To tie with a girth.

Tengyn, s. m. (teng) That is tenacious; obstinacy. a. Tenacious, obstinate.

Dwys dengyn ydd ymladdyn' aergyn.

With petreveling obstinacy the dogs of war would fight.

Anarun.

Gan riss ryfel dengyn.

With chiefs of inveterate war.

Myrddan.

Teon, s. m. (te) That overspreads or is superior.

Yn ngharniel meirch marchogion;

Yn ngharneddau tas teon.

In the prancing of the steeds of knights, amid the stout paces, thine the superior. Llywelyn Fardd Cymru.

Tepyn, s. m. dim. (tap) A small ledge or step.

Tepyniad, s. m. (tepyyn) A forming a step.

Tepynau, v. a. (tepyyn) To form a step or ledge.

Ter, s. m. (te—er) That is fine, clear, or transparent. a. Clear, fine, transparent, pure, clarified, purified.

Têr, s. m. (ty—er) A state of ardency; aptness to pervade, or to break out.

Teraidd, a. (ter) Somewhat clear or pure.

Terawg, a. (têr) Having ardency or avidity.

Terawl, a. (ter) Clarifying, purifying.

Terc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (têr) A jerk, a jolt.

Terciad, s. m. (terc) A jerking, a jolting.

Tercu, v. a. (terc) To jerk, or to jolt.

Terch, s. f.—pl. t. au (ty—erch) Any fastening by which a thing is suspended; a loop. Terch rhwng dwy gostrel, a fastening between two bottles.

Control a'i therch with erchwyn.

A bottle with its loop to the bedside. Bede Brwynllyn.

Terchawg, a. (terch) Having a loop, furnished with a string or the like, to hang by.

Terchiad, s. m. (terch) A looping, a furnishing with anything to hang by.

Terchu, v. a. (terch) To loop, to furnish with a cord, or the like, to hang by.

Terchwyn, s. m. (terch) That serves to suspend or to uphold.

Detholais fy rhwyf yn rhad welling mawr.

Yn llyrhylawr llawr llaw derchwyn.

I have selected my leader a magnificent shoulder of girth, greatly loading the ground with upholding hand.

Cynaddia, i Wernwryn.

Teredig, a. (ter) Being made clear; clarified;
purified.

Teredigaeth, s. m. (teredig) Clarification.

Teredd, s. m. (ter) A pure or clarified state.

Terf, a. (têr) Being extreme or outward.

Terfan, v. a. (terf) To render extreme; to produce a crisis; to become extreme.

Terfedig, a. (terf) Being rendered extreme.

Terfenydd, s. m. (terfan) An extremity or crisis;
the time of the copulation of cattle. Terfenydd buwch, buwch derfenydd, buwch wasawd, the time of a cow's seeking the bull.

Terfyll, s. m. (terf) That is puffed out; plump.

Terfyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (terf) An extremity, a limit, a termination. Mac yr amser ar derfyn, the time is just at an end; wyf ar derfyn, I am just at an end.

Endeveis waneg o Wynnod dir,

I am derfyn mawr meirch Bell.

Oedd hyrddid wybr llyr yn llewli;

Oedd hyr am ydylau gwyfion gaei;

Fyill odd ei ddedd, hwyrdedd holl;

Hallt oedd ei dagrau digrawn bell.

I listened to a wawe from Gwynedd land, round the ample herder of the soon of Bell. Impetuous was its course filling over the strand; incessantly round the shore she uttered wae; not resistive was her law, a tardy law to see; her tears from the exchequer bribe were salt. Eis. ab Gwilem, m. Nest.

Terfynadwy, a. (terfyn) Determinable.

Terfynal, s. c. (terfyn) That terminates.

Terfynawl, a. (terfyn) Conclusive, ending.
Terfynedig, a. (terfyn) Determined, ended.
Terfynedigaeith, s. m. (terfynedig) Determination, conclusion.
Terfynedigawl, a. (terfynedig) Of a limiting tendency, restrictive, determinate.
Terfynfa, s. f. (terfyn) A boundary spot.
Terfyniad, s. m. (terfyn) A terminating.
Terfynoldeb, s. m. (terfynawl) Finiteness.
Terfynolder, s. m. (terfynawl) Finiteness.
Terfynoldra, s. m. (terfynawl) Finitude.
Terfynolled, s. m. (terfynawl) Conclusiveness.
Terfynoli, v. a. (terfynawl) To render conclusive; to become conclusive.
Terfynolrwydd, s. m. (terfynawl) Conclusiveness.
Terfynu, v. a. (terfyn) To fix a bound, to limit, to determine, to conclude.

Neddi dyn, Daw a'i terfyn.

The thought of man, God doth determine.

Adage.

Terfynwr, s. m.—pl. terfynwyr (terfyn—gwr) One who concludes or terminates.
Terfynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (terfyn) A concluser, a finisher, a determiner.
Terfysg, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tèr—mysg) Confusion, commotion, tumult, disturbance.

Pan na'i oedd plant i Llew, a ddylai gyswll y deyrnas yn ei ol; with him y cyfoda ciwddaw'i derfysg y rhwng y Prydeiniaid ac y Rhufeiniaid gyfoeth.

Since there were no children to Llew, who had a right to govern the kingdom after him; upon that there arose a civil commotion between the Britons and the Roman dominion.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Terfysgaidd, a. (terfysg) Apt to be riotous.
Terfysgawg, a. (terfysg) Foll of tumult.
Terfysgawl, a. (terfysg) Tumultuous.
Terfysgblaid, s. f. (terfysg—plaid) A tumultuous faction.
Terfysgedig, a. (terfysg) Rendered tumultuous.
Terfysgedigaeth, s. m. (terfysgedig) The act of raising a tumult.
Terfysgedd, s. m. (terfysg) Tumultuousness.
Terfysgiad, s. m. (terfysg) A making a tumult.
Terfysglyd, a. (terfysg) Apt to be tumultuous; riotous, mutinous.
Terfysglydrwydd, s. m. (terfysglyd) Tumultuousness, riotousness, factiousness.
Terfysgu, v. a. (terfysg) To raise a tumult; to become tumultuous; to be in an uproar.

Terfysgu; dalia, mai defflon mewn braw, Eu bryd a'u hancanion.

Render tumultuous; blind, like blind ones in terror, their purpose and their designs.

H. D. ab Ifan.

Terfysgu, a. (terfysg) Tumultuous.
Terfysgwr, s. m.—pl. terfysgwyr (terfysg—gwr) One who makes a tumult.
Terfysgydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (terfysg) One who makes a tumult.
Tèr, v. a. (tèr) To grow sullen, to sculk. Mae ef yn tèr ar ei fwyd, he is quarrelling with his meat.
Teriad, s. m. (ter) A rendering clear, a clarifying; a purifying.
Teriad, s. m. (tèr) A rendering ardent; irritation.
Terica, v. a. (terig) To irritate; to become irritated; to rut, to go a rutting.
Terig, a. (tèr) Ardent, poignant; severe, harsh; also an epithet for the season of copulation of cats, and some other animals.

Bwled fal—
Llicad aer yn llaw derig.

A buckler like a golden moon in an ardent hand.

Rhyi Nanner

Terigaw, v. a. (terig) To render ardent or severe; to become harsh or severe.
Terigiad, s. m. (terig) A rendering severe or harsh; a becoming fierce or severe.
Terillyd, a. (tèr) Outrageous; sullen.
Terillydrwydd, s. m. (terillyd) Outrageousness.
Terillydu, v. a. (terillyd) To render outrageous; to become outrageous.
Term, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (tèr) An extreme point, a crisis, a limited space of time, a term; a drinking bout.

Gwell angen o'm gollyguir
No thori 'when a thernu hir.

Better death than I might be released, than to distract my head with a long term.

T. Aled.

Teriad, s. m. (term) A limiting of time, a fixing a term; a making a drinking bout.
Termiaw, v. a. (term) To limit a time, to fix a term; to keep up a drinking bout.
Termud, a. (tèr—mud) Tacit, silent.

Rhai trellwffyr tra llafar eu son;
Ac ereill tierlew termudlos.

Some very cowardly extremely loud in their talk; and others perseveringly brave being silent ones.

Lt. P. Moch.

Termudaw, v. a. (termud) To render tacit or silent; to become silent.
Termudedd, s. m. (termud) Taciturnity.
Termudiad, s. m. (termud) A rendering tacit; a becoming tacit or silent.
Termudrwydd, s. m. (termud) Taciturnity.

Gores moad termudrwydd.

The best behaviour is taciturnity.

Adage.

Tern, s. m. (tèr) That is ardent or vivid, or full of motion. a. Of an ardent or vehement nature.
Terniad, s. m. (tern) A moving ardently.
Ternu, v. a. (tern) To move or turn ardently.
Terogen, s. f. dim. (tèrawg) A female miser.
Terogi, v. a. (terawg) To render full of avidity; to become full of avidity.
Terogyn, s. m. dim. (terawg) A miserly churl.
Terth, s. m.—pl. t. au (tèr) A bung.
Terthain, v. a. (tarth) To pant for breath.
Teru, v. a. (ter) To purify, to clear, to clarify; to render fine or smooth. Teru mel, to clarify honey.
Tèru, v. a. (tèr) To act sullenly; to grow sullen, to pout, to sulk. Teru ar fwyd, sori ar fwyd, to quarrel with the victuals. Sit.
Tèrwr, s. m.—pl. tèrwyr (tèr—gwr) A sullen man.
Terwr, s. m.—pl. terwyr (ter—gwr) A purifier, a clarifier, or one who makes clear.
Tèrwyn, a. (ter—gwyn) Of a violent disposition; ardent, fervent; strong.
Terwynaid, a. (terwyn) Somewhat ardent.
Terwynawl, a. (terwyn) Of an ardent tendency.
Terwyndeb, s. m. (terwyn) Ardentness.
Terwynder, s. m. (terwyn) Ardency, vehemency.
Terwyndra, s. m. (terwyn) Ardency, vehemency.
Terwynddrud, a. (terwyn—drud) Very bold.
Terwynfalch, a. (terwyn—balch) Highly proud.
Terwyniad, s. m. (terwyn) A rendering ardent; a becoming ardent; a glowing.
Terwyniaw, v. a. (terwyn) To render ardent; to become ardent; to glow.
Terwynu, v. a. (terwyn) To render ardent; to become ardent; to glow.

El gyd-dirogion yn cam-darwynu wrtho.

His fellow-countrymen unjustly becoming enflamed against him.

H. Geraint—Mablog ion.

Terydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ter) A refiner.

Terydd, a. (têr) Ardent, vehement, full of activity, volatile; swift, nimble.

—Torfoedd terydd en gawr, trwm en dyar.

Hosts of vehement shout, heavy their din.

Talliesin.

Teryddawl, s. (terydd) Tending to render ardent or vehement; apt to be volatile.

Pumped byryston
Ar holl wibion
Eription;
Gweld miled;
O drwm acled
Deryddollon.

The fifth was destruction upon all the flying things of the Egyptian; the animals were seen, through severe disease, maddened ones.

Talliesin.

Teryddiad, s. m. (terydd) A rendering ardent, vehement, or full of activity.

Teryddu, v. a. (terydd) To render rapid; to grow rapid.

Teryg, s. m. (têr) An incrustation, a crust, or any thing clotted on the surface, incrustated dirt. Mac teryg ar dy sodlau, there is a crust of dirt on thy heels.

Teryll, a. (têr) Ardently glancing. Golwg teryll, an ardently-glancing eye, a piercing eye.

Teryllaidd, a. (teryll) Tending to glance ardently

Terylliad, s. m. (teryll) A glancing ardently.

Teryllu, v. a. (teryll) To glance ardently; to look fiercely.

Tes, s. m. (te—es) A spreading of rays; sunheat, sunshine, hot weather. Graid is used for it in South Wales generally.

Cydwyned o'r tes.

As warm as the sunshine.

Adage.

Edrych barddwch yr haul yn ei dda, ac iud yn ei ffrw.

Look at the beauty of the sun in its shining, and not in its disk.

Adage.

Morffodd ghaer—
Hial haul ymylau boerles,
Mannach tywynogaeth tes.

Bright Morfodd, like a sun with rays of active beneficence, the mother of the sovereignty of Acad.

D. ab Gwilym.

Dillad i noeth—
A gwely, a thy, a thes nelydd.

Clothing for the naked, and bed, and house, and the warmth of a hearth.

Gwethmair.

Tesa, v. a. (tes) To gather warmth; to wanton.

Tesach, s. m. (tes) Fullness of heat; wantonness.

Tesain, a. (tes) Abounding with warmth.

Tesaint, s. m. (tesain) A state teeming with warmth; cheerfulness, gladness.

Meisod wen—
A'i baichwyr, a'i baichwir tesaint.

Fair Meisod, with its eminent men, and its soaring truth of gladness.

Cyneddeu.

Tesawg, a. (tes) Abounding with heat; abounding with sunshine, sunny, hot.

Da o'r tri eangr ddichwain—yr haf tesawg, pan seythyt y coed-ydd a'r llysiad ar dan, ym awgerrid gwres yr haul, a chodli llawer o ddyfynion, ac auflleidd, a rhywian adim, a phryfed, a choeddydd, a llysiad, ym anegoraw.

One of the three awful events: the hot summer, when the woods and the herbs took fire, from the vehemency of the heat of the sun, and many men being lost, and cattle, and species of birds, and animals, and woods, and herbs, irretrievably.

Triodd.

Tesaw, a. (tes) Affording warmth or heat.

Tesawr, a. (tes) Abounding with much heat.

Tesiad, s. m. (tes) A dispensing warmth.

Tesiant, s. m. (tes) A producing warmth.

Testun, s. m.—pl. t. an (tes—tun) A theme, or subject of investigation.

Eriod ni wetals yr an,
Euraid wyal, a roe deutan.

Never have I seen one, of golden plecter, that would propose a subject.

D. ab Gwilym.

Testunaw, v. a. (testun) To set a subject or theme

Teth, s. f.—pl. t. an (te—eth) A teat, a dog, or pup. Tethas y gaseg, honeysuckle; also called gwyddfid.

Tethaidd, a. (teth) Like a teat or dog.

Tethan, s. f. dim. (teth) A small teat.

Tethawg, a. (teth) Having teats or dogs.

Tethawl, a. (teth) Papillary, belonging to teats.

Tethiad, s. m. (teth) A forming a teat.

Tethu, v. m. (teth) To grow into a teat.

Teulu, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tas—llu) A family, or household; a clan, or tribe. Y teulu, y telysteg, bendith eu wahan, Talrics: Cwm teulu, fury dogs.

Tri diwair deulu Ynys Prydain—teulu Cadwaladr o Ben, pa fuget haelogion; teulu Gwriad mab Ardun, pa fu y dallu; a theulu Gwriad o ab Cethu, pa Ardun; a theulu yr ymladd bythnos a mla wodi lledu en hargwyl.

The three faithful clans of the Isle of Britain: the clan of Cadwaladr son of Beli, when they were fettered together; the clan of Gwriad son of Ardun, when he was in the overruling wreck; and the clan of Gwriadolau son of Cethu in Ardun, who carried on the war for a fortnight and a month after the death of their lord.

Triodd.

Teuluaeth, s. m. (teulu) Domestic economy; social intercourse; hospitality.

Brodyr teuluaeth: bardd, ygoialg, a dadgwid.

The brothers of social life: a bard, a scholar, and a teacher.

Adage.

Teuluaidd, a. (teulu) Belonging to a family, or household; domestic, familiar.

Teuluaeth, s. m. (teulu) Domestic economy.

Teuluawg, a. (teulu) Having a family.

Teulnawl, a. (teulu) Belonging to a family.

Teulnedd, s. m. (teulu) Familiarity; concord.

Ar ol iau yr alaw, bid teulnedd traggwyddat rhwng y ddyn genedl.

After paying the fine of homicide, let there be eternal concord between the two generations.

Welsh Law.

Teulueidd-dra, s. m. (teuluaidd) Domesticity.

Teulueiddiad, s. m. (teuluaidd) A domesticating, a familiarizing, a becoming hospitable.

Teulueiddlaw, v. a. (teuluaidd) To domesticate; to become hospitable.

Teulueiddrwydd, s. m. (teuluaidd) Domesticness, hospitality.

*Ac ni char gwannu gwyn
Ond teulueiddrwydd rydd rym.*

And the distributor loves with us but hospitality of blood pour.

D. ab Gwilym.

Teulawas, s. m.—pl. teulaweision (teulu—gwr) A domestic servant.

*Nid oes—t'ith ddiwysu
Awr daw, ond wylaw gwian glau.*

There is not for thy household servant a slight hour, but to weep the pearly drops.

D. ab Gwilym.

Teuluwr, s. m.—pl. teuluwyr (teulu—gwr) Household man, a family man; a hospitable man.

Teuluwriaeth, s. m. (teuluwr) Household economy, domestic order; hospitality.

Teuluwraig, s. f.—pl. teuluwraigodd (teulu—gwraig) A housewife.

Teulüydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (teulu) One who domesticates; a family man.

Teulüyddawl, a. (teulüydd) Apt to familiarise.

Teulüyddes, s. f.—pl. t. an (teulüydd) Housewife.

Teulüyddiaeth, s. m. (teulüydd) The act of domesticating; a domestic state.

Tew, s. m.—pl. t. ion (te) That is thick, or gross; fat. a. Thick, gross, fat, plump; frequent, or abundant. Cwm tew, a thick skin; dyn tew, a fat person; y mor sy daw o bysgod, the sea is thick of fishes.

Tew y beiau He takes y carried.

Thick are the faults where the affection is slender.

Adage.

Tewlad, s. m. (tewlân) A thickening.

Tewlawl, a. (tewlân) Tending to thicken.

Tewaidd, a. (tew) Somewhat thick or gross.

Tewâu, v. a. (tew) To thicken; to condense; to fatten; to become thick; to grow fat.

Tewban, s. m. (tew—pan) That is thickened by beating, or by fulling.

Tewbanawg, a. (tewban) Being thickened by milling; an epithet for several thick-leaved plants. Y dewbanawg, canwyll yr adar, y banawg, clust y fawch, the great mullein, or high-taper; y dewbanawg fechan, cowslip; y dewbanawg wen wryw, gwyrddall, menyg y merched, rose-campion; y hanner-pan, white-mullein.

Tewder, s. m. (tew) Thickness; denseness, density; fatness.

Tewdor, s. m. (tew—tor) A thick cover; a thick shelter or defence. a. Of a thick covering or shade. Tawr tewdor, a thick-breasted bull; tewdor annedd, a thickly covered habitation.

Bid yth arfaeth i'r tri—
Can dug pen-wan Crist pemos o gaeth,
O ing, o gyngwngyngogath,
U angor tewdor tud blaeth.

Be thy practice devoted to the three, as the five wounds of Christ brought the five ages out of thraldom; from a strait, from a constrained society, from the tenacity of the thick shade of the region of woe. Cynddelw.

Gwrdd fyddin feiddid yn nbwder.

One who attacks a powerful host in the thickest part. Cynddelw.

Uchel-lan Gadfan ger glau glas-for,
Ni cholir ei thir nac ei tewdor.

The shore of Cadfan by the shore of a blue sea, its land will not be lost, nor its thick crop. Myrddin Fardd.

Tewdra, s. m. (tew) Thickness, density.

Tewdrwch, s. m. (tew—trwch) Density, solidity. a. Thick in bulk, solid.

Eis henethlun nid ydynt yn tarddu o gorff, neu ddafnydd tewdrwch anghreiddiadwy.

Our souls do not originate from a body, or dense matter not to be permeated. Ier. Owein.

Tewdwr, s. m. (tew—twr) This is a thick heap.

Tewdws, s. m. (tew—tws) A thick assemblage. a. Thickly collected. Y tar tewdws, the pleiades.

Tewi, s. m. (taw) A keeping silent, a holding one's tongue. v. a. To keep silent, to hold one's tongue.

Nid doethineb ond tewi.

There is no wisdom like holding the tongue. Adage.

Tawed doeth, annoth ni than.

Let the wise be silent, the unwise will not cease talking. Llywarch Hen.

Tawn, tawn, goren yw tewi;

Am bwa nid yganwn i.

Let us silence, let us silence, it is best to be silent; about this we will not utter a word. Iolo Goch.

Tewlad, s. m. (tew) A thickening, a condensing.

Tewlaeth, s. m. (tew—laeth) Thick milk. Llwyn y tewlaeth, the bell-flower.

Tewlyd, a. (tew) Tending to grow thick.

Tewn, v. a. (tew) To thicken; to grow thick.

Tewwch, s. m. (tew) Thickness, denseness.

Tewychald, a. (tewwch) Partly tending to thicken, or condense.

Tewychawl, a. (tewwch) Of thickening tendency

Tewychedig, a. (tewwch) Condensed; spissated.

Tewychedd, s. m. (tewwch) Spissitude.

Tewychiad, s. m. (tewwch) A thickening.

Tewychiannawl, a. (tewychiant) Condensing.

Tewychlannu, v. a. (tewychiant) To condensate.

Tewychiant, s. m. (tewwch) Condensation.

Tewychu, v. (tewwch) To thicken, to condense.

Tewyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (te—gwyn) A firebrand, or a torch; a burning coal.

Tewyn a than ya mhob pen.

A brand with a fire in both ends.

Adage.

Tewynawl, a. (tewyn) Tending to produce light.

Tewynilyd, a. (tewyn) Apt to produce light.

Callectr taulestr tewynallyd,
O walh gof yn boeth i gyd.

A fist fire-pan aptly striking fire, the work of a smith alongside the hot. T. Prys, on two pistols.

Teyrn, s. m.—pl. t. edd (te—gyrn) A sovereign, a king, a supreme ruler.

Traun teyrn heb ei ogorodd.

A sovereign is miserable without his train.

Adage.

Taw—

Cryn, mai yn deyrn, y dwg.

Mawr gwynion, yn Morganwg.

The bull, like a sovereign, carries horns large and white, in Morganwg. D. ab Iwan Dda.

Teyrnaidd, a. (teyrn) Like a sovereign.

Teyrnaig, s. f. (teyrn—aig) A supreme origin.

Teyrnaig arwar arffollier gwen

Teyrnerdd awen angen am gor.

The sovereign source of tranquility receiving the smile of the peculiar royal song of the muse roamed the circle. Cynddelw, i O. Gwynedd.

Teyrnain, a. (teyrn) Having sovereignty.

Teyrnair, s. m. (teyrn—air) A royal word.

Teyrnas, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (teyrn) A kingdom.

Bwyf yn beddwch—gloew deyrnas
Gwledig nef a llawr a liwyr ddinas,
Llary arglwydd llawr llwyn gwannas.

May I inherit the peace of the glorious Kingdom of the Supreme of heaven and earth and the whole universe, the beneficent Lord of many central radiations. Meiryl ab Gwalchmai.

Teyrnasawl, a. (teyrnas) Having a kingdom.

Teyrnasiad, s. m. (teyrnas) A reigning, a reign.

Teyrnasiath, s. m. (teyrnas) The rule of a kingdom; a reign.

Teyrnasu, v. a. (teyrnas) To govern a kingdom, to perform the functions of a king, to reign.

Teyrnawg, a. (teyrn) Having a king.

Teyrnawl, a. (teyrn) Belonging to royalty.

Teyrndiws, s. m.—pl. teyrndiwsan (teyrn—diws)

A jewel or part of regalia.

Teyrndreth, s. f.—pl. t. i (teyrn—treth) A tribute.

Teyrnddrud, a. (teyrn—drud) Royally bold.

Teyrnedd, s. m. (teyrn) Sovereignty, kingship.

Prydain ab Aedid Mawr a wael wladolath a theyrnedd gyntaf ar Ynys Prydain; a chyn no hynt nid oedd o lawr namyn a waelid o addwynder, na dedd namyn y truchaf truedd.

Prydain son of Aedid the Great formed a body politic and sovereignty first in the Isle of Britain; and previously there was of justice only what might be done through kindness of disposition, nor any law but the strongest might oppress. Triodd.

Teyrnes, s. f.—pl. t. au (teyrn) Female sovereign.

Teyrnfar, s. m. (teyrn—bar) A kingly wrath.

Teyrnfardd, s. m.—pl. teyrnfairdd (teyrn—bardd)

A royal bard.

Teyrnfoes, s. f. (teyrn—moes) A kingly demeanour.

Teyrnfoes eirionn eirfachder

Teyrnedd ai gwyf, a gweloir.

A splendid Manly demeanour to be imploring, princes behold it, and it will be seen. Cynddelw, i O Gwynedd.

Teyrnfrad, s. m. (teyrn—brad) Treason against a sovereign; high treason.

Teyrnfradu, v. a. (teyrnfrad) To commit treason against a sovereign.

Teyrnfradwr, s. m.—pl. teyrnfradwyr (teyrnfrad—gwr) A traitor against a king.

Teyrnfradwriaeth, s. m. (teyrnfradwr) High treason.

Teyrnfro, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (teyrn—bro) A country under the rule of a king.

Teyrnfudd, s. f. (teyrn—budd) Benefit of the king.

Teyrnged, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (teyrn—ced) Tribute

Gwedd clybod o Glocw Caluar y chwedl hwnw, yntan a anfonws Fespaian, i gynhell Gweirdd ar dangwedd i gwy'r Rhafan, ac i dalu y gwaetddeg deyrnged.

After Claudius Cesar had heard that report, he then sent Vespaian, to prevail on Gweirdd to be on terms of peace with the men of Rome, and to pay the accustomed tribute.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Teyrngerd, s. f.—pl. t. i (teyrn—cerdd) Royal song.

Teyrngoron, s. f.—pl. t. au (teyrn—coron) A diadem.

Teyrnialen, s. f. dim. (teyrn—ialen) A sceptre.

Yn yr ystafell hono yr oedd cadwr, yn yr hon yn fawreddig yr oedd llywydd yn eistedd—ac yn ei law deyrnialen.

In that chamber there was a chair, in which majestically there was seated a prince, and holding in his hand a sceptre.

Marchawg Crwydrad.

Teyrnlaw, s. f. (teyrn—llaw) A royal hand.

Teyrnles, s. m. (teyrn—lles) The good of a king.

Teyrnllid, s. m. (teyrn—llid) Royal wrath.

Teyrnlin, s. m. (teyrn—llin) Royal line.

Teyrnllw, s. m. (teyrn—llw) A royal oath.

Teyrnogaeth, s. f. (teyrnawg) A kingly office.

Teyrnogi, v. a. (teyrnawg) To render kingly; to become regal.

Teyrnoldeb, s. m. (teyrnaw) A regal state.

Teyrnolder, s. m. (teyrnaw) Regality.

Teyrnolodd, s. m. (teyrnaw) Royalty.

Teyrnoli, v. a. (teyrnaw) To render regal.

Teyrnolrwydd, s. m. (teyrnaw) Regality.

Teyrnnon, s. m. (teyrn) A princely one.

*Selyf yngnad—
Bu gwell nog add
Mab teyrnon;
Bu gwaed berthion
O'i gyweithydd.*

Selyf the judge, superior to him was the son of a royal chief, wealth was evanished from having his support.

Talliesin.

Teyrnwal, s. f. (teyrn—gwal) A regal couch.

Teyrnwalch, s. m.—pl. teyrnweilch (teyrn—gwalch) An aspiring prince.

Teyrnwarth, s. m. (teyrn—gwarth) Royal shame.

Teyrnwas, s. m.—pl. teyrnwaision (teyrn—gwas) A royal youth.

*Dinas teyrnas teyrnwais ohen
Teyrnwalch din Emraie:
Bu da deithol a gefale;
Bu doeth fal y deitholais.*

The bulwark of the kingdom of yielding princely youths is the aspiring lord of the castle of Emraie: a choice good fortune I obtained; wise was the course I chose.

Cynaddlau.

Teyrnwawd, s. m. (teyrn—gwawd) Royal eulogy.

Teyrnawwl, s. m. (teyrn—gawl) Royal splendor.

Teyrnawwr, s. f. (teyrn—gwawr) Dawn of royalty.

Teyrnwialen, s. f. (teyrn—gwialen) A sceptre.

TI, s. m. r. That is in; that is separate; that is distinct. pron. Thee; thou. I ti a mi da peid-law, for thee and me it is good to desist: Ti yw y dyn, thou art the person.

Gwna iawn, ti a gei iawn andano.

Do justice, thou shalt have justice in return for it.

Adage.

*Tal am dy wawd, cyn toll;
Twyll y prydigion wyt ti.*

Pay for thy praise, ere it be curtailed: the delusion of the poets art thou.

D. ab Gwilym, i Forfnedd.

Tib, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ti—ib) A particle; a bit.

Tiboeth, s. m. (tib—oeth) A pure particle. It was the name of a rare book, left by Beuno in the church of Clynnaw, and said to have been written by Twrog, in the beginning of the seventh century.

*Llygdd fal ghaia cawad coeth,
Tibyst fawn y tiboth.*

An eye like the pure shower crystal, to be compared to the pure drop gem.

Tic, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ti—ic) A particle.

Ticiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tic) A forming into small particles.

Ticial, v. a. (tic) To produce small particles, or drops; to drain the last drops, in milking.

Ticyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (tic) A particle; a small bit, a little scrap.

Mae pob ticyn yn dicyn, oeth y dryw, pan hwyys y m.

Every little is a little, said the wren, when he placed in the nest.

Adage.

Tid, s. f.—pl. t. au (ti—id) A draught chain.

Bwrw tidas, to let drivel, to fall, to drivel, to tiddle.

Tidaw, v. a. (tid) To fasten with a chain or rope, to chain.

Tidawg, a. (tid) Having a chain, chained.

Tidawl, a. (tid) Belonging to a chain; like a chain.

Tidiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tid) A chaining.

Tidiedig, a. (tidiad) Being fastened with a chain.

Tidmwy, s. m.—pl. t. au (tid—mwy) A tedder.

Tidmwyad, s. m. (tidmwy) A teddering.

Tidmwyaw, v. a. (tidmwy) To tie, to tedder.

*Cymer a fo yn dy feddiant,
A thidmwyad dy fawrchwant,
Haws no'u cadw cynuall arian.*

Take of what is in thy possession, and restrain thy rapacity; it is easier than to sleep to collect money.

Caring ab Gwynlla.

Tidraff, s. f.—pl. t. au (tid—rhaff) A chain-rape.

Tifar, a. (ti—bar) Repentant, contrite.

Tifariad, s. m. (tifar) A repenting; repentance.

Tifaru, v. a. (tifar) To repent, to be sorry.

Tifaru fal y gwr a laddwys ci fili.

To repent like the man who killed his greyhound.

Adage.

*Mae yn rhy hwy'r tifar,
Yn oi i'r fael gynnu.*

It is too late to repent, after the trap hath sprung.

Adage.

Tifarus, a. (tifar) Repenting, penitent.

Tifedd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ti—medd) An heir.

*Piant Tedyr—daction pentates
A tiffeddion, iuth fydded, Gwynedd; pedwar cydwedd ced.*

The children of Tedyr, generous chiefs of tribes, and heirs (ominous be the words) of Gwynedd; four state for thee.

John Goch.

Tifeddawdy, a. (tiffedd) Hereditary; inheritable.

Tifeddawg, a. (tiffedd) Having inheritance.

Tifeddawl, a. (tiffedd) Hereditary; inheriting.

Tifeddedig, a. (tiffedd) Being inherited.

Tifeddies, s. f.—pl. t. au (tiffedd) An inheritance.

Tifeddiad, s. m. (tiffedd) An inheriting.

Tifeddiaeth, s. m. (tiffedd) Inheritance.

Tifeddiaethu, v. a. (tiffeddiaeth) To form an inheritance.

Tifeddogi, v. a. (tiffeddawg) To endow with an inheritance; to have an inheritance.

Tifeddogrwydd, s. m. (tiffeddawg) The state of being inherited.

Tifeddoldeb, s. m. (tiffeddawl) The state of being hereditary.

Tifeddoli, v. a. (tiffeddawl) To render hereditary.

Tifeddolrwydd, s. m. (tiffeddawl) The state of being hereditary.

Tifeddu, v. a. (tiffedd) To inherit; to possess.

Tifedduas, a. (tiffedd) Hereditary; possessory.

Tifedduasaw, v. a. (tiffedduas) To render hereditary, to become hereditary.

Tifedduswydd, s. m. (tiffedus) The state of being hereditary.

Tifeddwr, s. m.—pl. tiffeddwyf (tiffedd—gwr) An inheritor.

Tifeiriad, s. m. (tifar) A repenting.

Tifeiriannawl, a. (tifeiriant) Tending to repentance, or remorse.

Tifeiriannu, v. a. (tifeiriant) To produce repentance, or remorse.

Tifeiriannus, a. (tifeiriant) Tending to repentance, or remorse.

Tifeiriant, s. m. (tifar) Repentance, remorse.

*Mair Fawdlen, serce y saint,
Y dwf orefu difeiriailt.*

Mary Magdalene, the imaginary of saints, the choicest fruit of repentance.
Gwyn Ceirwng.

Tifeirwch, s. m. (tifar) Repentance, remorse.

Tifeirwch newydd am ben bechawd.

New remorse for an old sin.

Adage.

Til, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ti—il) A minute particle.

Tiliad, s. m.—pl. tiliad (til) A small fly like a gnat.

Tim, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ti—im) A little.

Timyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (tim) A small particle; a little bit, a small matter.

*A pyddwadau i hyd hyn,
I Weneddydd wneaf uobyn,
Dydderddi cyniait timyn.*

What I have predicted until now, to Gweneddydd the idol of princes, it shall come to pass to the smallest title. Cyf. Merddin.

Tin, s. f.—pl. t. au (ti—ln) A tail, a bottom, a breech. Tin y cwr, the bottom of the bag: Tin y nyth, bach y nyth, the tail of the nest, or the least of the brood; tin y gler, the tail of the minstrels, a poetaster: Tinion yr yd, the light grains of corn: Tin ab, the ape's breech, a fault in prosody, being the full rhyme, as used in English versification.

Tinagored, a. (tin—agored) Open tailed. Tinagored, the common medlar; also called y din-doll.

Tinaw, v. a. (tin) To form a tail; to stretch out the posteriors.

Tinawg, a. (tin) Having a tail; having large posteriors.

Tinawl, a. (tin) Belonging to the posteriors.

Tinbais, s. f.—pl. tinbeislau (tin—pais) A petticoat.

Tinben, adv. (tin—pen) Head to tail. Tinben-drosben, tin-drosben, topsy-turvy.

Tinbleth, a. (tin—pleth) Tail-twined.

Tinboeth, a. (tin—poeth) Hot-tailed. Y dinboeth, arsesmart; also called elinawg: y tinboeth, y singoch, the redstart, a bird so called.

Tinbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (tin—pren) The bracer.

Tinc, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ting) A tink, a tinkle.

Tinceirddiad, s. m.—pl. tinceirddiaid (tincerdd) A doing tinkery work.

Tinceirddiaeth, s. m. (tincerdd) Tinkery.

Tinceirddiaw, v. a. (tincerdd) To work as a tinker.

Tinceirddiawl, a. (tincerdd) Belonging to a tinker's work.

Tincerdd, s. m.—pl. tinceirddion (tin—cerdd) The tail of a craft, a tinker.

Tinceirddiaeth, s. m. (tincerdd) Tinkery.

Tinciad, s. m. (tinc) A tinkling, a tinkling.

Tincial, v. a. (tinc) To tinkle, to tingle; to draw the last milk, in milking.

Tincian, v. a. (tinc) To tink, to tinkle, to tingle; to draw the last milk; to drain the last drops. Ni waeth i ti dewi no thincian, thou mayest as well be silent as to be dinning.

Tinclaw, v. a. (tinc) To tink, to tinkle; to ring.

Tincion, s. pl. aggr. (tinc) The last-drawn milk.

Tincwd, s. m. (tin—cud) The bottom of a bag.

A fyao fod yn becwed, na wneud a wedd i diacwd.

He that would be the top of a bag, let him not commit what suits the bottom of a bag.
Adage.

Tindafiad, s. m. (tin—tafiad) A throwing the tail, a shaking the tail.

Tindaflu, v. a. (tin—taflu) To throw the tail; to winch.

Tindew, a. (tin—tew) Fat-buttocked.

Tindin, adv. (tin repeated) Tail to tail.

Tindoll, a. (tin—toll) Having the tail sink. Y diddell, the common medlar.

Tindopiaw, v. a. (tin—toplaw) To flounce.

Tindraphen, adv. (tin—tra—pen) Arse over head.

Tindraws, a. (tin—traws) Cross-tailed.

Tindro, s. m. (tin—tro) A turn of the tail.

Tindroed, s. m. (tin—troed) The didapper.

Tindroi, v. a. (tin—dro) To turn the tail.

Tindrom, a. (tin—trom) Heavy-tailed.

Tindrosben, adv. (tin—tros—pen) Arse over head.

Bedeirwyr y bu daraw Annyben dindrosben draw.

For four hours there was yonder a tedious toposy-turvy contest.
Morgan Elfael.

Tindrwm, a. (tin—trwm) Heavy-tailed.

Tinfoel, a. (tin—moel) Bare-tailed. Brenau din-foel, a round-bottomed quern.

Tingloff, a. (tin—clloff) Lame in the hip.

Tingloffedd, s. m. (tingloff) Lameness of the hip.

Tingloff, v. a. (tingloff) To render lame in the hip; to become lame in the hip.

Tingloffni, s. m. (tingloff) A limping, a halting.

Tingoch, a. (tin—coch) Red-tailed. Aderyn tingoch, aderyn rhawngoch, gwaw y seiri, the bull-finch.

Tingrach, a. (tin—crach) Scabby-tailed.

Tingrech, s. m. (tingrach) Scabbiness of the tail.

Tinlaw, v. a. (tin) To turn tail.

Tinlach, a. (tin—llach) Broad-bottomed; squabby

Tinlethu, v. a. (tin—llethu) To overlay.

Tinllachiad, s. m.—pl. tinllachiaid (tinlach) A broad-bottomed one.

Tinllom, a. (tin—llom) Bare-bottomed.

Tinllwm, a. (tin—llwm) Bare-bottomed.

Tinllwyd, s. m. (tin—llwyd) Wild-tansy.

Tinnoeth, a. (tin—noeth) Bare-tailed.

Tinpen, s. f.—pl. t. i (tin—pen) A hassock or straw stool. Tinpen fagu, a nursing-stool.

Tinred, s. f. (tin—rhed) A tail running.

Tinroth, a. (tin—rthoth) Open-tailed.

Tinrwith, a. (tin—rhwth) Open-tailed.

Tinrythiad, s. m. (tinrwith) A tail opening.

Tinrythu, v. a. (tinrwith) To open tail.

*Nyche'r frau—
Yn dwyn rhuthr dan dinrythu.*

Behold the crow making an assault while spreading out the tail.
D. ab Gwilym.

Tinsigl, s. m. (tin—sigl) A wagtail. Tinsigl y gwys, brith y juckes, the field wagtail; tinsigl y dwf, the water wagtail or kingsfisher.

Tinsiglad, s. m. (tinsigl) A shaking the tail.

Tinsiglaw, v. a. (tinsigl) To shake the tail.

Tinwyg, a. (tin—gywg) Open-tailed.

Tinwygydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tinwyg) One with open tail.

*Mensalc—ynt ar eu bragiog;
Braision dinwygyddion uig.*

The monks, they feast on their fat vlands; the surly pampered open tailed ones.
Dr. S. Cent.

Ting, s. m. (ti—ing) A crinkle; a tingle.
Tingaw, v. a. (ting) To draw up, or to contract; to tingle.

Y glyw glew dywal, ni dal, ni ding.

The chief brave and fierce, that will not concede, that will not flinch.
Cyndddu.

Tingawl, a. (ting) Crinkling; tinkling.
Tingiad, s. m. (ting) A crinkling; a tinkling.
Tip, s. m.—pl. t. ian (tib) A particle, a bit, or small fragment. Dyma fo wedi tori yn dipiau man, here it is broken all to shatters.
Tipyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (tip) A point; a small particle, bit, or piece. Tipynau crynion, round particles: Taled imi o dipyn i dipyn, it has been paid to me by little and little: O dipyn i beth, from a little to some.

Tipyniad, s. m. (tipyn) A forming a small bit, or particle.

Tipynu, v. a. (tipyn) To form into a small bit, to divide into particles.

Tir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ti—ir) Land; earth, soil, ground. Tir sych, sychdir, dry land; tir llan, glebe land; tir burdd y llys, land for the table of the palace; tir cyfrif, tir cyllidus, land liable to a tax or rent, copyhold land; tir such a chwellir, land under socage tenure; tir diffoddedig, alienated land; tir gweilyawg, land held by gavel kind; tir gwydd, tir gwyddwyr, wood land turned into arable; tir ar, arable land; tir y fferdwf, demesne land.

Un o del chyfarwyawg Ysops Prydau: Hu Gadarn, a ddangos-es y ffordd i ara tir gynaf i gwael y Cymry.

One of the three gift-bestowers of the Isle of Britain: Hu the Mighty, who showed the way to plough land first to the nation of the Cymry.
Triedd.

*Yno y calf Brython
 Ne tir, u'a coron;
 A' holl estronion
 A ddifnann.*

Then the Brython shall obtain their land, and their crows; and the foreign people shall disappear.
Iwan Athraw o Pyngon.

Tir, s. m. (ty—ir) That extends, or continues.

Tiraeth, s. m. (tir) Continuity, continuation.

Tiraw, v. a. (tir) To extend in continuity.

Tirawg, a. (tir) Continual; continuative.

*Traen im', wr ghan rhy galewng,
 Tori fy llygaid tirawg yn ywlaw!*

Miserable for me, after the agreeable man courageous to succore,
 I burst my eyes with continual weeping!
L. G. Cuth.

Tirdra, s. m. (tir—tra) Land detention, one of the three causes for rejecting witnesses in trials respecting land, which was when the witness had an issue undetermined upon it.

Tirdra, neu drau am dir y sy lly ar wyboddhaid.

Land detention, or forcible occupation of land, is a cause of rejection of witnesses.
Welsh Laws.

Tirdriniad, s. m. (tir—triniad) A dressing of land.

Tirdriniath, s. m. (tir—triniath) Land dressing.

Tirdriniawl, a. (tir—triniawl) Agricultural.

Tirddiwyll, s. m. (tir—diwyll) Agriculture.

Tirddiwylliad, s. m. (tirddiwyll) A practising of agriculture.

Tirddiwyllaw, v. a. (tirddiwyll) To practise agriculture.

Tirddiwyllawd, s. m. (tirddiwyll) Agriculture.

Tirddiwyllawdr, s. m.—pl. tirddiwyllawdron (tirddiwyllawd) An agriculturist.

Annogai y brenin y tirddiwyllawdron i ddiwyllaw y ddair.

The king was wont to urge the husbandmen to cultivate the earth.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Tirddiwyllawdwr, s. m.—pl. tirddiwyllawdwyr (tirddiwyllawd—gwr) An agriculturist.

Tirddiwyllawdwr, s. m. (tirddiwyllawd) The practice of agriculture.

Tirf, a. (tir) Fresh, vigorous, luxuriant, rich, lively, fat.

Y rhai a blawyd yn nhy yr Arglwydd, a fodeinat yn aglyteddeidd ein Ddu: Pŵrthant eto yn eu bechid; iden a'raidd fyddant.

Those that have been planted in the house of the lord, will flourish in the courts of our God: They will bring forth fruit again in their old age: fresh and lively they will be.
Psal. xii.

Tirfaw, s. m. (tirf) A freshening; a fattening.

Tirfawl, a. (tirf) Tending to enrich.

Tirfau, v. a. (tirf) To freshen; to enrich.

Tirfira, s. m. (tirf) Freshness, richness.

Tiriad, s. m. (tir) A landing, a making land.

Tiriada, v. a. (tiriad) A making a landing.

Tiriaeth, s. m. (tir) What has respect to land.

Tiriaethawl, a. (tiriath) Agrarian.

Tiriaw, v. a. (tir) To land; to turn up the ground; to come to land, to come ashore.

Rhyw iddo diriaw erall dired.

It is habitual for him to land in other lands. Llygod Gw.

Wedi ein tiriaw i Syracusa y trigem yno ddiad.

After we came to land to Syracuse we abided there for three days.
N. Anthony.

Tiriawg, a. (tir) Having land, or landed.

Tiriawl, a. (tir) Terreous, or earthly.

Tiriedig, a. (tiriad) Being made land; landed.

Tiriogaeth, s. m. (tiriawg) Landed property.

*Gorpo trynawr tyryngedol bend
 Ar Brydain diriogaeth.*

May his royal energy obtain the predicted sovereignty over the territory of Britain.
Cyndddu, i O. Oghill.

Tiriogawl, a. (tiriawg) Agrarian; belonging to the possession of land.

Tiriogi, v. a. (tiriawg) To possess land.

Tirion, s. m. (tir—ion) A source of continuance; a familiar spot; a situation, or station.

*Ei thestian yw tracheduron,
 A gyfyr yw ei thestion:
 A bydd hwy ynyw o'i thirion,
 Blandid rhyd rhwng ei dwy afon.*

Its tributaries are oysters, who shall rise up monuments of truth and the eldest name, which proceeded from its situation, it was the ford between its two rivers.
Cyndddu i Popul.

Dwyn Dafydd o'i dind ac o'i dind!

Taking away Dafydd out of his land and out of his father's spot!
L. F. Rich.

Tirion, a. (tir—ion) Pleasant, pleasing, genial; kind, courteous; lovely, delightful. Lle tirion, a pleasant place; dyn tirion, a courteous person; O, dirioned ydyw hi! Oh, how lovely she is!

*Ei deuwedd dirion
 A gar y gwirion,
 A lle coed tirion,
 Lle cadarnion.*

Her lovely cheeks the innocent doth love, and the inmates of verdant woods, where they spread themselves.
W. Ligon.

Tirionald, a. (tirion) Of a tendency to delight.

Tirionawl, a. (tirion) Delighting, pleasing.

Tiriondeb, s. m. (tirion) Pleasantness; kindness; courteousness; loveliness; gentleness.

Tirionder, s. m. (tirion) Pleasantness; kindness.

Tiriondra, s. m. (tirion) Pleasantness; kindness.

Tirionedd, s. m. (tirion) Pleasantness; kindness.

Tirioneiddiad, s. m. (tirionald) A rendering somewhat pleasing; a becoming pleasing.

Tirioneiddawl, v. a. (tirionald) To render somewhat pleasing; to become rather pleasing.

Tirioneiddrwydd, s. m. (tirionald) Pleasingness.

Tirion, v. a. (tirion) To render pleasant or pleasing; to render kind or lovely; to become pleasant or genial; to be kind or compassionate; to become delightful; to become gentle. O, tiriona wrtho, da dithau / Oh, be compassionate to him, that is a good creature!

*O daw gwael, dig ydwyf;
Twy na ddol, tirion 'ddwyf.*

If afterwards he come, I am angry grown; so he comes not, I am becoming pleasant.

Tirioniad, s. m. (tirion) A rendering pleasant, delightful, or lovely; a becoming pleasant.
Tirionus, a. (tirion) Pleasing; delighting.
Tirionusaw, v. a. (tirionus) To render pleasing, or delightful; to become pleasing.
Tirionussedd, s. m. (tirionus) Pleasingness.
Tirionnarwydd, s. m. (tirionus) Pleasingness.
Tirionwch, s. m. (tirion) Pleasantness, delectableness; kindness, genialness, suavity, courtneousness; loveliness; gentleness.

*Pan fu Mon a'i thirionwch,
O wnes fflam, yn eiddas ffwrch.*

When Mona and its pleasantness shall be, from the heat of destructive flame, a fervid ember.

Gro. Owain.

Tirogdd, s. m. (tirawg) Continuity.
Tirwibiad, s. m.—pl. tirwibiad (tir—gwiabiad) A landloper; a vagrant.

Tis, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ti—is) A sneeze.
Tisiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tis) A sneezing.
Tisian, v. a. (tis) To sneeze, to keep sneezing.
Tisiaw, v. a. (tis) To sneeze, to stertunate.
Tislawg, a. (tis) Having a sneezing.
Tisiawl, a. (tis) Tending to sneeze, sneezing.
Tloedig, a. (tisiad) Sneezed, or stertunated.
Tistwr, s. m.—pl. thiwyr (tis—gwr) A sneezer.
Titen, s. f. dim. (tid) That turns, or spins; the name of a small fly like a gnat.

Titiad, s. m.—pl. titiad (tid) A sort of small fly, like a gnat. Titiad are also called gwibed bach, and ffiliad.

Titw, s. f. (tid) Puss, a fond name for a cat.
Titr, s. m.—pl. t. au (tid) That makes a whirl, or spin. Titr bach, the name of one of the 24 measures in music.

Tithau, pres. (ti—tan) Thyself; thou also.

Car heddwch, a Duw a'ih gar dithau.

Love peace, and God will love thee then.

Adage.

Mi Lywarch; tithau Lywelyn Mychdeyrn ceryn.

I am Lywarch; and thou art Lywelyn sovereign of the mighty ones.

Ll. P. Mach.

Tlawd, s. m.—pl. tlodion (tylawd) That is poor or needy, the poor. a. Poor.

Tlodaidd, a. (tlawd) Somewhat poor, or needy.

Tlodedig, a. (tlawd) Being rendered poor.

Tlodedd, s. m. (tlawd) Poverty, poorness.

*A gylweistl a gant Heledd,
Parch Cyndrwyn, fawr ei rhesfald;
Nid rhodol da a wna tlodedd.*

Hast thou heard what Heledd sung, the daughter of Cyndrwyn, of great wealth: it is not the giving of goods that causes poverty.

Eng. y Clywed.

Tloden, s. f. dim. (tlawd) A poor female.

Tlodl, s. m. (tlawd) Poverty. v. a. To make poor, to impoverish; to become poor.

Tlodiad, s. m. (tlawd) A making poor, an impoverishment.

Tlodrwydd, s. m. (tlawd) Poverty, neediness.

Tlodus, a. (tlawd) Necessitous, needy.

Tlodusaw, v. a. (tlodus) To render necessitous; to become necessitous.

Tlodusdeb, s. m. (tlodus) Necessitousness.

Tlodusder, s. m. (tlodus) Necessitousness.

Tlodusdra, s. m. (tlodus) Necessitousness.

Tlodussedd, s. m. (tlodus) Necessitousness.

VOL. II.

Tlodusarwydd, s. m. (tlodus) Necessitousness.

Tlodyn, s. m. dim. (tlawd) A poor fellow.

Tlos, a. (f. of tlws) Pretty, or handsome.

Ditro, ddi aur Degau dlos, Ydyw bechawd, heb achos.

To be offended, thou with golden front like beautiful Tegau; is a sin, and without cause.

S. Tudgr.

Tlosen, s. f. dim. (tlos) A pretty little female.

Tlosgain, a. (tlos—cain) Pretty and splendid.

Bun dlogain, a maid pretty and fine.

Tlws, s. m.—pl. tlwsau (ty—llws) Any thing pretty; a jewel. a. Pretty, beautiful.

Goren un tlws gwraig dda.

The best jewel of any is a good wife.

Adage.

*—Ceiriau dy fio,
Tlwsau dy frawd Taliesin.*

The words of thy lips, are the beauties of thy brother Taliesin.

H. ab Iwan Bardd Coch.

Tlwsaidd, a. (tlws) Somewhat pretty.

Tlwsair, s. m.—pl. tlwsairian (tlws—gair) A fine word; a bon mot.

Tlwsawg, a. (tlws) Abounding with jewels.

Tlwsawl, a. (tlws) Of a pretty appearance.

Tlwsedd, s. m. (tlws) Prettiness, handsomeness.

Tlwsigist, s. f.—pl. t. iau (tlws—cist) A cabinet for jewels.

Tlwsy, s. m. (tlws) Prettiness, handsomeness.

Tlwsiad, s. m. (tlws) A rendering pretty.

Tlwsiant, s. m. (tlws) A rendering pretty.

Tlwsibl, s. m. (tlws) Prettiness, handsomeness.

Tlwsrwydd, s. m. (tlws) Prettiness, handsomeness.

Tlwsu, v. a. (tlws) To render pretty.

Tlwsyn, s. m. dim. (tlws) A pretty thing.

TŌ, s. m. r.—pl. t. au. That is out or over; an exterior, a surface; a covering; a layer; a generation; the covering of a house, a roof. Tan do, under cover: pedol a'i tho o hoelion, a horse shoe with its set of nails: Am y to a elo to arall a ddaw, for the generation that passes away another generation will come; y to a ddol, the generation to come: To dr do, stratum super stratum: To gwellt, a thatch roof; to ceryg, a slate roof: Adar y to, sparrows.

*Ni wyddant —
Pwy a ehoellir o'r do y sydd.*

They know not who would get the advantage of the roof that is.

Meddyr.

*Nid dim gan y to yma,
Twy tid oll ond wreiddo da.*

This generation thinks of nothing, altogether in a rage, but of wasting property.

T. Aled.

Töad, s. m. (to) A covering, or spreading over; a roofing.

Töadwy, a. (töad) Capable of being covered.

Töawg, a. (to) Having a covering; being roofed.

Töawl, a. (to) Belonging to a covering, or roof.

Tob, s. m. (to—ob) A summit, or a top.

Tobren, s. m.—pl. t. i (to—pren) A thatcher's dibber or stick.

Tobyn, s. m. dim. (tob) A summit, or highest point. Dibyn dobyn, impending top, an expression used in childish play.

Toc, s. m. (to—oc) That is upon or over; that is instantaneous, short or abrupt; a hat, a cap, or bonnet.

Toc, adv. (toc, s.) Instantly, forthwith, presently, shortly. Mi a'f yno tes, I will go there presently; toc a da, presently and in good time.

Tocen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. an (toc) That is cut or docked.

Toel, s. m. (toc) That is cut into a piece; what is cut out; an allowance.

3 Z

Tociad, s. m. (toc) A cutting off; clipping.
Tociaw, v. a. (toc) To curtail, to clip, to trim, to dock.

Darlŷ'r ddiolstrïwr mawr wnaŷu grym llaweroedd ar y ffordd, ac a dodiodd eu hadenydd hwynt yn ddot, fal na bu mo'r gallu yoddynt bylli mwyach i ehedeg yu uchel.

The great destroyer has enfeebled the energy of many on the way, and has clipped their wings dreadfully, so that there was no power in them ever after to fly on high. Jer. Owein.

Tociawg, a. (toc) Having a clipping, or docking; having a ticket, or ticketed.

Tociawl, a. (toc) Clipping, docking; ticketing.

Tociedig, a. (tociad) Being curtailed; clipped.

Tociwr, s. m.—pl. tociwyr (toc—gwr) A clipper, one who clips or docks.

Tocyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. od (toc) A short piece or slip; a ticket. Tynw tocyn, to draw a lot; dewis ai byraf docyn ai hiraf docyn, choose whether the shortest lot or the longest lot.

Tocynawl, a. (tocyn) Belonging to a ticket.

Tocyniad, s. m. (tocyn) A ticketing.

Tocynu, v. a. (tocyn) To ticket, to draw lots.

Tochawl, a. (tawch) Moistening, soaking; hazy.

Tochi, v. a. (tawch) To render moist, to soak; to thicken; to become humid; to become foggy or hazy.

Tochiad, s. m. (tawch) A soaking; a hazing.

Todawl, a. (tawd) Being stretched in contact.

Todi, v. a. (tawd) To stretch over; to constrict.

Todiad, s. m. (tawd) A constriction; a junction.

Todyn, s. m. dim. (tawd) That stretches over.

Toddadwy, a. (tawdd) Capable of being melted.

Toddad, s. m. (tawdd) That is in a melting state; that is of a melting nature; the name of a species of metre, consisting of nineteen syllables. Y doddad felen, common butterwort; y doddad wrên, or toddedig, the white rot, or marsh pennywort.

Toddawl, a. (tawdd) Dissolving, or melting.

Toddedig, a. (tawdd) Dissolved, melted. Toddedigion, liquids, in grammar: Y doddedig rudd, the rosasolis; y doddedig wrên, ladies bedstraw, a herb used instead of rennet.

Toddedigaeth, s. m. (toddedig) The act of melting.

Toddedigawl, a. (toddedig) Of a tendency to melt.

Toddi, v. a. (tawdd) To melt, to dissolve; to become melted.

Ni thawdd dyled er ei baros.

A debt will not dissolve in waiting for it. Adage.

Gormes mawr a dawdd o ffân glewder bach.

Great oppression will melt away before a little courage. Adage.

Toddad, s. m. (tawdd) A melting, a dissolving.

Toddiannawl, a. (toddiant) Dissolvent.

Toddiannu, v. a. (toddiant) To make a solution.

Toddiant, s. m. (tawdd) A solution, a melting.

Toddion, s. pl. (tawdd) Meltings; dripping.

Toddwr, s. m.—pl. toddwyr (tawdd—gwr) A melter, or one who dissolves; a smelter.

Tôed, s. m. (to) A covering; a roofing.

Ysafell Cynddyllan a'm gŵin.

El gwelod heb wedd, heb dan!

The hall of Cynddyllan wounds me, to see it without covering, without fire! Llywarch Hen.

Tôedig, a. (tôed) Covered, or roofed.

Toes, s. m. (taw) Dough, or paste of bread.

Toesidd, a. (toes) Somewhat like dough.

Toesawg, a. (toes) Abounding with dough.

Toesawl, a. (toes) Of a doughy quality.

Toeseg, s. f. (toes) A kneading trough.

Toesi, v. a. (toes) To make dough; to become dough.

Toesiad, s. m. (toes) A making into dough.

Toeslyd, a. (toes) Doughy or like dough.

Toeslydrwydd, s. m. (toeslyd) Doughiness.

Toesyn, s. m. dim. (toes) A lump of dough.

Tofi, v. a. (tawf) To draw out; to place in a range.

Tofiad, s. m. (tawf) A drawing out in a range.

Tofrwyn, s. pl. aggr. (to—brwyn) Thatch-rubes.

Togi, v. a. (tawg) To elongate, to extend.

Toi, v. a. (to) To cover over, to put a layer over; to cover in, or to roof, to thatch, to slate, or to tile a building.

Tui y cyfreithwyr a doir a chwyn y cyfreithgar.

The houses of the lawyers are covered with the skins of the law. Adage.

Tol, s. m. (to—ol) that covers or includes; that separates; that is loud.

Tolach, s. m. (tol) A moan. v. a. To moan.

Tolc, s. m.—pl. t. ian (tol) An impression or hollow made by a blow; a dent, a dinge.

Ni rodd tolc yn yr lad tan.

A dent has not been given in that head of thine.

O. ab Idris yn Nant.

Tolciad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tole) A forming a hollow, or lapse; a punching, or driving in; a denting, a creasing, a dinging.

Y tolciadau cydd yn gwrannawtho yn llyd holl, ac y ploddio na yn tegus rhwng tyndda a chywirddrauan.

The stops serve instead of bowings: and the stops assist between drawings and chords. Cerddorion.

Tolciaw, v. a. (tolc) To make a hollow, or impression by a blow; to dent, to crease, to dinge.

Tolciawg, a. (tolc) Having falls, dents, or creases.

Tolciedig, a. (tolciad) Being impressed, or dented by any force; dinged.

Tolciwr, s. m.—pl. tolciwyr (tolc—gwr) One who makes a mark, or dent, by a blow.

Tolch, s. f.—pl. t. au (tol) A conglutated mass, a clod.

Tolchedig, a. (tolch) Clotted, conglutated.

Tolchen, s. f.—pl. t. i (tolch) A clod, a conglutated mass. Tolchen o wedd, a clotted mass of blood.

Tolchenawg, a. (tolchen) Full of clotted masses.

Tolcheniad, s. m. (tolchen) A forming a clod.

Tolchennu, v. a. (tolchen) To form into a clod.

Tolchi, v. a. (tolch) To form a conglutated mass; to clod; to become clotted.

Tolchiad, s. m. (tolch) A clotting, a conglutating.

Tolfaen, s. m.—pl. tolfaini (tol—maen) An earthen stone.

Tolgyrn, s. m.—pl. tolgryn (tol—corn) A trumpet, or a clarion.

Toli, v. a. (tawl) To curtail; to diminish; to put aside, to spare; to take from, to deal out.

Hawdd ioli yn hollach o dorh gwr arall.

It is easy to deal amply from another man's loaf. Adage.

Gwr curfodd ddiudd heb doli.

A man of unrestrained gifts of gold without giving.

H. Foul ab Grif.

Morfuad—

Tal am dy wawd cyn toll:

Teyll y prydychod wyt ti.

Morfuad, pay for thy praise before a diminution takes place: the delusion of the poets art thou. Llywarch Hen.

Toliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tawl) A diminishing; a privation; a sparing.

Toliannawl, a. (toliant) Privative, curtailing.

Toliannu, v. a. (toliant) To make a diminution; to cause a privation.

Toliant, s. m. (tawl) A diminution, a privation; a saving, a sparing.

Tollaw, v. a. (tawl) To diminish; to curtail; to take away, to deprive; to save, to spare.

Haws tollaw no hurhaw.

It is easier to spare than to hire.

Adage.

*Ni thollas fy lies llyw rhybudd;
Ni thollas a ganaf heb gundd.*

The portended chief has not restricted my bites; I will not restrain what I sing without disguise.

Cynddalein.

Tolliedig, a. (tawl) Diminished, taken away.

Toliwr, s. m.—pl. tolliwr (toli—gwr) A diminisher; one who puts aside, or spares.

Tolo, s. m. (tol) That is overwhelming; heavy; loud; a pound weight.

Cygiu dda drom ei tholo.

Hear the wale of sullen din.

Llywarch Hen.

Tolws, s. m. (tol) That makes a roar, a roarer.

Toll, s. f.—pl. t. au (ty—oll) A fraction; custom, or toll.

Toll fawr a wasa doli fechan.

A great toll will produce a small toll.

Adage.

Ystafell Cynyddian neud aihwyd heb fodd!

*Mae yn medd dy rygydd,
Hyd tra fa ai bu doli gwydd.*

The hall of Cynyddian art thou not gone devoid of need! thy shield is in the grave, whilst whilst remaining was no broken shelter.

Llywarch Hen.

Tolladwy, a. (toll) Capable of being tolled.

Tollawg, a. (toll) Having a toll, tolled.

Tolliedig, a. (toll) Being exacted as toll.

Tollfa, s. f.—pl. tollfeydd (toll) A place to receive toll; a receipt of custom; a custom house.

Tolli, v. a. (toll) To subtract, or to take a part from; to exact toll, or custom; to toll.

Tolliad, s. m. (toll) A subtracting, a taking a part away; a taking custom, or toll; a tolling.

Tolliant, s. m. (toll) A toll, or custom.

Tollrhydd, s. m. (toll—rhydd) Free of custom; toll-free. Acth y tir yn dollrhydd, the land is become free of toll.

Tollwr, s. m.—pl. tolliwr (toll—gwr) One who takes toll, or custom.

Brodyr cywellthas, arglwydd, tollwr, a chythraul.

Confederate brothers, a lord, a toll-gatherer, and the devil.

Adage.

Tollydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (toll) A toll-gatherer.

Tom, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (to—om) A mound, a heap, a tumulus; a heap of dirt; dung.

Tom Elwyddan neud gwylch gwla:

*Mae Maodyn y danaw;
Dyn fai Gynon i gwynaw!*

The mound of Elwyddan how drenched by rain: Maodyn is under it; a man whom Gynon is left to mourn!

Llywarch Hen.

Tomawd, s. m. (tom) A monument; a tomb.

Gwae ddyn nad ystyr

Ydd i'n ehoegyr,

Cyn rhythyr lymyr,

Tomawd fuddiedd.

Woe to the man who will not consider that he may ruefully go, before a short space, to the stone grave with its monument.

D. Ddu Hiraddug.

Tomawg, a. (tom) Having a heap; covered with dung; mucky.

Tomdail, s. m. (tom—tail) Dung manure.

Tomen, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (tom) A mound, a tumulus, a hillock; a dunghill.

A gunglo domen a galf un car cywir.

He that collects a dunghill will have one faithful friend.

Adage.

Pob ci a fydd gen ar ei domen ei hun.

Every dog will be a lord on his own dunghill.

Adage.

Tomfoi, v. a. (tom—moi) To drop dung.

Gwerth porhell o'r nos y ganer yni ei domfol, ceiniawg.

The value of a pig from the night it is brought forth until it goes to drop dung, a penny.

Welsh Laws.

Toml, v. a. (tom) To make a heap; to dung.

Tomlad, s. m. (tom) A forming a heap; a dropping of dung.

Tomlyd, s. m. (tom) Abounding with dung.

Tomlydu, v. a. (tomlyd) To render mucky.

Tomwr, s. m.—pl. tomwyr (tom—gwr) One who heaps; a muck-man.

Tôn, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ty—on) A surface, an outer coating, peel, paring, or skin; also, lay land, or unploughed land; a green. Ton las, glasdon, a greensward.

Dar a dyfws ar y ton:

*Gwedi gwaddffras, a briw bren,
Gwac a gar wyd smyrson!*

An oak has grown on the green: after blood-spilling, and the wounded breast, woe to him that loves the vice of contention!

Robert T. Normandi.

Tôn, s. f.—pl. t. au (f. of twu) That breaks out, that is broken; a breaker, a surge, or wave. a. Shattered, broken.

Ni nolla mewn anfon

Y doeth yn erbyn y don.

Not in any river will the wave swim against the wave.

Ed. Dafydd.

Oedd amlw tona, twn amhar eu nald,

Nid oeddynt dialfar:

Tôn hell helaeth trwy far,

Tôn arall gwall goch gwyr.

Many-coloured were the waves, broken and of mixed din their course, they were not void of sound: a wave of brine ample in its rage, another dreadful wave red with gore.

Lt. P. Meach.

Bid grafnagawr far; bid trydar lew;

Bid ynfyd ymliddgar;

Bid tôn calon gân alar.

A hen scratches with her claws; a lion roars: the fool is food of brawls; the heart is broken oppressed with woe.

Llywarch Hen.

Ton, s. f.—pl. t. au (to—on) A tone, an accent.

Un adiam a Thelamon,

Eucled-lyw teg, difreg don.

Of the same fate as Telamon, a fair superior soul, of unbroken accent.

D. y Cuch.

Tônawg, a. (tôn) Abounding with breaks, abounding with breakers or waves; turbulent, froward, stubborn.

Tônawl, a. (tôn) Breaking like a surge.

Tonc, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ty—onc) A tink, a ring.

Cei cithaf tonic, thou shalt have extreme joy.

Dyfed.

Tonciad, s. m. (tonc) A tinkling, a ringing.

Tonciaw, v. a. (tonc) To tinkle, to ring.

Tönen, s. f. dim. (tôn) A surface, an outer coating, peel, or paring; a cuticle; also, a bog, or quag.

Tonfryd, a. (tôn—bryd) Of a rough disposition.

Tongar, a. (ton) Sonorous, resonounding.

Tônl, v. a. (tôn) To form a surface; to become covered with a skin, or cuticle; to pare, to peel.

Toniad, s. m. (ton) A making a tone, or accent.

Tônliad, s. m. (tôn) A forming a surface; a forming a cuticle, a paring, a peeling.

Toniadar, s. m. (toniad) That forms an accent.

Toniar, s. f. (tôn) A plank, a shingle.

Tônlar, s. f.—pl. tonleri (tôn) A breaker, a surge, or wave.

Gwtrawd Owain llary, llechar ei derfyng

Ar derfyn ei esgar,

Balch y daw yn llaw lluchfar:

Maddu ei thorf, madd ei thoular.

The cup of Owain the mild, whose tumult gleams on the border of his foe, proudly it comes on the wrath-dispensing hand, drunk its surrounding torments, its wave is mead.

Cynddalein.

Toniardy, s. m.—pl. t. au (toniar—ty) A house or booth made of boards.

Toularu, v. a. (tônlar) To lay planks, to board.

Toniaw, v. a. (ton) To tone, to accent.

Tonogi, v. a. (tònwag) To raise breakers or billows; to rise in billows; to become boisterous or turbulent.

Tonogiad, s. m. (tònwag) A raising of breakers; a rising in waves, or surges; a becoming turbulent.

Tonogrydd, s. m. (tònwag) The state of rising in surges; turbulence.

Tonwaed, s. m. (tòn—gwaed) A blood clod.

Tonwen, a. (tòn—gwén) White-skinned.

Tonwryg, a. (tòn—gwryg) Rising in billows; turbulent.

Tonwrygiad, s. m. (tonwryg) A rising in billows; a becoming turbulent.

Tonwrygiaw, v. a. (tonwryg) To raise surges; to rise in surges; to become turbulent.

Tonwyn, a. (tòn—gwyn) White-skinned.

Tonydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ton) An accenter.

Tonyddiaeth, s. (tonydd) A tonation, accentuation.

*Tonyddiaeth helaeth hylaw,
A gair, mewn llafair a gawn.*

A tonation ample and complete, and a word, in expression we obtain.

Meirg Dafydd.

Top, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tob) A top; a stopple.

Topiad, s. m. (top) A topping, a cresting.

Topiaw, v. a. (top) To top, to form a crest.

Topiawg, a. (top) Having a top, or crest.

Topiawl, a. (top) Tending to form a top.

Topiwr, s. m.—pl. topiwr (top—gwr) One who tops

Topyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. au (top) A top, a bunch, bush of hair; a topple; a stopple.

*Erfynied f'm rhwyf ydd wyf ei dda—
A warawd topyn feila fwia.*

I sue to my chief for his goods, that renders unnecessary a top, a yellow knob.

Gr. ab D. ab Tudgr.

Topyniad, s. m. (topyn) A forming a top.

Topynu, v. a. (topyn) To form a top, or crest.

Tôr, s. m. (ty—or) A break, a rupture; a cut; an interruption, a cessation, a discontinuation.

Tôr calon, a heart breaking.

Tôr, s. f.—pl. t. au (to—or) A swell out, a bulge, a prominence; a belly; the lower part of the belly. Tôr y mynydd, the swell of the mountain; tôr y llaw, the ball of the hand; tôr tarian, the convex or outside of a shield.

Tyfd enderig o'i dôr.

The steer grows from his belly.

Adage.

Tôradow, a. (tôr) Capable of being broken.

Toraeth, s. f.—pl. toreithiau (tôr) Produce, profit; fecundity, fruitfulness; abundance, store. Nid oes dim toraeth ohono, there is no good to be had out of him.

Mawr yw toraeth yr adwydd.

Great is the store of the unfortunate.

Adage.

Mawr toraeth adwydd ban fyso.

Great is the store of misfortune when he commands.

Adage.

Torammod, s. (tôr—ammod) Breach of covenant.

Torarfol, s. f. (tôr—arfol) Breach of faith.

Torawg, a. (tôr) Having a prominence; big-bellied; an epithet applied to a sow, a bitch, and a cat, when big with young.

Torawl, a. (tôr) Tending to spread round; prominent.

Torbwt, s. m.—pl. torbytiaid (tôr—pwt) A turbot.

Torcalon, s. m. (tôr—calon) A heart-breaking.

Torcalonus, a. (torcalon) Heart-breaking.

Ystyriaeth torcalonus ydyw ein bod ni bob dydd yn myned ymaeth oddiwrth ein dedwyddwch.

It is a heart-breaking consideration that we should be every day going away from our happiness.

Ios. Rhys.

Torch, s. f.—pl. tyrch (tôr) A wreath; a coil; a collar; a badge of distinction, worn by the ancient Britons, which it was a point of honour for a warrior to preserve from being lost to the enemy in battle. Tynn am y dorch, to strive for the torques: Mi dynaf y dorch a thi, I will pull the torques with thee.

*Brach swch balenau llewyrch;
Brychwaith ei brach a'i llyrch.*

A handle above the point of the scide; of twisted to handle and its wreaths.

Elwyn Iwan, 1740.

Torchawg, a. (torch) Having a wreath, coil, or turn; wreathed, coiled, twisted, turned up; wearing a torques.

Torchawl, a. (torch) Wreathing, twisting, coiling

Torchawr, part. (torch) Wreathing, entwining.

Gwefawr godwyswr torchawr am na.

Amber-beads in ringlets entwining round the tangles.

Anon.

Torchedig, a. (torch) Wreathed, twisted; coiled

Torchl, v. a. (torch) To wreath, to twist, to twist; to coil, to gather into a chain; to turn up. Torchl dy lewys, turn up thy sleeves.

Torchl gwridd tywarch a gro

I'r gwyn, ac I'r wybr, gawl.

Turning up the roots of sods and gravel into the wind, and into the air, by him.

L. Morgan.

Torchiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (torch) A wreathing.

Torchwr, s. m.—pl. torchwyr (torch—gwr) A coiler, a wreather, a twister.

Tordain, s. m. (tor—tain) A spread out in a lolling manner. v. a. To loll.

Tordanawl, a. (tordain) Swelling out the belly.

Tordaniad, s. m. (tordain) A lolling on the belly.

Tordann, v. a. (tordain) To spread out the belly.

Tordor, adv. (tor repeated) Belly to belly.

Tordyn, a. (tor—tyn) Tight stomach; full-bellied; high-stomached, proud-stomached.

*Bydd dordyn wrth eilynon man,
Fai chwylio tan mewn corod.*

Be high-stomached to petty foes, like blowing the fire amongst stones.

Edm. Pry.

Tordyniad, s. m. (tordyn) A stretching the belly.

Tordynn, v. a. (tordyn) To tighten the belly.

Tordd, s. m. (tor) A murmur, a din, a tumult.

Torddawl, a. (tordd) Murmuring, tumultuous.

Torddiad, s. m. (tordd) A murmuring, a rising a din.

Torddn, v. a. (tordd) To murmur, to make a din.

Torddus, a. (tordd) Murmuring, tumultuous.

Tored, s. m. (tor) That expands round. v. Vast.

Toredig, a. (tôr) Broken, fractured, cut.

Toredlu, s.—pl. t. oedd (tored—llu) A vast host.

Mynogid iddo fod yr amherawdr wedi lleista yn agori yw, thoredlu ganib; ac yn y lle ydd oedd Arthur a lloches yn hi din.

It was told him that the emperor had encamped near to the place, having a vast host with him; and in the spot where it was Arthur encamped on a river side.

Gr. ab Idris.

Toredwynt, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tored—gwynt) A whirlwind.

Twrff toredwynt mawr uch mor ddihiu.

The din of a mighty whirlwind over a desert sea.

Llyfard Gr.

Torvat toredwynt uch teg adha.

They would burst a whirlwind over a fair retreat.

O. Cyfyllwr.

Toreithiad, s. m. (toraeth) A forming a store.

Toreithiannawl, a. (toreithiant) Of a productive tendency, tending to store.

Toreithiannu, v. a. (toreithiant) To cause abundance; to become abundant.

Toreithiant, s. m. (toraeth) Abundance; store.

Toreithiaw, v. a. (torneth) To render productive, or abundant, to yield increase; to be productive.

Toreithiawg, a. (tornaeth) Having produce, plenty, or abundance; profitable, yielding increase.

Toreithiawl, a. (torneth) Productive, abundant.

Toreithiedig, a. (toreithiad) Made abundant.

Toreithus, a. (tornaeth) Productive, abundant.

Toreithusaw, v. a. (toreithus) To render productive; to become productive.

Toreithusdra, s. m. (toreithus) Productiveness.

Toreithusrwydd, s. m. (toreithus) Productiveness.

Torf, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tor) A croud, a throng, a multitude; a troop; a host.

Godwrf—

Taisle Nadawg, mwr aglor, Mâl gwr torf taisle Arthwr.

*The warrior of the tribe of Nadawg, a conspicuous belwark,
Like the host stout of the tribe of Arthur.* Cynaddew.

*—Gordderod ei lafar,
Dread rwyf torf twf llaw yn aber.*

Impetuous to extreme his blue shaft, the bold leader of a host tumultuous as a flood in the mouth of a river. Cynaddew, i O. Gwynedd.

Torfa, s. f.—pl. torfeydd (torf) An assembled host; also the number of one thousand millions

Deg deraith yw cant, deg cant yn y ll, deg mill yn y myrdd, deg myrdd yn y mwnt, deg mwnt yn y ihalu, deg rhailu yn y fronda, deg mwnta yn y dorfa, deg torfa yn y galfyrfa lawr; y rhif mynwl yw hysw.

Ten ten times is a hundred, ten hundreds in a thousand, ten thousands in a myriad, ten myriads in a hundred thousand, ten hundred thousands in a million, ten millions in the cumulus, ten cumulus in the aggregate multitude, ten aggregate multitudes in the great protecting host: the greatest number is that.

Torfagl, s. f. (tor—magl) That breaks or dissipates a stye; the eyebright, or wild English clary, also called gloewlys, and goleudrem.

Torfawg, a. (torf) Having a host; multitudinous

Owain—

Diofn cad cedeirn dorfogion.

*Owain dauntless in the battle of mighty ones assembled together
H. Foul ab Griffl.*

Torfad, s. m. (torf) An assembling of a host.

Torfawdd, s. m. (tor—blawdd) A spreading tumult, or uproar.

Torfoddad, s. m. (torflawdd) An expanding of a tumult.

*Dym cyfarwyddiad Ushwech dywal,
Bhwg chwreithin mor ryfel dorffoddad Urian.*

May the furious Ushwech lead me on, like the sallient agitation of the sea in the war expanding tumult of Urian. Llywarch Hm.

Torfu, v. a. (torf) To collect a host, to assemble in a body.

Torfynwgi, a. (tôr—mynwgi) Neck breaking.

Torfynnygliad, s. m. (torfynwgi) A breaking the neck; a casting headlong; a prostration.

Torfynnyglu, v. a. (torfynwgi) To cause a neck-breaking, to break the neck; to cast headlong.

Torgeingl, s. f.—pl. t. an (tor—ceingl) A girth.

Torgest, s. f.—pl. t. i (tor—cest) A hernia.

Torgestawg, a. (torgest) Having a hernia.

Torgestiad, s. m. (torgest) A forming a hernia.

Torgesta, v. a. (torgest) To form a hernia.

Torgoch, a. (tor—coch) Red-bellied; an epithet for the red char fish of the Alpine lakes.

Torgochiad, s. m.—pl. torgochiaid (torgoch) A red-bellied one; a red char fish; also called brithyll melyn.

Tôrri, v. a. (tôr) To break, to make a rupture; to cut; to become broken.

Un o dri gorchestwaith Ynys Prydein: Llong Nefyd Nef Neif-lon a ddig yddi wryw a banyw, pan doras llyn lloen.

One of the three superior expedients of the lake of Britain: the ship of Nefyd Nef Neiflon, which carried in it male and female when the aggregate of floods broke out. Prifedd.

*Fel gwanhith fy nghyngor i, ni thorri gyfrelliths y llyn orddo.
If thou hadst done my advice, thou wouldst not break the laws of the court on his account.* H. Culwarch—Mabinogion.

Tôrriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (tôr) A breaking, a making a rupture; a cutting; a becoming broken; a cessation, a breaking off, a breaking in, or taming. Tôrriad y dydd, the break of day: Nid oes arno dôriad yn y byd, he is not under the least regulation in the world.

Gofyn i ddall a ydyw yn dorriad gwawr.

Asking of the blind whether it is break of day. Adage.

Toriadawl, a. (tôrriad) Fractive, fracturing.

Toriadu, v. a. (tôrriad) To make a break.

Toriannawl, a. (tôrriant) Fractory.

Toriannu, v. a. (tôrriant) To make a fraction.

Tôrriant, s. m. (tôr) A fraction, a fracture.

Toriatôr, ger. (tôrriad) In breaking.

Toriedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tôrriad) A fracturer

Toritor, sup. (tôrri) To be breaking.

Tôrriath, s. m. (tôr—llaith) White hellebore.

Tôrrian, s. f.—pl. tôrrienydd (tôr—glân) A broken bank, a bank worn away by water.

Gellir yfed yr afon, ond nid ellir bwyta y dôrian.

The river may be drank, but the bank cannot be eaten. Adage.

Torlla, s. f.—pl. t. od (tôr—lla) A slattern.

Torllengig, s. m. (tôr—llengig) A hernia.

Torllwyd, a. (tôr—llwyd) Having the prominence or belly of a grey colour. Y dorllwyd, the wild tansy, or silverweed; also called torllwydig, and torllwydog, y dinllwyd, gwyn y merched.

Torllwydog, s. f. (torllwyd) The wild tansy.

Torllwyth, s. m.—pl. t. i (tor—llwyth) The burden of the belly; the burden of the womb; an epithet for a litter of pigs, and for other animals that bring forth several at once.

*Hwch a fwrw, o chyfeirir,
Dorllwyth o dylwyth i dir:
Yn myn'd rhawg Arlon a Mon
Y chwyry freichias hirion.*

A sow that will cast, if resorted to, a litter of progeny on the land: visiting between Arvon and Mon she plays about her long arms. Gr. ab Elyn. ab Tudor, i Yngref.

Term, s. f. (tôr) That is stretched or crowded round.

Tormach, s. m. (tôr—mach) A forfeit of bail; contempt of court; hardship.

Tormaen, s. m. (tôr—maen) That breaks the stone; the saxifrage; also called maen-had, and llyfnwy.

Tormaenawl, a. (tormaen) Lithonriptic.

Tormaenwydd, s. m. (tormaen—gwydd) Sassafras-tree, or stone-dissolver.

Tormennawg, a. (torment) Having a surrounding assemblage.

Anesgor dy far, fer tormennawg.

Unavoidable thy wrath, host-surrounding bulwark. Llyged Gwr.

Tormenniad, s. m. (torment) A pressing or crowding round.

Tormennu, v. a. (torment) To crowd round; to crowd together in conflict.

*Mae ydus orau yn tormennawg;
Tormennuodd alloddod an llyw tirawg.*

He also is the best of any host surrounded one; our leader amply possessing land, caused riches to surround. Gwethchawl.

Torment, s. m. (torm) The state of pressing round; a conflicting host; a conflict; torment

Teyrlllyw teyrnas terfyras torment.

A supreme leader of a kingdom the tumult of conflict. L. F. Moch.

Tryllw ei ygwyr yarydwir yn ahermawt.
Three-coloured his shield that is made to move in conflict.
Cynulleid.

Godwrf a gylwaf am glawr lathon hir;
Hydr of wir ar Saxons:
Teulu Madawg, mur galon,
Mal twrf tormennuold Cynon.

A murmur I hear along the surface of the far-extending leithon; its truth is confidence to the Saxons: of the tribe of Madawg, a bulwark against foes, like the tumult of the conflicts of Cynon.
Cynulleid.

Tormiad, s. m. (torm) A gathering round.
Tormiannawg, a. (tormiant) Being surrounded by retinue.

Gwr tormiannawg cyfoethawg.

A magnificient wealthy man.

Mabinogi.

Tormiannu, v. a. (tormiant) To form a surrounding retinue.

Tormiant, s. m. (torm) A surrounding assemblage

Tormu, v. a. (torm) To assemble round.

Tormwyth, s. m. (tôr—mwyth) Feverfew.

Tormyn, s. m. (torm) A surrounding crond.

Tormynawg, a. (tormyn) Surrounded by retinue.

Tormynogaeth, s. m. (tormynawg) The state of having a surrounding retinue.

Torogen, s. f. dim. (torawg) A big-bellied one;
a tike.

Torogenawg, a. (torogen) Full of tikes.

Torogeniad, s. m. (torogen) A breeding of tikes.

Torogenu, v. a. (torogen) To breed tikes.

Toroges, s. f. (torawg) A big-bellied one.

Torogi, v. a. (torawg) To make a big belly, to swell the belly; to cause a gestation; to become big-bellied; to become big with young.

Yn Gaega y mae llywod a thricant troedfodd yn eu hyd; ac yno y mae pryd tebyg i wreiddod, a ddyf fraich llydant, chwe cubid yn eu hyd; ac o'r rhai hyn y toroca yr elliant, ac yn y tônau y soddant, ac yn y mor hway y magant; ac yn eu cibinau y dichawu dynion adnau.

In Gaega there are eels having three hundred feet in their lengths; and therein are animals like women, having two arms, six cubits in their lengths; and those gratale from the elephant, and in the waves they alank, and in the sea there they rear their young; and in their shells men might move about.
Deia y Byd.

Torogiad, s. m. (torawg) A making a big belly, a swelling the belly; a causing a gestation; a becoming big with young.

Torogwr, s. m.—pl. torogwyr (torawg—gwr) One who swells out the belly.

Torogyn, s. m. dim. (torawg) A big-bellied one.

Toron, s. f.—pl. t. au (tawr) That spreads over;
a plot in a garden laid out in beds; a decking out of a table; a mantle, or cloak.

Toronaeth, s. m. (toron) The act of decking out.

Toronaawg, a. (toron) Having a mantle.

Torw a gaf: Pood hir y gwallt
Toronaawg.—

A bell I shall get: surely the covering hair is long.
Pentllyn.

Toronawl, a. (toron) Mantling, cloaking.

Toroni, v. a. (toron) To deck out, to cover over, to spread out a table, to spread a feast; to cover with a mantle, to mantle, to cloak.

Glewihyd Gafellfawr a dynai y pair oddiar y tan, pan oedd yn
—'Toroni' tair yna.—

Glewihyd with mighty grasp pulled the cauldron off the fire, when he was freating three islands.
Iolo Goch.

Toroniad, s. m. (toron) A spreading over, a decking, or covering; a mantling.

Torp, s. m. (tor) A round mass, a lump.

Torpell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (torp) A small mass or lump; any thick or coagulated matter formed into a mass; a clod; a dumpling.

Torpellawg, a. (torpell) Abounding with masses, or clods; formed into lumps.

Torpelliad, s. m. (torpell) A clotting.

Torpellu, v. a. (torpell) To clod, to form a lump.
Torpwrth, s. m. (tor—pwth) A short big-bellied person; a squab.

Tors, s. f.—pl. t. au (tawr) A covering.

Telron i'r corff, tors awr cedd.

Three fives to the person, the golden shatter of song.
H. Arpent.

Torsed, s. f.—pl. t. i (tors) A rag, a coverlid;
also called cadwyr.

Torsed gogydded a'r gwydd.

A rag of equal breadth with the loom.

L. G. Calk.

Torsi, v. a. (tors) To deck, or cover over.

Torsiad, s. m. (tors) A decking over.

Torstain, a. (tors—tain) Prominent, bulging.

Y tors—

Hirfain a thornain of thy.

The bow long and slender and bulging out that will not break.
T. Pys.

Torsyth, s. (tor—syth) Swaggering out the belly stiffly, stiff-stomached.

Torsythaid, a. (torsyth) Rather stiff-stomached.

Torsythawg, a. (torsyth) Swaggering.

Torsythawl, a. (torsyth) Apt to swagger.

Torsythiad, s. m. (torsyth) A swaggering, a swelling out the belly.

Torsythni, s. m. (torsyth) A swaggering.

Torsythu, v. a. (torsyth) To stiffen the belly.

Torth, s. f.—pl. t. au (torth) That supports, or sustains; a loaf of bread.

Torthawl, a. (torth) Being like a loaf.

Torthi, v. a. (torth) To form into a compact mass;
to harden, to settle; to cake. Gwsir wedi torthi, hay after it is settled.

Torthiad, s. m. (torth) A forming a loaf.

Torwen, a. (tôr—gwen) White-bellied.

Torwenwyn, s. m. (tôr—gwenwyn) Rue.

Torwyn, a. (tor—gwyn) White-bellied.

Torympryd, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tôr—ympryd) A breakfast; also called berffwyd, tori cythawg.

Pan oeddwn yn ymdroethu, Meisgryddid a'i chwa Bute-dau a ddol i mewn, y rhai a barodd i mi fy sboryn.

When I was dressing myself, Volpertocum, with her two Breakfasts, came in, who prepared for me my breakfast.
Marching Crispin.

Torymprydiad, s. m. (torympryd) A breakfasting.

Torymprydiaw, v. a. (torympryd) To breakfast.

Toryn, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tawr) An outer-covering, a mantle, a cloak; a cope, or sacerdotal vestment.

Ni byddaf na thoryn dwyn na chapen gwyn.

I will not be a carrying cloak nor robe cap.

Adapt.

Torynawg, a. (toryn) Having a mantle.

Toryniad, s. m. (toryn) A cloaking, a mantling.

Torynu, v. a. (toryn) To cloak, to mantle.

Tos, s. m. (ty—os) A quick jerk; a toss; a snatch.

Tosed, s. m. (tos) A snatch; a rapine.

Tosiad, s. m. (tos) A jerking; a tossing.

Tosiaw, v. a. (tos) To jerk; to snatch; to toss.

Tost, a. (to—ost) Severe, harsh; violent; toasted.

Tost fydd ar ddyr pan gaffo ddewis.

It is hard on a person when he is put to his choice.

Adapt.

Mae yn dost ar a ddymunol fawr; mae yn dostach ar a ch.

It is grievous on such as would wish to die; it is more grievous on such as would dread it.
Adapt.

Tostaid, a. (tost) Somewhat severe or harsh.

Tostalar, s. m. (tost—galar) Severe grief.

Tostalariad, s. m. (tostalar) A severely grieving.

Tostalaru, v. a. (tostalar) To grieve severely.

Pan oeddwn gwrthdwyer a gollwyd—brydychu, y rhai a'i hogesteiment, a dostalaruad am ddyrwyd yn oed cwmwl.

What precious opportunities have been lost! they who have neglected them, will deeply lament about them for ages of years.
for. Duns.

Tostalarus, a. (tostalar) Severely grieving.
Tostawl, a. (tost) Of a severe quality.
Tostedig, a. (tost) Being made severe or harsh.
Tostedd, s. m. (tost) Severity, pungency, harshness; also the stranguary.
Tostfrwyn, s. pl. aggr. (tost—brwyn) Sea rushes.
Tostfrwynen, s. f. dim. (tostfrwyn) A sea rush.
Testi, v. a. (tost) To cause violent pain, to rack, to torture; also to feel for, or to be pained.

Mai dala gal bendoll ym testes yr halaru dat!
 Like catching an open headed leech the steezy iron pained me!
H. Culhwch.

Tosti a thraue writho a orag.
 To take pity and to commiserate with him was what he did.
Hanes No.

Tostiad, s. m. (tost) A causing severity; a torturing
Tostlym, a. (tost—llym) Polignant, acrimonious.
Tostlymder, s. m. (tostlym) Acrimoniousness.
Tostlymdra, s. m. (tostlym) Acrimoniousness.
Tostlymrwydd, s. m. (tostlym) Acrimoniousness.
Tostur, s. m. (tost) Misery, severe plight.
Tosturad, s. m. (tosturau) A commiseration.
Tosturawl, a. (tosturau) Commiserating.
Tosturau, v. a. (tostur) To commiserate, to pity.

Nid ystyr hon doesturda!
 No idea to commiserate hath she!
T. Ald.

Tosturi, s. m. (tostur) Compassion, pity, mercy.
Tosturiad, s. m. (tostur) A pitying, a taking pity.
Tosturiaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (tostur) Compassion.

A oeth dy dosturiaethau
Oll ymadu am dda gwaith gas!
 Are all thy tender mercies fled away on account of our deceitful art?
D. Richard Glas y Morfa.

Tosturiannawl, a. (tosturiant) Compassionate.
Tosturiannu, v. a. (tosturiant) To compassionate.
Tosturiant, s. m. (tostur) Compassion, pity.
Tosturiaw, v. a. (tostur) To compassionate, to pity.
Tosturiawg, a. (tostur) Compassionate.
Tosturiawl, a. (tostur) Compassionate; piteous.

Pan glyws Rhad Daw fy nghwynfan tosturiawl, hi o'i deulou a estynai i mi llofnad, ac o orchymnal i mi ddodi fy llaw erui.
 When the Grace of God heard my pitiful complaint, she out of her goodness extended to me a golden rod, and desired me to place my hand upon it.
Morchang Cwyrdd.

Tosturiedig, a. (tosturiad) Commiserated, pitied.
Tosturioldeb, s. m. (tosturiawl) Compassionateness Tosturiwr, s. m.—pl. tosturiwyr (tostur—gwr) One who takes compassion.

Tosturus, a. (tostur) Compassionate; piteous.
Tosturusaw, v. a. (tosturus) To soften to pity; to become compassionate; to render piteous; to become piteous.

Tosturuswydd, s. m. (tosturus) Compassionateness
Tŵr, s. m.—pl. towyr (to—gwr) One who forms a covering, one who roofs; a thatcher, a tiler, a slater.

Tprue, s. m. A noise made in calling cattle.

Tprue iol! lo llwm ei synfon,
Prin o rodd.—
 Come my calves! avoid that bare-tailed calf, a signally stiff.
Mad. Dwygwig.

Tra, s. m. (ty—rha) An extreme, an extremity; an excess; a turn; whatever is, thing. It is also prefixed in composition. Paid a gwnethur tra, do not be over nice.

Gwalychaf wledig, pendefig pob fa,
Gwr a gynall y nef, argwydd pob tra.

I will adore the Supreme, the sovereign of every region, he that upholds the heaven, the Lord of every thing.
Talliesia.

As gynall gwyns, ac nid mwyns,
Nadd hiddad molaid, molaid i bob tra.

The bees collect, and they do not enjoy it, the distilled mead delightful, the delight of every extremity.
Talliesia.

Tra, prep. (ty—rha) Over, above; beyond. Tra mynydd, over the mountain; tra mor, beyond sea; tra dy gefn, beyond thy back.

Tra, adv. (ty—rha) Over; very, excessively;
 whilst, as long as, so long as.

Tra dicheil tra dychell.
Excess of cunning excess of loss.
Amlaf y mel tra hiltir.
Honey is most frequent whilst it is put through a sieve.
Adag.

Doeth dyn tra tawo.
 A person is wise whilst he keeps silent.
Adag.

O gwyl di ddys gael dy dda,
A chymr tra fych yma;
Nu fydd cybydd, cafydd cael,
I ddywys aur i ddyo arall.

See, oh man! when thou obtainest thy wealth, and enjoy it whilst thou shalt be here: be not a miser, of cunning scheme, to hoard gold for another person.
S. Tudgr.

Träannog, s. m. (annog) Extreme excitement.
v. a. To excite beyond measure.

Träannogiad, s. m. (träannog) Extreme excitation

Träannos, s. m. (annos) A chasing extremely.
v. a. To drive overmuch.

Träannosiad, s. m. (träannos) A chasing greatly.
Träarglwyddiaethiad, s. m. (arglwyddiaethiad) A governing tyrannically; a domineering.

Träarglwyddiaethu, v. a. (arglwyddiaethu) To exercise dominion to excess; to domineer.

Traberw, s. m. (berw) An over-boil.
Traberwad, s. m. (traberw) An over-boiling.

Traberwedig, a. (traberw) Over-boiled.

Traberwi, v. a. (traberw) To over-boil.

Trabludd, s. m. (blawdd) Extreme activity. Tra- blawdd ffosod, the extreme velocity of gashing.

Trablawn, s. m. (blawn) Extremely gloomy.

Trabloedd, s. f. (bloedd) A great outcry.

Trabloeddi, v. a. (trabloedd) To make an outcry.

Trabloeddiad, s. m. (trabloedd) A making an outcry.

Trabludd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (bludd) Trouble, toil, pains, business; turmoil, tumult.

Ni wela i lys
Môr iwyddm—
A thryder meibion,
A thro cerddorion,
A trabludd gwelion
Gwyddmdeithig.

I have not beheld a court so fair and solemn, with the nobles of youth, and the turns of minstrels, and the bustle of servants serving the feast.
D. ab Iwan Dda.

Trabluddiad, s. m. (trabludd) A troubling.

Trabluddiaw, v. a. (trabludd) To trouble, to tease.

Trabluddiawg, a. (trabludd) Full of trouble.

Trabluddiawl, a. (trabludd) Troublous, teasing.

Trabluddiedig, a. (trabludd) Troubled, teased.

Trabluddiwr, s. m.—pl. trabluddiwywr (trabludd—gwr) A troubler, a teaser.

Trablwn, a. (blwn) Extremely surly.

Trablwydd, adv. (blwydd) Beyond the year.

Trablwyddyn, adv. (trablwydd) Beyond the year.

Trabrys, s. m. (brys) Extreme haste, or hurry.

Trabrysgar, a. (trabrys) Extremely hasty.

Trabrysiad, s. m. (trabrys) An over-hastening.

Trabrysiaw, v. a. (trabrys) To over-hasten.

Trabuan, a. (buan) Extremely quick.

Trabychan, a. (bychan) Extremely small.

Trabychaniad, s. m. (trabychan) A making extremely little.

Trabychauu, v. a. (trabychan) To make extremely little; to depreciate extremely.

Trabywawg, a. (bywawg) Extremely lively.

Trach, s. m.—pl. t. an (tra) A hill protruded as it were into low ground. Trach Dindyrn, a hill over Tintern Abbey; also a hill near Denbigh, with a farm house in front of it, called Taldrack.

Trach, adv. (tra) Beyond; beside; at; aside.

Cannaw! doeth trach ei gafa, a merch e ffaen ei gwynob.

Praise the wise behind his back, and a woman before her face. Adage.

Trin dygwydd truch trach ei llawr.

A dreadful fall of slaughter beneath the stroke of his blade. Anacrin.

Trachadw, v. a. (cadw) To keep extremely.

Trachær, s. f.—pl. f. au (caer) Advanced wall.

A thori trachær Roms.

And breaking the advanced wall of Rome. Talliesin.

Trachaled, a. (caled) Extremely hard.

Trachalediad, s. m. (trachaled) A hardening extremely.

Trachaledu, v. a. (trachaled) To harden extremely Trachall, a. (call) Extremely cunning.

Trachallder, s. m. (trachall) Extreme cunning.

Trachariad, s. m. (cariad) Extreme love.

Tracharu, v. a. (carn) To love to excess.

Trachas, s. m. (cas) Extreme hatred.

Cari trachas Llwyg.

I love the extreme enmity of England. H. ab O. Gwynedd.

Trachasad, s. m. (trachas) A hating extremely.

Trachasau, v. a. (trachas) To hate extremely.

Trachawdd, s. m. (cawdd) Excess of vexation.

Trachefn, adv. (cefn) Behind the back; again.

Trachelfydd, a. (elfydd) Extremely skillful.

Trachgefn, adv. (trach—cefn) Behind the back.

Trachil, s. m. (chl) An extreme recess.

Trachiliad, s. m. (trachil) A receding extremely.

Trachiliaw, v. a. (trachil) To recede extremely.

Trachoddi, v. a. (trachawdd) To vex extremely.

Trachoddiad, s. m. (trachawdd) A vexing extremely.

Trachoddiant, s. m. (trachawdd) Extreme vexation; extreme offence.

Trachraff, a. (craff) Of very keen hold; of extremely keen perception.

Trachraffiad, s. m. (trachraff) A taking a very keen hold; extreme perception.

Trachrafu, v. a. (trachraff) To take very keen hold; to perceive extremely.

Trachrin, a. (crin) Extremely brittle or fragile.

Trachrinaw, v. a. (trachrin) To render extremely brittle; to become extremely brittle.

Trachryn, s. m. (cryn) Extreme shaking.

Trachrynaw, a. (trachryn) Tending to shake extremely.

Trachryniad, s. m. (trachryn) A shaking extremely Trachrynu, v. a. (trachryn) To shake extremely.

Tracha, a. (cu) Extremely fond or loving.

Trachudd, s. m. (cudd) Extreme obscurity.

Trachuddiad, s. m. (trachudd) A hiding to excess.

Trachuddiaw, v. a. (trachudd) To hide to excess.

Trachuddiedig, a. (trachudd) Extremely hidden.

Trachuedd, s. m. (trachu) Over fondness.

Trachul, a. (cul) Extremely narrow.

Trachulaw, v. a. (trachul) To narrow extremely.

Trachulledd, s. m. (trachul) Extreme narrowness.

Trachur, s. m. (cur) Extreme beat or throb.

Trachuraw, v. a. (trachur) To beat extremely.

Trachwannaw, a. (trachwant) Extremely greedy

Trachwant, s. m.—pl. f. au (chwant) Immoderate desire; lust; covetousness; ambition.

Tri gwrthegnyddion daioni; beichder, tild, a thrachwant.

The three contrasts of goodness: pride, wrath, and ambition. Cerys ab Gwynlliw Fflur.

Hawdd tangnefodd rhwng twyll a thrachwant.

It is easy to make peace between deceit and cupidity. Adage.

Trachwant a brad a ddoynt i Ynys Prydain ar foch coraid.

Cupidity and treachery came to the island of Britain on golden horses. Adage.

Trachwantu, v. a. (trachwant) To lust extremely.

Trachwantaid, a. (trachwant) Tending to lust.

Trachwantaw, a. (trachwant) Extremely coveting

Trachwantiad, s. m. (trachwant) A coveting extremely, a lusting extremely.

Trachwantu, v. a. (trachwant) To lust extremely.

El oled i gyd, ar gais, a'i deula.

A'i dy, drwy chwerau, a drachwantu.

His wealth altogether, in idea, and his family, and his house, through coveting, I coveted extremely. H. B. ab Iŷan.

Trachwantus, a. (trachwant) Extremely covetous.

Tlawd pob trachwantus.

Every covetous one is poor. Adage.

Trachwantusaw, v. a. (trachwantus) To render extremely covetous; to become full of avidity.

Trachwar, a. (chwar) Extremely active or playful.

Trin trachwar, a conflict extremely active.

Trachwennych, v. (trachwant) To covet extremely Trachwennychiad, s. m. (trachwennych) A coveting extremely.

Trachwennychu, v. a. (trachwennych) To covet

extremely.

Trachwillad, s. m. (chwillad) A searching much.

Trachwillaw, v. a. (chwillaw) To search to excess.

Trachwres, s. m. (trach—gwres) Extreme heat;

ambition.

Prisaf iŷw i bawb o drachwres.

"The path of glory leads but to the grave." Talliesin.

Pumed yŷw y perffedd, heb eis cyfnewid,

Rhag maiŷ trachwres haul.

The fifth is the middle, which nobody doth inhabit, before of the extreme heat of the sun. Talliesin.

Trachwsg, s. m. (cwsg) Excess of sleep.

Trachwydd, s. m. (cwydd) Extreme fall.

Trachwyddaw, v. a. (trachwydd) To fall greatly.

Trachwyddawl, a. (trachwydd) Tending to fall

extremely.

Trachwyddedig, a. (trachwydd) Extremely fallen

Trachwyddiad, s. m. (trachwydd) A falling extremely.

Trachwyl, s. f. (chwyl) An extreme course.

Trachwylaw, v. a. (trachwyl) To make an extreme course or revolution.

Trachwylad, s. m. (trachwyl) A making an extreme course.

Trachwyp, s. m. (cwyp) An extreme fall.

Trachwypaw, v. a. (trachwyp) To fall greatly.

Trachwypawl, a. (trachwyp) Tending to fall

extremely.

Trachwympiad, s. (trachwyp) A falling greatly.

Trachwyn, s. f. (cwyn) Extreme complaint.

Trachwynaw, v. a. (trachwyn) To complain extremely.

Trachwynawl, a. (trachwyn) Extremely plaintive.

Trachwyniad, s. m. (trachwyn) A complaining extremely; an over complaining.

Trachwys, s. m. (chwys) Excessive sweat.

Trachwysawl, a. (trachwys) Tending to sweat excessively.

Trachwysiad, s. m. (trachwys) A sweating much.

Trachwysu, v. a. (trachwys) To sweat extremely.

Trachwyth, s. m. (chwyth) An extreme blast.

Trachwythawl, a. (trachwyth) Greatly blowing.

Trachwythiad, s. (trachwyth) A blowing greatly.

Trachwythu, v. a. (trachwyth) To blow much.

Trachyflawn, a. (cyflawn) Over-complete.

Trachyflawnder, s. m. (trachyflawn) Over-completion; the state of being over-full.

Trachyflawnedig, a. (trachyflawn) Over-completed, preterpluperfect.

Trachyflawnedd, s. m. (trachyflawn) Over-completeness.

Trachyflawni, v. a. (trachyflawn) To render over-complete.

Trachyflawniad, s. m. (trachyflawn) A rendering over-complete.

Trachyfoeth, s. m. (cyfoeth) Excess of means.

Naf dref drachyfoeth.

Heaven a seat of extreme enjoyment.

Dr. S. Cent.

Trachyfoethawg, a. (trachyfoeth) Having excess of means; extremely rich.

Trachyfoethi, v. a. (trachyfoeth) To endow with excess of means.

Trachyfoethiad, s. m. (trachyfoeth) An endowing with excess of means.

Trachyfoethogi, v. a. (trachyfoethawg) To enrich extremely.

Trachyfoethogiad, s. m. (trachyfoethawg) An enriching extremely.

Trachyfrif, s. m. (cyfrif) An over-reckoning.

Trachyfrifaw, v. a. (trachyfrif) To over-reckon.

Trachyfrifawl, a. (trachyfrif) Supernumerary.

Trachyfrifiad, s. m. (trachyfrif) A making an over-reckoning.

Trachyfrwys, a. (cyfrwys) Extremely cunning.

Trachyfrwysaw, v. a. (trachyfrwys) To render extremely cunning; to be very cunning.

Trachyfrwysdra, s. m. (trachyfrwys) Extreme cunningness.

Trachyffraw, s. m. (cyffraw) Extreme agitation.

Trachyffroad, s. m. (trachyffraw) A causing extreme agitation.

Trachyffroi, v. a. (trachyffraw) To agitate greatly.

Trachymhwys, a. (cymhwys) Extremely connected; very befitting.

Trachymhwysaw, v. a. (trachymhwys) To render extremely connected.

Trachymhwysdra, s. m. (trachymhwys) Extreme connectedness or fitness.

Trachymhwysiad, s. m. (trachymhwys) A rendering extremely connected or fit.

Trachymmen, a. (cymmen) Extremely fluent of speech.

Trachymmendawd, s. m. (trachymmen) Extreme fluency of speech.

Trachymmeniad, s. m. (trachymmen) A discoursing extremely eloquent.

Trachymmenn, v. a. (trachymmen) To use extreme fluency of speech.

Trachymysg, a. (cymysg) Over-mixed.

Trachymysgawi, a. (trachymysg) Tending to mix extremely.

Trachymysgedd, s. m. (trachymysg) The state of being extremely mixed.

Trachymysgiad, s. m. (trachymysg) A mixing extremely.

Trachyndyn, a. (cyndyn) Extremely stubborn.

Trachyndynawl, a. (trachyndyn) Tending to be extremely obdurate.

Trachyndyniad, s. m. (trachyndyn) A being extremely obstinate.

Trachyndynnu, v. a. (trachyndyn) To act extremely stubborn, or obstinately.

Trachynhen, s. f. (cynhen) Extreme contention.

Trachynhenawl, a. (trachynhen) Extremely contentions, or quarrelsome.

Trachynheniad, s. m. (trachynhen) A contending or quarrelling extremely.

VOL. II.

Trachynhenus, v. a. (trachynhen) To contend extremely; to be very quarrelsome.

Trachynhwrf, s. m. (cynhwrf) Extreme agitation; bustle, or tumult.

Trachynhyrfawl, a. (trachynhwrf) Extremely agitating, very tumultuous.

Trachynhyrsiad, s. m. (trachynhwrf) A causing extreme agitation.

Trachynhyrfu, v. a. (trachynhwrf) To agitate extremely, to ruffle extremely.

Trachynnul, a. (cynnul) Extremely exact.

Trachynnulaw, v. a. (trachynnul) To act with extreme exactness; to be extremely sparing.

Trachynnuldeb, s. m. (trachynnul) Extreme exactness; extreme sparingness.

Trachynnnyg, s. m. (cynnnyg) An extreme attempt. v. a. To make an extreme attempt.

Trachynnnygiad, s. m. (trachynnnyg) A making an extreme attempt.

Trachynnnygiaw, v. a. (trachynnnyg) To make an extreme attempt.

Trachywed, s. m. (cywed) An extreme uniformity or congeniality. a. Very uniform.

Ornwyslon trychlan trachywedddion,

Trachyweddd at ben o drind.

Pale cheeks mingled highly congenial to them, they felt excessively head and feet conjoined.

Cydaelw.

Trachywedd, s. m. (cywedd) Extreme conformity. a. Extremely conformable.

Llew Cemaes llym drachydwedd.

The lion of Cemaes of severe sway extremely habitual.
Llygdd Gwr.

Trachyweddiad, s. m. (trachyweddd) A conforming extremely; a becoming extremely adapted.

Trachyweddu, v. a. (trachyweddd) To conform extremely; to be extremely adapted.

Edrynnat trachwedd trachyweddd an cawd.

The trace of ambition pervades extremely our casual nature.
Str. ab Gwrgenau.

Trachywir, a. (cywir) Extremely exact or just.

Trachywiraw, v. a. (trachywir) To render extremely exact; to be very exact.

Trachywirdeb, s. m. (trachywir) Extreme exactness; extreme justness.

Trachywiriad, s. m. (trachywir) A rendering extremely exact; a becoming extremely just.

Trachywrain, a. (cywrain) Extremely accurate; extremely ingenious.

Trachywreindeb, s. m. (trachywrain) Extreme accuracy; extreme ingenuity.

Trachywreiniad, s. m. (trachywrain) A rendering extremely accurate.

Trachywreiniaw, v. a. (trachywrain) To render extremely accurate.

Trad, s. m. (tra—ad) That runs or spreads out.

Trada, a. (da) Extremely good, very good.

Tradaionus, a. (daionus) Extremely good.

Tradedwydd, a. (dedwydd) Extremely happy.

Tradedwyddwch, s. m. (tradedwydd) Extreme happiness.

Tradestl, a. (destl) Extremely smart.

Tradestledd, s. m. (tradesl) Extreme smartness.

Tradestliad, s. m. (tradesl) A trimming extremely.

Tradestliu, v. a. (tradesl) To smarten extremely.

Tradestlus, a. (tradesl) Apt to be over-smart.

Tradewr, a. (dewr) Over-brate; foolhardy.

Tradewredd, s. m. (tradewr) Foolhardiness.

Tradichell, s. f. —pl. f. ion (dichell) Extreme craft.

Tradichellgar, a. (tradichell) Extremely crafty.

Tradichelliad, s. m. (tradichell) A making use of extreme craft.

Tradichellu, v. a. (tradichell) To use extreme craft

Tradichlyn, a. (dichlyn) Extremely assiduous.

Tradichlyniad, s. m. (tradichlyn) A using extreme assiduity.

Tradichlynu, v. a. (tradichlyn) To use extreme assiduity; to be extremely assiduous.

Tradiflas, a. (diflas) Extremely insipid.

Tradiflasdawl, s. m. (tradiflas) Extreme insipidity.

Tradiflasiad, s. m. (tradiflas) A disgusting extremely; a becoming very insipid.

Tradiflasu, v. a. (tradiflas) To disgust extremely.

Tradifrif, a. (difrif) Extremely serious.

Tradifrifaw, v. a. (tradifrif) To act very seriously; to be extremely serious.

Tradifrifawl, a. (tradifrif) Extremely serious.

Tradifrifiad, s. m. (tradifrif) A using extreme seriousness; a being very serious.

Tradifrifwch, s. m. (tradifrif) Extreme seriousness.

Tradigawn, a. (digawn) Over-sufficient.

Tradigonawl, a. (tradigawn) Over-sufficing.

Tradigonedd, s. m. (tradigawn) Over-sufficiency.

Tradigoni, v. a. (tradigawn) To over-suffice.

Tradigrif, a. (digrif) Extremely diverting.

Tradigrifaw, v. a. (tradigrif) To divert extremely.

Tradigrifwch, s. m. (tradigrif) Extreme pleasantry

Tradilyn, v. a. (dilyn) To follow to excess.

Tradilyniad, s. m. (tradilyn) A following to excess.

Tradillyn, a. (dillyn) Extremely smart.

Tradillyniad, s. m. (tradillyn) A rendering extremely smart; a becoming very smart.

Tradillynu, v. a. (tradillyn) To render extremely smart; to become very smart.

Tradirgel, a. (dirgel) Extremely secret.

Tradirgeliad, s. m. (tradirgel) A rendering extremely secret; a becoming very secret.

Tradirgeln, v. a. (tradirgel) To render extremely secret; to become very secret.

Tradiwyd, a. (diwyd) Extremely industrious.

Tradiwydiad, s. m. (tradiwyd) A using extreme industry; a being very industrious.

Tradiwydiaw, v. a. (tradiwyd) To act with extreme industry; to be extremely assiduous.

Tradrwg, a. (drwg) Extremely bad or naughty.

Tradrygioni, s. m. (drygioni) Extreme badness.

Tradrygonus, a. (tradrygioni) Very iniquitous.

Tradwy, s. m. (tra-dwy) The third day to come.

Tradwy, adv. (tra-dwy) Three days hence.

Tradwys, a. (dws) Very dense; very constant.

Tradwysaw, v. a. (tradwys) To render extremely dense; to become extremely dense.

Tradwysiad, s. m. (tradwys) A rendering extremely dense; a becoming extremely dense.

Tradyfal, a. (dyfal) Extremely persevering.

Tradyfaliad, s. m. (tradyfal) A persevering extremely.

Tradyfalu, v. a. (tradyfal) To persevere greatly.

Tradynawl, a. (dynawl) Superhuman.

Tradynoldeb, s. m. (tradynawl) A superhuman state.

Tradynoli, v. a. (tradynawl) To render superhuman; to become superhuman.

Tradysgedig, a. (dysgedig) Extremely learned.

Tradd, s. m.—pl. t. au (tra—add) Extreme motion. Bidion ac y tradd arno, a beast that has the scouring.

Traddawl, s. m. (dawl) A delivery over.

Traddiad, s. m. (tradd) A moving violently.

Traddodawl, a. (traddawl) Tending to deliver over; surrendering.

Traddodedig, a. (traddawl) Delivered over, surrendered; delivered as a tradition.

Traddodi, v. a. (traddawl) To deliver over; to surrender, to give up; to deliver as a tradition.

Traddodiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (traddawl) A delivering over; a surrendering; a tradition.

Traddodiadawl, a. (traddodiad) Traditionary.

Traddodiadu, v. a. (traddodiad) To deliver over; to deliver by tradition.

Traddodiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traddodiad) A traditionist.

Traddodwr, s. m.—pl. traddodwyr (traddawl—gwr) One who delivers over.

Traddodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traddawl) One who delivers over, one who surrenders.

Traddu, v. a. (tradd) To produce violent motion.

Traddygawl, a. (dygawl) Tending to transfer.

Traddygiad, s. m. (dygiad) A transferring.

Traddygyd, v. a. (dygyd) To carry over; to carry, or to lead, from one place to another.

Tradd, s. pl. aggr. (tra—ed) That whereby transition is effected; feet. It is used as a plural for Troed, a foot, instead of the regular plural Troedau.

I galen wan da tradd bean.

For a weak heart nimble feet are good. Alap.

Träegwan, a. (egwan) Extremely feeble.

Träeidill, a. (eidill) Extremely slender.

Träeidillaw, v. a. (träeidill) To make very slender; to become extremely slender.

Träeidilliad, s. m. (träeidill) A making extremely slender; a becoming extremely slender.

Träeidillwch, s. (träeidill) Extreme slenderness.

Träerchyll, a. (erchyll) Extremely horrible.

Träerchyllawl, s. (träerchyll) Extreme horror.

Träerchylliad, s. m. (träerchyll) A rendering extremely horrible; a becoming very horrid.

Träerchyllu, v. a. (träerchyll) To render extremely horrid; to become very horrible.

Träesgud, a. (esgud) Extremely nimble.

Träesgudaw, v. a. (träesgud) To render extremely nimble; to become very nimble.

Träesgudrwydd, s. (träesgud) Over nimbleness.

Traeth, s. m.—pl. treuthydd (tra—eth) An extremity, or outaide; that is clear, or open; a tract; the margin, shore, or sandy beach of the sea, or the sand between high and low water marks.

Pwybyng a brafio dir yn ogles traeth, eio blaenyd gylid i'r tir o'r traeth; a gwnaed gored arno os myn.

Whoever owns land on the margin of a strand, he did on as much in breadth as the land of the strand; and he may turn it wear upon it if he will. Wales Laws.

Traethad, s. m. (traeth) A spreading out; a forming a tract; a treating; a declaring, or stating.

Traethadar, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traethad) One that treats or declares.

Pan brofer traethawd traethadurion cail, nid collidig fy agryfollion.

When the traitor of those who treat skilfully is tried, our companions will not be losers. Cynabala.

Traethadwy, a. (traethad) Utterable, effable.

Traethatur, ger. (traethad) In reciting.

Traethawd, s. m.—pl. traethodau (traeth) A discourse, a treatise, a tract.

Rhwych wch ymward, Rheg deg draethawd a draethur.

The splendid scope of fair eulogy, be the gift of polished discourse that is discomfited. Scelyll Brwf-fwrch.

Traethawdl, s. f.—pl. traethodlan (traeth—awdl)

A recitative ode; also called traethodyn.

Traethawl, a. (traeth) Tending to open, expressive.

Traethawr, s. m. (traeth) That utters or expresses.
Traethawyr, s. m. (traeth—awyr) Sand sky, or clouds when they are much broken.

Traethedig, a. (traethad) Being spread out; being uttered, treated, or expressed.

Traetheg, s. f. (traeth) Science of declamation.

Traethell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (traeth) A sandbank.

Traethellfor, s. m. (traethell—mor) A sea that breaks over a sandbank.

Traethelliad, s. m. (traethell) A forming a sandbank.

Traethells, v. a. (traethell) To form a sandbank.

Traethen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (traeth) A sand-drift.

Traethiad, s. m. (traeth) A treating; a dictation.

Traethitor, sup. (traeth) To be reciting; to be discoursed of.

Traethodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traethawd) One who makes a treatise.

Traethodyn, s. m. dim. (traethawd) A recitative verse, a sort of free versification.

Traethodyn, neu draethawd, a waith ar yr ena fwyer o'r pen-golef, neu y ghybedd hwyf, yn gyflwr awawd.

A recitative or reciting ode, is composed upon any one that may be desired of the five fundamental metres, or the longest metricity, in any rhyme complete. Barddas.

Traethoriaeth, s. m. (traethawr) Declamation.

Traethu, v. a. (traeth) To utter, to relate, to rehearse, to discourse; to treat.

Nid rhaid tawd i draethu cerch.

A tongue is not necessary for declaring love. Adage.

Tecfaen a draethws y deyrnas trwy beddwrch a thangruddod.

Tamwra treated the kingdom through peace and tranquillity. Bryt. Gwallter o Rydychain.

Traethwr, s. m.—pl. traethwyr (traeth—gwr) One who utters, or relates, a discourser.

Traethydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traeth) A treater.

Traf, s. m. (tra) A strain, a stir; a scour.

Trafael, s. f.—pl. trafaelion (tra—mael) Extreme effort; trouble, travail.

*Trafael a cher, gyda dolor, gweid dailad
 Trau gymraet, traw yn pryniad,
 O'r pren croctad.*

Trouble and affliction, with pain, after apprehension, heavily thou didst receive, opposing all thou didst redeem me, from the crucifying tree. Cernodyn.

Trafaeliad, s. m. (trafael) A travelling.

Trafaelu, v. a. (trafael) To travel, to toil.

Trafaelus, a. (trafael) Harassing, travelling.

Trafacs, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (traf) A stir, or bustle.

'Traffacs ac amrygon,' Bustle and contention.

Trafawd, s. f.—pl. trafodau (traf) A stirring, a turning about; a bustle; an intermeddling; labour, pains, trouble.

Po awyaf y drafaed awyaf fydd y gorfod.

The more the pains may be the more will be the necessity. Adage.

*O draffodion yr ystyr y tardd y deall;
 O draffodion y deall y tardd y meddwl.*

From the impulses of the sense proceeds the understanding; from the impulses of the understanding proceeds the thought. Gernall Fordd Glas.

*Ned dyfod trafod trafr alituedd hir,
 Y mor droe dir enwir anwedd!*

Does there not exist the affliction of a course of tedious besetment, the sea completely over a sinful land! G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Trafel, s. m.—pl. t. au (traf) That stirs, or works; a press; a hatchel.

Traffwnc, s. m.—pl. traffyncau (traf—llwnc) A greedy swallow, a guzzle.

Traffwng, s. m. (traf—llwng) A guzzle.

Traffyncawl, a. (traffwnc) A guzzling.

Traffynciad, s. m. (traffwnc) A guzzling.

Traffynau, v. a. (traffwnc) To swallow greedily.

Ni cholei hawt o aros, nad dyna i yn agosw allawr fawr arsyddion, lle gwelw y brenia dychrynawdy yn traffynau cig a gwad dynion, a mili o fan angenod o bob twil yn ei borthi.

I obtained only a short stay, but here I was in sight of a large dreadful altar, where I perceived the terrible king devouring the flesh and blood of men, with a thousand tiny deaths from every corner supplying him. Eile Wyn, B. Crag.

Traffyncwr, s. m. (traffwnc) A greedy swallower.

Trafu, s. m.—pl. t. an (traf) That causes a stir, turn, or motion; a stir; a bustle; a course; a turn; an impulse. Carw mawr-drafn, the greatly moving stag; dyfris-drafn, the invention-moving.

Trafu gwaen cerlifaen gwyarllyd.

The course of a golden-bladed spear imbrued with gore. H. ab O. Gwynedd.

Lle mas pen brawd Cyteuyn Foddigrad, Llafr drafn y dila.

Where is deposited the head of the brother of Constantine the Blessed, the blade of the course of conflict. R. Goch Eryri.

*Caricraf, trafrad trafron golunad,
 Trwy fodd fy Rhi trafrwyf iunad.*

I will fix my home, I will prepare for the paths of flight, by adorning my Lord whilst I exist. G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

*Arghlodd trafrad trafr broydd gwynlyd,
 A'm try o gwydd ym trafrwydd.
 Ein crair wyd, Fab Mair, morach trafrwydd,
 A'n llawen awder, a'n llawenlydd!*

The upholder of the system of the course of the regions of happiness, will turn me from a falling state to my eternity. Our hope art thou, Son of Mary, dispensing bliss, and our joyful teacher, and our former! G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Trafnawl, a. (trafn) Ranging; revolving; changing, mutable.

Trafnedig, a. (trafn) Ranged; being made to turn, revolve, or change.

Trafniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trafn) A ranging, a making a turn, a revolving; a changing.

Trafnid, s. m. (trafn) A range, a turn; a change; exchange; commerce.

Trafnidaeth, s. m. (trafnid) Intercourse, commerce, exchange; business. Pa drafnidaeth sy ganddo? in what line of business is he?

Trafnidiad, s. m. (trafnid) A carrying on intercourse, or commerce; a bartering.

Trafnidiaw, v. a. (trafnid) To carry on intercourse, or commerce; to exchange, to barter.

O derfydd i ddyfn llyna gwerthu ych o'r cyfar a rygirfardd yaddo, ni ddylly ei werthu, na ni drafnidiaw, yni ddarfu y cyfar.

If a man should desire to sell an ox out of joint ploughing where he has ploughed, he ought not to sell it, nor to exchange it, until he completes the joint ploughing. Welsh Laws.

Trafnidiawg, a. (trafnid) Having intercourse, commerce, or exchange.

Trafnidiawl, a. (trafnid) Commercial.

Trafnidiwr, s. m.—pl. trafniidiwyr (trafnid—gwr) One who has intercourse; a trafficker.

Trafnidydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trafnid) Trafficker.

Trafnig, a. (trafn) Of aptitude to range, or to revolve; mutable, declinable.

Tri o enwas nid trafniig.

Three of names not declinable. Llunedden.

Trafnoledb, s. m. (trafnawl) A state of ranging, or revolving; mutableness.

Trafnu, v. a. (trafn) To range; to revolve; to mutate.

Trafnus, a. (trafn) Ranging; revolving.

Trafnusaw, v. a. (trafnus) To render ranging, or revolving; to become mutable.

Trafnusdeb, s. m. (trafnus) A state of ranging, or revolving; mutableness.

Trafnusder, s. m. (trafnus) Mutableness.

Trafnusdra, s. m. (trafnus) Mutability.

Trafnusrwydd, s. m. (trafnus) A state of ranging, or revolving; mutableness.

Traflwr, s. m.—pl. trafawyr (trafa—gwr) A ranger, one who revolves.
Trafodadwy, a. (trafawd) Capable of stirring.
Trafodaeth, s. m. (trafawd) The act of stirring; a bustle; an intermeddling.
Trafodawl, a. (trafawd) Stirring; bustling.
Trafodi, v. a. (trafawd) To stir, to turn about; to bustle; to strive; to intermeddle.

*Brac y gant chwedl gan wawr;
 With a holafu ei hallawr;
 Douth at threfyd ays yndawr.*

A crow did sing her adage with the dawn, to much unquestioned her on her ouisic; the wise who doth not take pains both not regard himself. Cating ab Gwynllith.

*Gwyr a arth Galftraeth gan wawr;
 Trafolodyn yn hodd yn cofawr.*

Men went the Cattraeth with the dawn; they would strive in peace with audacity. Aneurin.

Trafodiad, s. m. (trafawd) A stirring, a turning about; a bustling; a striving; an intermeddling.
Trafodiaeth, s. m. (trafawd) The act of stirring; a bustling; an intermeddling; a transaction.
Trafodiaeth y byd hyn, the transaction of this world. Sil.

Trafodus, a. (trafawd) Apt to stir; bustling.
Trafodusaw, v. a. (trafodus) To render bustling or striving; to become bustling.
Trafodusedd, s. m. (trafodus) A stirring state.
Trafodusrwydd, s. m. (trafodus) A stirring state, tumultuousness.

Trafodwr, s. m.—pl. trafodwyr (trafawd—gwr) One who stirs; a bustling; a striver; an intermeddler.

Trafodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trafawd) A stirrer; a bustling; an intermeddler.

Trafoliad, s. m. (holiad) A gormandizing.

Trafoliaw, v. a. (holiaw) To gorge the belly.

Trafoliwr, s. m.—pl. trafoliwyr (trafoliaw—gwr) A gorging, a gormandizer.

Trafu, v. (traf) To stir, to agitate; to scour, to punge.

Trafas, a. (traf) Apt to stir, or to agitate.

Trafusaw, v. a. (trafus) To produce a stirring.

Trafusder, s. m. (trafus) A stirring state.

Trafusedd, s. m. (trafus) A commotion.

Trafusrwydd, s. m. (trafus) An agitated state.

Traff, s. m. (tra) A spread; a scatter.

Traffaeth, a. (ffaeth) Over-mellow.

Traffaethiad, s. m. (traffaeth) A rendering over-mellow; a becoming extremely mellow or rich.
Traffaethu, v. a. (traffaeth) To render over-mellow; to become over-mellow.

Traffaith, s. m.—pl. traiffeithiau (paith) A plot.

Traffeithus, a. (traffaith) Plotting. Dynion tra- ffeithus, plotting men.

Trafferth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traff—erth) Business, painstaking, toil, trouble; a great to do.
Mae arno lawer o drafferth amdani, he is in great taking about her.

Trafferth ych hyd echwydd.

The toil of the ox till the afternoon.

Adage.

Trafferthawg, a. (trafferth) Full of bustle.

Trafferthawl, a. (trafferth) Bustling, toiling.

Trafferthedig, a. (trafferth) Being busied.

Trafferthiad, s. m. (trafferth) A toiling.

Trafferthiant, s. m. (trafferth) Busy toiling.

Trafferthu, v. a. (trafferth) To bustle, to be busy;
 to be busily employed; to be toiling.

Trafferthus, a. (trafferth) Bustling, full of business; toiling, laborious; troublous.

Trafferthusaw, v. a. (trafferthus) To render toiling; to become toiling or laborious.

Trafferthusdra, s. m. (trafferthus) Laboriousness.

Trafferthusrwydd, a. m. (trafferth) Toilousness.
Trafferthwr, s. m.—pl. trafferthwyr (trafferthgwr) A bustling, a toiler.

Traffid, s. m. (traff) A making a stir; a spreading.

Traffu, v. a. (traff) To make a stir; to spread.

Traffull, s. m. (ffull) Extreme bustle, or haste.

Traffalliad, s. m. (traffall) A bustling greatly.

Traffulliw, v. a. (traffall) To bustle greatly.

Traffun, s. f. (ffun) Extreme panting. a. having extreme panting.

Traffunaw, v. a. (traffun) To pant extremely.

Traffuniad, s. m. (traffun) A panting extremely.

Traffwyr, s. m. (ffwyr) Extreme impulse, or gut;
 an extreme drive; an extreme assault.

*Draffwyr i draffwyr her draffun feth
 O'i drafferth rasg Fortin.*

Altogether hold his most violent assault on death exten-pending from his exertion before Fortin.

Cynadfa i b. Cyfnew.

Traffwyrw, v. a. (traffwyr) To impel greatly.

Traffwyrriad, s. m. (traffwyr) A greatly driving.

Traffysg, s. m. (ffysg) Extreme hurry or haste.

Traffysgiad, s. m. (traffysg) A hurrying greatly.

Traffysgiaw, v. a. (traffysg) To hurry greatly.

Traffysgiawl, a. (traffysg) Extremely bustling.

Trag, ade. (tra) Beyond; beside; at; side.

Tragalar, s. m. (galar) Extreme grief.

Tragalarriad, s. m. (tragalar) A grieving greatly.

Tragalaru, v. a. (tragalar) To grieve extremely.

Tragalarus, a. (tragalar) Very grievous.

Tragall, s. m. (gall) Extreme power or might.

Tragallu, v. a. (tragall) To be extremely able.

Tragallusawg, a. (tragallu) Having over-power.

Tragalluedd, s. m. (tragallu) Extreme power.

Tragarw, a. (garw) Extremely rough or harsh.

Tragerwin, a. (tragarw) Extremely harsh.

Tragerwinaw, v. a. (tragerwin) To render exremely harsh; to become extremely rough.

Tragerwindeb, s. (tragerwin) Over harshness.

Traglew, a. (glew) Extremely clever.

Traglewder, s. m. (traglew) Extreme cleverness; extreme bravery.

Tragioes, s. f. (gloes) An extreme pang.

Tragioesawl, a. (tragloes) Extremely painful.

Tragioesi, v. s. (tragloes) To pain extremely.

Tragioesiad, s. (tragloes) A paining extremely.

Tragioesw, a. (gioesw) Extremely clear.

Tragioeswder, s. m. (tragloesw) Extreme clearness.

Tragioewl, v. a. (tragloesw) To render extremely clear, pellucid, or transparent.

Tragoes, s. f. (trag—oes) An after age. at Beyond age, after age.

*I Weneddydd y dywedaf;
 Oes tragoes dyngosaaf;
 Wedi Cadwaladr, Cyndaf.*

To Gweneddydd I will declare; age after age I will breed after Cadwaladr, Cyndaf.

Cyffwrth Rhydd.

Tragoesawl, a. (tragoes) Relating to after age.

Tragoesi, v. a. (tragoes) To render of an after age; to become of an after age.

Tragoesiad, s. m. (tragoes) A rendering of an after age; a becoming of an after age.

Tragofal, s. m.—pl. t. on (gofal) Extreme care.

Tragofaliad, s. m. (tragofal) A taking extreme care; a being very anxious.

Tragofalu, v. a. (tragofal) To take extreme care;
 to be very careful.

Tragofalus, a. (tragofal) Extremely careful.

Tragolau, a. (golau) Extremely luminous.

Tragoleuad, s. m. (tragolau) A greatly enlightening, a becoming extremely enlightened.

Tragoleuaw, v. a. (tragolau) To illumine greatly.

Tragolad, s. m. (golad) Extreme wealth.
Tragoladaw, s. c. (tragolad) To render extremely wealthy.
Tragoladawg, u. (tragolad) Very wealthy.
Tragor, s. m. (gor) Superabundance, superfluity.
Tragorawl, a. (tragor) Excessive; transcendental.
Tragori, v. a. (tragor) To render transcendental; to become transcendental.
Tragoriad, s. m. (tragor) A transcending.
Tragoriaeth, a. m. (tragor) Transcendency.
Tragoriant, s. m. (tragor) Transcendency.
Tragoroldeb, s. m. (tragorawl) Superexcellence.
Tragorolder, s. m. (tragorawl) Superexcellence.
Tragoroldr, s. m. (tragorawl) Superexcellence.
Tragorolodd, s. m. (tragorawl) Superexcellence.
Tragoroli, v. a. (tragorawl) To render superexcellent; to transcend.
Tragoroliad, s. m. (tragorawl) A transcending.
Tragorolrwydd, s. m. (tragorawl) Superexcellence; pre-eminence.
Tragorthrwm, a. (gorthrwm) Extremely oppressive.
Tragorthrwmawl, a. (tragorthrwm) Tending to be extremely oppressive.
Tragorthrymder, s. m. (tragorthrwm) Extreme oppression.
Tragorthrymiad, s. m. (tragorthrwm) A greatly oppressing, a tyrannising greatly.
Tragorthrymu, v. a. (tragorthrwm) To oppress extremely.
Tragoruch, a. (goruch) Most supreme.
Tragoruchder, s. m. (tragoruch) Superexcellence, supereminency; extreme altitude.
Tragoruchel, a. (tragoruch) Extremely elevated.
Tragwael, a. (gwael) Extremely frail.
Tragwaelder, s. m. (tragwael) Extreme frailty.
Tragwaelu, v. a. (tragwael) To render extremely frail; to become extremely frail.
Tragwall, s. m. (gwall) Extreme falling.
Tragwallder, s. m. (tragwall) Extreme fallacy.
Tragwalledd, s. m. (tragwall) Extreme fallacy.
Tragwallu, v. a. (tragwall) To fail extremely.
Tragwallus, a. (tragwall) Extremely fallible.
Tragwan, a. (gwan) Extremely weak.
Tragwander, s. m. (tragwan) Extreme weakness.
Tragwaniad, s. m. (tragwan) A weakening extremely.
Tragwano, v. a. (tragwan) To weaken greatly.
Tragwarth, s. m. (gwarth) Extreme disgrace.
Tragwarthiad, s. m. (tragwarth) A disgracing extremely.
Tragwarthu, v. a. (tragwarth) To disgrace extremely.
Tragwarthus, a. (tragwarth) Very disgraceful.
Tragwelw, a. (gwelw) Extremely pale.
Tragwelwad, s. m. (tragwelw) A turning pale.
Tragwelwedd, s. m. (tragwelw) Extreme paleness.
Tragwelwl, v. a. (tragwelw) To turn very pale.
Tragwerth, s. m. (gwerth) Over-value.
Tragwerthiad, s. m. (tragwerth) An over-valuing; an over-selling.
Tragwerthu, v. a. (tragwerth) To over-sell.
Tragwiw, a. (gwiw) Most excellent, most worthy.
Tragwiwdeb, s. (tragwiw) Extreme worthiness.
Tragwr, s. m. (gwr) A superior man.
Tragrawl, a. (tragwr) Extremely masculine.
Tragwres, s. m. (gwres) Extreme heat.

Udal cygn arno: sef a wael ystafell castellu tarianau yn ei gylch ar beiddwr gwacawr rhag y tragwres.

Sleep came upon him: thereupon his chamberlains did spread a shroud with shields around him on the shaft of spears against the extreme heat. Shroud upon Mawm Shield.

Tragwresawg, a. (tragwres) Extremely hot.
Tragwresawl, a. (tragwres) Extremely heating.
Tragwresiad, s. m. (tragwres) A heating greatly.
Tragwresn, t. a. (tragwres) To heat greatly.
Tragwth, s. m. (gwith) An extreme push.
Tragwthiad, s. m. (tragwth) A pushing greatly.
Tragwthlaw, v. a. (tragwth) To push extremely.
Tragwydd, a. (gwydd) Being beyond presence or cognition; eternal.
Tragwyddawg, a. (tragwydd) Eternal, ever.
Tragwyddawl, a. (tragwydd) Being beyond cognition, or knowledge; eternal.
Tragwyddogder, s. m. (tragwyddawg) Eternalness.

Pa hyd, Arglwydd! —

A drig dig dy tragwyddogder!

How long, Lord! will thy wrath endure to eternity!

M. Middleton.

Tragwyddoldeb, s. m. (tragwydd) Eternity.
Tragwyddoll, v. a. (tragwyddawl) To eternalize.
Tragwyl, a. (gwy) Extremely bashful.
Tragwylaw, v. a. (tragwyl) To render extremely bashful; to become very bashful.
Tragwylder, s. m. (tragwyl) Extreme bashfulness.
Tragwyn, a. (gwyn) Extremely white.
Tragwyniad, s. m. (tragwyn) A whitening greatly.
Tragwynu, v. a. (tragwyn) To whiten extremely.
Tragwyr, a. (gwyr) Extremely oblique.
Tragwyrw, v. a. (tragwyr) To render extremely oblique; to become extremely oblique.
Tragwyrredd, s. m. (tragwyr) Extreme obliquity.
Tragwryiad, s. m. (tragwyr) A rendering extremely oblique.
Tragyr, s. m. (gyr) Extreme impulse.
Tragyrwl, a. (tragyr) Extremely impulsive.
Tragryiad, s. m. (tragyr) A driving extremely.
Tragryu, v. a. (tragyr) To drive extremely.
Tragwydd, a. (cywydd) Being beyond cognition; eternal, everlasting. adv. Eternally.

Dyrran l'ih wân, wnydd wrthdych hawl,

O'ih wled fad feldriwl, er mawr mynydd,

I'ih wled, hys beched, lle y bydd dragwydd.

Grant a share to thy suppliant, an object having claim on happiness, of thy kingdom commensurate with good, for incense of praise, in thy banquet, Lord of life, where thou art to eternity. Comedy.

Tragwyddaw, v. a. (tragwydd) To eternalize.
Tragwyddawg, a. (tragwydd) Of eternal duration.
Tragwyddawl, a. (tragwydd) Eternal, ever. ✓
Tragwyddogder, s. (tragwyddawg) Eternalness.
Tragwyddoldeb, s. m. (tragwyddawl) Eternity.
Tragwyddolder, s. m. (tragwyddawl) Eternity.
Y dydd cynaf y gwael ef ddydd tragwyddolder, osf yw hys lleddr ystafawl.
The first day he made the day of eternity, that is to say spiritual light. Ecclesiastes.
Tragwyddolodd, s. m. (tragwyddawl) Eternalness.
Tragwyddoli, v. a. (tragwyddawl) To eternalize; to eternalize; to perpetuate.

Gwetho a thragwyddoli th.

To set and to perpetuate land.

Welsh Laws.

Tragwyddoliad, s. m. (tragwyddawl) Eternalization, a making eternal; a perpetuating.
Tragwyddoliaeth, s. m. (tragwyddawl) Eternalization.

Nid yd tri tragwyddawl, namyn un tragwyddawl; sef yw byny un diwahan yw tragwyddolodd y tri.

They are not three eternals, but one eternal; that is to say one undivisible is the eternity of the three.

Llyfr Didryf Llanddewi Bref.

Tragwyddolrwydd, s. m. (tragwyddawl) Everlastingness, eternalness.

Traha, s. m. (tra—ha) Extreme exaltation; haughtiness, arrogance, presumption.

Gnawd wldi traha tranc htr.

After presumption a lasting perdition follows.

Adage.

Gnawd o ben drythill draha.

From the mouth of the affluent presumption is natural.

Adage.

Tair traha gadarn cenedl y Cymry y gelwir y tair cyfodwry.
The three mighty presumptions of the nation of the Cymry the three universal expositions were called.

Triodd.

Gwae a goddwy Ddu drwy syberwyd.

Traha a'i syth yn mhoeu yn mhelli ddeiscryd.

Woe to him that offends God through pride, presumption shall cast him down in torment in the extreme gnashing of teeth.

Melyr ab Gwalchmai.

Trahâd, s. m. (traha) A rendering arrogant; a becoming arrogant, a presuming.

Trahâwg, a. (traha) Arrogant, presuming.

Tri trahâwg Yna Pryddau; Sawyl Benuchel, Paegen, mab
Urien, a Rhys, mab Eliawu.

The three arrogant ones of the isle of Britain; Sawyl Benuchel, Paegen son of Urien, and Rhys son of Eliawu.

Triodd.

Trahâwl, a. (traha) Presumptuous.

Trahadd, a. (hardd) Extremely handsome.

Trahaddiad, s. m. (trahadd) A rendering extremely handsome; a becoming of extremely fine growth.

Trahaddu, v. a. (trahadd) To render extremely handsome; to become very comely.

Trahâu, v. a. (traha) To render arrogant, to fill with presumption; to become arrogant.

Trahâus, a. (traha) Arrogant, haughty.

Trahauder, s. m. (trahâus) Haughtiness.

Trahausdra, s. m. (trahâus) Arrogance.

Trahausedd, s. m. (trahâus) Arrogance.

Trahausfalch, a. (trahâus—balch) Arrogantly-proud.

Trahawdd, s. a. (hawdd) Extremely easy.

Trahawl, s. f.—pl. traholion (hawl) An extreme claim.

Trahelaeth, a. (helaeth) Extremely ample.

Trahelaethiad, s. m. (trahelaeth) A rendering extremely ample.

Trahelaethu, v. a. (trahelaeth) To render extremely ample; to become very extended.

Traheini, a. (heini) Extremely brisk or lively.

Trahen, a. (hen) Extremely old or aged.

Trahenu, v. a. (trahen) To grow extremely old.

Trahir, a. (hir) Extremely long; very tedious.

Trahiriad, s. m. (trahir) A lengthening greatly.

Trahiriaw, v. a. (trahir) To lengthen extremely.

Trahoen, s. f. (hoen) Extreme vivacity.

Trahoff, a. (hoff) Most lovely; very engaging.

Trahoffi, v. a. (trahoff) To like extremely.

Trahoffiad, s. m. (trahoff) A liking extremely.

Traholi, v. a. (trahawl) To make an over claim; to question extremely.

Traholiad, s. m. (trahawl) A making an extreme claim; questioning extremely.

Trahôni, v. a. (honi) To assert extremely.

Trahôniad, s. m. (honiad) An asserting greatly.

Trahurt, a. (hurt) Extremely foolish.

Trahurtiad, s. m. (trahurt) A crazing extremely; a becoming extremely foolish.

Trahurtiaw, v. a. (trahurt) To render extremely crazy; to become extremely foolish.

Trahwyl, s. f.—pl. t. ion (hwyl) Extreme course.

Trahwyliaid, s. m. (trahwyl) A making an extreme course.

Trahwyliaw, v. a. (trahwyl) To make an extreme course.

Trahy, a. (by) Extremely bold or daring.

Trahyder, s. m. (hyder) Extreme confidence.

Trahyderiad, s. m. (trahyder) A confiding extremely; an over-confiding.

Trahyderu, v. (trahyder) To confide extremely.

Trahyfryd, a. (hyfryd) Extremely happy.

Trahyfrydawl, a. (trahyfryd) Greatly pleasing.

Trahyfrydiad, s. m. (trahyfryd) A rendering extremely happy; a becoming greatly pleased.

Trahyfryda, v. a. (trahyfryd) To make extremely happy; to be extremely pleased.

Trahyll, a. (hyll) Extremely frightful.

Trahylliad, s. m. (trahyll) A scaring extremely; a becoming extremely ugly.

Trahylla, v. a. (trahyll) To scare extremely; to make very ugly.

Trahynaws, a. (hynaws) Extremely goodnatured.

Trahynawsedd, s. m. (trahynaws) Extreme kindness of disposition.

Trahynod, a. (hynod) Extremely remarkable.

Trahynodi, v. a. (trahynod) To render extremely remarkable.

Trahynodiad, s. m. (trahynod) A rendering extremely remarkable.

Trai, s. m. (tra) An extreme state; a decrease, diminishing, or lessening; an ebb, an ebb tide.

Distyll trai, low water mark.

Myd a forchyn, ac a mî,

Ac a gerdin yn drws y traha trai:

Myd y gwr a ddolir dâl.

I do ride, and do stand, and perversely walk on the kind of the ebbing tide: I am the person who would catch Cal.

Yodd. Arthur a Gwalchmai.

Mab llyn mella ar drai.

Like a mill pond on the ebb.

Adage.

Traidd, s. m. (tra—idd) A passage or pervasion, a pierce through; a strait, passage, or narrow sea.

Traig, s. m. (tra—ig) That tends over.

Traigl, s. m.—pl. treigion (traig) A turn over, a turn, a roll; a revolution; an accident; a walk about, a case, in grammar.

Traigl mewn byd wastad.

The rolling of a stone to the level.

Adage.

Traili, s. m.—pl. treillion (tra—ill) A drawing over; a trail, a drawing out; a turn; a circumstance. Traili o bysged, a draught of fishes.

Gwr yn lloesu—

Gwrw ei draill a girded ran.

Lloesu is a person of terrible course with a destructive spirit.

Owain Iwan Dr.

Mewn dan both y maeo's debyg

I draill y ci e'r dryll cig.

In two things it is similar to the circumstance of the dog with the piece of meat.

For. Prydydd.

Train, s. m.—pl. treinion (tra—in) A run out, a stroll, a stray; a scattering; a reporting of news. Aur ar draia, gold spread abroad.

Gwelid en trychad, trichant celain;

Gwelid wael cad colloid ar draia.

I saw their unengled state, three hundred better; I saw the conflict entrain on a spread.

Cynhelo.

Yn dda da ei ryw, yn ddi draia,

A goren yn Nghymraes gywla.

A property good in its kind, void of being hatched, and the best in fair Wales.

D. Bryn.

Nid ai y rhai'r ar draia draw,

Amwdd wedd, i'w mawddwylid.

These would not go yonder on a stroll, with raw countenance, to brood over mutual scandal.

W. Cymro.

Trais, s. m.—pl. treisiau (tra—is) A break of bound; rapine; ravishment, violence; oppression.

Pa both byng a gaffer o draia, a thwyl, a chadwyl, ad a ddyd y cynwyl haww.

Whatever is obtained by violence, and deceit, and power, such is not maintained through justice.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Traith, s. m.—pl. treithlon (tra-ith) An utterance, or expression; a treatise.

*A channaw! gwaith trath, lle trig
Brenfrakh neu'n coed ar ddranrig.*

To commend the performance is an expression, wherever the thrush abides on the twig of a tree in woods. E. Gosh. Eryri.

Trallafar, s. m. (llafur) Excessive labour.

Trallanw, s. m. (llanw) An over-filled state.

Trallawd, s. m.—pl. trallodion (llawd) Adversity, affliction.

Dwg trallodau, gwaeth hebbydnt.

Bad are afflictions, it is worse without them.

Adage.

Trallodion yw ffyn yr ygwyl sydd yn eiddo Ffranceidd.

Afflictions are the staves of the ladder that ascends to heaven.

Adage.

Trallawen, a. (llawen) Extremely merry.

Trallawenn, v. a. (trallawen) To render extremely glad; to become extremely merry.

Trallawn, a. (llawn) Extremely full.

Trallawnder, s. m. (trallawn) Extreme fulness.

Tralleddf, a. (lleddf) Being extremely flat.

Tralleddfaw, a. (tralleddf) Tending to flatten extremely.

Tralleddfiad, s. m. (tralleddf) A flattening extremely; an inclining extremely.

Tralleddfu, v. a. (tralleddf) To decline extremely.

Trallenwad, s. m. (trallanw) An over-filling.

Trallenwi, v. a. (trallanw) To over-fill.

Tralles, s. m. (lles) Supreme benefit.

Trallesawl, a. (tralles) Extremely beneficial.

Trallesiad, s. m. (tralles) A benefiting extremely.

Trallesu, v. a. (tralles) To benefit extremely.

Trallid, s. m. (llid) Extreme anger.

Trallidiad, s. m. (trallid) A greatly irritating.

Trallidiaw, v. a. (trallid) To irritate extremely.

Trallidiawg, a. (trallid) Extremely angry.

Tralli, s. m. (lliw) Excess of colour.

Tralliawd, s. m. (tralliaw) An over-colouring.

Tralliaww, v. a. (tralliaw) To over-colour.

Trallodawl, a. (trallawd) Afflicting, vexing.

Trallodedig, a. (trallawd) Being afflicted.

Trallodi, v. a. (trallawd) To afflict, to vex.

Trallodiad, s. m. (trallawd) An afflicting.

Trallodus, a. (trallawd) Afflicting, vexatious.

Trallodusaw, v. a. (trallodus) To render afflicted; to render afflicting; to become afflicting.

Trallodusedd, s. m. (trallodus) Afflictedness.

Trallodusrwydd, s. m. (trallodus) Afflictedness.

Trallodwr, s. m.—pl. trallodwyr (trallawd-gwr) One who afflicts.

Trallon, a. (llon) Extremely pleased within.

Trallonaidd, a. (trallon) Tending to yield extreme inward pleasure.

Trallonder, s. m. (trallon) Extreme inward pleasure.

Tralloni, v. a. (trallon) To give extreme delight or inward satisfaction; to be extremely pleased.

Tralloniad, s. m. (trallon) A yielding extreme inward pleasure.

Trallonydd, a. (llonydd) Extremely quiet.

Trallonyddiad, s. m. (trallonydd) A quieting extremely; a becoming very quiet.

Trallonyddu, v. a. (trallonydd) To render extremely quiet; to become extremely quiet.

Trallonyddwch, s. m. (trallonydd) Extreme quietness.

Trallog, s. m. (lllog) An extreme burning.

Trallogach, s. m. (trallog) A state of extreme burning; extreme lust.

Trallogi, v. a. (trallog) To burn extremely.

Trallogiad, s. m. (trallog) A burning extremely.

Trallug, s. m. (llug) Extreme dragging.

Trallugaw, v. a. (trallug) To drag extremely.

Trallugawl, a. (trallug) Dragging extremely.

Trallugiad, s. m. (trallug) A pulling or dragging after extremely.

Trallwybr, s. m.—pl. trallwybrau (llwybr) An extreme path; extreme hazard.

Nen nas trawd trallawd trallwybr glodau;

Archaf arch i Ddew, a'n dodde nos,

Nas dote Peidr glodau

Ym lledolau ym ddos er mas!

May we not be visited by the affliction to walk the extreme path of poverty; I beseech of God, who dispenses heaven to us, that Peter may not lay on locks, to hinder me to my appropriate place for myself! Stm. ab Gwalechmed.

Trallwybraw, v. a. (trallwybr) To make out an extreme path; to go an extreme path.

Trallwybriad, s. m. (trallwybr) A going on an extreme path; a going into extreme hazard.

Trallwydd, s. m. (llwydd) Extreme prosperity.

Trallwyddaw, v. a. (trallwydd) To prosper greatly.

Trallwyddiad, s. m. (trallwydd) A prospering extremely; a being very fortunate.

Trallwyddiannawl, a. (trallwyddiant) Extremely prosperous or fortunate.

Trallwyddiannu, v. a. (trallwyddiant) To cause extreme prosperity; to become very prosperous.

Trallwyddiannus, a. (trallwyddiant) Extremely prosperous or fortunate.

Trallwyddiant, s. m. (trallwydd) Great prosperity.

Nid gelys ond trallwyddiant.

There is no enemy like too much prosperity.

Adage.

Trallwyth, s. m.—pl. t. i. (llwyth) Extreme load.

Trallwythaw, v. a. (trallwyth) To overload.

Trallwythawg, a. (trallwyth) Overloaded.

Trallwythawl, a. (trallwyth) Tending to overload.

Trallwythedig, a. (trallwyth) Overloaded.

Trallwythiad, s. m. (trallwyth) An overloading.

Trallydan, a. (llydan) Extremely broad.

Trallydander, s. m. (trallydan) Extreme breadth.

Trallydaniad, s. m. (trallydan) A rendering extremely broad; an over-expanding.

Trallydanu, v. a. (trallydan) To render extremely broad; to become extremely expanded.

Trallym, a. (llym) Extremely sharp, or acute.

Trallymder, s. m. (trallym) Extreme sharpness.

Trallymiad, s. m. (trallym) A sharpening extremely; a becoming very sharp or severe.

Trallymu, v. a. (trallym) To sharpen extremely.

Tram, s. m. (tra-am) An extreme range round.

Tramain, a. (main) Extremely fine or slender.

Tramaint, s. m. (maint) Extreme size. a. Immense.

Mellod—

A'i balchbradd, a'i balchrodd tramaint.

Meivod with its proud degree, and its proud gift immense.

Cynddolau.

Tramantawl, s. f. (mantawl) An over-balance.

Tramantoll, v. a. (tramantawl) To over-balance.

Tramanwl, a. (manwl) Extremely accurate, exact, or nice; very careful.

Tramanyliad, s. m. (tramanwl) A rendering extremely exact; a becoming very careful.

Tramanylu, v. a. (tramanwl) To render extremely accurate; to become very exact.

Tramanylwch, s. m. (tramanwl) Extreme accuracy; extreme attention.

Tramawl, s. f. (mawl) Extreme praise.

Tramawr, a. (mawr) Extremely large; immense, infinite.

Tramawriad, s. m. (tramawr) A magnifying extremely.

Tramawriau, v. a. (tramawr) To magnify extremely; to become extremely large.

Tramawredd, s. m. (tramawr) Extreme greatness.
Trambydiaw, v. a. (tram--pydiaw) To become exposed to great danger.
Tramdaw, s. m. (tram--law) Extreme silence.

yn oedw cyswau—

Na cheislaw tramdaw yn y trywydd!

It is useless to complain, or to seek an excess of silence in the sad event!

Llywelyn Fardd.

Tramdawiad, s. m. (tramdaw) A causing a deep silence; a becoming extremely silent.
Trameinder, s. m. (tramaïn) Extreme fineness, or slenderness.
Trameddal, a. (meddal) Extremely soft.
Trameddaldar, s. m. (trameddal) Extreme softness.
Trameddaledd, s. m. (trameddal) Extreme softness.
Trameddaliad, s. m. (trameddal) A softening extremely.

Trameddalu, v. a. (trameddal) To soften greatly.
Trameddw, s. (weddw) Extremely drunk.
Trameddwd, s. m. (trameddw) Over intoxication.
Trameddwl, v. a. (trameddw) To intoxicate extremely; to get very drunk.
Tramelys, a. (melys) Extremely sweet.
Tramelysder, s. (tramelys) Extreme sweetness.
Tramelysiad, s. m. (tramelys) A rendering extremely sweet; a becoming very sweet.
Tramelysu, v. a. (tramelys) To sweeten extremely.
Trameth, s. m. (meth) Extreme failure.
Tramethiant, s. m. (trameth) Extreme debility.
Tramgliwydd, s. m. (tram--clwydd) A stumble.
Tramgliwyddaw, v. a. (tramgliwydd) To fall over, to tumble, to stumble.

Ni lwydda ond a dramgliwydda.

No one shall prosper but who shall tumble.

Adage.

Tramgliwyddiad, s. m. (tramgliwydd) A tumbling over, a stumbling.
Tramgoll, s. f. (tram--coll) Extreme loss.
Tramgollu, v. a. (tramgoll) To lose extremely.
Tramgydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tram--cwydd) A downfall, a tumble, a stumble.

Qnwyddi wadi traha tramgydd.

After presumption a fall is a natural consequence.

Adage.

Tramgywyddaw, v. a. (tramgywydd) To tumble.

Ni lwyddodd ond a dramgywyddodd.

No one has prospered but who has fallen.

Adage.

Tramgywyddawl, a. (tramgywydd) Stumbling.
Tramgywyddedig, a. (tramgywydd) Stumbled.
Tramgywyddfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tramgywydd) A stumbling-block.
Tramgywyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tramgywydd) A stumbling, a falling, or tumbling down.
Tramgywyddwr, s. m.—pl. tramgywyddwyr (tramgywydd—gwr) A stumbler, one who falls.
Tramhwyl, s. f.—pl. t. iau (tram--hwyl) An extreme course.

Mel rhod yn troi tramhwylan.

Trallawd math trachymhall trethau.

Like the universe revolving immense spheres, a tedious affliction is the severely compelling of taxes.

Taliesin.

Tramhwyliaid, s. m.—pl. t. au (tramhwyl) A taking an extreme course.
Tramhwyliaw, s. a. (tramhwyl) To make an extreme course.
Tramodd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (modd) Extreme means or ability.
Tramoddawl, a. (tramodd) Beyond possibility.
Tramoddiaid, s. m. (tramodd) A rendering beyond means; a rendering impossible.

Trameddiaw, v. (tramedd) To render impossible.
Tramodd, adv. (tra--ym--oed) Beyond my time.
Tramolawd, s. f. (tramawl) Extreme praise.
Tramoli, v. a. (tramawl) To praise extremely.
Tramoliantu, v. a. (tramoliant) To praise extremely; to flatter.
Tramoliantu, a. (tramoliant) Extremely commendable.
Tramoliant, s. m. (tramawl) Extreme praise.
Tramor, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (mor) A place beyond sea. a. Transmarine; foreign.

Nid mor heb dramor.

There is no sea without a transmarine region.

Adage.

Y mynyddoedd ac y fforestydd a gynallai y breich yn ddfeth lldo ai bus; merys y gallu dderbyn alltallu tramor yn y cyfwrdd; ac i law raddi yn hysbyrtu; ac i aw lloedd yn gwrdd i theschlegydd.

The mountains and the forests the king gathered to upon in himself; so that he might receive transmarine sight to know his men; and to give it as a gratuity; and to approach it a customary land to mountaineers.

Wales law.

Tramorawl, a. (tramor) Transmarine.
Tramoredig, a. (tramor) Being made transmarine.
Tramoredigion, transmarine things.
Tramori, v. a. (tramor) To render transmarine; to pass beyond sea; to become transmarine.
Tramp, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tram) A ramble. Nyd ar y tramp, to set out on the ramble.
Trampiad, s. m. (tramp) A rambling.
Tramplaw, v. a. (tramp) To ramble, to tramp.
Trampiawl, a. (tramp) Rambling, tramping.
Trampiwr, s. m.—pl. trampiwyr (tramp—wr) A Rambler, a trampler.
Tramwy, s. m. (tram) A transit; a going about.
Tramwy, v. a. (tram) To go about; to go often; to frequent, to resort; to pass over, to traverse.

*A gylweidi a gnat y ffronfrith:
 Pan dramwyth dros ddiffrith
 Na dd cysa cy gwyddith.*

Didst thou hear what the thrush did sing: When thou dost traverse the wilderness, be not an enemy thy countrymen.

Ref. y Cyd.

Tramwyad, s. m. (tramwy) A traversing.
Tramwyadwy, a. (tramwyad) Traversable.
Tramwyeth, s. m. (tramwy) The act of going about, or traversing.
Tramwyaw, v. a. (tramwy) To traverse.
Tramwyawl, a. (tramwy) Traversing.
Tramwyedig, a. (tramwyad) Traversing; transitory; traversed.

*Hardd gwled y planedau,
 A'u llywyr y y gylweithu gan:
 Tramlidau tramwyedig,
 A chell yn deall eu dig.*

It is magnificent to behold the planets, with their course in the empty surrounding ether: of transitory nature, when they do cunning doth understand.

Gr. Owen.

Tramwyedigeth, s. m. (tramwyedig) The act of going about or traversing.
Tramwyfa, s. f.—pl. tramwyfeydd (trawy) A traversed place.
Tramwyn, a. (mwyn) Extremely genial or kind.
Tramwywr, s. m.—pl. tramwywyr (trawy—wr) A traverser; a traveller.
Tramwydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trawy) A traverser.
Tramynych, a. (mynych) Extremely frequent.
Tramynychiad, s. m. (tramynych) A frequenting extremely; a becoming very frequent.
Tramynychu, v. a. (tramynych) To frequent extremely; to become very frequent.
Tramynydd, s. m. (mynydd) That is over a mountain. a. Beyond the mountain; transmontane.
Tramynyddawl, a. (tramynydd) Transmontane.

Tras, s. m.—pl. f. au (tra—au) A space, a stretch; a district, or region.

*Ow heb weth at wyr aghorthin,
Tras fain ond bod tro's i ffa.*

A man without property he knows not how to laugh, with a slender stretch only there is a twist in his mouth. Huw Dwn.

Tranawf, s. m. (nawf) An over-swim.

Tranawf, a. (traa) Belonging to a region.

Tranc, s. m. (tra—anc) A cessation; exhaustion; end; decrease; departure; dissolution, death.

*Rhag draig Moa—dwy dyfynaf,
A rhwyd, a thrin, a thranc cymari
Ar gal gad gwendid,
Ar gryn gryd gwendid,
Ac am Dal Moethre
Mili Maderi.*

Against the dragon of Moa perpetual confusion, ruin, till, and an end of pre-eminence ran before him; in conflict upon conflict perished with gore; in carnage upon carnage of horrors dismayed and found the heart of Moaivre a tempestuous sea waving. Gyfeirch Mael.

Od i ffr drin, hyd awr dranc, Wyr Ddwy, y gyl dewr ddanc.

Should he go to the conflict, until the hour of departure, through God the brave may escape. Rhyf. Ceth.

Trancadwy, s. m. (tranc) Perishable; exhaustible.

Trancawf, a. (tranc) Perishing, vanishing.

Tranced, s. f.—pl. t. i (tranc) An earthen vessel or cup, such a cup with a handle as is in common use.

Trancedig, s. m. (tranc) Perishing, evanescent.

Trancedigaeth, s. m. (trancedig) A state of perishing or vanishing.

Trancedigrwydd, s. m. (trancedig) Perishableness.

Trancedu, v. a. (tranced) To lade with a cup.

Trancell, s. f. (tranc) A quantity of liquor drank at once, a draught.

Tranced, s. m.—pl. t. au (tranc) An exhausting; a coming to an end; dissolution.

Trances, v. a. (tranc) To exhaust; to bring to an end; to perish, to pass away, to die.

Tranarth, s. m. (north) Extreme strength.

Tranarthawl, a. (tranarth) Extremely potent.

Tranarthu, v. a. (tranarth) To strengthen extremely.

Tranad, s. m. (traa) A stretching; a laying out a space.

Tranail, s. m. (traa—ial) A clear space; a field of battle.

*Prydaen gar praff drydar dranal;
Pryddeddu fadair gair ynal.*

Britain the cause of the ample tumult of the hostile field; the throne of poets of mighty energy. Cynddelw, i H. ab Owain.

*Darf ar farf, ac arf ya greadol,
Tol aroethl ianail—dranal.*

Beard on beard, and weapon imbued with blood, front over front, a field of battle most dreadful. Cynddelw.

Tranoeth, s. m. (noeth) That is extremely naked; that is over or beyond the night; the next morning. adv. On the next morning, on the morrow.

Mi elwir daw hyd tranoeth.

Coming will not be so called till the morrow. Adage.

Dwyg tranaydd wrth dranoeth.

Bed is the third day to the morrow. Adage.

Tranoethi, s. a. (tranoeth) To make very bare.

Tranogad, s. m. (tranawf) Transation.

Tranofaw, v. a. (tranawf) To over-swim.

Tranofawl, a. (tranawf) Over-swimming.

Trano, s. m. (noa) A time beyond the night; a future night. adv. After the night.

VOL. II.

Trans, v. a. (tran) To stretch; to lay out a space.

Tranwyd, s. m.—pl. t. au (nwyd) Extreme passion.

Tranwydaw, v. a. (tranwyd) To render extremely passionate; to become extremely passionate.

Tranwydawl, a. (tranwyd) Extremely passionate.

Tranwyf, s. m.—pl. t. au (nwyf) Extreme liveliness or vivacity.

Tranwyfaw, v. a. (tranwyf) To enliven extremely; to become very lively.

Tranwyfawl, a. (tranwyf) Extremely animating or exhilarating.

Tranwyfus, a. (tranwyf) Extremely brisk.

Tranydd, s. m. (dydd) A time beyond the day; a future day. adv. After the day.

Trang, s. m.—pl. t. au (tranc) A cessation; exhaustion; end, decrease, death. a. Ceasing, vanishing. Ar drang, at the point of death.

*Dar a dyfrys yn ngwynnau,
A thwof, a thrin, a thrygus;
Owne a wyl na bo golan!*

An oak has grown in the downs, abounding with tumult, and conflict, and death: woe to him that sees that it is not light! Robert Tynwynning Normandi.

*Credgu—
M tydd ar drang gloes angau
Droes dyn, i dydd dristen.*

We believe his going on the departure of the pang of death, for myn, humbly to sorrow. Thos. Arwyl.

*Lleaws teyrnedd llawes dyfrydd;
Am ddryfys eu traugl
'Trang' trawl trawl!*

Princes have given room for a multitude of woe; for the hastening of their departure most destructive, most miserable of misery. Gwynfawr, i H. ab Owain.

Trangawl, a. (trang) Perishing, vanishing.

Tranogedig, a. (trang) Being perished.

Trangiad, s. m. (trang) A perishing; dissolution.

Trangu, v. a. (trang) To perish, to pass away.

Traoed, s. m. (oed) Extreme delay.

Traoedi, v. a. (traoed) To delay extremely.

Traoediad, s. m. (traoed) A delaying extremely.

Traoer, s. m. (oer) Extremely cold or chill.

Traoeri, v. a. (traoer) To cool extremely; to become extremely cold.

Traoerlad, s. m. (traoer) A cooling extremely.

Traoes, s. f. (oes) Extreme age. a. Over-age.

Traoesawl, a. (traoes) Superannuated.

Traoesl, v. a. (traoes) To become of extreme age; to be superannuated.

Traoesiad, s. m. (traoes) Superannuation.

Traofn, s. m. (ofn) Extreme fear or dread.

Traofnawg, a. (traofn) Extremely timid.

Traofnl, v. a. (traofn) To fear extremely.

Traofniad, s. m. (traofn) A fearing extremely; a frightening extremely.

Traphlith, adv. (tra—plith) In a most confused state.

Traphont, s. f.—pl. traphynt (tra—pont) The other side of a bridge. adv. On the other side of the bridge.

Mid pont heb draphont.

There is no bridge without a place beyond bridge. Adage.

Traphwyll, s. m. (tra—pwyll) Extreme impulse.

Traphwys, s. m. (tra—pwys) Extreme pressure.

Trarif, s. m. (rhif) An over number.

Trarifaw, v. a. (tarif) To over-reckon.

Trarifawl, a. (tarif) Supernumerary.

Tras, s. f.—pl. t. au (tra—aa) Kindred, relationship, affinity. According to the ancient laws, a person who could prove his descent through nine degrees was a free native. Proof of collateral relationship was also required in the ninth degree, for that determined the family of a person; and this was necessary, as the whole family was liable to be fined for the crimes of its members, rated according to proximity of kindred.

Descending kindred.

- 1 Tad, mam, father, mother.
- 2 Mab, merch, son, daughter.
- 3 Wyr, wyres, grandson, grand-daughter.
- 4 Gorwyr, gorwyres, son, daughter, in the 3d degree.
- 5 Hengaw, hengawes, son, daughter, in the 6th degree.
- 6 Gorhengaw, gorhengawes, son, daughter, in the 7th degree.

Ascending kindred.

- 1 Tad, mam, father, mother.
- 2 Tad cu, mam gu, grandfather, grandmother, or headad, henfam.
- 3 Gorhendad, gorhenfam, a father, mother, in the 4th degree.
- 4 Taid, nain, a father, mother, in the 5th deg.
- 5 Hendaid, hennain, a father, mother, in the 6th degree.
- 6 Gorhendaid, gorhennain, a father, mother, in the 7th degree.

Collateral kindred descending.

- 1 Brawd, chwaser, brother, sister.
- 2 Cefnderw, cyfnitherw, male cousin, female cousin.
- 3 Cyfydrw, second cousin.
- 4 Ceiſu, third cousin.
- 5 Gorchefu, fourth cousin.
- 6 Ysgiaion neu plant cyfydrw, third cousins.
- 7 Gorthysgiaion, neu plant plant cyfydrw, fourth cousins.
- 8 Caw, cawes, son, daughter, in the 4th degree.
- 9 Gorchaw, gorchawes, son, daughter, in the 5th degree.
- 10 Gersi, seventh cousin.
- 11 Gortherni, eighth cousin.

Or thus:

- | | |
|------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1 Cefnderw | 6 Gwystyn, neu gorchudd |
| 2 Cyfydrw | 7 Gorchwystyn neu gorcharent |
| 3 Plant cyfydrw | 8 Car trig, neu goreiddyn |
| 4 Ceiſu | 9 Car clud . |
| 5 Gorchefu | |

Collateral Kindred.

- 1 Erythr, modryb, uncle, aunt.
- 2 Nai, nith, nephew, niece.
- 3 Cyſnai, cyſnith, nephew, niece, in the 2d deg.
- 4 Gorchyſnai, gorchyſnith, nephew, niece, in the 3d degree.
- 5 Clud, collateral relative in the 4th degree.
- 6 Car clud, car a chlad, a collateral relative in the 5th degree.
- 7 Gwrth clud, a collateral relative in the 6th degree.
- 8 Car o woad, a collateral relative in the 7th degree.

Trasidd, a. (tras) In some degree related.
Trasail, s. f.—pl. trasellau (sail) Extreme base.

Trasaln, s. f. (sain) An extreme sound.
Trasalw, a. (salw) Extremely frail or poor.
Trasalwder, s. m. (trasalw) Extreme frailty.

A Dew a'n trowy o'n traswder airo,
 I hawn obodidaw a wybythar!

And may God bring me out of my extreme wretchedness to him, rightly to hope for what is known.

Trasawdd, s. m. (sawdd) Extreme sinking.
Trasawg, a. (tras) Having kindred.
Trasawl, a. (tras) Belonging to kindred.

Tras wedydd trasawl ydyd.

Over countries thou art connected by kindred. Is. 60.

Trasedig, a. (tras) Connected by kindred.
Trasedd, s. m. (tras) A kindred state.
Trasefyll, v. a. (sefyll) To over-stand; to persist; to be permanent.
Traseiddiad, s. m. (trasidd) A rendering partly related; to be connected by kindred.
Traseiddiaw, v. a. (trasidd) To form a slight relationship; to become slightly related.
Traseiddrwydd, s. m. (trasidd) Slight relationship; common kindred.

Cymroa aegrallt oddiwrth Priaf, breidd Treb, y mae i'n blodauw newn trasseiddrwydd, a chyfoeth, cwydded a path.

Let us take an example from Priaf, king of Treb, in who he been flourishing in extensive kindred and dominion, know not power. Marching Cynfeir.

Traselfiad, s. m.—pl. traselfiad (seifid) That stands extremely firm.

Y Ty yn y Penryn—
 Traselfiad, trawd it trig
 Treth holl ar lla Tracta fellig.

The house in the peninsula, an extreme permanent support of society where it is, serving out a revenue on the bank of the last of fellig. Elips Gwst Dyf.

Traselliad, s. m. (trasail) A forming an extreme base or foundation.
Trasellaw, v. a. (trasail) To lay an extreme base.
Trasellinad, s. m. (trasail) A sounding greatly.
Trasellinaw, v. a. (trasail) To sound extremely.
Trasellinawl, a. (trasail) Very sonorous.
Trasenn, s. f. (senn) An extreme reproach.
Trasennawl, a. (trasenn) Very reproachful.
Trasennad, s. (trasenn) A reproaching extremely.
Trasennu, v. a. (trasenn) To reproach extremely.
Trasorch, s. m. (sorch) Excess of fondness, a doting, dotage.

Nid breiddmawr ond sorch;
 Nid ydyddrwydd ond trasorch.

There is no empire like that of love, there is no fondness like dotage. Idyl.

Morganwg—
 Lle lloer tra o'n trasorch:
 Lle dewr mawr, lle ddiwr mawr.

Morganwg, to where a portion of my fondness's doting; when the son is bold, where the daughter is chaste. R. at Gwst.

Trasorchawg, a. (trasorch) Extremely living.
Trasorchawl, a. (trasorch) Apt to dote.
Trasorchiad, s. m. (trasorch) A doting, a fondling.
Trasorchu, v. a. (trasorch) To love extremely.
Trasorchus, a. (trasorch) Apt to dote.
Trasorth, a. (sorth) Extremely precipitous; very steep.
Trasorthiad, s. m. (trasorth) A rendering extremely precipitous; a becoming very steep.
Trasorthu, v. a. (trasorth) To render extremely precipitous; to become very steep.
Trasg, s. m. (tra—ag) That is laid together.
Trasg, s. m.—pl. i. an (trasg) A rake.
Traslad, s. m. (tras) A forming a kindred; a becoming connected by kindred.
Trasoddawl, a. (trasawdd) Tending to sink greatly.

Trasoddi, v. a. (trasawdd) To sink extremely.
Trasoddiad, s. m. (trasawdd) A sinking greatly.
Trasom, s. m. (som) Extreme deception.
Trasomawl, a. (trasom) Extremely deceiving.
Trasomgar, a. (trasom) Extremely deceiving.
Trasomi, v. a. (trasom) To deceive extremely; to disappoint extremely.

Trasomiad, s. m. (trasom) A deceiving greatly; a disappointing extremely.

Trason, s. m. (son) Excess of noise or talk.

Trasoniad, s. m. (trason) A talking extremely.

Trasoniaw, v. a. (trason) To talk extremely.

Trasoniawl, a. (trason) Extremely noisy.

Trasu, v. a. (tras) To connect by kindred; to become connected by kindred.

Trasur, a. (sar) Extremely sour or acid.

Trasuraw, v. a. (trasur) To sour extremely.

Trasuriad, s. m. (trasur) A souring extremely.

Traswydd, s. f.—pl. t. an (swydd) An over office or employment.

Traswyddawg, a. (traswydd) Having an over-office. s. m. One who fills an over-office.

Traswyddgar, a. (traswydd) Over-officious.

Traswyddgarwch, s. m. (traswyddgar) Over-officiousness.

Trasych, a. (sych) Extremely dry or parched.

Trasychiad, s. m. (trasych) A drying extremely.

Trasychu, v. a. (trasych) To dry extremely.

Trasylw, s. m. (sylw) Extreme notice or regard.

Trasylwad, s. m. (trasylw) A regarding much.

Trasylwi, v. a. (trasylw) To notice extremely.

Trasyn, a. (syn) Extremely concerned.

Trasyndawd, s. m. (trasyn) Extreme concern.

Trasyniad, s. m. (trasyn) Much consideration.

Trasyniaw, v. a. (trasyn) To feel extremely; to consider extremely.

Trasyniawl, a. (trasyn) Extremely sensible; of extreme consideration.

Trasynu, v. a. (trasyn) To concern or to amaze extremely; to be extremely concerned.

Trasyth, a. (syth) Extremely stiff or erect.

*Y balchaf, trawaf trasyth,
Lleiaf ei borch yn mhob lle byth.*

The proudest, the most forward extremely stiff, the least his respect ever in every place. D. ab Edmunt.

Trasythiad, s. m. (trasyth) A rendering very stiff or erect; a becoming very erect.

Trasythu, v. a. (trasyth) To render extremely erect; to become very erect.

Trathal, s. f. (tal) An over-payment.

Trathaliad, s. m. (trathal) An over-paying.

Trathalo, v. a. (trathal) To over-pay.

Trathanawl, a. (tanawl) Extremely expanding.

Trathaniad, s. m. (taniad) A spreading greatly.

Trathanu, v. a. (tanu) To expand extremely.

Trathardd, s. m. (tardd) An excess of spring, or breaking out.

Tratharddawl, a. (trathardd) Tending to spring, or break out extremely.

Tratharddiad, s. m. (trathardd) A springing, issuing, or breaking out extremely.

Tratharddn, v. a. (trathardd) To issue greatly.

Trathardn, s. f. (tasg) An extreme task.

Trathasgawl, a. (trathasg) Being an over task.

Trathasgiad, s. m. (trathasg) A tasking much.

Trathasgu, v. a. (trathasg) To task extremely.

Trathaw, s. m. (taw) Extreme silence.

Trathebyg, a. (tebyg) Extremely similar.

Trathebygiad, s. m. (trathebyg) A rendering very similar; a becoming very like.

Trathebygu, v. a. (trathebyg) To liken much.

Tratheg, a. (teg) Extremely fair or open.

Trathellwng, a. (teillwng) Extremely worthy.

Tratheilyngiad, s. m. (trathellwng) A rendering extremely worthy; to merit extremely.

Tratheilyngu, v. a. (trathellwng) To render extremely worthy; to become very worthy.

Trathelaid, a. (telaid) Extremely elegant.

Tratheneu, a. (teneu) Extremely thin.

Tratheneuad, s. m. (tratheneu) A rendering extremely thin; a becoming very thin.

Tratheneuaw, v. a. (tratheneu) To make extremely thin; to become very thin.

Trather, a. (ter) Extremely pure or clear.

Tratheriad, s. m. (trather) A purifying greatly.

Tratheru, v. a. (trather) To purify extremely.

Tratherwyn, a. (terwyn) Extremely ardent.

Tratherwyniad, s. m. (tratherwyn) A rendering extremely ardent; a becoming very ardent.

Tratherwynn, v. a. (tratherwyn) To render extremely ardent; to become extremely ardent.

Tratheryll, a. (teryll) Extremely piercing.

Trathes, s. m. (tes) Extreme warmth; extreme sun-heat.

Trathew, a. (tew) Extremely thick.

Trathewiad, s. m. (trathew) A thickening extremely.

Trathewan, v. a. (trathew) To over-thicken.

Trathewi, v. a. (trathaw) To render profoundly silent; to become very silent.

A ffanc truch trathewys.

And the wounded Frank became profoundly silent.

Frank mai.

Trathirion, v. a. (tirion) Extremely pleasing.

Trathirionad, s. m. (trathirion) A rendering extremely pleasant or genial; a becoming very pleasing.

Trathiriomi, v. a. (trathirion) To render extremely pleasant; to become very pleasing.

Trathori, v. a. (tôri) To break extremely.

Trathoriad, s. m. (toriad) An over-breaking.

Trathost, a. (toet) Extremely severe.

Trathostur, s. m. (trathost) Extreme pity.

Trathosturi, s. m. (trathostur) Extreme pity.

Trathosturiad, s. m. (trathostur) A pitying extremely, a commiserating much.

Trathosturiaw, v. a. (trathostur) To commiserate extremely.

Trathosturiawl, a. (trathostur) Extremely commiserating; greatly pitying.

Trathraul, s. f. (traul) Extreme consumption, wear, waste, or charge.

Trathreuliad, s. m. (trathraul) A consuming extremely; an over-wasting.

Trathreuliaw, v. a. (trathraul) To consume extremely; to over-waste.

*Byd a fydd byd, heb wynt, heb wlaw,
Heb ormod erudig, heb drathreuliaw;
Tir digawn fydd un erw i naw.*

The world will be a world, without wind, without rain, without too much ploughing, without consuming to extreme; sufficiency of land will one acre be for nine. Gwngar. Myrdin.

Trathrin, s. m. (trin) Extreme striving; extreme strife or conflict.

Trathriniad, s. m. (trathrin) A bnsying about extremely; a striving extremely.

Trathriuiaw, v. a. (trathrin) To strive extremely.

Trathriuiawl, a. (trathrin) Extremely bustling.

Trathro, s. m. (tro) An extreme turn.

Trathrôad, s. m. (trathro) A turning much.

Trathrôawl, a. (trathro) Tending to turn much.

Trathroi, v. a. (trathro) To turn extremely.

Trathrwm, a. (trwm) Extremely heavy.

Trathrwt, s. m. (trwt) Extreme noise.

Trathrymâd, s. m. (trathrwm) A rendering extremely heavy; a becoming very heavy.

Trathrymân, v. a. (trathrwm) To render extremely heavy; to become extremely heavy.

Trathrymder, s. m. (trathrwm) Extreme heaviness or pressure.

Trathrystiad, s. m. (trathrwt) A making an extreme noise or tumult.

Trathrystiaw, v. a. (trathrwt) To make an extreme noise or tumult.

Trathrystiawl, a. (trathrwt) Extremely noisy.

Trathwif, s. m. (twf) Extreme growth.

Trathwlg, s. m. (twg) Extreme prosperity.

Trathwr, s. m.—pl. trathwrau (twr) An extreme heap or aggregate.

Trathwrf, s. m. (twrf) Extreme tumult.

Trathwym, a. (twym) Extremely warm.

Trathwymnaw, v. a. (trathwymyn) To heat extremely; to become extremely hot.

Trathwymniad, s. m. (trathwymyn) A heating extremely.

Trathwymyn, a. (trathwym) Extremely hot.

Trathyciad, s. m. (trathwg) A thriving, increasing, or prospering extremely.

Trathyciannu, v. a. (trathyciant) To cause extreme prosperity; to become very prosperous.

Trathyciannus, a. (trathyciant) Extremely prosperous or successful.

Trathyciant, s. m. (trathwg) Extreme increase.

Trathyciaw, v. n. (trathwg) To increase extremely, to be very prosperous.

Trathyfawl, a. (trathwif) Of extreme growth.

Trathyfiad, s. m. (trathwif) An overgrowing.

Trathyfiant, s. m. (trathwif) An overgrowth.

Trathyfu, v. a. (trathwif) To grow extremely.

Trathylawd, a. (tylawd) Extremely poor.

Trathylodedd, s. m. (trathylawd) Great poverty.

Trathylodi, v. n. (trathylawd) To become very poor. s. m. Extreme poverty.

Daa nuthwyll byd, trathyfoeth a thrathylodi.

The two indiscretions of the world, extreme wealth and extreme poverty. Adage.

Trathyn, a. (tyn) Extremely tight, or strained.

Trathynâd, s. m. (trathyn) An over-tightening.

Trathynâu, v. a. (trathyn) To over-strain.

Trathyndra, s. m. (trathyn) Over-tightness.

Trathyner, a. (tyner) Extremely tender.

Trathyneru, v. a. (trathyner) To render extremely tender; to become very tender.

Trathyniad, s. m. (trathyn) An over-pulling.

Trathynu, v. a. (trathyn) To over-pull; to drag.

Trathryfawl, a. (trathwrf) Very tumultuous.

Trathryfiad, s. m. (trathwrf) A making an extreme tumult.

Trathryfu, v. a. (trathwrf) To make an extreme tumult or turmoil.

Trathryfiad, s. m. (trathwr) An over-heaping.

Trathryu, v. a. (trathwr) To over-heap.

Trathrywyll, a. (tywyll) Extremely dark.

Trathrywylliad, s. m. (trathrywyll) A darkening extremely.

Trathrywyllu, v. a. (trathrywyll) To darken extremely.

Trathrywyllwch, s. (trathrywyll) Great darkness.

Trâu, v. a. (tra) To pass over, to go beyond; to go through; to bore.

Traul, s. f.—pl. treulion (tra—ul) Diffusion; wear, waste, consumption; expence, cost, charge, or disbursement. Traul daint ac gwllys, expence of food and raiment: Traul yr haul, the sun's course.

De traul caining a weryl traul dry.

Good is the cost of a penny that saves the cost of two. Adage.

Edifar cybydd am traul.

A miser is sorry for the expence. Adage.

Traul ateb ataf a ddimofonynt.

A consuming answer to me they were wont to send. Quibble.

Traw, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tra) An advance, a progress, a lead, education; a distant, a further, or other side.

Hôl dwt o ddwr fr awn.

To fetch water from the other side of the flood. Adage.

Rhych yn y drych dy drw,

A'ia wnech yn cwtbwyr.

Behold in the mirror thy adomer, and thy countenance looking egly. Pl. of Othello.

Aeth a'ia diffydol i'w tad;

Rhwydd i'w fy rhodog;

Aeth yn deg ag a fegla

Erbod, traw oer y'r trîa.

He berceived me of my friends of becoming aspect; he saved me in my course: he has fairly gone with all lower words, and taken in the severe dealing! Gen. iii. 15.

Traw, a. (tra) Advancing; progressive; leading, teaching. I ba le yr ei di? Where art thou going? O, draw draw, O, a good way yonder.

Diofryd a roddaf—

Dws ei ghadu' draw godes

I dyla gwasg-gau gas.

A vow I will give, for leaving it an over-riding that is gone as the child's winter-fleece. Pl. of Othello.

Traw, ade. (tra) Beyond, over, on the other side; yonder.

Treiddion ni; a mi a Morgann.

Traw deulor i'w cyngor i'w gwisg.

Trath ymgeith yn fath awstus.

Trath a lryu a phwyrra a phid.

Traw a'ia i'w trîa a'ia i'w trîa.

May we penetrate; that is I and Morgann, beyond us are the council of correlatives; enjoy a journey without sorrow flagging, over strand and hill and headland and rain, a path that none will hinder expert even as Robert. Comedy.

Trawaeth, s. m. (traw) Advancement, progression; that comes forward; a circumstance; a leading, or bringing onward; education.

Bwridd i'w mewn diffwch

Brad golyaeth, traweth traw.

It threw me into the sadness of treacherous unity, in the same circumstance. Syr Owen of Glyn.

Trawalld, a. (traw) Progressive; conductive.

Trawwl, a. (traw) Tending to bring onward; disciplinary.

Trawd, s. m.—pl. trodion (tra) A transit, a course, a pass; a journey.

Nid oes darogan, dyn traw drawl.

O'r gwr an gorw maddu maddu.

There is no prophesy, oh man of miserable name, that is made an forgive drunkardness. Pl. of Othello.

Trwy frys, o'ia lryu dws deulor.

Trwy drawl y gwadod trîa i'w trîa.

Through breeze, his splendid court suddenly heaped, draw the range of the imagination, through the prospect of heaven I pray to God to take his part. G. iii. 15.

Gled a drud ar draw a'ia i'w trîa.

Glyw ei rry, of rryf u'ia i'w trîa.

A leading one and a hero on the dreadful course; it is his turn to be supreme, he that guides the constellation. Adage.

Trawdad, s. m.—pl. t. an (traw—tad) A leading father; a patriarch.

Trawd, s. m. (tra) A transit; a move onward; a pass; a penetration.

Trawdwyg, s. m. (traw—dyg) A leading instruction; fundamental instruction; doctrine.

Arwad fardd bardd yn mhob llyd.

A thrawdwyg a'ia i'w trîa.

A conducting bard handsome in every course, and a teacher of profound learning to them. Def. Beauty, s. 2. 15.

Trawselfyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trawselfydd) Transubstantiation, transelementation.

Trawselfyddu, v. a. (trawselfydd) To transubstantiate.

Trawsenw, s. m.—pl. t. au (enw) Metonymy.

Trawsenwad, s. m. (trawsenw) Transnomination; a forming a metonymy.

Trawsenwawl, a. (trawsenw) Metonymical.

Trawsenwi, v. a. (trawsenw) To form a metonymy.

Trawsfalch, a. (balch) Frowardly-proud.

Trawsfalchedd, s. m. (trawsfalch) Froward pride.

Trawsfaru, s. f.—pl. t. an (barn) A cross judgment, a contradictory opinion.

Trawsfarniad, s. m. (trawsfaru) A judging adversely; a contrary decision.

Trawsfarnu, v. a. (trawsfaru) To judge adversely.

Trawsfedd, s. m. (medd) Wrong possession.

Trawsfeddiannawl, a. (trawsfeddiant) Having possession wrongfully.

Trawsfeddiannu, v. a. (trawsfeddiant) To possess wrongfully; to usurp.

Trawsfeddiant, s. m. (trawsfedd) Usurpation.

Trawsfeddu, v. a. (trawsfedd) To possess adversely; to possess wrongfully.

Trawsflwg, a. (blwg) Frowardly-sullen.

Trawsfor, a. (mor) Being across the sea.

Trawsforawl, a. (trawfor) Transmarine.

Trawsforedig, a. (trawfor) Being rendered transmarine.

Trawsfrain, s. m.—pl. trawsfreiniau (braint) Usurpation of right.

Guthfron Guthfron gave a reddie (land) to his son Gotta, & drewsfraint, underneath Ynys Frydian.

Guthfron Guthfron gave to his son Gotta, by usurpation, the monarchy of the Isle of Britain. Trifedd.

Trawsfreiniad, s. m. (trawsfraint) An usurping of right.

Trawsfreiniaw, v. a. (trawsfraint) To usurp a right.

Trawsfreinniawl, a. (trawsfraint) Relating to an usurped right.

Trawsfud, s. m. (mad) A transit; migration.

Trawsfudaw, v. a. (trawsfud) To emigrate.

Trawsfudawl, a. (trawsfud) Migratory.

Trawsfudiad, s. m. (trawsfud) Transmotion; a migrating.

Trawsgalm, s. f.—pl. trawsgelinciau (calne) A cross-bough.

Trawsgan, s. f. (can) An adverse song; a satire.

Trawsgamias, s. m. (trawsgan) A satirizing.

Trawsganu, v. a. (trawsgan) To satirize.

Trawsgerdded, s. m. (cerdded) Transmigration. v. a. To transmigrate.

Trawsgerddiad, s. m. (trawsgerdded) A transmigration.

Trawsglad, s. m. (clad) Transportation.

Trawsgladaw, v. a. (trawsglad) To transport.

Trawsgludiad, s. m. (trawsglad) Transportation.

Trawsglwm, s. m.—pl. trawsglyman (clwm) A cross-knot; a node.

Trawsglwyd, s. f.—pl. t. au (clwyd) Cross hurdle.

Trawsglwydd, s. m. (clwydd) A transportation.

Trawsglwyddaw, v. a. (trawglwydd) To transport.

Trawsglwyddawl, a. (trawglwydd) Transporting.

Trawsglwyddiad, s. m. (trawglwydd) A transporting.

Trawsgryf, a. (cryf) Frowardly strong.

Trawsgymeriad, s. m. (cymeriad) Metalepsis.

Trawsgymeryd, v. a. (cymeryd) To take or to accept adversely.

Trawsgynnal, v. a. (cynnal) To hold adversely.

Trawsgynnalied, s. m. (trawsgynnal) A holding or supporting adversely.

Trawsgynghanedd, s. f. (cynghanedd) A contrasted consonancy.

Trawsgynghaneddriad, s. m. (trawsgynghanedd) A forming a contrasted consonancy.

Trawsgynghaneddu, v. a. (trawsgynghanedd) To form a contrasted consonancy.

Trawshediad, s. m. (hedriad) Translocation.

Trawsiad, s. m. (traws) A crossing; a plying crosswise.

Trawsineb, s. m. (traws) Adverseness, frowardness.

A wyf heb drawineb arth.

Does any body know the frowardness of love! I am Dyl.

Trawslath, s. f.—pl. t. an (lath) A bar or beam placed transversely; a trest of a boat.

Trawslathiad, s. m. (trawslath) A laying a transverse beam or trest.

Trawslathu, v. a. (trawslath) To lay a transverse beam; to fix a trest.

Trawslod, s. m. (llod) Translocation.

Trawslodell, s. f.—pl. t. i (llinell) A cross line.

Trawslug, s. m. (llug) Transverse trailing. a. Transversely-drawing. Cynghanedd drawing, a transversely trailing consonancy.

Trawslugaw, v. a. (trawslug) To drag across.

Trawslugiad, s. m. (trawslug) A dragging across.

Trawslyw, s. (llyw) An adverse guide or steer.

Trawslywiad, s. m. (trawslyw) A guiding adversely; a misgoverning.

Trawslywiaw, v. a. (trawslyw) To guide contrarily; to steer across; to govern frowardly.

Trawsosawd, s. m. (gosawd) To transpose.

Trawsodawl, a. (trawsosawd) Transposing.

Trawsododi, v. a. (trawsosawd) To transpose.

Trawsododiad, s. m. (trawsosawd) Metathesis; a transposition.

Trawsrwym, s. m.—pl. t. au (rhwym) A crossband.

Trawsrwymaw, v. a. (trawsrwym) To bind across.

Trawsrwymawl, a. (trawsrwym) Relating to cross binding.

Trawsrwymiad, s. (trawsrwym) A binding across.

Trawsryw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (rhyw) A cross breed.

Trawsrywiad, s. m. (trawsryw) A transgression.

Trawsrywiaw, v. a. (trawsryw) To transgress.

Trawst, s. m.—pl. t. iau (traw) A raster.

Trawstiad, s. m. (trawst) A laying a raster.

Trawstiau, v. a. (trawst) To lay a raster.

Trawsu, v. a. (traws) To render cross or adverse.

Trawswch, s. f.—pl. trawswych (traw—such) A whisker. Gwas heb drawswch arno, a youth without mustaches.

Trawswyr, a. (gwyr) Transversely oblique.

Trawswyraw, v. a. (trawswyr) To render transversely oblique.

Trawswyrawl, a. (trawswyr) Tending to transverse obliquity.

Trawswyredd, s. m. (trawswyr) Transverse obliquity.

Trawswyriad, s. m. (trawswyr) A turning transversely oblique.

Trawsylwedd, s. m. (traw—sylvedd) A contrary substance.

Trawsylwediad, s. m. (trawsylwedd) Transubstantiation.

Trawsylweddu, v. a. (trawsylwedd) To transubstantiate.

Trawsyddwyn, s. m. (ymddwyn) A metaphor.

Trawsymmod, s. m. (ymmod) A moving over; a moving adversely.

Trawsymmodawl, a. (trawsymmod) Tending to move adversely.

Trawsymmodl, v. a. (trawsymmod) To move adversely.

Trawsymmodiad, s. m. (trawsymmod) A moving adversely; transmotion.

Trawsymud, v. a. (traw—symud) To transpose.

Trawsymudawl, a. (trawsymud) Transposing.

Trawsymudlad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trawsymud) A transposition.

Trawsymymud, s. m. (ymsymud) A mutual moving over; a self moving over.

Trawsymymudaw, v. a. (trawsymymud) To move over mutually; to move one's self over.

Trawsymymudawl, a. (trawsymymud) Mutually moving over; self-transposing.

Trawsymymudiad, s. m. (trawsymymud) A mutually moving over; a moving one's self over.

Trawu, v. a. (traw) To forward, to lead onward; to mature, to perfect; to cause to excel.

Brîd, traw, Daw trî: O Arglwydd, Rhydw ar fy agwedd!

Intercede, make perfect, Triune God; O Lord, bestow to my prayer! H. D. ab Iŷan.

Trawus, a. (traw) Tending to bring forward.

Trawusaw, v. a. (trawis) To render progressive; to render instructive; to become instructive.

Trawusrwydd, s. m. (trawus) Instructiveness.

Traymanerch, s. m. (ymanerch) Excess of mutual greeting. v. a. Mutually to greet over-much.

Traymannos, s. m. (ymannos) Extreme self-excitation. v. a. To excite one's self extremely.

Traymaraw, s. m. (ymaraws) Excess of mutual forbearance. v. a. Mutually to forbear extremely.

Traymarotôad, s. m. (ymarotôad) Extreme mutual preparation; extreme self-preparation.

Traymarotol, v. a. (ymarotol) Mutually to prepare over-much; to prepare one's self over-much.

Traymboeni, v. a. (ymboeni) Mutually to afflict severely; to take extreme pains.

Traymboeniad, s. m. (ymboeniad) Mutually afflicting or toiling extremely.

Traymdaith, s. f. (ymdaith) An excess of travelling.

Traymdaithlu, v. a. (traymdaith) To travel over-much.

Traymdrosi, v. a. (ymdrosi) Mutually to drive over-much; to over-hurry one's self.

Traymdynawl, a. (ymdynawl) Over-contentious.

Traymdyniad, s. m. (ymdyniad) Extreme contention; a contending over-much.

Traymdynu, v. a. (ymdynu) To contend much.

Traymddadledd, s. m. (ymddadledd) Extreme mutual disputation.

Traymddadliad, s. m. (ymddadliad) A mutually disputing extremely.

Traymddadlu, v. a. (ymddadlu) Mutually to dispute extremely.

Traymdderiad, s. m. (ymdderiad) A mutually wrangling extremely.

Traymdderu, v. a. (ymdderu) Mutually to wrangle extremely.

Traymddiriad, s. m. (ymddiriad) An over-confiding.

Traymddiried, v. a. (ymddiried) To confide over-much.

Traymddwyn, s. m. (ymddwyn) An over-bearing of one's self. v. a. To over-bear one's self.

Traymddygiad, s. m. (ymddygiad) An over-carrying one's self.

Traymegniad, s. m. (ymegniad) Over-exertion.

Traymegniaw, v. a. (ymegniaw) To over-exert one's self.

Traymegniawl, a. (ymegniawl) Over-exerting.

Traymerid, s. m. (ymerid) An extreme mutual persecution. v. a. Mutually to persecute extremely.

Traymeridiad, s. m. (traymerid) A persecuting one another extremely.

Traymestyn, s. m. (ymestyn) An over-stretch of one's self. v. a. To over-stretch one's self.

Traymestynawl, a. (traymestyn) Tending to be over-stretching.

Traymestyniad, s. m. (traymestyn) An over-stretching or over-extending of one's self.

Traymgais, s. m. (ymgais) An over-attempt.

Traymgaisiad, s. m. (traymgais) An over-attempting, or over-exerting.

Traymgaislaw, v. a. (traymgais) To over-exert.

Traymgaislawl, a. (traymgais) Tending to over-attempt; apt to over-exert.

Traymild, s. m. (ymild) An over-pursuit. v. a. To pursue over-much.

Traymildiad, s. m. (traymild) An over-pursuing.

Traymildlaw, v. a. (traymild) To over-pursue.

Traymildlawl, a. (traymild) Apt to over-pursue.

Traymoedi, v. a. (ymoedi) Mutually to delay over-much; to keep one's self away over-much.

Traymoediad, s. m. (ymoediad) A mutually delaying over-much; a keeping one's self away over-much.

Traymorchestawl, a. (ymorchestawl) Tending to exult extremely in an exploit.

Traymorchestiad, s. m. (ymorchestiad) An exulting extremely in an exploit.

Traymorchestu, v. a. (ymorchestu) To exult extremely in an exploit.

Traymryson, s. m. (ymryson) Extreme competition or emulation.

Traymrysonawl, a. (traymryson) Very emulous.

Traymrysoni, v. a. (traymryson) To engage in extreme competition.

Traymrysoniad, s. m. (traymryson) Extreme competition, or emulation.

Traymsênawl, a. (ymsênawl) Mutually apt to reproach over-much.

Traymsêniad, s. m. (ymsêniad) A mutually reproaching over-much; a reproaching one's self extremely.

Traymsên, v. a. (ymsên) Mutually to reproach overmuch; to reproach one's self extremely.

Traymsoddawl, a. (ymsoddawl) Apt to sink one's self extremely.

Traymsoddl, v. a. (ymsoddl) To sink one's self extremely.

Traymsoddiad, s. m. (ymsoddiad) A sinking one's self extremely.

Traymsythawl, a. (ymsythawl) Apt to make one's self extremely erect.

Traymsythiad, s. m. (ymsythiad) A making one's self extremely erect.

Traymsythu, v. a. (ymsythu) To make one's self extremely erect.

Traymwadawl, a. (ymwadawl) Of extreme self-denial; mutually denying greatly.

Traymwadiad, s. m. (ymwadiad) A denying one's self extremely.

Traymwadu, v. a. (ymwadu) To deny one's self extremely.

Tre, s. f. (ty—rhe) A resort; a homestead; a hamlet; a town. Trebaried, Tredegar, mansions so called.

Trec, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ty—rhec) An implement; harness gear. Trec mên, cart harness.

Trefnawdr, s. m.—pl. trefniodron (trefniawd) A regulator; a systemizer.

Trefnawdr, llwy'r hyawdr llorw a huan,
Trefniast a furiast, o Syrri amcan,
Trefnau amhrifys ganau a gnan.

Thou regulator, perfect organizer of moon and sun, thou didst contain and thou didst form, by ample design, the surrained powers of the lips that sing. Carnodyn.

Trefnid, s. m.—pl. t. an (trefn) Arrangement;
management; disposal; settlement; order.

Trefniadaeth, s. m. (trefnid) The act of arranging, managing, or ordering; management.

Gwraig briawd a felly an drefniadaeth, a'i gofal dros ei theilia, a'i serch at ei gwr a'i phlaist.

A married woman is to be praised on account of management, and her care for her family, and her love to her husband, and her children. Bardde.

Trefnidaw, v. a. (trefnid) To make an arrangement, or disposition; to manage.

Trefnidawl, a. (trefnid) Economical.

Trefniedd, s. m. (trefnid) Economy.

Trefniad, s. m. (trefnid) An economizing.

Trefnidwr, s. m.—pl. trefnidwyr (trefnid—gwr)
An economist; a manager.

Trefniydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trefnid) An economist, a manager.

Trefniydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trefniad) One who disposes, or puts in order; a disposer.

Trefnoldeb, s. m. (trefnawl) Orderliness.

Trefnolder, s. m. (trefnawl) Orderliness.

Trefnoldr, s. m. (trefnawl) Orderliness.

Trefnoli, v. a. (trefnawl) To render orderly.

Trefnu, v. a. (trefn) To dispose, to arrange, to connect or to put in order; to regulate; to manage; to appoint, to settle.

Trefnuodd o'n ffordd ffordd gyman:
Trefnuodd yrr, a myr moraw dylan;
Trefnuodd ddiwr (gwyr a'i chwyr) acilian;
Trefnuodd wern uffern, a'fith sathan.

Thousands in concert declare thy praise: thou hast regulated stars, and sons of fluctuating tide; thou hast regulated the amble earth with thy surface all complete; thou hast regulated the dark regions of hell, with respect to Satan. Carnodyn.

Trefnus, a. (trefn) Being arranged, put in order, ordisposed; orderly, methodical; well arranged, being in good order, compact, neat, decent.

Trefnusaw, v. a. (trefnus) To render orderly, to put in good order.

Trefnusdeb, s. m. (trefnus) Orderliness.

Trefnusder, s. m. (trefnus) Orderliness.

Trefnusdra, s. m. (trefnus) Orderliness.

Trefnusedd, s. m. (trefnus) Orderliness.

Trefnuswydd, s. m. (trefnus) Orderliness.

Trefnuwr, s. m.—pl. trefnuwyr (trefn—gwr) One who regulates, or arranges, an orderer.

Trefnydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trefn) An orderer.

Trefnyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trefnydd) The practice of an economist.

Trefnyddiaeth, s. m. (trefnydd) Economy.

Trefnyddiaw, v. a. (trefnydd) To economize.

Trefnod, s. f. (tref—rnod) An inhabited region;
a homestead; a domicile, a habitation.

Gnawd diogelder yn ahrefred.

Security is obtained in an inhabited place. Adage.

Gwell bach yn ahrefred no mawr yn aildred.

Better the little in an inhabited place than the great in a without-dwelling. Adage.

Trestad, s. f. (tref—tad) Patrimony, heritage.

Caranmael oedd ddiaidd:
Ac oedd ddihediogid trefad,
A gelypsu Caranmael.—

Caranmael was void of ambition; and clear from every claim the patrimony, which Caranmael did seek. Llywarch Hen.

VOL. II.

Trestadaeth, s. f. (trestad) A patrimony.

Trestadawg, a. (trestad) Having a patrimony, or heritage; an inheritor. s. m.—pl. trestadogion.
One who has a patrimony, one in possession of a paternal estate; an heir.

Myd ei gwaethaf ei yn drestadawg.

I myself have made him possessed of an inheritance.
Brut y Breninodd.

Trestadawl, a. (trestad) Patrimonial, hereditary.
Trestadiad, s. m. (trestad) A forming a patrimony or heritage.

Trestadoges, s. f.—pl. t. au (trestadawg) A female who inherits; a heiress.

Trestadn, v. a. (trestad) To form a patrimony.

Trestadwr, s. m.—pl. trestadwyr (trestad—gwr)
One who establishes a patrimony.

Trefn, v. a. (tref) To form a place of resort; to make a home; to inhabit.

Treid, s. m.—pl. t. au (traid) A decreasing, or abating, a diminution; an ebbing.

Treilaw, v. a. (traid) To decrease, to lessen; to abate; to ebb.

Tregarawr Ddolydd,
Traid i gherddd!

Merciful Creator, lessen my chastisement! Gwelchmael.

Treilaw Goronwy, traif moraw modd:
Cof garw o'i llyr farw!

Goronwy to be taken away, the tide of mind will turn: Sad the reflection that he should be completely dead!
G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Treilawl, a. (traid) Tending to decrease, lessen, or abate; ebbing, neapy.

Treiddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (treid) A coursing; a resorting.

Treidiaw, v. a. (treid) To course, to range.

Y cyffylawg—
Traid big, hen goedwig a gar,
Treiddia, adwyen dair.

The woodcock, with drooping bill, loving an ancient woody dell, he would range the crannies of the ground. D. ab Gwilym.

Treidiawl, a. (treid) Ranging; resorting.

Treiddgof, s. m. (traidd—cof) A wounded mind.

Pell ym traidd treiddgof o'i rhygodd!

Deeply doth piercing memory pierce me for his sad loss!
Cyniddeu.

Treiddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (traidd) A penetrating.

Treiddiadwy, a. (treiddiad) Penetrable.

Treiddiaw, v. a. (traidd) To penetrate; to pervade

Colofn bawl hollow
Coutwin, drin dreiddiaw,
Caut anaut anaw
Aelaw alaw.

The pillar of the prerogative of setting costly wine, bursting the conflict, minstrele sing with melody of purest store.
G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Treiddiawg, a. (traidd) Being penetrated.

Treiddiawl, a. (traidd) Penetrating; pervading.

Treiddiedig, a. (treiddiad) Penetrated; pervaded.

Treiddiedigawl, a. (treiddiedig) Penetrative.

Treiddioldeb, s. m. (treiddiawl) Piercingness.

Treiddiolder, s. m. (treiddiawl) Penetrability.

Treiddiolrwydd, s. m. (treiddiawl) Piercingness.

Treiddiwr, s. m.—pl. treiddiawyr (traidd—gwr)
One who penetrates, a piercer.

Treiddle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (traidd—lle) A resorting place.

Treiddyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (traidd) A ridge of high ground running into a vale.

Treiedig, a. (treiad) Decreased, abated, ebbd.

Treiedigaw, v. a. (treiedig) To render lessened.

Treiedigawl, a. (treiedig) Tending to decrease.

Treiglaid, s. m.—pl. treiglaid (treigl) One who roves about, a wanderer.

Treiglady, a. (treiglad) Declinable.

Treiglaw, v. a. (treigl) To turn, to revolve, to circulate; to pass through; to migrate; to wander about. Treiglaw gair, to decline a word: Ffon dreiglaw, a walking stick.

Nisen a dreigla ni fnygla.

The stone that rolls will not gather moss.

Adage.

Tri phen anen y sy cyn cyflwr wybodaeth: treiglaw yr abed, treiglaw y gwylfud, a chol o'r cyflau byd yn sawa.

There are three primary necessities before perfect knowledge be obtained: to traverse the incubation, to traverse the world of light, and a recollection of the whole to the lowest point of existence.

Barddas.

Mai ydd oedd Braint Hir yn treiglaw yn mhith yr anghafnodyn, enycha chwerau lldo yn daved allan o'r lly.

As Braint Hir was going about amongst the mendicants, behold a sister of his coming out from the court.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Treiglauw, s. m. (traigl) A turning, a rolling.

Treiglddyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traigl—dyn) A wandering person, a wanderer, a stroller.

Treigled, s. m. (traigl) A turning, rolling, or revolving; a strolling.

Ni ddaw mad mnych dreigled.

A frequent changing will bring no good.

Adage.

Treigledig, a. (treigled) Turned; declined.

Treigledigaeth, s. m. (treigledig) The act of turning, rolling, or revolving; a revolution; a wandering.

Treigledgar, a. (treigled) Apt to turn about; rolling, revolving; apt to wander.

Ni fnygla maen treigledgar.

A rolling stone gathers no moss.

Adage.

Treigledlys, s. m. (treigled—llys) Knotgrass.

Treiglfardd, s. m.—pl. treiglfairdd (traigl—bardd) An itinerant bard.

Ni'm gwna tro treiglfairdd un amser;

Ni'm twyll pwyll pan ym cyfarcher.

He will not serve me the turn of the itinerant bard at any time; reason will not deceive me when I am greeted.

Cyuddelw.

Treiglgar, a. (traigl) Apt to turn; turning, rolling; apt to wander, straying, ambulatory.

Treiglgarwch, s. m. (treiglgar) A state of turning or rolling; a wandering state.

Treigliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (traigl) A turning, a revolving, a circulating, a passing through, a traversing; a migration; a wandering; a declension.

Treigliannawl, a. (treigliant) Circulating.

Treigliannu, v. a. (treigliant) To effect a turning, revolution, or circulation.

Treigliant, s. m. (traigl) A turning, a rolling, a revolution, a circulation; a strolling.

Treiglwaith, s. f. (traigl—gwaith) A certain time. adv. Once on a time.

Treiglwaith pan ydoedd Cadwallon, y Selgwyn, yn Llandais yn Baly llys, a Peanda a ddol ar y brenla; a golyn lldo pa achaw na dothoedd Oswy Aelwyn ei bunau i'r llys, sunod on fywysawg o'r Saxon.

Once on a time when Cadwallon was, during Whitentide, in London holding a court, Peanda came before the king; and was asked what was the cause that Oswy the Whitebrowed had not come himself to the court, more particularly than any prince of the Saxons.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Treiglwr, s. m.—pl. treiglwr (traigl—gwr) One who turns or rolls; a stroller.

Treilliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (traill) A troling; a rolling; a dredging.

Treilliaw, v. a. (traill) To turn, to roll; to traverse; to dredge.

Treillidig, a. (treilliad) Trolled; dredged.

Treilliwr, s. m.—pl. treilliwr (traill—gwr) A troller; a traverser; a dredger.

Treiniad, s. m. (train) A straying, a strolling; a scattering; a spreading of news.

Treiniaw, v. a. (train) To stray, to stroll.

Treiniawl, a. (train) Straying; scattering.

Treisachub, s. m. (trais—achub) A forcible saving; a rescue. v. a. To rescue forcibly.

Treisachubaeth, s. m. (treisachub) Forcible rescue

Treisachubiad, s. m. (treisachub) A rescuing.

Treisddwyn, s. m. (trais—dwyn) Forcible taking.

Cymro addwys, cof o'i dreiddwysa cof a dristod:

The generous Welshman, on account of the tearing away of him, I shall have a mind of sadness:

Rhaiwryd.

Treisddwygiad, s. m. (dygiad) A forcibly taking.

Treisfedd, s. m. (trais—medd) That is possessed by force or oppression.

Treisfeddiannawl, a. (treisfeddiant) Relating to forcible possession.

Treisfeddiannu, v. a. (treisfeddiant) To possess by force; to usurp.

Treisfeddiant, s. m. (treisfedd) Usurpation.

Treisfedda, v. a. (treisfedd) To possess forcibly.

Treisgael, s. m. (trais—cael) A forcible attainment. a. To obtain forcibly.

Treisged, s. f. (trais—ced) Usurped treasure.

Treisgip, s. m. (trais—cip) A forcible snatch. a. Forcibly snatching.

Treisgipiad, s. m. (treisgip) A forcibly snatching.

Treisgipiaw, v. a. (treisgip) To snatch forcibly.

Treisglad, s. m. (tresgl) A clattering.

Treisglaw, v. a. (tresgl) To stan, to clatter.

Treisglawg, a. (tresgl) Clattering; dinning.

Diffr f, fy Ner, rhag nych uffers gund—

A'r prydled calod collawgrych synlwg.

Afrywdd awydd salawg treisglawg treisgrych.

A phob rhyw ddistryw.

Protect me, my God, against the torment of the crew of hell, and the hard-coated repiles bristling with ashly odors, the ill-fated outcast-region full of the uproar of distracting beta, and every kind of ruin.

Cymdeys.

Treislaid, s. m.—pl. treislaid (trais) That oppresseth or ravisheth; also a steer, a heifer.

Treislaideth, s. m. (trais) Oppression; ravishment.

Treisliannawl, a. (treisliant) Oppressive.

Treisliannu, v. a. (treisliant) To effect an oppression or tyranny.

Treisliant, s. m. (trais) Oppression; force.

Treislaw, v. a. (trais) To force; to take by violence; to ravish; to spoil, to rob; to oppress.

Traha, a threilaw gwladion,

A ddifa'r effedion.

Presumption, and to oppress the weak, will destroy the habit-tore.

Adage.

Nid oedd hawdd, llew arddawdd llydd,

Ei dreislaw gor drws deufnydd.

It were not easy, the lion of the tumultuous slaughter of fate, to force him on the defile of two moonshines.

Llygod Gwr, i L. ab Iorwerth.

Treislaw, a. (trais) Apt to force; oppressing.

Treislawi, a. (trais) Tending to force, to ravish, or to commit violence; extorsive; oppressive.

Treisliedig, a. (treisliad) Forced, ravished.

Treisig, a. (trais) Apt to force; oppressive. s. m. That abounds with power to force.

Arllaw fies, orleng tra treisig.

The ready-handed in doing good, the ready bar to the way of the oppressor.

Cyuddelw.

Am unig treisig y traw lufaf Ddaw,

A ddigawu iach o glaf.

For the only oppressor of the forward I will adorn God, who is able to restore the sick to health.

Ll. P. Moch.

Treisigaw, v. a. (treisig) To render oppressive; to become oppressive.

Treisigrydd, s. m. (treisig) Oppressiveness.

Treisioledeb, s. m. (treislawi) Oppressiveness.

Treisioli, v. a. (treisiawl) To render oppressive;
Treisiolrwydd, s. m. (treisiawl) Oppressiveness.
Treisiwr, s. m.—pl. treisiwyr (trais—gwr) A forcer, a ravisher; an oppressor.

Ac Pr treisiwyr, ac i'r trawdon,
 Terfyn elo,
 Yn lle deio
 Llu dauwlion.

So to the oppressors, and to the froward ones, may there come an end, where comes a host of godly men. W. Middleton.

Treisledrad, s. m. (trais—lledrad) Rapine.

Treislù, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (trais—llu) A rapacious host.

Tremynud trwm ynaof y chwast
 Tremyn treislù tros llant.

Sadly was observed in me a desire to observe an oppressing host over the stream. Carnodyn.

Treiswaw, s. f. (trais—gwaew) Spear of rapine.

Treiswg, s. m. (trais) A frown of oppression. a.
 Oppression-frowning.

Gwanach a diglach ym dwg
 Dy olwg treiswg trowr.

More feeble and more troubled in every way thy oppression-frowning eye doth bring me. Gr. ab D. ab Tudyr.

Treiswriath, s. m. (treisiwr) The act of a forcer, ravisher, or oppressor.

Treisydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trais) A forcer.

A Dafydd, draisydd drosodd, cyn goio,
 Ni he o Gymro ei gymarododd.

And David, the oppressor of forwardness, before sepulture there was not a Welshman his equal in worth. D. Bruffes.

Treithiad, s. m. (traith) A treating; a reciting.

Treithiaw, v. a. (traith) To treat, to discourse.

Talfwd a draith, buchedd a ddeugys.

A tongue recites, but the conduct shews.

Adage.

Treithiawl, a. (traith) Treating, reciting.

Treithiedig, a. (treithiad) Being treated.

Treithiwr, s. m.—pl. treithiwywr (traith—gwr)
 One who treats, a discourser.

Treithydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traith) A reciter.

Trem, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ty—rhem) Sight, look.

Trembeiriannaeth, s. m. (trembeiriant) An op-tician's trade.

Trembeiriannawl, a. (trembeiriant) Relating to optical instruments.

Trembeiriannu, v. a. (trembeiriant) To furnish optical instruments.

Trembeiriannydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trembeiriant)
 An optical instrument maker.

Trembeiriant, s. m.—pl. trembeiriannau (trempeiriant) An optical instrument.

Tremiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trem) An observing.

Tremiannawl, a. (tremiant) Observant.

Tremiannau, v. a. (tremiant) To make observation; to cast a look.

Tremiant, s. m.—pl. tremiannau (trem) Observation; appearance, aspect.

Dian oedd ganto na welai tremiant erioed cân deced a hi ar arall.

Certain it was to him that he had never seen an appearance so fair as she on another. H. Peredur—Mabinogion.

Tremiaw, ger. (tremiad) In observing.

Tremiaw, v. a. (trem) To look, to observe.

Tremiawl, a. (trem) Looking, observing.

Tremid, s. m. (trem) Appearance, object.

Mab Tgwyrd hael hawl dremid galon;
 Gal ag ef ni borthid.

The son of Tgwyrd the generous questions the appearance of foes; an enemy could not subvert with him. Cynddoleu.

Tremidydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tremid) Observer.

Tremiedig, a. (tremiad) Observed; eyed.

Tremitor, sup. (tremid) To be observing.

Tremiwr, s. m.—pl. tremiwyr (trem—gwr) A looker, an observer, one who eyes.

Tremrudd, a. (trem—rhudd) Of red aspect.

Tremwyllt, a. (trem—gwyllt) Of wild aspect.

Tremyd, s. m. (trem) The state of being seen.

Tremydiad, s. m. (tremyd) An apparition.

Tremydiad mynydd, manod tew ni'th ludd,
 Ni'th logo ciry na riew.

Thou phantom of the mountain, no thickly driven snow will obstruct thee, may neither snow nor frost affect thee.

Llywarch Llady.

Tremydiaw, v. a. (tremyd) To raise a phantom;
 to appear as a phantom.

Tremydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trem) A looker.

Tremyddiaeth, s. m. (tremydd) Science of optics.

Tremyg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tram) Contempt; disparagement. Tremyg barn, contempt of judgment.

Tremyg gwyn yw na ddolo dyn y dydd y galw'r t'r dds.

A contempt of summons is that a person comes not on the day he is called to the court. Welsh Laws.

Tremygiad, s. m. (tremyg) A contemning, a slight-
 ing. Tremygiad llys, contempt of court.

Tremygiawl, a. (tremyg) Contemning.

Tremygdledig, a. (tremygiad) Contemned.

Tremygu, v. a. (tremyg) To contemn, to slight.

Tremygus, a. (tremyg) Contemptuous.

Tremygwr, s. m.—pl. tremygywr (tremyg—gwr)
 A contemner, a sligher.

Tremyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (trem) Sight, look, aspect, view; a glance.

Dyd! was o ddu a melyn;
 Wrth hir edrych dy drwyas,
 Tybiak dy welad cyn hyn.

Hold! young man of black and yellow; by long observing thy aspect, methought I saw thee before this.

Eng. Arthur a Guenevieve.

Tremynawd, s. m.—pl. tremynodau (tremyn) An object.

O bydd hen, nid mwy y synia ar y dysg,—nog ar dremynodau ereill a welo.

If he be old, no more will he look, upon learning than upon other objects he may see. Welsh Laws.

Tremynawl, a. (tremyn) Observant, looking.

Tremynfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tremyn) A watchtower.

Tremyngar, a. (tremyn) Observant; keen-eyed.
Tremyngarwch, s. m. (tremyngar) Aptness to observe or to look about.

Tremyngwsg, s. m. (tremyn—cwsg) A light sleep.

Tremyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tremyn) An apparition, a phantom; also an epithet for a boar.

Y nallt yw yn ennill had Al tarw main, al tremyniad.

Either of the two he is, begetting seed, or a sleek bull, or an apparition. Guto y Glyn.

Tremynt, s. m. (trem) Sight, look; a glance.

Tremynu, v. a. (tremyn) To look about, to scout.

Oedd tramawr tremynol tawdd.

Immense the ruin seemed.

Cynddoleu.

Yn Aber Taradr yn tremynu.

In Aber Taradr observing.

Gw. Brycheiniawg.

Eligad trom y tremynasant
 Udd addlen uch Dygen Uffnant.

In a second heavy conflict they observed the comely chief above
 Dygen Uffnant. Ll. P. Moch.

Tremynwr, s. m.—pl. tremynwyr (tremyn—gwr)
 An explorer, or a scout.

A glyweitl a gnat Gwlaen,
 Dremynwr, goiwg ulawen:
 Dau cadarn a faru pob lawen.

Hast thou heard what Gwlaen sang, an observer of steady sight:
 the mighty God will judge every right. Eng. y Clywed.

Tremynwriaeth, s. m. (tremynwr) The employment of an explorer.

Tremynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tremyn) An explorer, one employed to observe; a centinel.

Tremynyddiaeth, s. m. (tremynydd) The employment or duty of an explorer.

Tren, s. m. (ty—rhen) Force; rapidity; fury.

Gnawd Saie, sis cynwale, yn cynwale el ben;
A gnawd odduch tren ymwyraw.

Many a Saxon, what I lamented not, has been made to complain of his head; and, from high insolence, made to bend himself. D. Benfras.

Tren, a. (ty—rhen) Impetuous, forcible, furious; powerful, strenuous. Mae efe yn edrych yn dren iawn, he looks very furious: Afon dren iawn yw hon, this is a very rapid river. Sil.

Cain cynnwyr, croch iân dren;
Cyrcid carw dan frig derwen;
Edwyn anffawd ei pierchen.

Fair appearing dawn, borne the furious wave; the stag repairs under the branches of the oak: misfortune doth recognize her possessor. Ydyffen Bardd Teilo.

Trenaid, a. (tren) Somewhat impetuous.

Trenawl, a. (tren) Impetuous; strenuous.

Treniad, s. m. (tren) An acting impetuously.

Trenig, a. (tren) Impetuous, or furious.

Trenlif, s. m. (tren—llif) A rapid torrent. Sil.

It is as Cefnllif, is used in North Wales.

Trent, s. m. (tren) Force; rapidity; fury.

Trenu, v. a. (tren) To act impetuously.

Trenus, a. (tren) Impetuous; strenuous.

Trenusaw, v. a. (trenus) To render impetuous, or strenuous; to become impetuous.

Trenusdeb, s. m. (trenus) Impetuosity, rapidity.

Trenusder, s. m. (trenus) Impetuousness.

Trenusdra, s. m. (trenus) Rapidness.

Trenusedd, s. m. (trenus) Rapidity; quickness.

Trenuswydd, s. m. (trenus) Impetuousness, rapidness; strenuousness.

Trenydd, s. m. (tra—dydd) The third day to come, the day after to-morrow. ada. Two days hence, the day after to-morrow.

Trenyddiawl, a. (trenydd) Relating to the third day to come.

Trengawl, a. (tranc) Perishing, vanishing.

Trengi, v. n. (tranc) To pass away, to be passing away, to expire, to be at an end; to give up the ghost. Mae y dydd yn trengi, the day is at an end.

Trengid golud, ni threinc moel.

Wealth passeth away, but fame will not pass away. Adaps.

Trengidydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tranc) A destroyer.

Trengwr, s. m.—pl. trengwyr (tranc—gwr) One who is at an end, an expiring man.

Tres, s. f.—pl. t. i (ty—rhes) That is on the stretch, or in exertion, labour, pains, trouble; a trace, or chain, for drawing; a stroke, as with a rod or whip.

Tresawg, a. (tres) Being on the stretch.

Tresawl, a. (tres) Straining; exerting; bustling.

Tresg, s. m. (tres) That is on a stretch.

Tresgl, s. m. (tresg) Tormentil. It is also called tresgl melyn, tresgl yr eithin, or melyn yr eithin; tresgl y meck, the common tormentil.

Tresglen, s. f. dim. (tresgl) A thrush; also called bronfrith, pen y llwyn. Y dresglen lwyd, the shrike; y dresglen goch, crecer, socen eira, the swine-piper.

Tresglerddyn, s. m. (tres—clerddyn) A sturdy vagabond.

Tresiad, s. m. (tres) A putting on a stretch, or straining; a whipping.

Tresiauw, v. a. (tres) To labour; to be labouring. Cei dy dresiauw, thou shalt be labouring.

Tresiawr, s. m.—pl. tresiawyr (tres—gwr) One who labours or thrashes.

Trest, s. m. (tres) That is strained or stretched.

Trestl, s. f.—pl. trestlau (trest) That strains; a stretcher, a frame; a trestle.

Y ddau drestl, a'r holl ddodreth.

The two trestles, and all the furniture. D. ab Gwyn.

Trestlawg, a. (trestl) Having a stretcher.

Trestliad, s. m. (trestl) A furnishing with a stretcher; a framing.

Trestlu, v. a. (trestl) To furnish with a stretcher, trestle, or frame; to frame.

Tresu, v. a. (tres) To put on a trace or chain.

Treth, s. f.—pl. t. i (tre—eth) That is over; that is taken off or from; a crop, growth, or produce; a crop of corn; otherwise called llyfr; also an allowance, contribution, rate or tax; tribute. Y dreth fawr, the land-tax.

Gwelidde wrthyth ac en trefina tryd.

I saw the progeny of a stock with their means of tribute. Gwilym.

Trethadwy, a. (treth) Taxable, ratable.

Trethawg, a. (treth) Having a rate or tax.

Trethawl, a. (treth) Tributary; taxed.

Trethawg ac andlynded y rhawg eis hennodid ni yd hennodid yd rhawg i yr ynydd hennodid; ac o dris y gwelid y drethawl.

Tumult and dissension amongst our own ancestors brought the men of Rome into this island; and through oppression they made it tributary. Gr. ab Idris.

Trethedig, a. (treth) Rated, or taxed.

Trethiad, s. m. (treth) A rating, a taxing.

Trethu, v. a. (treth) To rate, or to tax.

Trethwr, s. m.—pl. trethwyr (treth—gwr) A taxer.

Treulifawr, a. (traul) Expensive; wasteful.

Treulifawredd, s. m. (treulifawr) Expensiveness.

Treuligadw, v. n. (traul—cadw) To be going on consuming.

Treulgar, a. (traul) Profuse, or prodigal.

Treulgarwch, s. m. (treulgar) Profuseness.

Treuliad, s. m. (traul) Consumption; as expending; digestion.

Treuliadwy, a. (traul) Capable of consuming.

Treuliaw, v. a. (traul) To consume, to wear out; to expend; to digest; to be worn out.

Nid coll dardid e'r ddaid a dreslud yn ym y gwyr.

The tooth has not been quite a lion that has been consumed in destroying the chain. Adaps.

Treuliawd, s. m. (traul) Expence; digestion.

Treuliedig, a. (treulid) Consumed; expended.

Treuliedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (treulid) A consumer; an expender.

Treuliwr, s. m.—pl. treuliwyr (traul—gwr) A consumer; an expender; a digester.

Trew, s. m. (tra) A sneeze, the act of sneezing.

Nid lle un-trew na dau i awgon.

Nor one sneeze nor two will end in death. Adaps.

Nac un-trew na dau ni mudd ring awgon.

Nor one sneeze nor two will protect from death. Adaps.

Trewi, v. a. (trew) To sneeze, to sternutate.

Trewiad, s. m. (trew) A sneezing; a sternutate.

Trewilwch, s. m. (trew—llwch) Sneezedest; snuff.

Trewydd, s. m. (traw) A push forward, a push off, or a driving to a distance.

Ton wca orewyn wyth wrth drowydd.

White foam-crowned wave bold in its impulsive forward. H. ab Gwyn.

Trewyddiad, s. m. (trewydd) A pushing forward, a pushing off, a driving to a distance.

Trewyddu, v. a. (trewydd) To push forward, to push off, to drive to a distance.

*Y ddolion a trewyddi gwynt,
Gwas hi o'i thynned
Hw m, vian guned!*

This leaf that is driven onward by the wind, was to it its fate:
old is it, this year born!

Llywarch Hen.

Trewyn, s. m. (traw) A means of leading away; persuasion.

Trewynawl, a. (trewyn) Persuasive; diverting.

Trewyniad, s. m. (trewyn) A persuading, an averting or leading from; persuasion.

Trewyn, v. a. (trewyn) To persuade, to dissuade, to prevail with; to part those who fight; to pacify.

Trewynawr, s. m.—pl. trewynwyr (trewyn—gwr) One who leads; a persuader.

*Pob harawr, trewynawr tris,
Dynguch—*

Every judge, and pacifier of broils, instruct—
W. Middleton.

Trewynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trewyn) Persuader
Trewynyddiaeth, s. m. (trewynydd) The office of a persuader or pacificator.

Trewynyn, s. m. (trewyn) Yellow loose-strife.

Tri, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ty—rhi) That is firm, fixed, permanent, or in continuity; three. a. Three. The number three was adopted, by the ancient Britons, as a means of facilitating the use of oral tradition; consequently a great deal of their historical memorials, and moral maxims, have been put into the form, which from the number of articles classed together under each head, are called TRIADDD, or Triades.

Tri dyn y dydd: dyn i Dduw, a wna dda dros ddwyg; dyn i ddyn, a wna dda dros ddyn, a dwg dros ddwyg; a dyn i ddawl, a wna ddwyg dros dda.

There are three sorts of men: a man to God, who does good for evil; a man to man, who does good for good, and evil for evil; and a man to the devil, who does evil for good. Barddas.

Tri dyn a wnant cyfanddwl lle hant: bardd, gwr, a tholydwyr.

There are three persons who create society where they are: a bard, a smith, and a harper. Trioded.

*Tri yw Duw Celf, colofn deua,
Trey rad, ac m mmd, colafn gnom;
Trey yw of Tad nef, na'i gliclon radas,
Ro'r cawstion gorau gwos.*

The God of Mystery is Three, the support of emanated beings, through grace, and due beauty, the theme of song: More powerful is he, the Father of heaven, Lord of glorious attributes, than the creature of exalting virtue. Comedyn.

Triad, s. m. (tri) A forming a triad.

Triadawl, a. (triad) Belonging to a triad.

Triadu, v. a. (triad) To make into three.

Triaelawd, s. m. (tri—aelawd) That consists of three members. a. Consisting of three members

Triaelodawg, a. (triaelawd) Of three members.

Triannawg, a. (triant) Having a triad.

Triannawl, a. (triant) Tertian; triadic.

Trianniad, s. m. (triant) A forming a triad.

Triannu, v. (triant) To tertiate; to make a triad

Triant, s. m. (tri) That is in three; a triad.

Triarbymtheg, s. m. (tri—ar—pymtheg) Eighteen.

a. Eighteen, or consisting of eighteen.

Triarddeg, s. m. (tri—ar—deg) Thirteen.

Triawd, s. m. (tri) A forming a triad.

Triawg, a. (tri) Having three, of three.

Triawl, a. (tri) Belonging to three or triad. ‘Y triawl Dduw, the triadic God.

Triawl, s. m.—pl. t. an (tri—ban) That consists of three parts; a triplet, or verse of three lines

Memoria cya cof y barwr y goruchuan, a triawl mlwr, a throethodys; cof oedd yst yr yd oes oesodd.

Metres from time immemorial are primary canons, unchangeable, and restorative, judged to be; that is they were from the age.

Tribanawg, a. (triban) Of three parts; triplet.

Tribanawl, a. (triban) TriPLICATE; tripled.

Tribandawd, s. m. (triban) TriPLICITY.

Tribaniad, s. m. (triban) TriPLICATION.

Tribaniaeth, s. m. (triban) TriPLICITY.

Triban Mlwr—old o gyfioedd, odyr o'i ddubedeth, ac o faint o wddi a brieden, y tyf ei mawredd.

The warrior triplet, not from equal metricality, but from its triPLICITY, and its property of rhyme and varied verse arises its character. Barddas.

Tribanu, v. a. (triban) To triplicate; to triple.

Tribedd, s. m.—pl. t. i (tri—bedd) That has three feet; a tripod. a. Three-footed.

Triblaen, s. m. (tri—blaen) That has three points

Tribya, s. m. (tri—bys) That has three fingers.

Tribysg, a. (tribys) Of three fingers.

Hech trigran! trifysg:—flech ddwyg yn ei bygwedd, ac yn ei hals, ac yn ei chlan, a galf y brwm yn ddawabwyd gaul.

A row of three white stars (fingers) in thickens—A row of three fingers in her shoulder, and in her ribs, and in her stomach, shall the king have as a winter's provision—gib. Welsh Laws.

Trichanfod, a. (trichant) Three hundredth.

Trichanmil, s. m. (trichant—mil) The number of three hundred thousand. a. Three hundred thousand.

Trichanmilled, a. (trichanmil) Three hundred thousandth.

Trichant, s. m. (tri—cant) Three hundred.

Trichanwaith, s. pl. (trichant—gwaith) Three hundred times. a. Three hundred times.

*Dy sgwyd rhwygwyd rhaged atchaweth
Trichan-gwyl gyfioedd.*

They should before this time have been three hundred times in three hundred thousand conflicts. Ll. P. Mech, i R. Gryg.

Trichorn, s. m. (tri—corn) That has three horns.

Trichornlawg, a. (trichorn) Having three horns.

Tridant, s. m. (tri—dant) A trident. a. Three-toothed.

Trideg, s. m. (tri—deg) Three tens; thirty.

Trideintlawg, a. (tridant) Having three teeth.

Tridian, s. m. (tri—dian) The space of three days

Tridienawl, a. (tridian) Relating to three days.

Tridincod, s. m. (tri—dincod) That has three lips or seeds. a. Having three lips.

Tridincodawg, a. (tridincod) Having three seeds;

a medial with three seeds.

Tridull, s. m. (tri—dull) That is of three forms.

a. Triform.

Tridulllawg, a. (tridull) Having three forms.

Tridyblyg, s. m. (tri—dyblyg) That has three fold. a. Threefold:

*Wyl heb, wyl unig, wyl andwrig oer,
Gowdy gwely colanng;
Wyl traw, wyl tridyblyg.*

I am old, I am alone, I am debilitated and cold, after the magnificent couch; I am wretched, I am bent three hours. Edwards Hen.

Tridyblygawl, a. (tridyblyg) TriPLICATE.

Tridyblygiad, s. m. (tridyblyg) TriPLICATION.

Tridyblygu, v. a. (tridyblyg) To triplicate.

Tridyn, s. pl. (tri—dyn) Three persons.

Rhin tridyn canys ei chyw.

The secret of three persons a hundred persons will hear it. Adagr.

Triforch, s. m. (tri—forch) That has three prongs. a. Three pronged.

Triforchawg, a. (triforch) Three-pronged.

Triforchl, v. a. (triforch) To trifurcate.

Trig, s. m. (tri—ig) A stay, a fixed state.

Trigad, s. m. (trig) A staying, tarrying, or remaining fixed.

Trigadiad, s. m.—pl. trigadlaid (trigad) A sojourner, inhabitant, or dweller.

Trigadwy, a. (trigad) Capable of staying, dwelling or remaining.

—Coderle hwy,
Rheg adwyth yn trigadwy.

He preserved them, against harm, securely. L. G. Colki.

Trigauaf, s. m. (tri—gauaf) That is of three winters. a. Of three winters old.

Trigaw, v. a. (trig) To stay, to tarry; to be stationary; to remain; also to dwell; to starve, to perish, as with cold. Nis gallaf pe trigaw, I cannot for the life of me.

Cannawl dy fro
A thrig yoo.

Praise thy country and tarry there.

Adage.

Trick can all wabodder.

Adage.

He stays since he is not invited.

Gwedi darfo y cych, duned y pentaul ar y brenlo, a thriced ygyd ag of byd yn mben y fwyddyn.

After the circuit is ended, let the patron of the family come upon the king, and let him abide with him until the end of the year.

Pa both a'a gedir i obriaw!
Nid oes le y cyrcher rhag carcher braw;
Nid oes le y trigar: ock o'r trigaw!

Welsh Laws.

Why should we be spared to linger; there is not a place to be resorted to from the prison of dread; there is not a place to be stayed in away with staying!

G. ab yr Iwad Coch.

Trigawl, a. (trig) Tarrying, abiding, dwelling. Trigolion, inhabitants.

Trigfa, s. f.—pl. trigfeydd (trig) An abode.

Trigfan, s. f.—pl. f. au (trig) A dwelling-place.

Trigfanawl, a. (trigfan) Belonging to a dwelling-place or a residence.

Trigfauiad, s. m. (trigfan) A making a dwelling-place; a fixing a residence.

Trigfannu, v. a. (trigfan) To make a dwelling-place; to fix a residence.

Trigiad, s. m. (trig) A tarrying, an abiding.

Trigiannawl, a. (trigiant) Residentiary.

Trigianniad, s. m. (trigiant) A residing.

Trigiannu, v. a. (trigiant) To make a residence, to reside, to dwell, to inhabit.

Trigiannus, a. (trigiant) Residentiary, resiant.

Trigiannydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (trigiant) An inhabitant.

Cas ty heb drigiannydd.

Odium is a house without an inhabitant.

Catalg.

Trigiant, s. m. (trig) Residence, habitation.

Trigias, s. f. (trig) Residence, habitation.

Triglaw, v. a. (trig) To stay, to tarry, to abide.

'Cybydd ni thriglaw,' a miser I will not remain.

Triglawd, s. m. (trig) A residing, a dwelling.

Triglawdwr, s. m.—pl. triglawdwy (triglawd—gwr) A resider, a dweller; an inhabitant.

Triglawdr, s. m.—pl. f. on (triglawd) A resiant, a resident, a dweller.

Trigledig, a. (trigiad) Being dwelled in.

Trigle, s. f.—pl. f. oedd (trig—lle) A dwelling-place.

Trilliw, s. m. (tri—lliw) That is of three colours. a. Tri-coloured. Tansy violet, or heart's ease.

Trillwiawg, a. (trilliw) Of three colours.

Trillwyf, s. m. (tri—llwyf) That has three stories. a. Of three stories.

Trillwyfan, s. m. (trillwyf) That is of three stories. a. Of three stories.

Trillwyfanawg, a. (trillwyfan) Of three stories.

Trimarch, s. pl. (tri—march) Three horses. a. Of three horses.

Trimarchfen, s. f.—pl. f. i (trimarch) A car or cart drawn by three horses.

Trimarchwys, s. pl. aggr. (trimarch—gwys) Men driving three horses.

Trimin, s. m. (tri—min) That has three edges. a. Three-edged.

Triminiawg, a. (trimin) Having three edges.

Trimis, s. m. (tri—mis) A space of three months.

Trimisawl, a. (trimis) Of three months; quarterly.

Trimisyrr, s. m. (trimis) That is of three months.

Trimisyrriad, s. c.—pl. trimisyrriad (trimisyrr) That is three months old.

Trin, s. f.—pl. f. oedd (tri—in) That is persevering or continual; that is complete or of three parts; the act of meddling, or handling; a managing, or conducting any affair; labour, trouble; a quarrel, a battle.

Iachaf o fwyd bara; iachaf o colym llath; iachaf o ddigud graiddwr naai; iachaf gwahit trin y ddinar; iachaf o lawmpud cerdd dant.

The most healthy of victuals bread; the most healthy of season milk; the most healthy of drink water from a gravel-bedded brook; the most healthy work cultivating land; the most healthy gaiety an instrumental song.

Adage.

Rhin etid yn drin;
Eidd rhin yn drin.

A secret grows to a quarrel.

Adage.

Trin, v. a. (tri—in) To meddle, to handle; to manage, to conduct any business; to labour at; to quarrel; to trim, or to scold. Trin tir, to dress land; Trin tafawd, to let the tongue run.

Trinodd y byd, trawwr,
Trwy lawr hap i'r hoedron hir.

He bustled in the world, wicked in the extreme, with good luck to the end of her long life.

P. B. 2. P. 10.

Trinai, s. c.—pl. trineion (trin) That meddles, or conducts an affair; a brawler; one who conflicts.

Tris deon trineion nwy try,
Traws trydar trydydd hysawd!

The oppression of foreigners will not the conflicting ones turn away, with the forward tumult of the third iron host!

Cyddfelen, i'r Argl. Ely.

Bu ceddw o'r tri trineion
Trasol Efrat, stridw! Grogion.

There were mighty ones of the three men of conflict, the run of the Hebrews, the affliction of the Greeks.

Ll. F. Mach, i D. ab Owain.

Trinaw, v. a. (trin) To meddle; to conduct an affair; to bustle; to conflict.

Trinawg, a. (trin) Full of bustle; conflicting.

Trinawl, a. (trin) Bustling; conflicting.

Trindawd, s. m. (trin) The Trinity.

Ni chais ymwelw a'r Drindawd,
Onid cetai yn yr Undawd.

Attempt not to seek for the Trinity unless thou lookest for him in the Unity.

Adage.

Trindodawl, a. (trindawd) Trinitarian.

Trindodaeth, s. m. (trindawd) Trinitarianism.

Trindodi, v. a. (trindawd) To form a trinity.

Trindodydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (trindawd) A trinitarian.

Trined, s. m. (triu) A trinity, that is of three.

Carenydd y sydd berwydd trined.

A connection exists with respect to the Trinity.

Meir.

Glyned Daw trined ym tragarddawn.

May the Trinity God cause my attribute of mercy to continue.

Stenton ab Gruchm.

Tringar, a. (trin) Intermeddling, officious.

Tringarwch, s. m. (tingar) Aptness to meddle.

Triniad, s. m. (trin) A meddling, a handling; a managing, a dealing; an intermeddling; a quarrelling.

Triniaeth, s. m. (trin) A meddling; management; dealing; an undertaking.

Triniaw, v. a. (trin) To persevere in any matter; to meddle; to manage, to conduct.

Triniawl, a. (trin) Managing, conducting.

Triniator, ger. (triniad) In managing.

Triniedig, a. (triniad) Managed, conducted.
Triniedigaeth, s. m. (triniedig) Management; cultivation.

Trinitor, sup. (trin) To be managing.

Triniwr, s. m.—pl. triniwyr (trin—gwr) A manager, or one who carries on any affair.

Trinogaeth, s. m. (trinawg) The act of managing, or carrying on any dealing; traffick.

Trinydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trin) A manager.

Triochr, s. m. (tri—ochr) That has three sides.

Triochrawg, a. (triochr) Having three sides.

Triochri, v. a. (triochr) To render trilateral.

Triochriad, s. m. (triochr) A rendering trilateral.

Triochryn, s. m. (triochr) That is trilateral.

Triodawl, a. (triawd) Belonging to a triad.

Triodi, v. a. (triawd) To form a triad.

Triogi, v. a. (triawg) To render of three.

Triogiad, s. m. (triawg) A rendering to consist of three.

Trioldeb, s. m. (triawl) The state of being tertiated.

Trioli, v. a. (triawl) To tertiate.

Trioliad, s. m. (triawl) A tertiation.

Trip, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ty—rip) A trip.

Tripa, s. c. (trip) The bowels or guts, trinau.

Tripiad, s. m. (trip) A tripping, a falling.

Tripiant, v. a. (trip) To be tripping.

Tripiaw, v. a. (trip) To trip, to stumble.

*A dreilio gwan, o'i droi is cll,
E dripiu Mab Daw'r epli.*

He that oppresses the weak, by turning him behind, the Son of God will cause his race to fall.
Safwyn.

Triphen, s. m. (tri—pen) That has three heads.
a. Three headed.

Triphlyg, s. m. (tri—plyg) That has three folds.
a. Triplicate.

Triphlygiad, s. m. (triphlyg) Triplication.

Triail, s. m. (tri—ail) That consists of three elements or syllables. a. Of three syllables.

Triailawg, a. (triail) Having three syllables.

Trist, a. (ty—rhist) Pensive, sorrowful, sad.

*Truch fawn yis farnaf, Dafydd;
Tost a fu Dyddge o'r dydd!*

Very unhappy I deem thee, David; sorrowful was Dyddge of the day!
Gr. Gryg.

Tristhad, s. m. (trist) A sorrowing.

Tristhawl, a. (tristau) Tending to deject.

Tristau, v. a. (trist) To render sorrowful, to become sad or pensive.

Tristedd, s. m. (trist) Pensiveness, sadness, dejection.

Tristiad, s. m. (trist) A sorrowing, a rueing.

Tristiaw, v. a. (trist) To cause sorrow or sadness.

Tristiawn, a. (trist) Sorrowful, or rueful.

Tristlondeb, s. m. (tristlawn) Ruefulness.

Tristlonder, s. m. (tristlawn) Ruefulness.

Tristlondra, s. m. (tristlawn) Ruefulness.

Tristlonedd, s. m. (tristlawn) Sorrowfulness.

Tristloni, v. a. (tristlawn) To render sorrowful; to become sad or rueful.

Tristlonrwydd, s. m. (tristlawn) Sorrowfulness.

Tristwch, s. m. (trist) Pensiveness, or sadness.

Adfy pob hir tristwch.

Every lasting sorrow is adversity.

Adaf.

Tristyd, s. m. (trist) Sadness, or sorrow.

Tritham, s. m. (tri—tam) That consists of three bites or bits.

Trithamald, s. m. (tritham) An epithet for a large sort of oyster.

Trithant, s. m. (tri—tant) That consists of three strings; the rebeck.

Trithri, s. m. (tri repeated) Three times three.

Trithro, s. m. (tri—tro) That is of three turns.

Trithroed, s. m. (tri—troed) That consists of three feet. a. Three-footed.

Trithroediawg, a. (trithroed) Three-footed.

Trithu, s. m. (tri—tu) That is of three sides.

Trithuawg, a. (trithu) Trilateral, three-sided.

Tringain, s. m. (tri—ngain) Sixty. a. Sixty.

Triugaint, s. m. (triugain) Sixty. a. Sixty.

Triugeinfed, s. m. (triugain) Sixtieth. a. Sixtieth.

Triugeiniawl, a. (triugain) Sexagesimal.

March glas eiddawl triugeiniawl.

A grey horse perfect and of the value of threescore pence.
Welsh Laws.

Triugeinwalth, s. pl. (triugain—gwaith) Three-score times. a. Threescore times.

Triunaw, v. a. (tri—unaw) To unite three in one.

Triunawd, s. m. (tri—unawd) A Trinity.

Triunawl, a. (tri—unawl) Triune.

Triundawd, s. m. (tri—undawd) A Trinity in unity

Goleu'n fydd galon fawd, Trwy lawnder, Dew triundawd.

Illum our faith, with a happy heart, through righteousness, thou God of Trinity in unity.
T. Ll. Deio Powel.

Tro, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ty—rho) A turn; a while, a time; a lax. Tro da, a good turn; o dro i dro, from time to time; troes dro, for a while; y tro yma, this time; rhai troeon, sometimes; rhwy dro, sometime.

Troad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tro) A turning; conversation.

—Ar wrdd thr ar,

*A glyw droadw'r glaw drydar,
Oll o'i galon cyll y galar.*

On the border of the cultivated land, he who hears the turn^d of the sprightly chirping, entirely from his heart he will lose his grief.
C. Duelluy.

Troadwy, a. (troad) Capable of turning.

Troadwl, a. (tro) Turning, rolling, revolving.

Troch, s. f.—pl. t. ion (tro—och) A spray; a lave.

Troch, a. (s. f. of troch) Cat, broken; maimed; unlucky, desperate, fell.

Cynydd ar dres droch lynges llyr.

Cut off was on a sudden the fell feet of the torrent.

Gwaelchmed.

Trochadwy, a. (troch) Capable of being bathed.

Trochawl, a. (troch) Bathing, immersing.

Trochedig, a. (troch) Bathed, immersed.

Trochedigaeth, s. f. (trochedig) The act of bathing

Trochfa, s. f.—pl. trochfeydd (troch) A bathing-place; a bathing.

Trochgader, s. f. (troch—cader) A duckingstool.

Trochi, v. a. (troch) To immerse, to dip, to duck, to plunge, to bathe.

*Lleant Cadwallawn ar Fetain,
Llaw iia llusawg ei wraig,
Turf mawr trochfa ei orddin.*

The camp of Cadwallon on Meina, the lion of the host of numerous troops, a great tumult dashed his skirt.
Llywarch Hen.

Trochiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (troch) An immersion.

Tres trachwres trochiad ei wrynder.

The bustle of ambition is the immersion of his energy.
Cynyddelw.

Trochiant, s. m. (troch) A splashing; immersion.

Trochion, s. pl. (troch) Splasings; suds, lather.

Trochioni, v. a. (trochion) To raise a lather.

Trochionllyd, a. (trochion) Abounding with froth.

Trochwr, s. m.—pl. trochwyr (troch—gwr) An immerser, a bather.

Trochydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (troch) A dipper, a plunger, a diver; a bather. Trochydd mawr, the great northern diver; trochydd bach, the grey speckled diver; trochydd gwedd/goch, the red-necked diver; trochydd danurddawg, the lesser dan diver.

Troedawl, a. (trawd) Transitive; passing over.

Trodi, v. a. (trawd) To make a transit; to pass onward; to journey.

Troddid, s. m. (trawd) A passing onward.

Troddwen, s. f. (trawd—gwen) A starling.

Troddall, s. pl. aggr. (tro—dall) Flowers in festoon. Cer o dreddall, a bower of leaves.

Troddawl, a. (trawdd) Progressive; forwarding.

Troddedig, a. (trawdd) Being passed onward.

Troddi, v. a. (trawdd) To make a transit; to move onward, to make a progress.

Owen wrth Lawen yd wylio seithwyr:

Arthur ni thoson:

Add a drowsid wr gwaedd Gorla.

Owen on Llanen he did watch last night: Arthur never retreated: the slaughter he passed through on the dyke of Gorla.

Llywarch Hen.

Rhoi rhan o'rh dorth gis, a'rh giolo i la,

Hob lo i wenywyo:

A'rh gi, cyn troddi un tro,

A'rh fran, seith yn farw yno.

Giving a share of thy white loaf and thy dinner to a multitude, without room to grumble: and thy dog, before moving forward one step, and thy crow, there did die.

D. Ll. ab Ll. ab Gwafudd.

Troddiad, s. m. (trawdd) A transition, a passing over; progression.

✓ Troed, s. m.—pl. troed (traw—od) A foot. It forms the names of many plants: Troed y colliwag, cock's-foot grass; troed y golemen, lythys y cwllwm, columbine; troed yr hedydd, larkspur, troed gwyfarnawg, meillion cadennawg, hare's-foot trefoil; troed yr asen, yr arlliegawg, garlic hedge-mustard; troed yr arth, bear's foot; troed yr aderyn, common bird's foot; troed y tarw, lythys y tarw, bellwort; troed yr wydd, goose foot; troed y cynw, hedge parsley; troed y gwlh, mountain cat's foot, field cypress; troed y gwynen, water parakeet; troed y dryw, field lilies' mantle; troed y barowd, common meadow-rue; troed yr ebeul, marsh marigold; troed yr crydd, celery-leaved crow foot; troed y llew, ladies' mantle.

Pan llyro deuth, pob fol a dory droed troc.

When the wise slips, every fool will stamp a foot upon him.

Adage.

Troedawg, a. (troed) Having a foot. s. f. A fetlock; a fetter.

Troedawl, a. (troed) Belonging to the foot, pedal.

Troed-draws, a. (troed—traws) Splay-footed.

Troed-dread, adv. (troed repeated) Foot to foot.

Troedfedd, s. f.—pl. t. i (bedd) A foot measure.

Troedfeddawl, a. (troedfedd) Of a foot measure.

Troedfeddu, s. a. (troedfedd) To divide into feet.

Troedfyr, a. (troed—byr) Short-footed.

Troedgall, a. (troed—call) Having the foot turned out; club-footed.

Troedgam, a. (troed—cam) Wry-footed.

Troedhir, a. (troed—hir) Long-footed.

Troedriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (troed) A footing.

Troedriant, s. (troed) A setting a foot, a footing.

Caf y gwr dydd yn agwddi yr hen fardd, cyn cael o'r Sarnog droediant yn Ynyf Prydain.

The word fresh is to be found in the works of the old bard, before the Saxons had footing in the Isle of Britain.

Llywelyn Hen.

Troediaw, v. a. (troed) To foot; to use the foot; to tread; to kick.

✓ Troediawg, a. (troed) Having feet, footed. s. m. A pedifer; a foot-holder. He is also called rhagcristodidd.

Troediawg a ddwy ddiwy troed y bwrdd yn ei wdd, o'r pen ddechrau chafodd yr ol i grynau; ac y ddwy gwr y troed; ac yn gwyb a bydd y troed gwydd o'r y troed aly gwail.

The footmen ought to hold the feet of the king in his lap, from the time when he begins to sit in his convivality to the time he goes to sleep; and he ought to scratch the king's feet during such a space let him guard the king against accident. Welsh Laws.

Troedig, a. (troed) Turned, converted; being disposed to turn. Troedigion, proselytes.

Addaf gwis gwlis, gwrach dig;

Addaf gwl gwlisach troedig.

Adam the rotten rake, a surly hunch; Adam a dissolute vomiting vagabond.

Mynd Ystern.

Troedigaeth, s. m.—pl. t. an (troedig) Circulation.

Troedigawl, a. (troedig) Circulating, revolving.

Troedlas, s. f.—pl. t. an (troed—llas) A treadle.

Troedlath, s. f.—pl. t. an (troed—lath) Treadle.

Troedle, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (troed—lle) A treadle place; a place of resort. Troedle hysgys, a well-known place of resort.

Troedlen, s. f.—pl. t. i (troed—llen) A foot-board; a treadle.

Troedlydan, a. (troed—llydan) Broad-footed.

Troednoeth, a. (troed—noeth) Barefooted.

A henc ddrafn ni chafodd yr droednoeth.

Who sees thorns let him not walk barefooted.

Adage.

Troednoethi, v. a. (troednoeth) To make barefoot.

Troednoethiad, s. m. (troednoeth) Discalculation.

Troedogi, v. a. (troedawg) To fetter, to shackle.

Troedogiad, s. m. (troedawg) A fettering.

Troedraw, s. f. (troed—rhaw) A foot-spade.

Troedradd, a. (troed—rhudd) Of a ruddy foot.

s. f. The stinking cranebill; also called lythys y llwynawg, myrnydd y bugel, pig's ear.

Troedrych, a. (troed—rych) Dry-footed, dry foot.

Troedwat, s. f. (troed—gwat) A foot disease; gut.

Troedwtaw, a. (troedwt) Pedagogical, goosey.

Troedyn, s. m. dim. (troed) A little foot.

Troedysgafn, a. (troed—ysgafn) Light-footed.

Troell, s. f.—pl. t. an (tro) That effects a turn; a whirl, a wheel for turning, spinning, or winding; a reel; a pulley; a windlass, a screw; a trope. Troellau metin, the pinions of mill-work; troell nyddia, a spinning wheel. Aderyn y droell, the goatucker.

Tori llyth troell olisau.

To break the thread of the wheel of life.

G. Ll. ab Ll. Rhys.

Troellaid, a. (troell) Like a wheel or whirl.

Cryman digofidat Daw:—Amwyg yw fod y gwl yw myddi yn yr arwyddocad cyffelybiaethu troellaid.

The stroke of the wrath of God:—It is manifest that the expiation comes under the denunciation that is comparative of the nature of a trope.

For Gwail.

Troellawg, a. (troel) Having a turn, whirl, or wheel; of the form of a whirl, or screw, or ringlet; brocaded; having the marks called watered, on silks or stuffs; grained, as appearing on boards.

Trilliw gwyth troellawg oedd—

Y tarw.

Of these gay bees in ringlets was the bull.

A. Cw.

Troellidig, a. (troell) Twirled; in ringlets.

Troellen, s. f.—pl. t. i (troell) A whirl, a twist.

Troellennaid, a. (troellen) Like a whirl.

Troellennawg, a. (troellen) Composed of whirl, or ringlets; formed like a cobweb; brocaded, flowered.

Troelleniad, s. m. (troellen) A forming into whirls, or ringlets.

Troellenn, v. a. (troellen) To form a whirl; to form into ringlets.

Troellgoran, s. m. (troell—coran) Meas rush.

Troellhoel, s. f.—pl. t. iau (troell—hoel) A screw-nail.

Troellhoeliad, s. m. (troellhoel) A screwing.

Troellhoeliaw, v. a. (troellhoel) To screw.

Troelli, v. a. (troell). To put in a whirling motion; to turn as a whirl, or wheel; to turn as a screw; to screw. Gwagr troelli, a sieve used in cleaning corn.

Troellliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (troell) A whirling.

Troellliannaw, a. (troelliant) Of a whirling or spinning motion.

Troellliannu, v. a. (troelliant) To produce a whirling motion.

Troelliant, s. m. (troell) A whirling motion.

Troellig, s. f. (troell) The spurrey.

Troellrych, s. m.—pl. t. an (troell—rhych) The counterpart of a screw, or the groove that receives it.

Troellrychiad, s. m. (troellrych) A grooving or forming the concave part of a screw.

Troellrychiaw, v. a. (troellrych) To groove the concave part of a screw.

Troellwaith, s. m. (troell—gwaith) Wheel-work; the movement of a clock or watch.

Troellweithiad, s. m. (troellwaith) A making of wheel-work.

Troellweithiaw, v. a. (troellwaith) To make wheel-work.

Troellweithiwr, s. m.—pl. troellweithiwr (troellwaith—gwr) One who makes wheel-work.

Troellymadrawd, s. m.—pl. troellymadroddion (troell—ymadrawd) A figurative speech, tropology.

Troellymadroddi, v. a. (troellymadrawd) To express in figurative speech.

Troellymadroddiad, s. m. (troellymadrawd) A making use of figurative speech.

Troen, s. f.—pl. t. an (tro) A turn; a twirl; a while, a good while. Ni buaist er ys troen yma, thou hast not been here this good while. Powys.

Troetys, s. m.—pl. t. an (troed—ys) A snare. Sil.

Troeth, s. f. (trwyth) Wash; lye; urine.

Troethai, s. c. (troeth) A chamber pot.

Troethbair, s. (troeth—pair) Diuretical.

Troethi, v. a. (troeth) To void urine.

Troethiad, s. m. (troeth) A voiding urine.

Troethlif, s. m. (troeth—lif) A diabetes.

Trofa, s. f.—pl. trofeydd (tro) A place of turning or revolving; a turn; a tropic; a glance.

*Gwelais, ar drofa gofwg,
Gwen bar.—*

*I saw, with a glance of the eye, a sweet smile.
Bedo Brwynllys.*

Trofäad, s. m. (trofäu) A turning; a revolving; a transition.

Trofäawl, a. (trofäu) Turning; flexuous.

Trofäedd, s. m. (trofa) Tortuosity, flexure.

Trofäed, s. f.—pl. t. an (trofa) A trope.

Trofän, s. f.—pl. t. au (tro—man) A tropic.

Trofanaw, a. (trofan) Tropical, of the tropic.

Trofäu, v. a. (trofa) To make a turn.

*Mal neidr fyddar yn trofäu,
Tan gau ei chlustau cydyn.*

*Like the deaf adder winding round, with closing her repulsive ears.
Idm. Pryg.*

Trofäus, a. (trofa) Flexuous; tortuous.

Trofawl, a. (trawf) Tending to pass over; transitive; tending forward.

Trofedig, a. (trawf) Being made transitive; being led forward; being instructed, disciplined.

VOL. II.

Trofedigion neu amenyddion, disciples or students. Barddas.

Trofedigaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (trofedig) The act of transition; the act or state of forwarding; a discipleship.

Trofiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trawf) A transition; a passage; a clause. Trofudau cuniadueth, the transitions of music.

Trofiant, s. m. (trawf) A pass over; transition.

Trofus, a. (trawf) Tending to pass over.

Trofusder, s. m. (trofus) A transitive state.

Trohidl, s. m. (tro—hidl) An instrument for the twisting of ropes.

Troi, v. a. (tro) To turn. Troi tir, to plough land: Troi ar, to chide; tro arni, chide her.

Eswag a dry y cellwair yn wir.

The guilty will turn the jasting to truth. Adage.

*Gwae a dro o glau i glau,
Ac ni fedda beth ei hun.*

Woe to him that turns from side to side, and who possesses nothing for himself. Adage.

*Try allan ddydol trifu,
A sydd, a fydd, ac a fu—
Ger bron ymad.*

There will turn out of men three hosts, that be, that will be, and that have been, in the presence of the judge. Gru. Omsin.

Grym a gwendid, tröent o'r eiddid.

Strength and weakness, they turn from the birth. Adage.

Troiad, s. m. (troi) A turning, a circling.

Troiadur, s. m.—pl. f. on (troiad) That effects a turning or transition.

Troiadr, s. m.—pl. t. on (troiad) That forms a transition or turn.

Cefais er na fedrais fydd, Gyflwrdd daw a'r gerid droiadur.

I obtained, though I knew no metre, a contact there with the song that abounds with transition. I. ab R. ab Iwan Llyrd.

Tröl, s. c.—pl. t. iau (ty—rhöl) A cylinder, a roller; a roll; a small cart, otherwise called câr tröl; also, a round fat man. Berfa dröl, a wheelbarrow.

Trölaidd, s. f.—pl. troleidiau (tröl) A cart load.

Trölaidd, a. (tröl) Cylindrical, like a roll.

Trölen, s. f. (tröl) A roundlet; a fat female.

Tröliad, s. m. (tröl) A trolling, a rolling.

Trölian, v. a. (tröl) To troll, to keep rolling.

Tröliaw, v. a. (tröl) To troll, to trundle.

Tröliedig, a. (tröliad) Trolled; trundled.

Tröliwr, s. m.—pl. tröliwyr (tröl—gwr) A troller; one who rolls; a trundler.

Trölyn, s. m. dim. (tröl) A roller; a fat one.

Trölyn o ddyn, a chubby person.

Trölynaidd, a. (trölyn) Of the form of a roll.

Trölynawg, a. (trölyn) Cylindrical.

Trölyniad, s. m. (trölyn) A making a roll.

Trölynu, v. a. (trölyn) To form a cylinder.

Trom, a. (f. of trwm) Heavy, weighty; sad.

Tromfron, s. f. (bron) A grief-oppressed breast.

Tromgad, s. f. (trom—cad) A main battle.

Tromleddf, a. (trom—lleddf) Gravely inflective, a term in prosody for syllables like ceirw.

Tromsain, s. f.—pl. tromseiniau (trom—sain) A grave accent.

Tron, s. f.—pl. t. au (tro—on) A circle, a round; a throne.

Trönawl, a. (trawn) Transcendent.

Trönawl, a. (trön) Relating to a periphery.

Tröni, v. a. (trawn) To render superior.

Tröni, v. a. (trön) To rim; to form a periphery.

Tröniad, s. m. (trawn) A transcending.

Trònlad, s. m. (tròn) A forming a circle, round.
Tros, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tro—os) That is over or placed across, a transverse bar; a lock.
Tros, prep. (tro—os) Over; for, instead of. adv. Over. Teg dros ben, supremely fair; da dros ben, excellently good: Ei drosto ar redeg, thou wilt go over it on full speed.—Trosf, troslef, over or for me; trostot, trostet, over or for thee; troso, trosto, over or for him and it; trosti, trosti, over or for her; trosoam, trostom, over or for us; trosoch, trostock, over or for you; trostyn, trostyn, over or for them.

Dychd chwast dros ben y cast.

Capitly catches over a hundred. Adage.

Gura dda dros ddwy, uffera n'ith dwg.

Do good for evil, but will not have thee. Adage.

A ddodia dros ei fal, a was ddos ddinol o on cythraul.

He that pleads for his fault strikes two devils out of one hand. Adage.

Ni ddoddyt dros for straws,
Pobl anhyfawth Nabyffyr.

They come out over sea again, the unreviled people of Nabyffyr. Mellyr.

Trosadwy, a. (tros) Capable of being driven over.
Troseddig, a. (tros) Diverted, or turned aside.
Trosedd, s. m. (tros) Transgression, trespass.
Troseddadwy, a. (trosedd) Transgressible.
Troseddawg, a. (trosedd) Full of transgression.
Troseddawl, a. (trosedd) Transgressing.
Troseddedig, a. (trosedd) Being transgressed.
Troseddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trosedd) Transgression.

Troseddu, v. a. (trosedd) To transgress; to err.
Troseddwr, s. m.—pl. troseddwy (trosedd—gwr) A transgressor.

Trosel, s. m.—pl. t. i (tros) A plashed fence.

Troselu, v. a. (trosel) To plash a fence.

Trosenw, s. m.—pl. t. au (tros—enw) A name that is put for another.

Trosenwad, s. m. (trosenw) Transnomination.

Trosenwawl, a. (trosenw) Relating to transnomination.

Trosenwi, v. a. (trosenw) To put one name for another.

Trosfa, s. f.—pl. trosfeydd (tros) A place for turning to. Trosfa gyffredin, a common for turning cattle to.

Trosfynediad, s. m. (tros—mynediad) Metabasis.

Trosglud, s. m. (tros—clud) A conveyance over.

Trosgludaw, v. a. (trosglud) To carry over.

Trosgludawl, a. (trosglud) Transporting.

Trosgludiad, s. m. (trosglud) A transportation.

Trosglwydd, s. m. (tros—clwydd) A carrying over; a transfer; a conveyance.

Trosglwyddadwy, a. (trosglwydd) Transferrable.

Trosglwyddaw, v. a. (trosglwydd) To transport; to carry over; to transfer; to convey.

Trosglwyddawl, a. (trosglwydd) Transferring.

Trosglwyddedig, a. (trosglwydd) Transported; transferred; conveyed over; consigned. Trosglwyddedigion, those that are carried over.

Trosglwyddigaeth, s. m. (trosglwyddedig) The act of conveying over or transferring.

Trosglwyddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trosglwydd) A carrying over, a transporting; a transferring; a consigning.

Trosglwyddwr, s. m.—pl. trosglwyddwyr (trosglwydd—gwr) A transporter.

Trosgi, a. (s. of trosgi) Clumsy, or stumbling.

Angen y rhydded drosgi yw ben chwaill; a byd i penill beddwr hwn i'w gylh bun.

The requisite of the clumsy metricality is a verse of six syllables; and the length of the stanza four feet versus to eight. J. R. R.

Trosi, v. a. (tros) To turn out, to send over, to convey; to move onward; to move about. Trosi gwartheg, to drive out cattle; Trosi a throsi, to turn and move about: Trosi peth a henaist, to verge towards old age.

Rich chwerthid a drosu yn wylio.

Your laughter will turn to weeping. Cyf. Rhys a. d. 10.

Morganwg—
Lle troso ran o'm hannerch.

Morganwg, where a portion of my footstep drops. A. d. 10.

Trosd ei hwyliou a orog. Yngwlad, a ddygus yn wlad i'w troso a chwyli; ac wedi cael i'w troso, cyhoir a wneid gwr Penwylwedd.

To hoist his sails with what Yngwlad did; and descend to the port of Trosodid did they; and when they had reached land, they approached the castle of Penwylwedd. Gr. a. d. 10.

Trosod, pronom. prep. (tros) Over a person or thing; for or on account of a person or thing.
Trosodd, prep. (tros) Over; beyond. adv. Over: Trosol, s. m.—pl. t. ion (traw—ol) A lever; a bar, or bolt, which is placed across any thing.

Mal wy ar drool.

Like an egg on a post. J. R. R.

Trosoli, v. a. (trosol) To work with a lever.

Trosoliad, s. m. (trosol) A working a lever.

Trosoliaw, v. a. (trosol) To work a lever.

Trosoliedig, a. (trosol) Being worked as a lever.

Trosolwaew, s. f. (trosol—gwaew) A lever-beam.

Trosolwydd, s. (trosol—gwydd) Wooden lever.

Trosten, s. f.—pl. t. i (trawst) A long rod.

Trosto, pronom. prep. (tros) Over a person or thing; for or on account of any one.

Pwbl drosto ei huanu, Dew drosto ni gyl.

Every body for himself, God for us all. J. R. R.

Hwys dywedyd mynyddu a mynydd trosto.

It is easier to say mountains than to go over a. J. R. R.

Trostr, s. m.—pl. t. au (trawst) A slider.

Gwregys y cloddyl o gordal da, a throsus gordal da.

The girdle of the sword of black leather, with gilt sides as a slider. J. R. R.

Troterth, s. m.—pl. t. od (trawd—erth) A trotter.

Cyfreu a roid als cafar worth;

Dyru eto ym droterth.
A saddle thou didst give such as I can not have on me; let me again a trotter. J. R. R.

Trotiad, s. (trawd) A trotting, a going on a trot.

Trotial, v. a. (trawd) To keep trotting.

Trotian, v. a. (trawd) To keep trotting.

Y march—

Trosd tano y trodnyst.

The horse, enter him feet would continue trotting. Gr. R. R.

Trotiaw, v. a. (trawd) To trot, to go on a trot.

Trotiawl, a. (trawd) Trotting, apt to trot.

Trotiwr, s. m.—pl. trotiwyr (trawd—gwr) One who trots, a trotter.

Troth, s. m. (tro—oth) That tends through.

Troth, prep. (tro) Through, from side to side.

Dygyrch bar careu rrog of haddu.

Lle y myn lynged trothodid arth mab.

She assaults the top of the stone with her horse's chest; and with horse by fate let it burst through the neck. J. R. R.

Trothi, s. m. (troth) A state of passing through.

Frithwyg, s. m.—pl. t. on (troth) A threshold. ✓

Cyfydd am doethry ty y tairdd.

The miser is about the threshold of the house of thieves.

Adage.

Trowynt, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (tro—gwynt) A whirlwind.

Tro, s. m. (ty—rhu) An outcast; wretchedness.

Tru, a. (ty—rhu) Being outcast; wretched.

Tru mór anghall dall dell anelrian

Truaid, trwy gwydd a gymroa'.

Piteous that so indelicately blind the wretched way of the transgression, which through striving they take.

Casodwyn.

Truad, s. m. (tru) A causing misery; a turning to misery or wretchedness.

Truaid, a. (tru) Somewhat wretched or piteous.

Truan, a. (tru) Feeble, slender; poor, wretched, miserable, pitiful. Wyt yn edrych yn druan am, then dost look very poorly. Druan bach!

poor little thing! Druan hys! poor dear that it was! O druan! oh poor thing! Truaned yw!

how miserable it is!

Gwell rhy druo na rhy druan.

Better too perverse than too wretched.

Adage.

O drustion odegroedd y llythra llythra.

Of piteous tears she then let fall.

Dar. Merddin.

Truanad, s. m. (truanu) A rendering miserable, a becoming miserable.

Truanidd, a. (truan) Somewhat miserable.

Truanu, v. a. (truan) To render wretched; to become miserable or wretched.

Truanawg, a. (truan) Full of wretchedness.

Truanaw, a. (truan) Tending to misery.

Truander, s. m. (truan) Piteousness; misery.

Truanedig, a. (truan) Being made wretched.

Truanedd, s. m. (truan) Wretchedness.

Fy sylwedd, truanedd trig,

Nid ydyw awnawd!

My substance, a wretchedness of existence, is only a mist invisible!

H. ab Iwan Fydd Coch.

Truanelddiad, s. m. (truanidd) A rendering miserable; a becoming wretched.

Truanelddiaw, v. a. (truanidd) To render miserable; to become miserable.

Truaneldrwydd, s. m. (truanidd) Miserableness

Truennu, s. f. dim. (truan) A poor little female.

Truennid, s. f. (truan) A wretched female.

Truanid, s. m. (truan) A rendering wretched; a becoming wretched.

Truann, v. a. (truan) To pity, to commiserate; to become feeble, poor, wretched, or miserable.

Truans wrtho! have pity on him!

Truaw, v. a. (tru) To render piteous; to become piteous, or wretched.

Truawl, a. (tru) Miserable, piteous, wretched.

Truawr, a. (tru) Wretched, or miserable.

Gwell rhy druo na rhy druwor.

Better is it to be too overbearing than too abject.

Craig Ddorth.

Trudd, s. m. (tru) A break through, a burst.

Truedig, a. (truad) Being made wretched.

Truedd, s. m. (tru) Wretchedness, misery.

Trueddu, v. a. (truedd) To render wretched; to become miserable.

Trueddus, a. (truedd) Piteous, or wretched.

Trueddiad, s. m. (truaid) A rendering wretched; a becoming wretched.

Trueddiaw, v. a. (truaid) To render wretched; to become wretched.

Trueiniad, s. m.—pl. trueiniad (truan) A wretched one.

Trueiniaw, v. a. (truan) To render miserable; to become miserable or pitiful.

Trueiniawl, a. (truan) Tending to misery.

Trueinig, a. (truan) Full of misery.

Y rhai cawr y sy druedig ac elwedig.

The wicked ones are wretched and nocturnal. Eucideria.

Trueinrwydd, s. m. (truan) Wretchedness.

Trueinlwr, s. m.—pl. trueinwyr (truan—gwr) A wretched man.

Trueni, s. m. (truan) Misery, wretchedness.

Bid lygad Duw ar druen.

Be the eye of God on wretchedness.

Adage.

Truenus, a. (truan) Miserable, wretched.

Truenusaw, v. a. (truenus) To render miserable, to become wretched.

Truennadra, s. m. (truenus) Pitifulness.

Truennsedd, s. m. (truenus) Piteousness.

Truennsrydd, s. m. (truenus) Miserableness.

Truennyn, s. m. dim. (truan) A poor little wretch.

Trugar, a. (tru—car) Compassionate, or merciful.

Tri dyn a ddylid bod yn drugar wrthyt: alltud, gwaddw, ac amddifid.

Three persons that should be dealt with mercifully: the stranger, the widow, and the orphan.

Craig ab Iwanllyth.

A'h orchymynaf gŵn y mawr drugar,

Plaid a gar plant Adaf.

I commend thee to the mighty compassionate, he that loves the children of Adam.

Cynddelu.

Gwr a gynall nef, gwr addel gwar,

Gwawr gwerthfawr bod trugar.

He that upholds heaven, the true mansion of peace, the precious light be he merciful.

Bloddyn Fydd.

Trugarad, s. m. (trugaru) Commiseration.

Trugarawl, a. (trugaru) Commiserating.

Trugaru, v. a. (trugar) To commiserate.

A'm trugarawg Awgwydd, trugared wrthyt,

A mi i wrtho na'm gwrthodol!

And my merciful Lord, may he have mercy on me; and me from him let him not reject.

Gwethcham.

Trugarus, a. (trugaru) Compassionate.

Trugarawg, a. (trugar) Merciful; pitying.

Addol Duw yw bod yn gyflawn, yn ofydd, ac yn drugarawg.

To worship God is to be just, humble, and merciful.

Adage.

Trugarawl, a. (trugar) Commiserating.

Trugarawr, s. m.—pl. trugarawyr (trugaru—gwr) One who commiserates.

Trugarddawn, s. m. (trugar—dawn) A merciful disposition.

Glynd Duw trued ym trugarddawn a

U lawr na Merfyllaw.

May the Trially God continue my gift of mercy from the great sovereign of the tribe of Merfyll.

L. F. Mack.

Trugaredig, a. (trugar) Compassionated.

Trugaredd, s. m.—pl. t. au (trugar) Compassion.

Car dy Ddau—

Athrw gwir a thrugaredig.

Love thy God, the Lord of truth and mercy.

Huw Dda.

Trugareddawg, a. (trugaredig) Merciful.

Trugareddawl, a. (trugaredig) Commiserating.

Trugareddfa, s. f. (trugaredig) A mercy-seat.

Trugarogrwydd, s. m. (trugarawg) Mercifulness.

Trul, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tru) A tool used for turning or trilling of holes.

Trulliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trul) A trilling a hole.

Trullaw, v. a. (trul) To trill a hole.

Trull, s. m. (ty—rhull) A store; a store of liquor.

Beirdd gynall am drull, am dri llad.

Bards assembling round a store, round three delicacies.

Cynddelu.

Trullad, s. m.—pl. trulliaid (trull) One who serves out or draws liquor, a butler.

Y trulliad a ddily drullaw y llyn, a rhoddi i bawb herwydd y dyllo.

The drawer ought to draw the liquor and to give to every body according to his due. Welsh Laws.

Trulliaeth, s. m. (trulliad) Butlership.

Trulliades, s. f.—pl. t. au (trulliad) A female butler.

Trulliaw, v. a. (trull) To serve out liquor.

Tridyn a'r trillyn yn eu trulliaw.

Three persons with the three liquors selecting them. L. G. Colki.

Trulliedig, a. (trulliad) Being served with liquor
Trulliwr, s. m.—pl. trulliwywr (trull—gwr) A server of liquor, a butler.

Trum, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ty—rhwm) A ridge, a back. Trum y mynydd, ridge of the mountain; trum y ty, the roof of the house; trum gryn, the elevated part of a ridge of land; rhych a thrum, furrow and ridge.

Trefnid i lithau yn'r trum
Taf gastell teg ei ystum.

An inheritance for thee is the ridge beneath a castle of splendid aspect. Iolo Goch.

Trumma, a. (trum) Having a ridge, coped.

—Nid eiddaw o Wynedd
Nafyn farn drumain fain fedd.

Of Gwynedd he owns nothing, save the coped heap of the narrow grave. Einion Wen.

Truman, s. c.—pl. trumain (trum) A ridge.

Gwelais drydar crain ar drumain mor.

I saw a grovelling tamait on the ridges of the sea. Cynnddu.

Trumbeithin, s. pl. (trum—beithin) Ridge tiles.

Trumbeithinen, s. f. (trumbeithin) A ridge tile.

Trumbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (trum—pren) A keel.

Trumiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trum) A ridging.

Trumiaw, v. a. (trum) To ridge, to make a ridge. to cope, or to trim into a ridge. Trumiaw gryn, to trim or raise a ridge, in a field; trum-iaw ty, to form the coping of a house.

Trwm yn'r plwm yn trumiaw'r plas,
To dulas tal dewilion.

Heavy is the lead coping the nave, the gloomy roof of the houses of religious people. L. Morgens, i Fynachlog Nodd.

Trumiawg, a. (trum) Having ridges; ridged.

Trumiawl, a. (trum) Ridging, coping.

Trumwydd, s. m. (trum—gwydd) A keel.

Trus, s. m. (ty—rhws) A ward, or a guard.

Trusi, s. m. (trus) That is an obstacle or guard.

Eiddod rhag trus trus twdor.

He put before the breast the thickly covering guard. Aneurin.

Trusiad, s. m.—pl. trusiad (trus) That wards.

El ysgwr, of drod, of drusiad.

He is of compact frame, he is daring, he is a bulwark. L. P. Meek.

Trusiaw, v. a. (trus) To ward off, to guard.

Trusiawl, a. (trus) Warding, or guarding.

Truth, s. m. (ty—rhuth) Loose unmeaning talk; flattery, fawning, wheedling.

Truthad, s. m. (truth) A fawning, a wheedling.

Truthadwy, a. (truthad) That may be wheedled.

Truthan, s. c.—pl. truthain (truth) A wheedler.

Y truthan a'i trathail;
Croesaueth crou a sonail.

The wheedler would declare it; sheer ribaldry would he talk. D. ab Gwilym, i R. Melyn.

Truthgar, a. (truth) Apt to fawn or to wheedle.

Truthgarwch, s. m. (truthgar) Aptness to fawn.

Truthiad, s. m.—pl. truthiaid (truth) A sycophant

Truthiaith, s. f. (truth—iaith) A fawning; flattering language, adulation.

Truthiaw, v. a. (truth) To fawn, or to wheedle.

Truthiawg, a. (truth) Fawning, or fondling.

Truthiawl, a. (truth) Apt to fawn or wheedle.

Truthiedig, a. (truthiad) Being wheedled.

Truthiwr, s. m.—pl. truthiwywr (truth—gwr) A fawner, a wheedler.

Trw, s. m. (ty—rhw) A turn, or whirl; a state of penetrating or pervading; that is thoroughly or quite. It is prefixed in composition.

Trw, prep. (ty—rhw) Through, or by.

Nid oes iai iysidd a gwr rhoddi, namys—trw ymadroddion clwr, celaw tangoeddau ag wynt.

We have not to fight with yonder men, but, through open expressions, to endeavour to make peace with them. Brud. y Brudmadd.

Trwb, s. m. (ty—rhwb) That is rubbed.

Trwc, s. m.—pl. trycion (trw) That is rounded; a turn; a truck.

Moes y march ddaur—
Trwc lawrodd trwci erwch,
Traws fal bardd, traws fal hwch.

Give me a heavy steed, the handied truck, a truckle for your sake, a forward comely steed, a lump like a sow. Am. ab Iwan.

Trwca, s. m.—pl. t. od (trwc) A bowl, a cap.

Trwcwl, s. m. (trwc) A rundle; a truckle.

Moes drcwl—o farch—
Clawdrwn, llopadrwn, pendrit.

Give me a truckle of a steed, car-drooping, heavy-lasted, hanging his head. Iwan ab Iwan.

Trwch, s. m. (ty—rhwch) A cut into, an incision; a section; a thickness or depth; a charl. O droch trbige, of the depth of three fingers.

Chwannaug trwch i dria.

The charl is addicted to contention. Adage.

Trwch, a. (ty—rhwch) Cut; broken, maimed; unlucky; desperate, fell.

Trefawyd hwynt i'm tra ofal;
Trwch lum gyfarfod a'r trl.

They have been ordained to frighten me extremely; I was unlucky to meet with the three. D. ab Gwilym, i eiddo.

Trwd, s. m. (trw) That is circulating; that pervades, or passes through.

Trwl, s. m.—pl. trylan (trw) A pack; a cushion; a couch. Trwl o ddyn, a lump of a man.

Trwli, s. m. (trwl) That is round and bulky. Trwli moli, a fat squabby woman.

Trwliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trwl) A bundling up.

Trwlian, v. a. (trwl) To heap together; to roll together.

Trwliaw, v. a. (trwl) To bundle; to roll.

Trwlyn, s. m. dim. (trwl) A soft heap or lump.

Trwlyn o ddyn, a fat chub of a man.

Trwm, s. m.—pl. trymion (ty—rhwm) That is heavy, a pressure.

O bob trwm trymaf hennat.

Of every pressure the most pressing is old age. Adage.

Trwm, a. (ty—rhwm) Heavy, weighty; sad.

Trymaf dial yw dirmyg.

The heaviest revenge is contempt. Adage.

Marw Morgens, marw Cyfrin.
Marw Morien mar trl:

Trymaf oed am dy addoed ti, Feredia!

Morgens dead, Cyfrin dead, Morien the husband of another dead: most sad the lingering that thou art left, O Morien! Cyfrin Morien.

Trwngalon, s. m. (trwm—calon) One with a heavy heart. a. Heavy at heart.

Afach pob trwngalon.

Diseased is every heavy hearted one. Adage.

Trwmorddig, a. (trwm—gorddig) Sullenly shy.

Trwn, s. m.—pl. trynlon (trw—wn) A circle.
Trwnc, s. m. (ty—rhnc) Urine; lye, or stale.
Trwncrwydd, a. (trwnc—rhwydd) Diuretic.
Trwncrwyddal, s. c. (trwncrwydd) A diuretic.
Trwodd, prep. (trw) Through. adv. Through.
Trwpa, s. m.—pl. t. od (trwb) A washing-tub; a hod; also a trollop.
Trws, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ty—rhws) A covering garment; a trouse; dress, or habiliment.
Trwsa, s. m.—pl. trwsöydd (trws) A packet; a truss.

*Ni chwery cath, cwiniw,
 Ddrai ei bwydd, hen drwsn blew.*

A cat, with nail of sure gripe, will not play beyond her year, the old truss of hair. Jelo Goch.

Trwäcy, s. m. dim. (trwsa) A packet; a truss.
Trwagl, a. (trwag) Clumsy, bungling.
Trwaglaidd, a. (trwagl) Somewhat clumsy.
Trwaglaith, s. f. (trwagl—laith) Awkward speech.
Trwaglyn, s. m. dim. (trwagl) A bungler.
Trwsiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trws) A dressing, a clothing; habiliment, raiment, dress.
Trwsiadawl, a. (trwsiad) Relating to dress.
Trwsiadu, v. a. (trwsiad) To clothe, to dress.
Trwsiadus, a. (trwsiad) Dressed; decked out.
Trwsiau, v. a. (trws) To dress; to deck, to trim, to garnish, to adorn.
Trwsiedig, a. (trwsiad) Dressed, or habited.
Trwsiedyr, s. m.—pl. t. lon (trwsiad) A dresser.
Trwsiwyr, s. m.—pl. trwsiwyr (trws—gwr) A dresser, one who prepares.
Trwst, s. m.—pl. trystiau (try—wst) A noise, a din; a sound; a rustling; a rattling.

Nid cymaint Bleddyn a'i drwt.

Bleddyn is not so great as his noise. Adage.

Trwstan, a. (trwst—an) Clumsy; unsteady, apt to tumble; unlucky.
Trwstanaidd, a. (trwstan) Somewhat clumsy.
Trwstaneiddiad, s. m. (trwstanaidd) A rendering rather clumsy; a becoming rather clumsy.
Trwstaneiddlaw, v. a. (trwstanaidd) To render somewhat clumsy; to become apt to stumble.
Trwstaneiddrwydd, s. m. (trwstanaidd) Clumsiness, aptness to stumble; unclumsiness.
Trwstaneiddwch, s. m. (trwstanaidd) Clumsiness.
Trwstaniad, s. m. (trwstan) An acting clumsily; a becoming clumsy.
Trwstannu, v. a. (trwstan) To act clumsily.
Trwstanwch, s. m. (trwstan) Clumsiness.
Trwstyll, s. m.—pl. t. on (trwst) What makes a tumult, din, or murmur.
Trwth, s. m.—pl. trythlon (ty—rhwth) That is apt to expand.
Trwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (trw) A pass through.
Trwy, prep. (trw) Through; by, by the means of. Trwyot, through me; trwyot, through thee; trwyot, through him, or it; trwyi, through her; trwyom, through us; trwyoch, through you; trwynt, through them.

Tallod teg a t trwy y byd.

A fair tongue will go through the world. Adage.

Twyll trwy ymddried.

Deception through confiding. Adage.

*Adrawd gwir trwy Ddow a gaf,
 I'r byd, ac hi arbedaf.*

Declare the truth through God, I shall have to do to the world, and I will not spare. Iwan Tw.

*Cymer drwy wychder dy ran;
 Gad i cretll gadw arlan.*

Take through a nobleness of spirit thy share; leave to others to hoard money. Neredydd ab Rhys.

*Mi awn at ddawur o'm lath—
 Trwy'r lath, trwy'r awn mynaw,
 Trwy'r lath, trwy'r awn mor.*

I would resort to the process of common speech with me, through the blue sheet of ice, through the marble stones, through excessive fire, through the waves of the sea. L. G. Cethi.

Trwyad, s. m. (trwy) Permeation, pervasion.
Trwyadi, a. (trwyad) Active, alert, smart, lively; playful, sportive.

*Am areth drwyadi gadair gwyn
 Rhym geiwr gyfrwy yn llys Don.*

For the sportive fancy of harmonious poetry, I am called abilifal, in the court of Don. Taliesin, Cadair Cyrdaw.

Trwyadlled, s. m. (trwyadi) Sprightliness.
Trwyadlu, v. a. (trwyadi) To render alert, smart, or sprightly; to become sprightly.
Trwyaw, v. a. (trwy) To permeate, to pervade.
Trwyawg, a. (trwy) Pervasive, pervading.
Trwyawl, a. (trwy) Tending to pervade.
Trwyd, s. m. (trwy) A burst, or pass through. a. Bursting, or passing through.

*Cefid ac cefidith, awn cynallwyd;
 Cefyst feryon forefwyd;
 Cefist yndwr am drwyd, hofeydd
 Trwy teryd i ar lwyd.*

Obtaining their dainty food, the grey-banded dogs; were the kites to obtain a morning meal; a gathering together will be obtained round a pass, like the fierce bear on his feast.

Cynddelw, i H. ab Owain.

*Y tro a oeth, i'r trwy trwyd,
 I ddafydd a ddedydd.*

The fortune that befel the bursting bear, to David has been promised. L. G. Cethi.

Trwydaw, v. a. (trwyd) To penetrate; to burst.
Trwydawg, a. (trwyd) Being penetrated.
Trwydawl, a. (trwyd) Penetrating; bursting.
Trwydiad, s. m. (trwyd) A penetrating.
Trwydoll, a. (trwy—toll) Being burst through.
Trwydwil, a. (trwy—twil) Bursting through.
Trwydd, s. m. (trwy) A passage through; a bore.
Trwydd, prep. (trwy) Through; by; with, or by means of. Trwyddof, through me, trwyddot, through thee, trwyddo, through him; trwyddi, through her; trwyddy, through it; trwyddom, through us; trwyddoch, through you; trwydd-ont, through them.
Trwyddaw, v. a. (trwydd) To pass through.
Trwyddawg, a. (trwydd) Having a passage.
Trwyddawl, a. (trwydd) Tending to perforate.
Trwydded, s. f.—pl. t. au (trwydd) A passage through, a pass; a passport, freedom of passing and repassing; licence, leave; the act of passing through; reception; provision, or maintenance; fruition.

*Mi a wn on trwydded,
 A'u tro a'u cerdded.*

I know their reception, and their course and their journey. Taliesin.

*Efridd fydd dechrau
 Dyr, dechreuidd dyrras;
 A'i ddawidd o' glas,
 Angau ynged:*

*Ac nid oes rochel guchwern drwydded,
 Gwely naghlasar ddaidd dedd!*

Prall is the beginning of man, of gallant exploits; and his end is certain, death so closely pressing; and there is no avoiding the bitter passage, the uncheering bed of the earthly covering.

Meliyr ab Uwaischmai.

*Rhodri trwydded iddo, e'i welion, o furd, a dlawd, a dillid.
 Giving a welcome to him, and his servants, of victuals, and drink, and clothes.* Cyd. Bnigyn ac Amic.

Trwyddedawg, a. (trwydded) Having a passage, or pass; having liberty of passing and repassing; having admittance as a guest. s. c.—pl. trwyddedogion. One who has leave of egress or ingress; a licentiate; a free guest. Tri thrwyddedawg llys Arthur, the three free guests of the court of Arthur.

Nâ ddal dy dyf with gynghor dy drwyddedawg.

Keep not thy house according to the advice of thy guest.

Adage.

Drowg a drefna wrth ei drwyddedawg.

Badly off is he who manages by the advice of his guest.

Adage.

Nid trwyddedawg ond dinail.

There is no free traveller like a penny.

Adage.

Trwyddedawl, a. (trwydded) Relating to the free passing through; licensing.

Trwyddedig, a. (trwydded) Freely admitted.

Trwyddedogaeth, s. f. (trwyddedawg) Freedom of passing through.

Tair brain beirdd Ynno Fyrdas: trwyddedogaeth lle yr ehoit, nas dwyer ei north yn eu herbyn, a gair eu gair lwy ar bob.

The three privileges of the bards of the Isle of Britain: freedom of answering wherever they go, that a spoken weapon be not borne against them, and that their word be taken before every one.

Bards.

Trwyddedogi, v. a. (trwyddedawg) To permit a free passage.

Trwyddedogiad, s. m. (trwyddedawg) A rendering of free passage, permission of passing.

Trwyddedogrwydd, s. m. (trwyddedawg) Freedom of passing through, free admission.

Trwyddedn, v. a. (trwydded) To pass through; to give free reception.

Trwyddedwr, s. m.—pl. trwyddedwyr (trwydded—gwr) One who freely passes through.

Trwyddedwraig, s. f.—pl. trwyddedwreigedd (trwydded—gwraig) A free female ranger.

Trwyddedwraig lleu bedwal, Trig a dybudd, forfudd, si!

The free ranger of the glade of birches, stay and solace me, O, Morvudd!

D. ab Gwilym.

Trwyddew, s. m. (trwydd) What perforates; a piercer, a borer.

Trwyddiad, s. m. (trwydd) A passing through.

Trwyddyd, s. m.—pl. t. au (trwydd) A passage through; a pass; leave of ingress and regress; licence, admittance; fare; provision.

Trwyll, s. f.—pl. t. au (trwy) What turns round; a swivel, or ring, on a pivot; a ring in a swine's nose.

Dodi trwyll yn ei drwyn.

To put a ring in his nose.

Adage.

Mi yn son am Wyl Fair; ti yn son am drwyll mochyn.

I talking about Lady Day; thou talking about a pig's ring.

Adage.

Bargyda i fwydd mewr carped, yr hon eidd a drwyll o aur, a dau larch gwylion yn ei dyn.

I mounted up in a chariot the which had a ring of gold, and two white steeds drawing it.

Marchant Crwydrad.

Trwyllaw, v. a. (trwyll) To form a swivel, or ring, to turn round on a pivot; to ring a pig's nose; to trawl, or to fish by trawling.

Da trwyllaw trwyn mochyn a fo yn tiraw.

It is well to ring a pig's nose that turns the ground.

Adage.

Trwyllawg, a. (trwyll) Having a swivel, or ring.

Trwylliad, s. m. (trwyll) A swivelling; a forming a ring; a forming a pivot.

Trwyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (trwy) A point; a snout; a nozzle; a nose. Trwyn y llo, snapdragon.

Sychu trwyn y cuch i fynyd i'r pridd.

To wipe the point of the snout before it goes into the soil.

Adage.

Trwynaw, v. a. (trwyn) To nozzle; to nose, to smell with the nose close to a thing.

Trwynawg, a. (trwyn) Having a snout or nose.

Trwynawl, a. (trwyn) Belonging to the snout; nasal.

Trwyabant, a. (trwyn—pant) Having the nose falling in.

Trwynbica, a. (trwyn—pica) Having a turned up nose; snub-nosed.

Trwynbwt, a. (trwyn—pwt) Snub-nosed.

Trwyndwn, a. (trwyn—twn) Broken-nosed.

Trwynedig, a. (trwyn) Snouted; nosed.

Trwynfawr, a. (trwyn—mawr) Large-nosed.

Trwynfyr, a. (trwyn—byr) Short-nosed.

Trwynffwyn, s. f.—pl. t. au (trwyn—ffwya) A nose-band of a bridle.

Trwynffychain, v. a. (trwyn—ffychain) To snort, to snuffle. s. m. A snorting, a snuffling.

Trwynffychain ac agori o safn a wng.

Snorting and opening his jaw was what he did.

H. Brown—Middlington.

Trwyngauad, a. (trwyn—cauad) Having the nose closed up.

Trwyngorn, a. (trwyn—corn) Horn-snouted.

Trwyngorniawg, a. (trwyngorn) Having a horned nose. s. m. A rhinoceros.

Trwyngrawn, a. (trwyn—crwn) Having an equine nose.

Trwyngrych, a. (trwyn—crych) Crinkle-nosed.

Trwyngrychiad, s. m. (trwyngrych) A crinkling the nose.

Trwyngrychn, v. a. (trwyngrych) To nose crinkle.

Trwynhir, a. (trwyn—hir) Long-nosed.

Trwyniad, s. m. (trwyn) A nosing, a snouting.

Trwynllem, a. (s. f. of trwynllym) Sharp-nosed.

Trwynllif, s. m. (llif) A running at the nose.

Trwynllifaw, v. n. (trwynllif) To run at the nose.

Trwynllifawg, a. (trwynllif) Snively.

Trwynllym, a. (trwyn—llym) Sharp-nosed.

Trwynsor, a. (trwyn—sor) Apt to turn the nose; apt to take a snuff. Y trwynsor, the stinking goose-foot.

Trwynserl, v. n. (trwynsor) To turn up the nose; to take a snuff.

Trwynsorlad, s. m. (trwynsor) A turning up the nose, a taking a snuff.

Trwynswch, s. m. (trwyn—swch) Tip of the nose.

Trwyo, prep. (trwy) Through. adv. Through, to the other side.

Trwyogaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (trwyawg) The act or state of passing through; pervasion.

Tair trwyogaeth eidd: tryles, trwywyl, a thrymaw.

The three pervasions of song: thorough learning, thorough vigour, and thorough nature.

Barde.

Trwyogedd, s. m. (trwyawg) Pervasiveness.

Trwyogi, v. a. (trwyawg) To render pervading; to become pervasive.

Trwyth, s. f.—pl. t. i (trwy) What pervades; a solvent, dimolvent, or menstruum; lye; a decoction. Twrch Trwyth, the bursting bear.

Trwythadwy, a. (trwyth) Capable of being affected by a menstruum or lye.

Trwythaw, v. a. (trwyth) To make a solvent or menstruum; to steep in lye; to wash in hot soda.

Trwythawl, a. (trwyth) Belonging to a solvent or menstruum; steeped in lye.

Trwythedig, a. (trwyth) Being steeped in lye.

Trwythil, s. m. (trwyth) A menstruum; lye.

Trwythiad, s. m. (trwyth) A forming a solvent or menstruum; a steeping in lye.

Trwythwr, s. m.—pl. trwythwyr (trwyth—gwr) One who steeps in lye.

Try, s. m. (ty—rhy) Aptness to go beyond, to turn, to go to the other side, or to go through.

prep. Through. adv. Through.—It is used as a prefix in composition.

Drawn both dry, both dried.

Wandering, he went through, he went from home.

Iwan Rheolwr.

Tryad, s. m. (try) A passing through; pervasion.

Tryal, s. m.—pl. t. au (try—al) A homestead.

Tryarlais, a. (try—arlais) Of a stunning voice.

Dyn tryarlais, a person with a stunning voice.

Tryaw, v. a. (try) To render thorough.

Tryawch, s. f. (try—awch) A pervading energy to attract; magnetism.

Tryawchlad, s. m. (tryawch) A magnetizing.

Tryawcha, v. a. (tryawch) To magnetize.

Tryb, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ty—rhyb) The state of being connected or blended.

Tryboddad, s. m. (try—boddad) A dabbling thoroughly; a wallowing completely.

Tryboddau, v. a. (try—boddau) To dab thoroughly.

Trybawl, a. (tryb) Tending to blend or to mix.

Trybed, s. f.—pl. t. an (try—ped) A brandiron.

Trybedd, s. f.—pl. t. an (try—pedd) A stay, or support; a trivet, or brandiron. Trybedd yr gogwydd, the collar-bone.

Trybeddawg, a. (trybedd) Of thorough footing.

Trybeddawl, a. (trybedd) Thoroughly supporting.

Trybeddiad, s. m. (trybedd) A making a stay.

Trybeddu, v. a. (trybedd) To make a stay.

Trybeddith rhodri ring on duced.

Let the hand make a firm stay against their coming. Talleir.

Trybelid, a. (try—pellid) That is thoroughly penetrating; perspicuous, luminous.

Trybelid wylio a wylwyl araf.

The quickly knowing one more guard upon me. Cynddelw.

*Norwya a wehla, mor drybelid,
Minnu goll, o bwl a bwl gylwla.*

A dunnet I beheld, so elegant, transcendently wise, who from a throne would be far heard of. Ior. Pythom.

*Cywod, di was Araf oallu, ardd few-jawr;
Gwawd o gywrythau farn drybelid.*

*Arise, thou youth of the line of Araf, meet on the grand scene;
From the greatly wise we expect a perspicuous sentence. Philip Brydydd.*

Trybelidiad, s. m. (trybelid) A penetrating thoroughly; a making perspicuous.

Lia Macgwa bu ywya y deallu, Aerwyrd ced, trybelidiad gwaelian.

The hosts of Macgwa it was fortunate that they came, the warriors of liberality, the illumination of the gory pain. Ym. Talleir a Morddin.

Trybelidiaw, v. a. (trybelid) To penetrate thoroughly; to become perspicuous.

Trybelidrydd, s. m. (trybelid) Perspicuousness.

Trybelyd, a. (try—pelyd) Thoroughly radiant.

Trybelydr, s. m. (trybelyd) A thorough radiance.

Trybelydrawg, a. (trybelydr) Thoroughly radiant.

Trybelydriad, s. m. (trybelydr) A radiating through.

Trybelydru, v. a. (trybelydr) To radiate through.

Trybest, s. m. (tryb) Bustle, or commotion.

Trybestawd, s. m. (trybest) A bustling state.

*Abrwylch Ffanddwyn, few drybestawd,
A ddoelyt yn ngwylion!—*

Then replied Ffanddwyn, of mighty bustle, would they give in as heings! Talleir.

Trybestiad, s. m. (trybest) A bustling.

Trybestu, v. a. (trybest) To bustle, to bluster.

Trybestyd, s. m. (trybest) Bustle; officiousness.

Tryblith, s. m. (try—plith) A chaos.

Tryboeth, a. (poeth) Being thoroughly hot.

Tryboethi, v. a. (tryboeth) To heat thoroughly.

Tryboethiad, s. m. (tryboeth) A thoroughly heating.

Trybela, s. m. (trybawl) A mixture; a wallowing place, a mire where swine wallow.

Tryboli, v. a. (trybawl) To huddle; to wallow.

Trybelliad, s. m. (trybawl) A huddling; a wallowing

Trybwl, a. (try—pwl) Thoroughly dull.

Trybyyll, s. m. (pyyll) Thorough reason. a.

Thoroughly rational; of a penetrating mind.

Trybyyllaw, v. a. (trybyyll) To endure with a penetrating mind; to exert a penetrating mind.

Trybyyllawg, a. (trybyyll) Of a penetrating mind.

Trybyylliad, s. m. (trybyyll) An endowing with a penetrating mind; penetration of mind.

Trybyyllus, a. (trybyyll) Of a penetrating mind.

Trybyllawg, a. (trybwl) Being pervaded or loaded with what is thick and heavy. Hin drybyllawg, thick gloomy weather, without rain.

Trybyliad, s. m. (trybwl) A pervasion of dullness.

Trybylu, v. a. (trybwl) To pervade with dullness.

Tryciad, s. m. (trwc) A dragging heavily; a falling, a flugging.

Tryclaw, v. a. (trwc) To cease to fall; to flag.

Drail hir, pan dryciwl orill—Mawt o ym.

The towering leader, when others should fall, grant his energy. T. Aled.

Tryclaw arddir yr Gwreidd.

To come to fall the region of the land of Ceryn. Hywel Reinald.

Tryciawl, a. (trwc) Flugging, dragging.

Tryciedig, a. (tryciad) Being made to flag.

Trych, s. m. (ty—rhych) An opening; a scope.

Tryched, s. m. (trwch) A cutting off, excision.

Trychadwy, a. (trychad) Capable of being cut.

Trychawl, a. (trwch) Cutting, mangling, lopping.

Trychddawn, a. (trwch—dawn) Endued with a cutting quality.

Trycheb, s. f.—pl. t. au (trwch) The figure called a trwch, whereby a word is divided by the interposition of another.

Trychedig, a. (trwch) Being cut or bisected.

Trychedd, s. m. (trwch) The state of being lopped.

Trychfa, s. f.—pl. trychfeydd (trwch) A cut or chopping place.

Trychgyf, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trwch—cyf) A chopping block.

Trychiad, s. m.—pl. trychiad (trwch) A cutter, a logger; that makes an incision or excision.

*A' llw cyfryw cyfrywais a thryn,
A trychiad gwerin Caerdyddia fain.*

And his leader met insurrection and insult, and the mangling of the people of Caerdyddia butt of stone.

Rin. ab Gwgwan, t. L. ab Iorwerth.

Trychiedig, a. (trwch) Being cut off; truncated.

Trychiedigath, s. m. (trychiedig) An incision.

Trychiedigawl, a. (trychiedig) Incisive, incisory.

Trychiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trychiad) A cutter, a logger.

Trychineb, s. m. (trwch) The state of being cut off; disaster, calamity; mischief.

Ar fyrdyr y daw amser cynhamaf iddi; set yw hwy amser af-fydd, trychineb, a ddoled.

Shortly there will come the time of harvest for her; that is to say, the time of misfortune, mischief, and vengeance. Ior. Owain.

Trychinebawl, a. (trychineb) Calamitous.

Trychinebiad, s. m. (trychineb) A causing a calamity or mischief; a becoming disastrous.

Trychinebu, v. a. (trychineb) To cause a calamity; to become calamitous.

Trychinebus, a. (trychineb) Disastrous, fell.

Trychion, s. pl. aggr. (trwch) Cuttings; shreds.

Trychionyn, s. m. dim. (trychion) A shred.

Trychlwm, s. m.—pl. t. au (trwch—lwm) A disastrous or sad step.

Trychani, s. m. (trwch) Disaster, calamity, mishap, misfortune.

Trychad, aïd hawdd ei ocbel.

Disaster, it is not easy to avoid it.

Adage.

—Aeth fy mwa!

Yu dri-chapp, anian drychad.

My bow is gone in three pieces, a woeful accident.

D. ab Gwilym.

Trycholedeb, s. m. (trychawl) A mangled state.

Trycholedd, s. m. (trychawl) A mangled state.

Trycholi, v. a. (trychawl) To render mangled; to become cut and mangled.

Trychu, v. a. (trwch) To cut, to cut into, to make an incision; to lop.

Trychys Eingl: trychion eu hadawai.

I loogrys hwygyt lletgyt aïd lla,

Can lla.

He mangled the Angles: mangled ones he would leave them. To the Ilogrians the devastation of wrath not the less, though he be slain.

Cynnddelw, m. Cadwallon.

Gwiliian sydd i ym hanwylid—ac of a drychodd winwryf ynddi.

To my well beloved there is a vineyard: and he cut a wine-press in it.

Isaiah 5. 2.

Trychwan, s. m. (trwch—gwan) A slit, a split.

Trychwanawg, a. (trychwan) Having slits. Llen-llian drychwanawg, a veil cloth full of slits.

Trychwann, s. m. (trychwan) To slit, to split.

Trychwil, a. (try—chwil) Thoroughly searching.

Trychwillaw, v. a. (trychwil) To search keenly.

Trychwn, s. m. (try—cwn) That bursts or rises through. a. Bursting through.

Trychwr, s. m.—pl. trychwyr (trwch—gwr) A cutter, a lopper.

Trychwydd, s. m. (trych—gwydd) A glance of the present; a glance or view of knowledge.

Cerddgar cyfarwar cyfarwydd yw Daw

Diweddwr eyn trychwydd;

A'm rhoddes, aïd rhodd gwaradwydd,

Trach Wynedd, haelonedd hiwryd.

The calm pleasure of the love of song is cognisable with God, he that determines before the glance of knowledge; he who gives, not the gift of disgrace, that Gwynedd, prosperous in liberality, should prevail.

Cynnddelw, m. G. Gwynedd.

Trychwyddaw, v. a. (trychwydd) To obtain visual knowledge.

Trychwyddawl, a. (trychwydd) Visibly present.

Trychwyddiad, s. (trychwydd) A visibly knowing

Trychwyl, s. f. (trw—chwil) A course through.

Trychwyliaw, v. (trychwil) To circulate through.

Trychwyliad, s. m. (trychwil) A circulating through.

Trychwys, s. m. (trw—chwys) A sweat through.

Trychwysawl, a. (trychwys) Transuding.

Trychwysiad, s. m. (trychwys) Transudation.

Trychwysu, v. a. (trychwys) To transude.

Trychwyth, s. m. (trw—chwyth) A blast through.

Trychwythawl, a. (trychwyth) Blowing through.

Trychwythiad, s. (trychwyth) A blowing through.

Trychwythu, v. a. (trychwyth) To blow through.

Trychydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trwch) A cutter, a lopper.

Trychyn, s. m. dim. (trwch) A small cut, a nip.

Tryd, s. m. (try) That tends through. a. Apt to penetrate, or to run through.

Anolek rhwng fy nwyllaw fyw, yw dryd a fu draw.

I aimed between my hands a yew bow, pervading was the shock.

D. ab Gwilym.

Trydan, s. m. (trw—tan) A pervading principle of expansion, a pervading fire; electric fluid.

Trydanawl, a. (trydan) Belonging to the electric fluid.

Trydaniad, s. m. (trydan) An electrifying.

Trydaniaeth, s. m. (trydan) Electricity.

Trydanu, v. a. (trydan) To electrify.

Trydar, s. f. (tryd—ar) A pervading noise; a chirp, a chatter; a din, a tumult.

Oedd ym radd ebyr o'r gwyr gear;

Oedd ran fawr trydar o'r dryder;

Oedd amllw thuan, iwa anar eu aïd

Rid oeddynt dilafer.

There ran dreadful streams of red from the silent sea; and were they the greatest part of the tumult; woe! that saw the waves, breaking in discordant course, they were not killing in utterance.

Ll. F. Rich.

Trydar, v. a. (tryd—ar) To make a pervading noise; to chirp, to chatter; to din.

Trydarawl, a. (trydar) Chirping; chattering.

Trydariad, s. m. (trydar) A chatting; a dining.

Trydaru, v. a. (trydar) To chirp, to chatter.

Trydarwr, s. m.—pl. trydarwyr (trydar—gwr) One who makes a chatter.

Trydariydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trydar) Chatterer.

Tryde, s. f. (tryd) A third. a. Third.

Trydedydd, s. m. (tryd—e—dydd) The third day; the third day of the week. Bardism.

Trydedd, s. f. (tryd—edd) A third. a. Third.

Trydeddwaith, s. f. (trydedd—gwaith) Third time

Trydewath, s. f. (tryde—gwaith) The third time.

Trydiad, s. m. (tryd) A pervasion. Trydd dyl- iad, the pervasion of destruction.

Trydolwyn, s. f. (tryd—olwyn) Course of a wheel

Am eurfro, am eurfro terwys,

Torf anwar trydar trydolwyn.

Round the golden region, round the golden granite fere, a ruthless host makes a tumult like the passing wheel.

Cynnddelw, v. v. t. Rh.

Trydon, s. f. (tryd) That is pervasive. Y dryn, the stinking goose-foot; also called trypaw.

Trydon, a. (try—ton) Thoroughly toned.

Trydon dy fia ar lanerch

Trydar yw, trawdar serch.

Full-toned thy strain on the glade, with sweet chirp, the voice of love.

D. ab Gwilym, i. f. f. Rich.

Trydwan, s. m. (tryd—gwan) Four days to come. ado. Four days hence.

Trydwl, s. m.—pl. trydyllau (trw—till) A hale through any thing, a perforation. a. Perforated

Trydy, s. m. (tryd) The third. a. Third.

Trydydyn, s. m. (trydy—dyn) A third person.

Trydydd, s. m. (tryd—ydd) A third, one out of three. a. Third.

Trydydd anabegor breais yw ei bentanle; y ddaid oedd yd efferiad teulu, ac ei ynad llys.

The third indispensable of a king is his petron of the house; the other two are his domestic chaplain, and his judge of the palace.

Welsh Law.

Pan weid Llyr nad oedd ganddo newtur wrth ei awgwr, ac ei fod ar ei drydydd, cywilyddaw a wael.

When Llyr perceived that he had not money in his retinue, he that he was on his third, he became ashamed.

Gr. ab Idris.

Trydyddiad, s. m. (trydydd) A forming a third.

Trydyddu, v. a. (trydydd) To tertiate.

Trydygwr, s. m. (trydy—gwr) A third person.

Trydylledig, a. (trydwl) Perforated, bored.

Trydylliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trydwl) Perforation.

Trydyllu, v. a. (trydwl) To perforate.

Trydyllwr, s. m.—pl. trydyllwyr (trydwl—gwr) One who perforates.

Trydyllydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trydwl) Perforator.

Trydd, s. m. (try) That is thoroughly.

Trydded, s. f.—pl. t. au (tryd) Passage through.

Tryddedawg, a. (trydded) Having a free passage.

Tryddedawl, a. (trydded) Passing through.

Tryddediad, s. m. (trydded) A passing through.

Tryddedu, v. a. (trydded) To pass through.

Tryddedwr, s. m.—pl. tryddedwyr (trydded—gwr) A passenger.

Tryddedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trydded) A passer through, a passenger.

Tryddyd, s. m. (trydd) A passage through.

Tryf, s. m. (try) That is thorough.

Tryfal, s. m.—pl. t. an (tryf—al) What has three corners; a triangle. Tryfal cyfochrawg, equilateral-triangle; tryfal daugyfochr, isosceles-triangle; tryfal anghyfochrawg, a scalenous-triangle; tryfal lleddf, oblique-angular triangle.

Tryfalledd, s. m. (tryfal) The state of having three points or angles; the bottom of a fork, or where it divides.

Tryfaliad, s. m. (tryfal) A forming a triangle.

Tryfala, v. a. (tryfal) To form a triangle.

Tryfall, a. (trw—mall) Thoroughly evil.

Nid mall tryfall ond diog.

There is no evil thoroughly evil but idleness.

Adage.

Tryfalledd, s. m. (tryfall) A state thoroughly evil.

Tryfalliad, s. m. (tryfall) A rendering thoroughly evil; a becoming thoroughly evil.

Tryfallu, v. a. (tryfall) To render thoroughly evil; to become evil thoroughly.

Tryfan, s. m. (try—man) That is spotted through. Dail y tryfan, alan mawr, the petasites, or butter-burr.

Tryfar, s. m. (trw—bar) Thorough wrath. a. Malignant.

Tryfarus, a. (tryfar) Thoroughly malignant.

Tryfawl, a. (tryf) Being thorough or complete.

Tryfer, s. f.—pl. t. i (tryf) A forked spear, or harpoon.

A tryferer bwydr a thrafol.

And the barbed shaft of battle and tumult.

Iolo Goch.

Tryferawg, a. (tryfer) Having a bearded spear.

Tryferiad, s. m. (tryfer) A harpooning.

Tryferu, v. a. (tryfer) To spear; to harpoon.

'Tryferai alon,' he transfix the foes.

Tryferw, s. m. (trw—berw) A thorough boil. a. Thoroughly boiling.

Tryferwad, s. m. (tryferw) A boiling through.

Tryferwl, v. a. (tryferw) To boil through.

Tryferwr, s. m.—pl. tryferwyr (tryfer—gwr) A spearer; a harpooner.

Tryfesur, s. m.—pl. t. an (trw—mesur) A diameter

Tryfesuraw, v. a. (tryfesur) To form a diameter.

Tryfesurawl, a. (tryfesur) Diametrical.

Tryfesuriad, s. m. (tryfesur) A measuring a diameter.

Tryfol, s. m. (try—bol) That is all belly.

Tryfoliad, s. m. (tryfol) A gormandizing.

Tryfoliaw, v. a. (tryfol) To gormandize.

Tryfoliawg, a. (tryfol) Gormandizing.

Tryfoliwr, s. m.—pl. tryfoliwr (tryfol—gwr) A gormandizer, a greedy-gut.

Tryfrad, s. m. (trw—brad) Thorough treachery.

Tryfrith, a. (trw—brith) Streaked, diversified, or spotted all through; thoroughly mixed; swarming, or teeming. Mae y mor yn dryfrith o bysgod, the sea is swarming with fish.

Tryfrithaw, v. a. (tryfrith) To variegate thoroughly; to mix all through; to be swarming.

Tryfrithiad, s. m. (tryfrith) A variegating thoroughly; a mixing thoroughly; a swarming.

Tryfrwyd, s. m. (trw—brwyd) The state of darting through and through. a. Interweaving.

Tryfrwydaw, v. a. (tryfrwyd) To run through backwards and forwards.

Yn tryfrwyd peleidr.

Javelins darting through backwards and forwards.

Aneurin.

VOL. II.

Tryfrwydawl, a. (tryfrwyd) Interweaving.

Tryfrwydiad, s. m. (tryfrwyd) An interweaving.

Tryfwg, s. m. (try—mwg) Thorough smoke.

Tryfygawl, a. (tryfwg) Tending to smoke through.

Tryfygiad, s. m. (tryfwg) A thorough fumigation.

Tryfygu, v. a. (tryfwg) To fumigate through.

Tryfyndu, v. a. (trw—mynd) To go through.

Tryfyndiad, s. m. (tryfynd) A going through, a passing through; pervasion.

Tryfiw, a. (trw—byw) Thoroughly alive.

Tryfywiad, s. m. (tryfiw) A thoroughly animating.

Tryfywiad, v. a. (tryfiw) To animate thoroughly.

Tryfywiadg, a. (tryfiw) Thoroughly animated.

Tryffaeth, a. (trw—ffaeth) Thoroughly mellow.

Tryffaethawl, a. (tryffaeth) Tending to make thoroughly mellow.

Tryffaethder, s. (tryffaeth) Thorough mellowness.

Tryffaethiad, s. m. (tryffaeth) A thoroughly mellowing.

Tryffaethu, v. a. (tryffaeth) To mellow thoroughly

Tryffin, s. f. (trw—ffin) A thorough boundary.

Tryffiniad, s. m. (tryffin) A making a boundary through.

Tryffiniaw, v. a. (tryffin) To make a boundary through.

Tryffiniawl, a. (tryffin) Thoroughly bounding.

Tryffraw, a. (trw—ffraw) Thoroughly agitated.

Tryffwn, s. m. (try—ffwn) Thorough prosperity.

Am Drefan dryffwn rhag eirlydd.

About Treva complete prosperity before the intercomer.

Meisyr.

Tryffwrch, s. m.—pl. tryffyrch (trw—ffwrch) The commencement of a forking, or ramification.

Tryffwrch pren, the part of a tree where it becomes forked.

Trylais, s. m.—pl. tryleisiau (trw—llais) A thorough voice. a. Of thorough voice.

Cyfarhala, yn drylais, draw.

Well lldd'n gan i'r llydaw.

I greeted, distinctly of voice, yonder, to her a better fare in song for her prospering.

D. ab Gwilym, i'r gog.

Trylanw, s. m. (trw—llanw) A thorough fulness.

Trylaw, s. f. (try—llaw) A complete hand. a. Thoroughly handy; dexterous.

Amdryl drylaw drylen.

Encompassed with wrath, dexterous, of thorough training.

Aneurin.

Trylawn, a. (trw—llawn) Thoroughly full.

Trylawnder, s. m. (trylawn) Thorough fulness.

Trylawni, v. a. (trylawn) To fill thoroughly.

Trylawniad, s. m. (trylawn) A filling thoroughly.

Trylef, s. m. (trw—llef) A thorough utterance. a. Of thorough utterance, of complete voice.

Llew trylew, trylef ei geinlaid.

The lion altogether brave, completely of voice his minstrels.

Ll. P. Moeh, i R. ab Owain.

Trylefawl, a. (trylef) Of complete utterance.

Trylefiad, s. m. (trylef) A rendering of complete utterance.

Trylefu, v. a. (trylef) To render of complete utterance; to render articulate.

Tryleisiad, s. m. (trylais) A rendering of complete voice.

Tryleisiaw, v. a. (trylais) To articulate clearly.

Tryleisiawl, a. (trylais) Of clear articulation.

Trylen, s. f.—pl. t. i (trw—llen) Thorough learning. a. Thoroughly learned.

Trylenwad, s. m. (trylanw) A thoroughly filling.

Trylenwawl, a. (trylanw) Tending to fill thoroughly

Trylenwi, v. a. (trylanw) To fill thoroughly.
Tryles, s. m. (trw—lles) A thorough benefit.
Trylesawl, a. (tryles) Thoroughly beneficial.
Trylesiad, s. m. (tryles) A thoroughly benefiting.
Tryless, v. a. (tryles) To benefit thoroughly.
Trylew, a. (trw—glew) Thoroughly collected; full of capability; very brave.

*El drylew yn rhw,
 A'i dorf drylwyn wiw,
 A'i dailan dryllw droch.*

He abundant in resources on the sea, with his excellent habit of dexterous movement, and his shield broken and pervaded with stains.
Cynuddwr.

Trylewdwr, s. m. (trylew) The state of thorough resource or ability; thorough bravery.
Trylewdid, s. m. (trylew) Thorough resource of mind; thorough bravery.
Trylewych, s. m. (trw—llewych) Translucency.
Trylewychawl, a. (trylewych) Translucent.
Trylewychiad, s. (trylewych) A lighting through.
Trylewychu, v. u. (trylewych) To shine through.
Trylhd, s. m. (trw—lhd) Thorough rage.
Trylidiad, s. m. (trylid) A thoroughly angering.
Trylidiaw, v. a. (trylhd) To enrage thoroughly; to become thoroughly angry.
Trylidiawg, a. (trylhd) Thoroughly wrathful.
Trylhf, s. m. (try—llhf) A thorough flow.
Trylhfaw, v. a. (trylhf) To flow through.
Trylhfawl, a. (trylhf) Flowing through.
Trylhiad, s. m. (trylhf) A flowing through.
Trylith, s. m. (trw—llith) A thorough training.
Trylithawr, s. m.—pl. trylithorion (trylith) That is thoroughly trained.
Trylithiad, s. m. (trylith) A thoroughly training.
Trylithiaw, v. a. (trylith) To train thoroughly.
Trylithiawl, a. (trylith) Tending to train thoroughly; of a thoroughly alluring tendency.
Trylithr, a. (trw—llithr) Thoroughly gliding.
Trylithraw, v. a. (trylithr) To glide through.
Trylithrawl, a. (trylithr) Apt to glide through.
Trylithriad, s. m. (trylithr) A gliding through.
Tryliw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (trw—lliw) A pervading colour. a. Being stained through, of one pervading hue; deeply coloured. 'Tarian dryllw goch,' a shield thoroughly stained with red.
Tryliwiad, s. m. (tryliw) A colouring through.
Tryliwiad, v. a. (tryliw) To pervade with colour, to stain through; to make of a deep dye, to engrain.
Tryliwiadg, a. (tryliw) Of a thorough colour.
Tryliwiedig, a. (tryliw) Thoroughly coloured.
Tryloes, s. f.—pl. t. au (trw—gloes) A pang that penetrates through.
Tryloes, v. a. (tryloes) To strike a pang through.
Tryloesiad, s. m. (tryloes) A striking a pang through.
Tryloew, a. (trw—gloew) Diaphanous, transparent.
Tryloewad, s. m. (tryloew) A rendering transparent.
Tryloewdeb, s. m. (tryloew) Transparency.
Tryloewder, s. m. (tryloew) Transparency.
Tryloewdra, s. m. (tryloew) Transparency.
Tryloewl, v. a. (tryloew) To render transparent.
Trylon, a. (trw—llon) Being thoroughly glad.
Trylonder, s. m. (trylon) Thorough gladness.
Tryloni, v. a. (trylon) To render thoroughly glad; to become pleased thoroughly.
Tryloniad, v. m. (trylon) A gladdening thoroughly.
Tryloeg, s. m. (lloeg) Thorough ignition. a. Thoroughly burnt.
Tryloegi, v. a. (tryloeg) To burn thoroughly.
Tryloegiad, s. m. (tryloeg) A burning thoroughly.
Trylwg, s. m.—pl. trylwgion (trw—llwg) Perspective.

Trylwyn, a. (trw—llwyn) Very quick, ready, or dexterous; ingenious; thoroughly complete.
Gwr trylwyn, a man of quick capacity; and drylwyn, an illustrious pedigree.

Trylwyn a thylwyn a thylwyn ffriden.

A small against the thoroughly brave with a quickly shifting shield.
Cydaidd.

*Dawn ymyn yn lawr, yn dda eithriad
 A thylwyn beryddiaid.*

A talent I justly possess, being a person of capacity with quick perceptions.
Elin, ab Gwion.

Trylwynaw, v. a. (thylwyn) To render thoroughly quick or expert; to become thoroughly quick.
Trylwyndeb, s. m. (trylwyn) Thorough dexterity.
Trylwynder, a. m. (trylwyn) Thorough dexterity.
Trylwyndra, s. m. (trylwyn) Thorough quickness.
Trylwyniad, s. (trylwyn) A rendering thoroughly quick; a becoming thoroughly quick or expert.
Trylwytr, a. (trw—llwytr) Thoroughly complete.
Trylwyraw, v. a. (trylwytr) To render thoroughly complete; to become thoroughly complete.
Trylwyrddeb, a. m. (trylwytr) Thorough completeness.
Trylwyrdwr, s. m. (trylwytr) Thorough completeness, a state quite entire.
Trylwyrdra, s. m. (trylwytr) Thorough completeness, or thorough entirety.
Trylwyriad, s. m. (trylwytr) A thoroughly completing or making entire.
Trylwys, a. (trw—glwys) Thoroughly hallowed.
Trylwyder, s. m. (trylwys) Thorough holiness.
Trylwsaw, v. a. (trylwys) To render thoroughly pure, holy, or delectable; to become thoroughly holy.
Trylwsiad, s. m. (trylwys) A hallowing thoroughly.
Frylwgawl, u. (trylwg) Relating to perfect vision; perspective.
Trylgiad, s. m. (trylwg) A perspective viewing; a forming a perspective.
Trylgh, v. a. (trylwg) To view perspective.
Tryllym, a. (trw—llym) Thoroughly keen.
Tryllymdr, s. m. (tryllym) Thorough keenness.
Tryllymdra, s. m. (tryllym) Thorough keenness.
Tryllymiad, s. m. (tryllym) A rendering thoroughly keen, sharp, or severe.
Tryllynu, v. u. (tryllym) To sharpen thoroughly.
Trylyn, u. (try—glyn) Thoroughly adherent.
Trylyniad, s. m. (trylyn) A thoroughly adhering.
Trylynu, v. u. (trylyn) To adhere thoroughly.
Trym, s. m. (ty—rhyrn) That is compact. a. Compact; energetic; trim.
*Nid wyf i'ch oedi—
 fon trym, ond ring offa du i'ro
 Gwawdd i'w all gwlod.*
I am not for putting you off, energetic I am, but by the way of the one flagging I am of another making an attempt. D. Jones.
*Mae'n ym ym ym gartref,
 Llwyd trym, a dym lle tris.*
He is in heaven redding, the energetic he, and there he is to remain.
Yda. W. Jones.
Trymdd, s. m. (trymdd) A rendering heavy or weighty; a becoming heavy; a saddening.
Trymddawl, a. (trymdd) Of a tendency to make heavy; saddening.
Trymddid, a. (trymdd) Somewhat heavy or sad.
Trymddu, v. u. (trymdd) To make heavy, to sadden; to become heavy; to become sad or dejected.
Trymdder, s. m. (trymdd) Heaviness, weightiness, depression, sadness; dejectedness, sorrow.
Trymddra, s. m. (trymdd) Heaviness; sadness.
Trymddra, s. m. (trymdd) Heavy oppression.
Trymddde, a. (trymdd) Pervaded with heaviness; sad; drooping.

Trymysgawl, a. (trymysg) Tending to confuse.
Trymysgiad, s. m. (trymysg) A confusion.
Trymysgu, v. a. (trymysg) To blend through and through; to confuse.

Nid hawdd trymysgu ar gall.

It is not easy to bring confusion on the cunning. Allge.

Tryn, s. m.—pl. t. i (ty—rhyŷ) Ardency, fierceness. a. Ardent, fierce, sharp, stern. Dyn a gollwg tryn iawn, a person with a very stern look. Sil.

Trynaidd, a. (tryn) Of an ardent tendency.

Trynawf, s. m. (trw—nawf) A swim through.

Trynawl, a. (tryn) Of an ardent quality; of a fierce or stern quality.

Trynaww, s. m. (trw—naww) A temper or quality that pervades.

Trynawsedd, s. m. (trynaww) A pervading temperament or nature.

Trynawsi, s. a. (trynaww) To pervade with a quality or disposition.

Trynawsiad, s. m. (trynaww) A pervading with a quality, disposition, or nature.

Trynodd, s. m. (tryn) Ardency; fierceness.

Trynerth, s. m. (trw—nerth) Thorough strength.

Trynerthawl, a. (trynerth) Thoroughly strong.

Trynerthedd, s. m. (trynerth) Thorough strength.

Trynerthiad, s. m. (trynerth) A thoroughly strengthening.

Trynerthu, v. a. (trynerth) To strengthen thoroughly.

Trynodd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trw—nodd) A pervading juice, or fluid.

Trynoddawl, a. (trynodd) Tending to ooze through.

Trynoddli, v. a. (trynodd) To ooze through.

Trynoddliad, s. m. (trynodd) An oozing through.

Trynoddlyd, a. (trynodd) Thoroughly oozing.

Trynoddaw, s. m. (trynawf) A swimming through.

Trynoddaw, v. a. (trynawf) To swim through.

Trynoddawl, a. (trynawf) Tending to swim through.

Trynwyd, s. m.—pl. t. an (trw—nwyd) A pervading emotion, energy, or passion.

Trynwydaw, v. a. (trynwyd) To pervade with an emotion or passion.

Trynwydawg, a. (trynwyd) Having a pervading emotion or passion.

Trynwydawl, a. (trynwyd) Being thoroughly impassioned.

Trynwydiad, s. m. (trynwyd) A pervading with an emotion or passion.

Trynwyf, s. m.—pl. t. an (trw—nwyf) Thorough liveliness, thorough vivacity.

Trynwyfaw, v. a. (trynwyf) To render thoroughly brisk or lively; to become full of gaiety.

Trynwyfawl, a. (trynwyf) Thoroughly lively.

Trynwyfiad, s. m. (trynwyf) A rendering full of vivacity; a becoming thoroughly animated or enlivened.

Trynwyfus, a. (trynwyf) Full of vivacity.

Trynwyfusaw, v. a. (trynwyfus) To render full of vivacity; to become thoroughly animated.

Trynwyfusrwydd, s. m. (trynwyfus) A state of thorough liveliness.

Tryred, s. f. (trw—rhed) A run through.

Tryredawl, a. (tryred) Being running through.

Tryreddeg, v. a. (tryred) To run through.

Tryrediad, s. m. (tryred) A running through.

Tryrith, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trw—rith) A thorough appearance.

Tryrithiad, s. m. (tryrith) An appearing through.

ne-

ee

lead.

pression of our sadness, about a tree,

D. ab. Gwilym.

(y) A rendering de-
 mising dejected.

(y) Oppressed in mind.

(trymfryd) Pensive.

(cur) A heavy sleep.

(yngur) To beat heavily.

(trymgur) A heating heavily.

(trwm—cwng) A heavy sleep.

(—pl. t. ion (trwm—cwyn) A aint.

(v. (trymgwyn) To complain sadly.

ad, s. m. (trymgwyn) A complaining giad, s. m. (trymgwag) A sleeping heavily.

sgu, v. a. (trymgwag) To sleep heavily.

un, s. f. (trwm—hun) A heavy sleep.

ghunaw, v. a. (trymhun) To sleep heavily.

ghunaw, a. (trymhun) Heavily sleeping.

rymhunlad, s. m. (trymhun) A sleeping heavily.

Trymhwdd, s. m. (trwm—hwdd) A heavy push.

Trymhwddawl, a. (trymhwdd) Heavily pushing.

Trymhwddiad, s. (trymhwdd) A pushing heavily.

Trymhwddig, a. (trymhwdd) Lumpish, blockish.

Trymhwddigaw, v. a. (trymhwddig) To render a blockhead; to become dull and heavy.

Trymhwddigrwydd, s. m. (trymhwddig) Lumpishness, blockishness.

Trymjad, s. m. (trym) A rendering energetic.

Trymjad, v. a. (trym) To render energetic; to become energetic; to become trim.

Trymjadaw, a. (trym) Having compactness; having energy; having trimness.

Trymjadawl, a. (trym) Of a compact tendency.

Trymjadwyth, s. m.—pl. t. i (trwm—llwyth) A heavy load.

Trymjadwythaw, v. a. (trymjadwyth) To load heavily.

Trymjadwythaw, a. (trymjadwyth) Heavily laden.

Trymly, s. m. (trwm—lly) A heavy look.

Trymlyad, s. m. (trymly) A rendering sluggish.

Trymlyaw, v. a. (trymly) To render sluggish.

Trymlyawg, a. (trymly) Heavily drooping; drow-sy, flagging. Hin drymlyawg, heavily oppres-sing weather.

Trymlyogder, s. m. (trymlyawg) Drowsiness.

Trymlyogi, v. a. (trymlyawg) To render drowsy.

Trymlyogrwydd, s. (trymlyawg) Drowsiness.

Trymog, s. f. (trym) One that is compact or trim.

Rhododendron ly mwyd ar galaw;

Show each drymog lorogog i'm llaw.

I met my mind on obtaining one; give a trim one with large limbs into my hand. Ich. ab. llaw, i' cerch ddrwg.

Trymawrth, s. m. (trwm—awrth) Heavily sluggish.

Trymsyrthi, s. m. (trymawrth) Drowsiness.

Trymysg, s. m. (try—mysg) Confusion.

Tryrithiaw, v. a. (tryrith) To appear through.
Tryrithiawl, a. (tryrith) Appearing through.
Tryryw, s. m.—pl. t. ian (try—rhyw) A perfect kind. a. Thorough-bred.
Tryrywiad, s. m. (tryryw) A rendering of a perfect kind; a becoming of perfect kind.
Tryrywiaw, v. a. (tryryw) To render of perfect kind; to become of a perfect kind.
Tryrywiawg, a. (tryryw) Being of perfect kind.
Tryrywiawl, a. (tryryw) Of a perfect kind.
Trysain, s. f.—pl. tryseiniau (trw—sain) A thorough sound. a. Of complete sound.
Trysawdd, s. f.—pl. trysoddion (trw—sawdd) A cube root.
Trysawr, s. m.—pl. trysoran (trws) A treasure.
Trysainiad, s. m. (trysain) A thoroughly sounding
Tryseinlaw, v. a. (trysain) To sound perfectly.
Tryseinawl, a. (trysain) Of a perfect sound.
Trysglaidd, a. (trwagl) Somewhat awkward.
Trysgledd, s. m. (trwagl) Awkwardness.
Trysgleidd-dra, s. m. (trysglaidd) Awkwardness.
Trysgleiddiad, s. m. (trysglaidd) A rendering clumsy or awkward; a becoming awkward.
Trysgleiddiaw, v. a. (trysglaidd) To render clumsy; to become clumsy or awkward.
Trysgleiddrwydd, s. m. (trysglaidd) Awkwardness.
Trysrawl, a. (trysawr) Belonging to treasure.
Trysorfa, s. f.—pl. trysorfeydd (trysawr) A treasury.
Trysori, v. a. (trysawr) To treasure, to store up.
Trysoriad, s. m. (trysawr) A treasuring.
Trysorwr, s. m.—pl. trysorwyr (trysawr—gwr) A treasurer.

Rhyn y Fel Ynys Saesawr—Trysorwr pob ceddawr.

Rhyn the sovereign of the Honey Island, the treasurer of every minstrel.
D. Nanmor.

Trysorydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (trysawr) A treasurer
Trystan, s. c. (trwst) A noisy one, a blusterer.
Trystfawr, a. (trwst) Of great tumult or din.
Trystfodd, s. m. (trystfawr) A blusteringness.
Trystiad, s. m. (trwst) A blustering, a clattering.
Trystian, v. a. (trwst) To keep a clattering.
Trystlaw, v. a. (trwst) To make a noise; to rattle; to rustle; to bluster, to bustle.

*Meitho a wna casawd—mai blodau—
 Nua ddall y gwylld, pan ddal gwylt
 I drystlaw'n arw drostynt.*

The body shall fall, like flowers, or the leaves of the wood, when wind shall come to bluster harshly over them.
D. Jones o Lanfair.

Trystlawg, a. (trwst) Full of noise; clattering; blustering.
Trystlawl, a. (trwst) Blustering, clattering.
Trystiwr, s. m.—pl. trystiwywr (trwst—gwr) A blusterer, a clatterer.
Tryswn, s. m. (try—swn) A thorough noise. a. Thoroughly noisy.
Trysyniad, s. (tryswn) A making a noise through Trysynlaw, v. a. (tryswn) To noise through.
Trysynawl, a. (tryswn) Thoroughly noisy.
Trythain, a. (trwrth) Expanding, swelling out.
Trythawl, a. (trwrth) Tending to expand out:
Trythfa, s. f. (trwrth) A stretching place.
Trythgwd, s. m.—pl. trythygdau (trwrth—cwd) A bag or satchel that is made to draw together.

Sef yw trythgwd: y llawryddau ag a fo yddiyn, oithr aar neq ariant, o bydd lle cddwir tyysau.

A distending bag is thus considered: the hand-bags to which there may be every thing, except gold and silver, if they be where jewels are kept.
Welsh Laws.

Trythiad, s. m. (trwrth) An expanding out.
Trython, s. m. (try—ton) The sharp dock.

Trythu, v. a. (trwrth) To expand or swell out.
Trythwch, s. m. (trwrth) The state of being expanded or filled out.
Trythwr, s. m.—pl. trythywyr (trwrth—gwr) One who expands himself out.
Trythyll, a. (trwrth) Voluptuous; addicted to pleasure; wanton; indulgent.

Drwg ddolchwain trythyll.

Evil is the destiny of one addicted to pleasure. Adap.

Trythyll maeu yn llaw eoged.

Wanton is a stone in an expert hand. Adap.

Nid oes odo—

A! thruth oil ei drythyllbach.

There is not a bird with all her dotage more wiser.

D. ab Gwilym, i Jorjick.

Trythyllaidd, a. (trythyll) Rather voluptuous.
Trythylliad, s. m. (trythyll) A living voluptuousness; a taking enjoyment, a taking pleasure.
Trythyllu, v. a. (trythyll) To live voluptuously; to take enjoyment; to follow pleasure.
Trythyllwch, s. m. (trythyll) A state of ease or enjoyment; voluptuousness; pleasure.

Megys y ceiff y rhai da drythyllwch o ddolchwain cryn; hwy ceiff y llaihi chwerwedd o ddolchwain drem.

In the manner that the good ones shall obtain the enjoyment of extreme free will; so the others shall obtain the bitterness of extreme misery.
Shedden.

Trythyllwg, s. m. (trythyll) A state of ease, voluptuousness, or enjoyment; pleasure.

Trythyllwg drwg ei ddolchwain.

Pleasure is of evil consequence. Adap.

Trythyllwg a ddwy i ddys

Diolodd o'i hwr ddys.

Pleasure will bring to a person vengeance from long trouble.
Byrd (Llan).

Nid oedd o'r trynauodd a llof i drythyllu o gyneth, i drythyllwg, ac amlder pob da yddi, ag Ynys Frydion.

There was not of the kingdoms that could vie in power, and enjoyment, and the abundance of every blessing in it, as the Isle of Britain.
Gr. o Arthur.

Trythyllwr, s. m.—pl. trythyllwyr (trythyl-gwr) A voluptuary, a man who takes his enjoyment.

Tryw, s. m. (try) That pervades, that is constant; or constant; constancy; a trace, what gives perception; knowledge, skill; truth. a. Universal; constant; true. Y tryn, the agrimony.

Tryw i hwch dryfa.

It is natural for a sow to burrow. Adap.

Trywal, s. m. (try—gwal) That is spread through Trywan, s. f. (trw—gwan) An opening or gap through; a thrust through; a stab. a. Being run through.

*Erchwynawg eger, ysgwyd trywan,
 Yr yfale i'w lly Lleslaw gwynu
 Earmyddodwg lly, cryba curian.*

Thus the opposer of the foe, with perforated shield, I saw quaffed in thy elegant coat of Lleslaw the golden-wreath received in golden cup.
Cyneddion, i f. o. Lleslaw.

Trywanawl, a. (trywan) Tending to open a passage through; transfixing, stabbing.
Trywanawr, s. pl. (trywan) Acts of stabbing.

*Gwawr trywanawr trin, Effe all-ffod,
 Gwngulst amodd gwngulst llyry.*

Thus down of the gashing of conflict, second in Effe is betene, thou didst array thyself in a covering of herbs.
Ll. Guch o Hwyrth.

Trywaniad, s. m. (trywan) An opening a passage through; a thrusting through; a stabbing.
Trywanoldeb, s. m. (trywanawl) A state of being a passage through; the state of being transfixed.

Trywannu, v. a. (trywan) To divide or open through; to pierce, thrust, or burst through; to transfix.

*Trille arth a Gymnre gynt;
Tryw Wynedd y trywysat.*

Three hosts went from Wales of yore; through Gwynedd they penetrated.

Dywan wan, trywan trywddi: Dywed an dawed Gert.

*Perambulate a course, pass through it: say that we visit Cert.
O. Cyfelliawg.*

Trywanwr, s. m.—pl. trywanwyr (trywan—gwr)
One who opens a passage through; a transfixer
Trywar, a. (trw—gwr) Thoroughly tame or mild
Trywedd, s. m. (tryw) A trace by scent.
Tryweddïad, s. m. (trywedd) A tracing by scent.
Tryweddau, v. a. (trywedd) To trace by scent.
Trywel, s. m. (trw—gwêl) A vision through. a. Perspicuous.

Gwelan yn gydaew a thrywel, mai hon yw y farn ac y ddoebarth gydaew ar gerdd.

*They will see clearly and perspicuously, that this is the just sentiment and legislation with respect to the system of verse.
Ed. Dafydd.*

Tryweled, v. a. (trywel) To see through.
Tryweledïad, s. m. (trywel) A seeing through.
Trywiad, s. m. (tryw) A pervading through.
Trywïaw, v. a. (tryw) To pervade, to run through; to become continual, or constant.
Trywydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (tryw) A trace, a scent; intimation. Trywydd ceinach, scent of a hare.
Trywyddawl, a. (trywydd) Having a trace.
Trywyddïad, s. m. (trywydd) A forming a trace; a following a scent.
Trywyddu, v. a. (trywydd) To trace, to follow a scent.

Trywyllt, a. (try—gwyllt) Thoroughly wild.
Trywyn, a. (try—gwyn) Thoroughly happy.
Trywynawl, a. (trywyn) Tending to pervade with bliss; of a conciliatory temper.
Trywyngar, a. (trywyn) Apt to diffuse happiness

Gurfas eogob Teflaw—gwr doeth haelionam ydoedd—ac a ddyled-fal yn drywyngar yn mhob ymyrraean.

*Gurfas the bishop of Teflo, he was a wise liberal man, and he was wont to arbitrate with a conciliatory effect in all disputes.
Caradoc's s. Llangrannell.*

Trywynïad, s. m. (trywyn) A conciliating.
Trywynïaw, v. a. (trywyn) To conciliate.
Trywynwr, s. m.—pl. trywynwyr (trywyn—gwr)
A reconciler, one who conciliates.
TU, s. m. r.—pl. t. oedd. That forms a side; a side, a region, a part. Tu a thraw, towards yonder; tu ag yma, towards here; Tu yma, this side; tu yma, that side; tu acw, yonder side; tu awnt, tu draw, the other side, beyond.

Tu ai fyao Daw ai hwydd.

The side that God wills will not prosper. Adage.

*Tenon fy ysgwyd ar sawy fy nba:
Ca byw hon, ar gullaf,
Ar rodydd Morias gwylaf.*

This my shield on the left of my side: though I be old, if I am able, on the course of Morias I will watch. Llymarch Hen.

Tua, adv. (tu—â) Towards, in a direction to.
It is used when a consonant follows.

*I-gan o-gan, mai gwr boneddig yn rhodïaw y ffordd tua nef.
Zig-zag like a gentleman perambulating the road towards heaven.* Adage.

Tuag, adv. (tu—ag) Towards. It is used instead of tua when a vowel follows.

Gwedi treiglaw pob tref, Teg edrych tuag aird.

After rumbling every town, it is pleasant to look towards home. Adage.

Tuagat, prep. (tuag—at) Towards. Tuagataf, towards me; tuagat, towards thee; tuagato, towards him or it; tuagati, towards her; tuagatom, towards us; tuagatoch, towards you; tuagatynt, towards them.

Tuallan, s. m. (tu—allan) An outside. a. Outside. prep. On the outside. adv. Outward.

Tuaw, v. a. (tu) To form a side; to side.

Tuawl, a. (tu) Relating to a side or party.

Tuch, s. m. (ty—uch) A grunt, a grumble.

Tuchan, s. m. (tuch) A sighing; a groaning.

Tuchanawl, a. (tuchan) Grunting, grumbling.

Tuchanïad, s. m. (tuchan) A groaning.

Tuchanllyd, a. (tuchan) Apt to grumble.

Tuchanu, v. a. (tuchan) To grunt, to groan.

Ni thuchnu ond o'ch schaw.

I would not grumble but on thy account. D. ab Gwilym.

Tuchanus, a. (tuchan) Apt to grunt; grumbling.

Tuchanwr, s. m.—pl. tuchanwyr (tuchan—gwr)

A grunter, a grumbler, a groaner; a murmurer

Tuchaw, v. a. (tuch) To grunt, to grumble.

Tuchiad, s. m. (tuch) A grunting, a grumbling.

Tud, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ty—ud) A surface; a region, a district.

Moss pob tud yn ai dde.

The custom of every place in its place. Adage.

Pennaf udd Gwafodd, gwaidd oryr Frydala, Fridawr tud allmyr.

A supreme lord is Gwafodd, the ardent eagle of Britain, the proprietor of a transmarine region. Ll. P. Moeh, i E. ab Owain.

*Gweld y bwn a goiwy
Goloddodd dry'r gwledydd drwg;
Gweld na chaid eu golud;
Ac nid hael ngala o'is iud;
Gweld yn Efael haelion;
Gweld and hael gwlad ond hon.*

*Observing with an eye I have seen the riches in bad countries;
thus seeing that their wealth could not be bad; and that there were not twenty liberal ones on the surface of them; seeing in Efael liberal ones; and seeing that there was no liberal country but this.* L. G. Ceidde.

Tudalen, s. m. (tu—dalen) A side of a leaf.

Tudalennawg, a. (tudalen) Having a page.

Tudalenawl, a. (tudalen) Paginal, paged.

Tudalenïad, s. m. (tudalen) A paging.

Tudalennu, v. a. (tudalen) To form a page.

Tudaw, v. a. (tud) To form a surface or region.

Tudfach, s. m.—pl. t. au (tud—bach) A still.

Tudgi, s. m.—pl. t. on (tud—cl) A terrier.

Tudhaul, s. m. (tud—haul) A sunning place.

Tudlath, s. f.—pl. t. an (tud—llath) Meting rod.

Tudlëau, s. pl. (tud—lle) Brogues.

Tudwed, s. m. (tud—gwed) A sward, or sod.

Llywr loegod ei thudwed a'i tho.

Completely heret was its ground and its roof. Ll. P. Moeh.

Tudwedd, s. f. (tud—gwedd) The face of the earth; the sward, or sod.

*Mor droosau—
Ar ddearedd Fadawg fod tudwedd!*

How miserable that on the cheeks of Fadawg there should be the sod! Gwethmeis.

Tudd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ty—udd) That is over, or that covers; an obscurity, or shade; gloom; smoke, vapour.

Tuddad, s. m. (tudd) A covering, or enveloping.

Tuddadwy, a. (tuddad) Capable of being covered

Tuddaw, v. a. (tudd) To cover, to envelop.

*Pian y bedd yn yrrya,
At tudd mor a gupur gurry!
Dodd Meigen mab Rhon, rwyf lly.*

Who owns the grave in the island, which the sea covers with a border of tannet! The grave of Meigen son of Rhon, the requirer of a court. Eng. Soddan Mllywr.

Tuddawg, a. (tudd) Being covered, enveloped.

Tuddawl, a. (tudd) Tending to cover over.

Tuthiawl, a. (tuth) Trotting, going on a trot.
Tuthiedig, a. (tuthiad) Being made to trot.
Tuthiwr, s. m.—pl. tuthiwr (tuth—gwr) A man who trots, or a trotter.
Tuthwraig, a. f.—pl. tuthwraigedd (tuth—gwraig) A trotting-woman; a gadding gossip.
TW, s. m. r. A rise up or out; a thrive, an uprising; away. It is also the imperative of the verb.

Twi farch benthyr.

Go on! hired horse.

Adage.

Twa, v. a. (tw) To drive, to impel, to urge on.
Twb, s. m.—pl. t. ian (ty—wb) A round tump.
Twb y dail, a chevin, a chub fish.
Twc, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tw) A cut, clip, or chip.
Twca, s. m.—pl. t. od (twc) A kind of knife.
Twciad, s. m. (twc) A clipping, a docking.
Twciaw, v. a. (twc) To clip, to dock, to trim.
Twciwr, s. m.—pl. twciwr (twc—gwr) A clipper.
Twdd, s. m. (tw) That pokes or juts out.
Twddf, s. m.—pl. tyddfaun (twdd) What pokes out.

At eiddi y pr, at ddifys!

In the house or an enclosure that thou dost!
D. ab Edmwnd.

Tweg, s. f. (tw—eg) A shock or bush of hair.

Teg o dwf yw tweg dyn,
Tost hair, but scanty hair.

Pair of growth in the hair of the tymp, a sh's radiation like the strings of a harp.
D. ab Edmwnd, i wallt.

Twf, s. m. (tw—wf) A growth; an increase.

Mail can wrfio,
Mail twf i'r Gwynan.

Soft the bloom of avenge, like the growth of the soil of Guenno.
Adage.

Gwr difal o'i gryd i'w fodd,
A yr twf or at lloedd.

A man faultless from his cradle to his grave, will bring increase or his loss.
W. Llwyn.

Twff, s. m. (tw—wff) A rise, a lift; a tuft.

Twg, s. m. (tw—tg) That is forward; luck.

Par y tir yw par twg
As y gwyn yw Morgannwg.

The lord of the soil causing prosperity on the wine in Morgannwg.
D. ab Gbilym, i ffr.

Yn llawr dail i'm llanerch,
A twg at y hwytyr verch.

The summer filling my glade with leaves, and a prospering of the countenance of love.
D. ab Gwilym.

Twl, s. m.—pl. tylau (ty—wl) That is rounded or smooth; a toft.

O gwridd, m' ddyd m' dda,
Don't lalar dwy'r tylau.

If there should be an occasion on one day or another, to break up the headland through the tofts.
Ed. Goch y Dent.

Twlc, s. m.—pl. tylciau (twl) A dent, a hollow; a small out, or hovel; a sty. Heb na thy na dnoek, without either house or hovel. Is Aled.

Nedid—
Oi eoch a dwic mooth i ml.

A red dog leaped from the pig sty upon me.
D. ab Gwilym.

Twlich, s. m.—pl. tylchau (twl) A round mass, a heap; a tump, or knoll; a pile. Tylchau, the Knolls, a hilly district in Glamorgan so called.

Bu twlich, bu twlich tandde.

There was an opening, there was a pile surrounded with flame.
Aneurin.

Twlff, s. m.—pl. tylffau (twl) A round lump.

Twlffan, s. f. dim. (twlff) A bulky female. Dyna globen o dwlffan, see there a load of a chubby one.

Twlffyn, s. m. dim. (twlff) A fat bulky person.

Twl, s. m. (twl) Buckram, stiff cloth.

Twlo, s. m. (twl) A bulk; a booth, a hut.

Twll, s. m.—pl. tyllau (tw—wll) A hole; a pit;

a cavern; a dimple. Twell off, an offset hole; twll yn ei doch, dimple in her cheek.

Twm, s. m. (ty—wm) A round heap.

Twmffed, s. m.—pl. t. i (twm—fed) A funnel.

Twmffedu, v. a. (twmffed) To use a funnel.

Twmp, s. m.—pl. tympiau (twm) A tump.

Twmpau, s. f. dim. (twmp) A round mass; an epithet for a fat female.

Twmpath, s. m.—pl. t. au (twmp) A hillock, a knap, a tump; also a bush. Twmpathau, a sort of games.

Gwneusthai mybydd o twmpath byron.

Making a mountain of an ant hill.

Adage.

Y twmpath lle cloddid Rhys a'r wyf a elwir Bryn y Badden.

The tump where Rhys and his men were buried is called the Hill of the Graves.
Cordwain o Llangfer.

Twmpathawg, a. (twmpath) Abounding with tumps or knolls; covered with bushes.

Twmpathiad, s. m. (twmpath) A forming a tump; a forming a bush.

Twmpathu, v. a. (twmpath) To form a tump or knoll; to form a bush.

Twmpethyn, s. m. dim. (twmpath) A small hillock.

Twmpiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (twmp) A dropping.

Twmpian, v. a. (twmp) To continue dropping, or falling; to drop; to let fall suddenly; to nod, or to drop, as the head does when a person is overcome with sleep; to strike upon, to stamp, to flap, to thump.

Twmpiaw, v. a. (twmp) To drop, to fall.

Twmpiawl, a. (twmp) Dropping, falling.

Twn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ty—wn) A break, or rising up of a surface; a scaling, a split; a fracture.

a. Having the surface broken; scaled, splintered; fractured, broken. Esgyrn twinion, splintered bones: Bara twn, broken bread.

Twnadwy, a. (twn) Capable of being fractured.

Twnc, s. m. (ty—wnc) That is brought forward or upon; a deposit; the chief rent. Twnc y brenin, the king's rent.

Twnedig, a. (twn) Being broken, fractured.

Twnfriw, a. (twn—briw) Broken to pieces.

Llawr twr twnfriw.

Many a tower broken to shatters.

Gwalchmai.

Twniad, s. m. (twn) A breaking, a fracturing.

Twniaw, v. a. (twn) To break, to fracture.

Twnrif, s. m.—pl. t. ion (twn—rhif) A broken number, or fraction.

Twnrifaw, v. a. (twnrif) To reckon fractionally.

Twnrifawg, a. (twnrif) Consisting of fractions.

Twnrifawl, a. (twnrif) Fractional.

Twnrifedd, s. m. (twnrif) Fractions.

Twnrifad, s. (twnrif) A reckoning fractionally.

Twnrifyn, s. m. (twnrif) A fractional number.

Twng, s. m. (ty—wng) That is brought forward, destined, fated, or assigned; that is pledged, or alledged; a lot or share; a plight, troth, or oath; a pledge of homage; a yearly acknowledgement due to the lord of the soil, according to the laws of Wales; also a certain ration of corn due from tenant to landlord.

Nid twng ond a fyne Daw.

There is no destiny but what God wills.

Adage.

Mi wa eu twngwedd,
Eu tro, eu cerdded,
Eu twng, a'n tynged.

I know their comings, their turns, their walks, their loes, and their destiny.
Taliesin.

Twr, s. m.—pl. tyrau (tw—wr) A heap, a pile, an aggregate; a tower. Amrws

*Yr awr, ei adol sy rai d—
Yn dwr i ryw ddyn ddiridol.*

The gold, it must needs be left a heap for some mischievous person. S. Tudgr.

Tair tld fal y twr tewdwa.

Three chains like the plectides. D. ab Edmund.

Twrs, s. m. diss. (twr) An aggregate, a mass.

Twrs, bld crog a'i tyrawdd.

The heap, hang him who heaped it! D. ab Gwilym, i gaeir cira.

Twrch, s. m.—pl. tyrchod (tw—wrch) That raises burrows, or heaps up; a hog; a splayed boar. Twrch daiair, a mole.—Twrch Trwyth, mab Taredd Wledig, The hog of the Spray, son of the monarch Taredd, a personage often introduced in ancient tales. Such brooks as sink into the ground are generally called Twrch, or the Burrower.

Nid ungerdd twrch ag cawa.

Not of the same song the pig and the nightingale. Adage.

Nerth twrch yn ei atach.

The strength of a hog in his hind legs. Adage.

Son wrth foch nam orchection twrch.

Discombe with swine about the feats of a hog. Adage.

Twrd, s. m.—pl. tyrdau (twr) A shallow tub; also called mit, twrnel, and tured.

Twrdd, s. m.—pl. tyrdau (tw—wrdd) A tumult.

*Yn abyrr—
Twrd ac anferth ryferthwy
Dygyfor, ni fa for fyw.*

In the mouths of rivers, tumult and dreadful torrent of meeting waters, there never was a greater son. Gronw Owain.

Twred, s. m. (twr) That is raised, or piled; a pile; a turret; a tub.

*Dyrod, hys dwred cira,
Diddawu wyd—*

Come along, thou old snow ball, void of good art thou. R. Goch, Eryri.

Twrf, s. m.—pl. tyrfodd (twryf) That rises; is high, or loud; a stir, a tumult; that is drawn together; or shrunk. Twrf ac enwed, riot and damage; twrf cyfraith, a tumult of law: Twrf gion, contraction of sinews: Tyrfau, thunder claps. Sil.

*Arlleng torf rhag twrf cammawu,
Nai twrf abyrr yn llyr liawu.*

The foremost rank of a host before the turmoil of combat, like the turmoil of the mouths of rivers when full of flood. Cynddelw, i O. ab Madawg.

Twrf yw lleog tai neu dori ardr.

A tumult is the burning of houses, or breaking of a plough. Welsh Laws.

Triad, s. m. (twr) A turning or throwing up.

Triaw, v. a. (twr) To raise up, to heap; to turn up. Mock yw triaw tir, swine turning up the ground.

Triawl, s. (twr) Tending to turn or throw up.

Twrl, s. m.—pl. t. au (twr) A round mass, or lump. Twrl tortlaes, a bulky one with a swagging belly.

Twrla, s. m.—pl. t. od (twrl) A round-bellied one; a mountain mouse, a marmot.

Twrlach, s. m.—pl. t. au (twrl) A round lump; a bulky squab. Rhyd y Twrlachau, the Ford of the Lumps, a place so called.

Twrlachiad, s. m.—pl. twrlachiad (twrlach) One with a bulky body.

Twrlaies, s. f.—pl. t. au (twrla) A bulky one.

Twrlaiesau to Uchdon.

Round bulky ones with low bellies. T. Aled, i gwy.

Twrn, s. m.—pl. tyrnau (tw—wrn) A round, what revolves, or circulates; a turn. Twrn da, a good turn; twrn drwg, an ill turn.

*Ple bynag, diorwag dwrn
Yr addfale ar dalwrn, —Synodd.*

In whatever spot, not rain the turn, the building I have made on a headland, it prospered. D. ab Gwilym.

Gwyn Suddas, gwyn ei oddi Difara' twrn, dy frad ti.

Judas brought about treachery to thee, on round soil to be pented of, I know that he sought. D. ab Iago, i Rhod.

*Rha'n oddi' tyrnau, toean tan;
Rha'n ddwrg o'r hea ddorogta.*

Some whose turns are good, waves of fire; some are of ancient predilections. R. Iago, i Rhod.

Twrnol, s. m.—pl. t. i (twrn) A tub; a vat.

Tws, s. m. (tw—ws) An extreme; an outlier.

Twsel, s. f.—pl. t. i (tws) A tap, a fanceet.

Can foddwedd o'r dwael.

As drunk as the fanceet. Adage.

Twselig, s. f. diss. (twael) A small fanceet.

Twt, s. m. (tw—wt) That is simple, whole, complete, or having an interval with respect to any thing else; a drive; a puff.

Gormodd huth yw twt i'r farch.

Too much speech is fat to a horse. Adage.

Twt, s. (tw—wt) Being whole or complete; having an interval; complete; neat. S. m.

Twtach, s. m. (tw) A disposure, hard breathing.

Twtl, s. m. (tw) The state of being simple, whole, or unconnected with any thing else; an intermittent state.

Twtiad, s. m. (tw) A making an intermission; a making neat or trim.

Twtrial, v. a. (tw) To make intermission; to leave.

Twtrial, v. a. (tw) To intermit; to render a thing complete by itself; to make neat.

Twtrial, a. (tw)—nais Altogether neat.

Twtrial, s. m. (tw)—ne A simple hue; dun.

Twtrial, s. m. (twtrial) A making quite neat.

Twtrial, s. m. (tw) That is extreme, that surrounds, that hems in; check, stop, restraint.

Twriad, s. m. (tw) A hemming in; a checking.

Twriaw, v. a. (tw) To hem in; to check, to restrain; to curb; to manage.

Twriaw, a. (tw) Hemming in; checking.

Twriaw, a. (tw) Hemming in; checking.

Twryg, s. f.—pl. t. au (twy) A garment; a top.

*Ni chymeraf gymen gan ennyman 'fynach,
Ag eu twryg ar eu ches;
A'm cyrnau Dwy ei hun.*

I will not receive a communion from accursed monks, with their cloaks on their hips; who communicate with me let him to God himself. Cyfrillu Alwyn.

*Brulld y medd, dan bridd a mael
Dig ei fe, dwyrg o'lain!*

Scarcely doth he possess, under earth and stone is doth plight, a wrapper of cloth! L. G. Goch.

Twrygaw, v. a. (twy) To cover, to wrap over; to cover with a toga.

Twrygaw, a. (twy) Having a garment; wearing a toga.

Twryawl, a. (twy) Belonging to a garment.

Twrygiad, s. m. (twy) A wrapping round with a garment; a putting on a toga.

Twyll, s. m.—pl. t. au (twy) That is masked: deception, illusion; deceit, fraud.

Tan enw twyll y daw twyll.

Under the name of reason deceit will come. Adage.

*Pan med dyg daeth twyll i'n mysg;
Pan eddyr dyg daw gwir i'n mysg.*

When learning was born delusion came amongst us; when learning shall become learned truth will come amongst us. Adage.

Gwedi myned Gorietryn yn frenia, unfon a ong i geislaw pawb i deol y Pichald: acas a orug y Prydeinad; ac archi llo, o gwnaethodd dwyll llyst, wneithur lawu, neu dderbyn a deol uo.

After Gorietryn had become king, he sent to get every body to assist the Pichs; what the Britons did was to refuse him: then desiring of him, if he had committed a fraud to them, to make reflection, or to abide what might befall him. Gr. ab Arthur.

Twyllad, s. m. (twyll) A deceiving, deception.

Twylladwy, a. (twyllad) That can be deceived.

Twyllaw, v. a. (twyll) To deceive, to disappoint; to beguile, to cheat, to defraud.

Twyllaw arall twyllaw yth hennu.

To deceive another is to deceive thyself. Adage.

Twyllaw arall yn fawr twyllaw yth hon yn fwy.

To deceive another greatly is to deceive thyself more. Adage.

A wael dwyll of a dwyllir.

He that worketh deceit will be deceived. Adage.

Twyllawd, s. m. (twyll) The act of deceiving.

Twyllawl, s. f. (twyll—awdl) False rhyme.

Twyllawdr, s. m. (twyllawd) A deceiver.

Twyllawg, a. (twyll) Full of deception.

Twyllawr, s. m.—pl. twyllorion (twyll) A deceiver.

Twyllchware, s. m. (twyll—chware) False play.

Twyllchwareu, v. a. (twyllchware) To play falsely.

Twyllchwaru, a. (twyllchware) Falsely playing.

Twyllchwarëydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (twyllchware)

One who plays cheatingly.

Twyllieb, s. f. (twyll) Sophistry, sophism.

Twylledig, a. (twyll) Being deceived, cheated.

Twylledigath, s. m. (twyll) The act of deceiving.

Twyllmarchnata, v. a. (twyll—marchnata) To practise fraud in trading.

Twyllawr, a. (twyll) Full of deceit, or fraud.

Twyllmorwyn, s. f.—pl. t. ion (twyll—morwyn) A false maid.

Os twyllmorwyn a gaffir, heb wad, ei chrys a dorir ta rhyddid a tari ei ches, ac oddiyna ei gwra eddyr llyd enderig, gwedi llaw logwyr; ac o dicheon hi ei atal herwydd ei logwyr, cymered hi of yn ei lagwedd.

If a false maid shall be found, without defence, her shift shall be cut on the fore side and behind her, and then her husband shall give her a scree, whose tail has been greased; so if she shall be able to keep him by his tail, let her have him for her separate maintenance. Welsh Laws.

Twyllgam, s. m.—pl. t. au (twyll—cam) False step.

Twyllgar, a. (twyll) Deceptive, apt to cheat.

Twyllgynghanedd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (twyll—cynghanedd) False consanquancy.

Twyllgynghaneddiad, s. m. (twyllgynghanedd) A forming a false consanquancy.

Twyllgynghaneddu, v. a. (twyllgynghanedd) To form false consanquancy.

Twyllodi, v. a. (twyllawd) To form false rhyme.

Twyllodiad, s. m. (twyllawd) A forming of false rhyme.

Twyllodrus, a. (twyllawdr) Deceiving, deceitful;

fraudulent, false; crafty.

Tri oes Daw, a dyn: goleg ymladdgar, tafawd twyllodrus, ac nab dnyllon.

The three hated by God and man: a look denoting war, a deceitful tongue, and a mischievous disposition. Canting Dialect.

Twyllodrusaw, v. a. (twyllodrus) To render deceitful; to become deceitful.

Vol. II.

Twyllodrusedd, s. m. (twyllodrus) Deceitfulness.

Twyllodrusrwydd, s. m. (twyllodrus) Deceitfulness.

Twyllofaint, s. m. (twyll) Deceitful conduct, circumvention, that is unawares.

Twyllrin, s. m. (twyll—rhin) A false secret.

*Ac os mi ai hadd herwydd twyllrin,
Ni'm bo os cyfaith namyn Cain.*

And if I deserve it on account of false secret, may I meet with no conversing friend excepting Cain. Gwatches.

Twyllwr, s. m. twyllwyr (twyll—gwr) A deceiver.

Nid twyll twyllaw twyllwr.

It is no deceit to deceive a deceiver. Adage.

Twyllwriaeth, s. m. (twyllwr) The practice of a deceiver.

Twym, s. m. (twy) A heat; a flush. Twym y mynydd, mountain heat, a disease among cattle.

a. Hot, warm.

Iachur arogl bara twym, afachur ei fwyta.

It is healthy to smell warm bread, it is unhealthy to eat it. Adage.

Cydwymed a'r pathew.

As warm as the dormouse. Adage.

Twymad, s. m. (twym) Calefaction, a heating.

Twymadwy, a. (twymad) Capable of being heated.

Twymaw, v. a. (twym) To calefy, to warm.

Cynt y twyma gwedd no dwfr.

Sooner will blood grow warm than water. Adage.

Twymawl, a. (twym) Tending to make warm.

Twymdra, s. m. (twym) Warmth, hotness.

Twymdwy, a. (twym—twyr) Lukewarm.

Twymdwyrad, s. m. (twyr) A making lukewarm.

Twymdwyraw, v. a. (twyr) To make lukewarm.

Twymedig, a. (twymad) Being warmed, heated.

Twymedd, s. m. (twym) Warmth, warmth.

Twymnaw, v. a. (twymyn) To warm, to heat.

Twymnawl, a. (twymyn) Tending to warm.

Twymnder, s. m. (twymyn) Warmth, hotness.

Twymndra, s. m. (twymyn) Warmth, heat.

Twymuedig, a. (twymyn) Being warmed.

Twymnedd, s. m. (twymyn) A warm state.

Twymniad, s. m. (twymyn) A warming.

Twymnwr, s. m.—pl. twymnwyr (twymyn—gwr)

One who heats, a warmer.

Twymp, s. m. (twym) That is warm or cheering.

*Eur-air penmith, acrywmp twymp pob mith,
Aergorff lloer lloer-ith, gwith gwithlloer.*

A golden word is the fiat of the supreme, the brightly fair colour, of every course, the war-bulwark with a shaft slaying the English, most watchful work. G. ab M. ab Iffud, i Gronwy.

Twymyn, s. m. (twym) A heat, a flush; a fever.

Y dwymyn doben, the mumps, a disease in the head so called. a. Hot, warm.

Twyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (twy) A hillock; also a tuft; a bush. Ar dwyn, on an eminence, conspicuous.

Twynaw, v. a. (twyn) To form a tump; to tuft.

Twynawg, a. (twyn) Abounding with tumps.

Twyndir, s. m. (twyn—tir) Hilly ground.

Twynen, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (twyn) A sand-hill.

Twyniad, s. m. (twyn) A forming a tump.

Twynyn, s. m. (twyn) A tump; a tuft; a bush.

Twyogi, v. a. (twyag) To manage, to restrain.

Twyr, s. m. (twy) That is agitated or heated. a.

Agitated; freshened, parched, torrid.

Twyrad, s. m. (twyr) An agitation; a parching.

Twyraw, v. a. (twyr) To agitate; to parch, to heat.

Twys, s. m.—pl. t. au (twy) A top, a tuft, a head, a heap. Twys yd, ear of corn.

Twysaw, v. a. (twys) To top, to tuft; to spire.

4 F

Twysawg, a. (twys) Being a top; having a top, or tuft; having a spire, eared.

Twysawl, a. (twys) Topping; tufting, spiring.

Twysen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i. (twys) An ear of corn.

Twysen lawn a ostwng ei phen; twysen wag a saff yn syth.

A full ear lowers its head; an empty ear stands up straight.

Adage.

Twysenawl, a. (twysen) Spiring, earing.

Twyseniad, s. m. (twysen) A spiring, a shooting into ears.

Twysenig, s. f. dim. (twysen) A single ear.

Twysenn, v. a. (twysen) To spire, to ear.

Twysg, s. m.—pl. t. au (twys) A mass, a heap; a quantity; some quantity, some part; the quantity of yarn usually contained on a spindle.

Mae wedi diwysu ei dwysg.

He has gone his length.

Tes gloew teg, twysg llw twysu,

A hand a distasteful hymn.

Fair clear radiance, some dawn of shining, and the sun would this dissolve.

D. ab Gwilym, 'r rhew.

Twysgaw, v. a. (twysg) To amass, to heap, to collect a certain quantity; to get to a head, to get on, to get to an end with any thing; to limit. Yr wyf yn twysgawu ar fy arian yn arw, I am getting through with my money sadly.

All yn ddisgw, sion dwysgaw,
With acir-irwygaw Arthur freisgedd.

When descending, the foes consuming, like in stalking through the slaughter to the greatness of Arthur.

D. ab Edmund, i Rys o Fon.

Y fystal a dwysgal ato.

The multitude gathered to him.

W. Saltbury.

Twysgawl, a. (twysg) Tending onward, proceeding; collective, aggregating.

Twysged, s. f.—pl. t. au (twysg) A mass; a quantity; a good deal; a certain portion, some.

Yr wybodaeth y beom trwy eis bywydas yn ei ahaegle, nid yw llawer o honi ond enwybodaeth yn unig; a twysged o honi yn waeth.

The knowledge that we have been through our lives collecting, much of it is nothing but sheer ignorance; and some of it is worse.

Ian. Rhys.

Twysgen, s. f. dim. (twysg) A quantity; a good deal; a certain quantity or portion; some.

Twysgiad, s. m. (twysg) A proceeding, a going on; a getting through; a limiting; a collecting.

Twysgwr, s. m.—pl. twysgwr (twysg—gwr) One who proceeds; one who goes through; a limiter.

Twysiad, s. m. (twys) A topping; a spiring.

Twyth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (twy—yth) A spring, or pliancy; aptness to proceed; celerity, dispatch.

Dyn hydwyth, a tractable person.

Ardwyreaf hant o hili Rodri,
Ardwyad gorwlad, gwerlin teithi;

Twyth afdwyth Owain,

Teyrnala ni grain ni grawn ral.

I will exalt the generous one of the line of Rodri, the carber of the bordering country, endowed with gifts of an illustrious stock; the heir of Britain, ambition the passion of Owain, the princely one who submits to none, who hoards no treasures.

Gwalchmai.

Twythad, s. m. (twyth) A springing, a bounding.

Twythadwy, a. (twythad) Capable of springing.

Twythaw, v. a. (twyth) To spring, to bound.

Twythawd, s. m. (twyth) The act of springing.

Twythawg, a. (twyth) Having spring, elastic.

Twythawl, a. (twyth) Springing, bounding.

Twythedig, a. (twythad) Being made elastic.

Twythedigaeth, s. m. (twythedig) The act of rendering elastic; a springing.

Twythfalach, a. (twyth—balch) Aspiringly proud.

Next —

Golwg gwach dwythfalach o brif deithi.

Next with eye of a hawk aspiringly proud, of princely origin.

Gwalchmai.

Twythfawr, a. (twyth) Greatly springing.

Argrwydd tethiawg twythfawr yn arfa,
Yn arfyrar byddinaw;
Argae tori ring twr arfawr,
Argleddid foleid, baidi gwr.

A rightful sovereign greatly energetic in arms, in the rapid toll of martial feats; the hawk of a host before the host of shields, the overshadowing leader, the wolf of the host.

Cynadela, i Wrecynn.

Twythiad, s. m. (twyth) A springing, resiliency.

Twythiannawl, a. (twythiant) Of a tendency to spring or bound; resilient; of an elastic quality.

Twythiannu, v. a. (twythiant) To cause a springing or resiliency; to make a rebound.

Twythiant, s. m. (twyth) Elasticity; resiliency.

Twythig, a. (twyth) Springing, elastic; rising.

Twythigrwydd, s. m. (twythig) Aptness to spring.

Twythus, a. (twyth) Apt to spring or bound.

Twythusaw, v. a. (twythus) To render elastic.

Twythusdra, s. m. (twythus) Aptness to spring.

Twythusrwydd, s. m. (twythus) Aptness to spring.

Twythwal, s. m. (twyth—gwal) Elastic coach.

Pell o Fon fain ydwyth, dwythwal, wrth
Emswyth ymddol yn arosu gylfa.

Far from pleasant Mon art thou, soft place of repose, when in hesitancy is at once enjoying a splendid solitude.

Gwalchmai.

Twythwalch, s. m.—pl. twythweilch (twyth—gwalch) A springing hawk.

TY, s. m. r.—pl. t. au. A being about or going on; that is inclusive; a house. Ty ac allodol, house and chattels. It is a prefix in composition, implying a state of being going on or being in.

Athraw pawb yn ei dy.

Every body is master in his house.

Adage.

Ni wyr dyn nad ei of dy.

A man knows naught who goes not out of his house.

Adage.

Gwae y ty lle nas clywer Unib cerydd.

Woe to the house where the voice of reproval is not heard.

Adage.

Nid allan o'i ffordd a gryddre i dy dawydd.

He is not out of his way who strays to the house of the dead.

Adage.

Tyad, s. m. (ty) A housing; a domifying.

Tyaeth, s. m. (ty) A house establishment; a household. Perchen tyaeth, the owner of a household.

Mae Daw ei hun yn gorchymys yn neilltawel i bob prifwrth aeth athrwysetha ei deula.

God himself doth command particularly that every owner of a household should instruct his family.

Rhos. Fychen, Yn. Dwyddol.

Tyaid, s. m.—pl. tyeidiau (ty) A household.

Tyaidd, a. (ty) Like a house; domestic.

Tyaw, v. a. (ty) To house, to put in a house; to domify.

Tyawg, a. (ty) Having a house, or housed.

Tyawl, a. (ty) Belonging to a house, domestic.

Tyab, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ty—yb) Opinion, notion, sentiment, thought; suspicion.

Cethwydd ai was ond cllwg;
Nid da heb droed un tyb dwg.

A falsehood will only create an angry look; no bad opinion is commenced without a foundation.

G. ab I. ab Llywelyn Fychen.

Tybgar, a. (tyb) Opinionated; suspectful.

Tybgarwch, s. m. (tybgar) Opinionativeness; suspectfulness, suspiciousness.

Tybiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (tyb) A supposing, a suspecting, an imagining, a thinking.

Tybiant, s. m. (tyb) Opinionation, opinion.

Tyhiaw, v. (tyb) To opine, to suppose, to suspect.

Cae a dylio at fod yn well na nob ar bob peth ac yntu yn wreth-af oill.

Odious is he who thinks that he is better than any body in every thing and he being the worst of all.

A dybiwys a gamsynwys.

He that hath suspected hath mistaken.

Adage.

Tybiawl, a. (tyb) Supposing, suspecting.

Tybiad, v. a. (tyb) To suppose, to suspect.

Tybiedig, a. (tybiad) Supposed, imagined.

Tybiedigawl, a. (tybiedig) Putative, opinative.

Tybiwr, s. m.—pl. tybiwyr (tyb—gwr) An opin-ator, a supposer, a suspecter.

Tyboast, s. m.—pl. tybyst (ty—post) A house-post.

Y tyboast, pedair cerinlawg cyfrainth yw at werth.

A house-post, four lawful pence is its value.

Welsh Laws.

Tybus, a. (tyb) Apt to suppose, suspecting.

Tybusaw, v. a. (tybus) To render suspecting; to become suspicious, to be suspectful.

Tybusrwydd, s. m. (tybus) Suspectfulness.

Tybwg, s. m. (tyb) The state of being supposed.

Tybygadwy, a. (tybwg) Supposable, imaginable.

Tybygawl, a. (tybwg) Suppositive; supposed.

Tybygiad, s. m. (tybwg) An imagining.

Tybygiedig, a. (tybygiad) Supposed, imagined.

Tybygoldeb, s. m. (tybygawl) Suppositionness.

Tybygoli, v. a. (tybygawl) To render suppositions; to become suppositive.

Tybygoliaeth, s. m. (tybygawl) Snposition.

Tybygolrwydd, s. m. (tybygawl) Imaginariness.

Tybygwr, s. m.—pl. tybygwyr (tybwg—gwr) A supposer, one who imagines.

Tyciad, s. m. (twg) A prospering, a succeeding;
a prevailing; a besitting.

Tyciannawl, a. (tyciant) Prospering; prevailing; tending to suit or to agree with.

Tyciannu, v. a. (tyciant) To cause prosperity, or success; to become successful.

Tyciannus, a. (tyciant) Prosperous; lucky.

Tyciannusaw, v. a. (tyciannus) To render prosperous; to become successful.

Tyciannusdra, s. m. (tyciannus) Prosperousness.

Tyciannusrwydd, s. m. (tyciannus) Prosperous-ness, successfulness.

Tyciant, s. m. (twg) Prosperity, success; meetness

Tyciaw, v. a. (twg) To prosper, to succeed; to prevail; to besit, to suit, to agree with.

Yn lle y bo y da.

Y rhoir ac y tycia.

Where there is property, there will be given and it will prosper.

Adage.

Nid oedd yn Ffrainc wr a dychai iddo gyhydryd ag Enraia.

There was not in France a man to whom it would succeed to contend with Enraia.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Tyciawl, a. (twg) Prospering; prevailing.

Tyd, s. m. (ty—yd) That is continuous or whole.

Tydain, s. m. (ty—tain) The centre of expansion, the centre of fire; that is universally pervasive;
an epithet for the sun. Tydain Tad Awen, or Tydain Father of the Muse, is a personage often alluded to in the Triades and in our poetry, as the founder of the bardic system; and he probably was so named on account of his superior genius; as, in such a case, the epithet was not improperly applied to him, in a metaphorical sense. It is remarkable that, in the mythology of the Greeks and Romans, Apollo had similar attributes with the Tydain of the Cymry; and therefore he was probably the same person;

and was feigned to be the sun from the cogency of the original epithet. I believe Tydain to have been a real person; yet it were easy to turn the whole into an allegory, supported by a verse, which says that his grave was in Bron Aren; for Bron means the breast, and the swell of a hill, often applied in the names of places;

Aren, also is the appellative of several hills, descriptive of their smoothness, and it means smooth or eloquent, with respect to composition.

Bodd Tydala Tad Awen

Yn ngodir Bron Aren.

The grave of Tydala Father of the Muse in the boundary region of Bron Aren.

Eng. Boddon Mhwy.

Tydalaeth, s. m. (ty—talaeth) House-porch.

Tydi, pron. (ty—ti) Thou. Tydi dyhun, tydi yth hun, tydi dy hunan, tydi yth hunan, thou thyself.

Tydi, Arglwydd, rwydd rinwddas bob awr,

A raddod den llawr, fawr fwrddas;

Tydi, Duw, gwodi gwawdau col ydyw

Tyfodaist i'w radas.

Thou, Lord, at all times freely dispensing virtues, wert placed beneath the sod, great the designs; how, God, afterwards, memorable themes of praise, didst rise in thy blessings.

G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Tyddfawg, a. (twddf) Having a jutting, hunchy.

Tyddfawl, a. (twddf) Tending to jut out.

Tyddfiad, s. m. (twddf) A jutting or projecting.

Tyddfu, v. a. (twddf) To poke out, to jut out.

Tyddiad, s. m. (twdd) A spreading or laying out.

Tyddu, v. a. (twdd) To spread out, to lay out.

Tyddyn, s. m.—pl. t. od (twdd) Land under cultivation; a farm, a tenement.

Podair erw yn mhob tyddyn a ddylly fod; pedwar tyddyn yn mhob rhanol; deuddeg erw a thriugain a fydd yn y rhanol ar gyf-reithlawn, rhwng rwydd a drys, a choed a mwa, a gwyb a sych, eithr yr orffotir.

There ought to be four acres in every messuage; four messuages in every shireland; there are to be seventy-two acres in a lawful shireland, between the open and the wild, and wood and field, and wet and dry, except the accessory township.

Welsh Laws.

Awn i aredd y tyddyn,

Sy rhwng y ty a'r ody.

Let us go to plough the field that is between the house and the kitchen.

D. ab Gwilym.

Tyddynawl, a. (tyddyn) Relating to a tenement.

Tyddynyn, s. f. dim. (tyddyn) A small tenement.

Tyedig, a. (tyad) Being housed; domified.

Tyfadwy, a. (twf) Capable of growing.

Tyfawl, a. (twf) Growing or vegetating.

Tyfedig, a. (twf) Being grown or vegetated.

Tyfiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (twf) A growing.

Tyfiannawl, a. (tyfiant) Vegetative, growing.

Tyfiannu, v. a. (tyfiant) To produce vegetation.

Tyfiannus, a. (tyfiant) Tending to vegetate.

Tyfiannusaw, v. a. (tyfiannus) To render vegetative; to become vegetative.

Tyfiant, s. m. (twf) A growth, or vegetation.

Tyfu, v. a. (twf) To grow; to cause to grow.

Had dysteniaild a dyfant yn mhob tir;

Had nywyr braidd y tyfant yn un tir.

The seed of placenten will grow in every land; the seed of reason scarcely will they grow in any land.

Adage.

Dar a dyfws yn melliion,

A chan a'i briw ni bi gion;

Gwae wr wrth ei gaeion.

An oak hath grown amidst the trefolse, and since it has been wounded it is not round; woe to a man amongst his foes.

Robert Tywyswg Normandi.

Tyfw, s. m.—pl. tyfwyr (twf—gwr) A grower.

Tygiad, s. m. (twg) A prospering, a succeeding,

Tygiaw, v. a. (twg) To prosper, to besit.

Yn awlad Tegingl y tygia,

Am glod a wa, ym gael da.

In the county of Tegingl it will prosper, for the fame I confer, for me to obtain a benefit.

O. ab S. ab Rhys, ab Hy. Cernmor.

Tyhun, pron. (ty—hun) Thyself. See Tydi.

Tyhunan, pron. (tyhun) Thyself, thou thyself.

Tylad, s. m. (twl) A making smooth; a forming a smooth toft.

Tylaith, s. m. (ty—llaith) That destroys.

Tylath, s. f.—pl. t. au (ty—llath) A house beam.

Tylawd, a. (ty—llawd) Poor, needy, being in want, being bereaved.

Phawd ar ol fawd a want dyn yn dylawd.

Lack after lack will make a person poor. Adage.

Tyleyn, s. m. dim. (twic) A small hovel.

Tylchawg, a. (twich) Abounding with knolls.

Tylchiad, s. m. (twich) A forming a knoll.

Tylchu, v. a. (twich) To form a knoll or tump.

Tyle, s. m.—pl. t. au (twl) A gentle swell or elevation, a small bank or rising hill, a down; a toft, the site of a building; a couch. It forms the names of several places; as Tyle Denis Powys; Tyle Forgan; Tyle Garw; Tyle y Gawl; Tyle Tref Gatwg. Tyle Ysgard, or Scottish Tyle, an old appellation for Ireland.

Treiddiant—

Tal a threfnau,

A thyllau,

A cheillau bwyd.

They will pervade houses and furniture, and couches, and meat closets. Talferin.

Yn nghyfarfod clod cludfelfdd dyle,

Yn nghyfrwyg kynwys gan wawr y oe.

In the convention of fame on the arms of the assembling bards, in an intellectual reception in the glory of the stars. Ll. P. Neck.

Pan edrychyt y dyle, nid oedd arcel namyn byrweillt dylaldd chweiniydd.

When they surveyed the couch, there was upon it only broken straw dusty and full of feces. Breidd. Rhonabwy.

Tylinad, s. m. (glin) A kneading of dough.

Tylinaw, v. d. (glin) To knead, to work dough.

Mae gwaith Gildas wedi myned trwy ddwyllaw y mynach; gwyr a fedwynt yn dda ddigawn dylinau pob peth i'w dybenion eu hunain.

The work of Gildas hath past through the hands of the monks; men who knew well enough how to mould every thing to their own purposes. Ewan Evans.

Tyllinedig, a. (tylinad) Being kneaded.

Tyllinwr, s. m. (tylinaw—gwr) A kneader.

Tylodaidd, a. (tylawd) Somewhat poor or needy.

Tylodedd, s. m. (tylawd) Poverty, poorness.

Tylodi, s. m. (tylawd) Poverty, or poorness.

Nid oes gan gyflawnder na golud na thylodi.

Equity has neither wealth nor poverty. Adage.

Amledd cybydd ys tylodi arno.

A miser's abundance is poverty to him. Adage.

Nid tylodi ond clefyd.

There is no poorness like disease. Adage.

Tylodus, a. (tylawd) Tending to make poor.

Tylodusaw, v. a. (tylodus) To render poor.

Tylodussedd, s. m. (tylodus) Impoverished state.

Tylodusrwydd, s. m. (tylodus) State of poverty.

Tylotyn, s. m. dim. (tylawd) A poor person.

Tylu, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ty—llu) A household.

Tylüaidd, a. (tylu) Familiar; sociable, domestic.

Tylüedd, s. m. (tylu) The state of being a household, socialness, sociableness.

Mad ganed o genedl fonedd.

Mawr wledig mawrwlad tylüedd.

Blessed was born of a noble race, the great sovereign of the great country of society. Cynddelw, i Dyffili.

Tylüeiddiad, s. m. (tylüaidd) A familiarizing.

Tylüeiddlaw, v. a. (tylüaidd) To familiarize.

Tylüeiddrwydd, s. m. (tylüaidd) Familiarness.

Tylüwr, s. m.—pl. tyluwyr (tylu—gwr) A family man, a domestic man.

Tylwyth, s. m.—pl. t. au (ty—llwyth) A household, a family; kinsfolk; a tribe. Y tylwyth teg, bendith eu mamau, gwreigedd anwyl, y teulu, aerial beings, sylphs, gnomes, or fairies; but they are not considered of a diminutive form, as the fairies are, in English tales.

Byw ar dir y tylwyth teg.

To live on the land of the fairy tribe, or by unknown means. Adage.

Tylwythaw, v. a. (tylwyth) To form a family.

Tylwythawg, a. (tylwyth) Having a household, having a family, or kindred; having a great family; populous.

Tylwythawg dyfys yr anawriau, ni bydd foldder.

The ungodly of extended household, it shall not be prosperous. Dostard i. i.

Tylwythiad, s. m. (tylwyth) A forming a family.

Tylwythogi, v. a. (tylwythawg) To form a household or family.

Tylwythogrwydd, s. m. (tylwythawg) The state of having a family.

Tylwywodraeth, s. m. (ty—llywodraeth) House management, household economy.

Tyllawg, a. (twll) Having holes, perforated.

Tyllfras, a. (twll—bras) Of ample opening.

Gwen fforddwyd tyllfras

A wyllas heithwyt yn agorog rhyd foris:

A chan be mab ym ni thollas.

Gwen with thigh of wide opening did watch her sight on the border of the fold of Moris: and so he was as yet not to find out. Llywedd i. i.

Tyllgrug, s. m. (twll—crug) The opening of the ground in dry weather.

Tylliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (twll) A boring.

Pan oeddwn yn aefyll ac yn rhyfoddau cryfodol y tyllid, ni welwn ben wiber yn myned i mewn, ac yn grymdd yn ddaidd yn ei bol yn gyfnewyddol ac yn leuan.

When I was standing, and wondering how narrow was the perforation, I beheld an old serpent going in, and immediately coming back renovated and young. Merchwyd Cynod.

Tylliedig, a. (tylliad) Bored, or perforated.

Tylliedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tylliad) A borer.

Tyllogi, v. a. (tyllawg) To make full of holes.

Tyllogrwydd, s. m. (tyllawg) The state of being full of holes, porousness.

Tylku, v. a. (twll) To make a hole, to bore.

Y ddaia a dyll y gareg, nid o gryfder ond o ffrach tyllus.

The drop will perforate the stone, not through strength but from often falling. Adage.

Tyllwr, s. m.—pl. tyllwyr (twll—gwr) One who bores a hole, or perforates.

Tylllydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (twll) A borer.

Tym, s. m. (ty—ym) A principle of extension, a principle of enlargement; a tendency to enlarge; space.

Tymher, s. m. (tym) Temperament.

Tymheraidd, a. (tymher) Temperamental.

Tymherawl, a. (tymher) Temperamental.

Tymhereiddiad, s. m. (tymheraidd) A rendering temperamental; a becoming temperate.

Tymhereiddlaw, v. a. (tymheraidd) To render temperate; to become temperate.

Tymhereiddrwydd, s. m. (tymheraidd) Temperateness.

Tymheriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tymher) A tempering

Tymheriedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tymher) One who renders temperate.

Tymheru, v. a. (tymher) To temper; to modify.

Tymherus, a. (tymher) Temperate.

Tymherusaw, v. a. (tymherus) To render temperate; to become temperate.

Tymherusdra, s. m. (tymherus) Temperateness.

Tymherussedd, s. m. (tymherus) Temperateness.

Tymherusrwydd, s. m. (tymher) Temperateness.

Tymherwr, s. m. (tymher—gwr) A temperer.

Tymherydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tymher) A seasoner
Tymhest, s. m. (tym) That breaks out.
Tymhestl, s. f.—pl. tymhestledd (tymhest) A tempest, a storm.

Tymhesthaidd, a. (tymhestl) Tempestive.
Tymhestlawg, a. (tymhestl) Tempestuous.
Tymhestfiad, s. m. (tymhestl) A tempesting.
Tymhestlun, v. a. (tymhestl) To tempest.

Mal ydd oeddynt efalli yn ymladd o bob parth, ar warthaf yr eglawn, enycha yn ddelfydd y gwynhian gwrthwyneb yn chwytho, ac yn tymhestlun y waelg, ac yn gwasgaru y Mongau fanyrdoliau draethau.

As they were in that manner fighting on all sides, upon the face of the ocean, behold suddenly the adverse winds blowing, and tempesting the torrent, and dispersing the ships to various shores. Dr. ab Arthur.

Tymhestlus, a. (tymhestl) Tempestuous.
Tymhig, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tym) A prickle, a twitch, a stinging.
Tymhigaw, v. a. (tymhig) To twitch, to prickle.
Tymhigawl, a. (tymhig) Twitching, pricking.
Tymhigiad, s. m. (tymhig) A twitching.

Gallaf fod i ddy, cyn y credol of cariad Dru iargain yn Nghrist, mawr mawr o ymestyniad cyfreithlawi, a tymhigiad calon.

A person might have, before he believed in the love of God towards him in Christ, a great degree of obedience according to the law, and pricking of conscience. S. Trefedyn.

Tymhigiedig, a. (tymhigiad) Being twitched.
Tymhigwr, s. m.—pl. tymhigwyr (tymhig—gwr) A twitcher, a stinger.
Tymig, a. (tyn) Ample; seasonable, timely, of full time, mature, efficient.

Nid oes o ddy—

Ond tywarchen dyais bruddlen, domawg bruddlen!

There is nothing of man but the clod an extending gloomy veil, mazy and composed of dust! Bro. Ddu.

Tymmor, s. m.—pl. t. au (tym—mor) Season.
Hinon heddych a was bob tymmor yn haf.
 The halcyon days of peace make every season like summer. Adage.

Tymmoraidd, a. (tymmor) Tending to be seasonable; seasonable; fit, befitting. Byw yn dym-moraidd, to live comfortably.

Tymmorawl, a. (tymmor) Temporal; seasonable.
Tymmordy, s. m.—pl. t. au (tymmor—ty) A house that is managed by the season; a house that is held by the season, or tenanted at will.

Tymmoredid-dra, s. m. (tymmoraidd) Seasonableness; comfortableness.

Tymmoredidiad, s. m. (tymmoraidd) A rendering seasonable; a becoming seasonable.

Tymmoredidiaw, v. a. (tymmoraidd) To render or become seasonable; to render fitting.

Tymmoredidrydd, s. m. (tymmoraidd) Seasonableness; comfortableness.

Tymmoredidwch, s. m. (tymmoraidd) Seasonableness; comfortableness.

Tymmorgwaith, s. m. (tymmor—gwaith) A certain season, a certain time.

Tymmor, v. a. (tymmor) To make a season.

Tymmorriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tymmor) A making a season; a fixing a season.

Tymmoroldeb, s. m. (tymmorawl) Seasonableness

Tymhyr, s. m.—pl. t. au (tym) A temporality.

Pwyllat Forgant of a'i wyl,
 Fy neol a lloest fy nhymyr.

Morgant and his men would rush onward, expelling me and burning my native place. Llywarch Hen.

Fy mrodyr a'm tymhyr a gwynaf!

My brothers and my native land I mourn! Llywarch Hen.

Lleust Cadwallon heno
 Traithir yn nhymyr Penfro.

The encampment of Cadwallon to-night in the extreme of the temporality of Penfro. Llywarch Hen.

Ni rydd tyhyr awr
 i'w troed b'n tymhyr,
 Et dyn harwr
 Yn hwy ystawd.

He that is of eagle course will not give the length of his foot of his temporality, let fear of deprecation in the path of deprecation. Gwalchmai, i P. ab Marcellus.

Tymhyraw, v. a. (tymhyr) To attempt, to temper; to moderate. Tymhyra fo yn dda, temper it well.

Tymhyrawl, a. (tymhyr) Attemptate.

Tymhyriad, s. m. (tymhyr) A tempering.

Tymhyrodeb, s. m. (tymhyrawl) Temperateness

Tymp, s. m. (tym) Enlargement; the act or time of bringing forth; birth; season.

Budd dyn tymp.

Prodit before the birth.

Adage.

Tyn, s. m. (ty—yn) A pull, a draught; a stretch; a tendency, or inclination.

Ni phaid Pryddfaid a's tyn.

The Britons will not refrain from their inclination. B. ab I. Ddu.

Tyn, a. (ty—yn) Stretched, tight, strait, tightly stuffed or pressed; stubborn, pertinacious.

Pe tynaf to y llinga cynaf y tyr.

The tightest the string may be the sooner it will break. Adage.

Gochel y pechawd cynaf, canys y mae lleng yn dyn wrth ei awd.

Avoid the first sin, for there is a legion close at its heel. Adage.

Tynad, s. m. (tynau) A tightening, a straining.

Tynawl, a. (tynau) Tightening, straining.

Tynau, v. a. (tyn) To tighten, to strain.

Tynawl, a. (tyn) Drawing, straining, pulling.

Tynchwyydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (tyn—chwydd) A tumour.

Tyder, s. m. (tyn) Stretchedness, tightness, straitness; rigidity, rigour; austerity; stubbornness.

Rhag balchder, tyder y tir,
 Gwared f, Arlywydd gairwr.

From the pride, the stubbornness of the land, deliver me righteous Lord. H. D. ab I. Ddu.

Tyndir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (twn—tir) A fallow.

Tyndra, s. m. (tyn) Tightness, or straitness.

Tyndree, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tree) A draught gear.

Tyndreecyn, s. m. dim. (tyndree) An elevatory, a surgical instrument so called.

Tynedig, a. (tyn) Being drawn or pulled.

Tynedigaeth, s. m.—pl. t. au (tynedig) Attraction

Tynedigawl, a. (tynedig) Attractive, drawing.

Tynedigolrwydd, s. m. (tynedig) Attractiveness.

Tynell, s. f.—pl. t. i (tyn) A barrel; a tun.

Tynellaid, s. f.—pl. tynelleidiau (tynell) The quantity contained in a tun.

Tynelliad, s. m. (tynell) A filling a tun.

Tynellu, v. a. (tynell) To fill a tun.

Tyner, a. (tyn) Tender, lenient; assuasive.

Gair tyner dadl galed.

Tender word hard argument. Adage.

Tynerad, s. m. (tynerau) A rendering tender, an assuaging; a becoming tender.

Tynerawl, a. (tynerau) Tending to soften.

Tyneraid, a. (tyner) Somewhat tender.

Tynerau, v. n. (tyner) To become tender.

Y llu—

Er gwydd ei drugareddau
 Daw Nef rhod hwy i dynerau!

The multitude, according to the degree of his mercy, may the Lord God incline them to become gentle. H. D. ab I. Ddu.

Tynerawl, a. (tyner) Of a soothing nature.

Tyneredig, a. (tyner) Being made tender.

Tyneredd, s. m. (tyner) Tenderness, leniency.
Tyneriad, s. m. (tyner) A making tender; emollition, mollification.
Tynesiant, s. m. (tyner) Emolition; leniency.
Tynernwyf, s. m.—pl. t. au (tyner—nwyf) A tender passion.
Tyneru, v. a. (tyner) To soften, to assuage, to lenify, to make tender; to become tender.
Tynerus, a. (tyner) Of a tender quality.
Tynerusaw, v. a. (tynerus) To render lenient; to become tender, or lenient.
Tynerusrwydd, s. m. (tynerus) Tenderness.
Tynerwch, s. m. (tyner) Tenderness, lenity.
Tynfa, s. f.—pl. tynfeydd (tyn) A draught.

A oedd y fadh rin a thysfa yn llafe yr anwyld i enallt yr hen eglwys gynt!

Was there such a charm and attraction in the voice of the lover to gain the old church formerly? Rev. Omsin.

Tynfach, s. m.—pl. t. au (tyn—bach) A harpago,
 the gaffe of a cross-bow.
Tynfaen, s. m. (tyn—maen) A loadstone.
Tynfalch, a. (tyn—balch) Stubbornly proud.
Tynfalchedd, s. m. (tynfalch) Stubborn pride.
Tynfarch, s. m. (tyn—march) A draught horse.
Tynhegl, s. f. (tyn—hegl) A stretching limb.

Gorwysawg ton, tynhegl ebrwydd.

Crowned with foam the wave, of stretching limb the quick one.
H. ab Omsin Gwynedd.

Tynhng, s. f.—pl. t. au (tyn—hng) A close coat.
Tyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tyn) A pulling, a drawing, a tension; a pull, a draught; deduction.
Tyniadaw, a chyweirdanaw, modulations and chord-strings.
Tynlar, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tyn—lar) A bubble.
Tyniedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tyniad) A drawer.
Tynlath, s. f. (tyn—lath) A draught-tree.
Tyno, s. m. (twyn) A plain area, a plat, or plot;
 a dale; a green. Tyno Cock, the old name of Ceredigion.

Cood, maes, tyno, a bryn.

Wood, field, dale, and hill.

Taliesin.

Nid oes dwyn, na dwyn dyao,
 Yn neuas glyn Nant y Gloy—
 Na wyddost.

There is nor tump nor tedious dale, about the dinage of Nant y
 Gloy, but thou knowest. D. ab Gwilym.

Tynraff, s. f. (tyn—rhaff) A drawing rope.
Tynrwyd, s. f. (tyn—rhwyd) A dragnet.
Tynrwydd, s. m. (tyn) Rigidity, or tightness.
Tynrwym, s. m. (tyn—rhwym) A tight bandage.
Tynrwymaw, v. a. (tynrwym) To bind tightly.
Tynrwywiad, s. m. (tynrwym) A striction.
Tynn, v. a. (tyn) To draw, to pull, to lug. Tyna
hi gan bwyll, draw her on gently. Dyfed.

Cytton a dynnat a y mel.

The wraps will draw to the honey.

Adage.

Na thyn chwarae ar dalawg;
 Na fydd ry hyl ar rynnawg.

Draw no play from a savage; be not over encroaching on the good-natured. Llywarch Hen.

Hawdd t'fau ddaunedd blaidd, ond hwyr y t'fau o hano e' anian.
 It is easy to draw a wolf's teeth, but it will be long before his nature is pulled out of him. Adage.

Anterw, hwyliwa hall a thomas,
 A thynwa fed yu rhi,
 Ynad pob gwlad red redd,
 Un ion adrawon a thri.

Let us venture, let us range the brine and waves, and let us draw towards our Lord, the judge of every nation, dispenser grace, one supreme of lords and threes. Ceredwyn.

Tynwr, s. m.—pl. tynwyr (tyn—gwr) A puller.
Tynwydd, s. m. (tyn—gwydd) Direction, information, intelligence.
Tynwyddaw, v. a. (tynwydd) To direct, to guide

Tynwyddawl, a. (tynwydd) Directing, informing.
Tynwyddiad, s. m. (tynwydd) Direction, guidance.
Tynwyddwr, s. m.—pl. tynwyddwyr (tynwydd—
gwr) One who directs, or an informer.
Tynwyddyd, s. m. (tynwydd) Direction, guidance, information, intelligence. A eidd di rei ty- nyddyd i mi am dano? Canst thou give me intelligence about it? Sil.
Tyngad, s. m. (twng) A making a deposition, a plighting; a swearing; adjuration.
Tyngadwr, s. m.—pl. tyngadwyr (tyngad—gwr)
 An exorcist; an adjurer.
Tynged, s. f.—pl. t. ion (twng) Destiny, fate, fortune, luck. Tynged ddwng iddo! Bad luck to him!

Goreu tynged diwedd da.

The best fortune is a good end.

Adge.

Nid i bob amddawd tynged.

Fate is not attached to every circumstance.

Adge.

Trech tynged neg arfaeth.

Fate is more powerful than resolution.

Adge.

Ni all dyn ocell tynged.

A person cannot avoid fate.

Adge.

Tyngedawl, a. (tynged) Belonging to destiny.
Tyngedfen, s. f.—pl. t. au (tynged—mes) The fated or sworn necessity, fate, destiny.

Nid oes sawdd rhag tyngedfen.

There is no refuge against destiny.

Adge.

Tyngedfenawg, a. (tyngedfen) Being fated.
Tyngedfenawl, a. (tyngedfen) Belonging to fate;
 fatal; fortunate; predestined.
Tyngedfeniad, s. m. (tyngedfen) A rendering inable to fate; predestination.
Tyngedfenoldeb, s. m. (tyngedfenawl) The state of being subject to destiny; fatality.
Tyngedfenoli, v. a. (tyngedfenawl) To subject to fate; to become destined.
Tyngedfenolrwydd, s. m. (tyngedfenawl) A state subject to destiny.
Tyngedfennu, v. a. (tyngedfen) To predestinate.
Tyngedfennus, a. (tyngedfen) Predestinarian.

O fol drwg tyngedfennu! O ddew nyf! O agyddu dy' ni oes gwyd fyw o ddew! no chas awd.

Oh thou foolish one evil of destiny! Oh vain hope! Oh be than a shadow of a man! thou hast no more understanding than belongs to a beast. Marching Cry.

Tyngedfenawr, s. m.—pl. tyngedfenawyr (tyngedfen—gwr) A fatalist; a predestinator.
Tyngediad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tynged) Exorcism.
Tyngedig, a. (tynged) Being sworn. Mac of y
dyngedig, he is rather addicted to swearing.
Tyngedigawl, a. (tyngedig) Juratory.
Tyngediad, s. m. (tynged) Adjuration.
Tyngedu, v. a. (tynged) To make a pledge; to adjure. Wg' yn dy dyngedu i fyned allan, i adjure thee to go out.

Arthur aia hogedl;

Naw can cad a' tyngedaf;

O'm lleddir, mawr a' loddir.

Arthur I will not be intimidated by; alas hundred blades I've adjured him: W! I should be killed, I too will kill.

Ynodd. Tryfan a Gwlad.

Tyngedwr, s. m. (tynged—gwr) An exorcist.
Tyngiad, s. m. (twng) A swearing, a deposing.
Tyngnaith, s. f. (twng—naith) A sanctuary.

I'm tyngnaith eiddau ddaugol,
 Y gwyr all o'i fangor ei.

To their sanctuaries they will seek for tranquillity, all the men of his high choir. Rev. Sam. ab Rhedderch, 1189.

Tyngnawdd, s. m. (twng—nawdd) Sworn protection.

Tyngu, v. a. (twng) To render fixed or unalterable; to depose; to swear, to take an oath; to adjure. Tyngu awdon, to swear a false oath.

Nid ddaer driad pa dyng.

The mischievous cares not what he swears.

Adage.

Mai hyn y bu y dangneffed rhyngdynt; add amgen, talu o henaf—dirfawr swmp o arian i Louis, fab brenin Ffrainc, trwy dyngu ohoos yntas deyrnas Lloegr yu dragwyddawl.

In this manner was there peace between them; that is to say, by Henry's paying an immense sum of money to Louis, the son of the king of France, through his aid, using on his part the kingdom of England for ever. Brat y Saxon.

Tyngwr, s. m.—pl. tyngwyr (twng—gwr) A swearer.

Tyrawl, a. (twr) Heaping, or accumulating.

Tyrch, s. m. (torch) That consists of circles.

Tyrchaid, a. (twrch) Hoggish, or like a hog.

Tyrchawl, a. (twrch) Belonging to a pig, or hog.

Tyrches, s. f.—pl. t. od (twrch) A splayed sow.

Tyrch a thyrches, a splayed boar and splayed sow.

Tyrchiad, s. m. (twrch) A burrowing, as a pig.

Tyrchu, v. a. (twrch) To turn up; to burrow.

Tyrchwyr, s. m. (twrch—gwr) A mole-catcher.

Tyrchyn, s. m. dim. (twrch) A little hog; a hoggish fellow.

Tyrddain, v. a. (twrdd) To be blustering, to storm.

Tyrddan, s. m. (twrdd) A blustering, a turmoil.

Tyrddiad, s. m. (twrdd) A blustering, a storming.

Tyrddu, v. a. (twrdd) To bluster, or to storm.

Triged yno ar fro ffras,

Tyrddad mewn tai o urddas.

Let him abide there in the rich country, let him bluster in houses of renown.

Tho. Llynclyn.

Tyrddwr, s. m. (twrdd—gwr) A blusterer.

Tyredig, a. (twr) Heaped, or accumulated.

Tyrfa, s. f.—pl. tyrfeydd (twrf) A multitude.

Un dyrfis a was drwyfys,

Rhag fy lliail gael mael i'n mysg.

One host ruleth a tumult, lest the other should obtain an advantage amongst us.

H. D. ab Ifan.

Tyrfain, v. a. (twrf) To be blustering, to storm. s. m. A storm, a tumult.

Mai gwallth Arderydd gwyth ar dyrfain cad.

Like the battle of Arderydd wrath in the storm of conflict.

Cynddew.

Tyrfan, v. a. (twrf) To cause a drawing together; to be contracted.

Tyrfedig, a. (twrf) Being heaped; being drawn together; contracted.

Tyrnad, s. m. (twrf) A heaping; a turning up, as swine do the ground; a contraction, or shrinking.

Tyrfu, v. a. (twrf) To draw together; to rise tumultuously; to contract, to shrink.

Tôn tyrdd, told crdd.

The wave is belterous, it covers the shore. Llywarch Hen.

Eiulon i was, huch i dyrfu.

An ox to spread, a sow to turn up.

Talbacia.

Tyriad, s. m. (twr) A heaping; accumulation.

Tyriaw, v. a. (twr) To heap up; to turn up.

Tyru, v. a. (twr) To heap, to pile; to make a heap, to amass, to collect, to accumulate.

Am benneth ydd ym, am bennaf terwyn

Tyrant feirdd am alaf.

Around a chief we are, around the chiefest of the fierce bards will gather together after wealth.

Cynddew, i O. ab Medawg.

Tyrwn, s. m.—pl. tyrwnod (twr) A sand-bank; also called tywoden and traethell.

Tyrwr, s. m.—pl. tyrwyr (tyru—gwr) A heaper.

Tysmwy, s. m.—pl. t. on (tw—mwy) A throbbing, a palpitation; horror, trembling. Tysmwy ar un wedi gweled ellyll, horror upon one after seeing a monster.

Nid esmwyth hyn o dysmwy;

Ni bu boen ar farw-groen lwy.

Not comfortable this fit of shivering; there never was a bed-bummed skin in greater pain.

D. ab Gwilym.

Tysmwyad, s. m. (tysmwy) A throbbing, a palpitation; a trembling with fear.

Tysmwyaw, v. a. (tysmwy) To throb; to tremble with fear.

Tysmwyawl, a. (tysmwy) Throbbing; shivering.

Tyst, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ty—yst) One who testifies.

Tystiad, s. m. (tyst) A testing, a witnessing.

Tystiant, s. m.—pl. tystiant (tyst) A witness.

Tystiaw, v. a. (tyst) To testify, to bear witness.

Tystiawl, a. (tyst) Testifying, witnessing.

Tystiedig, a. (tystiad) Being testified or witnessed.

Tystiolaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (tystiawl) Testimony.

Tystiolaethawl, a. (tystiolaeth) Testimonial.

Tystiolaethiad, s. m. (tystiolaeth) A testifying.

Tystiolaethu, v. a. (tystiolaeth) To give a testimony; to bear witness.

Tystiolaethwr, s. m.—pl. tystiolaethwyr (tystiolaeth—gwr) One who gives testimony; testifier.

Tyatiwr, s. m. (tystiaw—gwr) A testifier.

Tysyn, s. m. dim. (tw) The bottom of a ball of yarn or thread.

Tytmwy, s. m.—pl. t. au (tw—mwy) A loop; a clasp; a buckle.

Tytmwy ar adwy ydoedd.

Tsat cued, ar nant cwlau oedd—

Y faren.—

A fastening on a gap in it, the string of the wood, across a single strong was the bridle.

D. ab Gwilym.

Tytmywyad, s. m. (tytmwy) A fastening with a loop, clasp, or buckle.

Tytmywyaw, v. a. (tytmwy) To fasten with a loop, clasp, or buckle; to buckle.

Tytmyyawg, a. (tytmwy) Having a fastening loop.

Tytmywedig, a. (tytmwyad) Fastened by looping.

Tyw, s. m. (ty) That tends to over-spread.

Tywall, s. m. (tyw—gwall) A pour; a spill. v. a.

To pour; to shed, to spill.

Tywalliad, s. m. (tywall) A pouring; a shedding.

Tywallt, s. m. (tywall) A pour; a spill. v. a. To pour; to shed, to spill.

Tywalltawg, a. (tywallt) Having a pouring.

Tywalltawl, a. (tywallt) Pouring, spilling.

Tywalltedig, a. (tywallt) Being poured out.

Tywalltiad, s. m. (tywallt) A pouring; a shedding.

Tywalltiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tywalltiad) One who makes a pouring; a pourer.

Tywalltn, v. a. (tywallt) To pour; to shed.

Tywalltwr, s. m.—pl. tywalltwyr (tywallt—gwr)

A pourer; a shedder.

Tywalltydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tywallt) A pourer.

Tywarch, s. m. aggr. pl. tyweirch (tyw—arch) A spreading element; a sod, a clod, a turf.

Nid oes dim dyfalfawn, ond digon o dywarch yn y Wyddgrug.

There is no deep peat, but plenty of turf in the Wyddgrug.

Ed. Llywd.

Tywarchawg, a. (tywarch) Turfy, glebous; swardy.

Tywarchawl, a. (tywarch) Turfy, or glebous.

Tywarchawr, s. m.—pl. tywarchorion (tywarch)

That is of the sod; an epithet for the ox in a yoke on the turf side, as opposed to rhychawr, or the one that walks in the furrow.

Tywarchen, s. m. (tywarch) That is over or covering; a summit; an element, a constituent matter; a sod, a clod. Y pum tywarchen, the five elements. Bardas.

Y ddwy dywarchen yr e pob iddynt; y nef ac y ddalar.

The two elements into which every body goes; the heaven and the earth. Tyrcodd Athron.

Syrllynt y rhai brathedig, a'r eryddian yn eu hymysgroedd; a chlan amlyd y rhedai y dywarchen o'r gwadd, a chyd bai ddydd ddiwedd yst yn llyncu eidd y'r mor.

The wounded ones were falling, with the propelled shafts in their bosoms; and so abundantly did the sods rip with blood, as if a sudden south wind were sinking the snow into the sea. Gir. ab Artur.

Tywarchiad, s. m. (tywarch) A forming of glêbe, turf, or sod; a swarding.

Tywarchlyd, s. (tywarch) Turfy, swardy, glebous.

Tywarchus, v. a. (tywarch) To form turf or sod; to sward; to cover with turf.

*Cyn gwerdd gorolwr digu,
Cyn anafus tywarchu tywarchu
Fy nghuan, tywarchu o bobig,
Dwy gwad Daw cyn noni goweg!*

Before the bed fell to the extreme and unlovely, before the angelic spread of covering with turf my flesh, a sod on either side, may I be a servant of God ere I be silenced? Eilaf Sain.

Tywas, s. m.—pl. tyweision (ty—gwas) A house servant, a domestic.

Dy gynsoga ni gynall y tywas.

Thy debtor will not maintain the domestic. Ll. P. Moch, i L. ab Iorwerth.

Tyawd, s. m.—pl. tywodydd (tyw) Sand.

Tywell, s. m.—pl. t. i (tyw) A cloth, a towel.

Tyweli came, cheese cloths. Borrowed from Engl.

Tywell, s. (f. of tywyll) Dark, obscure, dusky.

*Nes da'r tywyll dywell;
Ni wn oes an tywyll well.*

Good night to this dusky tale; I know not that there is a better tale. Ll. Goch ab Iorwerth.

Tywarchyn, s. m. dim. (tywarch) A clod, a sod.

Tywi, s. m. (tyw) The state of being spread.

Tywlad, s. m. (tyw) A spreading over.

Tywlaw, v. a. (tyw) To spread about.

Tywlawl, s. (tyw) Tending to overspread.

Tywodalld, s. (tywawd) Arenaceous; like sand.

Tywodlawg, s. (tywawd) Having sand; sandy.

Tywodawl, s. (tywawd) Arenaceous; sandy.

Tywodi, v. a. (tywawd) To sand; to become sand.

Tywodiad, s. m. (tywawd) A forming of sand.

Tywodlyd, s. (tywawd) Sandy, full of sand.

Tywodlydrwydd, s. m. (tywodlyd) Sandiness.

Tywodwlydd, s. m. (tywawd—gwydd) Sandwort.

Tywodyn, s. m. dim. (tywawd) A grain of sand.

Tywota, v. a. (tywawd) To gather sand.

Tywu, v. a. (tyw) To spread about, to dilate.

Tywydd, s. m. (tyw) That is of a spreading principle; the atmosphere; the weather.

*Hwyt dr dywydd dydd; a wnaeth deuddyn hen;
Hwynt a gad o'r biddyn.*

He, on the expansion of day, did form two primitive persons; they were had from earthly substance. L. G. Cuth.

Am y tywydd gorau teul.

About this weather it is best to be silent. Adage.

Tywyll, s. m. (ty—gwyll) Dark; dusk, gloom. a. Dark; dusky, gloomy.

Llewychid gwyr yn nhywyll.

The truth eludes in the dark. Adage.

*Ynneff Cyddylan vs tywyll heno,
Heb dan, heb oleud;
Eidd amryw am danned!*

The hall of Cyddylan is dark this night, without fire, without light; a deadly silence goes about thee! Llywarch Hen.

Tywyllawd, s. m. (tywyll) An obscuration.

Tywyllawdr, s. m.—pl. tywyllodron (tywyllawd) One who makes obscure or dark.

Tywyllawr, s. m. (tywyll) An obscurer.

Tywylledig, s. (tywyll) Darkened, obscured.

Tywylliad, s. m. (tywyll) A darkening, an obscuring.

Tywyllu, v. a. (tywyll) To darken, to obscure; to grow dark, to become obscure, to grow dusky or gloomy.

Tywyllwch, s. m. (tywyll) Darkness, obscurity.

Tywyllwg, s. m. (tywyll) Darkness, obscurity.

Tywyllwr, s. m.—pl. tywyllwyr (tywyll—gwr) A darkener, one who renders obscure.

Tywyn, s. m.—pl. t. ydd (tyw) A spread; a strand; a ray, or beam of light.

Ble yw ar bob bismenwydd, Blodeuyn o dywyn dydd.

Troubled to it on every change, a flower from the light of day. D. ab Gwilym, i'r Mawl.

Tywynawg, s. (tywyn) Having a splendor.

Tywynawl, s. (tywyn) Shining, resplendent.

Tywynedig, s. (tywyn) Being made shining.

Tywynedigaeath, s. m. (tywynedig) Resplendency

Tywynedigrwydd, s. m. (tywynedig) Shiningness

Tywyniad, s. m. (tywyn) A shining, a radiating.

Tywynu, v. a. (tywyn) To shine, to cast a lustre.

Tan o'r fon y tywyll Tywynedd.

Fire from the bosom of the expanse above did shine. Iolo Goch, i ardd. mch.

Tywynwg, s. m. (tywyn) A shiningness.

Tywynygawl, s. (tywynwg) Resplendent.

Tywynygad, s. m. (tywynwg) Illumination.

Tywynygu, v. a. (tywynwg) To cast a splendor.

*Y fed a wneid yn rhin nant,
Ni a dywyng yn nwydd cant.*

The crime that is committed in the secret of the single, it will reflect a light in the presence of a hundred. Adage.

Tywys, s. m. (ty—gwys) A lead, or guidance. v. a. To lead, to conduct.

Llawys gorwydd—Llawys gwneid fawr fawdd tywys.

Many a steed, many of dusky boy prancing in the lead. Gwneid mch.

Tywysaw, v. a. (tywys) To lead, or to conduct.

Tywysgawl, s. (tywys) Having a lead. s. m.—pl.

Tywysogion. A leader, a prince.

Mynech i'r pridd bed ar wallpas fo tywysaw ymchad.

Frequently meet the hard to stray when the steer is a leader. Adage.

Tywysawl, s. (tywys) Leading, conducting.

Tywysedig, s. (tywys) Being conducted or led.

Tywysel, s. f.—pl. t. i (tywys) A plug.

Tywysg, s. m. (ty—wysg) A procession. v. a. To proceed forward.

Bx. a. Undwladr hyd at Gwilym Bastardr, agafu breich o'r Saeon olynol, a thirchanniaedd y basat yn tywysg.

There have been, from Cadwaladr down to William Bastard, twenty kings of the Saxons in succession, and three hundred years they continued going on. Bret y Saxon.

Tywysgaw, v. a. (tywysg) To proceed onward.

Tywysgawl, s. (tywysg) Tending to go onward.

Tywysgiad, s. m. (tywysg) A proceeding forward.

Tywysiad, s. m. (tywysg) A leading, a conducting.

Tywysogaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (tywysawg) Principality.

Tywysogaidd, s. (tywysawg) Like a leader.

Tywysogawl, s. (tywysawg) Like a leader.

Tywysogeiddiad, s. m. (tywysogaidd) A rendering princely; a becoming princely.

Tywysogeiddaw, v. a. (tywysogaidd) To render princely; to become princely.

Tywysogeiddrwydd, s. m. (tywysogaidd) Princeliness.

Tywysoges, s. f.—pl. t. au (tywysawg) A prince.

Tywyswr, s. m.—pl. tywyswyr (tywys—gwr) A man who leads.

U.

UCH

UCH

UB, s. m. r. That is out, or extreme; that is high, or loud; a howl, a loud cry.
Ubain, v. a. (nb) To howl, to utter doleful cries.
s. m. A howling.

*Gwas hwyd y gethera,
 A fymat uffern
 Byth gwedi yma;
 Yn y mae ubain,
 Yn y mae ll-fain,
 A llawer pin.*

*Was to them the floods, who seek for hell ever after the present;
 where there is howling, where there is wailing, and many a torment.* Im. Athrow.

Uban, s. m. (nb) A howling, a loud crying.
UCH, s. f. r.—pl. t. ion. That breaks out, or rises; a sigh.

*Could uch yn arhodd,
 Nead Uria ei blaidd!*

If there is a cry in distress, is it not Uria who drives it away! Taliesin.

Uch, a. (uch, s.) Being over or above; higher.
Uch, prep. (uch, s.) Above, over. a. Higher, used for uchaf.

Gwawd uch ben dedwydd ddiodes.

Accordant over the head of the prudent is a shelter. Adage.

Uchad, s. m. (uch) The act of rising higher.
Uchaf, a. (uch) Upmost, uppermost, highest.

A gair Dew yn uchaf.

With the word of God uppermost. Adage.

Uchafael, s. m. (uchaf) A going aloft; ascension.

*Gostwag a fu'r cyfrwng cael
 A chyfoed iau'r Uchafael.*

Hemulation was the intermediate act, and a resurrection on Ascension Thursday. Iwan Drulwyn.

Uchafed, a. (uchaf) Being over or above. Lledr uchafed, upper leather.

Uchafodu, v. a. (uchafed) To make a top part; to vamp.

Uchafodd, s. m. (uchaf) Loftiness, pre-eminence.

Uchafiad, s. m. (uchaf) A rising over or above.

Uchafiaeth, s. m. (uchaf) Supremacy, superiority.

Llyma fel y departhant deyrnnes Cymru yn dair rhan: un a hys uchafiaeth ar y ddwy; ad amlwg nos Aberffraw pin y benderig-weth.

Behold the manner they divide the kingdoms of Wales into three parts: one possesses supremacy over the two; that is to say, Aberffraw has the sovereignty. Tydwdd.

Uchafiaethawl, a. (uchafiaeth) Appertaining to supremacy.

Uchafiaetholdeb, s. m. (uchafiaethawl) A state of supremacy or superiority.

Uchafiaethu, v. a. (uchafiaeth) To create supremacy; to exercise superiority.

Uchanedd, s. m. (uch—anedd) The gums. Dodi mel ar uchannedd plentygn, to apply honey to the gums of a child. Dyfed.

Uchanian, s. f. (uch—anian) A superior nature. a. Of superior nature; supernatural.

Uchanianaeth, s. f. (uchanian) Metaphysics.

Uchanianawl, a. (uchanian) Metaphysical.

Uchanianoldeb, s. m. (uchanianawl) A state of superior nature; supernaturalness.

Uchanianolder, s. (uchanianawl) Supernaturalness
Uchanianoli, v. a. (uchanianawl) To render of superior nature; to become of superior nature; to become supernatural.

Uchanianolrwydd, s. m. (uchanianawl) A state of superior nature; supernaturalness.

VOL. II.

Uchanianu, v. a. (uchanian) To render of superior nature; to become of superior nature; to become supernatural.

Ucharn, s. m.—pl. t. edd (uch—arn) The region of the ankle; the ankle; the same as uffarn.

Uchaw, v. a. (uch) To heighten, or to elevate.

Uchawl, a. (uch) Relating to height; elevating.

Uchdeb, s. m. (uch) Highness, loftiness, height.

Uchder, s. m. (uch) Highness, loftiness, height.

Uchdeyrn, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (uch—teyrn) A sovereign prince.

Uchdeyrnas, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (uchdeyrn) A superior realm or kingdom.

Uchdeyrnedd, s. m. (uchdeyrn) Supreme monarchy

Uchdra, s. m. (uch) Loftiness, altitude, height.

Uched, a. (uch) High, elevated, or exalted.

*Pam ucher uched pan uchbed Ffrainc,
 Pan ffaraon loed.*

Five elevated vespers were had when France was saved, when mighty ones were put to flight. H. ab Owain Gwynedd.

Uchediad, s. m. (uched) A soaring, an elevation.

Uchedu, v. a. (nched) To soar; to elevate.

Uchedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (uched) A soarer.

*I gryn gyda thraed yr uch,
 A chollt gyda'r uchafydd.*

To sleep with the turning out of the cat, and to rise with the lark. Adage.

Uchedd, s. m. (uch) Highness, loftiness, altitude; grandeur; a top, or surface.

Uchel, a. (uch—el) High, lofty; towering; stately. It is prefixed in composition. 'Mol-wch ef yn yr uchelion,' Praise him in the high-places.

A ddrigau yn rhy uchel, fo dyr y brigyn dano.

He that climbs too high, the branch will break under him. Adage.

*Darlle'r gamf, darlle'r orffel,
 Darlle'r gwlad a'r gwynedd uchel;
 Daeth y gwawryn glyn egleng,
 Dail fy llyso, a dol faldeng.*

Past is the winter, past is the cold, past is the rain and the high winds; the green vegetating spring is come, leaves to the grove, and the dale covered with trefoils. Rd. Mathew, o Fergawng.

Uchelawg, a. (uchel) Having height or altitude: yr uchelawg, the misseletoe; also called uchel-awr, uchelfa, uchelfal, and uchelfar.

Ucheldad, s. m. (uchel—dad) A supreme father.

Uchelder, s. m.—pl. t. au (uchel) Loftiness, height.

*Y Dew ucheldreul—
 Fy llygaid i fy hun at gwel,
 Ar dirion ucheldreul.*

The incomprehensible God, my own eyes shall him behold, on pleasant heights. Elis Wyn.

Ucheldir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (uchel—tir) High land.

Ucheldra, s. m. (uchel) Highness, or elevatedness

Ucheldrem, s. f.—pl. t. iau (uchel—trem) A high look. a. Of supercilious look.

Ucheldremiad, s. (ucheldrem) A highly looking.

Ucheldremiaw, v. a. (ucheldrem) To look highly.

Ucheldremiawl, a. (ucheldrem) Highly looking.

Ucheldrum, a. (uchel—trum) A high ridge.

Ucheldrumiad, s. m. (trum) A forming a high ridge

Ucheldrumiaw, v. a. (ucheldrum) To form a high ridge.

Ucheldrumiawg, a. (ucheldrum) Being high ridged

Ucheldyb, s. m.—pl. t. iau (uchel—tyb) A high opinion. a. Of a high opinion.

Ucheldybiaw, v. a. (ucheldyb) To hold a high opinion.

Ucheledig, a. (uchel) Being heightened, elevated.
 Ucheledd, s. m. (uchel) Altitude, elevatedness.
 Uchelfa, s. f.—pl. uchelfydd (uchel) High place.
 Uchelfaer, s. m. (uchel—maer) A high constable.
 Uchelfal, s. m. (uchel—bal) The misseltoe.
 Uchelfalch, a. (uchel—balch) Of stately pride.
 Uchelfalchedd, s. (uchelfalch) High-mettledness.
 Uchelfan, s. f.—pl. t. au (uchel—mân) High place.
 Uchelfar, s. m. (uchel—bar) A high sammit; also the misseltoe, otherwise called uchelfa, uchelfal, uchelwydd, uchellawg, uchellawr, pren awyr, and grysgonillys.

—Cor goelwain
 Uchelfar uchelfab Owain.

The circle of the oracle stone of the high branch of the elevated son of Owain.

Uchelfawr, a. (uchel) Eminently great or grand.
 Uchelfeddwl, s. m. (uchel—meddwl) Lofty mind.
 Uchelfen, s. f.—pl. t. au (uch—elfen) A superior element.
 Uchelfryd, s. m. (uchel—bryd) A lofty mind. a. High-minded, magnanimous.
 Uchelgaer, s. f. (uchel—caer) A high rampart.
 Uchelgaerawg, a. (uchelgaer) Of high rampart.
 Uchelgais, s. f. (uchel—cais) A lofty attempt.
 Uchelgeisiaw, v. a. (uchelgais) To make a lofty attempt; to be ambitious.
 Uchelgrug, s. m. (uchel—crug) A lofty tump.

O fro Echelfaint uchelgrug.

From the region of Echelfaint of elevated peak. Ll. P. Moch.

Uchelyllid, s. m. (uchel—cyllid) A chief rent; an annual tribute of corn.
 Uchelhed, s. f. (uchel—hed) A high flight or soar.
 Uchelheddiad, s. m. (uchelhed) A high-flying.
 Uchelheddydd, s. m. (uchelhed) A high-flier.
 Uchelhiad, s. m. (uchel) A making lofty, a heightening; a becoming elevated.
 Ucheliant, s. m. (uchel) Elevation, exaltation.
 Uchelradd, s. f. (uchel—gradd) A high degree.
 Uchelraddawg, a. (uchelradd) Of a high degree.
 Uchelraddiad, s. m. (uchelradd) Of a high degree.
 Uchelraddu, v. a. (uchelradd) To raise to a high degree.
 Uchelraith, s. f.—pl. uchelreithian (uchel—raith) A grand jury.
 Uchelred, s. f. (uchel—rhed) An elevated course.
 Uchelreithiad, s. m. (uchelraith) A forming a grand jury.
 Uchelreithiaw, v. a. (uchelraith) To form a grand jury; to act as a grand jury.
 Uchelreithiwr, s. m.—pl. uchelreithiwyrr (uchelraith—gwr) A grand jury man.
 Uchelryw, s. m.—pl. t. iau (uchel—rhyw) A superior kind. a. Of superior kind; highborn.
 Uchelsaf, s. f. (uchel—saf) High standing.
 Uchelsain, s. f. (uchel—sain) A high note.
 Uchelsant, s. m. (uchel—sant) A superior saint.

Eurbarch uchelsant brant brethwal.

The gloriously revered superior saints of royal privilege.

Bledydd Fardd.

Uchelsanteth, s. m. (uchelsant) A hierarchy.
 Uchelswydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (uchel—swydd) A high office.
 Uchelswyddawg, a. (uchelswydd) Having a high office. s. m.—pl. uchelswyddogion, A high officer.
 Uchelsyth, a. (uchel—syth) Being highly erect.
 Uchelsythiad, s. m. (uchelsyth) A rendering highly erect.
 Uchelsythu, v. a. (uchelsyth) To be highly erect.
 Ucheta, v. a. (uchel) To make high, to exalt.
 Uchelurdd, s. f.—pl. t. au (uchel—urdd) High order

Uchelurddas, s. f.—pl. t. au (uchelurdd) High dignity.

Uchelurddaw, v. a. (uchelurdd) To raise to a high order, rank, or station.

Uchelurddiad, s. m. (uchelurdd) A raising to a high order, rank, or dignity.

Uchelwared, s. m. (uchel—gward) High blood.

Uchelwr, s. m.—pl. uchelwyr (uchel—gwr) A high man; a gentleman; a freeholder.

Un lle y dyll mab fod yn arghwydd ar ei dad o gyfrith: o ddydd uchelwr rdddi el ferch i'w allid o bun, a bod mewn llydau, a gwedi byrr marw yr uchelwr, a chael o ffron yr allid fawr o dle eu bennid; y rhai byrr rdddi arghwydd ar eu tad, o fawr, a dawed en i'w yn rhai yr allid: ym y dydd y mab yn arghwydd ar ei dad.

There is one case where a son ought to be lord over his father by law: if a freeholder should have given his daughter to his own alien, and they have children, and then the freeholder dies, and the children of the alien obtain maternal right to the land of their grandfather; those sons will be lord over their father, through maternity, so their father comes under the division of the alien: so therefore the son becomes lord over his father.

Welsh Law.

Uchelwriaeth, s. m. (uchelwr) The rank or state of a gentleman, or freeholder.

Uchelwyl, s. m. (uchel—gwyl) A high festival.

Uchelydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (uchel) A superior.

Lle bydd uchelydd ar ychydig.

Where there is lord over a little.

Bywel Interp.

Uchelyddiaeth, s. m. (uchelydd) The state of a superior.

Uchell, s. f. (uch) What is on high or aloft.

Uchellawg, a. (uchell) Having a lofty site.

Uchellawr, s. m. (uchell) What is most exalted; the misseltoe.

Caing uchellawr tringafst a dda.

A branch of misseltoe sixty paces is its value. Welsh Law.

Uchenaid, s. f.—pl. ucheneidion (uch—enaid) The rising or groan of the soul; a sigh.

Uchenaid gwrach ar ol ei hwd.

The sigh of an old woman after her candle.

Idig.

Am frig Moreddid mawr raid wlygyddi

Ar Lock: fawr ucheneid.

For the top of Moreddid great the necessity for the rise of Eagland to cast a sigh.

Ucheneidiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (uchenaid) A sighing.

Ucheneidiaw, v. a. (uchenaid) To utter sighs.

Ucheneidiawl, a. (uchenaid) Sighing, apt to sigh.

Ucheneidiwr, s. m. (uchenaid—gwr) A sigher.

Ucher, s. m. (uch) An overcast; the evening.

Pa decal y bore, hacraf yr ucher.

The more fine the morning, the more rough the evening.

Idig.

Ucher a ddaw gan ddyrygion.

A gale will come with the storm.

Idig.

Caifan—

Bendigaid a daith o'i gywethydd,

Pan ddaith ei cyfrost, bounaeth, bounydd;

Pan dyfu chwast sylle ar eadlydd,

Yn mher Aber Menwenfer ucher echwydd.

Cadran, blessed is whoever travels through his sadness, when he comes into the country, by night, by day; when a sailor beholding came on a progeny, in the sweet country of Menwenfer of tranquil evening.

Llywelyn Fardd.

Ucherawl, a. (ucher) Being overcast; evening.

Ucherddaw, s. m. (ucher—daw) Evening tide.

Mor deg y geill di gall arwyddu

Merwerydd echwydd ac ucherddaw.

So fair came thou discreetly delineate the tranquil ocean and evening tide.

Idig.

Ucherydd, s. m. (uch—erydd) A high shock.

Mai ucherydd gwynn wrth awyrd.

Like the high shock of the wind on ash trees.

Fallan.

Ucheriad, s. m. (ucher) An overcasting; a becoming evening.

Ucheru, v. a. (ucher) To overcast; to become evening. Pan ucherai y dydd, when the day drew to a close.

Uchertwl, s. f.—pl. t. dian (uch—gwpl) Evening tide watch; a vesper, or vigil.
Uchfaint, s. m.—pl. uchfreintiau (uch—braint) A supreme right, a prerogative.
Uchfreintlys, s. m. (uchfaint—llys) A court of superior privilege.
Uch-hed, s. f. (uch—hed) A superior flight.
Uch-hetleg, v. a. (uch—hed) To fly in a higher course.
Uch-hedfa, s. f. (uch—hed) A superior flight.
Uch-hediad, s. m. (uch—hed) A superior flying.
Uchiad, s. m. (uch) A heightening; exaltation.
Ucho, prep. (uch) Above. adv. Above, over.

*Y byd go ddompl a deimla i gyd,
 A chwaen o lechyd a chwysychais;
 Am oled y byd mi a wylais dwr byr,
 Am uch a mudiad mi a chwariadis!*

The world of frail tendency I have experienced all, and a state of health I have desired; after the wealth of the world I have wopt living water, concerning the true God above I have laughed.
L. G. Cofai.

Uchod, prep. (uch) Above. adv. Above, over head. Nef uchod a datar isod, heaven above and earth beneath.
Uchuch, prep. (uch, repeated) Above and above.

Gwynllwch aly uchuch aches delydd.

White driving snow above and above the surface of the dunes. beneath Ephen.

UD, s. m. r. That is high, loud, or shrill; a howl; a blast of a clarion or trumpet.
Udaw, v. a. (ud) To howl, to yell; to yell.

Aruthredd gwelod y ddyf, y seirf, ac y ddyddiad a chaw wrechhon y tan y gwelant wy; wynia hagen a'r germain truanaf ganddynt; ac yn mawr, ac yn wylaw, ac yn ymffwr.

Dreadful thing to behold the devil, and the serpents, and the dequent; and this from the sparks of the fire that they see; they besides keep up the most miserable outcry, and are howling, and weeping, and striking one another.
Eniridarius.

Udawg, v. a. (ud) Full of howling; yelling.
Udawl, v. a. (ud) Howling, yelling; yelping.
Udawl, s. f.—pl. udfwydd (ud) A howling, yelling.
Udgan, s. f. (ud—gan) A sound of a trumpet.
Udganawl, a. (udgan) Resounding as a trumpet.
Udganlad, s. m. (udgan) A sounding a trumpet.
Udgann, v. a. (udgan) To sound a trumpet.
Udganwyr, s. m.—pl. udganwyr (udgan—gwr) A trumpeter.
Udgorn, s. m.—pl. udgyrn (ud—corn) A trumpet

Udgorn angau yw posoch eych.

The trumpet of death is a dry cough. Adage.

Udlat, s. m. (ud) A making a howling, a yelling.
Udlais, s. m.—pl. udlaisian (ud—llais) A howling noise.

*—Diar ordd
 Eigion udlais gonedlloedd.*

Bedlam was the deeply howling cry of madmen.
W. Middleton.

Udlef, s. (ud—lef) Ejaculation; howling voice.
Udlefain, v. a. (udlef) To make a howling cry.
Udlefawg, a. (udlef) Having a howling cry.
Udlefawl, a. (udlef) Of a howling cry.
Udlefod, s. m. (udlef) A making a howling cry.
Udon, s. m. (ud—on) A solemn cry; an imprecation.
Udonawl, a. (udon) Being imprecated.
Udoni, v. a. (udon) To make imprecation.
Udoniad, s. m. (udon) An imprecation.
Udoniaeth, s. m. (udon) An imprecation.
Udwr, s. m.—pl. udwyr (ud—gwr) A howler.
UDD, s. m. r. That is ever, above, or superior; a chief; a lord. Mor Udd, the name of the British Sea, or King's Channel.

*Graffudd mynawg add mynad;
 Mynud wrth foth, wrth flwyr bu gwidd,
 Bu gorddwy ar allawr.*

Graffudd the courteous master of civility; civility to the song of praise, towards the warriors he was furious, he was the trouble of regions beyond the seas. D. ab Ll. Myrddin, m. G. ab Cymen.

Uddyf, a. (udd—yf) Humble, obedient, meek.

*A ffrach gynyf ffrans,
 Uddyf y tyf a fydd tan.*

What thou wouldst likewise have from me, obsequiously will grow up what will be thine. H. ab D. ab T. ab Rhys.

Uddyfriad, s. m. (uddyfrian) Obedience.
Uddyfian, v. a. (uddyf) To humble; to obey.
Uddyfawd, s. m. (uddyf) Obedience; humility.
UF, s. m. r. That is over, spread, or diffused.
Ufel, s. m.—pl. f. ion (uf—el) Elementary fire; a spark of fire.

Al un hyn gwynt, al un dwfr mor, Al un ufel tan wrth ddiachor!

Is there but one course to the wind, is there but one to the water of the sea, is there but one to the spark of fire of unresist-ible tumult? Tolluin.

*Rhuthr uthr ufel,
 Rhypawd awel
 Khyfel febin.*

Like the dread assault of fire, like the chilling of the gale is the war of youth. Cubelyn.

*Ti angau—
 Nis llyng ufel,
 Nis lladd oerfel,
 Nis lladd arfus.*

Thou death, that fire will not burn, that cold will not obstruct, that arms will not slay. Iolo Goch.

Ufelai, s. c. (ufel) That generates fire, that is elementary of fire; oxygen.

Ufelaid, a. (ufel) Of fiery tendency; sulphurous

Ufelawg, a. (ufel) Full of fiery particles.

Ufelre, s. f. (ufel—bre) A fire hill; a volcano.

The name of a hill in Pembrokeshire, giving name to a comet.

Ufelar, s. m. (ufel) That generates fire; that yields sparks or flame; sulphur.

*Llywelyn, cyd lledwyr trwy far,
 Cyd lloegwr nid lleug ufelar.*

Llywelyn, whilst he stays through wrath, whilst he burns not feeble the sulphur flame. L. P. Meek.

*Llew Aser aerllew, aerllyd ufehar,
 Aerbellt bar bodd erlid,
 Llyw gylw giewdraws yu ugoed,
 Llew torf larian eurgymid.*

*The slaughter-lion Aser fell! in wrath
 As fiery flame the bear with scathing lance,
 In difficulty brave as guide and chief,
 With gold rim shield a lion of the host.*
Cynadelfu, m. t. O. Gwynedd.

Ufelin, a. (ufel) Of a fiery nature, generating fire; oxygen.

Ufelu, v. a. (ufel) To generate fire; to ignite, to ignite.

Ufelydd, s. m. (ufel) That is on fire.

*Dwr ar fain dwyr' orw a fydd
 Llun di yn dan afelydd.*

Beneath the noble beast along the plain water to sporting fire hodies upon the stones. T. Aled, i jorch.

Ufelyddiad, s. m. (ufelydd) Ignition, an igniting.

Ufelyddiaeth, s. m. (ufelydd) Pyrotechny.

Ufelyn, s. m. (ufel) The element of fire.

*Sallh tan ufelyn
 Sallh cad cyferbyn,
 Sallhied Cynafira
 I bob cynfan.*

The seven fires of the pervading element are seven hosts in opposition, the seventh is Cynafira to every foremost nation.
Yudd. Toluen a Merddin.

*Rhoes bi flagi yn yr olyn
 Ouid aeth yn dan ufelyn.*

She put a flame in the kiln so that it became a fire of conflagration. D. ab Gwilym.

Ufell, a. (uf—ell) Obsequious, or humble.

Ufelldawd, s. m. (ufell) Obsequiousness.

Ufydd, a. (uf—ydd) Humble, obedient, meek.

Dy ddolw wyt, lle'r wyt fydd
D'caus wyt, dy was ufydd.

Thy bashful image, where I am at liberty thy nightingale I am, and thy obedient servant. L. G. Cuth.

Ufyddâd, s. m. (ufyddân) An obeying; a becoming humble, humiliation; obedience.

Ufyddâwl, a. (ufyddâu) Of obedient disposition

Ufyddaid, a. (ufydd) Tending to humility.

Ufyddân, v. a. (ufydd) To obey; to be humble.

Yn y faint hono y gorddystmasu ni ei chafael a'i meddu, hyd na wddau ei ufyddâi i gaelhwyd; a hono lagon pei celyat y dwyau ei dwyn i coryn, ni a lafurieu yn y faint y galleu oc
y holl nerth o'i hantall yn ei herbyn.

In each a degree we were accustomed to obtain and enjoy it, so that we know not how to be humbled to servitude; and this, peradventure were the Gods to attempt to deprive us of it, we would exert ourselves to the utmost of all our power to preserve against them. Brai y Breninodd.

Ufyddaw, v. a. (ufydd) To obey; to humble.

Ufyddawl, a. (ufydd) Obedient, or humble.

Ufyddâwr, s. m.—pl. ufyddâwyr (ufyddâu—gwr)
One who obeys.

Ufydd dawd, s. m. (ufydd) Humility, obedience.

Ufydd-dra, s. m. (ufydd) Humbleness, obedience

Ufyddfryd, s. m. (ufydd—bryd) Humble mind.
a. Of an obsequious disposition.

Ufyddgar, a. (ufydd) Obsequious; dutiful.

Ufyddgarwch, s. m. (ufyddgar) Obsequiousness.

Ufyddgar, s. m. (ufydd) A humbling; an obeying

Ufyddiannawl, a. (ufyddiant) Of a humbling tendency; tending to obedience.

Ufyddiannu, v. a. (ufyddiant) To be obedient.

Ufyddiannus, a. (ufyddiant) Of a humiliating tendency; disposed to obedience.

Ufyddiannusaw, v. a. (ufyddiannus) To render obedient; to become obedient.

Ufyddiant, s. m. (ufydd) Obedience; humility.

Ufyddoldeb, s. m. (ufyddawl) Humbleness.

Ufyddolder, s. m. (ufyddawl) Humbleness.

Ufyddolrwydd, s. m. (ufyddawl) Humbleness.

Ufyddwr, s. m. (ufydd—gwr) An obedient man.

Ufyll, a. (uf—yll) Obsequious, or humble.

Ufyllawd, s. m. (ufyll) Obsequiousness.

Ufyllder, s. m. (ufyll) Humility; meekness.

Rhag biddilyd pryd, praw ufyllder bryd,
Rhif y byd a'm dyd dryg a chialder.

Against over-pursuing of an object, the experience of an humility of mind, the lord of the world will give me instruction and discretion. G. ab M. ab Dafydd.

UFF, s. m. r. That straitens, closes, or confines.

Uffarn, s. f.—pl. t. au (uff—arn) The ankle; also called scharn, ffer, and migwrn.

Y rhingyll a ddylt gwasau yr ychala ac y gwartheg, a gaffer o'i gyhoed ei, i wneudur curasau cyfwrch a'i uffarnau.

The servant ought to have the legs of the oxen and the cows, which shall be obtained through his informing, for making beehives reaching up to his ankles. Welsh Laws.

Uffern, s. f.—pl. t. i (uff—ern) A strait or confined drift; the state of reprobation in the bar-dic doctrine of transmigration; the infernal region, hell.

Nid oes ar uffern ond eiddau ei threfau.

There is in hell only the want of being put in order. Adage.

Huanoiddeb yw y diawl daf yn uffern.

Selfishness is the blackest devil in hell. Adage.

Y diawl folaef yn uffern yw huanoiddeb.

The simplest devil in hell is self-conceit. Adage.

Yr aderyn a fluor yn uffern yn uffern y myn drigaw.

The bird that is roared in hell, in hell he will seek to dwell. Adage.

Uffernaidd, a. (uffern) Like hell, or hellish.

Uffernawl, a. (uffern) Infernal, or hellish.

I d y mae canol i gerdded trwy awyrol fydd, ac uffernaidd dai, a thirionau dalarion ddiadl: Dywed i mi pa ddaia a thych ei phroffwyllau oboedd.

For these there is liberty to traverse through aerial paths, and infernal mansions, and to assign the destiny of terrestrial things:
Inform me what regions those wouldst have me to dwell therein.
Brai y Breninodd.

Ufferngi, s. m. (uffern—ci) A hell-bound.

UG, s. m. r. That is over or exterior; that closes upon or envelops.

Ugain, s. m.—pl. ugeinian (ug) That has a completion, or close; the close of reckoning; twenty. a. Twenty.

Ugaint, s. m.—pl. ugeinnian (again) Twenty.

Ugaint, teg; deg-ar-again, cryf; deugaint, gwinog; de-deugaint, doeth; a threos cu bodurau, nid gwr oes na; na na'r fath.

Twenty, fair; thirty, strong; forty, bustling about youth; fifty, wise; and so to those in the extreme of their age, it is not out while to make mention of the one or the other. Adage.

Ugeinfed, s. f. (again) The twentieth.

Ugeiniawl, a. (again) Belonging to twenty.

Ugeinplyg, s. m. (again—plyg) That is twenty-fold. a. Twenty-fold.

Ugeintro, s. m. (again—tro) That consists of twenty turns. a. Of twenty turns.

Ugeintrod, s. m. (again—troed) That has twenty feet. a. Of twenty feet.

Ugeinwaith, s. pl. (again—gwaith) Twenty times.

UL, s. m. r. That is humid, or damp. a. Humid, damp, or muggy. Mae yn ul iawn heddy, it is very muggy to-day: Mae yr ud yn rhy ul iddi fala, the corn is too damp to be ground: Mae y gwair yn rhy ul iddi gwynia, the hay is too moist to be carried off. Sil.

Ulai, s. c. (ul) That generates humidity or misture; hydrogen.

Ulaw, v. a. (ul) To render moist or humid; to smother; to become close, damp, or muggy;
to heat by closeness, to generate hydrogen.

Ullad, s. m. (ul) A filling with humidity; a smothering;
a growing close, or muggy; a heating
by laying close together; a producing hydrogen.

Ullar, s. m. (ul) A humid nature; a phlegmatic habit.

Os a fo a'i ardyrwr o'r uiler a fydd winos, o herwydd ni ei ei sotyr, ond egwan; yn yr all cyfarwel hwy a fydd llymas ier-on y bobi a font o'r allar—a hwy a fyddant ddrwyddach i phobol o'r cyfawydau crail, o herwydd os boethi.

One whose constitution is of the phlegmatic habit is not hot of brown complexion, because their nature is but feeble; is a cold respect they who are of a phlegmatic habit will be fat and fat; and they will be less energetic than people of other dispositions, because of their cold nature. Medicines Applied.

Ulw, s. m. (ul) That is divested of the principle of moisture; the remains of any thing burnt; ashes; cinders. Mae fe wedi llosgi yn ul, it is become burnt to cinders.

Ulwaid, a. (ulw) Like smothered hot ash.

Ulwawg, a. (ulw) With remains of combustion.

Ulwyn, s. m. (ulw) The scorra or remains of any burnt matter: ashes, embers, or cinders.

ULL, s. m. r. That bursteth out; that is sudden, or abrupt.

Ullda, s. m. (ull—ta) That has sudden start; a oaf; a dolt.

Ulldach, s. m. (ull—tach) An oaf, a changeling.

Ulliad, s. m. (ull) A bursting out; a sudden drive or impulse.

UM, s. m. r. That spreads out or about.

UN, s. m. r.—pl. t. au. That is individual, that is identified as one; one. Yr un un, the same one, the very same, idem, eadem. It is a prefix in composition.

Cared pob un ei gynbuddir.

Let every one love his native place.

Adage.

Tri un cyntaf y dydd; ac ni gellir amgen nog un o honant: un Dew, un gwirionedd, no un prnc rhyddid, na y bydd lle bo cybwyrs pob gwrth.

There are three primitive ones; and nothing otherwise than one of them can possibly be: one God, one truth, and one point of liberty, that is where every opposition equipoindates.

Burdens.

Gwell mared gwr nog un gwraig.

Better is the activity of a man than that of a woman. Adage.

Un, a. (un, s.) One; identical, of the same, same.

Nid yw fal yr un un, he is not like the same one.

Un gaderayd, un fryd fry,
Un frust, un feddiant, un frye,
Un allu, un ewyllys—Un Dew.

Of one energy, of one mind above, of one pre-eminence, of one possession, of one impulse, of one power, of one will: one God.

Iolo Goch.

Yn awr ydydd un raddodd
A'ch hael dail.

At present you are of the same attributes as your generous grandfathers.

S. Celin.

Undad, s. m. (un) A making into one; union.

Unagwedd, s. m. (agwedd) One appearance. a. Of similar appearance.

Unarbymtheg, s. m. (un—ar—pymtheg) Sixteen. a. Sixteen.

Unarddeg, s. m. (un—ar—deg) Eleven. a. Eleven

Unaw, v. a. (un) To make into one; to unite; to accord, to agree.

Unawdl, s. f. (awdl) A single rhyme. a. Unirhyme.

Unawl, a. (un) Belonging to one; uniting.

Unawr, s. f. (awr) A single hour. a. Of one hour.

Unbaladr, a. (paladr) Of one shaft; of one or the same verse.

Unbaladrawg, a. (unbaladr) Of one shaft; of one or the same verse.

Unban, s. m. (ban) Being of one verse or line.

Unbanawg, a. (unban) Having one verse.

Unben, s. m.—pl. unbyn (pen) A one head, a one supreme, a monarch; also a complimentary appellation, like sir.

Tri nahan rhath Ysops Prydain: un, Carwallawn ab Llied ab Bell ab Mynogan; all, Caradawg ab Bran ab Llyr Lledlath; trydydd, Owain ab Maxen wledig: sef o rith gwlad a chenedl y ddedd arwynt yr unbenneth, lle nad oeddynt hysbaid.

The three Jery monarchs of the Isle of Britain: the first, Carwallawn son of Llied son of Bell son of Mynogan; second, Caradawg son of Bran son of Llyr of Barbarous speech; third, Owain son of Maxen the patriot; that is to say, through the jurety election of the country and nation was the monarchy given them, when they were not clairs.

Triedd.

Tri tharw unbenn Ysops Prydain: Elmur mab Cadair, Cynhafal mab Argad, Afon mab Taliesin: Tri meib beirdd oeddynt.

The three bull chiefs of the Isle of Britain: Elmur son of Cadair, Cynhafal son of Argad, Afon son of Taliesin: They were three sons of bards.

Triedd.

Ho unbenn! Dew a'ch noddo; ni ddaneth gwestal erioed o honni a'i fywyd gantho.

Oh sir! God protect you; there never escaped a guest from me with his life.

H. Cuthbert—Mabington.

Unbenneth, s. m.—pl. f. au (unben) Sovereignty.

Unbenneth Prydain, the sovereignty of Britain; the name of a national hymn, now lost, which used to be sung before the armies, on the onset of battle. Probably, this was some piece of music, to which different words were adapted, agreeably to the incidents of the times; but all tending to impress an idea, consonant to the title of the piece, that the welfare of the British Monarchy was the object contended for: thus all the different chiefs of the island, in their quarrels, were impelled by a national maxim, ostensibly to be supporting the supreme government.

Y bardd teulu a gollf wrtho a bob sarbath y bo wrth ei ddydd ydydd teulu; a rhan gwr befyd, mab pob teuluwr arall; ystun a gan Unbenneth Prydain rhagddynt, yn dydd cad ac ymdd.

The bard of the household shall have a feast out of every spell he bears a part in taking with the family; and the share of a man besides, like every other individual of the family; and he them shall sing the Monarchy of Britain before them; in the day of battle and war.

Welsh Laws.

Unbennethawl, a. (unbenneth) Monarchical.

Unbennethiad, s. m. (unbenneth) A forming a monarchy or sovereignty.

Unbennethu, v. a. (unbenneth) To establish a monarchy or sovereignty.

Unbennidd, a. (unben) Monarchal; royal.

Bonedd hon unbennidd had.

Her descent of royal progeny.

Mourig Daffydd.

Unbenawl, a. (unben) Monarchal; royal.

Unbenes, s. f.—pl. t. au (unben) A female monarch; also a title of respect, equivalent to lady and madam.

Arglwydd, ni thycia i bob ymdd yr unbenneth rhacso; ni wyddwn i farth cynt yn y cyfneith no hwn; ac ni thycia i mab ei hynid!

Lord, it will avail nobody to pursue yonder lady: I know of no swifter horse in the kingdom than this; and it doth not avail me to pursue her!

H. Purcell—Mabington.

Unbenesalidd, a. (unbenes) Appertaining to a female monarch; like a queen; royal.

Gwrth y rhod trwyd y trallod,
Ynydd unbennesalidd.

The reverse of the wheel through thee will run, thou little tale seeming like a queen.

Gro. Owain, i Pen.

Unbeniad, s. m.—pl. unbenniad (unben) That is one head, a monarch; a sovereign.

Tri gwlion unbenniad Ysops Prydain; Cynafelya Wledig, Caradawg ab Bran, ac Arthur: na y go threthallat ar eu gwlion, hyd na gollid naenys o frid a chyalwya on gortod.

The three brave sovereigns of the Isle of Britain: Cynafelya the Patriot, Caradawg son of Bran, and Arthur; that is to say, they would obtain succours over their enemies, so that it were not possible except by treachery to overcome them.

Triedd.

Unbenig, a. (unben) Monarchical, monarchal.

Unbenigder, s. m. (unbenig) Monarchicalness.

Unbenigdra, s. m. (unbenig) Monarchicalness.

Unbenigrwydd, s. m. (unbenig) Monarchicalness.

Unbriodas, s. f. (un—priodas) Monogamy.

Uncorn, s. m.—pl. aneyrn (corn) That has one horn; an unicorn.

Ni cawd—

Ring cyrn yr aneyrn eneyd.

No preserve awhile from the horns of the unicorns.

H. Middleton.

Undad, s. m. (tad) A same father. a. Of the same father.

Undanc, a. (tanc) Being united in tranquillity.

Undawd, s. m. (un) A state of being one.

Bod ei y byddwyf, gwddi boddawd,

Cyd ei' Undawd mawr yn ei undawd.

Be it that I may exist, after the course of the grave, with the great one God in his unity.

Binton ab Gwilem.

Undeb, s. m. (un) Unity. Undeb a braudgarwch, unity and brotherly love.

Undeg, s. m. (deg) Eleven. a. Eleven.

Undegawl, a. (undeg) Belonging to eleven.

Undegfed, s. m. (undeg) An eleventh. a. Eleventh

Undeg fad awen: undegfed awydd

A wedyddi fy hnyged,

O'm gwedd ran, o'm ban, o'm barddeg,

O'wch fath, o'wch fath, o'wch fath.

Eleven goodly themes; the eleventh with my destiny will produce, with respect to my share of praise, of my derivation, of my herid treasure, from a lowering battlement, from the Uvitchion tribe.

Cynadelfa, Gwilymddan Fawr.

Under, s. m. (un) Unity, simpleness, singleness.

Gorwch, o ran bonedd, y w y peth a sal ar under bonedd no anawd, ar bob cynalieth bonedd ac anawd.

Superior, with respect to origin, is the thing which stands upon simpleness of existence and quality, over every complex existence and quality.

Burdens.

Undodiaid, s. m.—pl. undodiaid (undawd) Unitarian.

Undodiaeth, s. m. (undawd) Unitarianism.

Undon, s. f. (ten) That is of one tone or voice. a. Monotonous.

Undonydd, s. m. (undon) A monotonous one.

Undonyddiaeth, s. f. (undonydd) Monotony.

Undras, s. f. (tras) That is of the same kindred. a. Of the same kindred.

Undrwyth, a. (trwyth) Of equal thickness.

Undud, s. m. (tud) Sameness of region. a. Of the same region.

Gogoniant—

I'r Drindawd Undawd undod preswylodd.

Glory to the Trinity of Unity the inhabitant of the same region. B. Mda o Hirddag.

Undall, s. m. (dull) Same form or manner. a. Of the same form.

Unduw, s. m. (duw) The same or one God.

Undwyl, s. m. (twyl) That is of one growth. a. Of the same growth.

Undydd, s. m. (dydd) One day; same day. a. Of one day. Undydd a blewddyn, a year and a day.

Undyddiawg, a. (undydd) Of a single day.

Ni ddylai neb gymeryd mach yn undyddiawg.

No body ought to take ball as of one day. Welsh Laws.

Undyn, s. m. (dyn) A single person.

Gwas undyn a wasai gant yn drol.

Woe to the one person who shakes a hundred sorrowful. Adage.

O cafi fy nghedd ar fy nghlan,
A'm ffaw deus i'm diffyn,
Ai gwaeth ffawte nos undyn?

If I obtain my sword by my side, and my right hand to defend me, am I then more despicable than any person? Ymdd. Yrtylan a Gwalchmai.

Unddalen, s. f. (dalen) One leaf; one page; same leaf. a. Of one leaf; of the same leaf.

Unddalenawg, a. (unddalen) Monopetalous.

Unddawn, s. m. (dawn) Sameness of attribute. a. Of one attribute; of the same endowment.

—Uch archangylion,
Unddonion neilion nerth heb draugi—
Undaw ynt wyntas a diaddeiri.

Over archangels, lords of attributes—equal ones with power never falling, one God are they and truly three. Gwalchmai.

Unddefnydd, s. m. (defnydd) That is of the same material. a. Homogenous.

Unddull, s. f. (dull) Unity of form. a. Uniform.

Uned, s. m. (un) Unity; accordance; concurrence; entreaty, solicitation.

Archaf i Ddau drwy uned.

I will ask of God through entreaty. Llywelyn Fardd.

Unegar, s. m. (egar) Sameness of foe. a. Having the same enemy, of common foe.

Cymmodi a wnaet, a agadod ungar unegar.

They were reconciled, and became of common friends of common foe. Gr. ab Arthwr.

Unfant, s. m. (fant) Unity of size. a. Of the same size, of equal magnitude.

Unfan, s. m. (mân) The same place. Safa yn ei wfan yn wasted, he stands in his one place continually.

Unfath, s. m. (math) Unity of sort. a. Of the same sort, similar.

Unfed, s. m. (un) The order of one; a first. a. Being in the order of one; first.

Unfed-dydd, s. m. (unfed—dydd) The first day.

Unfin, s. m. (min) A one edge. a. One-edged.

Unfalawg, a. (unfa) Having one edge.

Unfodd, s. m. (modd) Sameness of mode. a. Of the same manner; similar.

Unfrait, s. m. (braint) Sameness of rank, right, or privilege. a. Of the same rank.

O bydd amryson rhwng deudya unfrait am deuth, ac an upper gwirionedd y rhwydded, tynged pob un o deuth; a gwaeli hyry rhomer y tir amryson.

If there shall be contention between two persons of equal rank respecting a boundary, and the truth be not manifest between them, let each one wear his boundary; and after that let the land of contention be divided. Welsh Laws.

Unfri, s. m. (bri) Sameness of privilege. a. Of equal privilege.

Unfryd, s. m. (bryd) One mind, sameness of intention. a. Of one mind, unanimous.

Nid unfryd yntyd a chaff.

Not of the same mind the simple and the cunning. Adage.

Nid unfryd cybodd a chorodyn.

Not of the same mind the minor and the liberal. Adage.

Unfunud, s. f. (funud) Sameness of appearance.

a. Of the same appearance; exactly alike.

Unfurf, s. m. (furf) Sameness of form. a. Of the same form; uniform.

Unfar, s. m. (car) Sameness of friend. a. Of common friend.

Unged, s. f. (ced) Sameness of treasure. a. Of one treasure, having one treasure in common.

Ungoel, s. f. (coel) Sameness of belief. a. Of one belief, of the same creed.

—Deon, unged, ungoel.

Ye berth, yd borthir yn wyl.

The supreme arbiter, of universal beauty, of universal belief, that is holy, he is served with sanctity. Cynddelo.

Ungor, s. f. (cor) That is of one turn or twist. a. Of a single turn or twist. Edaf ungor, a single twisted thread.

Cadarnach yw yr edaf yn gyfrodoldd nag yn ungor.

Stronger is the thread of double twist than of single twist. Adage.

Ungorn, s. f. (corn) That is of one turn. a. Of a single turn. Edaf ungorn, the same as old ungor.

Ungrwaith, s. m. (un—grwaith) A particular turn, or purpose. The same as ungydd.

Ungrwaith merched y gwyllydd

Ei edrych fel fal drych fydd.

The sole work of the girls of the country round will be to gaze at it as at a mirror. I. ab Iffydd Sarnedd.

Ungwr, s. m. (gwr) One man; any man.

Ungyfun, a. (cyfun) Uniformly the same.

Tri haenion pob byw yn arlych y gwyllydd; awydd, traid, ac awen; ac ni gefir dda yn bod yn ungyfun yn mhob peth; gan y bydd cyfawn pob en yn y bo blaenw aruo; ac nid oen cyfawn ar ddim, heb y maint o'i ddechrau iad o haen.

The three peculiar distinctions of every living being is the circle of felicity; vocation, privilege, and disposition; and it is not possible for two beings to be uniformly the same in every thing; for every one will have a plenitude of what is essentially peculiar in him; and there is no plenitude of any thing, without having it in a degree that compensates the whole of it that can exist. Paradise.

Unhaen, s. f. (haen) A single layer, or spread. a. Of one spread or stratum.

Unhaw, s. f. (haw) A sole claim. a. Of single claim, of common claim.

Unhwy, s. f. (hwy) A sole course. a. Of one course, of a common course.

Unhyd, s. m. (un—hyd) A single length. a. Of one length; of the same length, or dimension.

Unied, s. m. (un) A making one; a uniting.

Uniaith, s. f. (iaith) A single speech. a. Of one language, of a common speech.

Uniannawl, a. (uniant) Tending to unite.

Uniannu, v. a. (uniant) To produce union.

Uniant, s. m. (un) The state of being one.

Uniawn, a. m. (iawn) That is right, straight, or direct. a. Right, straight, direct; upright, perfect, just. Rhed yno yn uniawn, run thare directly: Mis af yn uniawn ddi, I will go immediately.

*Llewel pob deall uniawn.
A dyfr cyfruth yr iath llo.*

The former of every just idea, the law book of the perfect language.

*A fo'n awgwr fyw's uniawn.
Fe rydd Daw fawredd a dawn.*

He who nobly leads a righteous life, God will give him greatness and virtue.

Unig, a. (un) Sole, only, lonely, lonesome, single, solitary, singular. O gr: unig! How singular!

Digawr Daw da fwaig.

God is able to help the solitary.

Hydrannu unig.

Content is the song of the solitary.

Uniganedig, a. (unig—ganedig) Only-begotten.

Unigaw, v. a. (unig) To render sole; to become sole, single, or solitary.

Unigawl, a. (unig) Of a solitary or singular quality; ununited, independent. Y naw unigolion, the nine digits.

Unigder, s. m. (unig) Solitariness, loneliness.

Unigdra, s. m. (unig) Solitariness, lonesomeness.

Unigedd, s. m. (unig) Solitude, or loneliness.

Unigenid, a. (unig—genid) Only-born.

Unigfydd, a. (unig—fydd) Of singular faith.

Unigfyddiad, s. m.—pl. unigfyddiaid (unigfydd) A solidian.

Unigiad, s. m. (unig) A rendering solitary.

Unigoldeb, s. m. (unigawl) Singularness.

Unigolder, s. m. (unigawl) Singularness.

Unigoll, v. a. (unigawl) To render solitary or singular; to become singular.

Unigolrwydd, s. m. (unigawl) Solitariness.

Unigrwydd, s. m. (unig) Loneliness, solitariness.

Unionad, s. m. (uniawn) A straightening, a righting, a making even, a rectifying.

Uniondeb, s. m. (uniawn) Rightness, rectitude, uprightness; straightness; evenness.

Unionder, s. m. (uniawn) Rightness; straightness.

Uniondra, s. m. (uniawn) Rightness; directness.

Unionedd, s. m. (uniawn) Rightness; directness.

Uniongongl, s. f.—pl. t. au (uniawn—congl) A right angle.

Uniongonglawg, a. (uniongongl) Rectangular.

Uniongred, s. f. (uniawn—cred) Orthodoxy. a. Of right belief, orthodox.

Uniongyrch, s. m. (uniawn—cyrch) A direct course. a. Of a direct course; immediate.

Yr ybryd a henry o Dad yr ybrydoedd; yr hwn a elwir ffily, mae yn debygol, o herwydd eu henry hwy o hono o yn uniawgyrch, heb fod allweddion yn cyferdded, nac yn cyffyrge dim o'i.

The spirit proceeded from the Father of spirits; who is so called, it is probable, because of their proceeding from him immediately without second causes being concurring, or contributing any thing at all.

Uniongyrchawl, a. (uniongyrch) Directly proceeding.

Uniongyrchiad, s. m. (uniongyrch) A directly or immediately proceeding.

Uniongyrchu, v. a. (uniongyrch) To proceed directly; to proceed straightly.

Unioni, v. a. (uniawn) To straighten, to rectify; to make even; to become straight.

Unionran, s. f. (uniawn—rhan) An exact portion.

Unionraniad, s. m. (unionran) A sharing exactly.

Unionrani, v. a. (unionran) To share exactly.

Unionred, s. f. (uniawn—rhed) A direct course. a. Directly recurrent.

Unionrwydd, s. m. (uniawn) Straightness.

Unionserth, a. (uniawn—serth) Straightly falling.

Unionserthawl, a. (unionserth) Of a perpendicular fall or dip.

Unionserthiad, s. m. (unionserth) A dipping or falling perpendicularly.

Unionserthu, v. a. (unionserth) To dip, or fall perpendicularly.

Unionsyth, a. (uniawn—syth) Directly erect.

Unionsythawl, a. (unionsyth) Tending to a perpendicular erectness.

Unionsythiad, s. m. (unionsyth) A rendering perpendicularly erect.

Unionsythu, v. a. (unionsyth) To render perfectly erect or upright.

Unionwr, s. m. (uniawn—gwr) A straightener.

Unionydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (uniawn) Straightener.

Unlef, s. f. (llef) Sameness of tone. a. Of one tone, of the same sound; monotonous.

Awdl yw sain unlef y geyrau gobenyddawl.

Rhyme is the union sound of the terminating words. Buddas.

Unllaw, s. f. (llaw) One hand. a. One-handed, single-handed.

Bwrw a'rh unllaw, cels a'rh ddwyllaw.

Cast with thy one hand, get with thy two hands. Adage.

Unllawlawg, a. (unllaw) Having one hand.

Unllawlawg fydd mammoeth,

A nurse is single-handed.

Adage.

Unlle, s. m. (lle) One place, same place; any place, any where. Ni bum yn unlle, I have not been any where.

Unlled, s. m. (lled) One breadth. a. Of one breadth, of equal breadth.

Unllef, s. m. (llef) Sameness of tone or voice. a. Of the same voice, unison.

Unllw, s. m. (llw) Sameness of colour. a. Of one colour.

Afar o'f unllw a dynant fr unllw.

Birds of a colour will flock together.

Adage.

Unllwlawg, a. (unllw) Having one colour.

Unllygad, s. m. (llygad) One eye. a. One-eyed.

Unllygeidiawg, a. (unllygad) Monocularous.

Unllygeidiawg a ddyly cast.

The one-eyed ought to have a hundred.

Adage.

Unllygeidiawg fydd brein yn ngwlad y deilidlon.

The one-eyed will be a king in the country of the blind ones.

Adage.

Unman, s. f. (man) Same place, sameness of place; any where. a. Of the same place.

Gwir tros byth yn yr unman.

The truth for ever in the same place.

Adage.

Nid llai y crefydd yn unman na Mo ho awyraf y ddyn ari dano.

Not less the religion any where than in the place where there is most disputing about it.

Adage.

Unmodd, s. m. (modd) Sameness of mode; any wise. a. Of the same mode.

Unnawd, s. m. (nawd) Sameness of nature. a. of the same nature or quality.

Unnaws, s. f. (naws) Sameness of disposition or temper. a. Of the same temper.

Unne, s. m. (un—gne) That is one colour. a. Of one hue, of the same hue. Unne geirio, equal in hue to the torrents.

Unnerth, s. m. (nerth) Sameness of power. a. Of one power, of equal might.

Tymodedd yn gwrnawd a'n gwrnawd,

Tri unben unnerth gwrnawd;

Trwy y Tad, a Rhod yn rheolant,

Trwy y Mab gwneud bawb bob grydant.

The Tribes our deliverance and our security, whose perfect of coequal power in glory; through the Father, with Grace concommant, through the Son, all were made of every energy. Carmodyn.

Unodiath, s. f. (unawdl) Sameness of rhyme.

Ni ddylal gyda'n fed yn nechren y sill olaf o unr yr awdl yn amgws a fo yn yr unodiath.

The consonant ought not to be in the beginning of the last syllable of the word of the rhyme different from what may be in the unity of rhyme.

Unodlaw, a. (unawdl) Having unity of rhyme.

Unodlodd, s. m. (unawdl) The state of being of continued rhyme; unirhyme.

Unodli, v. a. (unawdl) To agree in rhyme.

Nid unodia allaf dalgros ond ag un dalgros awdl o'r un bwyrs a hi.

An infective syllable will agree in rhyme only with another infective syllable of the same accent with itself. W. Middleton.

Unodliad, s. m. (unawdl) A forming unirhyme.

Unood, s. m. (un—ood) One age, same age, sameness of age. a. Of one age, of equal age; of the same time.

*Fym podwâr prif-gws crymood,
Yngyfarfyddiâd yn unood;
Pas a heniat, heiot a hood.*

My four principal foes through life, they have met together in unity of time: cough and old age, disease and grief.

Llywarch Hen.

Unoes, s. f. (un—oes) One life; same age, sameness of age. a. Of one age; cotemporary.

Unoldeb, s. m. (unawl) Unity; identicalness.

Unolder, s. m. (unawl) Identicalness, sameness.

Unoldra, s. m. (unawl) Sameness, similarity.

Unoll, v. a. (unawl) To render united, to accord; to become the same; to identify.

Unoliad, s. m. (unawl) Union; accordance.

Unollaeth, s. m. (unawl) The state of being the same or identified; accordance.

*Yn nghedol ai weled, unollaeth Gwalchmai,
Wr well—*

In christendom there has not been seen, the likeness of Gwalchmai, a better man.

T. Alod, i T. Solentri.

Unoliant, s. m. (unawl) Union; integration.

Unolrwydd, s. m. (unawl) Sameness, similarity.

Unon, s. m. (un—on) Particularity; doubt, question, supposition. v. a. To suppose. Ni raid awon y dei di yma, there is no need to suppose that thou wilt come here.

Er bod dy ddylben di yn nodi o fewn ychydig ddalenau yn fy llyfr dioclainat i; eto aid rhaid i di unon soddi at Lucifer.

Notwithstanding that thy end draws near within a few leaves in my unerring volume; yet thou needest not to fear of slinking to Lucifer.

Elis Wyn, Berdd Cwag.

Unparth, s. m. (parth) One part. a. Of one part.

Unpeth, s. m. (peth) One thing, same thing. a. Of one thing.

Unplyg, s. m. (plyg) One double or fold. a. Of one double or fold.

Unraith, s. f. (rhaith) Sameness of right or law. a. Of equal law, of equal right.

Unran, s. f. (rhan) One share. a. Of one share.

Unrwydd, s. m. (un) A state of being one.

Unrwyg, s. m. (rhwyg) Sameness of course or sway. a. Of the same sway.

Unryw, s. m. (rhyw) A same kind, a same sex; same. a. Of the same kind.

Unrywiarth, s. m. (unryw) A rendering of the same kind; identity.

Unsain, s. f. (sain) An unison. a. Unison.

Unawd, s. f. (sawd) A same state. a. Of the same state.

Unseiniad, s. m. (unsain) A forming an unison.

Unseiniaw, v. a. (unsain) To form an unison.

Unseiniawg, a. (unsain) Having one sound.

Unsill, s. f. (un—sill) One syllable. a. Of one syllable.

Unsillawg, a. (unsill) Having one syllable.

Unsd, s. m. (sud) Same state. a. Of one state.

Unswd, s. m. (swd) Same state. a. Of one state, of the same condition. Unsd at mard, so and so.

Unswn, s. m. (swn) A same sound. a. Of the same sound.

Unswydd, s. m. (swydd) A same office or business; one purpose. a. Of one business or purpose. Elis yno yn unswydd, I went there on purpose.

Unsywedd, s. m. (sywedd) Sameness of substance. a. Of one substance, or material.

Unsyweddawg, a. (unsylwedd) Consubstantial.

Unsyweddawl, a. (unsylwedd) Homogeneous.

Unsyweddliad, s. m. (unsylwedd) A rendering of the same substance; a becoming homogeneous.

Untaith, s. f. (taith) One journey. a. Of the same journey.

Unteithiawg, a. (untaith) Having one journey.

Untref, s. f. (tref) Sameness of habitation. a. Of the same habitation or town.

Nid untref gwadd ac cryr.

Not of one habitation a mate and an eagle.

Adw.

Untri, s. m. (un—tri) Three united in one.

Untro, s. m. (tro) One turn. a. Of one turn.

Untroed, s. m. (troed) One foot. a. One-footed.

Untroedawg, a. (untroed) Having one foot.

Untu, s. m. (tu) One side. a. One sided.

Untuawg, a. (untu) One-sided; partial. Cyrry untuawg, a side-saddle.

*Taw, gwyn untuawg amoch,
A beuwr.*

Be silent, thou complaisant partial and eviler, with false facts.

H. D. o Jhu.

*Untuawg ffrwg ond teg fydd,
Ac yn hardd fel gwynn bwrddyd!*

The one-sided means is it not fair, and beautiful like to his day's guestmaster.

T. Alod, i Peth.

Untuawl, a. (untu) Belonging to one side.

Untuogrwydd, s. m. (untuawg) The state of being on one side; partiality.

Untuolrwydd, s. m. (untuawl) A one-sided state.

Unwaith, s. f. (un—gwaith) One time. a. Of one time. adu. Once, at one time.

A fo drwg unwaith a wry fed yn ddwrg yr chwedd.

He that is bad one time knows how to be bad a second time.

Adw.

Unwaith yr oeth yr arwyddid i nodw i d fddin.

Once the lady went to swim she was drowned.

Adw.

Unwedd, s. f. (un—gwedd) Sameness of appearance, similitude. a. Similar; uniform, constant, equable. adu. Alike.

*Y deuth a'r amoch unwaith,
O gyrra'r byd gyr i'r bodd.*

The wiser and the unwiser alike, from the extremities of the soul he made to the grave.

H. D. o Jhu.

Unweddawg, a. (unwedd) Having a fellow or partner. s. c. A monogamist.

Unweddawl, a. (unwedd) Uniform; of one aspect.

Unwr, s. m.—pl. unwyr (gwr) A man who unites agrees, or accords.

Unwyneb, s. m. (gwyneb) Sameness of face. a. Of the same face or surface.

Unwynebawg, a. (unwyneb) Having one face.

Gelli cynnal rapoddl fed wddiâd yn unwyneb; ac i d wneudwr ddi ond trefiwr y ffringdwr, ad—

"A'm try awgon o'm tryngw."

A consonant of the leading rhyme may sometimes be of an o'pro; that is, without performing any thing more than to sustain the former pause, as in the above verse.

G. B. o Jhu.

Unydw, s. m. (un) The state of being one; continuity; a state of being thoroughly united; alike. a. Being united, continual, or uninterrupted; like. adu. As one, continually; like.

Cair fab Gwyddid
Owain Eiddawdd,
Gwelydd eidd.

The mighty son of Gwyddid, the Ministry of Eiddawdd, the same as Gwelydd.

Owal, dilyn, eiddid byfryd,
O lawr i uch yn awyrd.
Deddfart dirlawr.

Behold, O man, a pleasant structure rise, from the bottom to the summit all complete, the immense terrestrial world.
Ellis Wyn, Berdd Cwng.

UR, s. m. r. That is extreme, over, or superior; that is essential, or pure; that is sacred, holy, or inviolable.

Urael, s. m. (ur) That is of pure element; amianthus, asbestos; also the cloth made of that fossil.

Urael yw lliwawg o'r manwiddaf, o'r man ystinos, ac u oclaid a'r tan, wedi y bodreddaf.

The Urael is a cloth garment of the finest texture, made of the asbestos stone, and which used to be cleaned with the fire, after it had been soiled.

As dyran gwynnau, ac del urael,
Mawr y mae ei—fyd.

On white stoves, on houses of amianthus, great is his delight.
L. G. Cuth.

Mab addwyn o ryma atel mawr,
Mab Arfrydd yr llochl.

A beautiful Son out of a bondage of simple asbestos, the Son of the Lord of Israel.
L. G. Cuth.

Urdd, s. f.—pl. t. au (ur) A dignified order, rank, or class; a sacred order.

—Yn gwynidaw
Ar Ddew ael a'i urddau naw.

Praying to God of heaven and his orders nine.
L. ab Rh. ab Iwan Llwyd.

Urddain, a. (urdd) Abounding with dignity.

I fardd dafn dyfodd a gollu'n,
I Gyneddau oedd urddau arddain.

To bardd profound will be promoted what they commemorate; to Cyneddau it was his Honourable order.
Cyneddau, m. O. Gwynedd.

Urddas, s. f.—pl. t. an (urdd) Dignity; a sacred order; church hierarchy, or orders.

Bwydded arddau oed daf.

Two parts of dignity is a good name.
Adgr.

Yn mhob enlli y mae arddiddaf,
Yn mhob arddiddaf y mae urddas,
Yn mhob arddas y mae braini,
Yn mhob braini y mae dyfoddaf.

In every gain there is honour, in every honour there is respect, in every respect there is privilege, in every privilege there is a duty.
Cating ab Gwynedd.

Urddaudd—
A wiseth ei, ei iawnwath oedd.

Hierarchies he created, his righteous work was that.
Dr. S. Cent.

Urddasidd, a. (urddas) Relating to dignified or holy orders; honorary.

Urddaswyr, a. (urddas) Having sacred orders; dignified. s. m.—pl. urddasogion. A dignitary.

Urddasawl, a. (urddas) Relating to dignified rank; relating to sacred orders; dignified; honourable.

Urddasiedig, a. (urddas) Dignified; ordained.

Urddasiedig, s. m. (urddasidd) A dignification.

Urddasiedig, v. a. (urddasidd) To render dignified, or honorary; to become dignified.

Urddasiedrwydd, s. m. (urddasidd) A dignified state.

Urddasiad, s. m. (urddas) A dignification; a conferring of holy orders.

Urddasoiddeb, s. m. (urddasawl) A dignified state.

Urddasoiddeb awydd yw ei chyfawni yn gyflawn.

The honourableness of an office is to fulfil it justly.
Adgr.

Urddasolder, s. m. (urddasawl) Honourableness.

Urddasoldra, s. m. (urddasawl) Honourableness.

VOL. II.

Urddasoli, v. a. (urddasawl) To render dignified; to become dignified.

Urddasolrwydd, s. m. (urddasawl) Honourableness.

Urddasu, v. n. (urddas) To dignify, to honour; to confer orders.

Urddaswr, s. m.—pl. urddaswyr (urddas—gwr) A dignifier; one who confers orders.

Urddaw, v. a. (urdd) To confer dignity, rank, or order; to confer holy orders; to ordain.

Dyn a urdd y lle, ac nid urdd y lle y dyn.

A man honours the station, and the station honours not the man.
Adgr.

Urdd wedig llurys lle sergrain;
Urddau Daw diwyrddau Owain!

A patriot dignifies the arms of a host ranging through slaughter; God has ordained the day of Owain!
Cyneddau, m. O. Gwynedd.

Urddawd, s. m. (urdd) A dignification; an ordaining.

Urddawg, a. (urdd) Having dignity or orders.

Urddawl, a. (urdd) Relating to dignity, rank, or order; dignified; honourable.

Sollid pob ceinid canon cerdd eiddid,
Sollid awr deiddid o wad urddodion.

Proclaimed by every songster is the regular composition of song, the subject is the golden branch from the bloom of exalted ones.
W. Llwyn.

Urddawn, a. (urdd) Of dignified or exalted state.

Sollid wogawn bardd urddawn urddwch,
Urddawl cerdd, can eiddwch.

Ye energetic bards, do honour to an honourable bard, the graduated of song, through repentance.
Cyneddau.

Urddedig, a. (urdd) Dignified; being ordained.

Frydal y prydiddion—
Gan rylf Bangor, ger golen urddedig.

The poets would poeize before the chief of Bangor, the choir of a dignified crown.
Iorwerth Bell.

Urddedigaeath, s. f.—pl. t. au (urddedig) Ordination.

Urddedigaw, v. a. (urddedig) To render dignified; to ordinate; to become dignified.

Urddedigawl, a. (urddedig) Tending to dignify.

Urddedigrwydd, s. m. (urddedig) A dignified state.

Urdddeiniad, s. m. (urddain) Dignification.

Urdddeiniaw, v. a. (urddain) To render dignified.

Urdddeiniawl, a. (urddain) Dignifying; tending to honour.

Mae'r pen fydd, Dofydd dwyfawl, gyda thl
I'w urddion coeth urdddeiniawl.

The object of the faith, the Divine Regulator, is with thee, to exalt thee, thou honoured virgin.
D. Ddu o Hiraedd.

Urdden, s. f. (urdd—gen) A superior intelligence or genius; a sacred intelligence. a. Of superior genius.

Awdl urdden amgen amgall digawn.

A different song of superior intellect amply comprehensive.
Cyneddau.

Gwawd yn arghyngor ehoor Medrawd
Mab Urien urdden, a'i amgylfawd.

He that is second to Medrawd would distinguish in counsel, like Urien of exalted genius, with his comprehension.
Meisyr.

Owyr Powys—
Cad orllawes orllawes,
Poddwr cyneddaf, cadwr cadwr urdden,
Ar ddeg yr dugant o Feigen.

The Men of Powys, in far-extending battle triumphant, fourteen prerogatives, the preservation of mighty pre-eminence of genius, they bore from Meigen.

Urddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (urdd) A dignifying, a conferring of honour; a giving of degree, rank, or order; an ordaining.

Urddiain, a. (urdd) Abounding with dignity.

Dydwad Deryddion—
O wron Owain,
Ar wyneb Frydain,
Un urddau Llendaio,
O lan deithi.

Druids declare, of the descendants of Owain, over the fact of Britain one shall be supreme of London, of sacred character.
Ll. P. Moch, t. L. ab Iorwerth.

Urddiannawl, a. (urddiant) Dignifying.
 Urddiannu, v. a. (urddiant) To create dignity.
 Urddiannu, a. (urddiant) Dignifying, honouring.
 Urddiannuawl, v. a. (urddiannu) To render dignified; to become honourable.
 Urddiant, s. m. (urdd) Dignification; ordination.
 Urddiator, ger. (urddiad) In dignifying.
 Urddin, a. (urdd) Being honoured or exalted.

Cyfoethawg Ddew urddin.

The powerful God of exalted state.

Talliesin.

Urddineb, s. m. (urddin) A dignified state.
 Urddoldeb, s. m. (urddawl) A dignified state; the state of being ordained.
 Urddolder, s. m. (urddawl) A dignified state.
 Urddoldra, s. m. (urddawl) A dignified state.
 Urddolled, s. m. (urddawl) A dignified state.
 Urddoles, s. f.—pl. t. au (urddawl) A female who holds dignity or rank.
 Urddoli, v. a. (urddawl) To render dignified; to ordinate, to ordain.
 Urddoliad, s. m. (urddawl) A dignifying, a conferring of rank, degree, or orders; ordination.
 Urddoliaeth, s. m. (urddawl) Ordination.
 Urddolrwydd, s. m. (urddawl) A dignified state.
 Urddon, s. m. (urdd) The grass-poly.
 Urddoni, v. a. (urddawn) To exalt, to honour.
 Urddoniad, s. m. (urddawn) A yielding dignity.
 Urddoniant, s. m. (urddawn) Exaltation, honour.
 Urddrad, s. m.—pl. t. au (urdd—rhod) An exalting virtue.
 Urddun, s. m. (urdd) An exalted state or rank.
 Urddunaw, v. a. (urddun) To honour, to exalt.
 Urddunawl, a. (urddun) Tending to honour.
 Urddunlad, s. m. (urddun) A dignification.
 Urdduniannu, v. a. (urdduniant) To endow with pre-eminence.
 Urddunianu, a. (urdduniant) Tending to dignity.
 Urdduniant, s. m. (urddun) Pre-eminence, honour.
 Urddwisg, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (urdd—gwisg) A robe of state, a dress of order.
 Urddwr, s. m.—pl. urddwyr (urdd—gwr) A man who dignifies; one who confers orders.
 Urddyn, s. m. (urdd) A dignified or exalted one.

Wyr Owain Prydain praf dychryn guio—Mab forwerth and good urddyn.

*The grandson of Owain of Britain, the ample terror of the foes;
 the son of forwerth, happily was the exalted one begotten.*
Ll. F. Nech.

Urldd, s. m.—pl. t. on (ur) That is pre-eminent, an exalted one; an elder.

Dag Hlawfen Aroa urldd Aaron's staff.

The hand-stick of Aaron the elder bore herring and loaves.
I. ab Ilysiel Bardwal.

US, s. m. r.—pl. t. ion. What is a peel, or connected coating; also the husks of corn, or chaff.
a. Outside; illusive; trifling, light, frail. It is a general termination of words of quality or adjectives; as gweddus, covered with decency, of a decent appearance, or seemingly.

Adwara hon farch us.

An old horse knows chaff.

Adgar.

*Yr eidd, gochel riawodd
 Y corff us o'i falon fodd.*

My soul, avoid the nature of the frail body and its honeyed enjoyment.
D. ab Dafydd Llwyd.

Usaldd, a. (us) Like husk, or chaff; husky.
 Usawg, a. (us) Abounding with husks or chaff.

Usion, a. pl. aggr. (us) Chaff, husks of corn.
 Usionrug, s. m. (usion—rug) A chaff heap.
 Usionl, v. a. (usion) To yield husks or chaff.
 Usyld, a. (us) Abounding with chaff, full of chaff.
 Usyldrwydd, s. m. (uslyd) Fullness of chaff.
 Ust, s. m. (us) A silence; a hush, or hush. It is also the imperative verb: Hush!

*Y tarann—
 Dew a hyl: ar at slyr sut
 Nod cwyth a dywysant.*

Thunder-claps: God doth cease; at his word they become silent and are still.
D. Iago.

Ustied, s. m. (ust) A silencing, a hushing.
 Ustiau, v. a. (ust) To silence, to quell, to hush.
 Uswydd, a. (us—gwydd) Of peeled surface.

Llysoch of hallow, smooth swydd.

Red-stained his blade, sheld of felled forest. Llysoch.

Gur eurglawr swydd swydd holl.

A hero splitting the gold-covered sheld of felled forest.
D. Fict. ab Idris.

Usyn, s. m. ddm. (us) A single particle or chaff.

*Uysa wyl, se ddaew wyl,
 Ac angus yn eysgwrth!*

A froil chaf man I and wanting strength, with death to express.
D. ab Idris.

Utgorn, s. m.—pl. utgyrn (udgorn) A trumpet.

UTH, s. m. r. That is extreme; extended.

Uthr, s. m. (uth) That stanneth. a. Awful, wonderful; astonishing; terrific; horrible.

Y cythraul awr uth-wn.

The dead ponder a horrid sight. W. Lly.

Uthraldd, a. (uthr) Tending to astonish.

Uthraw, v. a. (uthr) To astonish, to amaze.

Uthrawl, a. (uthr) Astonishing, amazing.

Uthredig, a. (uthr) Astonished, terrified.

Uthredd, s. m. (uthr) Astonishment; horror.

Uthriad, s. m. (uthr) An astonishing.

Uthroleb, s. m. (uthrawl) Astonishment; awfulness; horribleness.

Uthrollder, s. m. (uthrawl) Astonishment; awfulness; horribleness.

Uthroledd, s. m. (uthrawl) Astonishingness; awfulness; horribleness.

Uthrolli, v. a. (uthrawl) To render astonishing; to render awful; to render terrified; to become awful; to become terrified.

Uthrolrwydd, s. m. (uthrawl) Awfulness.

Uwch, prep. (uch) Above, over; also used for uchach, higher, upper.

Uwch pen no dwy ysgwydd.

Higher a head than two shoulders. Adg.

Uwchder, s. m. (uwch) Highness, altitude.

Uwchdra, s. m. (uwch) Highness, altitude.

Uwchedd, s. m. (uwch) Highness, altitude.

Uwchel, a. (uwch) High, lofty; eminent.

Uwd, s. m. (wd) Any liquid thickened by boiling meal in it; hasty-pudding; bargo; pap; or the like mixtures. Uwd peillid, flour boiled in milk; uwd moidd glas, grits boiled in whey; uwd angachen, a poultice.

A fo hand of fof rheod ar at uwd.

He who has abundance of honey let him put it in his poultice.
Adg.

Uwdaldd, a. (uwd) Like hasty-pudding.

Uwdfya, s. m. (uwd—bys) The nursing finger, the fore-finger.

W.

W F F

W. THIS vowel's sound is an inflection of e; and it expresses a tendency from, out, or beyond; and when affixed to primitives, it gives them a contrary import; as in gwedd, that is wedded, if formed into gweddw, it denotes being beyond a wedded state, or a widow; so ul, moisture, becomes uwl, the remains what is deprived of moisture, as embers, or cinders: and with respect to the gender or words, the w denotes the masculine and e the feminine. It is used as an interjection expressive of alarm.

Wab, s. m.—pl. t. iau (ab) A slap, a stroke.
Wabiad, s. m. (wab) A slapping, a beating.
Wabiaw, v. a. (wab) To slap, to beat, to cuff.
Wabiwr, s. m.—pl. wabiwyr (wab—gwr) Slapper.
WB, s. m. r. The state of being expelled; the state of being out, over, or up. interj. It is expressive of anxiety: ah!

Wb wyr! nawdd nef rhagoch; er y byd na wneuch hysg: ni ddaneth neb arddod i erddi yr uch o Olfen a elai a'i fywyd gano.
Arund ye men! God's protection before you! for the world do not so: no body ever came to demand Ofwen who went away with his life.
H. Cuthbert—Mattington.

Wb o'r hia, o'r wybr heno!
Out with the weather from the sky to-night! D. ab Gwilym.

Wbain, v. a. (wb) To keep howling, to howl.
Wbw, interj. (wb repeated) It is expressive of distress, anxiety, and revolting.
WCH, s. m. r. A spread out, or expansion.
Wchw, interj. (wch) It is expressive of calling out for assistance: Hoo.
WD, s. m. r. That is extreme, extended, or stretched out.
Wedi, adv. (gwedi) After, afterwards; then.

Y dea a yn dy wrth
 Wedi'r ei y da'r y cwrth;
 Dy ran o dir arisann,
 Dy wind o'i dal y de.

The property expanded in the work, after it is gone the second time it will come thy portion of rent producing land, thy whole country with the property make good.
Iorwerth Fynglwyd.

Weithian, adv. (gwaith) This time, now, at length. It is used for y waith hon, y weithon, and weithion.

Weithian, adv. (gwaith) Sometimes, at times.

Riddle—
 Wrth gylwel, tyfied fod dyn,
 E gyw weithian drwy gwlidyn.

The jealous one in listening thinking there is a man, he sometimes hears the noise of the falling dew-drop.
T. Pry.

Weithion, adv. (gwaith) This time, at length.
Weithon, adv. (gwaith) This time, now; at last.
Wel, v. imp. (gwel) Lo, behold, see, see now.
conj. So, well. Wel dachw so, lo yonder it is: wel dachw, see now below: wel dachw, lo above: wel dyma iddi beth, well here is some for her: wel dyns i ti, see there now for you.

Wel, dyma welod anhwedd!
Well, that is a difficult perception! D. ab Gwilym.

Wela, v. imp. (wel) Lo, behold, see, see now; well. Wela dyma fi, see now here am I: wela paid, well then be quiet: wela hai, very well then, well then it shall be so.

WF, s. m. r. A flow, glide, or running out; that is liquid.

WFF, s. m. r. Motion from or out; expulsion.

W O

Wft, s. m. (wft) A push off; a slight, or scorn; a fie, an expression of disapprobation.

Wft!r dyn a wftio hwb heb wybod mwy am dano.

Fie upon the person whom every body cries so upon without knowing any more about him.
Adage.

Wftiad, s. m. (wft) A pushing off scornfully; a showing disapprobation with surprise; a crying fie upon.

Wftiaw, v. a. (wft) To push away with disapprobation; to cry shame; to cry fie.

WG, s. m. r. An overpread; an outside.

Whw, interj. It is expressive of calling out for assistance.

WI, interj. It is expressive of joy; Hey; hey-day; oh.

O wi! O Ddow! y rhydder gwaith ydd arfethnau iadri! Ceir gwrthynwch i Kaffydd, ac ni gaisant!

O yes! O God! the number of times that the ears of Chester purposed to oppose Gwffydd, and they could not!
Buckled G. ab Gwyn.

Am fy ngwddif ei brenchies—
 Wawr euraid: wi o'r aerwy!

Round my neck her arms, the golden luminary: oh, what a wrath!
D. ab Gwilym.

Wi! o'r gwaith yw ei ddydd:
 Wi! o'r llaw ar y lleys!

Oh! what art there is on his vest: Oh! what a colour on the shirt!
D. ab Gwilym, i bwr.

Wichwach, interj. (gwich) It expresses frolic.

Wihi, s. m. (wi) The whinnying of a horse.

Wihiad, s. m. (wih) A whinnying, as a horse.

Wihaw, v. a. (wih) To whinny like a horse.

Winc, s. m.—pl. t. od (gwinc) A chaffinch.

WL, s. m. r. That is subtle, fine, or small.

WLL, s. m. r.—pl. yllod. A fragment, a fraction.

WM, s. m. r. That closes about; a covert; a void, or hollow.

Wmp, s. m. (wm) A covert, or a shade.

—Mat imp coedyd,
 Wmp ar dafarn ei fwr fydd.

Like the shoots of trees, a shade on the headland he lined with Llynarch Benturck.

WN, s. m. r. That is on, upon, close, or at; that is beginning or commencing; that tends to; that is of an energetic nature.

Wnc, s. m. (wn) The state of being close, at, or hard by; proximity. a. Close, near, hard by.
prep. Near, nigh. adv. Here.

Dyweddi o wnc, galanas o bell.

Esposal from a neighbourhood, murder from afar.
Adage.

Wnc, pron. m. (wnc) That one at a distance, speaking of the masculine; the feminine is onco. adv. There. Dyfed.

Wncw, adv. (wng) There; yonder.

Wng, s. m.—pl. yngon (wnc) The state of being close, at, or by. a. Close, near, hard by; strait. prep. Near, nigh. adv. Here. Engyrt yguf, difficulty the most confined.

Ing yn lwg yngon eangedd.

Strait in strait be proximities of amplitude.
Adage.

Trwy a thrwy, wng a rhwng, y deuthan';
 Traw a thraw, undodh Bran a Meigan.

Through and through, close and between, they came: over and over, of the same course Bran and Meigan.
Myrdin.

WO, s. m. r. A motion out or ended; a call made to stop a horse. v. imper. Wo, stop, stand still.

Wô, s. m. The cry of hounds in chase.
 WP, s. m. r. The state of being out or over.
 WR, s. m. r. The state of being on, over, or at.
 Wrch, s. m. (wr) That is high, or rotund.
 Wrdd, s. m. (wr) Touch, contact; impulse.
 Wrth, s. m. (wr) A touch, a contact, the state of being by, opposite, or against.

Wrth, prep. (wrth, s.) In contact, close to; by; with; in comparison, compared with. adv. While. Pa beth yw hynny wrth hyn? What is that compared with this? Wrth fyned heibio, in going by: Wrth lio dydd, by day light: Nid allaf wrth hynny, I cannot help that: Wrth ganu, while singing: Taraw wrth, to meet with: Dos wrth dy bys, go taking thy time: Cadw oddi wrth y byd, keep from the world; ymscill-dua i wrth y byd, separate thyself from the world: Y byd bo wrth eich bodd! be the world well with you! Dyfed. Mae y fawch wrth ben ei hal, the cow is just in calving. Dyfed. Wrth is compounded with pronouns, and is declined thus—Wrthyf, wrthof, by me; wrthyt, wrthot, by thee; wrtho, by him, or it; wrthi, by her; wrthym, wrthom, by us; wrthych, wrthoch, by you; wrthyni, by them. Ni eli wrtho, thou canst not help it: Wrtho ei hun, by himself.

Calon Seis wrth Gymaro.

The heart of an Englishman towards a Welshman. Adage.

Rheid pr fawch wrth loughwa.

Necessary to the cow the being with a fall. Adage.

WS, s. m. r. That is impulsive, that is precipitous; action, effort; ardour.

Wsg, s. m. (ws) That opens or separates.

Wst, s. m. (ws) A thrust, push, or drive; a gust; the hypochondria, the hip.

Wsw, s. m.—pl. t. od (ws) That abounds with impulse, or energy; an epithet for the horse; a steed.

Oa gweyryr, ewch dros Gaer Wyt;
 Oa harsale waw arnat—
 Ymgelwch.

If spears, go ye over Winchester; if on them steed harness be, hide yourselves. L. Mon.

WT, s. m. r. That is extreme, or outward; out.

Wtre, s. f.—pl. wtrëydd (wt—rhe) A lane.

Wttres, s. f.—pl. t. au (wt—tres) A revel, a carousal.

Caw, mewn oer!—
 Cyn y fawr canu 'fferen,
 A myn'd i wttres a merch,
 A rhoddi neges Rhydderch.

A buck in a choir! before the bargains he sings a mass, and goes to revel with a dameel, and presents the gift of Rhydderch. G. ab Hywel ab Tudgr.

Wttresalld, a. (wttres) Revelous, carousing.

Wttresawl, a. (wttres) Revelling, carousing.

Wttresgar, a. (wttres) Revelous, apt to feast.

Wttresgarwch, s. m. (wttresgar) Riotousness.

Wttresiad, s. m. (wttres) A revelling.

Wttresiaeth, s. f. (wttres) Loose festivity.

Mynale mewn llanorch
 Wttreswch traserch
 I wttreswch wttreswch.

I prepared in a glade a carousal of ardent love for a vine-nurtured dameel fair. D. Edwards.

Wttres, v. a. (wttres) To carouse, to revel.

Wttreswr, s. m.—pl. wttreswyr (wttres—gwr) A carouser, a riotous person, a spendthrift.

Wttreswyl, s. f.—pl. t. iau (wttres—gwyl) A carousal.

Wtr, s. m. aggr. (wt) The small light grain amongst corn.

Od oga wna mewn das lli.

If there be empty grain in a stack of thine. Arnon Tew.

WTH, s. m. r. That expands or stretches out.

WY, s. m. r.—pl. t. an. That proceeds from; that is produced; an egg.

Mal wy ar droel.

Like an egg on a lever.

Adage.

A ddygo yr wy a ddygo yr tar.

He that steals the egg will steal the hen.

Adage.

Wy, pronon. prep. Of or to the third person; of him, of her, of it; for which i, ei, i'w, iddi, are generally used. 'Hi yn fawr wy thad,' She being mother to her father.

Wybr, s. f.—pl. t. au (gwybr) Firmament, or atmosphere; the sky; ether; the least possible thing.

Nid ysgafu oad wybr.

There is nothing so light as air.

Adage.

Yr hysg—

Ynddodgwys crof, oad cwrth.

Yn cwrthych wybr, cyn awystr.

Thou canst show thyself for my sake, with sure signs, in the midst of the firmament, before the time of noon.

G. Lloyd ab Dafydd.

Moesen to fwrw o hennid;

Ni bu ar hwn wybr o hennid.

Moses did die of old age; there was upon him not the smallest sign of diuane. L. G. Cuth.

Wybraidd, a. (wybr) Like the firmament.

Mile Ebrill wybraidd gwrth;

Lluddedig ychais; llwn tr.

The month of April aerial is the horizon; besieged the camp; bare the land. Arnon Tew.

Wybraw, v. a. (wybr) To form a firmament; to move in the air; to soar into the air; to become aerial.

Wybrawl, a. (wybr) Firmamental; aerial.

Y padarn—

Gwllth wybrawl gwllw wrth Ebrill.

The bands seem to aerial dew of April eight those purified. Arnon Tew.

Wybreiddiad, s. m. (wybraidd) A rendering like the firmament; a becoming aerial.

Wybreiddiau, v. a. (wybraidd) To render firmamental; to render aerial; to become like air.

Wybren, s. f.—pl. t. i (wybr) A firmament.

Arwydd canol—

Y cynt no rhyngyn uch rhodd wybren.

The swags through a hundred bottles, be to more quick than a storm-wind over the ruddy welsh. L. F. Moch, i Gr. ab Llywelyn.

Dryv'r wybrenydd y dydd a das

El hywrych wely afon.

Through the stars the day doth spread his silver-crown upon the ray. Arnon Tew.

Wybrenalld, a. (wybran) Firmamental; atmospheric.

Wybrenawl, a. (wybren) Being firmamental; atmospheric.

Wybrgoel, s. f. (wybr—goel) Aëromancy.

Wybriad, s. e.—pl. wybriaid (wybr) That is of the firmament; that exists in the air.

Llymyston—

A'f hoddli fflam wybriaid Ebrill.

The flocks with her gleaming flight a flaming habitation of air. G. Edwards.

Wybrineth, s. m. (wybr) Aërology; formation of air.

Wybrig, a. (wybr) Firmamental; atmospheric.

Wybrlwr, s. m. (wybr—llwr) A cerulean bee.

Wybrwr, s. m.—pl. wybrwyr (wybr—gwr) One of the firmament; one who soars into the air; an aërologist.

Ni fywau, er mwyn fawdd.

Wybrwr llon, a'm burhau'r lliad.

I would not, for the sake of my soul, have a lively bee in the air, that would throw me in the dirt. Arnon Tew.

Wyd, v. (wy) Art, thou art. It is used for wydt ti, when no emphasis is required.

Wyengawl, a. (wy—engawl) Oviparous.

Wyngl, v. a. (wy—engl) To propagate by eggs.

Wyl, v. (wy) Am, I am. When the person is emphatically discriminated wi is used with it: Wys f yz berawed ond nid wyl ti, I am ready, but thou art not.

Wyl tridyching hen, wyl answadl-drad,
Wyl chod, wyl aspar:
Y sawt a'n carodd a'n car!

I am old three ways bent, I am sickly bold, I am heedless, I am wild; the one who has loved me loves me not!
Llynarth Hen.

Wyl, s. m. (wy—yl) A gush out; a wail.

Wylad, s. m. (wyl) A wailing, a weeping.

Wylaw, v. a. (wyl) To wail, or to weep. Wylid ddagrau heillion, thou wilt weep salt tears.

Wylid ni wyl ei harchen.
Let him weep who owns not his owner. Adage.
Howd! per! i dagrau wylaw.
It is easy to cause the wry-mouth to weep. Adage.
Wyl wylad ond ddyddod;
A wylwyl a'n llyd.

Myself I will weep for Dwydd; what I do weep it will be a satire. L. G. Cohl.

Wylod, s. m. (wyl—of) A weep, a wailing.

Wylodaeth, s. m. (wyl—of) The act of wailing.

Clywais ief chais wylodaeth,
Caddi dros y wlad iud seth!
I heard a cry of the breaking out of weeping, a knock over the country woefully bath gone!
Jen. Thomas.

Wylodfa, v. a. (wylod) To wail, to weep.

Wylodfedd, s. m. (wylod) A weeping, a wailing; mourning, lamentation.

Wylodi, v. a. (wylod) To wail, or to weep.

Wylodfa, a. (wylod) Wailing; doleful.

Wyn, s. pl. aggr. (oen) Lambs. Wyn bach, little lambs.

Wyna, v. a. (wyn) To collect lambs; to yean.

Ou gedy a gail dya da
Yn y chawen, yn lach wyns.

If fetters be a good man's lot in the event, edies with collecting lambs. Llyfyrtyr ab Gwilym.

Wyneb, s. m.—pl. t. au (gwyneb) A face, a visage; a surface. Wyneb uchel, of a high look; derbyn wyneb, a receiving the presence, a receiving fairly; ar y wyneb, upon the surface.

Wyneb trist drwg a cry.

A sad countenance awaits mischief. Adage.
Tri pheth sydd ar wrald, a gwr welod y cyntaf i'w anghar y ddau arall: wyneb ei hua mewn drych; cefn ei gwr a bell, a gor-dderchwr yn ei gwely.

Three things appertain to a woman, who loves to see the first she will not dislike to see the other two; her own face in a glass; her husband's back far off, and a paramour in her bed. Triodd.

Wynebwaw, a. (wyneb) Having a face; faced.

Wynebwyl, a. (wyneb) Belonging to the face.

Wynebiad, s. m. (wyneb) A facing, a fronting.

Wynebpryd, s. m. (wyneb—pryd) A countenance

Wynebu, v. a. (wyneb) To face, to front.

Wynebus, a. (wyneb) Of countenance, of goodly visage; seemly.

Wynebwarth, s. m. (wyneb—gwarth) A face covering; shame of face; blush of face; an affront; also the fine in law for an affront.

Wynebwarth pawb ei saried heb dderchafael.

The affront fine of every one is his insult fine without advancement. Welsh Laws.

Y drymwr, on etall yr an o'r penwyddogion, taled lldo ei wynebwarth.

The doorkeeper, if he obstruct any one of the chief officers, he must pay to him his blush of face. Welsh Laws.

Wynsbwniad, s. m. (wyneb—gwniad) A fine-drawing in sewing.

Wynsbwniaw, v. a. (gwniaw) To fine draw.

Wynebwyr, a. m. (wyneb—gwr) A faced.

Wynoc, s. pl. diem. (wyn) Lambkins.

Wyr, s. m.—pl. t. lon (wy—yr) That is spread, stretched, or extended; a grandson.

Ni chestr yr llwyr
Ond ddeio yr wyr.

There will be no loving completely until the grandchild comes. Adage.

Och, a Garm, a Dinebad, tair wyrion
Bwlch, a Cyfwich, a Sefwlich.

Green, Shout, and Scream, the three grandchildhood of Gush, Tear, and Rent. H. Culbreth—Mabingion.

Wyrain, a. (wyr) Spreading, extending.

Digwydd yr ddrwg rhag alawfodd wyrain,
Wyr llwyr ysgwydau.

There was a heavy falling down from the spreading flow of mood, the spread of a host with trailing shields. America.

Wyraw, v. a. (wyr) To distend, to reach out.

Wyre, s. f. (wyr) A spread, an expanse. Yr Wyre Fawr, Yr Wyre Fach, The Great Spread, The Little Spread, rivers in Cardiganshire.

Wyres, s. f.—pl. t. au (wyr) A grand-daughter.

Wys, s. m. (wy—ys) Aptitude or tendency for motion.

Wysawg, a. (wys) Having aptitude; abounding with currency or fluidity. Caer Wysawg, one of the old names of Oxford.

Wysg, s. m. (wys) A tendency forward, tendency, direction, bias; presence; a current, course, or stream. Ar wysg y Ceisariaid, in pursuit of the Romans: Llysga fe yn wysg ei draed, drag him with his feet foremost: Yn wysg dy drwyn, in the direction of thy nose.

Caenid in cren-drysg
A gwrddant f'w wysg
Yn llin ar der-drysg
Yn llwyr dorf-rydd.

A glorious blood-spilt host will come into thy presence, as a golden host conquering, a multitude completely free. B. Deu a Hireding.

Aethym—

Yn wysg fy mhen yn oegud.

I went in the direction of my head nimbly. D. ab Owglyn.

Wysg, adv. (wys) In a forward direction; forward. Dos wysg dy ben, go with thy head forwards, go headlong.

Wysgaw, v. n. (wysg) To move onward; to glide onward; to go headlong.

Wyt, v. (wyd) Art, thou art. When there is an emphasis required to distinguish the second person from any other Ti is added: Wyt yma, thou art here; wyt ti yma, art thou there, and not another.

Need wyt wr ardwr, ardyw efrw cad
Cedarnyd Enna.

Surely thou art a man that is the bulwark of conflict, a sturdy swayer of battle of the prowess of Enrag.

Ll. P. Moch, i L. ab Iorwerth.

Wyth, s. m.—pl. t. au (wy—yth) The state of being extended out, or separate from an identity; the number eight, eight. a. Eight.

Wythaw, v. a. (wyth) To form into eight, to make up eight; to divide into eight parts.

Wythawl, a. (wyth) Belonging to eight.

Wythban, a. m. (wyth—ban) That is of eight parts; that is of eight verses; that is of eight syllables. a. Of eight parts.

Wythbauwg, a. (wythban) Of eight parts; of eight verses; of eight syllables.

Wythblyg, s. m. (wyth—plyg) That is of eight folds. a. Of eight folds.

Wythblygawl, a. (wythblyg) Of eight folds.

Wythblygiad, s. m. (wythblyg) A forming of eight folds.

Wythblygu, v. a. (wythblyg) To read eight fold.
 Wythdeg, s. m. (wyth—deg) Eighteen.
 Wythdegfed, s. m. (wythdeg) Eighteenth.
 Wythdro, s. m. (wyth—tro) That is of eight turns.
a. Of eight turns.
 Wythroed, s. m. (wyth—troed) That is eight-footed. a. Eight-footed.
 Wythroedawg, a. (wythroed) Having eight feet
 Wythdddeg, s. m. (wyth—deg) Eighty. a. Eighty.
 Wythdddegfed, s. m. (wythdddeg) Eightieth.
 Wythfed, s. m. (wyth) An eighth. a. Eighth.
 Wythfedwaith, s. f. (wythfed—gwaith) Eighth time
 Wythganfed, s. m. (wythgant) Eight hundredth.
 Wythganfedwaith, s. f. (wythganfed—gwaith)
 The eight hundredth time.
 Wythganmil, s. m. (wythgant—mil) Eight hundred thousands.
 Wythganmilfed, s. m. (wythganmil) An eight hundred thousandth.
 Wythgant, s. m. (wyth—cant) Eight hundred.
 Wythganwaith, s. pl. (wythgant—gwaith) Eight hundred times.
 Wythiad, s. m. (wyth) A forming of eight; a dividing into eight parts.
 Wythmis, s. m. (wyth—mis) A space of eight months. a. Of eight months.
 Wythmlwydd, s. m. (wyth—blwydd) That is of eight years. a. Of eight years.
 Wythmlwyddawl, a. (wythmlwydd) Octennial.
 Wythmlynedd, s. m. (wyth—blynedd) That is of eight years. a. Of eight years.
 Wythmlyneddawl, a. (wythmlynedd) Octennial.
 Wythnos, s. f.—pl. t. au (wyth—nos) That consists of eight nights; a week. Wythnos y gweddi, rogation week. Anciently the days of the week were thus named—Unfeddydd, first day; deufeddydd, deudedydd, eiufeddydd, second day; trydeddydd, third day; pedrydddydd, fourth day; pumfeddydd, fifth day; chwecheddydd, sixth day; seithfeddydd, seventh day.

Wythnos y llynaws.

The week of the fox.

Adage.

Wythnosawl, a. (wythnos) Weekly.
 Wythnosol, v. a. (wythnos) To form a week, to divide into weeks.

Wythnosolad, s. m. (wythnos) A forming a week, a dividing into weeks.
 Wythnydd, s. m. (wyth—dydd) A space of eight days. a. Of eight days.
 Wythnyddawl, a. (wythnydd) Of eight days.
 Wythnyn, s. m. (wyth—dyn) That is of eight persons. a. Of eight persons.
 Wythnynawl, a. (wythnyn) Of eight persons.
 Wythochr, s. m. (wyth—ochr) An octagon.
 Wythochrawg, a. (wythochr) Octagonal.
 Wythochrawl, a. (wythochr) Octagonal.
 Wythochri, v. a. (wythochr) To form an octagon.
 Wythochriad, s. (wythochr) A forming an octagon.
 Wythongi, s. m. (wyth—ongi) That has eight angles. a. Octangular.
 Wythongiawg, a. (wythongi) Octangular.
 Wythongiawl, a. (wythongi) Octangular.
 Wythongi, v. a. (wythongi) To form an octangular figure.
 Wythongiawd, s. m. (wythongi) A forming an octangular figure.
 Wythor, s. m. (wyth—or) That has eight borders. a. Of eight borders.
 Wythorawl, a. (wythor) Of eight borders.
 Wythori, v. a. (wythor) To make to consist of eight borders.
 Wythoriad, s. m. (wythor) A making to consist of eight borders.
 Wythran, s. f. (wyth—rhan) That has eight shares. a. Of eight shares or parts.
 Wythranawl, a. (wythran) Relating to what consists of eight parts.
 Wythryw, s. m. (wyth—rhyw) That consists of eight sorts. a. Of eight sorts.

Wythryw yd a thri o waer.

Eight sorts of corn and three of hay.

Id. ab. Gwilym.

Wythrywiad, s. m. (wythryw) A forming into eight sorts or kinds.
 Wythrywiaw, v. a. (wythryw) To form eight sorts.
 Wythrywiawl, a. (wythryw) Of eight sorts.
 Wythrywiawl, a. (wythryw) Of eight sorts.
 Wythall, s. f. (wyth—sill) That has eight syllables. a. Of eight syllables.
 Wythallawg, a. (wythall) Having eight syllables.
 Wythwalth, s. pl. (wyth—gwaith) Eight times.
 Wythwalthfed, s. f. (wythwalth) The eighth time.

Y.

Y. THIS is a derivative sound, whose origin is E, being short, open, and indistinct, and having much of the character of the Hebrew shewa, or that transient sound, which transpires between certain consonants. It is the mutation of O and W in some forms of construction, and it particularly forms the plural of monosyllables. It is also the article the, preceding the words with consonant initials; but before vowels, for the sake of euphony, it takes dd and r, as affixes, to form ydd, yr. With verbs it assumes an adverbial character; and often is a mere expletive sound.

Gwyn fydd y farch a allu fod gan ei hunan.

Happy is the woman that can be by herself.

Adage.

Ar ddwedd y mas barnu.

On the conclusion is to be judging.

Adage.

Arthur—

Yn mhen lla Cwmwl y Rha.

Arthur, in the front of the head of Cwmwl was he slain.

L. G. Cotta.

YB, s. m. r. A state of expulsion; the state of being out, over, or up.

Ybain, v. a. (yb) To make a howling; to howl.

YCH, s. m. r. That is out, over, or before: a neat, bullock, or ox. Ychais, oxen.

Ni sogli yr ych da ar dy droed.

The black ox has not trodden on thy foot.

Adage.

Gwell oen fy hwn nag ych arell.

Better a lamb of my own than the ox of another.

Adage.

Tai ychais yr trith a ddodas Nared Waleisford, a Gwastell Faw yn Eilafet, yn lle aredig cymorth iddi, aenath lub pŵlwr llydd.

Payment for corn is a tax that was established by Nared Waleisford, of Faw's Castle in Eilafet, instead of the custom ploughing to her, once every four years.

Mydd.

Yeh, a. (ych, a.) Ye or you are; are ye, are you.
Yeha, v. imper. (ych) Lo, behold, see. Yeha acw,
 lo yonder.

Ychad, s. m. (ych) A coming in view.

Ychadaf, adv. (ychad) In a most conspicuous way.

Rhedegang o'n ar hyd traeth:
Ychadaf loriwr arfwrth:
Cad o odo gwest do wr ffrath.

Full of motion the wave along the strand: thus plainly a purpose is broken: a battle near him the prettler takes to flight.
Llywarch Hen.

Ychwaen, adv. (chwaen) Peradventure, by chance.
Ychwaith, conj. (chwaith) Neither, not even so.
Ychwaneg, s. m. (chwaneg) More. adv. More.
Ychwanegadwy, a. (ychwaneg) Capable of augmentation.

Ychwanegawl, a. (ychwaneg) Apt to augment.

Ychwanegedig, s. (ychwaneg) Being augmented.

Ychwanegiad, s. m. (ychwaneg) Augmentation.

Ychwanegu, v. a. (ychwaneg) To augment.

Ychwardd, s. m. (chwardd) Tendency to laughter.

Ychwarddawl, a. (ychwardd) Tending to laughter.

Ychwarddiad, s. m. (ychwardd) A causing laughter.

Ychwarddu, v. a. (ychwardd) To cause laughter.

Ychwarddih yn wych i'rddydd;
Yn wylaw y ddech yr all dydd.

I laugh'd bravely the passing day; waving came the second day.
D. ab Ieuan Idd.

Ychwarian, adv. (chwarian) In a gentle manner.

Cyfarhad o ochlysur byd,
A'm dawed ychwarian;
Pwy wledych wael Cysan!

I will congratulate on account of the world, as I gently come forward: Who will reign after Cysan!
Cyfarwr Merddin.

Ychwerig, adv. (chwerig) Playfully, sportively.

Ychwina, adv. (chwina) At present; immediately.

Pan fo yn awpru ychwinu ddechreu nos.

When he is supping just at the beginning of night.
H. Bowen—Mabingion.

He wrags! y neb piau y gwlith, ti of gweli ym ychwinu.

He wrags! he to whom the corpse belongs, thou shalt see here immediately.
H. Oulheri—Mabingion.

Ychydig, s. m.—pl. t. lion (cyd) A little, a small quantity; a few. a. Little, small as to quantity and number. adv. Little.

Ychydig yn aml a wna llawer.
A little often will make much. Adage.

Ychydig a wneid am y nef pal difoddid uffern.
Little would there be done for heaven if hell were extinguished.
Adage.

Tri ychydig a wna canll llawer: ychydig o anwydau drwg, ychydig o wall, ac ychydig o ledard.

Three small things will be the means of losing much: a little of angry passions, a little carelessness, and a little theft.
Triodd.

Ychydigaw, v. a. (ychydig) To lessen in quantity or number; to render few; to become few.

Ychydigawl, a. (ychydig) Tending to lessen.

Ychydigder, s. m. (ychydig) A littleness of quantity and number; fewness, paucity.

Goreu ar bob chwarae ychydigder.

The best of every play is a little. Adage.

Ychydigdra, s. m. (ychydig) Littleness, fewness.

Ychydigrwydd, s. m. (ychydig) Littleness, fewness.

Ychydigyn, s. m.—pl. t. an (ychydig) A very little.

Y thr hwn—yr oedd rhyw ychydigyn o osteni yn saethu i mewn lloco yn awr ac allwath.

This hand, there were some small particles of light shooting into it at one time and at another.
Irr. Owain.

YD, s. m. r.—pl. t. an That is; a being; corn.
Yd byr, standing corn. It forms the termination of a class of nouns, and of some verbs in the infinitive mood. Yd meddus, darnel.

Po hynaf yr yd tebycaf fydd i'r byd.

By so much the older the corn more like it will be to the world.
Adage.

Tow o ffig y tyf yr am.
Towach yw cartofolau;
Bai yd y gweli a buyd awyr,
Byd am yw i'r Rhaklawyd.

Thick of branches the ash doth grow, more thick are mounds; if the grass were corn and food for men, too scanty it would be for the Romans.
Ien. Du. y Biling.

Yd, adv. (yd, s.) A particle idiomatically used, answering to it, that, and doth, in the formation of verbs; and it is often merely an expletive, used for euphony.

Triet yd gwyn pob colledig.

Sadly doth every condemned one complain. Tellur.

Turt cywynu cna yd weier.

He would intimidate an opponent were he but seen. Lk. P. Mach.

Hir yd gofhir a gofllaf.

Long will be remembered what I record. D. Brynfan.

Yda, v. a. (yd) To gather corn; to go about begging for corn.

Ydaidd, a. (yd) Like or of the nature of corn.

Ydawg, a. (yd) Abounding with corn, full of corn.

Ydawl, a. (yd) Belonging to corn, of the quality of grain.

Ydbys, s. pl. aggr. (yd—pys) Vetches. Ydbys trawygddawt, cichlins.

Yd-dir, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (yd—tir) Corn land.

Yd-dy, s. m.—pl. t. an (yd—ty) A granary.

Yden, s. f. dim. (yd) A grain of corn.

Ydfaes, s. m. (yd—maes) A corn field.

Ydfron, s. f.—pl. ydfrain (yd—bran) A rook.

Ydfwyd, s. m. (yd—bwyd) Food made of corn.

Ydfwyd i ddyn, cigfwd i gwn.

Grain food for men, flesh food for dogs. Adage.

Tri ymborth dyn a barant lechyd, hroes, a synwyr gleu; yd-fwyd, blithfwd, a gurdffwyd.

The three sustenances of man that will cause health, long life, and clear sense: food made of corn, milk food, and vegetable food.
Caring at Gwynllwyn.

Ydgeirch, s. pl. aggr. (yd—ceirch) Wild oats.

Ydgist, s. f.—pl. t. lan (yd—cist) A corn bin.

Ydgordd, s. f.—pl. t. an (yd—cordd) Corn-yard.

Ydi, v. (yd) Is; it is, he is, she is; is it, is he, is she.

Ydig, s. m. dim. (yd) Degenerate corn; cockle; it is also called gith.

Ydian, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (yd—llan) A corn-yard.

Ydoedd, v. (yd—oedd) Was. Ydyw, is.

Ydwal, s. f.—pl. t. au (yd—gwal) A corn garth.

Ydwyd, v. (wyd) Art, thou art, art thou. Pwy ydwyd? who art thou? Ai Meilyr ydwyd? Art thou Meilyr?

Ydwyf, v. (wyf) Am; I am; am I. Ydwyf gwa, I am here: a ydwyf? am I?

Ydych, v. (ych) Ye are, you are; are ye, are you.

Ydynt, v. (ynt) They are; are they. Dynion ydynt, they are men: ai dynion ydynt? are they men?

Boet a chelwydd, nid deubeth ydynt.

Boasting and lying, they are not two things. Adage.

Ydys, s. m. (yd—ys) The calendar, or weevil.

Ydyw, v. (yw) Is; it is, he is, she is, when the particular person is known.

Dyn i'n wna daloni neb.

A person who will do no good to any body is the one with two faces.
O. Gwynedd.

YDD, s. m. r. That is moving before; that is conspicuous. a. Forward; conspicuous. It is the article the, used in common with yr, before nouns with vowel initials, as y is before those with consonants; with verbs it assumes an adverbial character; and it is frequently a mere expletive sound. It is used sometimes as a pronoun. It is also a termination of masculine nouns.

Yfardd Llansfeng ydd air i nef.

By the way of Saint Mary Magdalen it is that we must go to heaven. Adage.

*O aw i gant yr a gwr;
O ddwy i un ydd a anwr.*

From an acre to a hundred with a man proceed; from two to one it is that the friable falls. Iowan Deutygn.

*Nesam rhoddes i Ben, rwyf iolydd, canfwr,
A rhant rddhwydd!
Ac un rodd oddi well nog ydd.*

Have I not been gifted by Rhon, a chief of celebrity, with distinct and a hundred lines! but one gift was better than them. Llywarch Hen.

YF, s. m. r. That is of a flowing or liquid nature; a liquid; a moisture.

Yfawr, a. (yf) Drinkable, capable of being drank

Yfawl, a. (yf) Relating to drinking.

Yfed, v. a. (yf) To drink. s. m. A drinking.

Yf dy gant oia oera.

Drink thy broth before it cools. Adage.

Ar ol yfelli syched ydd.

After drinking there comes thirst. Adage.

*Ac os yf an gwas afach
I'w feddwf, o fydd lach.*

And if any gentle man shall drink so as to make him drunk, he will be well. Ivan ab Gr. Llef, i'r coran.

Yfedgar, a. (yfed) Fond of drinking, or tipping.

Yfedgarwch, s. m. (yfedgar) Fondness for drink.

Yfedr, s. m. (yfed) A drinking habit.

Yfetri, v. a. (yfedr) To drink often; to tipple.

Yfgar, a. (yf) Fond of drink, bibaceous.

Yfgarwch, s. m. (yfgar) Fondness for drink.

Yfiad, s. m. (yf) A drinking; a bibbing.

Yfory, s. m. (mory) To-morrow. adv. To-morrow.

Yfu, v. a. (yf) To drink; to imbibe, to suck.

Yfwr, s. m.—pl. yfwyr (yf—gwr) A drinker.

Yfwaig, s. f.—pl. yfweigeidd (yf—gwrwig) A drinking woman.

YFF, s. m. r. A tendency out or from.

Yffl, s. m. (yff) A bit broken off; a particle.

Yfflaw, v. a. (yffl) To break off; to shiver.

Yfflon, s. pl. aggr. (yffl) Fragments; shatters.

Dyna fo yn yfflon man, there it is all to shatters.

Yfflyn, s. m. (yffl) A piece, a shiver.

YŴ, s. m. r. The state of being open, or void.

YL, s. m. r. That is pervasive; that is apt to move; a moving agent. It is a termination of a class of words.

Ylani, s. (eleni) The present year. adv. This year.

YLL, s. m. r. That tends to part, or to separate.

Yllyrd, s. m. (yll—tryd) A vagabond, a stroller.

Yllian, s. m. (yll) A ripping, or a dividing.

Yllt, s. m. (yll) A rip, rent, or parting.

Yllyt, s. m. (yllt) A ripper; an epithet used for a plough.

Yllynedd, s. (llynedd) Last year. adv. Last year.

Yllyr, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yll) A mole or want.

YM, s. m. r. That tends to identify; that is identic. It is a particle of very general use in composition. Prefixed to verbs, and verbal nouns, it makes a reflexion of the action on the agent or agents; as, golchi, to wash; ym-olchi, to wash one's self; seanu, to chide; ym- seanu, to chide mutually. It is also the pronoun my, used for my or us in certain forms of construction; and, it is the personal verb, we are.

Am dyu, yn Crist, wyf i'm cred!

About him, my Christ, he will not believe me more.

Guto y Glyn.

Cynghorwr ar wr, yr a'i myno gwyr;

Cynghorwr i'w gar wrth ei care.

Care i'm myd i'm, a'm disgwr;

Carid i'w bysillid i'm ei baid;

Car an ddi, a'm ddris;

Carewydd Ddydd brwydd a'm be!

A counsellor to man, for such as humbly seeks him; every he will not harbour to who loves him. The love of my society let to me that shall not condemn me; love with his guidance to me as I not fall; the friend whose intervention is sure, may he direct me; the favour of the Greater be it daily to me!

Meigr ab Gwalchmai.

Yma, s. m. (ma) Here, this place. adv. Here, in this place.

Gwne'at hwy y guthra

A fymat adro

Byth gweli yma.

Woe to them the crew, who seek for hell over after the green. Ian. Rhys.

A cerbydgo yma a gawdr fry.

That obscure here will be crowned there. Adage.

Ymachlud, s. m. (achlud) The act of enveloping.

v. a. To obscure one's self; to obscure mutually; to become obscured.

Ymachludaw, v. a. (ymachlud) To be obscuring; to obscure mutually; to become obscured.

Joseph a ymachludus gorf yr Iesu mewn llun glin.

Joseph shrouded the body of Jesus in clean linen.

Ymachludawl, a. (ymachlud) Tending to be enveloped or to be obscured.

Ymachludiad, s. m. (ymachlud) A becoming enveloped; a mutually obscuring.

Ymachludd, s. m. (achludd) The act of enveloping. v. a. To obscure one's self; to become obscured.

Y was gwrly i'm gelyn.

Lle'r ymachludd ddrwydd.

To my for there is a bed, where the cheeks of a ymch become obscured. M. ab Ely.

Ymachluddaw, v. a. (ymachludd) To obscure one's self; mutually to obscure.

Ymachluddawl, a. (ymachludd) Tending to become obscured.

Ymachluddiad, s. m. (ymachludd) A becoming obscured; a mutually obscuring.

Ymachub, s. m. (achub) Self-security. v. a. To save one's self; to deliver one's self; to save mutually.

Cyfod, ddrwygws cas, cas iach broses moch,

Ymachub a'th gwrffus.

Arise, thou odious wicked chap, get thee milk of poison and deliver thyself of thy disorders. Madogwg Dwygwg.

Ymachubaw, v. a. (ymachub) To save one's self, to deliver one's self; to save mutually.

Ymachubawl, a. (ymachub) Tending to self preservation; mutually preserving.

Ymachubiad, s. m. (ymachub) A saving one's self; a mutually saving.

Ymachubwr, s. m.—pl. ymachubwyr (ymachub—gwr) One who saves himself; one who mutually saves.

Ymachwyn, s. m. (achwyn) A complaint of one's self; a mutual complaint. v. a. To complain of one's self; to complain mutually.

Ymachwyniad, s. m. (ymachwyn) A complaining of one's self; a mutually complaining.

Ymachwynwr, s. m.—pl. ymachwynwyr (ymachwyn—gwr) One who complains of himself; a mutual complainer.

Ymadael, v. a. (gadael) To leave, to forsake, to quit; to depart; to leave mutually.

Ymadaw, v. a. (gadaw) To leave, to forsake; to depart; to elope; mutually to leave.

Llyma gynolifer ffordd yr ymadwy dyn a'i dda, trwy draid, beidrad, anghyfarach, lloŷ, adnau, beathys.

Behold the various ways that a person will part with his property, through oppression, theft, treachery, hire, pledge, loan.

Welsh Laws.

Ymadawlad, s. m. (ymadaw) A leaving, a forsaking; a departing, egression; elopement.

Ymadawwr, s. m.—pl. ymadawwyr (ymadaw—gwr) One who leaves or forsakes.

Ymadferth, s. m. (adferth) Self-exertion. v. a. To exert one's self; to defend or help one's self.

Ymadferthawl, a. (ymadferth) Self-exerting; tending to mutual aid.

Ymadferthiad, s. m. (ymadferth) Self-exertion; a helping one's self.

Ymadferthu, v. a. (ymadferth) To exert one's self, mutually to aid.

Ymadferthwch, s. m. (ymadferth) A state of self-exertion.

Ymadfyw, s. m. (adfyw) Self-revival. a. To revive one's self; to become revived.

Ymadfywiad, s. m. (ymadfyw) A reviving of one's self; a becoming revived; reviviscence.

Ymadfywiad, v. a. (ymadfyw) To revive one's self; to become revived, to come to life again.

Ymadgryfau, s. m. (ymadgryfau) A self-reinvigoration; a becoming strengthened.

Ymadgryfawl, a. (ymadgryfau) Self-reinvigorating.

Ymadgryfau, v. a. (adgryfau) To strengthen one's self again; to become reinvigorated.

Ymadgyweiriad, s. m. (adgyweiriad) A repairing of one's self; a becoming repaired.

Ymadgyweiriaw, v. a. (adgyweiriaw) To restore one's self to order; to become repaired.

Ymadlenwad, s. m. (adlenwad) A self-replenishing; a becoming replenished.

Ymadlenwawl, a. (adlenwawl) Self-replenishing; tending to become replenished.

Ymadlenwi, v. a. (adlenwi) To replenish one's self; to become replenished.

Ymadnabod, s. m. (adnabod) Self-knowledge; mutual acquaintance. v. a. To know one's self; to become acquainted.

Ymadnewyddawl, a. (adnewyddawl) Self-renovating; tending to become renewed.

Ymadnewyddiad, s. m. (adnewyddiad) Self renovation; a becoming renewed.

Ymadnewyddu, v. a. (adnewyddu) To renovate one's self; to become renewed.

Ymadolwyn, v. a. (adolwyn) To interest one's self; to entreat earnestly and often.

Ymadrawd, s. m.—pl. ymadroddion (adrawd) Discourse; a sentence or period, in discourse; speech. v. a. To discourse, to talk.

Hob awen dda—

Nu wyrr modd ymadroddion,
Nu llywian beidia lle bon.

Without a good genius, he knows not the form of sentences, nor the characters of faults where they exist.

I. ab Hywel Bardwal.

Ymadrawd yw cynnwleddfa llawo o oiriau ysbryd.

A sentence is a collection of a number of words together.

Edyrn Dafydd Aur.

Ymadred, s. f. (adred) A self-returning; a return.

Ymadredawl, a. (ymadred) Self-returning.

Ymadredeg, v. a. (ymadred) To return one's self back; mutually to return.

Ymadrediad, s. m. (ymadred) A returning one's self back; a mutually returning.

Ymadroddawl, a. (ymadrawd) Discursive.

VOL. II.

Ymadroddi, v. a. (ymadrawd) To discourse.

Ymadroddiad, s. m. (ymadrawd) A discoursing.

Ymadroddineth, s. m. (ymadrawd) Conversation.

Ymadroddiant, s. m. (ymadrawd) Interlocution.

Ymadroddus, a. (ymadrawd) Well-spoken.

Ymadroddwr, s. m.—pl. ymadroddwyr (ymadrawd—gwr) A discourser, an interlocutor.

Ymadwedd, s. m. (adwedd) A self-returning.

I ger radorawl,

Ag arfieb gwerfawl,

Ammodawl ymadwedd.

To an excellent city, with praise-worthy usage, under promise is a return.

S. Fychan.

Ymadweddawl, a. (ymadwedd) Tending to bring one's self back.

Ymadweddial, s. m. (ymadwedd) A bringing one's self to a former condition.

Ymadweddu, v. a. (ymadwedd) To bring one's self to a former state.

Ymaddasawl, a. (addasawl) Self-qualifying; mutually fitting.

Ymaddasiad, s. m. (addasiad) A qualifying one's self; a becoming qualified, meet, or proper.

Ymaddasu, v. a. (addasu) To qualify one's self; to qualify mutually.

Ymaddaswr, s. m.—pl. ymaddaswyr (addaswr) One who makes himself fit or meet.

Ymaddaw, v. a. (addaw) To promise mutually; to bind one's self in a promise.

O derfydd dda ymadaw ag arall am beth, heb dystion yn y lle, nid amfod hwnw.

If a person should enter into a promise with another for a thing without witnesses in the place, that is not a covenant.

Welsh Laws.

Ymaddawlad, s. m. (ymaddaw) A mutually promising; a binding one's self in a promise.

Ymaelodi, v. a. (aelodi) To make one's self a member; to become a member.

Ymaelodiad, s. m. (aelodiad) A making one's self a member; a becoming a member.

Ymaes, prep. (maes) Without. adv. Without.

Ymafael, s. m.—pl. t. ion (gafael) A mutual hold; a wrestle, a struggle. v. a. To lay hold; to wrestle.

Nac ymafael a'i hael hi.

Do not connect thyself with her shirt.

D. ab Owilym.

Ymafaelgar, a. (ymafael) Apt to lay hold.

Ymafaelgarwch, s. m. (ymafaelgar) Aptness to lay hold mutually.

Ymafaeliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymafael) A laying hold mutually.

Ymafaelu, v. a. (ymafael) To lay hold; to lay hold mutually, to wrestle.

Ymafaelwr, s. m.—pl. ymafaelwyr (ymafael—gwr) One who lays hold; a wrestler.

Ymafaelydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymafael) One who takes hold; a wrestler.

Ymaflwr, s. m.—pl. ymaflwyr (gafwr) One who lays hold; a wrestler.

Ymaflyd, s. m. (gafyd) A mutual laying hold; a wrestle. v. a. To lay mutual hold; to lay hold; to wrestle. Ymaflyd cwymp, to wrestle a fall.

Ymagawr, s. m. (agawr) A becoming open.

Ymagenawl, a. (agenawl) Tending to become rifted or chapped.

Ymageniad, s. m. (ageniad) A becoming rifted.

Ymagenu, v. a. (agenu) To become rifted.

Ymagorawl, a. (ymagawr) Self-expanding; tending to become open.

Ymagori, v. a. (ymagawr) To become open or expanded; to open one's self.

4 I

Ymageriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymagawr) A becoming open; an opening of one's self.
Ymagoryd, v. n. (ymagawr) To become open.
Ymagwedd, s. m. (agwedd) Self-conformity; mutual conformity.

Ymagweddawl, a. (ymagwedd) Self-conforming.
Ymagweddiad, s. m. (ymagwedd) A conforming one's self; a mutually conforming.

Ymagweddu, v. a. (ymagwedd) To conform one's self; to conform mutually.

Ymagweddwr, s. m.—pl. ymagweddwyr (ymagwedd—gwr) One who conforms himself.

Ymaith, adv. (maith) Hence, away. v. imp. Hence, away, be gone. Doa ymaith, go away.

A ferw ymaith ei fywyd yn ddiachaw, marw droes y diawl y mae
He that throws away his life without cause, dies for the devil.
Adege.

Ymalw, v. a. (galw) To continue calling; to invoke; to call mutually.

Ymalwad, s. m. (ymalw) A mutual calling.

Ymalltudaw, v. a. (alltudaw) To banish one's self; to become strange.

Ymalltudawl, a. (alltudawl) Self-estranging.

Ymalltudiad, s. m. (alltudiad) A self-estranging; a banishing one's self.

Ymallu, v. n. (gallu) To take to one's self power; to be able. Od ymeill, o ddiachaw, if he be able.

Ymalluaw, v. a. (ymallu) To endue one's self with power; to become able or capable.

Ymamlad, s. m. (amlad) A self-multiplying.

Ymamlâu, v. a. (amlâu) To self-multiply.

Yman, s. m. (man) Here, this place. adv. Here.

Ymanafawl, a. (anafawl) Tending to self-harm.

Ymanafiad, s. m. (anafiad) A self-hurting.

Ymanafu, v. n. (anafu) To hurt one's self.

Ymanafyd, v. n. (anafyd) To hurt one's self.

Ymanaws, s. m. (anaws) Self-excitement; mutual excitement. v. a. To excite one's self; to excite mutually.

Ymandaw, s. m. (andaw) A keeping one's self in listening or attention; a mutual listening. v. a. To keep one's self listening; to listen mutually.

Dwad a gind, gwildodd ymandaw,
Doeth a choeth, cyfoeth cyfanaw.

A bold one and a leader, the admiration of countries, wise and precious, the subject of a kingdom's united prayer.
Llygad Gwr, i Ruff. Marlow.

Ymandawiad, s. m. (ymandaw) A keeping one's self in listening; a mutually listening.

Ymanfon, s. m. (anfon) A mutual sending. v. a. To send mutually.

Mynydd ymanfon dyg gofion dig
Krol, arian ganwyll i ryd.

Frequently the commissions severe remembrances of anger on my account, the splendidly cold luminary of presumption.
Cynddelin.

Ymanfoniad, s. m. (ymanfon) A mutually sending.

Ymanerch, s. m.—pl. t. ion (anerch) A mutual greeting; congratulation. v. a. To congratulate.

Seithodd o'i gloriu-froa gwa
Serch ymanerch i mianaw.

She darted from her constant banquet breast a love-shaft of congratulation to me.
D. ab Gwilym, i Forfudd.

Ymanerchawl, a. (ymanerch) Mutually greeting.

Ymanerchi, v. a. (ymanerch) To greet mutually.

Ymanerchiad, s. m. (ymanerch) A mutually greeting.

Ymannog, s. m. (annog) Mutual excitement; self-excitement. v. a. To excite one another; to self-excite.

Ymannos, adv. (ymas—nos) The night past; the night before the present; the night before last; heretofore.

Mywna fy mod ymannos
Ys tori pen Atropos.

I could have wished to be the older night cutting off the head of Atropos.
Lleidr, y mawr ddrus drachwr,
Ymannos fun: mynais fwrch.
Guto y Gyn.

A thief, in gracious dotage, the other night I was: I carried off a maid.
U. ab Owen.

Ymanosawl, a. (ymasaws) Self-exciting; mutually exciting.

Ymanosad, s. m. (ymasaws) A self-exciting; a mutually urging or exciting.

Ymanrheithiad, s. m. (anrheithiad) Self-spoilation; mutual spoilation.

Ymanrheithiaw, v. a. (anrheithiaw) To self-despoil; to despoil one another.

Ymanrheithiawl, a. (anrheithiawl) Self-despoiling; mutually despoiling.

Ymanurddaw, v. a. (anurddaw) To self-disfigure.

Ymanurddawl, a. (anurddawl) Self-disfiguring.

Ymanurddiad, s. (anurddiad) A self-disfiguring.

Ymangerdawl, a. (angerddawl) Tending to put one's self in a passion.

Ymangerddiad, s. m. (angerddiad) A making one's self violent.

Ymangerddu, v. a. (angerddu) To make one's self violent; to become impassioned.

Ymangwanegawl, a. (angwanegawl) Self-augmenting.

Ymangwanegiad, s. m. (angwanegiad) A self-augmenting.

Ymangwanegu, v. a. (angwanegu) To increase one's self.

Ymaraws, s. m. (araws) A bearing with; long-suffering. v. a. To bear with, to endure.

Ymarbed, s. m. (arbed) A self-restraint.

Ymarbedawl, a. (ymarbed) Self-refraining; mutually abstaining.

Ymarbediad, s. m. (ymarbed) A self-refraining; a mutually abstaining.

Ymarbedu, v. a. (ymarbed) To save one's self; to abstain; mutually to abstain.

Ymarbedus, a. (ymarbed) Self-restraining.

Ymarbedusaw, v. n. (ymarbedus) To become abstemious.

Ymarbod, s. m. (arbod) Self-preparation, self-introduction; self-manifestation; the state of being interested or concerned. v. a. To interest one's self, to be concerned. A oes dim ymarbod amdano? Is there no stirring about it?

Daw a feth—yn gynnwylu a gwanaw, ac yn brynu yn ei al ymarbod o berth bla, ac all odd y rhwngedus, ac y postgwyl briddolodas.

God is to be worshipped, as the upholder and saviour, and as a redeemer in his second intervening of himself with respect to the Son, and all of the virtues, and the appropriate attributes.
Barddon.

Ymarbodawl, a. (ymarbod) Self-preparing.

Ymarbodi, v. a. (ymarbod) To prepare one's self; to become concerned or interested.

Ymarbodiad, s. m. (ymarbod) A preparing one's self; a becoming concerned about or interested.

Ymarbodus, a. (ymarbod) Being concerned about.

Ymarbodusaw, v. n. (ymarbodus) To become concerned or interested.

Ymarbodusrwydd, s. m. (ymarbodus) The state of being concerned, or interested.

Ymarbodwr, s. m.—pl. ymarbodwyr (ymarbod—gwr) One who prepares himself; one who interests himself.

Ymarbwyll, s. m.—pl. f. ion (arbwyll) A concerting. v. a. To be concerting.

Gores gwalch celfydd ymarbwyll y'f amcan.

The best act of the ingenuous is to be concerting with his invention.
Cating Ddaeth.

Ymarbwylliad, s. m. (ymarbwyll) A being concerting or considering.

Ymarddelw, s. m. (arddelw) A possession; a setting up a claim; a challenge. v. a. To make a profession; to set up a claim; to challenge.

*Cael ymadrawd hawdd a bi,
Ymarddelw arch bum ordd.*

Obtaining an easy conversation with her, making profession of love I was for her sake.
D. ab Gwilym, i Forfudd.

Ymarddelwad, s. m. (ymarddelw) A making a claim.

Ymardderchafael, s. m. (ardderchafael) A self-exalting. v. a. To become exalted.

Gwedi gwybod o Arthur bod ai ofis eiddo ar bawb, ymardderchafael a erig yddu.

After it was known to Arthur that his dread was then upon every body, he then uplifted himself.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymardderchafiad, s. m. (ardderchafiad) Self-exaltation; a becoming uplifted.

Ymardderchafu, v. a. (ardderchafu) To uplift one's self; to be self-exalted.

Ymardderchafus, a. (ardderchafus) Self-exalting.

Ymardderchawl, a. (ardderchawl) Self-exalting.

Ymardderchiad, s. (ardderchiad) Self-exaltation.

Ymardderchogawl, a. (ardderchogawl) Self-exalting.

Ymardderchogi, v. a. (ardderchogi) To self-exalt.

Ymardderchu, v. (ardderchu) To exalt one's self.

Ymarddysgwyl, s. m. (arddysgwyl) A keeping one's self in expectation. v. a. To keep one's self in expectation.

Bryddu a orngut parh a'r mw; a dynoda parh ag yno, dan ymarddysgwyl o bell, ysfydd Dilus Parfawg yn deifaw bledd coed.

They made haste towards the smoke; and approaching towards there, by keeping on the watch from a distance, behold Dilus Longbeard scorning a wild boar.
iH. Culhwch—Mabinogion.

Ymarddysgwyliad, s. m. (ymarddysgwyl) A keeping one's self in expectation.

Ymarddysgwyliaw, v. a. (ymarddysgwyl) To keep one's self in expectation.

Ymarddysgwylus, a. (ymarddysgwyl) Apt to keep one's self in expectation.

Ymarfaeth, s. m. (arfaeth) A self-exercising. v. a. To habituate one's self.

*Bran a gant chwedl yn mhlen traeth,
Wrth nas gellir ymarfaeth:
Nid meddiant ond gwybodeth.*

A crow did sing her adage at the head of the sand, to those who could not habituate themselves: there is no possession like knowledge.
Cating Ddaeth.

Ymarfaethiad, s. m. (ymarfaeth) A self-habituating or inuring.

Ymarfawd, s. f. (arfawd) A self-arming.

Ymarfer, s. f.—pl. f. ion (arfer) The using of one's self; exercise, practice; habit, custom. v. a. To use one's self; to exercise.

Ymarferawl, a. (ymarfer) Self-exercising.

Ymarferiad, s. m. (ymarfer) A self-exercising.

Ymarferu, v. a. (ymarfer) To exercise one's self, to accustom one's self.

Ymarferwr, s. m.—pl. ymarferwyr (ymarfer—gwr) One who exercises himself.

Ymarfiad, s. m. (arfiad) A self-arming.

Ymarfodawl, a. (ymarfawd) Self-arming.

Ymarfodi, v. a. (ymarfawd) To deal blows mutually.

Ymarfogi, v. a. (arfogi) To arm one's self; mutually to arm.

Ymarfogiad, s. m. (arfogiad) An arming of one's self; a mutually arming.

Ymarfoll, s. m. (arfoll) A mutual reception; a becoming confederated.

Ymarfollu, v. a. (ymarfoll) To receive one another; to become mutually connected; to connect one's self; to become confederated.

Ar hyn y pamb onaddyt a ymarfollat hyd ar Enesa.

Upon that every one of them collected themselves together unto Enesa.
H. Dard.

Ymarfolliad, s. m. (ymarfoll) A mutual reception; a becoming mutually connected; a becoming confederated.

Ymarfu, v. a. (arfu) To arm one's self.

Ymarial, s. m. (arial) A self-invigoration.

Ymarialiad, s. m. (ymarial) A self-invigorating; a becoming lively.

Ymarialu, v. a. (ymarial) To self-invigorate; to become full of animation.

Ymarialus, a. (ymarial) Self-invigorating.

Ymariloes, s. m. (ariloes) A self-emptying. v. a. To empty one's self.

Ymariloesi, v. a. (ymariloes) To pour out one's self, to empty one's self.

Ymariloesiad, s. m. (ymariloes) A pouring out or emptying one's self.

Ymarliwys, s. m. (arllwys) A pouring out one's self. v. To empty one's self, to self-empty.

Ymarliwysawl, a. (ymarliwys) Self-emptying.

Ymarod, s. m. (ymarod) A keeping one's self in waiting; a bearing with; mutual forbearance.

Ymarodawl, a. (ymarod) Keeping one's self in waiting; of a forbearing temper.

Ymarod, v. a. (arod) To bear with; to forbear.

Ymarosawl, a. (ymaraws) Apt to be waiting.

Ymarosi, v. a. (ymaraws) To keep one's self in waiting; to wait mutually.

Ymarosiad, s. m. (ymaraws) A keeping one's self in waiting; a mutually waiting.

Ymarodus, a. (ymarod) Long-suffering, patient. 'Bydd ymarodus wrthyf,' be patient with me.

Ymarodr, s. m.—pl. ymarodwyr (ymarod—gwr) One who bears with.

Ymarawyd, s. m. (arsawd) A self-terrifying.

Ymarawydaw, v. a. (ymarawyd) To terrify one's self, to dread mutually.

Ymarawydawl, a. (ymarawyd) Self-terrifying.

Ymarawydiad, s. m. (ymarawyd) A self-terrifying

Ymartheithiad, s. m. (arteithiad) A self-torturing.

Ymartheithawl, a. (arteithawl) To self-torture.

Ymartheithiawl, a. (arteithiawl) Self-torturing.

Ymartheithiwr, s. m.—pl. ymartheithiwr (arteithiwr) One who tortures himself.

Ymaruthraw, v. a. (aruthraw) To astonish one's self; mutually to astonish.

Ymaruthrawl, a. (aruthrawl) Tending to amaze one's self.

Ymaruthriad, s. m. (aruthriad) A making one's self amazed; a mutually astonishing.

Ymarwain, s. m. (arwain) A self conducting. v. a. To conduct one's self.

*Madron a—
Lldwyn allonodd erill;
Ac f'r mor, gwr ymarwain,
Y rhod.*

Severn other rivers doth attract; and knowing how to conduct itself, runs to the sea.
S. Pychon.

Ymarwar, s. m. (arwar) A calming one's self; a mutual assuagement. v. a. To calm one's self; to assuage one another.

Mai ymarwar lloedd a Llewelyn.

Like the reconciliation of Llew and Llewelyn.

Llywelyn Ferdd.

Ymarwedd, s. m. (arwedd) Comportment, demeanour. v. a. To demean one's self, to behave.
Ymarweddawl, a. (ymarwedd) Self-demeaning.
Ymarweddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymarwedd) A demeaning one's self, a behaving; behaviour.
Ymarweddiad da, good behaviour.
Ymarweddu, v. a. (ymarwedd) To self-demean.
Ymarweddwr, s. m.—pl. ymarweddwyr (ymarwedd—gwr) One who demeans himself.
Ymarweiniad, s. m. (ymarwain) A conducting or leading one's self.
Ymarweiniaw, v. a. (ymarwain) To lead one's self; mutually to lead.
Ymarweiniawl, a. (ymarwain) Self-leading.
Ymarwerthu, v. a. (arwerthu) To offer one's self to be bought, sold, or redeemed.

*Archaf arch Fm Naf,
 Y dwin dordaf,
 Nid ymarweiniaw,
 ffeb ai wrythais.*

*I will implore a favour of my Lord, the Divine Being most wise,
 I will not offer to redeem myself, without his miracle.
 Or. ab yr Ynad Coch.*

Ymaswyn, s. m. (aswyn) A self-excusing.

*Tarf iacrfath goddath gwacawyn
 Trais a thewis a thewisys wacawyr
 A gwyr mawr ymaswyn.*

Like the vibrantly fur-extending tumult of the conflagration of spring the tribe with a thick multitude bearing a thick grove of oaks, and the mighty men mutually pleading—Cynddelw, P. argl. Rhys.

Ymaswynaw, s. a. (ymaswyn) To excuse one's self; to plead for one's self.
Ymaswynawl, a. (ymaswyn) Self-excusing.
Ymaswyniad, s. m. (ymaswyn) A self-excusing.
Ymateb, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ateb) A mutual answer.
Ymatebawl, a. (ymateb) Mutually answering.
Ymatebiad, s. m. (ymateb) A correspondence.
Ymatebu, v. a. (ymateb) To answer mutually.
Ymatgno, s. m. (ad—cno) A rumination.
Ymatgnod, s. m. (ymatgno) A ruminating.
Ymatgnôl, v. a. (ymatgno) To ruminate.
Ymatgof, s. m. (ad—cof) A self-recollection.
Ymatgofiad, s. m. (ymatgof) A self-recollecting.
Ymatgofiw, v. a. (ymatgof) To self-recollect.
Ymatgor, s. m. (atgor) A self-return. v. a. To return one's self.

Lle Prydain yn ymatgor.

The army of Britain returning itself back. Cynddelw.

Ymatgorawl, a. (ymatgor) A self-returning.
Ymatgudd, s. m. (ad—cudd) A self-revealing.
Ymatguddiad, s. m. (ymatgudd) A self-revealing.
Ymatguddiaw, v. a. (ymatgudd) To self-reveal.
Ymatguddiawl, a. (ymatgudd) Self-revealing.
Ymattreg, s. f. (atireg) A self-stopping; a mutual stop or demur.
Ymattregawl, a. (ymattreg) Self-stopping; mutually stopping.
Ymattregiad, s. m. (ymattreg) A self-stopping; a demurring with one's self; a mutually stopping.
Ymattregu, v. a. (ymattreg) To stop one's self; to stop one another; to demur mutually.
Ymattal, s. m. (attal) Self-restraint; continence. v. a. To restrain one's self; to live in abstinence, to contain one's self.
Ymattalgar, a. (ymattal) Self-restraining.
Ymattaliad, s. m. (ymattal) A self-restraining.
Ymattalrwydd, s. m. (ymattal) Abstemiousness.
Ymattalus, a. (ymattal) Self-restraining.
Ymawyddiad, s. m. (awyddiad) A filling one's self with desire.
Ymawyddu, v. a. (awyddu) To fill one's self with avidity or desire.
Ymbaffiad, s. m. (paffiad) A mutually boxing.

Ymbaffiaw, v. a. (paffiaw) To box mutually.
Ymbaffiwr, s. m.—pl. ymbaffiwr (paffiwr) One who uses himself to boxing; a boxer.
Ymbald, a. (paid) Self-refraining.
Ymbalfaliad, s. m. (palfaliad) A groping.
Ymbalfalu, v. a. (palfalu) To reach one's limbs in every direction; to grope out one's way.
Ymbalfalwr, s. m.—pl. ymbalfalwyr (palfalwr) One who gropes his way.
Ymbalfust, v. a. (ymbalf—fust) To encounter. Gorffod ymbalfust a gofais, obliged to strive and economize.
Ymball, s. m. (pall) A self-failure.
Ymballu, v. a. (ymball) To fall into error.
Ymbarchawl, a. (parchawl) Self-respecting.
Ymbarchiad, s. m. (parchiad) A self-respecting; a mutually respecting.
Ymbarchu, v. a. (parchu) To respect one's self; to respect mutually.
Ymbarotod, s. m. (parotod) A self-preparing.
Ymbarotodawl, a. (parotodawl) Self-preparing.
Ymbarotôl, v. a. (parotôl) To prepare one's self.
Desparth talch ymbarotôl.

*Two parts of a journey is to prepare one's self. Adage.
 Ymbarotôl i gyfarwdd safed yw y ffordd nesaf at bawddyd.
 To prepare one's self to meet adversity is the nearest way to happiness. Adage.*

Ymbawr, s. m. (pawr) The eating of pasture.
Ymbedawl, a. (pedawl) Being using one's feet; being ranged in order of battle.
Ymbediad, s. m. (pediad) A taking to one's feet; a ranging in order of battle.
Ymbedu, v. a. (pedu) To take to one's feet, to make use of the feet.

Gwedd darford P. Frydeiniad o'r parth arall gwtogus amantant yat ac ymbed, nid amantant o pob parth awddallu angustion ddrynodas.

After the Britons on the other part had finished eating of themselves and putting themselves in array, they did not retreat from every side with exchanging deadly blows. Or. ab Arthur.

Ymbeldiad, s. m. (peidiad) A making one's self to cease; a desisting.
Ymbeldiaw, v. a. (peidiaw) To abstain, to desist.
Ymbeldiawl, a. (peidiawl) Abstaining, desisting.
Ymbelliad, s. m. (pelliad) A rendering one's self distant or far removed.
Ymbelliawl, a. (pellawl) Tending to render one's self distant.
Ymbellân, v. a. (pellân) To render one's self distant; to be far removed.
Ymbenbleth, s. m. (penbleth) The distraction of one's own head.
Ymbenblethiad, s. m. (ymbenbleth) A distracting one's head.
Ymbenblethu, v. a. (ymbenbleth) To distract one's head.
Ymbennoethi, v. a. (pennoethi) To make one's head bare.
Ymbennoethiad, s. m. (pennoethiad) A making one's head bare.
Ymbesgi, v. a. (peagi) To fatten one's self.
Ymbesgiad, s. m. (peagiad) A fattening one's self.
Ymbil, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pil) An entreaty, a petition. v. a. To entreat, to implore, to crave.
Ymbiliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymbil) An imploring.
Ymbiliaw, v. a. (ymbil) To implore, to crave.
Ymbiliwr, s. m.—pl. ymbiliwyr (ymbil—gwr) An implorer.
Ymbinciad, s. m. (pinciad) A trimming or smartening one's self.
Ymbinciaw, v. a. (pinciaw) To trim one's self. 'Hi a ymbinciaw yn rych iawn,' she arrayed herself very finely.

Ymbinciawl, a. (pinciawl) Self-smartening.
Ymbinciwr, s. m.—pl. ymbinciwyr (pinciwr) One who smartens himself.
Ymblaid, s. f.—pl. ymbleidiau (plaid) A faction.

*Tyn oes o thin yr iau ochryniol
 A chroedon ymbleidiau.*

*Deliver the age from beneath a horrid yoke and adverse factions.
 D. Thomas.*

Ymbleidgar, a. (ymblaid) Apt to be factions.
Ymbleidgarwch, s. m. (ymbleidgar) Factionness.
Ymbleidiad, s. m. (ymblaid) An attaching one's self to a party or faction.
Ymbleidiaw, v. a. (ymblaid) To attach one's self to a party, to join a faction.
Ymbleidiawl, a. (ymblaid) Apt to join one's self to a party.
Ymbleidiwr, s. m. (ymblaid—gwr) One who attaches himself to a party.
Ymblethawl, a. (plethawl) Self-entwining.
Ymblethiad, s. m. (plethiad) A self-entwining.
Ymblethu, v. a. (plethu) To self-entwine.
Ymbluad, s. m. (pluad) A feathering itself.
Ymbluaw, v. a. (pluaw) To plume one's self.
Ymbluawl, a. (pluawl) Self-plumpling.
Ymblufaw, v. a. (plufaw) To self-feather.

*Myng oes, minnwg ydyd,
 I bwr al, ymbluaw'r wyd!*

*Say hrd, for thou art endowed with utterance, where art thou going, as thou art adjusting thy feather?
 D. Ll. ab Ll. ab Gwafudd.*

Ymblufawl, a. (plufawl) Self-feathering.
Ymblygawl, a. (plygawl) Self-bending.
Ymblygiad, s. m. (plygiad) A self-bending.
Ymblygu, v. a. (plygu) To bend one's self.
Ymblywylaw, v. a. (plywylaw) To attach one's self to a parish.
Ymblywylad, s. m. (plywylad) An attaching one's self to a parish.
Ymboenawl, a. (poenawl) Pains-taking.
Ymboeni, v. a. (poeni) To pain one's self.
Ymboerawl, a. (poerawl) Self-bespawling.
Ymboeri, v. a. (poeri) To bespaw one's self.
Ymboethawl, a. (poethawl) Self-heating.
Ymboethi, v. a. (poethi) To heat one's self.
Ymboethiad, s. m. (poethiad) A self-heating.
Ymborth, s. m. (porth) Sustenance, support.

Ymborth sawredd yw aar so arian.

The sustenance of iniquity are gold and silver. Adage.

Ymborthawl, a. (ymborth) Sustaining, supporting; alimentary.
Ymborthedig, a. (ymborth) Self-supported.
Ymborthi, v. a. (ymborth) To sustain one's self; to bear or carry one's self; to feed one's self; to feed.

Mair mad ymborthes ei beichlogi.

Mary well did make herself to bear her pregnancy. Metlgr.

Ar oerwyddawd berth yd ymborthaf.

On splendid cavalcade I will be conveyed. Llywelyn Pardd.

A ddycw y god ymborthod o hool.

Who bears the bag let him feed himself out of it. Adage.

Ymborthiad, s. m. (ymborth) A sustaining one's self; a bearing one's self.
Ymborthianna, v. a. (ymborthiant) To seek self-support; to seek mutual support; to supply one another; to traffick.
Ymborthiannawl, a. (ymborthiant) Tending to self-support; mutually supporting.
Ymborthiannu, v. a. (ymborthiant) To afford self-support; to afford mutual support.

Ymborthiannu, a. (ymborthiant) Tending to self-support; tending to mutual support.
Ymborthiant, s. m. (ymborth) Self-supportation; mutual supportation.

Ymborthwr, s. m.—pl. ymborthwyr (ymborth—gwr) One who supports himself; a mutual supporter.

Ymbrawf, s. m. (prawf) A putting one's self to trial; experience; trial, essay; contest.

Am ddifodau a brwmiau baided Ysyr Prydain, mi a twyr ymroddiaid Pr ymbrawf a allwn i rywfaio i lo.

With respect to the customs and privileges of the bards of the Isle of Britain, I gave myself entirely to the trial whether I could afford some degree of benefit. Ed. Dafydd.

Ymbrestledd, s. m. (prestledd) The habit of giving mutual repartees.

Ymbrestliad, s. m. (prestliad) A mutually giving repartees.

Ymbrestlu, v. a. (prestlu) To repartee mutually.

Ymbriodawl, a. (priodawl) Tending mutually to marriage.

Ymbriodi, v. a. (priodi) To marry one's self; to become married, to intermarry.

Ymbrofawl, a. (ymbrawf) Self-trying.

Ymbrofedig, a. (ymbrawf) Being self- tried; being mutually tried.

Ymbrofi, v. a. (ymbrawf) To try together; to encounter; to vie; to try one's self; to experience.

Nichawen—

Ellygr gwrth a gwrthyn with ymbrofi.

They obtained nothing but disgrace and repulse in contesting. Ll. F. Moch.

*Trefred i bryfod, lle yd ymbrofiaw'
 Trws hool ygwol eagar boethia.*

The habitation of repulse, where they will experience a fell course of account of a divided region of heat. Comedym.

Dydd prawf yn y ddifiaid; yn y lle yr ymbrofiast eich tadau.

The day of trial in the wilderness; in the place where your fathers entered into temptation. D. Dén a Brawdod.

Ymbrofiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymbrawf) A mutually trying; a contesting; a trying one's self; an experiencing.

Ymbrofiwr, v. m.—pl. ymbrofiwyr (ymbrawf—gwr) One who mutually tries; a contester; one who tries himself.

Ymbryd, s. m.—pl. t. iau (pryd) The using of one's self to seasons; a fast.

Ymbrydiad, s. m. (ymbryd) A using one's self to seasons; a fasting.

Ymbrydiaw, v. a. (ymbryd) To use one's self to stated times or seasons; to observe seasons; to fast.

Ymbrydiawl, a. (ymbryd) Apt to use one's self to seasons; fasting.

Ymbrydiwr, s. m.—pl. ymbrydiwyr (ymbryd—gwr) One who observeth seasons; a faster.

Ymbryn, s. m. (pryn) Self-redemption.

Ymbrynawl, a. (ymbryn) Self-redeeming.

Ymbryniad, s. m. (ymbryn) A self-redeeming.

Ymbrynu, v. a. (ymbryn) To redeem one's self.

Oe amddiffynwr a oddiwedd—coeser ei twyr gwrthar, nes ymbrynu.

If it be the defendant who is cast, let him be punished by imprisonment, or let him redeem himself. Dafydd Rhuddlan.

Ymbrynuwr, s. m.—pl. ymbrynuwyr (ymbryn—gwr) One who redeems himself.

Ymbrysuraw, v. a. (prysuraw) To self-hasten.

Ymbrysurawl, a. (prysurawl) Self-hastening.

Ymbrysurdeb, s. m. (prysurdeb) A self-hastening.

Ymbrysuriad, s. m. (prysuriad) A hastening one's self.

Ymbrysurwr, s. m.—pl. ymbrysurwyr (prysurwr) One who hasteneth himself.

Ymbaraw, v. a. (paraw) To purify one's self.

Ebal augeu, Tu draw i'r wal o'fth y mae y purdan; canys yn dy fywyd y dylais ymbaraw.

Said a death, On the other side of the wall behind thee is the purgatory; for in thy life time thou shouldst purify thyself.
Elin Wyn, B. Cwg.

Ymbarawl, a. (parawl) Self-purifying.

Ymburiad, s. m. (pariad) A self-purification.

Ymbarwr, s. m.—pl. ymbarwyr (parwr) One who purifies himself.

Ymbwyad, s. m. (pwyad) A self-buffeting.

*Dy gyfoeth pennoeth, poen ymbwyad,
A gollais, i drula, droedd d'fygiad.*

Thy property, the infliction to one's self of pain, nightly I have lost, to rapine, the stroller's crime. Tracharn Brydydd Mawr.

Ymbwyaw, v. a. (pwyaw) To buffet one's self.

Ymbwyawl, a. (pwyawl) Self-buffeting.

Ymbwyll, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pwyll) Consideration, concern.

Addysg ffol ei ymbawll; addysg doeth ei ymbwyll.

The instruction of the fool his experience; the instruction of the wise his consideration.
Adaps.

Daw Ybryd Glan a folt—am rin darwedd i fywyd—a ffydd addysgus yn mhob ymbwyll yn Ngkrist iosa.

God the Holy Spirit is to be praised, for his leading us into life and ensuring faith in every concern in Christ Jesus.
Bardas.

Ymbwyllaw, v. a. (ymbwyll) To consider with one's self; to have consideration; to be concerned.

Ymbwyllgar, a. (ymbwyll) Considerate, rational.

Ymbwylliad, s. m. (ymbwyll) A considering with one's self; a concerning one's self.

Ymbwyllus, a. (ymbwyll) Apt to reason with one's self; considerate.

Ymbwyllwr, s. m. (ymbwyll—gwr) One who considereth with himself.

Ymbwyth, s. m. (pwyth) Self-exertion.

Ymbwythaw, v. a. (ymbwyth) To exert one's self; to vie mutually.

*Am beithan teg ymbwythaw;
Am gŵr hydd, a mawr cwn.*

For fair things we will mutually strive; for the flesh of the stag, and the rearing of dogs.
Lloedder.

Ymbwythawl, a. (ymbwyth) Self-exerting; mutually vying.

Ymbwythiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymbwyth) An exerting of one's self; a mutual competition.

Ymbwys, s. m. (pwy) A self-pressure.

Ymbwysaw, v. a. (ymbwys) To weigh one's self; to cause one's self to weigh or incline; to press mutually.

Ymbwysawl, a. (ymbwys) Self-pressing; mutually pressing.

Ymbwysiad, s. m. (ymbwys) A weighing one's self; a self-pressing; a mutually pressing.

Ymbyd, v. m. (pyd) A self-danger.

Ymbydiad, s. m. (ymbyd) A self-endangering.

Ymbydiaw, v. a. (ymbyd) To endanger one's self

Ymbydiawl, a. (ymbyd) Self-endangering.

Ymbydiwr, s. m.—pl. ymbydiwyr (ymbyd—gwr) One who endangers himself.

Ymbyliad, s. m. (pyliad) A self-blunting.

Ymbylu, v. a. (pylu) To become self-blunted.

Ymchwaen, s. f. (chwaen) A self-yielding to chance.

Ymchwaenawl, a. (ymchwaen) Tending to yield one's self to chance.

Ymchwaeniad, s. m. (ymchwaen) A consigning one's self to chance.

Ymchwaenu, v. a. (ymchwaen) To consign one's self to chance.

Ymchwal, s. f. (chwal) A spread of one's self.

Ymchwaliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymchwal) A self-spreading; a self-dispersion.

Ymchwalu, v. a. (ymchwal) To spread one's self.

Ymchwalwr, s. m.—pl. ymchwalwyr (ymchwal—gwr) One who spreads himself.

Ymchwant, s. m. (chwant) That yields to lust.

Ymchwanta, v. a. (ymchwant) To yield one's self to lust or desire.

Ymchwantiad, s. m. (ymchwant) A self-yielding to lust, a giving one's self to covet.

Ymchwedleua, v. (chwedleua) To chat together.

Ymchwedlenad, s. m. (chwedleua) Confabulation

Ymchwedlenaw, v. a. (chwedleuaw) To chat together.

Ymchwedleuawl, a. (chwedleua) Confabulatory.

Ymchwedliad, s. m. (chwedliad) A confabulation

Ymchwedlu, v. a. (chwedlu) To confabulate, to chat together.

Ymchwediwr, s. m.—pl. ymchwediwyr (chwediwr) A confabulator.

Ymchwelliad, s. m.—pl. ymchwelliadau (ymchwal) One that returns or causes a return.

*Daeth awyrru gwr chwyra ei ymchwelliad;
Ymchwelliad trosgyd, trwm o guddia!*

The bones of a hero of rapid reversions are come: the come of the return of the heavy battle, and the reversion of him?
Dr. Benfras, i Eglwys III.

Ymchwel, s. f. (chwel) A return; a reverse.

Ymchweladwy, a. (ymchwel) Reversible.

Ymchweledig, a. (ymchwel) Reversed.

Ymchweledigaeth, s. m. (ymchwel) Conversion.

Ymchwelliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymchwel) Conversion

Ymchwelwr, s. m.—pl. ymchwelwyr (ymchwel—gwr) One who returns, a reverter; a converter

Ymchweyl, v. a. (ymchwel) To return, to revert; to convert; to turn upside down, to overturn, to reverse. 'Ymchweylid braidd,' to reverse a judgment.

Pwybyddag a fydd yn llwyr gwybod brudnoliaeth y Syrdd hwn, casiad of cyffwrddu Dyfnwal Mociad, y rhaf a ymchweylid das o Gymmraeg yn Lladin.

Whoever would completely know the privileges of these rank, let him procure the laws of Dyfnwal Mociad, the which shall translated out of Welsh into Latin.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymchwerwad, s. m. (chwerwad) An embittering one's self; a mutually exasperating.

Ymchwerwi, v. a. (chwerwi) To self-embitter; to become exasperated; mutually to exasperate.

Ymchwiliad, s. m. (chwiliad) A self-searching.

Ymchwiliaw, v. a. (chwiliaw) To search one's self.

Ymchwiliid, v. a. (chwiliid) To self-scrutinise.

Ymchwiliwr, s. m.—pl. ymchwiliwyr (chwiliwr) One who searches himself.

Ymchwydd, s. m. (chwydd) A swelling of one's self.

Tri pheth mawr o ymchwydd ymorth ar waed: gelyb, haren, a rhyfelwr.

Three things great with self-swelling by feeding on blood: a leech, a tile, and a warrior.
Adaps.

Ymchwyddaw, v. a. (ymchwydd) To self-swell.

Ymchwyddawl, a. (ymchwydd) Self-swelling.

Ymchwyddedig, a. (ymchwydd) Self-inflated.

Beth er dawed o honnynt atom, ag ymchwyddedig elben gwag odd, a dderbyniwn ni hwynt er awyio hwy!

What, if they should come to us, with the pompous words of vanity, shall we receive them in consideration of that!
Ier. Gweth.

Ymchwyddiad, s. m. (ymchwydd) A self-puffing.

Ymchwyth, s. m. (chwyth) A self-blowing.

Ymchwythiad, s. m. (ymchwyth) Self-inflation.

Ymda, v. a. (ta) To be walking about.

Or ymdia gwrall of hunan.

If a woman perambulates by herself.

Welsh Laws.

Ymdacriad, s. m. (taclriad) A self-trimming.
Ymdacriu, v. a. (taclu) To trim one's self.
Ymdaclusaw, v. a. (taclusaw) To make one's self tidy; to trim one's self.
Ymdacriasiad, s. m. (taclusiad) A making one's self tidy.
Ymdaciuswr, s. m.—pl. ymdaciuswyr (tacluswr) One who makes himself tidy.
Ymdaenawl, a. (taenawl) Self-expanding.
Ymdaeniad, s. m. (taeniad) Self-expansion.
Ymdaenu, v. a. (taenu) To expand one's self.
Ymdaenwr, s. m.—pl. ymdaenwyr (taenwr) One who expands or spreads himself.
Ymdaerawl, a. (taerawl) Mutually disputing.
Ymdaeriad, s. m. (taeriad) A mutually disputing.
Ymdaeru, v. a. (taeru) To dispute together.

O ymdaeru i ymdaraw, o eiriau i arfau.

From mutual dispute to mutual blows, from words to arms.
Elli Wyn, B. Cwsg.

Ymdaerwr, s. m.—pl. ymdaerwyr (taerwr) One given to disputation; a disputer.
Ymdafriad, s. m. (tafriad) A throwing one's self; a mutually throwing.
Ymdafia, v. a. (tafu) To throw one's self; to throw mutually. Ymdafu ag afalau dur, to throw at one another with iron balls, a kind of ancient game.
Ymdafodi, s. m. (tafodi) A wrangling. v. a. To wrangle together.

Tafoddi ni chel ei ym,
 Gwanthaf dyw ymdafodi,
 Nid hwyf i'w hawdd dderidol.

A tongue that doth not conceal its energy, the worst of acquirement is contention, it will not be long but it will easily do mischief.
Catwg ab Gwynllin.

Ymdafodiad, s. m. (tafodiad) A wrangling together.
Ymdafodwr, s. m.—pl. ymdafodwyr (tafodwr) One given to wrangling.
Ymdagelliad, s. m. (tagelliad) A forming to one's self a double chin; a bridling up one's self.
Ymdagellu, v. a. (tagellu) To bridle up one's chin.
Ymdaith, s. f.—pl. ymdaithian (taith) A journey. v. a. To journey, to travel; to go, to walk.

Y barddoniaeth a'r gwyf wrth gerdd a ystyt ar ymdaith i glori, o dy Iestyn ab Gwrgan i dy Rhys fab Tedyr: a Rhys a oedd hael wrthys.

The bard and the musician went on a journey to exercise minstrelsy, from the house of Iestyn son of Gwrgan to the house of Rhys son of Tedyr: and Rhys was liberal to them.
Caraidd a Lan Carven.

Ymdalpu, v. a. (talpu) To clod together.
Ymdan, s. m. (tan) A self-spreading. v. a. To spread one's self; to mount a horse.
Ymdanawl, a. (ymdan) Self-spreading.
Ymdaniad, s. m. (ymdan) A self-spreading.
Ymdanu, v. a. (ymdan) To spread one's self.
Ymdanc, s. m. (tanc) Mutual peace or amity.
Ymdaraw, v. a. (taraw) To strike mutually; to keep striking, or warding off blows; to fight it out, or to shift for one's self. Pa fodd yr wyf yn ymdaraw? How dost thou battle it out: How goes it with thee? Mi ymdarawaf yn law, I shall get through very well.

Poni welwch chwyl'r deri yn ymdaraw!

See you not the oak striking together? Cynulleid.

Nid oedd farchwag, or ei grydd, a faddil ymdaraw nos ymdrech ag ef.

There was not a knight, let him be ever so strong, who would dare to combat or to contend with him.
H. Bown—Mabinogion.

Ymdarawiad, s. m. (ymdaraw) A striking mutually; a warding off blows; a combating; a shifting for one's self.

Ymdarawus, a. (ymdaraw) Notable in shifting for one's self.

Ymdawdd, s. m. (tawdd) A self-dissolving.
Ymdaweliad, s. m. (taweliad) A self-assuaging.
Ymdawelu, v. a. (tawelu) To calm one's self; to grow calm; to recover from passion.
Ymdawr, s. m. (tawr) The being concerned.

North peninsula of ymdawr.

The strength of the patron of a family is his meritorious care.

Catwg Ddeith.

Ymdecâd, s. m. (ymdecân) A making one's self fair; a self-beautifying.

Ymdecâwl, a. (ymdecân) Tending to make one's self fair.

Ymdecân, v. a. (tecân) To self-beautify.

Ymdebygiad, s. m. (tebygiad) A making one's self similar.

Ymdebygu, v. a. (tebygu) To make one's self like.

Mewn tri pheth ydd ymdebygu dyn i Ddraig: cyfnewid; gwyboda, a thrugaredd.

In three things man doth make himself like God: righteousness, knowledge, and mercy.
Catwg ab Gwynllin.

Ymdeg, s. m. (teg) A self-adorning. a. Of native fairness.

Nid y pellant ymdeg.

Like the flower of native beauty.

Adams.

Ymdeimlaw, v. a. (teimlaw) To feel one's self.

Ymdeimliad, s. m. (teimliad) A self-feeling.

Ymdeithiad, s. m.—pl. f. au (ymdaith) A travelling

Ymdeithlaw, v. a. (ymdaith) To travel, to journey

Ymdeithlawg, a. (ymdaith) Travelling, journeying

Ymdeithlawi, a. (ymdaith) Travelling, journeying.

Ymdeithig, a. (ymdaith) Ready for travelling.

Lladodig eu boetion, ymdeithig eu hawyn,
 Gwlad wehyn fargodion.

Tired out their paths, ready for journeying their rein, the borderers of a ravaging country.
Taliesin.

Ymdeithigrwydd, s. m. (ymdeithig) Aptness for travelling.

Ymdeithiocâd, s. m. (ymdeithiawg) A preparing one's self for travelling; a becoming wayfaring.

Ymdeithiocâwl, a. (ymdeithiawg) Tending to become wayfaring.

Ymdeithiocân, v. a. (ymdeithiawg) To prepare one's self for travelling; to become wayfaring.

Ymdeithiwr, s. m.—pl. ymdeithiawyr (ymdaith—gwr) A traveller, a sojourner.

Ymdeithwastad, a. (ymdaith—gwastad) Of an even pace.

Ymdeithydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (ymdaith) A traveller, a sojourner.

Ymdeneuâd, s. m. (ymdeneuân) A self-attenuation; a self-rarefying.

Ymdeneuâwl, a. (ymdeneuân) Self-rarefying.

Ymdeneuân, v. a. (teneuân) To self-attenuate; to self-rarefy.

Ymderfyniad, s. m. (terfyniad) A mutually limiting; a self-limiting.

Ymderfynu, v. a. (terfynu) To limit mutually; to fix a limit to one's self.

Ymderfysgawl, a. (terfysgawl) Apt to put one's self in a tumult; mutually tumultuous.

Ymderfysgiad, s. m. (terfysgiad) A putting one's self in a tumult; a becoming agitated; a raising a tumult together.

Ymderfysgu, v. a. (terfysgu) To put one's self in a tumult; to raise a tumult together.

Ymderiad, s. m. (teriad) A self-purifying.

Ymderu, v. a. (teru) To self-purify.

Ymdenach, s. m. (tesach) A wanton dalliance. v. a. To give up one's self to wantonness.

Ymdeddiad, s. m. (tediad) A basking one's self in the sun.

Ymdesu, v. a. (tesu) To bask one's self in the sun.

Ymdewâad, s. m. (tewâad) A making one's self thick; a mutually thickening.

Ymdewâawl, a. (tewâawl) Self-thickening.

Ymdewâu, v. a. (tewâu) To self-thicken.

Ymdiraw, v. a. (tiraw) To stretch out one's self; to bask one's self; to enjoy one's self.

*Mae deu-wres ym i'm dîro,
El good o'r giys gyda'r glo.*

There are two warmths for me to bask myself, his wood from the dingle with the coal. Guto y Glyn.

Ymdirioni, v. a. (tirioni) To make one's self pleasing; to become pleasing; to become mutually pleasing.

*Wrth ym mron, drwy 'mdirioni,
Yn fy mywyd on a mi.*

Close at my breast, by becoming mutually pleasing, through my life one with me. Edm. Frys.

Ymdirioniad, s. m. (tirioniad) A becoming mutually pleasing.

Ymdlysiad, s. m. (tlysiad) A self-beautifying.

Ymdlysu, v. a. (tlysu) To make one's self smart or pretty; to smug one's self up.

Ymdo, s. m. (to) A self-covering, a self-sheltering.

Ymdôad, s. m. (ymdo) A covering one's self.

Ymdoddawl, a. (ymdawdd) Self-dissolving.

Ymdoddi, v. a. (ymdawdd) To self-dissolve.

Ymdoddïad, s. m. (ymdawdd) To self-dissolve.

Ymdoi, v. a. (ymdo) To cover one's self.

Ymdolciad, s. m. (tolciad) A self-butting, or self-punching; a mutually butting.

Ymdolciaw, v. a. (tolciaw) To punch one's self; to butt one another.

Ymdollïad, s. m. (toliad) A becoming more sparing of one's self.

Ymdoliaw, v. a. (toliaw) To be more sparing of one's self; to spare one's self.

*Cenawon Cynawry
Cunïad a'i deffry
Cenedi a'i dylly, Nid ymdolia.*

The whelps of the Welsh are leaders who will rescue him, a generation that claims him, he will not reserve himself. D. Benfras, i Llywelyn III.

Ymdomi, v. a. (toml) To bemire one's self.

Ymdomiad, s. m. (tomïad) A self-bemiring.

Ymdon, s. f. (ton) A self-breaking in waves.

*Dar a dyfwey ar dir pen gallu
Ger ymdon mor Hafren:
Gwas wr na bai digon hen!*

As oak did grow on the land on the cliff top by the self-spraying of the Severn sea: was to the man that he should not be old enough. Robert T. Norman.

Ymdöni, v. a. (ymdon) To break out in waves.

Ymdöniad, s. m. (ymdon) A breaking out in waves.

Ymdorchawl, a. (torchawl) To self-roll or coil.

Ymdorchï, v. a. (torchï) To roll one's self; to self-coil; to become entwined.

Ymdorchïad, s. m. (torchïad) A self-coiling.

Ymdordain, s. m. (tordain) A lolling. v. a. To loll, to stretch one's self along.

Ymdordynawl, a. (tordynawl) Self-gorging.

Ymdordynïad, s. m. (tordynïad) A gorging.

Ymdordynna, v. a. (tordynna) To self-gorge.

Ymdorf, s. f. (torf) A thronging together.

Ymdorfawl, a. (ymdorf) Mutually thronging.

Ymdorfïad, s. m. (ymdorf) A jointly thronging.

Ymdorfu, v. a. (ymdorf) To throng mutually.

Ymdorfynnygliad, s. m. (torfynnygliad) A breaking one's neck; a throwing one's self headlong; a prostrating one's self.

Ymdorfynnyglu, v. a. (torfynnyglu) To break one's own neck; a throwing one's self headlong; a prostrating one's self.

Ar y bychain a'r pyth ydd ymdorfynnyglu i gyfarch gwall.

On the battlements and the gates they had prostrated themselves to make a salutation. H. Gervais—Mabynogion.

Ymdörl, v. a. (törl) To be cutting one's self.

Nid ymdörlir, ac nid ymförlir drwynt.

Men shall not cut themselves, and shall not make themselves bold for them. Jeremi 16. 6.

Ymdöriad, s. m. (töriad) To break one's self; to self-break; to become bursted; disruption.

Ymdoriwythaw, v. a. (toriwythaw) To self-gorge.

Ymdoriwythant â byrd a dîwad, ac yno portnant at trachnatac.

They glut themselves, with victuals and drink, and then they satisfy their lusts. H. Fychan, Yn. Ddewidid.

Ymdoriwythawl, a. (toriwythawl) Self-gorging.

Ymdoriwythïad, s. m. (toriwythïad) A self-gorging.

Ymdrafael, s. f. (trafael) A mutual toiling.

*Gwasath drallw gywyr uch Traffwng Eithaf,
Pan fu ymdrafael drad ac eiddwng.*

He caused a vast torrent of gore above Traffwng Eithaf, when the mutual toiling bold and imminent took place. E. ab M. Rhonod.

Ymdrafaeliad, s. m. (ymdrafael) A mutually toiling.

Ymdrafawd, s. f. (trafawd) A mutual stirring; a bustling of one's self.

Ymdrafodawl, a. (ymdrafawd) Mutually stirring or bustling; self-bustling.

Ymdrafodi, v. a. (ymdrafawd) To make a mutual stir; to strive together; to conflict.

*Doe'r pyd hwn yr eiddwri!
Dwyf iddyr ya ymdrafodi.*

Yesterday at this time I was through birches hurrying myself. Llanidloes.

Ymdrafodiad, s. m. (ymdrafawd) A making a mutual stir; a striving together, a hurrying of one's self.

Ymdrafodwr, s. m.—pl. ymdrafodwyr (ymdrafawd—gwr) A mutual stirrer; a self-hurrier.

Ymdrafferth, s. f.—pl. t. ion (trafferth) A self-bustling.

Ymdrafferthawl, a. (ymdrafferth) Self-bustling.

Ymdrafferthïad, s. m. (ymdrafferth) A busying one's self.

Ymdrafferthn, v. a. (ymdrafferth) To busy one's self; mutually to bustle.

Ymdrafferthws, a. (ymdrafferth) Self-busying.

Ymdrafferthwr, s. m. (ymdrafferth—gwr) One who is full of bustle.

Ymdraffull, s. m. (traffull) A self-bustling.

Ymdraffalliad, s. m. (ymdraffull) A mutually bustling; a busying one's self.

Ymdraffalliaw, v. a. (ymdraffull) To keep one's self in a bustle; to bustle mutually.

Ymdraffalliwr, s. m.—pl. ymdraffalliwyr (ymdraffull—gwr) One who bustles greatly.

Ymdraigl, s. f. (traigl) A mutual turn; a self-turning.

Ymdralodawl, a. (trallodawl) Mutually afflicting; self-vexing.

Ymdralodi, v. a. (trallodi) To afflict mutually; to afflict one's self.

Ymdralodiad, s. m. (trallodiad) A mutually afflicting; a self-afflicting.

Ymdralodwr, s. m.—pl. ymdralodwyr (trallodwr) A self-afflicter.

Ymdramwy, s. m. (tramwy) A mutual resorting; being using one's self to resort.

Ymdramwyad, s. m. (ymdramwy) A mutually resorting; a being resorting.

Ymdramwyaw, v. a. (ymdramwy) To resort mutually; to use one's self to resorting.
Ymdraphwyll, s. m. (traphwyll) A mutual impulsion; an opposing of one's self. v. a. To oppugn mutually; to oppose one's self.

Dylid wrth seau y drwg ei droglaw yn llwyr o galon ac arfer dyn, yn ymdraphwyll a dau.

In rebuking evil it were proper to expel it utterly from the heart and the habit of man, in opposing one's self to the devil.
Berides.

Ymdras, s. f. (tras) Mutual relationship.
Ymdraasawl, a. (ymdraas) Of joint relationship.
Ymdrasiad, s. m. (ymdraas) A forming of mutual relationship; a becoming related.
Ymdrasu, v. a. (ymdras) To form mutual relationship; to become related.
Ymdrech, s. m. (trech) A mutual struggle.

Archelaus Brutus ei gadw i welad cadwrest ac ymdrech rhyngddo ei Corinthus.

Brutus had commanded him to be kept in order to see a combat and mutual striving between him and Corineus. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymdrechawl, a. (ymdrech) Mutually struggling.
Ymdrechfa, s. f. (ymdrech) A place of mutual strife; a contest.

Nid oes i ni ddin i'w welad—yn nghreulondeb yr ymdrechfa.

There is nothing for us to behold in the cruelty of the contest.
C. Edwards, Ll. y Ffydd.

Ymdrechriad, s. m. (ymdrech) A jointly struggling.
Ymdrechru, v. a. (ymdrech) To mutually strive.

Corillaew gwedd am ddrad a ymdrychiant, Andrychion pen ymdrechiant.

Blood will overflow round the feet of those who strive together, they were mingled soon when they strove together.
Ll. P. Mech.

Ymdrechus, a. (ymdrech) Given to mutual strife.
Ymdrechwr, s. m.—pl. ymdrechwyr (ymdrech—gwr) A mutual striver or struggler.
Ymdrechydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymdrech) A mutual striver or struggler.
Ymdrefn, s. f. (trefn) A self-ordering.
Ymdrefnawl, a. (ymdrefn) Self-ordering.
Ymdrefniad, s. m. (ymdrefn) A self-ordering.
Ymdrefnu, v. a. (ymdrefn) To put one's self in order.

Ymdrefnwr, s. m. (ymdrefn—gwr) One who puts himself in order.

Ymdreiddiad, s. m. (treiddiad) An exercising one's self in walking; perambulation.

Ymdreidiaw, v. a. (treidiaw) To exercise one's self in walking.

Well mynach ymdreidiaw o'r niferodd o'r eidiwys pwy ptydd, i wrandaw amryfai gywyddolacthas—dawed i'r llyso a oragyn.

After frequently exercising themselves in walking of the companies from one church to another, to hear various musical compositions, they came to the court.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymdreidiawl, a. (treidiawl) Being exercising one's self in walking; perambulatory.

Ymdreiddiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (treiddiad) A thrusting one's self through.

Ymdreiddiaw, v. a. (treiddiaw) To self-penetrate.

Ymdreiddiawl, a. (treiddiawl) Mutually penetrating; self-thrusting.

Ymdreigliaw, s. f. (traigl) To roll one's self.

Ymdreiglfa, s. f. (treiglfa) A place for rolling one's self in.

Ymdreigliad, s. m. (treigliad) A self-rolling.

Ymdreuniad, s. m. (treuniad) A self-consuming.

Ymdrenliaw, v. a. (treuniaw) To self-consume.

Ymdrin, s. m. (trin) Mutual striving; contention; variance; the act of busying one's self. v. a.

To strive mutually; to busy one's self.

VOL. II.

Ymdriiad, s. m. (ymdria) A mutually striving; a busying one's self.

Ymdriniaeth, s. m. (ymdria) Mutual strife; a self-busying.

Ymdro, s. m. (tro) A self-turning; self-course.

Ys ymi tidd llywrodd, cas agro, Fyddiawg, fodiawg ei ymdro.

To me belongs a chief of pleasing countenance, hating melancholy, faithful, fortunate in his career.
Phyllip Brydydd, i Rys Gryg.

Ymdröad, s. m. (ymdro) A turning one's self about; a delaying.

Ymdröawl, a. (ymdro) Self-turning about.

Ymdroch, s. m. (troch) A self-immersion.

Ymdrochawl, a. (ymdroch) Self-immersing.

Ymdrochl, v. a. (ymdroch) To bathe one's self; to plunge one's self in; to wallow.

Ymdrochiad, s. m. (ymdroch) A bathing one's self.

Ymdroi, v. a. (ymdro) To turn one's self; to delay; to loiter.

Ymdrws, s. m. (trws) A self-attiring.

Ymdrwsiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymdrws) A self-arraying; a dressing one's self.

Ymdrwsiadu, v. a. (ymdrwsiad) To self-trim.

Ymdrwsawl, v. a. (ymdrws) To self-trim.

Deuparth pryd ymdrwsawl.

Two thirds of appearance is to dress one's self. Adoge.

Ymdrwsawl, a. (ymdrws) Self-attiring.

Ymdrwsaiwr, s. m.—pl. ymdrwsaiwyr (ymdrws—gwr) A self-arrayer.

Ymdrybaeddawl, a. (trybaeddawl) Self-wallowing; mutually wallowing.

Ymdrybaeddiad, s. m. (trybaeddiad) A self-wallowing; mutually wallowing.

Ymdrybaeddu, v. a. (trybaeddu) To wallow, or to welter; to wallow mutually.

Ymdryboli, v. a. (tryboli) To self-wallow; to wallow mutually.

Ymdryboliad, s. m. (tryboliad) A wallowing one's self; a mutually wallowing.

Ymdrychawl, a. (trychawl) Mutually cutting.

Ymdrychiad, s. m. (trychiad) A mutually cutting.

Ymdrychu, v. a. (trychu) To cut mutually.

Mech daw rhwng Saxons rhedant ymdrychu.

Speedily will come between Saxons the onset of mutual wounding. Tafelstin.

Ymdryfoliad, s. m. (tryfoliad) Self-gorging.

Ymdryfoliaw, v. a. (tryfoliaw) To self-gorge.

Ymdryfoliwr, s. m.—pl. ymdryfoliwr (tryfoliwr) One who gorges himself.

Ymdrymâad, s. m. (trymâad) A rendering one's self heavy; a becoming heavy.

Ymdrymâawl, a. (trymâawl) Tending to grow or become heavy.

Ymdrymâu, v. a. (trymâu) To become heavy.

Mae pobedus dylson yn ymrymâddu, ac yn ymdrymâu, pan ydynt yn eiddioluaw gofodolacthas rhyboddus Duw.

The sins of men are increasing, and becoming heavy, when they are neglecting the public institutions of God. Ier. Orain.

Ymdrythylliad, s. m. (trythylliad) A mutually enjoying; a self-enjoying.

Ymdrythyllu, v. a. (trythyllu) To enjoy mutually; to enjoy one's self.

Ymdrythyllwch, s. m. (trythyllwch) Mutual enjoyment; self-enjoyment.

Ymdrythyllwr, s. m.—pl. ymdrythyllwyr (trythyllwr) A self-enjoyer.

Ymdudd, s. m. (tudd) A self-envelopment.

Ymduddaw, v. a. (ymdudd) To envelope mutually; to envelop one's self, to self-envelope.

Ymduddawl, a. (ymdudd) Self-enveloping.

4 K

Ymduddiad, s. m. (ymdudd) A self-enveloping.
 Ymdueddawl, a. (tueddawl) Self-inclining; apt to incline mutually.
 Ymdueddiad, s. m. (tueddiad) A self-inclining; mutual inclination.
 Ymdueddoli, v. a. (ymdueddawl) To incline one's self; to incline mutually.
 Ymdueddu, v. a. (tueddu) To make one's self partial; to become partial, to incline one's self; to incline mutually.
 Ymdueddwr, s. m.—pl. ymdueddwy (tueddwr) One who inclines himself.
 Ymdum, s. m.—pl. t. au (tam) A mutual bend; a self-bending.
 Ymdumiad, s. m. (ymdam) A mutually bending; a bending one's self.
 Ymdumiaw, v. a. (ymdum) To bend mutually; to bend or to mould one's self.
 Ymdumiawl, a. (ymdum) Mutually bending into shape; self-bending.
 Ymdwng, s. m. (twng) Mutual swearing.
 Ymdwr, s. m. (twr) A self-heaping.
 Ymdwyll, s. m. (twyll) Mutual deceit; self-deception.
 Ymdwyllaw, v. a. (ymdwyll) To deceive mutually; to deceive one's self.
 Ymdwylliad, s. m. (ymdwyll) A mutually deceiving; self-deception.
 Ymdwymaw, v. a. (twymaw) To warm one's self.
 Ymdwymiad, s. m. (twymiad) A self-warming.
 Ymdwymnaw, v. a. (twymnaw) To self-warm.
 Ymdwymniad, s. m. (twymniad) A warming of one's self.
 Ymdwysgaw, v. a. (twysgaw) To limit mutually; to limit one's self.
 Ymdwysgawl, a. (twysgawl) Mutually limiting; self-limiting.
 Ymdwysgiad, s. m. (twysgiad) A mutually determining or limiting; a self-limiting.
 Ymdwyth, s. m. (twyth) A mutual spring, aptness, or pliancy; a self-springing.
 Ymdwythaw, v. a. (ymdwyth) To spring mutually; to spring one's self.
 Ymdwythiad, s. m. (ymdwyth) A springing mutually; a self-springing.
 Ymdŷad, s. m. (ŷad) A housing one's self.
 Ymdŷaw, v. a. (ŷaw) To house one's self.
 Ymdyn, s. m. (tyn) A mutual pull; contention.
 Ymdynawl, a. (ymdyn) Mutually pulling.
 Ymdyniad, s. m. (ymdyn) A mutually pulling; a contending, a striving mutually.
 Ymdynu, v. a. (ymdyn) To pull or drag one another; to strive together, to contend. 'Ymdynu ar draws tanau', to pull one another across fires.
 Ymdynwr, s. m.—pl. ymdynwyr (ymdyn—gwr) One who pulls mutually; a contender.
 Ymdyngawl, a. (ymdwng) Mutually swearing one's self.
 Ymdynged, s. f. (ymdwng) A state of being mutually devoted; self-devotion.
 Ymdyngedawl, a. (ymdynged) Mutually adjuring, self-devoting.
 Ymdyngediad, s. m. (ymdynged) A mutually adjuring; a self-devoting.
 Ymdyngedu, v. a. (ymdynged) To adjure mutually; to pledge one's self.
 Ymdyngiad, s. m. (ymdwng) A mutually swearing; a swearing one's self.
 Ymdyngu, v. a. (ymdwng) To swear mutually; to plight one's troth.

Bras a gant o frig gwydd
 'To apoplexy head and chest;
 Death a ymdudd a Dwydd.

A crow sang from the top of the yew, in the hearing of all the birds of the woods: the wise man! Mark! with the Crows.
Canary Bedd.

Ymdyrawl, a. (ymdwr) Mutually thronging.
 Ymdyriad, s. m. (ymdwr) A jointly thronging.
 Ymdyru, v. a. (ymdwr) To throng together.
 Ymdystiaw, v. a. (tystiaw) To witness mutually; to self-testify.
 Ymdystiawl, a. (tystiawl) Mutually testifying; self-witnessing.
 Ymdywylliad, s. m. (tywylliad) A mutually darkening; a self-obscuring.
 Ymdywyllu, v. a. (tywyllu) To darken mutually; to self-obscure.
 Ymdywyn, s. m. (tywyn) A mutual shining; a self-shining.
 Ymdywynawl, a. (ymdywyn) Mutually shining; self-shining.
 Ymdywyniad, s. m. (tywyniad) A mutually shining; a self-shining; a becoming resplendent.
 Ymdywynu, v. a. (tywynu) To shine mutually; to become resplendent.
 Ymdywynyg, s. m. (tywynyg) A self-shining.
 Ymdywynygawl, a. (tywynyg) Self-shining.
 Ymdywynygiad, s. m. (ymdywynyg) A casting a mutual splendour; a becoming resplendent.
 Ymdywynygu, v. a. (ymdywynyg) To cast a mutual splendour; to cause one's self to shine; to become splendid.

Rhod cerdd a ymdywynyg rhybydd yr haul.

A golden circle became resplendent about the sun.
Shedderson.

Ymddadchwyddaw, v. a. (dadchwyddaw) To divest one's self of swelling.
 Ymddadchwyddiad, s. m. (dadchwyddiad) A divesting one's self of swelling.
 Ymddaddebrawl, a. (dadebrawl) Self-resuscitating.
 Ymddaddebrud, s. (dadebriad) Self-resuscitation.
 Ymddaddebru, v. a. (dadebru) To self-resuscitate.
 Ymddadffinaw, v. a. (dadffinaw) To divest one's self of fatigue.
 Ymddadffiniad, s. m. (dadffiniad) A divesting one's self of fatigue.
 Ymddadgrymiad, s. m. (dadgrymiad) An unbending or raising one's self.
 Ymddadgrymu, v. a. (dadgrymu) To unbend one's self from a bending posture.
 Ymddadguddiad, s. m. (dadguddiad) A self-revealing.
 Ymddadguddiaw, v. (dadguddiaw) To self-reveal.
 Ymddadguddiawl, a. (dadguddiawl) Self-revealing.
 Ymddadl, s. f. (dadl) Mutual dispute.
 Ymddadlawl, a. (ymddadl) Controversial.
 Ymddadleithiad, s. m. (dadleithiad) A mutually dissolving; a self-dissolving.
 Ymddadleithaw, v. a. (dadleithaw) To dissolve mutually; to self-dissolve.
 Ymddadleithiawl, a. (dadleithiawl) Mutually dissolving; self-dissolving.
 Ymddadieu, v. a. (ymddadi) To contend in words.
 Ymddadieuad, s. m. (ymddadieu) Mutual disputation; jointly disputing.
 Ymddadieuaw, v. a. (ymddadieu) To dispute mutually.
 Ymddadlewychwawl, a. (dadlewychwawl) Teading mutually to reflect light; self-refracting.
 Ymddadlewychiad, s. m. (dadlewychiad) A mutually reflecting light; a self-refraction.
 Ymddadlewychu, v. a. (dadlewychu) To reflect light mutually; to self-refract.

Ymddadliad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymddadli) A mutually arguing; controversy, contention.

Ymddadlin, v. a. (ymddadli) To dispute mutually; to use one's self in dispute.

Ymddadiwr, s. m.—pl. ymddadiwyr (ymddadi—gwr) A mutual disputer.

Ymddadiwythaw, v. a. (dadiwythaw) To divest one's self of a load.

Ymddadiwythawl, a. (dadiwythawl) Tending to disburden one's self.

Ymddadiwythiad, s. m. (dadiwythiad) A disburdening one's self.

Ymddadlydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymddadli) A disputant.

Ymddadwreiddiad, s. m. (dadwreiddiad) A self-eradicating.

Ymddadwreiddiaw, v. a. (dadwreiddiaw) To self-eradicate; to be plucked up by the root.

Pe byddai ganach fydd gelych ddywedyd wrth y faaruen hon, Ymddadwreiddiad.

If ye had faith, ye might say unto this eyesame tree, Be thou plucked up by the root.

Ymddadwreiddiawl, a. (dadwreiddiawl) Tending to be self-eradicated.

Ymddelariad, s. m. (deleriad) A self-burying.

Ymddelaru, v. a. (dalaru) To burrow one's self.

Ymddal, s. m. (dal) The act of mutual holding; perseverance. v. a. To persevere.

Tri arddangaws doethineb: ymddal ar byrll, ymddal ar awen, ac ymddal ar welliedgnaeth.

The three indications of wisdom: a keeping after reason, a keeping after genius, and keeping after improvement.

Cefng o Gwynllyw.

Ymddaliad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymddal) A mutually holding; a self-holding; that is holden; an opinion.

Yr Arglwydd a draethai hyn, i faedde i'r llawr felch ymddaliad y Phariseu.

The Lord declared that, to heat to the ground the proud opinion of the Pharisee.

Marchant Gwynedd.

Ymddaliwr, s. m.—pl. ymddaliwyr (ymddal—gwr) One who mutually holds; one who holds himself.

Ymddalliad, s. m. (dalliad) A mutually blinding; a self-blinding.

Ymddallu, v. a. (dallu) To blind mutually; to blind one's self.

Mae gormod yn ymddallu wrth y tair tywysoges ohyr.

Too many do blind themselves with the three princesses below.

Idia Wyn, B. Cwg.

Ymddallus, a. (dallus) Being self-blinding.

Ymddallwr, s. m.—pl. ymddallwyr (dallwr) One who blinds himself.

Ymddanneddiad, s. m. (danneddiad) A mutually shewing the teeth, mutually snarling.

Ymddanneddu, v. a. (danneddu) To snarl mutually; to employ one's self in snarling.

Gwelw rai yn ymddanneddu ac yn ymddanneddu am eu brain.

We could perceive some thrusting themselves forward and mutually snarling for their rank.

Idia Wyn, B. Cwg.

Ymddanneddwr, s. m.—pl. ymddanneddwyr (danneddwr) A snarler.

Ymddantia, s. m. (dantia) A shewing one's teeth

Ymddantu, v. a. (dantu) To shew one's teeth.

Megys corbi yn ymddantu a march rhyngaws.

Like a cur dog snarling at an snubling steed.

Theo. Brown.

Ymddangaws, s. m. (dangaws) A mutual shew; a shewing of one's self. v. a. To appear mutually; to shew one's self.

Ymddangosawl, a. (ymddangaws) Mutually appearing; self-exposing.

Ymddangosgar, a. (ymddangaws) Ostentatious.

Ymddangosgarwch, s. m. (ymddangosgar) Ostentatiousness.

Ymddangosiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymddangaws) A self-shewing, an appearing; an appearance.

Ymddangosiadawl, a. (ymddangosiad) Relating to self-shewing.

Ymddangosiadus, a. (ymddangosiad) Ostentatious.

Ymddarostwng, s. m. (darostwng) Self-debasement. v. a. To debase one's self.

Ymddarostyngawl, a. (darostwng) Self-debasing.

Ymddarostyngiad, s. m. (darostwng) A lowering one's self, a humbling one's self; a self-debasing, condescension.

Ymddarostyngwr, s. m.—pl. ymddarostyngwyr (ymddarostwng—gwr) A self-debaser.

Ymddarpar, s. m. (darpar) Self-preparation.

Ymddarpariad, s. m. (darpar) A self-preparing.

Ymddarparu, v. a. (darpar) To self-prepare.

Ymddarparwr, s. m.—pl. ymddarparwyr (darpar—gwr) A self-preparer.

Ymddarwedd, s. f. (darwedd) A self-yielding.

Ynghylch 1111, yr oedd Owain ab Cadwgan yn drygu yn ddynarwedd o'i amgylch.

About the year 1111, Owain son of Cadwgan was yielding and- out remorse all around him.

Ceredwig o Len Cefn.

Ymddarweddawl, a. (darwedd) Self-conforming; of a pliant nature; mutually complying.

Ymddarweddriad, s. m. (darwedd) A self-conforming; a mutually complying.

Ymddarweddri, v. a. (darwedd) To conform one's self; to comply mutually.

Ymddattawd, s. m. (dattawd) A mutual loosening; a loosening of one's self.

Clywedd iale yn parhau minnan, wrth fy enw, ymddattawd: ar y galp, mi ym clywedd yn dechreu toddi, mál cawg cira yn agwedd yr haul.

I could hear a voice commanding me also, by my name, to loose-me myself: at the word, I could feel myself beginning to melt, like a snowball in the heat of the sun.

Idia Wyn, B. Cwg.

Ymddattodawl, a. (ymddattawd) Self-loosening.

Ymddattodi, v. a. (ymddattawd) To loosen mutually; to loosen one's self.

Ymddattodiad, s. m. (ymddattawd) A mutually loosening; a loosening one's self.

Ymddedfodwr, s. m.—pl. ymddedfodwyr (dedfodwr) One who adheres to a custom.

Ymddedfraw, s. m. (dedfraw) A self-waking. v. a. To wake one's self.

Ymddedfrod, s. m. (ymddedfraw) A self-waking.

Ymddedfrowl, a. (ymddedfraw) Self-waking.

Ymddedfroi, v. a. (ymddedfraw) Self-waking.

Ymddedintia, s. m. (deintia) A mutually snarling.

Ymddedintia, v. a. (deintia) To snarl mutually.

Ymddenawl, a. (denawl) Mutually alluring; self-alluring.

Ymddeniad, s. m. (deniad) A mutually alluring; a self-alluring.

Ymddenu, v. a. (denn) To allure mutually; to allure one's self.

Ymddëodi, v. a. (deawd) To divest one's self.

Am Fadawg nanawg mynw haeloni,

Medel ztyw glewdras nawg mynng;

Am Owain Prydri, Prydri balai,

Prenial ymddini ymddendi.

For Madawg, the distinguished centre of liberality, the bravely-forward leader whose store was sweet benignity; for Owain of Britain, equal to Prydri, the casket of self-revenge in mutually cast of.

Cyddreio.

Ymddëodiad, s. m. (ymddëodi) A divesting one's self of garments.

Ymddëol, s. m. (dëol) Mutual separation; self-separation; self-banishment.

4 K 2

Ymddödi, v. a. (ymddöol) To separate mutually; to separate one's self; to banish one's self.

Ymddöoliad, s. m. (ymddöol) A mutually separating; a separating one's self.

Ymddëor, s. m. (dëor) The state of being hatched. v. a. To be hatched.

Cydwylbod yw y nyth lle ydd ymddëor pob daioni.

Conscience is the nest where every good is hatched. Adage.

Ymddëorawl, a. (ymddëor) Being employed in hatching or brooding.

Ymddëori, v. a. (ymddëor) To be employed in hatching.

Ymddëoriad, s. m. (ymddëor) A being in the act of hatching.

Ymddërawl, a. (dërawl) Mutually taunting.

Ymdderbyn, s. m. (derbyn) Mutual reception. v. a. To receive mutually; to employ one's self in receiving.

Ymdderbyniad, s. m. (ymdderbyn) A mutually receiving; a being receiving.

Ymdderbyniaw, v. a. (ymdderbyn) To receive mutually; to be receiving.

Ymdderbyniawl, a. (ymdderbyn) Mutually receiving; being receiving.

Ymdderiad, s. m. (dëriad) A mutually taunting.

Ymddërn, v. a. (dërn) To taunt mutually.

Ymddial, s. m. (dial) A revenging one's self. v. a. To revenge one's self; to be revenged. Yebryd ymddial, a vindictive spirit.

*Eu heddu a'u cudd gwyddial
Ni lesant heb ymddial:
Gurien, Morien, a Morial.*

They whose graves are obscured by furze, they were not slain without avenging themselves: Gurien, Morien, and Morial. B. Beddan Mithyr.

Ymddialgar, a. (ymddial) Revengeful, vindictive

Ymddialiad, s. m. (ymddial) A self-avenging.

Ymddialu, v. a. (ymddial) To avenge one's self.

Ymddialydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymddial) A self-avenger.

Ymddiang, s. m. (diang) Self-escape. v. a. To extricate one's self.

Pan adnabu Grefudd ab Cynan na allai ymddiang efelly, ydd seith yu ygruff y canonwyr yn Aberdaron, ac ya hono a dan rwyf ydd ayt y lwerddon.

When Grefudd son of Cynan perceived that he could not extricate himself so, he procured the ferry of the canons in Aberdaron, and in that, by the use of the oar, they went to Ireland. Buch. Gr. ab Cynan.

Ymddiangawl, a. (ymddiang) Self-extricating.

Ymddiangiad, s. m. (ymddiang) A self-escaping.

Ymddiarfiad, s. m. (diarfiad) A self-disarming.

Ymddiarfogi, v. a. (diarfogi) To self-disarm.

Ymddiarfogiad, s. m. (diarfogi) A self-disarming.

Ymddiarfu, v. a. (diarfu) To disarm one's self.

Ymddiargeliad, s. m. (diargel) A divesting one's self of seclusion, a revealing one's self.

Ymddiargelu, v. a. (diargelu) To divest one's self of seclusion; to manifest one's self.

Ymddiarialiad, s. m. (diarialiad) A divesting one's self of wantonness.

Ymddiarialu, v. a. (diarialu) To divest one's self of wantonness.

Ymddiaruthraw, v. a. (diaruthraw) To divest one's self of astonishment.

Ymddiaruthriad, s. m. (diaruthriad) A divesting one's self of astonishment.

Ymddiasgeniad, s. m. (diasgeniad) A divesting one's self of blemish; a rendering one's self unpolluted.

Ymddiasgenu, v. a. (diasgenu) To divest one's self of blemish or harm.

Ymddiawchiad, s. m. (diawchiad) A divesting one's self of appetency or desire.

Ymddiawchu, v. a. (diawchu) To divest one's self of appetency or eagerness.

Ymddibarchiad, s. m. (dibarchiad) A divesting one's self of respect.

Ymddibarchu, v. a. (dibarchu) To divest one's self of respect or reverence.

Ymddibetrusaw, v. a. (dibetrusaw) To divest one's self of hesitation; to cease hesitating.

Ymddibetrusiad, s. m. (dibetrusiad) A divesting one's self of hesitation.

Ymddiblaw, v. a. (diblaw) To dangle one's self.

Ymddibleidiad, s. m. (dibleidiad) A divesting one's self of a party.

Ymddibleidiaw, v. a. (dibleidiaw) To divest one's self of a party; to appeal from a decision.

Tri rhyw ymddibleidiaw y ydd herwydd cyfrith: cyntaf yw i wrth y plas i'r orsedd, all yw yn y modd, trydydd yw yn y ddeddiad.

There are three ways of appealing from a decision: the first is from the hall to the high court, the second is with respect to the form, the third is in the matter. Welsh Laws.

Ymddibleidiawl, a. (dibleidiawl) Respecting the being divested of a party.

Ymddibleidiwr, s. m.—pl. ymddibleidiwyr (dibleidiwr) One who recedes from a party.

Ymddiblethiad, s. m. (diblethiad) A divesting one's self of plaits or wreaths.

Ymddiblethu, v. a. (diblethu) To self-divest of plaits; to become unwreathed.

Ymddibliad, s. m. (dibliad) A self-dagging.

Ymddibliagaw, v. a. (dibliagaw) To become divested of shell.

Ymddibliagiad, s. m. (dibliagiad) A becoming divested of shell.

Ymddiboeni, v. a. (diboeni) To divest one's self of pain or labour.

Ymddiboeniad, s. m. (diboeniad) A divesting one's self of pain or labour.

Ymddiborthi, v. a. (diborthi) To divest one's self of support.

Ymddiborthiad, s. m. (diborthiad) A divesting one's self of support.

Ymddibwyllaw, v. a. (dibwyllaw) To divest one's self of impulse or of reason.

Ymddibwylliad, s. m. (dibwylliad) A divesting one's self of reason or wit.

Ymddibwysaw, v. a. (dibwysaw) To divest one's self of weight.

Ymddibwysiad, s. m. (dibwysiad) A divesting one's self of weight.

Ymddibynawl, a. (dibynawl) Self-suspending, self-impending; dependent.

Ymddibyniad, s. m. (dibyniad) A suspending one's self; a becoming dependent.

Ymddibynn, v. a. (dibynn) To suspend one's self; to render one's self dependent.

Ymddichelliad, s. m. (dichelliad) A making one's self cunning.

Ymddichellu, v. a. (dichellu) To furnish one's self with cunning or wiles.

Dichellu or bob dichell ymddichellu daioni.

An art above every art is to make one's self crafty in goodness. Adage.

Ymddichoni, v. a. (dichoni) To become able.

Ymddichoniad, s. m. (dichoniad) A rendering one's self able or capable.

Ymddidoli, v. a. (didoli) To separate one's self; to separate mutually.

Ymddidoliad, s. m. (didoliad) A separating one's self; a mutually separating.

Ymddidreolad, s. m. (didreolad) A divesting one's self of bustle.

Ymddidreus, v. a. (didreus) To divest one's self of bustle or hurry.

Ymddidwyllaw, v. a. (didwyllaw) To undeceive one's self; mutually to undeceive.

Ymddidwylliad, s. m. (ddwylliad) An undeceiving of one's self.

Ymddidwyn, s. m. (diddwyn) A self-weaning. v. To wean one's self.

Rheid ymddidwyn a'r byd os eir i'r n.f.

It is necessary to wean one's self from the world, if one is to go to heaven. Idag.

Ymddidrysiad, s. m. (diddrysiad) A disentangling one's self.

Ymddidrysu, v. a. (diddyrsu) To disentangle one's self.

Ymddieithraw, v. a. (dieithraw) To render one's self unexceptionable.

Ymddieithriad, s. m. (dieithriad) A rendering one's self unexceptionable.

Ymddienyddiad, s. m. (dienyddiad) A making away with one's self.

Ymddienyddu, v. a. (dienyddu) To make away with one's self.

Ni ddylly argwyddi oeddyw gwr a ymddienyddo.

The hero is not entitled to the heriot of a man who puts an end to his own existence. Welsh Laws.

Ymddifa, v. a. (difa) To end one's self.

Ymddifad, s. m. (ymddifa) A self-ending.

Ymddifad, a. (difad) Being destitute of good or comfort; fatherless or motherless. Plant ymddifad, orphan children.

*Os wdd wyf ya ymddifad
A dyn woel' fain a'i dad!
I am to the same manner sold of comfort as a person after losing his father and mother!* Owein Brinon.

Ymddifadiad, s. m. (ymddifad) A being made destitute; a becoming destitute.

Ymddifadu, v. a. (ymddifad) To bereave of comfort; to become destitute.

Ymddifanniad, s. m. (difanniad) A making one's self to vanish away.

Ymddifannu, v. a. (difannu) To make one's self to vanish.

Ymddifedi, s. m. (ymddifad) A state void of so-lace; the being destitute; deprivation; an orphan state.

Mwy yn cymhellir i wylaw nos i ddwydded aruth ac ymddifodion uchel; sef achawu yw hyny truaned yw genyf i'r ymddifedi a'r gwander a ddamweiniu i ni.

I am more compelled to weep than to speak an oration and high expressions; the reason of which is the wretchedness and the weakness that have happened to us. Gr. ab Artur.

Ymddifeiad, s. m. (difeiad) Self-exculpation.

Ymddifeiaw, v. a. (difeiaw) To self-exculpate.

Ymddifeichiad, s. m. (difeichiad) A clearing one's self from bail.

Ymddifeichiaw, v. a. (difeichiaw) To clear one's self from bail.

Ymddifaniad, s. m. (difanniad) A making one's self to vanish.

Ymddifannu, v. a. (difannu) To cause one's self to vanish.

Ymddifinaw, v. a. (difinaw) To divest one's self of fatigue; to refresh one's self.

Ymddifiniad, s. m. (difiniad) A divesting one's self of fatigue; a refreshing one's self.

Ymddifregawl, a. (difregawl) Tending to be sad.

Ymddifregiad, s. m. (difregiad) A rendering one's self serious.

Ymddifregu, v. a. (difregu) To render one's self void of frailty; to become serious. Ymddi- fregu a Dwr, to address one's self seriously to God.

Ymddifreiniad, s. m. (difreiniad) A divesting one's self of privilege or right.

Ymddifreiniaw, v. a. (difreiniaw) To divest one's self of privilege or right.

Ymddifrodi, v. a. (difrodi) To rob one's self.

Ymddifrodiad, s. m. (difrodiad) A self robbing.

Ymddifwynaw, v. a. (difwynaw) To divest one's self of enjoyment.

Ymddifwyniad, s. m. (difwyniad) A divesting one's self of enjoyment.

Ymddifyddinaw, v. a. (difyddinaw) To become disbanded as an army.

Ymddifyddiniad, s. m. (difyddiniad) A becoming disbanded as an army.

Ymddifyrawl, a. (difyrwl) Self-diverting.

Ymddifyriad, s. m. (difyrriad) A diverting one's self; a mutually diverting.

Ymddifyru, v. a. (difyrn) To divert one's self; to divert one another.

Ymddiffawdd, s. m. (diffawdd) A self-extinguishing. v. a. To self-extinguish.

Ymddiffer, s. m. (differ) Self-protection; mutual defence or protection.

Ymddifferawl, a. (ymddiffer) Self-protecting.

Ymddifferiad, s. m. (ymddiffer) A self-protecting; mutual protection.

Ymddifferu, v. a. (ymddiffer) To defend one's self; to protect mutually.

*Aynt byd yn Moen, ac wynt a Gwafodd; ac yno ydd ymddifferu at
They went as far as Moen, thence and Gwafodd; and there they defended themselves.* Buch. Gr. ab Cynan.

Ymddifferwr, s. m.—pl. ymddifferwyr (ymddiffer—gwr) A self-defender.

Ymddiffoddawl, a. (ymddiffawdd) Self-extinguishing.

Ymddiffoddi, v. a. (ymddiffawdd) To self-extinguish.

Ymddiffoddiad, s. m. (ymddiffawdd) A self-extinguishing.

Ymddiffwys, s. m. (diffwys) The state of being imminent or impending; eventful.

*Y galon—
Hon a bair cadair ceudawd,
Hewu ymddiffwys, gynnwys gwawd.*

The heart: It will cause the seat of imagination, eventful the name, to harbour praise. D. ab Gwilym.

Ymddiffwysaw, v. a. (ymddiffwys) To render one's self impending.

Ymddiffwysawl, a. (ymddiffwys) Self-impending.

Ymddiffwysiad, s. m. (ymddiffwys) A rendering one's self impending.

Ymddiffyn, s. m. (diffyn) Self-defence; mutual defence. v. a. To defend one's self.

Ymddiffynadwy, a. (ymddiffyn) Defensible.

Ymddiffynawl, a. (ymddiffyn) Self-protecting.

Ymddiffynedig, a. (ymddiffyn) Self-protected.

Ymddiffynfa, s. f.—pl. ymddiffynfeydd (ymddiffyn) A place of defence.

Ymddiffyniad, s. m. (ymddiffyn) A defending.

Ymddiffyniaeth, s. (ymddiffyn) System of defence.

Ymddiffynu, v. a. (ymddiffyn) To self-defend.

Ymddiffynus, a. (ymddiffyn) Self-defending.

Ymddiffynwr, s. m.—pl. ymddiffynwyr (ymddiffyn—gwr) A defender, a protector.

Ymddiffynydd, s. m.—pl. i. ion (ymddiffyn) A defender.

Ymddigalon, v. a. (digalon) To dishearten one's self; to become disheartened.

Ymddigaloniad, s. m. (digaloniad) A disheartening one's self.

- Ymddigariad, s. m. (digariad) A divesting one's self of love.
- Ymddigarn, v. a. (digaru) To divest one's self of love or affection.
- Ymddigasaad, s. m. (digasaad) A divesting one's self of hatred or enmity.
- Ymddigasaau, v. a. (digasaau) To divest one's self of hatred or enmity.
- Ymddigeliad, s. m. (digeliad) A self-revealing.
- Ymddigelu, v. a. (digelu) To reveal one's self.
- Ymddigeniad, s. m. (digeniad) A self-exfoliation.
- Ymddigennu, v. a. (digenu) To self-exfoliate.
- Ymddigiad, s. m. (diglad) A making one's self angry; a becoming angry.
- Ymddigiaw, v. a. (digiaw) To anger one's self.
- Ymddigiawl, a. (digiawl) Tending to anger one's self; becoming angry.
- Ymddigonad, s. m. (digonad) A self-sufficing.
- Ymddigoni, v. a. (digoni) To self-suffice.
- Ymddigrifad, s. m. (digrifad) A delighting one's self; a self-amusing.
- Ymddigrifau, v. a. (digrifau) To amuse one's self; to delight one's self.
- Ymddigrifaw, v. a. (digrifaw) To amuse one's self, to delight one's self; to make one's self happy.
- Ymddigrifau yn dy gyfrith.*
I have delighted in thy law. Psalms 119. 70.
- Ymddigelfawl, a. (digrifawl) Tending to self-delight; becoming delighted.
- Ymddigrifad, s. m. (digrifad) A self-delighting; a becoming delighted.
- Ymddigrifwch, s. m. (digrifwch) Self-delight.
- Ymddiguddiad, s. m. (diguddiad) A rendering one's self unhidden.
- Ymddiguddiaw, v. a. (diguddiaw) To unhide one's self; to become unhidden.
- Ymddigyfeiliad, s. m. (digyfeiliad) A divesting one's self of friendship.
- Ymddigyfeiliaw, v. a. (digyfeiliaw) To deprive one's self of friendship.
- Ymddigyfuernthiad, s. m. (digyfuernthiad) A divesting one's self of assistance.
- Ymddigyfuernthu, v. a. (digyfuernthu) To divest one's self of assistance.
- Ymddigyfoethi, v. a. (digyfoethi) To divest one's self of wealth or power.
- Ymddigyfoethiad, s. m. (digyfoethiad) A divesting one's self of wealth.
- Ymddigyfraniad, s. m. (digyfraniad) A divesting one's self of participation.
- Ymddigyfranu, v. a. (digyfranu) To divest one's self of participation.
- Ymddigyfrwyddaw, v. a. (digyfrwyddaw) To render one's self unpropitious.
- Ymddigyfrwyddiad, s. m. (digyfrwyddiad) A rendering one's self unpropitious.
- Ymddigysynglad, s. m. (digysynglad) A rendering one's self unstraitened.
- Ymddigysyngu, v. a. (digysyngu) To render one's self unstraitened.
- Ymddigyffrôad, s. m. (digyffrôad) A divesting one's self of agitation.
- Ymddigyffrôl, v. a. (digyffrôl) To divest one's self of agitation or excitement.
- Ymddigymhorthi, v. a. (digymhorthi) To deprive one's self of assistance.
- Ymddigymhorthiad, s. m. (digymhorthiad) A depriving one's self of assistance.
- Ymddigynheniad, s. m. (digynheniad) A divesting one's self of contention.
- Ymddigynhennu, v. a. (digynhennu) To divest one's self of contention.
- Ymddigysylltiad, s. m. (digysylltiad) A rendering one's self unconnected.
- Ymddigysylltu, v. a. (digysylltu) To disconnect one's self.
- Ymddigwilyddiad, s. m. (digywilyddiad) A divesting one's self of shame.
- Ymddigwilyddiaw, v. a. (digywilyddiaw) To divest one's self of shame.
- Ymddihafarchiad, s. m. (dihafarchiad) A divesting one's self of timidity or dread.
- Ymddihafarchu, v. a. (dihafarchu) To divest one's self of timidity or fear.
- Ymddihalogi, v. a. (dihalogi) To divest one's self of pollution.
- Ymddihalogiad, s. m. (dihalogiad) A divesting one's self of pollution.
- Ymddihatriad, s. m. (dihatriad) A divesting one's self of covering or dress.
- Ymddihatru, v. a. (dihatru) To divest one's self of covering or dress.
- Ymddiheiniad, s. m. (dihelniad) A divesting one's self of infection.
- Ymddiheiniaw, v. a. (dihelniaw) To divest one's self of infection.
- A'g ho ga Ddaew—
Sod ar lawu, am ddawn ymddibetalo
Byd—*
- Please God, may I be on the right, for grace directing my way of the infection of the world.* Medley at Gwent.
- Ymddiheurad, s. m. (diheturad) Self-vindication.
- Ymddiheuraw, v. a. (diheturaw) To self-abuse; to vindicate one's self.
- Ymddiheoni, v. a. (dihoeni) To self-enfeeble; to divest one's self of spirit; to pine one's self.
- Ymddiheoniad, s. m. (dihoeniad) A divesting one's self of vivacity or spirits.
- Ymddihuddaw, v. a. (dihuddaw) To self-uncover.
- Ymddihuddiad, s. m. (dihuddiad) An uncovering of one's self; a becoming uncovered.
- Ymddihunaw, v. a. (dihunaw) To self-wake.
- Ymddihuniad, s. m. (dihuniad) A self-waking.
- Ymddihwylaw, v. a. (dihwylaw) To disarray one's self; to disorder one's self.
- Ymddihwylad, s. m. (dihwylad) A disarraying of one's self; a self-disordering.
- Ymddillesiad, s. m. (dilesiad) A depriving one's self of benefit.
- Ymddiless, v. a. (dilesu) To deprive one's self of benefit or advantage.
- Ymddilidiad, s. m. (diliadiad) A divesting one's self of wrath or anger.
- Ymddilidiaw, v. a. (diliadiaw) To divest one's self of wrath; to become pacified.
- Ymddiloni, v. a. (diloni) To divest one's self of cheerfulness; to make one's self sad.
- Ymddiloniad, s. m. (diloniad) A divesting one's self of cheerfulness.
- Ymddiluddaw, v. a. (diluddaw) To render one's self unobstructed or unrestrained.
- Ymddiluddiad, s. m. (diluddiad) A divesting one's self of restraint; a divesting one's self of weariness.
- Ymddiluddedu, v. a. (diluddedu) To divest one's self of restraint, or of weariness.
- Ymddiluddiad, s. m. (diluddiad) A divesting one's self of obstruction.
- Ymddilwythaw, v. a. (dilwythaw) To unload one's self, to unburden one's self.
- Ymddilwythiad, s. m. (dilwythiad) A disburdening of one's self.

Ymddilygriad, s. m. (dilygriad) A divesting one's self of corruption.

Ymddilygru, v. a. (dilygru) To divest one's self of corruption.

Ymddilyn, s. m. (dilyn) The being in pursuit; mutual pursuit. v. a. To be in pursuit; to pursue mutually.

Ymddilynawl, a. (ymddilyn) Apt to be pursuing.

Ymddilyngar, a. (ymddilyn) Apt to be pursuing.

Ymddilyniaw, s. m. (ymddilyn) Being pursuing; a mutually pursuing.

Ymddilynwyr, s. m.—pl. ymddilynwyr (ymddilyn—gwr) One who uses himself to pursue.

Ymddilysiad, s. m. (dilysiad) A self-securing.

Ymddilysu, v. a. (dilysu) To secure one's self.

Ymddilladiad, s. m. (dilladiad) A self-clothing.

Ymddillada, v. a. (dilladu) To clothe one's self.

Ymddilliad, s. m. (dilliad) A self-folding.

Ymddillaw, v. a. (dillaw) To self-fold.

Ymddinerthiad, s. m. (dinerthiad) A self-energizing, a becoming debilitated.

Ymddinerthu, v. a. (dinerthu) To self-debilitate.

Ymddindraw, v. a. (dindraw) To disentangle one's self, to disembarass one's self.

Ymddindriad, s. m. (dindriad) A disentangling of one's self.

Ymddiwrweldiad, s. m. (diwrweldiad) A rendering one's self harmless.

Ymddiwrweldaw, v. a. (diwrweldaw) To render one's self harmless.

Ymddinwyfaw, v. a. (diwyfaw) To divest one's self of vivacity or spirit.

Ymddinwyfiad, s. m. (dinwyfiad) A divesting one's self of vivacity, life, or vigour.

Ymddiobeithiad, s. m. (diobeithiad) A divesting one's self of hope.

Ymddiobeithaw, v. a. (diobeithaw) To render one's self hopeless.

Ymddiodi, v. a. (diodi) To supply one's self with drink; to be drinking.

Ymddiodiad, s. m. (diodiad) A supplying of one's self with drink.

Ymddiofalliad, s. m. (diofalliad) A divesting one's self of care; a becoming careless.

Ymddiofalu, v. a. (diofalu) To divest one's self of care; to become careless.

Ymddiofidiad, s. m. (diofidiad) A divesting one's self of affliction.

Ymddiofidaw, v. a. (diofidaw) To divest one's self of affliction.

Ymddiofui, v. a. (diofui) To divest one's self of fear; to become fearless.

Ymddiofniad, s. m. (diofniad) A divesting one's self of fear; a becoming fearless.

Ymddiofrydiad, s. m. (diofrydiad) A rendering one's self decided, determined, or devoted.

Ymddiofrydu, v. a. (diofrydu) To render one's self decided, resolved, or devoted.

Ymddioganiad, s. m. (dioganiad) A divesting one's self of reproach.

Ymddioganu, v. a. (dioganu) To divest one's self of reproach or scandal.

Ymddiogellad, s. m. (diogellad) A self-securing.

Ymddiogelu, v. a. (diogelu) To self-secure.

Ymddiogel, v. a. (diogel) To make one's self lazy.

Ymddiogiad, s. m. (diogiad) A making one's self lazy or listless.

Ymddiol, v. a. (diol) To divest one's self of a trace or footprint.

Ymddioliad, s. m. (dioliad) A divesting one's self of a trace or track.

Ymddireidiad, s. m. (direidiad) An employing one's self unnecessarily.

Ymddireidiaw, v. a. (direidiaw) To employ one's self unnecessarily.

Gwell pheidaw nos ymddireidiaw.

Better to rest than to employ one's self uselessly. Adage.

Ymddirgellad, s. m. (dirgellad) A making one's self private or secret.

Ymddirgela, v. a. (dirgela) To self-secret.

Ymddiriad, s. m. (diriad) Self-investigation; mutual investigation; confidence.

Gwaethaf twyll twyll ymddiriad.

The worst deceit is deceit through confidence. Adage.

Ymddiriaw, v. a. (diriaw) To self-investigate; to instigate mutually.

Nid ydych chi hysbysu.

Do not trust to opportunity will be fooled. Adage.

Ymddiriawl, a. (diriawl) Being self-impelling.

Ymddiried, s. m. (diried) Mutual impulse; mutual dependence; confidence, trust. v. a. To give mutual impulse; to confide, to rely or depend upon.

Nid ymddiried ond cydymath.

There is no trust like a compulsion.

Cas a ymddiried i rodd.

Useful is he that trusts to a gift. Adage.

Tri pheth nid oir ymddiried: dyddiad, dyddiad, y gwaith, a dyddwydd arghydd.

Three things to which no trust can be given: health to the old, fair weather in winter, and the diligence of a lord. Adage.

Ymddiriediad, s. m. (ymddiried) A confiding.

Ymddiriedu, v. a. (ymddiried) To confide, to trust.

Ymddiriedas, a. (ymddiried) Confiding, trusting.

Ymddirwygiad, s. m. (dirwygiad) A self-contemning.

Ymddirwygu, v. a. (dirwygu) To self-contemn.

Ymddirper, s. m. (dirper) The being deserving.

Ymddirpetiad, s. m. (ymddirper) A rendering one's self deserving or meriting.

Ymddirperu, v. a. (ymddirper) To render one's self deserving.

Ymddirprwy, s. m. (dirprwy) A mutual supply.

Ymddirprwyad, s. m. (ymddirprwy) A self-supplying; a getting one's place filled by proxy.

Ymddirprwyaw, v. a. (ymddirprwy) To supply one's self; to self-accommodate.

Ymddirwest, s. m. (dirwest) A self-refraining. v. a. To refrain one's self.

Gores pob dirwest ymddirwest rhag trachwant.

The best refraining is to refrain one's self from cupidity.

Cyng. Idmuth.

Ymddirwyad, s. m. (dirwyad) A self-fining.

Ymddirwyaw, v. a. (dirwyaw) To fine one's self.

Ymddirwydaw, v. a. (dirwydaw) To extricate one's self, to become disentangled.

Ymddirwydiad, s. m. (dirwydiad) A disentangling one's self; a freeing one's self.

Ymddirwymaw, v. a. (dirwymaw) To unbind one's self, to liberate one's self.

Ymddirwymiad, s. m. (dirwymiad) A liberating or unbinding one's self.

Ymddirwystraw, v. a. (dirwystraw) To render one's self void of impediment or interruption.

Ymddirwystriad, s. m. (dirwystriad) A divesting one's self of hinderance or impediment.

Ymddirymiad, s. m. (dirymiad) A divesting one's self of energy or power.

Ymddirymaw, v. a. (dirymaw) To divest one's self of energy or power.

Ymddirymiad, s. m. (dirymiad) A self-degenerating.

Ymddirymaw, v. a. (dirymaw) To degenerate one's self; to become degenerate.

Ymddisecyn, s. m. (disecyn) The act of bringing one's self down.

Ymddisecyniad, s. m. (ymddisecyn) A bringing one's self down; a self-dismounting.

Ymddiserchiad, s. m. (diserchiad) A divesting one's self of affection.

Ymddiserchu, v. a. (diserchu) To divest one's self of affection or fondness.

Ymddisomi, v. a. (disomi) To undeceive one's self; to become undeceived.

Ymddisomiad, s. m. (disomiad) A divesting one's self of disappointment.

Ymddiwalliad, s. m. (diwalliad) A self-satiating.

Ymddiwalltu, v. a. (diwalltu) To divest one's self of the head hair.

Ymddiwallu, v. a. (diwallu) To self-satisfy.

Ymddiweddu, v. a. (diweddu) To finish one's self.

Ymddiweiddiad, s. m. (diweiddiad) A self eradicating; a being unrooted.

Ymddiweiddiaw, v. a. (diweiddiaw) To eradicate one's self; to be plucked up by the root.

Ymddiwresiad, s. m. (diwresiad) A divesting one's self of heat.

Ymddiwresa, v. a. (diwresa) To divest one's self of heat or warmth.

Ymddiwydiad, s. m. (diwydiad) A rendering one's self diligent or persevering.

Ymddiwydiaw, v. a. (diwydiaw) To render one's self diligent or persevering.

Ymddiwygiad, s. m. (diwygiad) Self-reformation.

Ymddiwygiaw, v. a. (diwygiaw) To self-reform.

Ymddiwynew, v. a. (diwynew) To self-pollute.

Ymddiwynewat gan wad, mai na ellid cyhwrdi a's dillid hwynt.

They have polluted themselves with blood, so that their garments could not be touched. Coloured 4. 14.

Ymddiwyyniad, s. m. (diwyyniad) A self polluting.

Ymddiysgogi, v. a. (diysgogi) To render one's self unshaken or inflexible.

Ymddiysgogiad, s. m. (diysgogiad) A rendering one's self unshaken or firm.

Ymddodawl, a. (dodawl) Self-depositing.

Ymddodi, v. a. (dodi) To deposit one's self.

Ymddodiad, s. m. (dodiad) A self-depositing.

Ymddofi, v. a. (dofi) To tame one's self.

Ymddofiad, s. m. (dofiad) A self-taming.

Ymddogni, v. a. (dogni) To self-allow.

Ymddogniad, s. m. (dogniad) Self-allowancing.

Ymddoleniad, s. m. (doleniad) A self-coiling.

Ymddolennu, v. a. (dolennu) To coil one's self.

Ymddoli, v. a. (doli) To self-curve; to become curved.

Ymddoliad, s. m. (doliad) A self-curving.

Ymddoniad, s. m. (doniad) A self-endowing.

Ymddoniaw, v. a. (doniaw) To self-endow.

Ymddori, v. a. (dori) To concern one's self.

Ymddoriad, s. m. (doriad) A self-concerning.

Ymddrelliad, s. m. (drelliad) A rendering one's self charitable or boorish.

Ymddrelliaw, v. a. (drelliaw) To render one's self charitable, forward or surly; to abuse mutually.

Ymddringaw, v. a. (dringaw) To use one's self to climb; to be climbing.

Ymddrychiad, s. m. (drychiad) A self-appearing.

Ymddrychiawl, a. (drychiawl) Self-apparent.

Ymddrychioli, v. a. (ymddrychiawl) To make one's self apparent; to become apparent.

Ymddrychioliad, s. m. (ymddrychiawl) A making one's self apparent; a becoming apparent.

Ymddrychs, v. a. (drychu) To make one's self to appear.

Ymddrygiad, s. m. (drygiad) A becoming bad.

Ymddrygu, v. a. (drygu) To become bad.

Ymddrylliad, s. m. (drylliad) A pulling one's self to pieces.

Ymddryllaw, v. a. (dryllaw) To pull one's self to pieces; to pull to pieces mutually.

Ymdduad, s. m. (duad) A blackening one's self.

Ymdduaw, v. a. (duaw) To blacken one's self.

Ymdduchan, s. f. (duchan) A mutual lampoon.

Ymdduchanawl, a. (ymdduchan) Mutually jeering.

Ymdduchaniad, s. m. (ymdduchan) A mutually lampooning; a using one's self to scoff.

Ymdduchanu, v. (ymdduchan) To scoff mutually.

Hi wrydd—

Fa ymdduchanu a chost.

His employment was to lampoon mutually with a hundred.
See at B. at Gued.

Ymdduliad, s. m. (duliad) A self-beating; a mutually beating or thumping.

Ymdduliaw, v. a. (duliaw) To beat one's self; to beat mutually.

Ymddulliad, s. m. (dulliad) A self-modification; a mutually modifying.

Ymddulliaw, v. a. (dulliaw) To shape one's self; to modify mutually, to shape mutually.

Ymddwllw, s. m. (dwiw) A fancying one's self. v. a. To fancy in one's self.

Ymddwyn, s. m. (dwyn) A self compartment; gestation. v. a. To bear, comport, or demean one's self; to bear, or go with young.

Hwyra' tdi tdi ymddwyn.

The latest recompence is the recompence of department.
Idem.

Ymddwyre, s. m. (dwyre) A self-elevation. s. c. To elevate one's self.

Ymddwyrëad, s. m. (ymddwyre) A self-elevating.

Ymddyben, s. m. (dyben) Mutual conclusion; self-conclusion.

Ymddybenawl, a. (ymddyben) Mutually conclusive; self-concluding.

Ymddybeniad, s. m. (ymddyben) A mutually concluding; self-concluding.

Ymddybenu, v. a. (ymddyben) To end mutually; to conclude with one's self.

Ymddyberi, v. a. (dyberi) To be self-casing.

Ymddybleidiad, s. m. (dybleidiad) A connecting one's self with a party.

Ymddybleidiaw, v. a. (dybleidiaw) To connect one's self with a party; to be mutually espousing a party.

Ymddybleidiawl, a. (dybleidiawl) Being mutually espousing a party.

Ymddyblygiad, s. m. (dyblygiad) A self-bending; a mutually bending or folding.

Ymddyblygu, v. a. (dyblygu) To be doubling one's self; to be mutually bending.

Ymddyborthi, v. a. (dyborthi) To self-support.

Ymddyborthiad, s. m. (dyborthiad) Self-supportation.

Ymddychryniad, s. m. (dychryniad) A frightening one's self.

Ymddychrynnu, v. a. (dychrynnu) To self-frighten.

Ymddychwedliad, s. m. (dychwedliad) A being in mutual discourse.

Ymddychwedlu, v. a. (dychwedlu) To converse mutually.

Ymddychwelliad, s. m. (dychwelliad) A self-turning; a self-conversion; a mutually returning.

Ymddychwelyd, v. a. (dychwelyd) To self-turn; to self-convert; to turn back mutually.

Ymddyddan, s. m.—pl. t. ion (dyddan) A conversation. v. a. To converse or to discourse together.

Mae ymddyddanion drwg yn llygrra moesa da.
Evil communications corrupt good manners.

Adage.

Nid cerddorog ond ymddyddangar;
Nid ymddyddan ond am Ddaw.

None so informed as the conversable person; no conversation like that concerning God.

Adage.

Ymddyddanaidd, a. (ymddyddan) Communicative

Ymddyddanawl, a. (ymddyddan) Discoursing.

Ymddyddangar, a. (ymddyddan) Apt of discourse.

Ymddyddaniad, s. m. (ymddyddan) A conversing.

Ymddyddann, v. a. (ymddyddan) To converse.

Ymddyddanwr, s. m.—pl. ymddyddanwyr (ymddyddan—gwr) A converser, a discourses.

Ymddyethrad, s. m. (dyeithrad) A self-estranging; a mutually estranging.

Ymddyethraw, v. a. (dyeithraw) To self-estrangle, to estrange mutually.

Ymddyfaliad, s. m. (dyfaliad) A being guessing or figuring to one's self.

Ymddyfalu, v. a. (dyfalu) To be guessing or describing to one's self.

Ymddyfalu a gwrandaw ar glawrwrnath orwag, ac olergerdd i letia synwyr.

To be amusing one's self and listening to frivolous ministrations and vain song to weaken the understanding.

Lamegion.

Ymddyfalu meddwl folaid;

Don yn ffrith am gwrw Sanffred.

To imagine to one's self a drunken panegyric; eloquently to talk of the ale of Sanffred.

D. ab Owain.

Ymddyfeisiad, s. m. (dyfeisiad) A being imagining; a mutually devising.

Ymddyfeisiaw, v. a. (dyfeisiaw) To be imagining in one's self; to devise mutually.

Ymddyfetha, v. a. (dyfetha) To destroy mutually; to destroy one's self.

Ymddyfethiad, s. m. (dyfethiad) A mutually destroying; a self-destroying.

Ymddyfniad, s. m. (dyfniad) A becoming used.

Ymddyfnu, v. a. (dyfnu) To use one's self.

Ymddyfoliad, s. m. (dyfoliad) A being gorging one's self; a being mutually swelling.

Ymddyfollaw, v. a. (dyfollaw) To be gorging one's self; to be mutually gorging.

Ymddyfrysiad, s. m. (dyfrysiad) A being hurrying one's self; a being mutually hurrying.

Ymddyfrysiaw, v. a. (dyfrysiaw) To be hurrying one's self; to be mutually hurrying.

Ymddyfustlaw, v. a. (dy—bastlaw) To be mutually throwing out gall; to deal in mutual sarcasm.

Am ddau ystlu dwfr dofn afon
Ymddyfustlaw gynt gyralluon;
Ymddyfustliu ieu ar fan Aeron berth,
Pan borthes cryrau.

About the two sides of the stream of a deep river, comrades formerly were drinking gall to one another; thus a lion would be throwing out bitterness on the banks of fair Aeron, when he fed the eagles.

Cynddelu, i H. ab Owain.

Ymddyfustliad, s. m. (bustliad) A being mutually throwing out gall or sarcasm.

Ymddyfyniad, s. m. (dyfyniad) A self-approximating; a self-summoning; a mutually approximating.

Ymddyfynn, v. a. (dyfynn) To self-approximate; to self-summon; to summon mutually.

Ymddyfynwch fy amcasiad diatwed o ogoneddu enw Daw.

Enquire within yourselves as to my innocent intention of glorifying God.

S. Trefredyn.

Ymddygeliad, s. m. (dygeliad) A being mutually concealing; a being self-concealing.

VOL. II.

Ymddygelu, v. a. (dygelu) To be mutually concealing; to be self-concealing.

Rhys wyf i, heb yntau, mab Tewdwr, arglwydd y cyfoeth hwn o fewn ychydig, ac yr aaron yn wrthbuddig, ac yn ddifamedig haled ydd wyf yn ymddygelu yn y nothfa hon.

I am Rhys, repelled he, the son of Tewdwr, the sovereign of this country a little while ago, but now expelled, and driven, being almost perishing, I am concealing myself in this sanctuary.

Duch. Gr. ab Cynan.

Ymddygawl, a. (dygawl) Self-deporting; mutually deporting.

Ymddygiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (dygiad) Self-deportment; behaviour, deportment, demeanour.

Ymddygiadus, a. (ymddygiad) Relating to self-deportment or demeanour.

Ymddygnawl, a. (dygnawl) Self-tormenting.

Ymddygniad, s. m. (dygniad) A self-tormenting; a mutually tormenting.

Ymddygnu, v. a. (dygnu) To torment or to harass one's self; to toil mutually.

Ymddygoddi, v. a. (dygoddi) To be mutually vexing; to be vexing one's self.

Ymddygoddiad, s. m. (dygoddiad) A mutually vexing; a vexing one's self.

Ymddygrymiad, s. m. (dygrymiad) A being bowing one's self; a being mutually bowing.

Ymddygrymu, v. a. (dygrymu) To be self-bowing; to be mutually bowing.

Ymddygrynôad, s. m. (dygrynôad) A being collecting one's self; a being mutually collecting.

Ymddygrynô, v. a. (dygrynô) To be self-collecting; to be mutually collecting.

Ymddygrysiad, s. m. (dygrysiad) A being hastening one's self; a being mutually hastening.

Ymddygrysiaw, v. a. (dygrysiaw) To be self-hastening; to be mutually hastening.

Ymddyguddiad, s. m. (dyguddiad) A being self-hiding; a being mutually hiding.

Ymddyguddiaw, v. a. (dyguddiaw) To be self-hiding; to be mutually hiding.

Ymddyguraw, v. a. (dyguraw) To be beating mutually; to be beating one's self.

Ymddyguriad, s. m. (dyguriad) A being mutually beating; a being beating one's self.

Ymddygwdd, s. m. (dygwdd) A self-striving. v. a. To employ one's self in toil; to be toiling.

Ymddygwydd, s. m. (dygwydd) A mutual befalling

Ymddygwyddaw, v. a. (ymddygwydd) To befall mutually; to be happening.

Ymddygwyddawl, a. (dygwydd) Mutually falling.

Ymddygwyddiad, s. m. (ymddygwydd) A mutually befalling.

Ymddygwmpaw, v. a. (dygwmpaw) To be mutually falling; to be self-falling.

Ymddygychwyn, v. a. (dygychwyn) To be mutually starting off; to be starting one's self.

Ymddygychwyniad, s. m. (ymddygychwyn) A being mutually starting; a being starting one's self Ymddygyd, s. m. (dygyd) Deportment. v. a. To demean one's self; to conduct one's self; to bear or go with young.

Mab Owain, gyfwrnain gadding.
Mad gared, mad f'm a'i bymddig.

The son of Owain, of springing temper, fortunately was he born, fortunate the mother who bore him.

L. F. Meek.

Ymddygyfeiriad, s. m. (dygyfeiriad) A mutually coming in opposition.

Ymddygyfeiriaw, v. a. (dygyfeiriaw) To be coming mutually in opposition.

Ymddygyfiad, s. m. (dygyfiad) A being mutually combining or becoming equal.

Ymddygyfiaw, v. a. (dygyfiaw) To be combining mutually.

4 L

Ymddygyfranc, s. m. (dygyfranc) A mutual intercourse. v. a. To have mutual intercourse.
Ymddygyffrôad, s. m. (dygyffrôad) A being self-agitating; a being mutually agitating.
Ymddygyffrôl, v. a. (dygyffrôl) To be self-agitating; to be mutually agitating.
Ymddygylichad, s. m. (dygylichad) A being mutually surrounding; a being surrounding one's self.
Ymddygylichu, v. a. (dygylichu) To be mutually surrounding; to be self-surrounding.
Ymddygymhell, v. a. (dygymhell) To be mutually instigating; to be self-instigating.
Ymddygymhelliad, s. m. (ymddygymhell) A being mutually instigating; a being putting one's self forward.
Ymddygyymmod, s. m. (dygyymmod) Self-reconciliation; a mutual reconciliation.
Ymddygyymmodl, v. a. (ymddygyymmod) To be reconciling one's self; to be mutually reconciling.
Ymddygyymmodiad, s. m. (ymddygyymmod) A being reconciling one's self; a being mutually reconciling.
Ymddygyynygiad, s. m. (dygyynygiad) A being mutually mixing; a being mixing one's self.
Ymddygyynygn, v. a. (dygyynygn) To be mutually mixing; to be mixing one's self.
Ymddygyynnal, v. a. (dygyynnal) To be self-supporting; to be mutually upholding.
Ymddygyynnaliad, s. m. (ymddygyynnal) A being self-supporting; a being mutually upholding.
Ymddygyynnull, s. m. (dygyynnull) A self-collecting; a mutual collection. v. a. To collect one's self; to collect together.
Ymddygyynnulliad, s. m. (ymddygyynnull) A being collecting one's self; a being mutually collecting.
Ymddygyynnwys, v. a. (dygyynnwys) To be mutually receiving or containing; to be containing one's self.
Ymddygyynnwysiad, s. m. (ymddygyynnwys) A being mutually receiving or containing; a being containing one's self.
Ymddygyrchawl, v. a. (dygyrch) Mutually resorting.
Ymddygyrchliad, s. m. (dygyrch) A being mutually resorting; to be resorting.
Ymddygyrchu, v. a. (dygyrchu) To be mutually resorting; to be resorting.
Ymddygysgodi, v. a. (dygysgodi) To be self-sheltering; to be mutually sheltering.
Ymddygysgodiad, s. m. (dygysgodiad) A being sheltering one's self; a being mutually sheltering.
Ymddygystuddiad, s. m. (dygystuddiad) A being self-afflicting; a being mutually afflicting.
Ymddygystuddiaw, v. a. (dygystuddiaw) To be self-afflicting; to be mutually aggrieving.
Ymddygythruddaw, v. a. (dygythruddaw) To be perturbing one's self; to be mutually perturbing.
Ymddygythruddiad, s. m. (dygythruddiad) A being perturbing one's self; a being mutually perturbing.
Ymddyhaeriad, s. m. (dyhaeriad) A being mutually asserting; a being asserting one's self.
Ymddyhaeru, v. a. (dyhaeru) To be mutually asserting; to be asserting one's self.
Ymddyhebu, v. a. (dyhebu) To be self-divesting.

Tri nod cynir y dydd ar ddydd I ddiawl, ac nid gall ymddyhebu ag hwynt: ei air, ei olwg, ei ymmod.

There are three certain marks on a person who belongs to the devil, and he cannot divest himself of them: his word, his look, and his deportment.

Caring ab Gwynllir.

Ymddyheud, s. m. (dyheud) A making one's self to pant; a mutually panting.
Ymddyhenaw, v. a. (dyhenaw) To make one's self to pant; to pant mutually.
Ymddyhewydiad, s. m. (dyhewydiad) A fixing a mutual affection or devotion; a devoting one's self; a self-resolving.
Ymddyhewydiaw, v. a. (dyhewydiaw) To fix a mutual affection; to devote one's self.
Ymddyhraw, v. a. (dyhraw) To use one's self to linger; to linger or to loiter mutually.
Ymddyhriad, s. m. (dyhriad) A using one's self to linger; a mutually lingering.
Ymddyholi, v. a. (dyholi) To be mutually questioning; to be questioning one's self.
Ymddyhollad, s. m. (dyhollad) A being mutually questioning; a being questioning one's self.
Ymddyhuddaw, v. a. (dyhuddaw) To be covering one's self; to be covering mutually; to appear one's self; to be mutually quieted.
Ymddyhuddiad, s. m. (dyhuddiad) A being covering one's self; a being mutually covering; a quieting one's self; a mutually appearing.
Ymddyhybyddiad, s. m. (dyhybyddiad) A being mutually exhausting; a being self-exhausting.
Ymddyhybyddu, v. a. (dyhybyddu) To be mutually exhausting; to be self-exhausting.
Ymddylamiad, s. m. (dylamiad) A being self-rebounding; a being mutually rebounding.
Ymddylamu, v. a. (dylamu) To be self-rebounding; to be mutually rebounding.
Ymddylathriad, s. m. (dylathriad) A being rendering one's self glittering.
Ymddylathru, v. a. (dylathru) To be making one's self to glitter.
Ymddylenwad, s. m. (dylenwad) A being filling one's self; a being mutually filling.
Ymddylenwi, v. a. (dylenwi) To be filling one's self; to be mutually filling or replenishing.
Ymddylifad, s. m. (dylifad) A being mutually flowing; a self-flowing.
Ymddylifaw, v. a. (dylifaw) To be mutually flowing; to be self-flowing.
Ymddylloch, v. a. (dylloch) To protect mutually; to protect one's self.
Ymddyllochiad, s. m. (dyllochiad) A protecting mutually; a protecting one's self.
Ymddyludaw, v. a. (dyludaw) To employ one's self in pursuing; to adhere mutually.
Ymddyludiad, s. m. (dyludiad) A self-adhering; a mutually adhering.
Ymddyluniad, s. m. (dyluniad) A self-delineating; a mutually delineating.
Ymddyluniaw, v. a. (dyluniaw) To delineate one's self; to delineate mutually.
Ymddylusgaw, v. a. (dylusgaw) To be dragging one's self; to be mutually dragging.
Ymddylusgiad, s. m. (dylusgiad) A being dragging one's self; a being mutually dragging.
Ymddylifad, s. m. (dylifad) A being mutually obliged; a rendering one's self obligatory.
Ymddylifaw, v. a. (dylifaw) To be mutually obligatory; to render one's self obligatory.
Ymddylyniad, s. m. (dylyniad) A being mutually adhering; a causing one's self to adhere.
Ymddylynu, v. a. (dylynu) To be mutually adhering; to cause one's self to adhere.
Ymddylliad, s. m. (dylliad) A mutually overshadowing; a self-overshadowing; a looking frowningly.
Ymddyllu, v. a. (dyllu) To overshadow mutually; to overshadow one's self; to look frowningly; to stare with a stern look.

Dyrwyrys Rhoddyrys yn bodwariu, Gollidus a Rhedid i ymddylys.

Rhoddyrys hastened with four hoofs, Gollidus and Rhedid to overtake him.

Ymddylyngiad, s. m. (dyllyngiad) A being self-loosening; a being mutually liberating.
Ymddylynglaw, v. a. (dyllynglaw) To be self-loosening; to be mutually loosening.
Ymddynesad, s. m. (dynesad) A being self-approximating; a being mutually approximating.
Ymddynesau, v. a. (dynesau) To be self-approximating; to be mutually approximating.
Ymddynesiad, s. m. (dynesiad) A self-approaching; a being mutually approaching.
Ymddynesu, v. a. (dynesu) To be drawing one's self near; to be mutually approaching.
Ymddynoethi, v. a. (dynoethi) To be self-denuding; to be mutually denuding.

Ymddynoethid i eall heb fy llaw i.

Thus hast discovered thyself to another besides me.

Easy lili. s.

Ymddynoethiad, s. m. (dynoethiad) A being denuding or exposing one's self; a being mutually making naked.
Ymddynwared, s. m. (dynwared) A being as a mimic. v. a. To be mimicking; to be mimicking one another.
Ymddynwarediad, s. m. (ymddynwared) A being employing one's self in mimickry; a being mutually mimicking.
Ymddyddef, v. a. (dydddef) To be self-suffering; to be mutually suffering.
Ymddyddefiad, s. m. (ymddyddef) A being self-suffering; a being mutually suffering.
Ymddyddden, v. a. (dyddden) To be bearing one's self; to be mutually bearing.

*Bydd gydymach gloriolth gion;
Ymddyddden's well ymddyddden.*

Be a true companion of lucid speech; accommodate thyself better to discourse.

D. ab Gadhyn, Pr hared.

Ymddyfog, s. m. (dyfog) A self-disarraying.
Ymddyfogi, v. a. (dyfog) To undress one's self.
Ymddyfogiad, s. m. (ymddyfogi) An undressing or disarraying of one's self.
Ymddyrchafael, s. m. (dyrchafael) A self-exalting. v. a. To exalt one's self; to exalt mutually.

*Y mab hwnn, wedi ymddyrchafael, ymroddi a orug yn ngodiocb.
That youth after exalting himself, gave himself up to adultery.*

Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymddyrchafiad, s. m. (dyrchafiad) A self-exalting; a mutually exalting.
Ymddyrchafiaeth, s. m. (dyrchafiaeth) Self-exaltation; self-advancement; mutual exaltation.
Ymddyrchafu, v. a. (dyrchafu) To exalt one's self; to exalt or to advance mutually.
Ymddyrchafwr, s. m. -pl. ymddyrchafwyr (dyrchafwr) One who exalts himself.
Ymddyrchawi, a. (dyrchawi) Raising one's self.
Ymddyrchiad, s. m. (dyrchiad) A self raising.
Ymddyrchn, v. a. (dyrchu) To uplift one's self.
Ymddyrnodiad, s. m. (dyrnodiad) A mutually boxing; a beating one's self.
Ymddyrnodlaw, v. a. (dyrnodiaw) To box one another; to thump one's self.
Ymddyrnod, s. m. (dyrnod) A being self-yielding
Ymddyrroi, v. a. (dyrroi) To be yielding one's self.

Yn wrol i'w ffrwyth Ymddyrroi's Gymare, nid gwaeth.

Manfully through the time of thy youth be passing thyself as a Welshman, and not worse wilt come.

J. T. T. Bryddid hwnoc.

Ymddyrwyddaw, v. a. (dyrwyddaw) To be facilitating one's self.

Ymddyrwyddiad, s. m. (dyrwyddiad) A being facilitating one's self.

Ymddyrwyn, s. m. (dyrwyn) A self-winding. v. a. To wind one's self; to wind up mutually.

Ymddyrwyniad, s. m. (ymddyrwyn) A winding of one's self; a mutually winding up.

Ymddyrysiad, s. m. (dyrysiad) A self-entangling; a mutually entangling.

Ymddyrysu, v. a. (dyrysu) To entangle one's self to entangle mutually.

Dichell a ymddyrysu yn ei ohrogith ei hunan.

Crab will entangle herself in her own snare.

Adage.

Ymddysbwyll, s. m. (dysbwyll) Self-consideration. v. a. To examine one's self.

Gores gwaith synwyr ymddysbwyll difusol.

The best act of the sense is undigested examination of one's self.

Ceing Udoeth.

Ymddysbwylliad, s. m. -pl. t. au (ymddysbwyll) A considering one's self.

Ymddysbyddiad, s. m. (dysbyddiad) A self-depletion.

Ymddysbyddu, v. a. (dysbyddu) To empty one's self.

Ymddysgleiriad, s. m. (dysgleiriad) A making one's self to shine; a mutually glittering.

Ymddysgleiriaw, v. a. (dysgleiriaw) To make one's self to glitter; to glitter mutually.

Ymddysgiad, s. m. (dysgiad) A self-instructing; a mutually instructing.

Ymddysgori, v. a. (dysgori) To clamour mutually; to be clamouring.

Ymddysgoriad, s. m. (dysgoriad) A clamouring mutually; a keeping a clamour.

Ymddysgu, v. a. (dyagu) To instruct one's self; to instruct mutually.

Ymddysgwyi, s. m. (dysgwyi) A keeping one's self in expectation. v. a. To keep one's self expecting; to expect mutually.

Ymddysgwyilgar, a. (ymddysgwyil) Apt to keep one's self expecting; mutually looking.

Ymddysgwyliad, s. m. (ymddysgwyli) A keeping one's self expecting; a mutually expecting.

Ymddysgyriad, s. m. (dysgyriad) A keeping one's self in screaming.

Ymddysgyriaw, v. a. (dysgyriaw) To scream mutually; to keep one's self in screaming.

Ymddystawiad, s. m. (dystawiad) A mutually silencing; a making one's self silent.

Ymddystewi, v. a. (dystewi) To become mutually silent; to make one's self silent.

Ymddyunaw, v. a. (dyunaw) To unite one's self; to unite together, to confederate.

Ymddynuiad, s. m. (dyunuiad) A connecting one's self; a mutually uniting.

Ymddywadiad, s. m. (dywadiad) A being mutually denying; a being denying one's self.

Ymddywadu, v. a. (dywadu) To be mutually denying; to be denying one's self.

Ymddywalaad, s. m. (dywalaad) A mutually enraging; a making one's self furious.

Ymddywala, v. a. (dywala) To enrage mutually; to render one's self furious.

Ymddywaigiad, s. m. (dywasgiad) Self-compression; a being mutually squeezing.

Ymddywaigu, v. a. (dywasgu) To self-compress; to be mutually squeezing.

Ymddywediad, s. m. (dywediad) A mutually speaking; a keeping one's self speaking.

Ymddywedyd, v. a. (dywedyd) To speak mutually; to employ one's self in speaking.

Gwedi darffo eistedd yn gyfreithlawl, yna y mae lawm i'r yngmad dywedyd wrth y ddwy blaidd. Ymddywedwch o gyfraith welibon.

When the court shall be lawfully sitting, then it is right for the judge to say to the two parties, now do you mutually speak of law.
Welsh Laws.

Ymddyweddiad, s. m. (dyweddiad) A mutually espousing; a coupling one's self.

Ymddyweddiaw, v. a. (dyweddiaw) To espouse mutually; to become wedded or espoused; to yoke or join one's self.

Gwrthoyrn Gwrthecas a ymddyweddiaw a Rhonwen ferch Horsa. Vortigern with Repulsive Lips yoked himself with Rhonwen the daughter of Horsa.
Triedd.

Ymddywisgaw, v. a. (dywisgaw) To be dressing one's self; to be mutually arraying.

Ymddywisgiad, s. m. (dywisgiad) A being dressing one's self; a being mutually arraying.

Ymddywyn, s. m. (dywyn) A mutual blessing; a self-blessing. v. a. (dywyn) To bless mutually; to render one's self blessed.

O breisc mab dyn heb ymddywyn a Dew.—

If a son of man shall depart without sanctifying himself of God.—

Ymddywynaw, v. a. (ymddywyn) To devote, to consecrate; to pay a vow.

Ymddywyniad, s. m. (ymddywyn) A mutually blessing; a consecrating or blessing one's self.

Ymddywynygu, v. a. (dywynygu) To appear resplendent.

Ni thâl dim lle nad ymddywynyco ynddo ryw grynoded.

What there doth not appear conspicuous in it some connection is good for nothing.
Cotwg Iddow.

Ymddywystlaw, v. a. (dywystlaw) To be mutually pledging; to be giving one's self a hostage.

Ymddywystliad, s. m. (dywystliad) A being mutually pledging; a being pledging or giving one's self as a hostage.

Ymëangiad, s. m. (ëangiad) A self-amplifying; a mutually giving space.

Ymëangu, v. a. (ëangu) To self-amplify; to enlarge mutually.

Ymebrwyddaw, v. a. (ebrwyddaw) To accelerate one's self.

Ymebrwyddiad, s. m. (ebrwyddiad) A self-accelerating; a mutually hastening.

Ymechrydiad, s. m. (echrydiad) A causing one's self to tremble; a mutually quaking.

Ymechrydu, v. a. (echrydu) To cause one's self to tremble; to tremble mutually.

Ymechrysiad, s. m. (echrysiad) A causing a mutual shock or terror; a rendering one's self shocking.

Ymechrysu, v. a. (echrysu) To cause mutual horror; to be self shocked.

Ymechwyna, v. a. (echwyna) To borrow or to lend mutually; to lend one's self.

Ymechwyniad, s. m. (echwyniad) A mutually lending; a lending one's self.

Ymedfryd, s. m. (edfryd) Self-restoration. v. a. (edfryd) To restore one's self, to renew one's self.

Ymedliw, s. m. (edliw) Mutual reproach; self-reproach.

Ymedliwiad, s. m. (edliw) A mutually reproaching; a self-upbraiding.

Ymedliwiaw, v. a. (ymedliw) To reproach mutually; to upbraid one's self.

Ymedliwied, v. a. (ymedliw) To upbraid mutually; to upbraid one's self.

Ymedrych, s. m. (edrych) To look mutually; to look at one's self.

Ymedrychgar, a. (ymedrych) Being apt to look about warily.

Ymedrychiad, s. m. (ymedrych) A mutually looking; a looking at one's self.

Ymedryd, s. m. (edryd) Self-restoration; mutual restoration. v. a. (edryd) To restore one's self; to restore mutually.

Ymedrydiad, s. m. (ymedryd) Self-restoration; mutual restoration.

Ymeglurhad, s. m. (eglurhad) Self-manifestation; mutual illustration or manifestation.

Ymeglurau, v. a. (eglurau) To manifest one's self; to be mutually manifest.

Ymegluraw, v. a. (egluraw) To explain one's self; to explain mutually.

Ymegluriad, s. m. (egluriad) A self-explaining; a mutually explaining.

Ymegniad, s. m. (egniad) A self-exertion; mutual exertion.

Ymegniaw, v. a. (egniaw) To exert one's self; to exert mutually.

Ymegniawl, a. (egniawl) Self-exerting; of mutual exertion.

Ymegniwr, s. m.—pl. ymegniwyr (egniwr) One who exerts himself.

Ymegori, v. a. (egori) To open one's self; to open mutually.

Ymegoriad, s. m. (egoriad) A disclosing one's self; a mutually opening.

Ymegwyddori, v. a. (egwyddori) To furnish one's self with principles or elements; mutually to instil principles.

Ymegwyddoriad, s. m. (egwyddoriad) A furnishing one's self with principles; a mutually instilling principles.

Ymehedeg, v. a. (ehedeg) To make one's self to fly; to fly mutually.

Ymehediad, s. m. (ehediad) A making one's self to fly; a mutually flying.

Ymeiddilaw, v. a. (eiddilaw) To diminish one's self; to enervate one's self.

Ymeiddiliad, s. m. (eiddiliad) Self-enervation.

Ymeiddunaw, v. a. (eiddunaw) To employ one's self in wishing; to wish mutually.

Ymeidduniad, s. m. (eidduniad) An employing one's self in wishing; a mutually wishing.

Ymeilliad, s. m. (eilliad) A shaving one's self.

Ymeilliaw, v. a. (eilliaw) To shave one's self.

Ymfoela ac ymedilla am dy blant meotth.

Make thee bald and poll thee for thy delicate children.
Michael L. H.

Ymeirgar, a. (geirgar) Querulous; loquacious.

Ymeirgarwch, s. m. (ymeirgar) A cavilling disposition.

Ymeiriach, s. m. (eiriach) A mutual deprecation. v. a. (eiriach) To deprecate mutually; to be deprecating.

Ymeiriad, s. m. (geiriad) Altercation; mutual war of words.

Ymeiriaw, v. a. (geiriaw) To contend in words.

Ymeiriawl, a. (eiriawl) An employing of one's self in interceding; mutual persuasion. v. a. (eiriawl) To employ one's self in interceding; mutually to intercede.

Uffern—

Yn mae mawrwa heb ymeiriawl.

Hell: is it there is extreme of woe without intercession.
Bloddydd Fardd.

Ymeiriolad, s. m. (ymeiariawl) A mutual intercession; a mutual persuasion.

Ymeirioli, v. a. (ymeiariawl) To intercede mutually; to be interceding or persuading.

Ymeiriwr, s. m.—pl. ymeiriwyr (ymeiriaw—gwr)
A talkative man.

Nid mwyach gwr mawr ymeiriwr.

A talker is seldom a great man.

Adage.

Ymeisiaw, v. a. (eisiaw) A making one's self destitute; mutually to make destitute.

Ymeisiwiad, s. m. (eisiwiad) A rendering one's self destitute; a mutually making destitute.

Ymeistedd, s. m. (eistedd) A mutual sitting; a seating one's self. v. a. To sit mutually; to seat one's self.

Ymeisteddiad, s. m. (ymeistedd) A mutually sitting; a seating one's self.

Ymeliad, s. m. (eliad) An anointing one's self.

Ymeliaw, v. a. (eliaw) To anoint one's self.

Ymelwa, v. a. (elwa) To seek self-profit; mutually to seek gain.

Ymelwad, s. m. (elwad) The employing one's self in seeking gain.

Ymelwain, v. a. (gelwain) To keep calling.

Ymen, s. m. (en) That is contained, pent, or dammed up. v. a. Being collected together.

*Gwelw man y deirid na wyn doli gwin,
Mwy no dwir mola ymen Deil.*

He would cause where he might come that he should not lack wine, more than the water of the mill of where there is a dam of Tevl.

Madawg Dwygraig.

Ymeniwd, s. m. (eniwd) A self-hurting; a mutual hurting.

Ymeniaw, v. a. (eniaw) To hurt one's self; to cause mutual harm.

Ymenlibiad, s. m. (enlibiad) A mutually detracting; a self-scamdalizng.

Ymenlibiaw, v. a. (enlibiaw) To detract mutually; to scandalize one's self.

Ymennyllad, s. m. (anneliad) A taking aim.

Ymennylu, v. a. (annelu) To employ one's self in aiming.

Y seren—

Minnae odd yn ymennyl.

The star, I too was employing myself in viewing. Iolo Goch.

Ymennyn, s. m. (ennyn) A self-kindling. v. a. To self-kindle; to kindle mutually.

Ymennyniad, s. m. (ennyniad) A self-kindling; a mutually kindling.

Ymennyns, v. a. (ennyns) To self-kindle; to kindle mutually.

Ymenwad, s. m. (enwad) Self-nomination; a mutual naming.

Ymenwaediad, s. m. (enwaediad) A self-circumcising.

Ymenwaedu, v. a. (enwaedu) To self-circumcise.

Ymenwi, v. a. (enwi) To self-nominate, to nominate mutually.

Ymenwogi, v. a. (enwogi) To signalize one's self

Ymenwogiad, s. m. (enwogiad) A self-signalizing

Ymenydd, s. m.—pl. t. au (ym—enydd) The brain.

Ymenyddawl, a. (ymenydd) Belonging to the brain

Ymenydd-dro, s. m. (ymenydd—tro) A vertigo.

Ymenyddiad, s. m. (ymenydd) A braining.

Ymenyddu, v. a. (ymenydd) To form brains.

Ymenyn, s. m.—pl. t. au (ymen) Butter.

Tri eullyn lechyd: mel, ymenyn, a llaeth.

The three sauces of health: honey, butter, and milk. Adage.

Ymenynaid, a. (ymenyn) Like butter.

Ymenynawl, a. (ymenyn) Of buttery nature.

Ymenyneiddiad, s. m. (ymenynaid) A rendering like butter; a becoming like butter.

Ymenyneiddiaw, v. a. (ymenynaid) To render like butter; to become like butter.

Ymenyniad, s. m. (ymenyn) A battering.

Ymenynllyd, a. (ymenyn) Full of butter.

Ymenynu, v. a. (ymenyn) To form butter.

Ymeofni, v. a. (eöfni) To self-embolden; mutually to embolden.

Ymeofniad, s. m. (ymëofni) A making one's self bold: a mutually emboldening.

Ymeöni, v. a. (ëöni) To embolden one's self; to embolden mutually.

Ymeöniad, s. m. (ëöniad) A self-emboldening; a mutually emboldening.

Ymeppiliad, s. m. (eppiliad) A self-producing.

Ymeppiliaw, v. a. (eppiliaw) To self-produce.

Ymerbyn, s. m. (erbyn) The being in opposition or ready to receive. v. a. To be in opposition; to receive mutually.

Ydd odd ymerbyn heb ymarbed.

There was a mutual encounter without self sparing.

Cynddelo.

Ffios Octa—hyd i Gaeir Efrawc, at Oua of gefndern; a then arall i Gaeir Alciwyd, ac yno ymerbyna ag Emrys.

Octa fled as far as the city of York, to Oua his cousin; and another division to the city of Alciwyd, and there putting himself in opposition to Emrys.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymerbyniad, s. m. (ymerbyn) One who employs himself in receiving; one who is in opposition; one mutually in opposition.

Cad ymerbyniad could dichwant.

The mutual opponents of battle regardless of life.

O. Cyfelliawg.

Ymerbyniaw, v. a. (ymerbyn) To put one's self to receive or in apposition; to receive mutually Ymerbyniawl, a. (ymerbyn) Being in receiving.

Ymerbyniad, v. a. (ymerbyn) To put one's self to receive or in apposition; to receive mutually Ymerbyniwr, s. m.—pl. ymerbyniwyr (ymerbyn—gwr) One who employs himself in receiving;

one who places himself in apposition; a mutual receiver.

Ymerfyniad, s. m. (erfyniad) A being requesting or intreating; a mutually intreating.

Ymerfyniaw, v. a. (erfyniaw) To be requesting; to request mutually.

Ymergydiad, s. m. (ergydiad) A self-projecting; a mutually projecting or casting.

Ymergydiaw, v. a. (ergydiaw) To project one's self; to project mutually.

Ymerlid, s. m. (erlid) The employing one's self in pursuing; mutual persecution.

Ymerlidiad, s. m. (ymerlid) An employing one's self in pursuing or persecuting; a mutually persecuting.

Ymerlyn, v. a. (erlyn) To employ one's self in pursuing; to pursue mutually.

Ymerlyniad, s. m. (ymerlyn) An employing one's self in pursuing; a mutually pursuing.

Ymerlynwr, s. m.—pl. ymerlynwyr (ymerlyn—gwr) One who employs himself in pursuing; a mutual pursuer.

Ymerlynnydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymerlyn) One who employs himself in pursuing; one who pursues mutually.

Ymerthu, v. a. (erthu) To strive together.

Ymerwinad, s. m. (gerwinad) A self-exasperation; a mutually ruffling.

Ymerwinaw, v. a. (gerwinaw) To ruffle one's self; to exasperate mutually.

Ymerwinawl, a. (gerwinawl) Self-ruffling, mutually exasperating.

Ymesgar, s. m. (esgar) A self-separation; mutual separation. v. a. To separate one's self; to separate mutually.

Ymesgariad, s. m. (ymesgar) A separating one's self; a mutually separating.
Ymesgaru, v. a. (ymesgar) To separate one's self; to separate mutually.
Ymesgeulusaw, v. a. (esgeulusaw) To make one's self neglectful; to neglect mutually.
Ymesgeulusiad, s. m. (esgeulusiad) A causing one's self to neglect; a self-neglecting; a mutually neglecting.
Ymesgor, s. m. (esgor) The state of being delivered or brought to bed.
Ymesgori, v. a. (ymesgor) To be delivered.
Ymesgoriad, s. m. (ymesgor) A self-delivering.
Ymesgusodi, v. a. (esgusodi) To make excuse for one's self; to make a mutual excuse.
Ymesgyn, v. a. (esgyn) To cause one's self to ascend; to ascend mutually.
Ymesgyniad, s. m. (ymesgyn) A self-ascending; a mutually ascending.
Ymesmwythaw, v. a. (esmwythaw) To ease one's self; to relieve one's self.
Ymesmwythawl, a. (esmwythawl) Self-easing; tending to mutual ease.
Ymesmwythiad, s. m. (esmwythiad) A self-easing; a making mutually easy.
Ymestyn, s. m. (estyn) A self-stretching. v. a. To stretch one's self.
Ymestynawl, a. (ymestyn) Self-extending.
Ymestyniad, s. m. (ymestyn) A self-extending.
Ymethol, s. m. (ethol) Self-election; mutual election.
Ymetholi, v. a. (ymethol) To self-elect; mutually to elect.
Ymetholiad, s. m. (ymethol) A self-electing; a mutually electing.
Ymenochad, s. m. (enochad) A making one's self guilty; a becoming mutually guilty.
Ymenochu, v. a. (enochu) To make one's self guilty; to become mutually guilty.
Ymenogi, v. a. (enogi) To make one's self guilty; to become mutually guilty.
Ymenogiad, s. m. (enogiad) A making one's self guilty; a rendering mutually guilty.
Ymewinad, s. m. (ewinad) A using one's nails.
Ymewinaw, v. a. (ewinaw) To fasten one's nails.
Ymfachiad, s. m. (bachiad) A hooking one's self.
Ymfachu, v. a. (bachu) To hook one's self.
Ymfalchiad, s. m. (balchiad) A priding one's self.
Ymfalchiaw, v. a. (balchiaw) To be self-proud.

Pa hyd—
 Yr ymfalchiant yn eu drwg,
 Gan fygwib amwg ffrustol

How long will they pride themselves to their wickedness, with manifest and scornful threat! Edm. Pryor, Pt. 24.

Ymfanson, s. m. (manson) A muttering. v. a. To mutter to one's self.
Ymfarweiddiad, s. m. (marweiddiad) A deadening or mortifying one's self.
Ymfarweiddiaw, v. a. (marweiddiaw) To deaden one's self.
Ymfawdd, s. m. (bawdd) A self-drowning.
Ymfawrhad, s. m. (mawrhad) A self-magnifying; a magnifying mutually.
Ymfawrau, v. a. (mawrau) To self-magnify; to magnify mutually.
Ymfawrygiad, s. m. (mawrygiad) A magnifying one's self; a mutually magnifying.
Ymfawrygu, v. a. (mawrygu) To magnify one's self; to magnify mutually.
Ymfoiddiad, s. m. (beiddiad) A venturing one's self; a mutually daring.

Ymfoiddiaw, v. a. (beiddiaw) To venture one's self; to adventure, or dare mutually.

Howd I besh a thi i'n ymsh, am foidd,
 Ymfoiddiaw am aieb.

It is easy for every body to look thee in thy face, for a gift, in perfume for an answer.

Ymfellitichlaw, v. a. (mellitichlaw) To self-cure; to cure mutually.

Ymfenwedigaw, v. a. (menwedigaw) To bless one's self; to bless mutually.

Ymfenwedigiad, s. m. (menwedigiad) A blessing one's self; a mutually blessing.

Ymfenwydaw, v. a. (menwydaw) To make one's self happy; to yield mutual happiness.

Ymfenwydiad, s. m. (menwydiad) A making one's self happy; a mutually giving happiness.

Ymfiniaw, v. a. (miniaw) To be mutually putting lips together; to kiss one another.

Ymfiniaw, v. a. (miniaw) Mutually to touch lips.

Ymfinau, v. a. (blinau) To tire one's self.

Yn awr nac ymfined uch
 O'n wyls am ddechthir.

At present let no one trouble himself about the heaving of the wisdom. Ed. Rhys & Aber Dr.

Ymfiniad, s. m. (bliniad) A tiring one's self.

Ymfoddad, s. m. (boddad) A pleasing one's self.

Ymfoddau, v. a. (boddau) To please one's self.

Ymfoddad, s. m. (boddad) A contenting one's self; a mutually contenting.

Ymfoddaw, v. a. (boddaw) To content one's self; to yield mutual contentment.

Ymfoddioni, v. a. (boddioni) To make one's self contented; to rest contented; to acquiesce; to content mutually.

Ymfoddioniad, s. m. (boddioniad) A self-contenting; a mutually contenting.

Ymfoli, v. a. (moeli) To make one's self bold.

Ymfolach, s. m. (molach) Self-flattery; mutual flattery or wheedling.

Ymfolachiad, s. m. (ymfolach) A flattering one's self; a mutually flattering.

Ymfolachu, v. a. (ymfolachu) To self-flatter.

Ymfolachus, a. (ymfolach) Self-flattering; apt to flatter mutually.

Ymfolachwr, s. m. (ymfolach) One who flatters himself; a mutual flatterer.

Ymfoldesiad, s. m. (boldesiad) A basking one's self in the sun.

Ymfoldesau, v. a. (boldesau) To be basking one's self in the sun.

Ymfolheulaw, v. a. (bolheulaw) To bask one's belly in the sun.

Ymfolhenliad, s. m. (bolheuliad) A basking one's belly in the sun.

Ymfoliaw, v. a. (boliaw) To gorge one's self.

Ymfolrythiad, s. m. (bolrythiad) A stretching out one's belly.

Ymfolrythu, v. a. (bolrythu) To stretch out one's belly.

Ymfoclustiad, s. m. (bonclustiad) A mutually boxing the ears.

Ymfoclustiau, v. a. (bonclustiau) To box the ears mutually.

Ymforiad, s. m. (moriad) An employing one's self in seafaring.

Ymforiaw, v. a. (moriaw) To employ one's self in seafaring.

Ymfrasad, s. m. (brasad) A self-fattening.

Ymfrasau, v. a. (brasau) To fatten one's self.

Mae y gofodwng yn ymfrasu ar ddogron y tyllodion.

The wealthy is fattening himself on the trash of the poor.

Adapt.

Ymfrawled, s. m. (brawled) A self-dismaying.
Ymfraws, v. a. (brawu) To dismay one's self.
Ymfrawychiad, s. m. (brawychiad) A filling one's self with dismay.
Ymfrawychu, v. a. (brawychu) To fill one's self with dismay.
Ymfreichidiad, s. m. (breicheidiad) A mutually embracing.
Ymfreichidiaw, v. a. (breicheidiaw) To embrace mutually.
Ymfrithaw, v. a. (brithaw) To self-variegate.
Ymfrithiad, s. m. (brithiad) A self-variegating.
Ymfrochi, v. a. (brochi) To be in a fume.
Ymfrochiad, s. m. (brochiad) A putting one's self in a fume or chafe; a self-ruffling.
Ymfroni, v. a. (broni) To swell one's bosom.

Mac Iawer yn hoewfaldichion, yn ymfrochi, ac yn ymoswrd allan oren y galloel.

There are many in sprightly pride, swelling out their bosoms, and shewing themselves out as well as they are able.

Morgan Llwyd.

Ymfrwydraw, v. a. (brwydraw) To engage one's self in battle; to fight mutually.
Ymfrwyriad, s. m. (brwyriad) An engaging one's self in battle; a mutually battling.
Ymfrysiad, s. m. (brysiad) A hastening one's self; a mutually hastening.
Ymfrysiaw, v. a. (brysiaw) To hasten one's self; to hasten mutually.
Ymfucheddiad, s. m. (buceddiad) A conducting one's self in life.
Ymfucheddu, v. a. (buceddu) To conduct one's self in life; to pass a life.

A fyao ddifia yn drwm ar ei chys ymfucheddu yn hui.

He that would revenge heavily on his foe let him conduct himself sprightly.

Adage.

Ymfustiaw, v. a. (bustlaw) To self-embitter; mutually to deal in sarcasms.
Ymfustliad, s. m. (bustliad) An employing one's self in rancorous words; a mutually shewing rancour.
Ymfwriad, s. m. (bwriad) A purposing with one's self; a mutually designing or purposing.
Ymfwriadu, v. a. (ymfwriad) To employ one's self in purposing; to purpose mutually.
Ymfwyniad, s. m. (mwyniad) A self-enjoying; a mutually enjoying.
Ymfwynu, v. a. (mwynu) To enjoy one's self; to enjoy mutually.
Ymfychaniad, s. m. (bychaniad) A lessening one's self; a mutually lessening or disparaging.
Ymfychanu, v. a. (bychannu) To lessen one's self; to be mutually lessening or depreciating.
Ymfydiaw, v. a. (bydiaw) To conduct one's self in the world.

Gores ddyddrwyd ymfydiaw yn ddarhodoni.

The bold audacity is to conduct one's self in the world circum-spectly.

Caring Ddoeth.

Ymfyddiad, s. m. (byddiad) A self-embattling; a mutually embattling.
Ymfyddiaw, v. a. (byddiaw) To embattle one's self; mutually to embattle.

Ffion Hlagon: a'r wyf i Gaeir Cynan—o'n hynlidi a orag Emrys; ac yno ymfyddiaw a lloed llawer o bobol.

Hlagonet and his men fled to the fortress of Cynan; so Emrys pursued them; and thereupon they mutually array, and left many on both sides.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymfyfyriad, s. m. (myfyriad) A contemplating with one's self.
Ymfyfyriaw, v. a. (myfyriaw) To contemplate with one's self.
Ymfygydiad, s. m. (mygydiad) A self-masking.

Ymfygydu, v. a. (mygydu) To mask one's self.
Ymfyntelad, s. m. (myntelad) A joining one's self to a throng; a mutually flocking.
Ymfyntelaw, v. a. (myntelaw) To unite one's self to a multitude; to flock mutually.
Ymfyrhad, s. m. (byrhad) A self-curtailing; a mutually shortening.
Ymfyrâu, v. a. (byrâu) To self-curtail.
Ymfyriad, s. m. (byriad) A self-shortening.
Ymfyriaw, v. a. (byriaw) To self-shorten.
Ymfywiad, s. m. (bywiad) A self-animating; a mutually enlivening.
Ymfywau, v. a. (bywau) To enliven one's self; to animate mutually.
Ymfywiohad, s. m. (bywiohad) A self-enlivening; a mutually animating.
Ymfywiochu, v. a. (bywiochu) To enliven one's self; to animate mutually.
Ymfywiogi, v. a. (bywiogi) To self-enliven; to become mutually animated.
Ymfywiogiad, s. m. (bywiogiad) A self-enlivening; a mutually enlivening.
Ymfieiddiad, s. m. (fieiddiad) A self-loathing; a mutually loathing.
Ymfieiddiaw, v. a. (fieiddiaw) To loathe one's self; to loathe mutually.
Ymfionodiad, s. m. (fionodiad) A mutually cudgelling or dealing blows.
Ymfrost, s. m. (frost) A self-vaunting.
Ymfroetiad, s. m. (ymfroetiad) A self-vaunting.
Ymfroetiaw, v. a. (ymfroetiaw) To self-vaunt.

Cas a ymfroetiaw o'i gyffwrdd ei hun.

Odious is he who prides himself of his own attitude.

Adage.

Ymffrwynew, v. a. (ffrwynew) To self-bridle.
Ymffrwyriad, s. m. (ffrwyriad) A self-bridling.
Ymffurriad, s. m. (ffurriad) A self-conforming; a mutually forming or shaping.
Ymffuriaw, v. a. (ffuriaw) To conform one's self; to conform mutually.
Ymfust, s. m. (ffust) A self-threshing; a mutual beating or boxing.
Ymfustiad, s. m. (ymfust) A self-threshing; a mutually threshing.
Ymfustlaw, v. a. (ymfust) To self-thresh; to beat one another.
Ymfyddiad, s. m. (ffyddiad) A plighting one's self; a plighting mutual faith.
Ymfyddiaw, v. a. (ffyddiaw) To plight one's faith; to plight a mutual troth.

Rhagl yw dawed tair llaw ynghyd wrth roddi dyu yn fach: llaw y masch, a llaw y neb a'i rhodde yn fach, a llaw y sef ei cymeru, ac ymfyddiaw o law i law.

It is necessary for three hands to come together on promising a person for bail: the hand of the bail, and the hand of him who gives him to bail, and the hand of the one who shall have accepted him, and to plight mutually from hand to hand.

Welsh Laws.

Ymgabliad, s. m. (cabliad) A self-calumniating; a mutually calumniating.
Ymgablu, v. a. (cablu) To calumniate one's self; to calumniate mutually.
Ymgadarniad, s. m. (cadarniad) A self-strengthening; a mutually strengthening.
Ymgadarnu, v. a. (cadarnu) To self-strengthen; to strengthen mutually.

Cas a ymgadarnu mewn drwg.

Odious is he who shall defend himself in evil.

Adage.

Rhyw i ddyn bechu, ond rhyw i ddalw i'w unig ymgadarnu yn ei bechawd.

It is natural for man to sin, but it is natural for the devil alone to defend himself in his sin.

Adage.

Ymgadw, v. a. (cadw) To keep one's self; to contain one's self; to refrain, to forbear; to keep or guard mutually.

Death Horsa a Hingostyr at y brenin, i gelaŵ caer neu gastell i ymgadw.

Horsa and Hingostyr came to the king, to obtain a fortress or castle to secure themselves. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgadwad, s. m. (ymgadw) A self-keeping; self-preservation; self-restraint.

Ymgadwynaw, v. a. (cadwynaw) To chain one's self; to chain mutually.

Ymgadwyniad, s. m. (cadwyniad) A self-chaining; a mutually chaining.

Ymgael, v. a. (cael) To obtain to one's self; to conceive; to obtain mutually; to meet together.

Pa fam a'i hyngeodd!

What mother has conceived him!

Mabnagi.

Pa gyfarwydd a fydd i mi o ymgael ag y gwr a ddywedi di!

What certainty will there be for me of finding the person thou art speaking of! H. Prydd—Mabnagion.

Ymgaethiaw, v. a. (caethiaw) To confine one's self; mutually to confine.

Ymgaffael, s. m. (cassael) Self-acquirement; mutual attainment. v. a. To be acquiring; to attain mutually.

Ymgaffaeliad, s. m. (ymgaffael) A self-acquiring; a mutually obtaining.

Ymgaffiad, s. m. (caffiad) A reaching out one's arms; a mutually catching or grasping at.

Ymgaffiaw, v. a. (caffiaw) To reach out one's arms to catch; to catch at mutually.

Ymgagliad, s. m. (cagliad) A bedagging one's self.

Ymgagliu, v. a. (cagliu) To bedaggle one's self.

Ymgaint, s. f.—pl. ymgeinniau (caint) The act of mutual bickering or scolding.

Ymgais, s. f.—pl. ymgeisiau (cais) An effort, an attempt; self-exertion. v. a. To make an effort; to attempt; to seek for; to seek mutually.

Galledig pethau mawrion gan ymgais.

Great things are possible with self-exertion.

Adage.

Tri pheth rydd yn ymgadarnia boueydd, gan fod mwyl yr ymgais atant: cariad, gwybodaeth, a chyflawnder.

Three things are daily acquiring strength, since the attraction towards them is greater: love, knowledge, and equity.

Barddas.

Nid ymgais diriaid i da.

The malicious will not exert himself towards good. Adage.

Ymgalediad, s. m. (calediad) A self-hardening; a mutually hardening.

Ymgaledu, v. a. (caledu) To harden one's self; to harden mutually.

Ymgaloni, v. a. (caloni) To hearten one's self; to encourage mutually.

Ymgalonhad, v. m. (caloniad) A heartening one's self; a mutually encouraging.

Ymgalliad, s. m. (calliad) A making one's self cunning; a becoming mutually cunning.

Ymgallau, v. a. (callau) To make one's self cunning or discreet; to be mutually cunning.

Wrth Mo Iwi Caisar rhag y Prydeiniaid—glewch oedd y Ffrinc yn ceisio ei wrthdaro o'r terryman. A gwedi gwried o Iwi Caisar hysg ymgallia a oreg, ac nid ymroddia i bodreder ymllad o'r bodd gwslawn hono, mawro agori ei drywr.

By Julius Caesar's retreat from the Britons, more courageous were the French, in endeavouring to drive him from their boundaries. So, when Julius Caesar had seen that, what he did was to employ himself craftily, and he did not give himself up to the uncertainty of war with that ferocious people, but he opened his treasure. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymganlyn, v. a. (canlyn) To employ one's self in following; to follow mutually.

Ymganlyniad, s. m. (canlyniad) An employing one's self in following; a mutually following.

Ymganmawl, s. m. (canmawl) Self-praise; mutual praise. v. a. To praise one's self; to praise mutually.

Ymganmoli, v. a. (ymganmawl) To praise one's self; to praise mutually.

Ymganmoliad, s. m. (ymganmawl) A praising one's self; a mutually praising.

Ymganred, s. f. (canred) A mutual pursuit. v. a. To pursue or follow mutually.

Nid ymganred, Nid ymdidiried, Nid i'w glydd.

There will be no mutual fellowship, there will be no confidence with any towards others. Tolman.

Ymgangheniad, s. m. (cangheniad) A self-branching; a mutual ramification.

Ymganghennu, v. a. (canghennu) To branch out one's self; to branch mutually.

Ymgardodi, v. a. (cardodi) To employ one's self in charity; to practise mutual charity.

Goren crefydd cydyngardodi.

The best religion is to practise mutual charity together.

Adage.

Ymgardodiad, s. m. (cardodiad) An employing one's self in charity; a practising mutual charity.

Ymgaredigaw, v. a. (caredigaw) To be caring mutually.

Ymgaredigiad, s. m. (caredigiad) A being mutually caring.

Ymgariad, s. m. (cariad) The using one's self to love; a mutually loving.

Ymgarthiad, s. m. (carthiad) A self-cleansing.

Ymgarthu, v. a. (carthu) To self-purge.

Ymgaru, v. a. (caru) To habituate one's self in love; to love mutually.

Nid ymgar y llesion.

Confidants will not love one another.

Adage.

Ymgasbad, s. m. (casbad) The using one's self in hating; a mutually hating.

Ymgasau, v. a. (casau) To fill one's self with hate; to become disgusted; to hate mutually.

Mae oen boddys, am swyddau, Mergys hys yn ymgasau.

The life of to-day, with respect to offices, is then becoming disquieted. T. Alad.

Ymgasgliad, s. m. (casgliad) A self-collecting; a mutually aggregating or collecting.

Ymgasglu, v. a. (casglu) To self-collect; to collect mutually; to assemble mutually.

Ymgastelliad, s. m. (castelliad) A spreading one's self round; a mutually spreading round.

Ymgastellu, v. a. (castellu) To spread one's self round, to spread round mutually.

Ymgatsiad, s. m. (ymgatau) An employing one's self in battle; a mutually battling.

Ymgatau, v. a. (catau) To employ one's self in battle; to battle mutually.

Ymgathewrach, s. m. (cathewrach) A bickering together. v. a. To bicker together.

Ymgau, v. a. (cau) To shut one's self; to become closed; to shut mutually.

Y bender a ymgauol am y Dafn.

The hat closed itself about the blade.

Barddysyr 2. m.

Ymgecraeth, s. m. (ceccraeth) A mutual brawling.

Ymgecriad, s. m. (ceccriad) A mutually brawling.

Ymgecru, v. a. (ceccru) To brawl mutually.

Ymgefnogi, v. a. (cefnogi) To back one's self; to back mutually; to encourage one another.

Ymgefnogiad, s. m. (refnogiad) A backing one's self; a mutually backing.

Ymgeliad, s. m. (cegiad) A mutually mouthing.
Ymgegu, v. a. (cegu) To mouth mutually.
Ymgegwr, s. m.—pl. ymgegwyr (cegwr) A moulder, a wrangler.
Ymgelngar, a. (yngaint) Quarrelsome.

Diriad bid ymgelngar.

The mischievous let him be quarrelsome. Llymorch Hen.

Ymgenniad, s. m. (ymgaint) A scuffling mutually.
Ymgennalaith, s. m. (ymgaint—laith) Quarrelsome language.

*Rhys Mdgro—
Gwalia ymgennalaith a gwall i hawb.*

Rhys Mdgro, the work of abusive language he would sing to every body. D. ab Gwilym.

Ymgenniaw, v. a. (ymgaint) To scuffle; to scold.

*Dath draws, ni wad dithas draw
Amgwach nos ymgenniaw.*

Untoward the journey, those with tender do nothing else but quarrel. D. ab Gwilym, i Gr. Grg.

Yr oedd trwm gwrddol yn ymgenniaw yn eu mysg, a rhyferydd fawr dithas, mab lliw mawr athon.

There was the die of women quarrelling together amongst them, and a great torrent of words, like a flood in a river. Morgan Llwyd.

Ymgelintach, s. m. (ceintach) Mutual scuffle.
v. a. To bicker, to scuffle, or to scold mutually.

Ymgelintachiad, s. m. (ymgelintach) A mutually scuffling or quarrelling.

Ymgeliad, s. m. (ymgais) A making an effort or attempt; self-exertion; mutual exertion; a mutual seeking.

Ymgeliaw, v. a. (ymgais) To make an effort or attempt; to seek; to exert one's self; to make a mutual effort or attempt; to exert mutually.

Yr oedd Eiddo—yn ymgeliaw i Rhagwyr; ac o'r diwedd yr ymgelyst, ac ymliedd oed bu y na o'r harnu, mab moli lliach-odswi yn molen tawen.

Eiddo was exerting himself to meet with Rhagwyr; and at length they mutually met, and fought so that the fire was struck from their arms, like gleaming lightning before thunder. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgeliawr, s. m.—pl. ymgeliawyr (ymgais—gwr) One who makes an effort or attempt; one who exerts himself.

Ymgel, s. m. (cel) Self-concealment; mutual concealment.

*Yn mhob rhyw, yn mhob rhyfel,
A waib berddid oed cel,
Nid drwg ond drwg yn ymgel.*

In every extremity, in every war, what is seen is easily avoided, there is no mischief like mischief in concealment. Gwalchal.

Ymgelciad, s. m. (celciad) A self-sculking.

Ymgelciaw, v. a. (celciaw) To hide one's self slyly; to sculk mutually.

Ymgelddig, a. (ymgel) Self-concealed; mutually concealed.

Ymgelodd, s. m. (cel) A protection, or succour; a taking care; solicitude. Priedi er mwyn ymgelodd, to marry for the sake of being nursed. Nef a gadro iddo ei ymgelodd! Heaven preserve to him his succour!

Ni cheffir hodi hir er ymgelodd.

Long life will not be obtained with being careful. Adeys.

Ymgeloddawl, a. (ymgelodd) Employing one's self in cherishing; mutually cherishing.

Ymgeloddad, s. m. (ymgelodd) An employing one's self in screening; a cherishing.

Ymgeloddn, v. a. (ymgelodd) To take care of, to look after; to succour, to cherish, to nourish.

Ymgeloddn yr iaith, to cultivate the language.

Ymgeloddus, a. (ymgelodd) Apt to cherish.

Ymgeloddwr, s. m. (ymgelodd) A cherisher.

Ymgeliad, s. m. (ymgel) A hiding one's self; a mutually hiding.

VOL. II.

Ymgela, v. a. (ymgel) To hide one's self; to hide mutually.

*Y gwr gwddid uchel,
A'r gwawd gwddid awel,
Pan ei yn rhyfel
Nid ymgela.*

The man ardently towering, with the spear making the gale to howl, when he goes into war he will not hide himself. D. Benfras, i Llywelyn III.

Ymgelliawr, s. m. (celliawr) The being in jest; a mutual jesting.

Ymgelliawriad, s. m. (ymgelliawr) A being jesting; a jesting with one another.

Ymgelliawriaw, v. a. (ymgelliawr) To employ one's self in jesting; to jest mutually.

Ymgengigeniad, s. m. (cengigeniad) A making envious; a mutually envying.

Ymgengigena, v. a. (cengigena) To make one's self envious; to envy mutually.

Ymgernial, s. m. (cernial) A wrangling. v. a. To wrangle; to be cheek by jowl.

Ymgernodiad, s. m. (cernodiad) A knocking one another about the head.

Ymgernodiaw, v. a. (cernodiaw) To knock one another about the head.

Ymgerydd, s. m. (cerydd) Self-reprehension; mutual reproof or reprimand.

Ymgeryddiad, s. m. (ymgerydd) A self-reprehending; a mutually reprehending.

Ymgeryddu, v. a. (ymgerydd) To self-rebuke; to reprehend mutually.

Ymgestiad, s. m. (cestiad) A self-guzzling; a mutually guzzling.

Ymgestu, v. a. (cestu) To guzzle one's self; to guzzle mutually.

Ymgethriad, s. m. (cethriad) A self-arguing; a mutually driving or egging on.

Ymgethru, v. a. (cethru) To drive one's self; to drive, to urge, or to importune mutually.

Ymgigaw, v. a. (cigaw) To go after the flesh.

Ymgigiad, s. m. (cigiad) A seeking carnal gratification.

Ymgigweiniad, s. m. (cigweiniad) An employing one's self in clutching of flesh; a mutually clutching.

Ymgigweiniaw, v. a. (cigweiniaw) To employ one's self in clutching of flesh; to mangle flesh mutually.

Ymgil, s. m. (cil) A self-retreating; a mutual recession or retiring.

Ymgiliad, s. m. (ymgil) A being retreating; a mutually retreating or receding.

Ymgiliaw, v. a. (ymgil) To be retreating; to retreat or to recede mutually.

*Trysban barabli diffal,
Yn aydd trin nid ymgiliad,
Cydwalth it oedd Gwalchmai.*

Trysban of blameless conversation, in the day of conflict that would not be retreating, a comrade of thine was Gwalchmai. Eng. Gwalchmai a Thrypsban.

Ymgiprys, s. m. (ciprys) A mutual brawl.

Ymgiprysiad, s. m. (ymgiprys) A mutually brawling, or scrambling.

Ymgiprysn, v. a. (ciprys) To wrangle mutually.

Ymgiladdiad, s. m. (claddiad) A self-burrying.

Ymgiladdu, v. a. (claddu) To bury one's self.

Ymgleddyfawd, s. m. (cloddyfawd) A mutual cutting with sword.

Ymgleddyfiad, s. m. (cloddyfiad) A mutually cutting or fencing with sword.

Ymgleddyfu, v. a. (cloddyfu) To use the sword mutually; to fence.

Ymgloed, s. m. (clôad) A locking one's self; a mutually locking.

4 M

Ymglofori, v. a. (clodfori) To exalt one's self in fame; to celebrate mutually.

Y cenedlaeth—yddo ef yr ymgloforant.

The nation, in him they shall bless themselves. Jeremi 4. 2.

Ymgloforiad, s. m. (clodforiad) A self-exalting in fame; a mutually celebrating.

Ymgloi, v. a. (cloi) To lock one's self; to lock mutually.

Ymgloiad, s. m. (cloiad) A mutually babbling.

Ymgliollian, v. a. (clollan) To babble mutually.

Ymgliadaw, v. a. (cludaw) To self-carry; to carry mutually; to heap mutually.

Ymgliadiad, s. m. (cludiad) A self-carrying; a mutually carrying or heaping.

Ymgliwydd, s. m. (clwydd) The act of bringing one's self forward.

Ymgliwyddaw, v. a. (ymgliwydd) To bring one's self forward; mutually to bring to pass.

Ymglymiad, s. m. (clymiad) A self-binding; a mutually binding.

Ymglymu, v. a. (clymu) To self-bind; to bind or tie mutually.

Ymglymynt yr hæg am fy mhen.

The sages have wrapped themselves about my head. Jonah 2. 5.

Ymglywad, s. m. (clywad) A feeling one's self; a mutually feeling.

Ymglywed, v. a. (clwywed) To feel one's self; to feel mutually.

Nosm gorow angus anglyfuerthit

Nid ymglyw dyn byw o'r byd fal i!

Shall I not be overcome by death of pining grief: not a living person in the world feels himself like me!

Ein. ab Gwalechmai, m. Nest

Ymgnoad, s. m. (cnoad) A being gnawing.

Ymgnoi, v. a. (cnoi) To keep gnawing.

Ymgodi, v. a. (codi) To raise one's self.

Ymgodiad, s. m. (codiad) A raising one's self.

Ymgodymiad, s. m. (codymiad) A tumbling one's self; a mutually tumbling.

Ymgodymu, v. a. (codymu) To tumble one's self; to tumble mutually.

Ymgoddi, v. a. (coddi) To vex one's self; to vex or tease mutually.

Yn llyso y Wydderog.

A lloegr yn ymgoddiog.

Llawer a'n goddiog

Yn ymgoddi.

In the court of Wydderog, whilst England is under a cloud, many will attract our notice affecting themselves.

Ll. P. Mech.

Ymgoddiad, s. m. (coddiad) A vexing one's self; a mutually vexing or afflicting.

Ymgoeiliad, s. m. (coeliad) A being believing; a mutually believing.

Ymgoeiliaw, v. a. (coeliaw) To be believing; to believe mutually.

Ymgofiad, s. m. (cofiad) A self-recollecting; a mutually remembering.

Ymgoflaw, v. a. (coflaw) To self-recollect; to remember mutually.

Ymgofieldiad, s. m. (cofieldiad) A being embracing; a mutually embracing.

Ymgofieldlaw, v. a. (cofieldlaw) To employ one's self in embracing; to embrace mutually.

Mac—

Adeg i ymgofieldlaw.

There is a time to embrace one another.

L. Hopryn.

Ymgofhad, s. m. (coffhad) A self-recollecting.

Ymgofhu, v. a. (coffhu) To self-recollect; to remember mutually.

Ymgoledd, s. m. (coledd) A self-cultivating; a mutual cultivation.

Ymgoleddiad, s. m. (ymgoledd) A being self-cultivating; a mutually cultivating.

Ymgoleddu, v. a. (ymgoledd) To self-cultivate; to cultivate mutually.

Ymgoleddwyr, s. m. (ymgoledd—gwr) One who self-cultivates.

Ymgoll, s. m. (coll) A self-loss; a mutual loss.

Ymgolli, v. a. (ymgoll) To lose one's self; mutually to lose.

Ymgolliad, s. m. (ymgoll) A losing one's self; a losing one another.

Ymgomiaw, v. a. (comiaw) To be conversing.

Ymgorfiad, s. m. (corfiad) A self-embodying; a mutually embodying.

Ymgorfiaw, v. a. (corfiaw) To self-embody; mutually to embody.

Ymgorffolaethu, v. a. (corffolaethu) To self-incorporate; to incorporate mutually.

Ymgorniad, s. m. (corniad) A mutually butting with horns.

Ymgorniaw, v. a. (corniaw) To butt one another with horns.

Ymgosbi, v. a. (cosbi) To punish one's self.

Ymgosbiad, s. m. (cosbiad) A punishing one's self; a mutually punishing.

Ymgosi, v. a. (cosi) To scratch one's self; to scratch one another.

Ymgoslad, s. m. (cosiad) A scratching of one's self; a mutually scratching.

Ymgorafangiad, s. m. (crafangiad) A self-clawing; a mutually clawing.

Ymgorafangu, v. a. (crafangu) To claw one's self; to claw one another.

Ymgrafiad, s. m. (crafiad) A scratching of one's self; a mutually scratching.

Ymgraflu, v. a. (craflu) To scratch one's self; to scratch mutually.

Nid oes ganddo yr enwedd i ymgraflu.

He has not got the nails to scratch himself.

Adeg.

Ymgrawfwr, s. m.—pl. ymgrawfwr (crawfwr) One who scratches himself.

Ymgrebychiad, s. m. (crebychiad) A becoming crinkled; a mutually crinkling.

Ymgrebychu, v. a. (crebychu) To become crinkled; to crinkle mutually.

Ymgred, s. m. (cred) A mutual pledge or plight; espousal; a self-pledging.

Ymgrediad, s. m. (ymgred) A mutually pledging; a pledging one's faith.

Ymgredu, v. a. (ymgred) To enter into mutual belief; to give mutual pledge.

Ymgrefiad, s. m. (crefiad) A being craving; a mutual craving.

Ymgrefu, v. a. (crefu) To employ one's self in craving; to crave mutually.

Ymgreiniad, s. m. (creiniad) A self-crawling along the ground.

Ymgreiniaw, v. a. (creiniaw) To be crawling.

Lle yr ymgreiniaw y march y gedy beth o'i few.

Where the horse shall have rolled himself he will leave none of his hair.

Adeg.

Ymgreiriad, s. m. (croiriad) A swearing one's self on relics; a mutually covenanting.

Ymgreiriaw, v. a. (creiriaw) To swear one's self; to covenant mutually.

Ymgreulonl, v. a. (creulonl) To become cruel; to become mutually cruel.

Ymgreulonlad, s. m. (creulonlad) A becoming cruel; a becoming mutually cruel.

Ymgripiad, s. m. (cripiad) To claw one's self; to claw or scratch one another.

Ymgriaw, v. a. (cripiaw) To claw one's self; to scratch or claw one another.

Ymgroesi, s. a. (croesi) To cross one's self; to secure one's self; to be cautious, to be mindful, to beware. Gweli i ti ymgroesi, better for thee to beware.

Ymgroesiad, s. m. (croesiad) A securing one's self, a bawaring; a taking heed.

Ymgrogi, v. a. (crogi) To hang one's self.

Ymgrogiad, s. m. (crogi) A hanging one's self.

Ymgrothi, v. a. (crothi) To swell one's paunch.

Ymgrothiad, s. m. (crothiad) A swelling out one's paunch.

Ymgriwydrad, s. m. (crwydrad) A using one's self to stray; a mutually straying.

Ymgriwydraw, v. a. (crwydraw) To use one's self to stray; to wander mutually.

Ymgryfiad, s. m. (cryfiad) A self-strengthening; a mutually strengthening.

Ymgryfau, v. a. (cryfau) To strengthen one's self; to strengthen mutually.

Ymgryfia ac ymroho; nac arwyddo ac nac ofeo; cawo yr Arglwydd dy Ddaer y dydd ydi.

Fortify thyself and be of good courage! be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee. Joshua 1. 9.

Ymgrymawl, a. (crymawl) Self-prostrating; mutually prostrating.

Ymgrymiad, s. m. (crymiad) Self-prostration; a mutual prostration; a mutually bowing.

Ymgrymu, v. a. (crymu) To prostrate one's self; to prostrate mutually.

Ymgrymwr, s. m.—pl. ymgrymwrwyr (crymwr) One who prostrates himself.

Ymgrynâd, s. m. (crynâd) A rounding of one's self; a mutually rounding.

Ymgrynau, v. a. (crynau) To round one's self; to become rounded; to round mutually.

Ymgryniad, s. m. (cryniad) A causing one's self to tremble; a mutually trembling.

Ymgrynôad, s. m. (crynôad) A gathering one's self together; a making one's self tidy; a mutually collecting together.

Ymgryni, v. a. (cryni) To gather one's self together, a making one's self tidy; a mutually collecting together.

Ymgrynu, v. a. (crynu) To cause one's self to tremble; to tremble mutually.

Ymgudd, s. m. (cudd) A hiding one's self.

Ymguddiad, s. m. (ymgudd) A hiding of one's self; a mutually hiding.

Ymguddiaw, v. a. (ymgudd) To hide one's self; to hide mutually.

Ymguddau yr gof y gylt.

To hide one's self on the top of the chest.

Adage.

Ymguddiwr, s. m.—pl. ymguddiwrwyr (ymgudd-gwr) One who hides himself.

Ymgulâd, s. m. (culâd) A making one's self slender, or narrow; a mutually narrowing.

Ymgulan, v. a. (culau) To make one's self lean or slender; mutually to narrow.

Ymguraw, v. a. (caraw) To beat one's self; to beat mutually.

Ymguriad, s. m. (cariad) A self-beating; a mutually beating.

Ymgurwr, s. m.—pl. ymgurwrwyr (carwr) One who beats himself; one who employs himself in beating; a fighter.

Ymgusanâd, s. m. (cusanâd) A mutually kissing.

Ymgusanu, v. a. (cusanu) To kiss mutually.

*Gwyr dda, llyn grynall ddau la
Am gas hen i'ngusanu.*

The fresh good liquor, it would send two boats concerning an old grudge to kiss one another.

Icn. ab Gruffudd Llew, i Owrn Conwy.

Ymgwng, s. m. (cawg) A putting on a frown; v. a. To put one's self in a frown.

Mm yn ymgwng, a'm phant yn ymgwngol.

I putting on a frown, and my children altogether by the ears.

Arach Gages.

Ymgwydd, s. m. (cwydd) A self-falling; a mutual fall.

Ymgwyddaw, v. a. (ymgwydd) To cause one's self to fall; to fall mutually.

Ymgwyddiad, s. m. (ymgwyddiad) A falling of one's self; a mutually falling.

Ymgwynaw, v. a. (cwynaw) To be complaining; to complain mutually.

Ymgwynfan, v. a. (cwynfan) To keep one's self in continual wailing; to wail or to complain mutually.

Ymgwyniad, s. m. (cwyniad) A being complaining; a complaining mutually.

Ymgwynofain, v. a. (cwynofain) To employ one's self in complaining, to be mutually wailing.

Ymgys, s. m. (cyd) A self-connection; a mutual union or junction; communion.

Tri pheth a gellir dyn o grodd yn Nwst: a fo ridd yn y byd, haddwrch cydwys, ac ymgys a'r nefol.

Three things will man obtain by believing in God: what may be necessary in the world, peace of conscience, and communion with the heavenly.

Barddon.

Ymgysgam, s. m. (cydgam) A mutual dalliance. v. a. To dally mutually.

Carl—

A wrotham ymgysgam gyt.

We obtained a mutual dalliance formerly.

D. ab Gwilym.

Ymgysgori, v. a. (cydgor) To join one's self to a congregation; mutually to unite in a congregation.

Gwelygerdd Emyr Llydaw a ddathledd i'r rai hon gys Gernod ab Rhidryd, i adnewyddo cred a bodd, ac ymgysgori yn Ynys Eulii a wneyd.

The family of Emyr Llydaw came into this island with Gernod son of Rhidryd, to renew the christian faith, and unite themselves in congregation in the isle of Eulii was what they did.

Barddon y Saint.

Ymgysgyfarch, s. m. (cydgyfarch) A self-congratulation; a mutual congratulation. v. a. To congratulate one's self; to congratulate mutually.

Ymgysgyfarchiad, s. m. (ymgygyfarchiad) A self-congratulating; a mutually congratulating.

Ymgysdiad, s. m. (ymgyd) A joining mutually; a coupling one's self.

Ymgysdiaw, v. a. (ymgyd) To lay hold or to join mutually, to couple one's self; to grapple together.

Ymgysdoai, v. a. (cydoai) To make one's self cotemporary; mutually to be cotemporary.

Ymgysdoesiad, s. m. (cydoesiad) A making one's self cotemporary; a mutually becoming cotemporary.

Ymgysdredeg, v. a. (cydredeg) To render one's self concurrent; a mutually concurring.

Ymgysdrediad, s. m. (cydrediad) A being concurrent; to concur mutually.

Ymgysdyniad, s. m. (cydsyniad) A being consenting; a mutually consenting.

Ymgysdyniaw, v. a. (cydsyniaw) To be consenting; to consent mutually.

Ymgysdynied v. a. (cydsynied) To render one's self consenting; mutually to consent.

Ymgysdybodi, v. a. (cydydybod) To be mutually concientious.

Ymgysfiad, s. m. (cyfiad) A making one's self whole; a becoming mutually whole.

Ymgysfadbod, s. m. (cyfadbod) A mutual acknowledgement; a self-acknowledgement.

Ymgysfadrnabod, v. a. (cyfadrnabod) To acknowledge mutually; to acknowledge one's self.

Ymgysfaddasiad, s. m. (cyfaddasiad) A mutually conforming; a rendering one's self mutually suitable.

Ymgysfaddasu, v. a. (cyfaddasu) To conform mutually; to adapt one's self.

Ymgysfaddaw, v. a. (cyfaddaw) To bind one's self in a mutual promise.

Ymgysfaddawiad, s. m. (ymgyfaddaw) A binding one's self in a mutual promise.

Ymgysfagweddiad, s. m. (cyfagweddiad) A self-conforming; mutual conformation.

Ymgysfagweddu, v. a. (cyfagweddu) To conform one's self; to conform mutually.

Ymgysfammodi, v. a. (cyfammodi) To covenant mutually; to self-covenant.

Ymgysfammodiad, s. m. (cyfammodiad) A mutually covenanting; a covenanting or agreeing for one's self.

Ymgysfaniad, s. m. (cyfaniad) A making one's self whole; a becoming mutually entire.

Ymgysfannu, v. a. (cyfannu) To make one's self whole; to become mutually entire.

Ymgysfarfod, s. m. (cyfarfod) A mutually meeting; a mutual contact; a mutual encounter.

v. a. To meet mutually; to make a mutual onset.

Ar yr ymgysfarfod cyntaf, ef a hys godwr cymt o wyr Brad-mawr.

On the first encounter there were slain four hundred of the men of Bradmawr.
H. Bowen—Mabwngion.

Eh Hywel—ni e ddygwya rhagddynt hwyntau yr eiddyn, o rhydd Dew cenedl i ymgysfarfod a hys.

Hywel said: we will take from them too what they possess, if God will give permission for to come in mutual contact with them.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgysfarfodiad, s. m. (ymgyfarfod) A being meeting; a mutually meeting.

Ymgysfartaliad, s. m. (cyfartaliad) A making one's self equal, a comparing one's self; a mutually vying.

Ymgysfartalu, v. a. (cyfartalu) To make one's self equal; to vie mutually.

Pu dywyllus a eill ymgysfartalu i frenin Prydain, o gubernaidd a ddewodd marchogion!

What prince can put himself in competition with the king of Britain, as to the fortitude and gallantry of his knights!
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgysfarwyddaw, v. a. (cyfarwyddaw) To self-inform; mutually to direct or inform.

Ymgysfarwyddiad, s. m. (cyfarwyddiad) A directing one's self; a mutually directing.

Ymgysfateb, s. m. (cyfateb) Mutual correspondence.

v. a. To correspond mutually.

Ymgysfatebaw, v. a. (ymgyfateb) Mutually corresponding.

Ymgysfatebiad, s. m. (ymgyfateb) A mutually corresponding.

Ymgysfathrach, s. m. (cyfathrach) A mutual connection.

Ymgysfathrachiad, s. m. (ymgyfathrach) A forming a mutual connection.

Ymgysfan, v. a. (cyfan) To render one's self whole; to become mutually whole.

Ymgysfeillachu, v. a. (ymgyfeillach) To join one's self in friendship; to contract a mutual friendship.

Ymgysferbynnaw, v. a. (cyferbynnaw) Being set in opposition; mutually opposing.

Ymgysferbyniad, s. m. (cyferbyniad) A coming in opposition; a mutually opposing.

Ymgysferbyniad, v. a. (cyferbyniad) To set one's self against; to counteract mutually.

Nid odd yr all a fal can ddewodd ag ef yn y dyddiau, ac a eill ymgysferbyniad ag ef.

There was not another who was so brave as he in the battles, and who could mutually contend with him.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgysfethl, s. m. (cyfethl) A mutual struggle.

v. a. To be striving together.

Dawmodur dda was hysac ardderchaw, y eill cymhell yn nai i'r brein, a'r hysac yn nai i Afarwy fab hysac cymhell yn gwre paled, ac o'r diwedd hysac am y fuddryddieth: ac ynt odd eiddau nai y brein hysac, ac eiddau nai Cymhell yn gysylltu am ymgysfethl yntu cysyllt a wnaid Cymhell a hysac nai hysac.

Two noble young men, the one of them a nephew to the king, and the other a nephew to Afarwy son of hysac, happened to dispute, in playing at ball, and at last to grow angry about the matter; and to be particular, the name of the king's nephew was hysac, and the name of the other Cymhell; then, after growing mutually angry and striving together, Cymhell drew his sword and cut off the head of hysac.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgysfethliad, s. m. (ymgyfethl) A being striving; a mutually struggling.

Ymgysfethlu, v. a. (ymgyfethl) To be struggling; to struggle mutually.

Ymgysfogi, v. a. (cyfhogi) To edge at one another mutually.

Dysoddlaw cysyllt a wnaid ac ymgysfogi.

Draw sword was what they did and mutually did at one another.
H. Bowen ab Urben—Mabwngion.

Ymgysfhogiad, s. m. (cyfhogiad) A mutually edging at one another.

Ymgysfiad, s. m. (cyfiad) A making one's self equal; a mutually equalling.

Ymgysfiaw, v. a. (cyfiaw) To make one's self equal; to become mutually equal.

Ymgysfiawniad, s. m. (cyfiawniad) A self-justification; a mutually justifying.

Ymgysfiawnu, v. a. (cyfiawnu) To self-justify; to justify mutually.

Pa fodd yr ymgysfiawnu!

What way shall we justify ourselves!

Gemmae et. H.

Ymgysfiawniad, s. m. (cyfiawniad) A self-justifying; a mutually justifying.

Ymgysfiawnu, v. a. (cyfiawnu) To justify one's self; to justify mutually.

Ymgysfiawni, v. a. (cyfiawni) To self-complete; to become mutually complete.

Ymgysfiawniad, s. m. (cyfiawniad) A self-completing; a mutually completing.

Ymgysfiad, s. m. (cyfiad) A self-collocation; a mutual collocation.

Ymgysfiad, s. m. (cyfiad) A making one's self mutually beneficial.

Ymgysfiaw, v. a. (cyfiaw) To make one's self mutually beneficial.

Ymgysfiaw, v. a. (cyfiaw) To situate one's self; mutually to collocate.

Ymgysfiogi, v. a. (cyfiogi) To hire one's self; to hire mutually.

Nid cymwyth ymgysfiogi.

It is not easy to hire one's self.

Adge.

Ymgysfiogiad, s. m. (cyfiogiad) A hiring one's self; a mutually hiring.

Ymgysfiogwr, s. m.—pl. ymgysfiogwyr (cyfiogwr) One who hires himself.

Ymgysfiwynaw, v. a. (cyfiwynaw) To be connected; mutually to consociate.

Tudryl ferch Brychan a hys gan y Secon, ynt odd yn ymgysfiwynaw ei thad.

Tudryl daughter of Brychan was killed by the Secon, when he was visiting her father.
Adge y Secon.

Ymgysfiwyniad, s. m. (cyfiwyniad) An associating one's self; a mutually associating.

Ymgysychiad, s. m. (cyfsychiad) A mutually connecting one's self.

Ymgysychu, v. s. (cyfsychu) To connect one's self mutually.

Ymgysychu a deuth, ac mas ymgysych ag amoth.

Consecrate thyself with the wise, and do not connect thyself with the foolish. Adage.

Ymgysnawai, v. a. (cysnawai) To render one's self of the same temper; to become mutually of one temper.

Ymgysnawiad, s. m. (cysnawiad) A making one's self congenial.

Ymgysnerthiad, s. m. (cysnerthiad) A collecting one's strength together; a mutually assisting.

Ymgysnerthu, v. a. (cysnerthu) To collect together one's strength; to assist one another mutually.

Ymgysnesiad, s. m. (cysnesiad) Self-approximation; mutual approximation.

Ymgysnesu, v. a. (cysnesu) To self-approximate; mutually to approximate.

Ymgysnewid, s. m. (cysnewid) Self-transformation; a mutual change of one's self; a mutual interchange.

Ymgysnewidiad, s. m. (ymgyfnewid) A self-transforming; a mutually interchanging.

Ymgysnewidiaw, v. a. (ymgyfnewid) To transform one's self; to interchange mutually.

Ymgysnydd, s. m. (cysnydd) A self-intertwining; a mutual intertwining.

Yn ymgysnydd ddydd neu dda.

Intertwining together a day or two.

W. Cymwel.

Ymgysnyddawl, a. (ymgyfnydd) Self-intertwining; mutually intertwining.

Ymgysnyddiad, s. m. (ymgyfnydd) A self-intertwining; a mutually intertwining.

Ymgysnyddu, v. a. (ymgyfnydd) To self-intertwine; mutually to intertwine.

Ymgysodi, v. a. (cysodi) To raise one's self; a mutually raising.

Y rhai a ymgysodyst i ym herbyn a ddarostyngaiet dda.

Those who raised themselves against me hast then subdued under me.

Ymgysodiad, s. m. (cysodiad) A raising one's self; a mutually raising.

Ymgysfoethi, v. a. (cysfoethi) To enrich one's self; a mutually becoming rich.

Ymgysfoethiad, s. m. (cysfoethiad) A self-enriching; a mutually enriching.

Ymgysfoethogi, v. a. (cysfoethogi) To self-enrich; to be mutually enriched.

Ymgysfoethogiad, s. m. (cysfoethogiad) A self-enriching; a mutually enriching.

Ymgysfranc, s. m. (cysfranc) A bringing one's self into mutual contact; a mutually meeting.

v. a. To bring one's self into mutual contact; to meet mutually.

Ymgysfraniad, s. m. (cysfraniad) A bringing one's self to participate; a mutually participating.

Ymgysfranogi, v. a. (cysfranogi) To render one's self participating; to become mutually participating.

Ymgysfranogiad, s. m. (cysfranogiad) A rendering one's self participating; a becoming mutually participating.

Ymgysfrannu, v. a. (cysfrannu) To bring one's self to divide mutually; a mutually partaking, dividing, or communicating.

Ymgysfred, s. m. (cysfred) Mutual concurrence.

Ymgysfredawl, s. (ymgyfred) Mutually concurrent

Ymgysfredog, v. a. (ymgyfred) To run together mutually; to form a concurrence.

Ymgysfrediad, s. m. (ymgyfred) A mutually running together; a mutually concurring.

Ymgysfreithgar, a. (cysfreithgar) Apt to be litigious; mutually litigious.

Ymgysfreithgarwch, s. m. (ymgyfreithgar) Aptness to be litigious; mutual litigiousness.

Ymgysfreithiad, s. m. (cysfreithiad) A being litigious; a mutually litigating.

Ymgysfreithaw, v. a. (cysfreithaw) To commit one's self to law; to bind one's self by law; to litigate mutually.

Gwell cydnaw yn ddwng nog ymgysfreithaw yn dda.

Better to agree badly than mutually to litigate well. Adage.

Ymgysfreithiwr, s. m. (cysfreithiwr) One who litigates.

Ymgysfrif, s. m. (cysfrif) A self-reckoning; a mutual reckoning.

Ymgysfrifaw, v. a. (ymgyfrif) To reckon one's self, to esteem one's self; mutually to reckon.

Ymgysfrifiad, s. m. (ymgyfrif) A reckoning one's self; self-estimation; a mutually reckoning.

Ymgysfrin, s. m. (cysfrin) A confederacy. v. a. To join in mutual secrecy.

Gorw cyfelliach ymgysfrin a ddwydd.

The best company is a communion with the happy.

Caring Ddeith.

Ymgysfrinachiad, s. m. (cysfrinachiad) A being communicating mutual secrets.

Ymgysfrinachu, v. a. (cysfrinachu) To employ one's self in mutual secrets; to talk mutual secrets.

Ymgysfrinachuast yn ddichellgar yn erbyn dy bobl.

They have taken counsel together craftily against thy people. Psalm 120. 2.

Ymgysfrinaw, v. a. (cysfrinaw) To render one's self mysterious; to become mutually mysterious.

Ymgysfriniad, s. m. (cysfriniad) A rendering one's self mysterious; a becoming mutually mysterious; a joining together.

Ymgysfrithiad, s. m. (cysfrithiad) A making one's self to seem or to appear; a mutually appearing.

Ymgysfrithiaw, v. a. (cysfrithiaw) To make one's self to appear; mutually to seem or to appear.

Ymgysfroddi, v. a. (cysfroddi) To render one's self contributory; mutually to contribute.

Ymgysfroddiad, s. m. (cysfroddiad) A making one's self to contribute; a mutually contributing.

Ymgysfrwch, s. m. (cysfrwch) A bringing one's self in contact; a mutual meeting. v. a. To put one's self in contact; to meet mutually.

Ymgysfrwyddaw, v. a. (cysfrwyddaw) To self-expedite; to become mutually expeditious.

Ymgysfrwyddiad, s. m. (cysfrwyddiad) A self-expediting; a mutually expediting.

Ymgysfunaw, v. a. (cysfunaw) To combine one's self; to combine mutually.

Ymgysfunaw a orw Gwrgi Garwlyd a'i wyr ag Edeidd bron-in y Saxon.

What Gwrgi Garwlyd did was to unite himself with Edeidd king of the Saxons.

Friends.

Ymgysfuniad, s. m. (cysfuniad) A self-uniting; a mutually uniting or combining.

Ymgysfwrdd, s. m. (cysfwrdd) A meeting together; a rencounter. v. a. To come into mutual contact.

Ymglyngiad, s. m. (yfyngiad) A self-straitening, a mutually straitening.

Ymglyngu, v. a. (cyfyngu) To self-straiten, to straiten or embarrass mutually.

Ymglyfelybiad, s. m. (cyffelybiad) A self-comparison; a becoming mutually similar.

Ymglyfelybu, v. a. (cyffelybu) To compare one's self; to become mutually similar.

Ymglyfred, s. m. (cyffred) Self-comprehension; a mutual comprehension.

Ymglyfredawl, a. (ymgyffred) Self-comprehending; mutually comprehending.

Ymglyfrediad, s. m. (ymgyffred) A self-comprehending; a mutually comprehending.

Ymglyfredu, v. a. (ymgyffred) To self-comprehend; to comprehend mutually.

Ymglyfröad, s. m. (cyffröad) A self-agitating; a mutually agitating.

Ymglyfröawl, a. (cyffröawl) Self-agitating; mutually agitating or moving.

Ymglyfröi, v. a. (cyffröi) To agitate one's self; to become mutually agitated.

Ymglyhoeddi, v. a. (cyhoeddi) To announce one's self; to become mutually public.

Ymglyhoeddiad, s. m. (cyhoeddiad) A proclaiming or announcing one's self; a mutually proclaiming.

Ymglyhuddaw, v. a. (cyhuddaw) To accuse one's self; to accuse mutually.

Pan ei lledron i ymglyhuddaw, y ceif cywirfied eu da.

When thieves go to accuse one another, honest people get their property.

Ymglyhuddiad, s. m. (cyhuddiad) A self-accusing; a mutually accusing.

Ymglyhwrdd, s. m. (cyhwrdd) A mutual contact. v. a. To bring one's self in contact; to meet mutually.

Ymglyhydiad, s. m. (cyhydiad) A rendering one's self co-extending.

Ymglyhydriad, s. m. (cyhydriad) A mutually vying or emulating; a putting one's self in competition.

Ymglyhydra, v. a. (cyhydra) To put one's self in competition; mutually to emulate.

Ymglyhydu, v. a. (cyhydu) To make one's self co-equal in length; mutually to co-extend.

Mae lawr i yr huddllywyr ddangos ei frain, ac ymglyhydu ei frain ag yr hawlwr.

It is proper for the defendant to show his right, and to compare mutually his right with the plaintiff.

Ymglyhyrddiad, s. m. (ymgyhwrdd) A becoming in contact; a mutually encountering.

Ymglyhyrddu, v. a. (ymgyhwrdd) To come in contact; mutually to come in contact.

Ymglyllaeth, s. m. (cyllaeth) The giving up one's self to grief; a mutual sorrow.

Ymglylleliad, s. m. (cylleliad) A cutting one's self with a knife; a mutually cutting with knives.

Ymglyllelu, v. a. (cyllelu) To cut one's self with a knife; to cut one another with knives.

Ymglymdeithiad, s. m. (cymdeithiad) A mutually associating; a mutual incorporation; a connecting one's self with society.

Ymglymdeithian, v. a. (cymdeithian) To associate mutually; to associate one's self.

Ymglymedriad, s. m. (cymedriad) A proportioning or regulating one's self, a mutually proportioning.

Ymglymedroli, v. a. (cymedroli) To moderate one's self, mutually to moderate.

Ymglymedroliad, s. m. (cymedroliad) A self-moderating, a mutually befitting.

Ymglymedru, v. a. (cymedru) To regulate mutually.

Ymglymeriad, s. m. (cymeriald) A taking one's self, a being taking, a mutually taking.

Ymglymeryd, v. a. (cymeryd) To take one's self, to be taking, to take mutually.

Pe bachei yna rwyd wleidi y tan la thraw i ych caerw at ymgymeryd i ych dlogi hyd nawr.

If you were here you should see the fire on the further side of the walls just becoming kindled to burn you to nothing.

Ellis Wyn, B. Cwg.

Ymglymer ymleth a bwr dy hun i'r mor.

Take thyself away and cast thyself into the sea. W. S. Phillips.

Ymglymesuraw, v. a. (cymesuraw) To proportion one's self, mutually to adapt.

Ymglymesuriad, s. m. (cymesuriad) A self-adaptation, a mutually proportioning.

Ymglymharriad, s. m. (cymharriad) A joining one's self in fellowship; a mutually becoming connected.

Ymglymharu, v. a. (cymharu) To pair one's self; to associate mutually.

Dwyllt a gyrra i 'ymgyharu

Or cymhellid.

The wild and the tame will couple together to forget offspring.

A. F. J. J.

Ymglymhell, s. m. (cymhell) A self-urging; a mutual urging. v. a. To urge one's self; to urge mutually.

Ymglymhelliad, s. m. (ymgymhell) An urging one's self; a mutually urging.

Ymglymhwyllaw, v. a. (cymhwyllaw) To persuade one's self, to persuade mutually.

Ymglymhwylliad, s. m. (cymhwylliad) A reasoning one's self, a mutually persuading.

Ymglymhwyssaw, v. a. (cymhwyssaw) To adapt one's self, to adjust mutually.

Ymglymhwysiad, s. m. (cymhwysiad) A self-adapting; a mutually proportioning.

Ymglymmodi, v. a. (cymmodi) To make one's self agreeable; to reconcile one's self; to become mutually reconciled.

Ymglymmodiad, s. m. (cymmodiad) Self-reconciliation; mutual reconciliation.

Ymglymoni, v. a. (cymoni) To make one's self compact; to become mutually compact.

Ymglymoniad, s. m. (cymoniad) A rendering one's self compact; a mutually disposing.

Ymglymwynasiad, s. m. (cymwynasiad) A rendering one's self complacent, a becoming mutually courteous.

Ymglymwynasu, v. a. (cymwynasu) To render one's self complacent; to become mutually courteous.

Gwynn ar bob gwynyd ymglymwynasu.

The best of every happiness is to be mutually complacent.

Idge.

Ymglymyreddiad, s. m. (cymyreddiad) A self-assuming, a mutually assuming.

Ymglymyreddu, v. a. (cymyreddu) To arrogate to one's self; to assume mutually.

Ymglymysgiad, s. m. (cymysgiad) A mixing one's self, a mutually mixing.

Ymglymysgu, v. a. (cymysgu) To mix one's self; to mix mutually.

Ymglymysiad, s. m. (cymysiad) A self-cutting; a mutual excision.

Ymglymysu, v. a. (cymysu) To cut one's self; to cut down mutually.

Mid yr awd y byddiadau yn ymuno ac yn ymuno hith eu chynnyr, yd ymuno hith a hith yn ymuno, ac yn ymuno y cydnydd.

As the hosts were mutually dealing blows and cutting death one another with halberds together, hith found an opportunity to come in contact with hith, and they mutually aligned with the sword.
First y Brathmord.

Ymgynyddiad, s. m. (cyndyniad) A making one's self stubborn, a mutually being obstinate.

Ymgynyddu, v. a. (cyndynu) To be stubborn; to act with mutual obstinacy.

Ymgynndeiogi, v. a. (cynddeiriogi) To madden one's self; to become mutually enraged.

Ymgynndeiogiad, s. m. (cynddeiriogiad) A maddening one's self, a becoming mutually enraged.

Ymgynheniad, s. m. (cynheniad) A being contending, a mutually wrangling.

Ymgynhennu, v. a. (cynhennu) To contend, to wrangle mutually.

Caru cydd—Gid hwn odd ymgynhennu.

The choicest office with this one was to employ himself in wrangling.
Isran Tem.

Ymgynhesiad, s. m. (cynhesiad) A self-warming, a becoming mutually warmed.

Ymgynhesu, v. a. (cynhesu) To warm one's self, to become mutually warmed.

Ymgynhyriad, s. m. (cynhyriad) A self-agitating, a mutually disturbing.

Ymgynhyrfu, v. a. (cynhyrfu) To disturb one's self; to disturb mutually.

Ymgynnad, s. f. (cyanad) Mutual dispute or conversation.

Ymgynnadiad, s. m. (ymgynnadi) An employing one's self in conversation, a mutually conversing.

Ymgynnadiu, v. a. (ymgynnadi) To be conversing; to converse mutually.

Ro chymyn ymgyddiad i ddydd.

Seek not to be disputing with an angry person. Catwg.

Ymgynnal, s. m. (cynnal) A self-support; mutual support. v. a. To support one's self; to contain one's self; to support one another.

Ymgynnaliad, s. m. (ymgynnal) Self-supportation, a mutually supporting.

Ymgynnefnaw, v. a. (cynnefnaw) To accustom one's self; to become mutually familiar.

Ymgynnefniad, s. m. (cynnefniad) A familiarizing one's self; a mutually habituating.

Ymgynnull, s. m. (cyanull) A self-collecting; a mutual gathering.

Ymgynnullaw, v. a. (ymgynnull) To self-collect; mutually to collect.

Owedi ybaid ychydig o ddyddion cychaf Buan gwedi ymgynnullaw a' longu ac yn ddygwa wr dir yr Alban.

After the space of a few days behold Buan after having his ships collected together making, a descent on the land of Alban.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgynnullid y dyddid y dan y awd yn h.

Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place.
Genesis i. 9.

Ymgynnaliad, s. m. (ymgynnali) A self-collecting; a mutually assembling.

Ymgynnwys, s. m. (cynnwys) Self-compression; a mutual compactness; mutual admission.

Ymgynnwysaw, v. a. (ymgynnwys) To make one's self compact, to compress one's self; to contain one's self; mutually to compress; mutually to admit.

Ymgynnwysiad, s. m. (ymgynnwys) A containing one's self; a shrinking one's self; a mutually receiving or admitting.

Ymgynnyg, s. m. (cymnyg) A presenting one's self; a mutual offer. v. a. To offer one's self; to offer mutually.

Lly y mas Yabryd Dew yn athrow, yna yr ydys wael ete dodi a'i dderbyddu yn eiddo pob rhyw oadfa a fyddo yn ymgynnyg.

Where the Spirit of God is a teacher, there we are placed carefully to make use of every kind of opportunity, which may be offering itself.
Rev. Quaker.

Ymgynnygiad, s. m. (ymgynnyg) A self-offering; a mutually offering.

Ymgynnyrch, s. m. (cynnyrch) Self-produce; a mutual produce or increase.

Ymgynnyrchiad, s. m. (ymgynnyrch) A self-increasing; a mutually increasing.

Ymgynnyrchu, v. a. (ymgynnyrch) To increase one's self; to increase mutually.

Ymgynghan, s. m. (cynghan) Self-harmony; mutual harmony.

Ymgynghaniad, s. m. (ymgynghan) A self-harmonizing; a mutually harmonizing.

Ymgynghori, v. a. (cynghori) To consult mutually; to consult one's self.

Ymgynghorasant yn erbyn dy rai dirgel di.

They have consulted together against thy hidden ones.

Psalm cx. 3.

Ymgynghoriad, s. m. (cynghoriad) A mutually consulting, a consultation together, a self-counselling.

Ymgynghreiriad, s. m. (cynghreiriad) A giving a mutual pledge; a self-pledging.

Ymgynghreiriaw, v. a. (cynghreiriaw) To give a mutual pledge; to combine together; to pledge one's self.

Dyg Medrawd y goron oddir Arthur o drws a lathiad; ac hi y cadwal efe hi ymgynghreiriad a'r Seceon.

Medrawd took the crown from Arthur through usurpation and adultery; and so that he might keep it what he did was to enter into a mutual compact with the Seceon.
Yridd.

Ymgynlyn, s. m. (cynlyn) Mutual adhesion; a mutual coupling; a self-coupling.

Ymgynlyniad, s. m. (ymgynlyn) A mutually connecting or coupling; a coupling one's self.

Ymgynlynnu, v. a. (cynlynnu) To adhere mutually; to couple mutually; to couple one's self.

Ymgynwystlaw, v. a. (cynwystlaw) To lay a mutual pledge or wager.

Ymgynwystliad, s. m. (cynwystliad) A laying a mutual pledge or wager.

Ymgrych, s. f. (eyrch) A mutual approach; an encounter.

Ymgrychawl, a. (ymgrych) Congressing; encountering, mutually approaching.

Ymgrychiad, s. m. (ymgrych) A mutually approaching, a mutually resorting.

Ymgrychiant, s. m. (ymgrych) A mutual approach, a mutual onset.

Ymgrychu, v. a. (ymgrych) To approach or to resort mutually; to make a mutual onset; to use one's self to resort.

Ymgrychu a wnaet y byddiadau, ac allwag eu gwael i reddeg.

Mutually to attack was what the armies did, and let their blood to flow.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgryhaedd, s. m. (cyrhaedd) A self-reaching; a mutual reach or attainment. v. a. To reach one's self; to attain mutually.

Ymgryhaeddiad, s. m. (ymgryhaedd) A reaching one's self, a mutually reaching or attaining.

Ymgryhaeddyd, v. a. (ymgryhaedd) To reach one's self; to reach or to attain mutually.

Ymgysadliad, s. m. (cysadliad) A matching or comparing one's self; a mutually comparing or vicing.

Ymgysdadiu, v. a. (cysdadiu) To make one's self equal or equivalent; to vie with one another.

Ymgysgiad, s. m. (cysgiad) A sleeping one's self; a mutually sleeping.

Ymgysgodi, v. a. (cysgodi) To shelter one's self; to shelter or to shadow mutually.

Ymgysgodiad, s. m. (cysgodiad) A shadowing one's self; a mutually sheltering.

Ymgysgu, v. a. (cysgu) To sleep one's self; to sleep mutually.

Pan yddoddynt gwerdi gwerdi y byddinodd o heb peth, ac yn ymgysgu hanes, aycha ac huan all dan, oedd i'w oira, yn brylaw, ac yn coddod trwy y goodeoligion fyddinodd.

When they had made an end of arraying the hosts on every side, and just keeping themselves in suspense, beheld the mother of both of them, who was yet alive, hastening and walking through the embattled hosts. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgysgrawl, a. (cysgrawl) Self-consecrating; mutually consecrated.

Ymgysgriad, s. m. (cysgriad) A consecrating one's self; a mutual consecration.

Ymgysgru, v. a. (cysgru) To consecrate one's self; to consecrate mutually.

Ymgysoni, v. a. (cysoni) To make one's self consonant; to become mutually consonant.

Ymgysoniad, s. m. (cysoniad) An according one's self, a mutually according or harmonizing.

Ymgysylltiad, s. m. (cysylltiad) A self-conjoining; a mutually conjoining.

Ymgysylltu, v. a. (cysylltu) To conjoin one's self; to conjoin or to connect mutually.

O anghraifft eu breudd ymgysylltu, ac o'r mwyd symon fedylid hoco ymlaen ac ymgysylltu a theymae nef a orngat.

From the example of their king they gather themselves together, and out of that same baptismal font, purify themselves and ally themselves with the kingdom of heaven, was what they did. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgystiwn, s. m. (cystiwn) Mutual alliance.

Ymgystynawl, a. (cystiwn) Mutually allied.

Ymgystyniad, s. m. (cystiwn) A mutually joining in alliance; a connecting one's self.

Ymgystyn, v. a. (ymgystiwn) To form a mutual alliance; to ally one's self.

Thei gormes gaderu Yna Prydein a gystynat yn un i—Sef cystaf y Cornwal, ac ymgystyn a wneyat ag y Coteiried, oedd synt yn un; ac all o'r tair y bu y Coteiried; tryaded oeddant y Seccon, ac ymgystyn ag ddiwy orall a wneyat, yn erbyn y Cymry.

The three powerful noblemen of the Isle of Britain that combined in one; to be particular, the first was the Cornish, and what they did was to combine themselves with the Cotwarians, so that they became one; and the second of the three were the Cotwarians; the third were the Saxons, and what they did was to combine themselves with the other two, against the Cymry. Triodd.

Ymgystynwr, s. m.—pl. ymgystynwyr (ymgystiwn—gwr) One who joins himself in alliance.

Ymgystynydd, s. m.—pl. t. lon (ymgystiwn) One who joins himself in alliance.

Ymgystuddiad, s. m. (cystuddiad) A distressing or afflicting one's self; a mutually afflicting.

Ymgystuddiaw, v. a. (cystuddiaw) To afflict one's self; to distress one another mutually.

Cyhoeddais ymryd i ymgystuddiaw gor bron ein Dew.

I have proclaimed a fast to afflict ourselves in the presence of God. Ezer 8. 21.

Ymgystuddiwr, s. m.—pl. ymgystuddiwr (cystuddiwr) One who afflicts himself.

Ymgystwyad, s. m. (cystwyad) A chastising one's self; a mutually castigating.

Ymgystwyaw, v. a. (cystwyaw) To chastise one's self; to castigate mutually.

Ymgysuraw, v. a. (cysuraw) To comfort one's self; to afford mutual comfort.

At yn y rhai hyn yr ymgysuraw!
Is it in those that I should receive comfort! Isiah 57. 6.

Ymgysuriad, s. m. (cysuriad) A self-comforting, a mutually comforting.

Ymgystyn, v. a. (cyd—tyn) To agree mutually.

Ymgysweiriad, s. m. (cysweiriad) A putting one's self in order; a preparing one's self; a mutually preparing.

Ymgysweiriaw, v. a. (cysweiriaw) To put one's self in order; mutually to prepare.

Arghwydd, oher Cadebyr, ymgysweiria yn ddiomed, a ddiomed gysweiria oheru Yna Prydein.

My Lord, said Cadebyr, prepare thyself immediately, and come to receive the crown of the Isle of Britain. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymgyswilyddiad, s. m. (cyswilyddiad) A shaming one's self; a mutually shaming.

Ymgyswilyddiaw, v. a. (cyswilyddiaw) To shame one's self; to shame mutually.

Ymgyswiraw, v. a. (cyswiraw) To perfect one's self; to fulfil one's promise; mutually to perfect.

Ymgyswiriad, s. m. (cyswiriad) A perfecting one's self, a making one's self true; a mutually becoming true.

Ymgyswreiniad, s. m. (cyswreiniad) A making one's self accurate or correct; a mutually becoming accurate.

Ymgyswreiniaw, v. a. (cyswreiniaw) To make one's self exact, to adjust one's self; mutually to adjust.

Seif a wnat Down ymgyswreiniaw yn ei cyrwy.

What Down did was to adjust himself in his saddle. Gr. Down—Balaio.

Ymhacriad, s. m. (haerriad) An affirming or asserting one's self; a mutually asserting.

Ymhacriugaw, v. a. (haerriugaw) To make one's self surly or snarling; to become mutually surly.

Ymhacriugiad, s. m. (haerriugiad) A making one's self surly; a becoming mutually surly.

Ymhacru, v. a. (haeru) To assert one's self, to maintain, assert, or affirm mutually.

Ymhagrâd, s. m. (hagrâd) A making one's self ugly; a rendering mutually ugly.

Ymhagrâw, v. a. (hagrân) To make one's self ugly, to become mutually ugly or harsh.

Ymhagriad, s. m. (hagriad) A making one's self ugly or harsh; a becoming mutually ugly.

Ymhagru, v. a. (hagru) To make one's self ugly or harsh; to become mutually harsh.

Ymhalogi, v. a. (halogi) To defile one's self; mutually to pollute.

Nac ymhaloged neb am y mawr.

Let none defile themselves for the dead. Levitic 22. 1.

Ymhalogiad, s. m. (halogiad) A polluting one's self; a mutually polluting.

Ymhalogwr, s. m.—pl. ymhalogwyr (halogiwr) One who defiles himself.

Ymhaniad, s. m. (haniad) A causing one's self to separate or proceed; a mutually proceeding.

Ymhane, v. a. (hane) To separate one's self; to separate or to proceed mutually.

Ymharddiad, s. m. (harddiad) A self-adorning, a mutually adorning.

Ymharddu, v. a. (harddu) To make one's self slightly; to deck one's self; to adorn mutually.

Er mwyn gwyr a beir—ymharddu a harddu.

For the sake of men from after thou hast decked thyself with ornaments. Ecclesi 9. 8.

Ymheddychiad, s. m. (heddychiad) A self-pacifying, a mutually pacifying.

Ymheddychu, v. a. (heddychu) To pacify one's self; to pacify mutually.

Ymhel, s. a. (hel) To employ one's self; to meddle; to meddle mutually. Paid ag ymhel a hwn, cease meddling with this.

Ymhela, v. a. (ymhel) To employ one's self; to meddle; to meddle mutually.

Ymhelaethawl, a. (helaethawl) Self-amplifying, mutually amplifying.

Ymhelaethiad, s. m. (helaethiad) A self-enlarging; self-elongation; a mutually amplifying.

Ymhelaethu, v. a. (helaethu) To amplify one's self; to amplify mutually.

Ymhell, adv. (pell) At a distance, far off.

Ymhellach, adv. (ymhell) At a greater distance.

Ymheneiddiad, s. m. (heneiddiad) A making one's self seem old.

Ymheneiddaw, v. a. (heneiddaw) To make one's self seem old.

Ymherawd, s. m. (perawd) A self-causing.

Ymherawdr, s. m.—pl. ymherodron (ymherawd) That is self-causing; a tyrant; an emperor. It is the same with amherawdr and ymdyberawdr.

Ymherawdr o ddyn, a tyrant of a person. Sil.

Ymherawdwr, s. m.—pl. ymherawdwyr (ymherawd—gwr) One who causeth of himself; an emperor.

Ymhercyd, v. a. (hercyd) To apprehend.

Ymherodraeth, s. m. (ymherawdr) The sway or government of an emperor; an empire.

Ymherodraidd, a. (ymherawdr) Like an emperor.

Ymherodrawl, a. (ymherawdr) Imperial.

Gwedi on hyngymysu ynydd, yr ymherodrawl fyddin hatach a waerwys rhag y Prydeiniaid.

After the mutually mingling of them together, the imperial army presently dispersed before the Britons. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymherodres, s. f. (ymherawdr) An empress.

Em loesgof, am ogledd Ymherodres tes wyt ti.

Gem of the resplendent heaven, for light the empress of radiance art thou. Ll. ab Gwilym, 1^o boud.

Ymheriad, s. m. (heriad) A shewing one's self out; a putting one's self in a posture of defiance; a mutual defying.

Ymheriaw, v. a. (heriaw) To shew one's self out; to put one's self in a threatening posture; to threaten mutually.

Ymheulaw, v. a. (heulaw) To bask in the sun.

Ymheliad, s. m. (heliad) A sunning one's self.

Ymhewydiad, s. m. (hewyd) A self-devoting; a mutually devoting.

Ymhewydu, v. a. (hewydu) To devote one's self; to devote mutually.

O ymhewydu, ymhewydu ddwyfoldob.

In self-devoting, devote thyself to godliness. Adage.

Ymbiliad, s. m. (hiliad) A self-generating; a mutually producing or generating.

Ymbiliaw, v. a. (hiliaw) To self-produce; to produce or generate mutually.

Ymhiraad, s. m. (hiraad) A self-lengthening; a mutually lengthening.

Ymhirau, v. a. (hiraau) To self-lengthen; to lengthen or elongate mutually.

Ymhlegyd, adv. (plegyd) In respect of.

Ymhliith, adv. (pliith) Amongst, in the midst.

Ymhocwi, v. a. (hocwi) To enliven one's self; to be mutually sprightly.

Ymhoffi, v. a. (hoffi) To please one's self; to take delight; to love mutually.

Yr hwn sydd yn tol y nefoddi d chymylas—nid ymhoffa efe yn ogeridra gw.

He who covereth the heavens with clouds; he taketh no pleasure in the joys of a man. Psalm 147. 10.

VOL. II.

Ymhoffiad, s. m. (hoffiad) A pleasing one's self; a taking delight; a mutually loving.

Ymhoffwr, s. m.—pl. ymhoffwyr (hoffwr) One who takes delight.

Ymboli, v. a. (holi) To employ one's self in questioning; to be enquiring; mutually to question. Paid ag ymboli, adoneu with questioning.

Ymboliad, s. m. (holiad) A being questioning; a mutually questioning.

Ymbolwr, s. m.—pl. ymbolwyr (holwr) One who employs himself in questioning.

Ymholydd, s. m.—pl. f. ion (holydd) One who employs himself in questioning; a disputant.

Pa le mae ymholydd y byd hwn!

Where is the disputer of this world! i Corinthisiad 1. 20.

Ymholti, v. a. (holiti) To split one's self; to split mutually.

Ymholtiad, s. m. (holitiad) A splitting one's self; a mutually splitting.

Ymhoni, v. a. (honi) To assert one's self; to avouch, to claim, to challenge for one's self; to assert mutually.

Ymhoniad, s. m. (honiad) An assuming to one's self; a mutually assuming.

Ymhonwr, s. m.—pl. ymhonwyr (honwr) One who assumes or asserts himself.

Ymhuddaw, v. a. (huddaw) To cover one's self.

Ymhuddiad, s. m. (huddiad) A self-covering.

Ymhulliad, s. m. (hulliad) A decking one's self over; a mutually enveloping.

Ymhuliaw, v. a. (huliaw) To deck or envelope one's self; to envelope mutually.

Ymhunaw, v. a. (hunaw) To sleep one's self; to sleep mutually.

Ymhuniad, s. m. (huniad) A sleeping one's self; a mutually sleeping.

Ymhunydd, s. m. (hunydd) Self-repose.

Ac os Dew o nef en ym cysgdi.

Ceinod gan llys iau iau iau ymhunydd.

And if God of heaven but prosper me, fairly placed with the splendid one there will be for me the spot of self-repose. Gwalchmai.

Ymhwedd, s. m. (hwedd) A beseeching earnestly. v. a. To be beseeching; to implore mutually.

Ymhwrdd, s. m. (lwrrdd) A mutual push; a mutual assault. v. a. To make a mutual assault.

Ymhwyll, s. m. (hwyll) A putting one's self in a course; a mutual setting off.

Ymhwyliad, s. m. (ymhwyll) A putting one's self in order or on a course; a mutually setting off.

Ymhwyliaw, v. a. (ymhwyll) To take to one's self a course; mutually to set in order.

Ymhwyliad, s. m. (hyderiad) A self-confiding; a mutually depending.

Ymhwyliaw, v. a. (hyderu) To fill one's self with confidence; a mutually confiding.

Ymhwyliad, s. m. (hyfriad) A self-emboldening; a mutually emboldening.

Ymhwyliaw, v. a. (hyfau) To self-embolden; to embolden mutually.

Ymhwyliad, s. m. (hyfiad) A self-emboldening; a mutually emboldening.

Ymhwyliad, s. m. (hyfrydiad) A self-delighting; a becoming mutually delighted.

Ymhwyliaw, v. a. (hyfrydu) To delight one's self; to be mutually delighted.

Ymhwyliaw, v. a. (hyfu) To embolden one's self; to be mutually assuming confidence.

Ymhwyliaw ar gyhoeddi dyn—ei fod ef mewn cyflwr o eiddaeth yn eiddyn Dew.

I will embolden myself to admonish man, of his being in a state of enmity against God. S. Tryfedydd.

Ymhyliad, s. m. (hylliad) A scaring one's self; a mutually scaring.

Ymhyfin, v. a. (hyllu) To scare one's self; to scare mutually.

Ymhynodi, v. a. (hynodi) To signalize one's self, to signalize mutually.

Ymhynodiad, s. m. (hynodiad) A self-signalizing; a mutually signalizing.

Ymhyrddiad, s. m. (ymhwrdd) A thrusting one's self; a mutually impelling or thrusting.

Ymhyrddu, v. a. (ymhwrdd) To impel or thrust one's self; to thrust mutually.

Ymhyrddwr, s. m.—pl. ymhyrddwyr (ymhwrdd—gwr) One who thrusteth himself.

Ymhyshywiad, s. m. (hyshysiad) An informing one's self; a making one's self known; a mutually informing.

Ymhyshysu, v. a. (hyshysu) To inform one's self; to make one's self known; to inform mutually.

His bod dyn, beiraf wrth honedigedig Israel—yn rai yr ymhyshysu iddynt hwy, wrth eu dynu allan o dir yr Ailph.

Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel: those to whom I have made myself known, in bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt. Ezekiel 30. 9.

Ymiachâad, s. m. (iachâad) A self-healing; a mutually healing; a bidding mutual adieu.

Ymiachâu, v. a. (iachâu) To heal one's self; to heal mutually; to bid farewell to one another.

A chwi pan ymiachawyd, Porfa dŵ y prydall wyl.

With you when I mutually bid farewell, I am the food of worms. Ll. ab Ihywel ab Iau. ab Gwyn.

Ymiassâad, s. m. (iassâad) A pervading one's self with a sudden emotion or shock; a mutually giving a shock.

Ymiassâu, v. a. (iassâu) To pervade one's self with a shock; to shock mutually.

Ymiasiad, s. m. (iasiad) A being affected; a mutually filling with quick emotion.

Ymiassu, v. a. (iassu) To fill one's self with emotion; mutually to shock.

Ymiawl, s. m. (iawl) The employ of one's self in worship; mutual worship.

Ymiolad, s. m. (ymiawl) A being worshipping; a mutually worshipping.

Ymioli, v. a. (ymiawl) To employ one's self in adoration; to worship mutually.

Ni nawr i ddiriad ymioli i Dew, Yn erbyn dydd cryl; Mi theyg dind y trwyg.

It is not common for the mischievous to be employing himself to converse with God, against the day of affliction: the bold thinks not that he shall die. Elaeth.

Ymiraw, v. a. (iraw) To anoint one's self.

Pwy bydd ymiraw a'i lawa anolad, fe wal ei fristau.

Whoever anoints himself with the same anoint, he will see his wounds. Ella W. gy. B. Cwg.

Ymiriad, s. m. (iriad) A self-anointing.

Ymisellad, s. m. (isellad) A self-lowering; a mutually lowering or humbling.

Ymiseln, v. a. (iseln) To humble one's self; mutually to lower or humble.

Ymlacâad, s. m. (llacâad) A slackening one's self; a mutually slackening.

Ymlacâu, v. a. (llacâu) To slacken one's self.

Ymladiad, s. m. (lladiad) A blessing one's self.

Ymladrata, v. a. (lladrata) To employ one's self in stealing; to steal mutually.

Ymladu, v. a. (lladu) To bless one's self.

Ymladd, s. m.—pl. t. an (Hadd) A mutual cutting off; a battle, a fight. v. a. To cut off mutually; to fight.

Sef yw ymladd, dyrchaf, a gownd, a gwand, a gwail.

What constitutes fighting is lifting up the hand, and striking, and blood, and wound. Welsh Lann.

A wydd, eidd Dyfys, ymladdwch traw eidd gwail.

Al, good people, said Dyfys, fight for your country. Gr. ab Arbur.

Er had yn haddu at eiddau, Hi a ymladd dwy eiddau.

Though she is easy to be courted, she will fight through and through. Archa y gwailgodd.

Nid gwath yr ymladd dig no glaw.

Not worse will the wrathful fight than the hawk. Idage.

Ymladdawl, a. (ymladd) Pugnacious, fighting.

Ymladdfa, s. f. (ymladd) A place of battle.

Ymladdgar, a. (ymladd) Pugnacious, fighting.

Ymladdgarwch, s. m. (ymladdgar) Pugnacity.

Ymladdiad, s. m. (ymladd) A fighting.

Ymladdwr, s. m.—pl. ymladdwyr (ymladd—gwr) A fighter.

Ymlaen, adv. (blaen) Before, forward, onward.

Gweth en gwr ymlaen no den yn ol.

Better one word before than two after. Idage.

Ymlaenllaw, adv. (ymlaen—llaw) Before-hand.

Ymlaesiad, s. m. (llaesiad) A self-declining; a decaying gradually or drooping.

Ymlaesu, v. a. (llaesu) To slacken one's self; to decline mutually; to sag; to decline; to become indifferent.

Ymlafniad, s. m. (llafniad) A mutually blinding; a romping, or pulling about.

Ymlafniaw, v. a. (llafniaw) To be mutually blinding; to romp.

Ymlamid, s. m. (llamid) An employing one's self in striding; a mutually striding or skipping.

Ymlamesach, s. m. (llamesach) An employing one's self in skipping; a mutually skipping. v. a.

To be skipping; to skip mutually.

Ymlamu, v. a. (llamu) To employ one's self in striding or skipping; to stride mutually.

Ymlanâad, s. m. (glianâad) A cleansing one's self; a mutually purifying.

Ymlanâu, v. a. (glianâu) To self-clean; to cleanse one's self; mutually to purify.

Tuonellu arwynt ddwr par-digoch—a gorchent eu gwrthod, ac felly ymlanâad.

Sprinkle over them the water of purification: and let them wash their clothes, and so they shall make themselves clean. Samuel 1. 7.

Ymlanâwr, s. m.—pl. ymlanâwyr (glianâwr) One who cleanseth himself.

Ymlanw, v. a. (llanw) To fill one's self; to fill mutually.

Ymlanwad, s. m. (ymlanw) A self-filling; a mutually filling.

Ymlaryeiddiad, s. m. (llaryeiddiad) A self-mollifying, a mutually assuaging.

Ymlaryeiddiaw, v. a. (llaryeiddiaw) To self-assuage, mutually to soften.

Ymlasiad, s. m. (gliasiad) A making one's self pale; a mutually turning blue.

Ymlasau, v. a. (glasu) To make one's self blue, to turn blue or pale mutually.

Ymlawenâad, s. m. (llawenâad) A gladdening one's self, a mutually gladdening.

Ymlawenan, v. a. (llawenâu) To gladden one's self; to gladden mutually.

Ymlaweniad, s. m. (llaweniad) A gladdening one's self; a mutually gladdening.

Ymlawenn, v. a. (llawenn) To gladden one's self; to become mutually glad.

Ymlawenychiad, s. m. (llawenychiad) A causing one's self to exult; a mutually rejoicing.

Ymlawenychnu, v. a. (llawenychnu) To fill one's self with rejoicing; to rejoice mutually.

Ymlawenychwyr, s. m.—pl. ymlawenychwyr (llawenychwyr) One who rejoices in himself.

Ymledd, s. m. (lledd) A self-placing or self-location; a mutually placing.

Ymleddu, v. a. (lleddu) To place one's self; to self-locate, to place mutually.

Ymlechiad, s. m. (llechiad) A hiding one's self; a mutually scuffling.

Ymlechu, v. a. (llechu) To secrete one's self.

Ymlechwyr, s. m.—pl. ymlechwyr (llechwyr) One who hides himself.

Ymledfriad, s. m. (lleddfriad) Self-expansion.

Ymledrithiad, s. m. (lleodrithiad) A making one's self visible and invisible at pleasure; a mutually using delusion.

Ymledrithlaw, v. a. (lleodrithlaw) To make one's self invisible; to use illusion mutually.

Ymledu, v. a. (lledu) To self-expand, to spread one's self; to become diffused; to expand mutually.

Ymlefarfod, s. m. (llefarfod) A self-speaking; a mutually speaking.

Ymlefaru, v. a. (llefaru) To employ one's self in talking; to talk mutually.

Mid hwyf i'w ffarfod i'w ffarfod.

We will not go to one who will not use himself in talking.

Adapt.

Ymleferfrydd, s. m. (lleferfrydd) Dotage, drivelling, deliriousness. v. a. To utter nonsense; to drive, to be delirious.

Mid yw Caden a'r ddrwydded, ddrwydded, a mwyddid gwr yddedd aed ymlleferfrydd aed i'w ffarfod.

Caden, though he was no heated, no indurated, no accurate a man, did only drive with respect to many things. E. Evans.

Ymleff, s. m. (lleff) A quarrelling in words. v. a. To utter out words mutually.

Ymleidd, s. m. (lleidd) A self-lessening; a mutually diminishing.

Ymleiddu, v. a. (lleiddu) To lessen one's self.

Ymleiddiad, s. m.—pl. ymleiddiaid (ymleidd) A combatant.

Ymlenwad, s. m. (ymlanw) A self-filling.

Ymlenwi, v. a. (ymlanw) To fill one's self.

Gwydder ddyng, fli terfing tnerfor swelli gaa, Gwydder al, fli am i'w i'w ymlenwi.

Floric the example possessed by us, like the tumult of the raging sea last while torrent loudly round the shore filling itself.

Or. ab h. ab Boffad.

Ymletgynt, s. m. (lleletgynt) A mutual contact.

Drygwa ymlletgynt;

Coodas a'm doidrwa;

Mid ymletgynt.

We shall have to be mutually coming together; meeting to see are close, so mutually are they sent.

Tellata.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) To lodge one's self; to lodge mutually.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Yr hantid ymlleddu a wneud a'r beth, a'r mwyd gelyd Bafalldu, a' choffi yr llo.

The elders, what they did was to use persuasion with the people for the sake of setting for Bafalldu, and doctryf Jona.

W. Sallbury.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu a' ffarfod Parna.

He shined forth from Mount Parna.

Dowl. 261.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu a' ffarfod Parna.

The guilty will see where he is not pursued.

Adapt.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ieremi a' seith eiddo o Ierusalem, i' ffarfod i' wlad Bafalldu, i' yd-lleddu a' seith eiddo y'n eiddo y llo.

Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, to separate himself thence in the midst of the people.

Ieremi 37. 12.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Rhaid i'w ffarfod.

Ymlleddu a' ffarfod Parna.

I must find fault with thy conduct (filling wine).

D. ab Gwilym, yr bardd.

Ymlleddu a' ffarfod Parna.

A'ch a'ch i'w ffarfod.

Unfortunately we are, that it is of no use, and you bring so no useless, with you to expostulate.

T. Dowl.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymlleddu, v. a. (lleddu) A lodging of one's self; a mutually lodging.

Ymloni, v. a. (llòni) To make one's self cheerful. to recreate one's self; to grow cheerful.
Ymloniad, s. m. (lloniad) A cheering one's self; a being mutually cheerful.
Ymlonychiad, s. m. (llonychiad) A self-cheering; a mutually cheering.
Ymlonychu, v. a. (llonychu) To cheer one's self; to become mutually cheerful.
Ymlonyddiad, s. m. (llonyddiad) A quieting one's self; a mutually quieting.
Ymlonyddu, v. a. (llonyddu) To compose one's self; mutually to quiet.
Ymlosgach, s. m. (llosgach) A giving one's self to incest. v. a. To give one's self to incest.
Ymlongi, v. a. (llongi) To burn one's self; to burn mutually.

Nid eisteddir ar dan heb ymlongi.

There can be no sitting on a fire without burning one's self. Adage.

Gwedi pechu onaddant wr, yd ymlongyt pob an o chwast ei gilydd.

After sinning of them they mutually burned every one with a desire for the other. Blueidavins.

Ymlosiad, s. m. (llosiad) A self-burning; a mutually burning.

Ymluchiad, s. m. (lluchiad) A self-flinging, an employing one's self in casting; a mutually flinging.

Ymluchiaw, v. a. (lluchiaw) To fling one's self; to cast mutually.

Ymluddediad, s. m. (lluddediad) A self-fatiguing; a mutually fatiguing.

Ymluddedigaw, v. a. (lluddedigaw) To self-fatigue; to become mutually fatigued.

Ymluddedigiad, s. m. (lluddedigiad) A self-fatiguing; a becoming mutually fatigued.

Ymluddedu, v. a. (lluddedu) To fatigue one's self; mutually to fatigue.

Ymluniad, s. m. (lluniad) A self-forming.

Ymluniaw, v. a. (lluniaw) To form one's self.

Ymlusgad, s. m. (llusgad) A dragging one's self.

Ymlusgaw, v. a. (llusgaw) To drag one's self along; to creep; to crawl; to slide along; to drag mutually.

Anffawd a ddaw dan redeg, se a ll ymshib dan ymlusgaw.

Malfortune will come on a man, and will go away with dragging herself along. Adage.

Ymlusgawli, a. (llusgawli) Self-dragging.

Ymlusgiad, s. m.—pl. ymlusgiad (llusgiad) A creeping or crawling thing.

Ymlusgwr, s. m.—pl. ymlusgwyr (llusgwr) One who drags himself or creeps along.

Ymlutrodi, v. a. (llutrodi) To besmear one's self; mutually to besmear.

Ymlutrodiad, s. m. (llutrodiad) A besmearing one's self; a mutually besmearing.

Ymlnyddu, v. a. (llnyddu) To prepare one's self for hostility; mutually to become hostile.

Ymlwybran, v. a. (llwybrau) To be moving one's self sluggishly along.

Ymlwybraw, v. a. (llwybraw) To move one's self sluggishly, or to crawl along.

Ymlwybriad, s. m. (llwybriad) A moving one's self sluggishly along; a crawling.

Ymlwyth, s. m. (llwyth) A self-burdening; a mutual burden.

Ymlwythaw, v. a. (ymlwyth) To burden one's self; mutually to burden.

Gwnaf Ierusalem yn faw trwm i yr holl bobloedd; pawb a ymbytho ag yf ddiar a rygyl.

I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone to all the people; all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces. Zecharia 12. 3.

Ymlwythiad, s. m. (ymlwyth) A burdening one's self; a mutually burdening.

Ymlydaniad, s. m. (llydaniad) A making one's self wide or broad; a mutually widening.

Ymlydann, v. a. (llydann) To make one's self broad; to expand mutually.

Ymlyfiad, s. m. (llyfiad) A licking one's self; a mutually licking with the tongue.

Ymlyfu, v. a. (llyfu) To lick one's self; to lick mutually, to lick one another.

Ymlygrawli, a. (llygrawli) Self-corrupting; mutually corrupting or defiling.

Ymlygriad, s. m. (llygriad) A self-corrupting; a mutually corrupting or defiling.

Ymlygru, v. a. (llygru) To corrupt one's self; to corrupt or defile mutually.

Pan fyddai farw y barawyr, dychwylant ac ymlygrynt yn fwy nag eu tadde.

When the judges should die, they would return and they would corrupt themselves more than their fathers. Barawyr 2. 10.

Ymlygrwr, s. m.—pl. ymlygrwyr (llygrwr) One who corrupts or defiles himself.

Ymlymâd, s. m. (llymâd) A sharpening one's self; a mutually sharpening.

Ymlymâu, v. a. (llymâu) To sharpen one's self; to sharpen mutually.

Ymlyn, s. m. (glyn) Cohesion, or adherence.

O dri pheth y syrth angen abred ar ddyu; anyngais a gwybodaeth, anymlyn ar y da, ac ymllyn ar y drwg; aed y syrth gwa hys o berbas hyd ei gdryw yn abred, a theudwr yn ei fal y llyngaf.

From three causes will the destiny of the incarnate transmission fall on man; a disregard of knowledge, non-adherence with the good, and adherence to the evil; that is, he will fall for these things to his correspondent state in the incarnate circle, and transmigrate back, as at first. Burdens.

Ymlynawli, a. (ymlyn) Self-adherent; adherent; mutually adhering.

Ymlyngi, s. m.—pl. i. on (ymlyn—ci) A following dog, a dog that follows by scent.

Ymlynriad, s. m.—pl. ymlynriad (ymlyn) An adherent; a follower.

Gwasd cerchbwg ymlynriad.

The amorous is accustomed to be a follower. Adage.

Gwell on coldwr se dan ymlynriad.

One keeper is better than two pursuers. Adage.

Ymlynn, v. a. (ymlyn) To adhere; to follow; to adhere mutually.

Tri chydgyfran dya; abred a gwybodaeth, angen a rhyddyd, a drwg a da; se oelli yn gydwyr, a gullu gan dda ymlyn wrth yr m a fydd.

The three co-participations of man; transmission and intellectual perfection, necessity and liberty, and good and evil; and all equiperforate, and man having the power to adhere to whichever he will. Burdens.

Ymlynwr, s. m.—pl. ymlynwyr (ymlyn—gwr) An adherer, or a follower.

Ymlysiad, s. m. (llysiad) A self-discarding; a mutually discarding.

Ymlysiad, v. a. (ymlysiad) To divest one's self; to run wildly, as cattle do in hot weather; also called Moelysodda.

Ymlysu, v. a. (llysu) To discard one's self; to discard mutually.

Ymlythiad, s. m. (glythiad) A self-gorging.

Ymlythu, v. a. (glythu) To gorge one's self.

Ymlythwr, s. m.—pl. ymlythwyr (glythwr) One who gorges himself.

Ymlywiad, s. m. (llywiad) A conducting one's self; a shifting for one's self; a mutually managing.

Ymlywiau, v. a. (llywiau) To conduct one's self; to shift for one's self. Ymlywiau ag y byd, to shift for one's self with the world.

Ymmod, s. m. (mod) Motion. v. a. To move.

Ymmod prae ni ddell fwr ymmod.

To shake a tree that will not bear to be shaken. Adage.

Ymmodadwy, a. (ymmod) Moveable.

Ymmodawl, a. (ymmod) Moving. Ymmodellion, moving things.

Ymmodbren, s. m.—pl. t. l (ymmod—pren) A stirring stick.

Ymmodedig, a. (ymmod) Being moved.

Ymmodi, v. a. (ymmod) To move, to stir.

Ymmodiad, s. m. (ymmod) A moving, a stirring.

Ymmodoldeb, s. m. (ymmodawl) Moveableness.

Ymmodrwydd, s. m. (ymmod) Moveableness.

Ymmodwr, s. m.—pl. ymmodwyr (ymmod—gwr) A mover, a stirrer, an agitator.

Ymnabod, s. m. (nabod) Mutual acquaintance. v. a. To be acquainted.

Goreu adnabod ymnabod dy hunan.

The best acquaintance is to be acquainted of thyself.

Coleridge Dialect.

Ymnacâd, s. m. (nacâd) A refusing one's self; a mutually refusing.

Ymnacân, v. a. (nacân) To refuse one's self; to refuse mutually.

Ymnawdd, s. m. (nawdd) A being a protection.

Ymnoddi, v. a. (ymnawdd) To be employed in protecting.

Ymnedd, s. m. (nedd) Earnest entreaty. v. a. To beseech earnestly; to use mutual persuasion.

Ymneddawl, a. (ymnedd) Entreating; persuasive.

Ymneddiad, s. m. (ymnedd) An entreating, a using persuasion; a mutually persuading.

Ymneddu, v. a. (ymnedd) To employ one's self in entreaty; to entreat earnestly; to persuade; to entreat mutually.

Y tyliwdd—pa faint mwy yr ymbellâd a'i gyffwrddion oddiwrtho! ar maint a ymnedd, ni throsai ato.

The poor: how much more do his friends go far from him! however he may pursue them with words, they will not turn to him. Dialectical 15. 7.

Ymneddwr, s. m.—pl. ymneddwyr (ymnedd—gwr) One who entreats.

Ymneilltuad, s. m. (neilltnad) A putting one's self aside; a mutually going aside.

Ymneilltuaeth, s. m. (neilltuaeth) Self-recession; a mutual recession.

Ymneilltuaw, v. a. (neilltuaw) To put one's self aside; mutually to go aside.

Ymneilltuad, atollwg, oddiwrthaf.

Separate thyself, I pray thee, from me. Genesis 12. 9.

Ymneilltaw, a. (neilltaw) Self-separating; mutually separating.

Ymneilltuwr, s. m.—pl. ymneilltuwyr (neilltuwr) One who separates himself, a separatist.

Ymnerthawl, a. (nerthawl) Self-strengthening; mutually strengthening.

Ymnerthiad, s. m. (nerthiad) A self-strengthening; a mutually fortifying.

Ymnerthu, v. a. (nerthu) To strengthen one's self; to strengthen mutually.

Ymnerthed eich dwylaw, a byddwch feibion grymus.

Let your hands be strengthened, and be ye valiant men. 3 Samuel 2. 7.

Ymnerthwr, s. m.—pl. ymnerthwyr (nerthwr) One who strengthens himself.

Ymnesâd, s. m. (nesâd) A drawing one's self near; a mutually drawing near.

Ymnesâwl, a. (nesâwl) Tending to draw one's self near; mutually approaching.

Ymnesân, v. a. (nesân) To draw one's self near; to draw near mutually.

Ymnesiad, s. m. (nesiad) A putting one's self near; a mutually moving nearer.

Ymnesu, v. a. (nesu) To move one's self near; to move near mutually.

Ymnewid, s. m. (newid) A change of one's self; a mutual change. v. a. To change one's self; to change mutually.

Ymnewidiad, s. m. (ymnewid) A changing of one's self, a mutually changing.

Ymnewidiaw, v. a. (ymnewid) To change one's self; to change mutually.

Ymndraw, v. a. (nidraw) To entangle one's self; to entangle mutually.

Ymndriad, s. m. (nidriad) A self-entangling; a mutually entangling.

Ymneifeiriad, s. m. (nifeiriad) A self-increasing in number, a mutually making numerous.

Ymneifeiriaw, v. a. (nifeiriaw) To self-increase in number; to become numerous mutually.

Self a orug Gwafudd ab Rhys—dochreu ymlwyddu. a gwy eige-nedi ac ei caru yn ymneifeiriaw teag ato.

What Gwafudd son of Rhys did was to begin to form an army, and the men of his nation gathering themselves in numbers towards him. Caradoc o Lan Cerrfan.

Ymnoddi, v. a. (noddi) To self-protect, to seek refuge, to protect mutually.

Ymnoddiad, s. m. (noddiad) A self-protecting; a mutually protecting.

Ymnoethi, v. a. (noethi) To self-denude, to expose one's self, mutually to expose.

Noah—a yfai o'r gwia, ac a feddwal, ac a ymnoethai yn eghenol ei bachel.

Noah drank of the wine, and was drunken, and he uncovered himself within his tent. Genesis 9. 31.

Ymnoethiad, s. m. (noethiad) A making one's self naked; a mutually exposing.

Ymnofiad, s. m. (nofiad) A swimming one's self, a mutually swimming.

Ymnofiaw, v. a. (nofiaw) To swim one's self, to swim mutually.

Ni wach guddo pry a foddio, os gall eie ymnofiaw.

He cares not who shall be drowned, if he can swim himself. Adage.

Ymwyfaw, v. a. (nwyfaw) To enliven one's self, mutually to wanton.

Ymwyfiad, s. m. (nwyfiad) A self-enlivening; a mutually wantoning.

Ymnyddiad, s. m. (nyddiad) An entwining one's self; a mutually entwining.

Ymnyddu, v. a. (nyddu) To entwine one's self.

Ymnythiad, s. m. (nythiad) A nestling one's self; a mutually nestling.

Ymnythu, v. a. (nythu) To nestle one's self, a mutually nestling.

Ymo, adv. (wm—o) Aptly forthcoming.

Breigllym orwyddawr roddion ymo.

Steeds amply swift the gifts aptly coming forth. Llygad Gwr.

Ymobeithiad, s. m. (gobeithiad) A filling one's self with hope, a mutually hoping.

Ymobeithiaw, v. a. (gobeithiaw) To fill one's self with hope, mutually to hope.

Ymobryn, s. m. (gobryn) A mutual bargain. v. a. To bargain mutually.

Ymobryn a waad s'r wraig feithrin y mab.

He entered into a bargain with the woman to nurse the boy. Mabingl.

Ymobryniad, s. m. (ymobryn) A mutually bargaining, a self-bargaining.

Ymochel, s. m. (gochel) An avoidance or eschewing; a mutual avoidance.

Ymochelgar, a. (ymochel) Apt to take care of one's self, apt mutually to avoid.

Ymocheliad, s. m. (ymochel) A taking heed of one's self, a mutually avoiding.

Ymochelwyr, s. m.—pl. ymochelwyr (ymochel—gwr) One who takes care of himself.

Ymochelyd, v. a. (ymochel) To take heed of one's self; mutually to avoid.

*Rhag yr hyn olli a diymodais wrth y wrain, ymochelais hi.
Of all that I have said unto the woman, let her beware.*
Barwnyr 12. 13.

Ymodinebu, v. a. (godinebu) To commit adultery.
Gurtheyrn Gurthennau a roddes Ynys Daned—am gael ymodinebu a Rhonwen.
Yn the form of repulsive lips gave the Isle of Thimmet her laws to commit adultery with Rowena. Ymodid.

Ymodwrdd, s. m. (godwrdd) The engaging one's self in a tumult, a mutual tumult. v. a. To engage one's self in a tumult, to raise a mutual tumult.

Ymoddef, s. m. (goddef) A self-sufferance, mutual forbearance. v. a. To suffer one's self; to forbear mutually.

Ymoddefawl, a. (ymoddef) Self-suffering, of mutual forbearance or suffering.

Ymoddefiad, s. m. (ymoddef) A suffering one's self, a mutually bearing.

Ymoddefu, v. a. (ymoddef) To suffer one's self, to forbear or to bear mutually.

Ymoddefwr, s. m.—pl. ymoddefwyr (ymoddef—gwr) One who suffers himself.

Ymoedi, v. a. (oedi) To delay one's self, to delay or linger mutually.

Ymoediad, s. m. (oediad) A delaying one's self; a mutually delaying.

Ymoerfola, v. a. (ymoeri) To seek cool retreats.

Ymoeri, v. a. (oeri) To cool one's self.

Ymoeriad, s. m. (oeriad) A cooling one's self; a mutually cooling.

Ymoefaliad, s. m. (gofaliad) A making one's self careful; a mutually caring.

Ymoefala, v. a. (gofala) To make one's self careful; to be careful; to care mutually.

*Ymoefalu am folt,
I was rather arch Un a Turk.*

Let us be careful in adoring, to fulfil the command of the One and Three.
D. ab Edmwnd.

Ymoefalwr, s. m. (gofalwr) One who is careful.

Ymofeg, s. f. (gofeg) The having an impulse of the mind; an idea.

*I myd daeth ymofeg
Ymofyn prwy yu'r dyn dog.*

An idea occurred to me of enquiring into the fair person can be.
D. ab Gwilym.

Ymofegiad, s. m. (gofeg) A forming an idea.

Ymofidiad, s. m. (gofidiad) A painning one's self; a mutually afflicting.

Ymofidiaw, v. a. (gofidiaw) To pain one's self; mutually to afflict.

Ymofidia a griddfarn, meroh Stout

Be thou in pain, and do thou groan, daughter of Zion!
Micah 4. 10.

Ymofidiwr, s. m.—pl. ymofidiwyr (gofidiwr) One who puts himself in pain.

Ymofui, v. a. (ofui) To fill one's self with fear; mutually to become fearful.

Ymofniad, s. m. (ofniad) A filling one's self with fear; a mutually fearing.

Ymofwyad, s. m. (gofwyad) A visiting one's self; an employing one's self in visiting; a mutually visiting.

Ymofwyaw, v. a. (gofwyaw) To visit one's self; to employ one's self in visiting; to visit mutually.

Ymofyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (gofyn) The employ of one's self in asking; a mutual asking; an enquiry. v. a. To enquire.

*Ni wyf ond a welyd;
Nid dyfyni ond a ymofyn.*

We are known that who has seen, and our to informant that who should have enquired.
Adams.

Ymofynawl, a. (ymofyn) Enquiring.

Ymofynblaid, s. f. (ymofyn—plaid) The seeking party; a plaintiff.

Ymofyngar, a. (ymofyn) Inquisitive; prying.

Ymofyngarwch, s. m. (ymofyn) Inquisitiveness.

Ymofyniad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymofyn) An inquiring or seeking.

Ymofyniedydd, s. m. (ymofyniad) An inquirer.

Ymofynwr, s. m. (ymofyn—gwr) An inquirer.

Ymofynyd, v. a. (ymofyn) To inquire.

Ymofynydd, s. m. (ymofyn) An inquirer.

Ymogan, s. f. (gogan) Self-ridicule; mutual banter.

Ymoganiad, s. m. (ymogan) A ridiculing one's self; a mutually ridiculing.

Ymogana, v. a. (ymogan) To ridicule one's self; to banter mutually.

Ymogawr, s. m. (gogawr) A shelter; a dwelling.

Gwae yr hen a gollu o ymogawr.

Woe to the aged who shall have lost his dwelling. Taliesin.

Ymogel, s. m. (gogel) Self-error; mutual weakness.

Ymogelaw, a. (ymogel) Apt to avoid; wary.

Ymogelgar, a. (ymogel) Apt to avoid; wary.

Ymogellad, s. m. (ymogel) A taking care of one's self; an avoiding; a mutually avoiding.

Ymogelus, a. (ymogel) Apt to take care; mutually apt to avoid.

Ymogelw, s. m.—pl. ymogelwys (ymogel—gwr) One who takes care of himself; one who avoids.

Ymogelyd, v. a. (ymogel) To take care of one's self; to avoid; to avoid mutually.

Gwaith ydys ymogelyd.

It is right work to avoid. Adams.

A wheel drew ymogelyd.

Who doth evil let him take care of himself. Adams.

A ymogelo rhag dys ni ymogel rhag Daw.

He that shall protect himself against man will not protect the self against God. Adams.

Ymogoneddiad, s. m. (gogoneddiad) A self-glorifying; a mutually glorifying.

Ymogoneddu, v. a. (gogoneddu) To glorify one's self; to glorify mutually.

Ti fy agwos, Israel, yr hys yr ymogoneddudd ymoh.

Thou my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.
Ezekiel 38. 1.

Ymogoni, v. a. (gogoni) A becoming elated or proud.

Ymogoni a wneyd y gwyr o welfo os gogoneddu.

The men become elated from seeing their wives.
Micah 6. 8. Adams.

Ymogoniannu, v. a. (gogoniannu) To exult one's self in triumph.

Ymogoriad, s. m. (ymogawr) A sheltering.

Ymogoriaw, v. a. (ymogawr) To shelter one's self.

Ym gogawr yd ymogoria dyn ag of, cadwch ymoh o agwos.

As to a shelter that a person shall shelter himself with, let every body keep his shelter.
Wolch Llan.

Ymoguddiad, s. m. (goguddiad) A partly self-hiding; a mutually hiding partly.

Ymoguddiaw, v. a. (goguddiaw) To hide one's self partly; mutually to hide partly.

Ymogwyddaw, v. a. (gogwyddaw) To incline one's self; a mutually inclining.

Ymogwyddiad, s. m. (gogwyddiad) An inclining one's self; a mutually inclining.

Ymogwarch, s. m. (gogwarch) A partly greeting or noticing mutually.

Ymogfartaliad, s. m. (gogyfartaliad) A rendering one's self partly equal; a mutually becoming partly equal.

Ymogfartain, v. a. (gogyfartain) To make one's self partly equal.

Ymogfuchiad, s. m. (gogyfuchiad) A rendering one's self equally exalted, a mutually becoming equally exalted.

Ymogfuchlaw, v. a. (gogyfuchlaw) To render one's self equally exalted: mutually to become equally exalted.

Pan weloed ei ei fod yn rhagori ar holl raddau yr enghylion o eiddoedd i'w thrwydd, gan ddrwyddu pawb, o'r arfithol ymogfuchlaw a Ddu.

When he perceived that he was surpassing all the orders of angels in glory and beauty, by contemplating every one, he formed the design to exalt himself equally with God. Heracles.

Ymogylchiad, s. m. (gogyylchiad) A partly surrounding one's self, a mutually surrounding partly.

Ymogylchu, v. a. (gogyylchu) To self-encircle partly, mutually to surround partly.

Ymogynniad, s. m. (gogyynniad) A rendering one's self elated, a mutually elating.

Ymogynnu, v. a. (gogyynnu) To make one's self elated, mutually to elate.

Ymogynnu a orng Constant, ac addaw i Wrtheyrn gade iddo ei hyntu y deyrnas.

What Constant did was to elate himself, and promise Gorthyrn to leave to him the government of the kingdom. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymogynnu a orng Uthyr, ac ymdroliu ar yr elawr—a dywedyd—galwasant G yn baner marw: ys gwell yr baner marw a orfo nor byw cwbl y gorff arno.

What Uthyr did was to elate himself, and turn himself on the lister, with saying, then better is the half dead that conquers than the completely living who is conquered. Gr. ab Arthur.

Ymolod, s. m. (golod) A self-wallowing.

Ymolchfa, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (golchfa) A lavatory.

Ymolchi, v. a. (golchi) To wash one's self.

Ymolchiad, s. m. (golchiad) A washing one's self, a mutually washing.

Ymolenthiaw, v. a. (golenthiaw) To self-worship, mutually to flatter.

Ymoloi, v. a. (goloi) To lie down, to wallow.

A llywyd ar y doman a gar ymoloi yn y dom.

That is bred upon the danglell loves to wallow in the dangle. Adapt.

Ymolli, v. a. (olli) To grasp, to lay hold.

Perolida—ydddi y mas pyramos, mae'n a llyg y llaw a'i hysolli.

Perolida, in there is the pyramid, a stone that burns the hand that shall lay hold of it. Delw y Byd.

Ymolliad, s. m. (olliad) A grasping, a holding.

Ymolliwng, s. m. (gollwng) To let or loosen one's self, mutually to let go.

Trocoron oddiwrth y byd bach, a throos y cyfng ymolliwngsom i yr wlad drwyddu, rhwyg y ddu lly, i y gwagle hyl.

We turned away from the little world, and over the intermediate region, we dropped ourselves to the eternal country, between the two courts, into the terrible void. Sis Wyn, B. Cwrg.

Ymolliygawl, a. (ymolliwng) Self-loosening, mutually loosening.

Ymolliygadi, s. m. (ymolliwng) A letting one's self off; a mutually letting go.

Ymommedd, s. m. (gommedd) A self-refusal; a mutual refusal. v. a. To refuse one's self; to refuse mutually.

Rhen nef a'i rhoddo ni ran trugaredd, Teyrn-iroo tanc erom heb ymommedd.

The Sovereign of heaven give as a portion of the mercy of the royal bosom of peace, for our sake without inclining himself to refuse. Gr. ab Yr Ynad Coch.

Ymorlaw, s. m. (gorlaw) An inquiry, a seeking. v. a. To inquire.

Ymorlawd, s. m. (ymorlaw) An inquiring.

Ymorbyll, s. m. (gorbyll) A self-persuading; a mutual persuasion.

Dylid ymorbyll i dynion drwg, a cheislaw eu darweld at ddadlaid a doethineb.

It is necessary to use persuasion with bad men, and endeavour to allure them to goodness and wisdom. Barddas.

Ymorbyllaw, v. a. (ymorbyll) To employ one's self in persuading; to persuade mutually; to persuade.

Ymorbylliad, s. m. (ymorbyll) A being persuading; a mutually persuading.

Ymorchest, s. f. (gorchest) Self-exertion; mutual exertion or emulation.

Ymorchestawl, a. (ymorchest) Self-exerting; mutually striving, mutually emulous.

Ymorchestfa, s. f.—pl. ymorchestfeydd (ymorchest) A place for feats or games.

Ymorchestgar, a. (ymorchest) Apt to exert one's self; mutually emulous.

Ymorchestiad, s. m. (ymorchest) A striving to excel; a mutual emulation.

Ymorchestu, v. a. (ymorchest) To employ one's self in excelling; to strive mutually for excellence; to struggle together; to emulate.

Yr ydym yn ymorchestu—ela bod yn gymeradwy ganddo ef.

We are labouring that we be acceptable with him. 2 Corinthiaid s. 2.

Ymorchestwr, s. m.—pl. ymorchestwyr (ymorchest—gwr) One who strives to excel.

Ymorchuddiad, s. m. (gorchuddiad) A self-covering, a mutually covering over.

Ymorchuddlaw, v. a. (gorchuddlaw) To cover over one's self; to cover over mutually.

Merch weddw heb ymorchuddlaw.

A single woman without entering into coverture. T. Alad.

Ymorchwydd, s. m. (gorchwydd) A self-swelling, a filling one's self with rage; mutual rage. v. a. To swell with rage; to swell with mutual rage.

Cynwan torf terfysg ymorchwydd, Cynwaaw gwyth gwellfudding arglwydd.

The foremost rank of a host of the tumult of mutual outrage, there the foremost appear of wrath a conquering chieftain brave. Cynddew, m. O. Gwynedd.

Llyw giyw glow yn ymorchwydd.

The leader of a brave prince swelling himself with rage. Frydded Dyddan.

Ymorchwyddaw, v. a. (ymorchwydd) To swell one's self with rage, to grow mutually enraged.

Ymorchwyddiad, s. m. (ymorchwydd) A swelling one's self with rage.

Ymorchwyliad, s. m. (gorchwyliad) A self-occupying; a mutually working.

Ymorchwyliaw, v. a. (gorchwyliaw) To employ one's self; to operate mutually.

Ymorchymyniad, s. m. (gorchymyniad) A self-commending; a mutually desiring.

Ymorchymynu, v. a. (gorchymynu) To self-commend; to desire mutually.

I ddaw a Dewi ydd ymorchymynu.

To God and Dewi they were commending themselves. Golyddan, drnce Pryddan.

Ymorddiweddiad, s. m. (gorweddiad) An advancing one's self to an end; a making one's self to surpass; a mutually advancing to an equality.

Ymorddiweddu, v. a. (gorddiweddu) To make one's self to come up, to advance one's self to an equality; mutually to advance to an end.

Megys nad ymorddiweddau en creadur i Dew, ag of yn ymorddiweddau a phob peth; felly nid oes un creadur o'r wter a allu ymorddiweddau s'r euall, canys of ymorddiweddau a phob creadur gwelid.

As no creature advanceth itself to be equal with God; and he self advancing to be present with every thing; so there is not one creature, which is seen, that can advance itself equal with the soul for it advanceth itself to be present with every visible creature. Blacidarius.

Ymorddiwes, s. m. (gorddiwes) A mutual overtaking; the making one's self to overtake.

Ymorddiwesiad, s. m. (ymorddiwes) A making one's self to overtake.

Ymorddiwesau, v. a. (ymorddiwes) To overtake mutually; to make one's self to overtake.

Ymorfoleddiad, s. m. (gorfoleddiad) A mutually exulting; a self-exulting.

Ymorfoleddu, v. a. (gorfoleddu) To exult mutually; to exult in one's self.

Ymorfoleddwr, s. m.—pl. ymorfoleddwyr (gorfoleddwr) One who exults mutually, one who exults in himself.

Ymorfod, s. m. (gorfod) A self-conquest, a mutual conquest. v. a. To conquer one's self, to conquer mutually.

Ymorfodiad, s. m. (ymorfod) A self-conquering, a mutually conquering.

Ymorfoli, v. a. (gorfoli) To vaunt mutually, to vaunt one's self.

*Ymorfoli am a orfo,
Ymorfoli i hys ym mla lla.*

He vaunts himself as to what he accomplished, threatening with a blade in front of a host. Iolo Goch.

Ymorphwys, s. m. (gorphwys) A resting one's self, a mutual rest. v. a. To rest one's self, to rest mutually.

Ymorphwysaw, v. a. (ymorphwys) To rest one's self; to rest mutually.

Ymorheula, v. a. (gor—heula) To bask one's self in the sun. s. m. The seeking of sunshine.

Dewiath—Ymorheula pen mynydd.

A choice enjoyment—the seeking of the sunshine of a mountain top. Adage.

Ymorheuliad, s. m. (gor—heuliad) A basking one's self in the sun.

Ymorhoffi, v. a. (gorhoffi) To delight one's self extremely; mutually to take extreme delight or fondness.

Ymorhoffiad, s. m. (gorhoffiad) A delighting one's self extremely; a mutually loving extremely.

Ymorllaesiad, s. m. (gorllaesiad) A self-trailing.

Ymorllaesu, v. a. (gorllaesu) To trail one's self.

Ymorlwyn, s. m. (gorlwyn) A mutual escort; a self-protection.

Ymorlwyniad, s. m. (ymorlwyn) A mutually escorting; a self-protecting.

Ymorneat, s. f. (gorneat) A mutual combat.

Ymorneatiad, s. m. (ymorneat) A mutually combating; an employing one's self in combat.

Ymorneatu, v. a. (ymorneat) To combat mutually, to employ one's self in combat.

Ymorneatwr, s. m.—pl. ymorneatwyr (ymorneat—gwr) One employed in combating.

Ymorol, s. m. (gorol) The act of seeking.

Ymorolgar, s. m. (ymorol) Inquisitive, seeking.

Ymoroli, v. a. (ymorol) To enquire, to seek.

Ymorsaf, s. f. (gorsaf) A station where one fixes himself.

Gwrtw dy wled—

A'th folechla'n a'th falc' ymorsaf.

Glorious to behold thee, with thy notched blade and thy exalted station. Cynddelw, i H. ab Owain.

Ymorsafiad, s. m. (ymorsaf) A stationing one's self, a mutually stationing.

Ymorsafu, v. a. (ymorsaf) To station one's self, to station mutually.

Ymortho, s. m. (gortho) A self-envelopment.

Ymorthoad, s. m. (ymortho) A self-enveloping.

Ymorthoi, v. a. (ymortho) To self-envelope.

Ymorthous, a. (ymortho) Self-enveloping.

Ymoruchafiad, s. m. (goruchafiad) A self-exaltation, a mutually exalting.

Ymoruchafaiad, s. m. (goruchafaiad) An assuming to one's self pre-eminence, a mutually assuming pre-eminence.

Ymoruchafiaethu, v. a. (goruchafiaethu) To assume to one's self pre-eminence, to assume pre-eminence mutually.

Ymoruchafu, v. a. (goruchafu) To exalt one's self, to exalt mutually.

Ymorwyliad, s. m. (gorwyliad) The using one's self to watch or overlook.

Ymorwyliaw, v. a. (gorwyliaw) To use one's self to watch or overlook.

Ymorwyth, s. m. (gorwyth) An enraging. v. a. To put one's self in a rage.

Ymorwythaw, v. a. (gorwythaw) To put one's self in a rage, to enrage mutually.

Ymorwythiad, s. m. (gorwythiad) A putting one's self in a rage, a mutually enraging.

Ymosawd, s. m. (gosawd) A setting or placing one's self, a mutual onset. v. a. To place one's self, to set on mutually, to assault.

A'th wrodd rudd yn rhoi ymosawd.

With thy roddy spear dreadfully assaulting. L. P. Mack.

Ymosgoad, s. m. (oegoad) A mutually going aside or avoiding, a withdrawing one's self aside.

Ymosgöi, v. a. (oegöi) To shun mutually, to withdraw one's self aside.

Ymosgorddi, v. a. (gosgorddi) To surround one's self with a retinue, mutually to form a retinue.

Ymosgorddiad, s. m. (gosgorddiad) A surrounding one's self with a retinue, a mutually forming a retinue.

Ymosgrain, s. m. (gosgrain) A crawling along.

Ymosgreiniad, s. m. (ymosgrain) A dragging one's self along, a crawling along.

Ymosgreiniaw, v. a. (ymosgrain) To drag one's self along, to crawl along.

Pe gwelid ddiawg y drag a'th cry, ofc a ymosgreiniad o'i lwyddi rhag ofc a chywilydd.

If the lazy were to see the evil that awaits him, he would drag himself out of his cloth for fear and shame. Cynan Iorwerth.

Ymosgryd, s. m. (gosgryd) A self-trepidation; mutual trepidation.

Ymosgrydiad, s. m. (ymosgryd) A mutually trembling; a making one's self to quake.

Ymosgrydiaw, v. a. (ymosgryd) To tremble mutually; to cause one's self to tremble.

Ymosgryn, s. m. (gosgryn) A mutual shock, a self-agitation.

*Gaudd goego gosgryd yn ddiha
Fai ymosgryn mawr gwr Gwladus;
Gaudd canol folaet, fai Arian Ffridd, Nau farddwardd Arian.*

The character of a host running away is like the great mutual perturbation of the about of Canine; it is characteristic for me to sing an eulogy, like Arian Verddig, or like the heroic host of Arian.

Cynadell, i H. ab Owain.

Ymosgryniad, s. m. (ymosgryn) A mutually concussing; a causing a self-perturbation.

Ymosgrynnu, v. a. (ymosgryn) To concuss mutually; to agitate one's self; to give one's self a shock.

Ymosmeithiad, s. m. (gosmeithiad) A self-provisioning; a mutually provisioning.

Ymosmeithaw, v. a. (gosomeithaw) To furnish one's self with provision; to provide mutually.
Ymosodawl, s. m. (ymosawd) Relating to self-placing; relating to mutual onset.

Ymosodi, v. a. (ymosawd) To self-place; to attack mutually.

Ymosodiad, s. m. (ymosawd) A placing one's self; a mutually placing; a setting on mutually.

Ymosodwr, s. m.—pl. ymosodwyr (ymosawd-gwr) One who places himself.

Ymostegiad, s. m. (gostegiad) A silencing one's self; a mutually silencing.

Ymostegu, v. a. (gostegu) To silence one's self; to silence mutually.

Ymostwng, s. m. (postwng) Self-debasement, self-humiliation, self-submission; a mutual lowering. v. a. To bring one's self down; to make a bow.

Ymostyngawl, s. m. (ymostwng) Self-debasing.

Ymostyngar, s. m. (ymostwng) Self-submissive.

Ymostyngiad, s. m. (ymostwng) A lowering of one's self; self-humiliation; self-condescension; a bowing one's self; a mutually lowering.

Ympryd, s. m.—pl. t. ian (pryd) A fast.

Ymprydiad, s. m. (ympryd) A fasting.

Ymprydiaw, v. a. (ympryd) To keep a fast.

Ymprydiawl, s. m. (ympryd) Relating to a fast.

Ymprydiwr, s. m.—pl. ymprydiwyr (ympryd-gwr) One who keeps a fast.

Ymrabin, s. m. (grabin) A mutual grasping. v. a. To clasp, close, or grapple together.

With ymrabin y mae y cithau yn ymgwrs.

By claswing together it is that the ciths shew their love.

Adage.

Ymrabinlad, s. m. (grabin) A mutually grasping.

Ymrabinlaw, v. a. (ymrabin) To grasp mutually.

Ymrfael, s. f.—pl. t. lon (rhy—gafael) Contention, variance, or strife. Tori yr ymrfael, to break the dispute.

Ymrfaelgar, s. m. (ymrfael) Contentious.

Ymrfaelgarwch, s. m. (ymrfaelgar) Contentiousness, a state of mutual wrangling.

Ymrfaeliad, s. m. (ymrfael) A contending.

Ymrfaeliawl, v. a. (ymrfael) To contend.

Ymrfaeliwr, s. m.—pl. ymrfaeliwyr (ymrfael-gwr) One who engages in contention, a wrangler.

Ymrain, s. m. (rhain) A partaking in coition. v. a. To partake in coition.

Tri achaw y gedy gwraig ei gwr: o bydd claf, neu ag amdi ddreuedig lido, neu heb add ymrain.

For three causes a wife forsakes her husband: if he be leproous, or with stinking breath, or without being able to partake of coition.

Welsh Laws.

Ymraint, adv. (braint) Almost, at the point of.

Gweithid ymraint ei goit.

A neglectful one at the point of being lost.

T. Altd.

Ymran, s. f.—pl. t. au (rhan) A schism; a sect.

Ymranawl, s. m. (ymran) Schismatic; mutually separating or dividing.

Ymranlad, s. f.—pl. t. au (ymran) A becoming divided; a dividing into schisms. Rhwyf ymranlad, a leader of a sect.

Ymrannu, v. a. (ymran) To self-separate; to become divided; to separate mutually.

Nedolus gwyd of, yn ddilwysyd, at an y ddyu, yn y lla, ag y llaw yn ymrannu o'n deus.

I approached with him without dread, to the edge of the precipice, in the veil, whilst the flames were dividing themselves about us.

His Wyn, B. Ceng.

VOL. II.

Ymranwr, s. m.—pl. ymranwyr (ymran-gwr) One who separates himself.

Ymrathiad, s. m. (rhatiad) A mutually rubbing; a rubbing one's self.

Ymrathu, v. a. (rhatiathu) To rub mutually; to rub one's self.

Ymre, s. f. (rhe) Procreation. v. a. To copulate.

Nid o'i gorff ydd ymre y gwyboda.

It is not from his body that a dy doth procreate.

Adage.

Ymrëad, s. m. (ymre) Coition, copulation.

Ni thal dim drwg ymrëad.

No kind of bad connection will prosper.

Adage.

Ymrëain, v. a. (ymre) To copulate, to couple.

Tair gwaith y dyrchaf ar arfad gwr, paa ymreder ei waig.

Three advancements shall be made on the insult line, to a husband when connection shall be had with his wife.

Welsh Laws.

Ymrodeg, s. m. (rhedeg) To run one's self; to run mutually.

Ymrediad, s. m. (rhediad) A running one's self; a mutually running.

Ymreddfiad, s. m. (greddfiad) A self-habituating; a mutually habituating.

Ymreddfu, v. a. (greddfu) To habituate one's self; to mutually habituate.

Ymrefriad, s. m. (rhefriad) A basking one's self; a basking mutually.

Ymrefru, v. a. (rhefru) To bask one's self; to bask mutually.

Ymreg, s. f. (rheg) A mutual ban or curse.

Ymregawl, s. m. (ymreg) Mutually cursing.

Ymregiad, s. m. (ymreg) A cursing mutually.

Ymregu, v. a. (ymreg) To curse mutually.

Ymrem, s. f. (rhem) A wambling, a stir; a stir in the stomach.

Ymremial, s. m. (ymrem) A wrangling together.

Ymrewydd, s. m. (rhewydd) Coition, copulation. v. a. To copulate.

Ni fyna i rhai creulawn, gan y mwydion, ond ymrewydd i hwynt; ac am na cael, os lidda o'ragyn.

The cruel ones would have no less, from the virgins, than to cohabit with them, and forasmuch as they could not they slew them.

Gr. ab Arthwr.

Ymrewyddiad, s. m. (ymrewydd) A copulating.

Ymrewyddu, v. a. (ymrewydd) To copulate.

Ymrifaw, v. a. (rhifaw) To number one's self; to number mutually.

Ymrifiad, s. m. (rhifiad) A numbering one's self; a mutually numbering.

Ymrinciad, s. m. (rhinc) A mutually jarring.

Ymrincian, v. a. (rhincian) To jarr mutually; to employ one's self in jarring.

Ymriniad, s. m. (rhiniad) An employing one's self in mysteries; a talking mutual secrets.

Ymriniaw, v. a. (rhiniaw) To employ one's self in secrets; to talk mutual secrets.

A fydd na wyddu neb ei rin, ymrined a'i byll yn enig.

He who would that no body should know his secret, let him employ himself about secrets with his mind alone.

Adage.

Ymrithiad, s. m. (rithiad) A shewing one's self; a making one's self to appear; a mutually appearing; a taking a form.

Ymrithaw, v. a. (rithiaw) To shew one's self; to make one's self to appear or to seem; to become apparent; to knit, as applied to the formation of fruit; to appear mutually.

Ymrith y drwg ar lan daloni.

Evil will shew itself in the form of good.

Adage.

Ymrithlaw a oreg Maw yn rith edryn, a disgyn a weal uch ben y gwal.

What Maw did was to appear in the semblance of a bird, and he alighted above the den. H. Cuthack—Hoboken.

Ymrithlawl, a. (rithlawl) Apt. to make one's self seem; mutually seeming.

Ymrithlwr, s. m.—pl. ymrithlwyr (rithlwr) One who appears or puts on a semblance.

Ymroad, s. m. (rhoad) Self-resignation; a mutually giving or resigning.

Ymroawl, a. (rhoawl) Self-resigning; mutually resigned.

Ymrodiad, s. m. (rhodiad) An employing one's self in walking about; a mutually walking about or perambulating.

Ymrodiaw, v. a. (rhodiaw) To employ one's self in walking about; to perambulate mutually.

Ymroddawl, a. (rhoddawl) Self-resigning; mutually resigning or giving up.

Ymroddedig, a. (rhoddedig) Self-resigned; mutually resigned or become yielding.

Ymroddi, v. a. (rhoddi) To resign one's self; to give up or resign mutually.

Cae dyn a ymroddo mewn aurdas er arddas i en arall.

Hated the person who shall give himself up to dishonour for the honour of another. Adage.

Ymroddiad, s. m. (rhoddiad) A self-resignation; mutual resignation.

Ymroddwr, s. m.—pl. ymroddwyr (rhoddwr) One who resigns or yields himself.

Gwell ymroddwr no dialwr.

Better the one who forgives than the retaliator. Adage.

Ymroi, v. a. (rhoi) To give one's self; to resign one's self; to become resigned; to submit; to resolve; to give up mutually. Ymroi i ferw, to resign one's self to die; ymroi i fyw yn dda, to resolve to live well; ymroi ati, to fail to it in earnest.

Ymroliad, s. m. (rhoiliad) A rolling one's self; a mutually rolling.

Ymroliaw, v. a. (rhoiliaw) To be rolling one's self; to be mutually rolling.

Ymroliaw, v. a. (rhoiliaw) To roll one's self; to roll mutually.

Ef oedd—
Yn ymroliaw am yr sefwyd.

He was rolling himself about the hearth. Rhais. Iorwerth.

Ymrou, adv. (bron) Hard by; almost. Ymrou marw, almost dying; ymrou iagw, almost choked.

Ymronyniad, s. m. (gronyniad) A becoming granulated; a self-granulating.

Ymronynau, v. a. (gronynau) To become granulated; to self-granulate.

Ymruglaw, v. a. (rughlaw) To trail one's self; to trail mutually.

Ymrugliad, s. m. (rughliad) A trailing one's self; a mutually trailing.

Ymruthraw, v. a. (ruthraw) To rush one's self on; to rush on mutually.

Ymruthriad, s. m. (ruthriad) A rushing one's self on; a mutually rushing.

Ymruthrwr, s. m.—pl. ymruthrwyr (ruthrwr) One who rushes himself onward.

Ymrwgnach, s. m. (grwgnach) A using one's self to grumbling. v. a. To use one's self to grumbling.

Ymrwtiad, s. m. (rhwtiad) A self-chafing.

Ymrwtiaw, v. a. (rhwtiaw) To rub one's self.

Ymrwydaw, v. a. (rhwydaw) To entangle one's self; to entangle mutually.

Ymrwyddiad, s. m. (rhwyddiad) A self-entangling, a mutually entangling.

Ymrwyddad, s. m. (rhwyddad) A facilitating one's self, a mutually facilitating.

Ymrwyddau, v. a. (rhwyddau) To facilitate one's self, mutually to facilitate.

Ymrwyddaw, v. a. (rhwyddaw) To facilitate one's self, to facilitate mutually.

Ymrwyddiad, s. m. (rhwyddiad) A facilitating one's self; a mutually facilitating.

Ymrwyfaw, v. a. (rhwylaw) To urge one's self forward, to row one's self; to row mutually.

Ymrwyfiad, s. m. (rhwylfiad) A working one's self onward; a rowing one's self; a mutually rowing.

Ymrwygaw, v. a. (rhwylgaw) To tear one's self, to tear mutually.

Ymrwygiad, s. m. (rhwylgiad) A tearing or rending one's self; a mutually rending.

Ymrwyllaw, v. a. (rhwylaw) To become full of interstices; to work out through crevices.

Lle'r ymrwylio'r mor allan,
Lle iag y mawt floges man.

Where the sea through crevices works itself out, in a small place the small ships are laid. Lewis Rhis.

Ymrwyliad, s. m. (rhwylfiad) A becoming full of interstices; a working through crevices.

Ymrwymaw, v. a. (rhwymaw) To bind one's self, to bind mutually.

Ymrwymawl, a. (rhwymawl) Self-binding, being mutually binding.

Ymrwymiad, s. m. (rhwymiad) A binding one's self; a mutually binding.

Ymrwymwr, s. m.—pl. ymrwymwyr (rhwymwr) One who binds himself.

Ymrwysaw, v. a. (rhwysaw) To self-invigorate, to invigorate mutually.

Deuparth lochyd ymrwysaw.

The two parts of health is exercise. Adage.

Ymrwysiad, s. m. (rhwysiad) A self-invigoration; a mutually invigorating.

Ymrwystraw, v. a. (rhwystraw) To hinder one's self, to hinder or to delay mutually.

Ymrwystriad, s. m. (rhwystriad) A hindering one's self, a mutually hindering.

Ymrwystwr, s. m.—pl. ymrwystwyr (rhwystwr) One who hindereth himself.

Ymrwythaw, v. a. (rhwythaw) To pervade one's self, to pervade mutually.

Ymrwythiad, s. m. (rhwythiad) A self-pervading, a mutually pervading.

Ymrydwst, s. m. (grydwst) An employing one's self in twittering. v. a. To be twittering, to twitter mutually.

Ymryddad, s. m. (rhyddad) A liberating one's self, a mutually liberating.

Ymryddau, v. a. (rhyddau) To liberate one's self; to liberate mutually.

Ymryfeddiad, s. m. (rhyfeddiad) A wondering in one's self, a mutually wondering.

Ymryfeddu, v. a. (rhyfeddu) To wonder in one's self, to wonder mutually.

Ymryfel, s. m. (rhyfel) The being engaged in war; mutual warfare.

Ymryfeliad, s. m. (ymryfel) An engaging one's self in war; a mutually warring.

Ymryfelu, v. a. (rhyfelu) To engage one's self in war; to war mutually.

*Marwyl ddyg—
Sef ymryfelu a ni bidd;
A phoenydd ym gerdyma.*

Mortal man: he engages himself in war against me; and daily he causes me affliction. Edm. Frys. Psalm lvi. 3.

Ymryfelwr, s. m.—pl. ymryfelwyr (ymryfel—gwr) One who uses himself to war.

Ymryfygawi, a. (rhyfygawi) Self-arrogating; mutually presuming.

Ymryfygiad, s. m. (rhyfygiad) To assume to one's self, a mutually presuming.

Ymryfygu, v. a. (rhyfygu) To assume to one's self; to presume mutually.

Syberwyd, sef yw hyry ymryfygu o ddy yn ei gradawd, a chelelaw ymryfygiadfael yn swch bog y dylyo.

Haughtiness, that is for a person to arrogate to himself in his imagination, and seek to exalt himself higher than he ought. Ll. G. Bergeet.

Ymryfygwr, s. m.—pl. ymryfygwyr (rhyfygwr) One who arrogates to himself.

Ymryfyg, s. m. (rhyfyg) A confused state; mutual confusion.

*Pan ddol ymryfelu ar ymryfyg bla,
Hob ionydd gan doryng,
Taraw i mewn.—*

When there comes contention and dire confusion, void of rest from turmoil, do thou strike in. H. D. ab Iwan.

Ymryfygiad, s. m. (ymryfyg) A putting one's self in confusion; a mutual confusion.

Ymryfygu, v. a. (ymryfyg) To confuse one's self; to confuse mutually.

Ymrygniad, s. m. (rhygniad) A rubbing or galling one's self; a mutually rubbing.

Ymrygu, v. a. (rhygu) To rub or gall one's self, to rub mutually.

Ymrymiad, s. m. (grymiad) To strengthen one's self, to self-invigorate, to invigorate mutually.

Ymrymiaw, v. a. (grymiaw) To self-invigorate; mutually to invigorate.

Ymrynnu, v. a. (rhynnu) To study with one's self, inwardly to digest.

Ymryniad, s. m. (rhyniad) A studying to one's self, a deeply considering.

Ymryson, s. m.—pl. s. an (rhyson) The engaging of one's self in dispute; mutual dispute, contention, disputation. v. a. To contend in argument, to dispute.

Nid gwall sydynwr ond ymryson.

There is no want of eager like contention.

Adage.

Tri pheth sy gorau ar gwydd ar fry: dal chwrn, trol o florid ei cyllidderlawg, a gechol ymryson.

Three things which are best to be done in a hurry: to catch heat, to turn out of the way of a mad dog, and to avoid contention.

Adage.

Ymrysonaeth, s. m. (ymryson) Contention.

Ymrysonawl, a. (ymryson) Controversial.

Ymrysongar, a. (ymryson) Contentious.

Ymrysongarwch, s. m. (ymrysongar) Contentiousness.

Ymrysoni, v. a. (ymryson) To contend, to strive.

Ymrysoniad, s. m. (ymryson) A contending.

Ymrysonus, a. (ymryson) Contentious.

Ymrysonneder, s. m. (ymryson) Contentiousness.

Ymrysonwr, s. m.—pl. ymrysonwyr (ymryson—gwr) A contender, a wrangler.

Ymrythiad, s. m. (rhythiad) A stretching one's self widely.

Ymrythu, v. a. (rhythu) To stretch out one's self widely; to stretch out mutually.

Ymrywiad, s. m. (rhywiad) A rendering one's self of a kind; a mutually becoming of a kind.

Ymrywiaw, v. a. (rhywiaw) To render one's self of a kind; to become mutually of a kind.

Ymrywiogi, v. a. (rhywiogi) To render one's self kindly or genial, mutually to become genial.

Ymsaethiad, s. m. (saethiad) The employing one's self in shooting; a mutually shooting or darting.

Ymsaethu, v. a. (saethu) To employ one's self in shooting; to shoot or dart mutually.

*Rhyngom yr aeth ymsaethia
A ddyr drem, mi ac en ga.*

Between us a mutual shooting took place with two sights, me and the lovely fair one. Bede Llyfyr.

Ymsafniad, s. m. (safniad) The opening of one's jaw; a mutually jawing.

Ymsafnrythiad, s. m. (safnrythiad) An employing one's self in extending the jaws; a mutually gaping.

Ymsafnrythu, v. a. (safnrythu) To employ one's self in opening the jaws.

Ymsafnu, v. a. (safnu) To open one's jaw; a mutually jawing.

Ymsang, s. f. (sang) A mutual treading or trampling, an employing one's self in treading; a mutual struggle; a wrestling. Ymsang torf, the trampling of a host: Llythyren ymsang, epenthesis.

Ymsangawl, a. (ymsang) Self-treading; mutually treading or trampling.

Ymsangiad, s. m. (ymsang) An employing one's self in treading; a mutually treading.

Ymsangu, v. a. (ymsang) To employ one's self in treading, to tread mutually.

Ymsarddiad, s. m. (sarddiad) A self-chiding, a mutually chiding.

Ymsarddu, v. a. (sarddu) To chide mutually.

Ymsarllach, s. m. (sarllach) A behaving riotously. v. a. To behave riotously.

Ymsathr, s. f. (sathr) The employment of one's self in treading; a mutual tread.

Ymsathriad, s. m. (ymsathr) An employing one's self in treading; a mutually treading.

Ymsathru, v. a. (ymsathr) To employ one's self in treading; to tread mutually.

Ymsawdd, s. m. (sawdd) A sinking of one's self; a mutual sinking in.

Ymseddiad, s. m. (seddiad) A seating one's self; a becoming mutually seated.

Ymseddu, v. a. (seddu) To seat one's self; to become mutually seated.

Ymsefyddiad, s. m. (sefyddiad) A fixing one's self, a mutually fixing or establishing.

Ymsefydlu, v. a. (sefydlu) To fix one's self, to fix or to establish mutually.

Ymseiliad, s. m. (seiliad) A making a foundation for one's self; a mutually founding.

Ymseiliaw, v. a. (seiliaw) To lay a foundation for one's self; a mutually founding.

Ymsel, s. m. (sel) The state of being beholding; a mutual beholding; perception.

Dylid cyflawn gyfalyho—herwydd hawdd, ac anawdd, a rhyw, a phwyll, a deall, ac ymuel, ac anseir.

A simile should be justly drawn, with respect to nature, and quality, and genius, and reason, and understanding, and perception, and time. Borden.

Ymseliad, s. m. (ymsel) The employing one's self in beholding; a mutually beholding.

Ymselu, v. a. (selu) To employ one's self in beholding; to behold mutually.

Ymsenawi, a. (sênawi) Self-reproaching; mutually reproaching or upbraiding.

Ymseniad, s. m. (sênad) A self-reproaching; a mutually upbraiding or reproaching.

Ymseu, v. a. (seu) To use one's self in reproach, to upbraid one's self; to upbraid or to reproach mutually.

Y neb rydd hof ganddo ymseu, rydd hof ganddo bechawd.

He that is delighted in engaging himself in strife, is delighted with sin. Discipline 17. 19.

Ymsenwr, s. m.—pl. ymseñwyr (senwr) One who uses himself to reproaching.

Ymsengi, v. a. (ymsang) To employ one's self in trampling, to be encroaching.

Ymsechriad, s. m. (serchriad) A filling one's self with fondness or love, a mutually doating.

Ymsechu, v. a. (serchu) To fill one's self with fondness; to entertain mutual fondness.

Aboiah—a ymsechriai yn ei charledau.

Aboiah doated on her lovers.

Exalted 22. 2.

Ymsereniad, s. m. (sereniad) A spangling one's self with stars or sparkles.

Ymserenu, v. a. (serenu) To make one's self to sparkle with stars.

Ymserth, s. m. (serth) The giving one's self up to abuse, mutual abuse.

Ymserth gwrtaig sy merys deifal parlan.

The contention of a wife is like a continual dropping. Discipline 19. 12.

Ymserthiad, s. m. (ymserth) A using one's self to abuse, a mutually abusing.

Ymserthu, v. a. (ymserth) To employ one's self in abuse or in talking obscenely; to talk abuse or obscenity mutually.

*Ymserthant, cabiant eu gwyr;
Tristant beuan trawdryff.*

They mutually abuse, they curse their husbands; they bely the heads of wretched men. S. Phylip.

Ymsiarad, s. m. (siarad) An employing one's self in talking; a mutually talking.

Ymsiaradaeth, s. m. (ymsiarad) A using one's self to talking; a state of mutual talking.

*Origen y trydydd archymys yn barned ar ofer-ddoleded Daw;
a gwaerdded o ymsiaradaeth ofer.*

The substance of the third commandment is a condemnation of impropriety in the worship of God; and the interdiction of vainly being employed in talking. S. Trifredys.

Ymsiared, v. a. (siared) To employ one's self in talking; to keep talking; to talk mutually.

Ymsiglaw, v. a. (siglaw) To shake or rock one's self; to shake mutually.

Scriban y sefodd a gyffroddant, ac a ymsiglant am lido of ddigw.

The foundations of the heavens have been agitated, and they have been shaken, because he was wroth. 1 Samuel 28. 2.

Ymsigliad, s. m. (sigliad) A shaking or rocking one's self; a mutually shaking.

Ymsisial, s. m. (sisial) A mutual chat. v. a. To chat together; to employ one's self in chatting or whispering.

Ymsoddawl, a. (ymsawdd) A sinking of one's self; mutually sinking.

Ymsoddi, v. a. (ymsawdd) To sink one's self.

Ymsoddad, s. m. (ymsawdd) A sinking one's self; a mutually sinking.

Ymsomi, v. a. (somi) To disappoint one's self; mutually to disappoint.

Ymsomiad, s. m. (somiad) A disappointing one's self; a mutually deceiving.

Ymson, s. m. (son) The employment of one's self in mentioning; mutual talk. v. a. To be mentioning; to talk mutually.

Newa cerdd hawt ac aeth—haws prysaw yn dyn at y gwyllt ac y deud o bechaw, nos mawr na deul arall; ac yn haws ymson am amryfollus farnau.

In a poem that is in dialogue, it is easier to prove closely to the reason and the understanding of things, than in any other mode; and it is easier to make mention about various opinions. Burdien.

Ymsoniad, s. m. (ymson) An employing one's self in talking; a mutually talking.

Ymsoniaw, v. a. (ymson) To employ one's self in talking; to talk mutually.

Ymsori, v. a. (sori) To shew one's self offended, or to be sulky; to sulk mutually.

Ymsoriad, s. m. (soriad) A shewing one's self sulky; a becoming mutually offended.

Ymswrn, s. m. (swrn) The employment of one's self in snarling; a mutual snarl. v. a. To employ one's self in a snarly mood; to snarl mutually.

Ymswrn ag ygwyr gwr gwrd.

A snarling with the asperity of a passionate man.

Rhys Goch Bryri.

*Amsor yw hwn i ymswrn;
Amhaws y owa y mas swrn.*

A time is this to be grumbling; about the rumour a number do express a doubt. Llyw. ab G. ab Cyfngy.

Ymswyddaw, v. a. (swyddaw) To employ one's self in office; to seek for office; to officiate.

*Gwelw nad oes gwyddyd;
Rhediaw ac ymswyddaw rydd.*

We see that there is no shame; to scramble and to rush for office is what prevails. Lewis Powell.

Ymswyddiad, s. m. (swyddiad) An employing one's self in office; an officiating.

Ymswyn, s. m. (swyn) Self-security by some mysterious rite.

Ymswynaw, v. a. (ymwyn) To bless one's self; to secure one's self, as by some secret rite or charm; to cross one's self, to beware.

Ymswyniad, s. m. (ymwyn) A blessing one's self; to secure one's self by a talisman; to cross one's self.

Ymswynwr, s. m.—pl. ymswynwyr (ymwyn-gwr) One who blesses himself; one who crosses himself, or uses charms.

Ymsyfraniad, s. m. (syfraniad) A making one's self giddy; a mutually stupefying.

Ymsyfrdau, s. m. (syfrdau) To stupefy one's self; mutually to stupefy.

Ymsymud, s. m. (symud) Self-motion. v. a. To move one's self; to move mutually.

Ymsymudaw, v. a. (ymsymud) To move one's self; to move mutually.

Ymsymudawl, a. (ymsymud) Self-moving, self-removing; mutually moving.

Ymsymudiad, s. m. (ymsymud) A moving one's self; a mutually moving.

Ymsymudwr, s. m.—pl. ymsymudwyr (ymsymud-gwr) One who moves himself.

Ymsymudydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymsymud) A self-mover.

Pob ymsymudydd, yr hwn sy fyw, a fydd i chad yn fwyd.

Every moving thing, the which is alive, shall be meat for you. Genesis 9. 2.

Ymsyniad, s. m. (syniad) A perceiving or feeling one's self; a mutual feeling.

Ymsyniaw, v. a. (syniaw) To perceive or to feel one's self; to reflect, to contemplate; to intend mutually.

Ymsyniawl, a. (syniawl) Self-perceptive; relating to mutual feeling or impulse.

Ymmynd, v. a. (syned) To perceive or to feel one's self; to reflect, to feel or to be affected mutually.

Ymynnu, v. a. (synu) To astonish one's self; to be mutually struck or astonished.

Ymynwyrw, v. a. (synwyrw) To reason with one's self; to reason mutually.

Y rhai yst herwydd y casawd, am bethau y casawd yr ymynwyrw a si.

They that are after the flesh, about the things of the flesh do they concern themselves. W. Ballibury.

Ymsynwriad, s. m. (synwriad) A reasoning to one's self; a mutually reasoning.

Ymwydd, s. m. (sydd) A gathering one's self in a heap, a mutually thronging.

Ymwyddu, v. a. (syddu) To gather one's self into a heap; to agglomerate; mutually to press together.

Ymsyrthiad, s. m. (syrthiad) A falling one's self; a mutually falling.

Ymsyrthiaw, v. a. (syrthiaw) To fall one's self; to fall mutually.

Ymsyrthiad, s. m. (sythiad) A raising one's self erect; a mutually rising up.

Ymsyrthiaw, v. a. (sythiaw) To raise one's self erect, to straighten one's self; to swagger.

Ymsyrthwr, s. m.—pl. ymsyrthwyr (sythwr) One who raises himself up.

Ymfyddiad, s. m. (ufyddiad) Self-humiliation; mutual humiliation.

Ymfyddu, v. a. (ufyddu) To humble one's self; to humble mutually.

Ymunaw, v. a. (unaw) To unite one's self; to join or to combine together; to incorporate mutually.

Ymundawd, s. m. (undawd) The act of uniting one's self; a mutual union.

Ymuniad, s. m. (uniad) A self-uniting; a mutually uniting or connecting.

Ymunioni, v. a. (unioni) To straighten one's self; to be straightened.

Yr oedd gwrall ag yddi ybryd gwendid—ac ni allai hi mewn modd yu y byd ymunioni.

There was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity; and she could in no wise lift up herself. Luc 13. 11.

Ymunioniad, s. m. (unioniad) A self-straightening; a mutually straightening.

Ymwad, s. m. (gwad) Self-denial, mutual denial.

Ymwadawl, a. (ymwad) Self-denying; mutually denying or disowning.

Ymwadiad, s. m. (ymwad) A self-denying; a renouncing; a disavowal; abjuration.

Ymwadu, v. a. (ymwad) To deny one's self; to renounce, to disavow; to deny mutually.

Os mys neb ddawad ar fy ol i, ymwadu ag ei hun.

If any man shall come after me, let him deny himself. Matthew 16. 24.

Ymwadwr, s. m.—pl. ymwadwyr (ymwad—gwr) One who denieth himself.

Ymwadiad, s. m. (gwaediad) A self-bleeding; a mutually letting blood.

Ymwadiyddiad, s. m. (gwaedlyddiad) An imbruing one's self in blood; a mutually imbruing in blood.

Ymwadiyddu, v. a. (gwaedlydu) To imbrue one's self in blood.

Ymwadu, v. a. (gwaedu) To bleed one's self; to let blood mutually.

Ymwaethiad, s. m. (gwaethiad) A making one's self worse; a mutually growing worse.

Ymwaethu, v. a. (gwaethu) To make one's self worse; to become mutually worse.

Gwaeth nhw phob gwaethaf ymwaethu.

The worse of every bad thing is to make one's self worse. Idage.

Ymwaghad, s. m. (gwaghad) A self-emptying.

Ymwaghu, v. a. (gwaghu) To empty one's self.

Ymwahanawl, a. (gwahanawl) Self-separating; mutually separating.

Ymwahaniad, s. m. (gwahaniad) A self-separating; mutual separation.

Ymwahaniaeth, s. m. (gwahaniaeth) Self-separation; mutual separation.

Ymwahanu, v. a. (gwahanu) To separate one's self; to be divided or parted; to separate mutually.

Elles—a darawal y dyfroedd, a hwy a ymwahanu yma ac acw.

Elisab amote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither. 2 Breninodd 2. 8.

Ymwahanwr, s. m.—pl. ymwahanwyr (gwahanwr) One who separates himself.

Ymwalliad, s. m. (gwalliad) A rendering one's self faulty or neglectful; a mutually neglecting.

Ymwallan, v. a. (gwallan) To render one's self faulty, to become neglectful; to neglect mutually.

Ymwallgoffi, v. a. (gwallgoffi) To distract one's self; to become mutually distracted.

Ymwallgoffiad, s. m. (gwallgoffiad) A self-distracting; a mutually distracting.

Ymwan, s. f. (gwan) A mutual wounding or transfixing; combat, tournament. v. a. To transfix mutually; to combat with lances.

Dangawr arwydd ymwan, ac eiddo gwre peddyd a marchogion, a phob cyfrw amryfai waron a weid yno.

Exhibiting a sign of combat, and so the sport of infantry and horsemen, and every kind of the like sports was seen there. Or. ab Arthwr.

Yan yr af Gwalchmai; ymwan ag y marchawg, a chwanllit o ball amdanu ac amdan ei farch.

Thereupon Gwalchmai went to combat with the knight, having a covering of velvet about him and about his horse. M. O. c6 Yrken—Mabynogion.

Ymwanad, s. m. (gwanad) A weakening of one's self; a mutually weakening.

Ymwanu, v. a. (gwanu) To weaken one's self; mutually to weaken.

Gwelwn llw y dydd golau

Yn mla hwy yu ymwanu.

I could see the light of the splendid day on the verge of evening growing faint. T. Lloyd Jones.

Tri pheth sydd yn ymwanu beunydd, gan iaiint pwnaf yr ymwan yn eu gwrth: cas, camwedd, ac anwybodaeth.

Three things are daily growing weaker, from the continual increase of their opposing impulse: enmity, injustice and ignorance. Barddas.

Ymwaniad, s. m. (ymwan) A mutually wounding; a combating with lances; a combating.

Ymwanu, v. a. (ymwan) To combat mutually; to be combating; to combat.

Ymwanwr, s. m.—pl. ymwanwyr (ymwan—gwr) One who wounds with a lance.

Ymwanwyr gwyth mewn aer gynt,

Y bryddid byd llofnt.

Brave combatants in battle of ancient time, for them the world was named. O. ab Llywelyn Mawr.

Ymwanychiad, s. m. (gwanychiad) A self-debilitating; a mutually enfeebling.

Ymwanychu, v. a. (gwanychu) To self-debilitate; to enfeeble mutually.

Ymwarchad, s. m. (gwarchad) A self-guarding; a mutual care. v. a. To employ one's self in guarding; to take care of one's self, to have mutual care.

*Ar dos, cer of adenydd,
Ymwarchad o'r bad y bydd.*

On the wave, cold his wings, to preserve himself from the beat in what he seeks. T. Celli.

Ymwared, s. m. (gwared) The having in one's self the means of averting; deliverance, defence. v. a. To deliver one's self, to avert mutually.

*Addwyn gaer y sydd ar dos nawfed;
Addwyn ai gweru yn ymwared.*

A pleasant fort stands on the brink of the ninth wave, pleasant its multitude affording mutual defence. T. Celli.

Ymwaredawl, a. (ymwared) Self-delivering; mutually averting.

Ymwarediad, s. m. (ymwared) A self-delivering, the extricating one's self; a mutually averting
Ymwaredu, v. a. (ymwared) To deliver one's self; to deliver or to avert mutually.

Ymwaredus, a. (ymwared) Self-delivering, having in one's self the means of deliverance; mutually delivering.

*Arlywydd Dad, mawr red, ymwaredus nerth,
Isuon wyrthiaid rhygyddus,
Cymer f.—*

*O Lord the Father, abundant in grace, of power being the means of deliverance, whose true miracles are efficacies, receive me.
H. D. ab Iŷen.*

Ymwarthiad, s. m. (gwarthiad) A self-digracing, a mutually digracing.

Ymwarthu, v. a. (gwarthu) To disgrace or to shame one's self, mutually to disgrace.

Ymwasgariad, s. m. (gwasgariad) A spreading of one's self, a mutually spreading or dispersing.

Ymwasgarn, v. a. (gwasgarn) To spread one's self, to disperse mutually, to become scattered Ymwasgwrch yn mysg y bobl.

Disperse yourselves amongst the people. 1 Samuel 14. 31.

Ymwasgiad, s. m. (gwasgiad) To squeeze or to press one's self; to press mutually.

Ymwasgodi, v. a. (gwasgodi) To shelter one's self, mutually to shelter.

Ymwasgodiad, s. m. (gwasgodiad) A sheltering of one's self; a mutually sheltering.

Ymwasgu, v. a. (gwasgu) To squeeze one's self; to keep one's self close, to cleave; to press together.

Ymwastathad, s. m. (gwastathad) A rendering one's self even or level; an establishing of one's self; a mutually establishing.

Ymwastathu, v. a. (gwastathu) To make one's self even; to establish one's self; to make mutually even.

Ymwawd, s. m. (gwawd) Self-praise; self-flattery, mutual flattery.

Ymwawdiad, s. m. (ymwawd) A flattering one's self, a mutually flattering.

Ymwawdlaw, v. a. (ymwawd) To flatter one's self; to flatter mutually.

Ymwëad, s. m. (gwëad) A self-combining; a becoming interwoven; a mutually weaving.

Ymwedd, s. f. (gwedd) Self-demeanour; mutual conformity or fitness.

Ymweddiad, s. m. (ymwedd) A self-conforming; a demeaning; a mutually according.

Ymweddu, v. a. (ymwedd) To conform one's self; to conform mutually.

*Tri modd, pond de'r ymweddyn!
Hedaw! s. di, a hord! dya!*

Three circumstances how aptly they assimilate together, that of the mountebank, and a dice, and the life of man! T. Allen.

Ymwehyniad, s. m. (gwehyniad) A pouring out or emptying one's self; a mutually pouring.

Ymwehynu, v. a. (gwehynu) To empty one's self; to self-exhaust; to become empty.

Ymweisiad, s. m. (gweisiad) A rendering one's self a servant; a mutually serving.

Ymweisiaw, v. a. (gweisiaw) To make one's self a servant; a mutually serving.

Nid ymweis a fo parch.

That is of honour will not stoop to serve.

Adams.

Ymweithiad, s. m. (gweithiad) A self-working; a fermentation; a mutual operation.

Ymweithiaw, v. a. (gweithiaw) To work one's self, to ferment, to operate mutually.

Ymwelod, s. m. (gwelod) A mutual seeing, a visitation. v. a. To shew one's self, to see mutually, to visit.

Ymwelodiad, s. m. (ymwelod) A mutually visiting; a visitation.

On ymweith a hwynt ag ymwelodiad pob dyn, nid yr Arghywydd a'm hanfodol.

If they be visited after the visitation of all men, it is not the Lord who hath sent me. Numeri 16. 30.

Ymweliad, s. m.—pl. t. an (gweliad) A visitation.

Ymweliwr, s. m.—pl. ymweliwyr (gweliwr) A visitor.

Ymweliad, s. m. (gweliad) Self-improvement; a mutually mending.

Ymweliâu, v. a. (gweliâu) To improve one's self; to improve mutually.

Tra yddoddynt yn ymladd yn wyche efelyt, hyma y Rhodduwyr yn wyche yn ymweliâu, ac yn dwys rhuthur i wyr Llydaw.

Whilst they were bravely fighting thus, behold the Romans gallantly repelling themselves, and making an assault upon the men of Llydaw. Gr. ab Arthur.

Gwyn ei fyd a ymweliâu o gyngor ei bwrh ac nid o gyngor ei ofnau.

Happy is he who makes himself better from the counsel of his reason, and not from the counsel of his fears. Adams.

Ymwelliannu, v. a. (ymwelliant) To make one's self better; to become improved or reformed.

Nid sagbled ymwelliannu.

It is no disgrace to reform one's self.

Adams.

Ymweliant, s. m. (gwelliant) Self-improvement.

Ymweneithiad, s. m. (gwenieithiad) A flattering of one's self; a mutually flattering.

Ymweneithiaw, v. a. (gwenieithiaw) To flatter one's self; to flatter mutually.

Ymweneithiaw y mae yr ennwylwri llydd ei hun.

The sagacity flatters himself in his own eyes. Proba 35. 2.

Ymwewynaw, v. a. (gwenwynaw) To poison one's self; to be fretting one's self; to fret mutually.

Ymwewyniad, s. m. (gwenwyniad) A poisoning of one's self; a fretting one's self, a mutually fretting.

Ymwewinaw, v. a. (gwerinaw) To associate one's self, to become mutually associated, to become civilized.

Tair bradormen Ynys Prydain—cydymwernaw a'u gwydd a wagys, yn Lleng, ac yr Alban.

The three treacherous molestations of the Isle of Britain, mutually confederate themselves together was what they did, in England and Scotland. T. Allen.

Ymweriniad, s. m. (gweriniad) A joining one's self to society; a mutually associating, a becoming civilized.

Ymwerthiad, s. m. (gwerthiad) A self-selling, self-prostitution, a mutually selling.

Ymwerthu, v. a. (gwerthu) To sell one's self, to prostitute one's self; to sell mutually.

Welld eia gwerthuor yn welldrodyr rhydd, ac wedi eia gadael i ryddid ein hwylyddau ein haelia, eia ymwerthasom yn fucthwedion i ddwyfaw y gysia.

After we have been made free agents, and after we have been left to the freedom of our own facilities, we have sold ourselves as bondmen into the hands of the enemy. Jer. Owein.

Ymwëu, v. a. (gwëu) To self-combine, to interweave, mutually to interweave.

Ymwingaw, v. a. (gwingaw) To writhe one's self, to writhe mutually.

Ymwingiad, s. m. (gwingiad) A writhing one's self, a mutually writhing.

Ymwiriad, s. m. (gwiriad) A self-asserting as true, a mutually asserting.

Ymwiriaw, v. a. (gwiriaw) To employ one's self in proving, to assert the truth mutually.

Ymwisaw, v. a. (gwisaw) To dress one's self.

Ymwisiad, s. m. (gwisiad) A self-dressing, the state of being arrayed.

Y froffaith—

Ymwisiad angel cegyll.

The thrush, angel wings her rather dress does form.

D. ab Gwilym.

Ymwleda, v. a. (gwleda) To feast one's self, to be feasting mutually.

Ymwlediad, s. m. (gwlediad) A feasting one's self, a being mutually feasting.

Ymwnc, s. m. (wnc) The being near or immediate. a. Imminent, immediate.

Daw—

Ti ja mhob pwnc:

Mys ty ymwnc

Ni wyr omdedd.

God, thou art in every point; the desire ardently approaching who doth not know how to refuse.

Gr. Gwyg.

Ymwneuthur, s. m. (gwnneuthur) A mutual operation. v. a. To combine one's self, to resolve mutually.

Ymwneuthasent yn unfryd, ac ymwneuthant i'w erbyn.

They have consulted together with one consent, they have confederated against thee. Psalm 33. 2.

Ymwneyd, v. a. (gwnneyd) To combine one's self, to combine mutually.

Ymwng, s. m. (wng) The being immediate. a. Imminent; immediate. adv. Instantly.

A rhodd yn ymwng raddia amau.

And giving immediately ready gems. Gr. ab M. ab Dafydd.

Llosgi eu trefed,

A dygn eu lliedod,

Ac ymwng colled.

Burning their habitation, and taking away their load, with imminent loss. Talerin.

Ymwr, s. m. (gwr) The becoming superior.

Ymwradyddaw, v. a. (gwradyddaw) To scandalize one's self; mutually to scandalize.

Ymwradyddiad, s. m. (gwradyddiad) A self-scandalizing; a mutually scandalizing.

Ymwrandaw, s. m. (gwrandaw) To employ one's self in listening; to listen mutually.

O nef! ymwrandaw i mi,

i dros gyrr o'r drygion.

O heaven! give an attentive ear to me, so that men may be turned from their iniquity. T. Llan.

Ymwrandawiad, s. m. (ymwrandaw) An employing one's self in listening; a mutually listening.

Ymwrdd, s. m. (gwrdd) The being ardent.

Mawr oedd wrth ymwrdd o dder.

Great was the push of the ardency of his dart. T. Aled.

Ymwregysiad, s. m. (gwregysiad) A self-girding.

Ymwregysu, v. a. (gwregysu) To gird one's self.

Ymwresogi, v. a. (gwresogi) To fill one's self with warmth; to become zealous; mutually to fill with warmth.

Ymwresogiad, s. m. (gwresogiad) A filling one's self with warmth; a becoming zealous; a mutually filling with warmth.

Ymwriad, s. m. (ymwr) An acting manfully; a mutually striving.

Ymwrial, s. m. (ymwr) The being in continual strife. v. a. To strive mutually.

Ymwriaw, v. a. (ymwr) To act manfully; to show courage; to strive mutually.

Tuo a dwr yn ymwriaw

Yr' tawen, dreigiau draw.

Fire and water mutually warring are the thunder claps, the distant gleaming darts. D. ab Gwilym.

Ymwingelliad, s. m. (gwingelliad) A putting one's self in a flutter.

Ymwingellu, v. a. (gwingellu) To put one's self in a flutter; to make a fluttering.

Ymwroli, v. a. (gwroli) To render one's self manful; to grow courageous.

Ymgryfia ac ymwroli, nac ofn ac na arwyda.

Be strong and be of good courage, fear not, and be not dismayed. I Chronicles 22. 12.

Ymwrthawd, s. m. (gwrthawd) An using one's self to reject; abdicatation; abjuration. v. a. To abdicate, to abstain.

Ymwrthfyn, s. m. (gwrthfyn) A self-withdrawing, a self-withholding.

Ymwrthfynu, v. a. (ymwrthfyn) To withdraw one's self.

Ymwrthladd, s. m. (gwrthladd) Self-opposition. v. a. To oppose one's self.

Ymwrthladdiad, s. m. (ymwrthladd) A self-opposing; a mutual pugnatation.

Ymwrthodawl, a. (ymwrthawd) Self-rejecting. Ymwrthodellon, abstinent.

Ymwrthodl, v. a. (ymwrthawd) To restrain one's self; to abstain mutually.

Ymwrthodiad, s. m. (ymwrthawd) A self-refusing, abdication, abjuration, dereliction.

Ymwrthodwr, s. m.—pl. ymwrthodwyr (ymwrthawd—gwr) One who abstains.

Ymwrthodydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ymwrthawd) One who abstains or rejects.

Ymwrthryn, s. m. (gwrthryn) Mutual exertion to oppose; mutual resistance; mutual ejection

Os o ymwrthryn y deuias dyn ei hawl; ni all ymwrthryn namyn dau ddyn a fyddont yn eiddod ar yr un tir yngyd; ac os un oneddyd a dyn wrthryn y llall, yn y dydd y goddiwedd, lawr dywedd ei fod ei yn briodawl.

If by mutually exerting a person shall choose his action; there cannot be a mutually exerting but by two persons who shall be seated upon the same land together; and, if one of them be minded to eject the other, in the day that he succeeds, it is right to say that he is a proprietor. Welsh Laws.

Ymwrthryawl, a. (ymwrthryn) Mutually opposing; controversial.

Ymwrthryniad, s. m. (ymwrthryn) An exerting one's self in opposition, a mutually exerting in opposition.

Ymwrthrynu, v. a. (ymwrthryn) To exert one's self in opposition; mutually to strive in opposition; to engage in mutual controversy.

Ymwrthrywiad, s. m. (gwrthrywiad) A rendering one's self heterogeneous; a mutually becoming of opposite kind.

Ymwrthrywiaw, v. a. (gwrthrywiaw) To render one's self of opposite kind; to become heterogeneous, to become mutually of contrary kind.

Ymwrthsefyll, s. m. (gwrthsefyll) A placing one's self in opposition; a mutually withstanding.

Ymwrthsefyll, r. a. (gwrthsefyll) To place one's self against; to withstand mutually.

Ymwrthunaw, v. a. (gwrthunaw) To self-disfigure; to disfigure mutually.

Ymwrthuniad, s. m. (gwrthuniad) A self-disfiguring, a mutually disfiguring.

Ymwrthwynebiad, s. m. (gwrthwynebiad) A setting one's self against.

Ymwrthwynebu, v. a. (gwrthwynebu) To set one's self against; to oppose mutually.

Ymwrwat, s. m. (ymwr) A mutual struggle. v. a. To struggle mutually.

Ymwrys, s. (gwrys) A self-striving, mutual strife.

Ymwrysiad, s. m. (ymwrys) A striving one's self; a mutually striving.

Ymwrysiaw, v. a. (ymwrys) To strive one's self; to strive mutually.

Ymwrystwr, s. m.—pl. ymwrystwyr (ymwrwat—gwr) One who engages in strife.

Ymwrth, s. m. (gwrth) A mutual pushing.

Ymwrthgar, a. (ymwrth) Mutually pushing.

Ymwrthiad, s. m. (ymwrth) A pushing one's self, a mutually pushing.

Ymwrthiaw, v. a. (ymwrth) To push one's self, to push together, to crowd.

Ymwrthiawl, a. (ymwrth) Self-obtruding; mutually pushing or pressing.

Ymwrthiwr, s. f.—pl. ymwrthiwr (ymwrth—gwr) One who pushes himself.

Ymwybod, s. m. (gwybod) Self-knowledge; mutual acquaintance. v. a. To acquaint one's self, to get mutual knowledge.

*Myed yr wyf—
I ymwybod a mhellon
Tudyr, ben ymwawyr Moa.*

I am going to acquaint myself with the sons of Tudyr, the chief defenders of Moa.

Ymwybodi, v. a. (gwybodi) To employ one's self in obtaining knowledge; to become acquainted.

Dylai ymad—ymwybodi yn gyflawn a phob hawia dadi a ddolawr ger ei froa.

A judge ought to employ himself justly in obtaining a knowledge of every claim and dispute brought before him.

Triedd Dyffwael.

Ymwychiad, s. m. (gwychiad) A making one's self gay or fine; a mutually decking out.

Ymwychu, v. a. (gwychu) To make one's self gay, mutually to deck out.

Ymwyliad, s. m. (gwyliad) An employing one's self in watching; a mutually watching.

Ymwyliaw, v. a. (gwyliaw) To employ one's self in watching; to watch mutually; to shew solicitude.

Prydnawn—Ymwyliaw i'm cymyl a ml.

In the afternoon he then visited my jewel and me.

H. ab Owilym, yr hawl.

Ymwylltiad, s. m. (gwylltiad) A making one's self wild; a mutually scaring.

Ymwylltiaw, v. a. (gwylltiaw) To make one's self wild; to scare mutually.

Ymwyraw, v. a. (gwyraw) To put one's self awry; mutually to bend aside.

Ymwyriad, s. m. (gwyriad) A putting one's self awry; a mutually bending.

Ymwyrtiaw, v. a. (gwyrtiaw) To pledge one's self; to give mutual hostage.

Oed a guif yr ysgard llys i ymwyrtiaw deugala niwyrnawd, os dirch, cyn ymwyrtiaw.

The judge of the palace shall have time to refresh his memory for forty days, if he desires, before he enters into mutual pledge.

Welsh Laws.

Ymwyrtiad, s. m. (gwyrtiad) A pledging one's self; a mutually giving hostage.

Ymwyrtiwr, s. m.—pl. ymwyrtiwr (gwyrtiwr) One who pledges himself.

Ymwythaw, v. a. (gwythaw) To put one's self in a rage, to become mutually enraged.

Ymwythiad, s. m. (gwythiad) A self-enraging, a mutually enraging.

Ymyfed, s. m. (yfed) A tipping; a mutual drinking. v. a. To be drinking, to be tipping; to drink mutually.

Ymyl, s. m.—pl. t. au (byl) A side; an edge or brink. Safu yn fy ymyl, stand by the side of me.

*Tort, ddyu ddi, one 'gthalon,
Mal y tfr ymylu tñ.*

Breaking, slender symph, is my heart, so when the edges of the wave do break.

Ed. Rhys, o Farddwr.

Ymylawg, a. (ymyl) Having edges, rimmed.

Ymylwich, s. m.—pl. ymylwlch (ymyl—bwch) A notch in an edge.

Ymylwlchiad, s. m. (ymylwlch) An engraving.

Ymylwlchu, v. a. (ymylwlch) To edge-notch.

Ymylgylch, s. m.—pl. t. an (ymyl—cylch) A border or fringe.

I wy ymylgylch pale Mactwa.

To touch the border trimming of the coat of Mactwa.

Ed. Rhys.

Ymylgylchiad, s. m. (ymylgylch) A putting a fringe or trimming round the edge.

Ymylgylchu, v. a. (ymylgylch) To put a fringe or trimming about the edge.

Ymyliad, s. m. (ymyl) A rimming or edging.

Ymylu, v. a. (ymyl) To rim, to edge; to strive, as in the throws of an animal.

Ymylwe, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ymyl—gwe) Selva.

Ymyr, s. m. (gyr) A mutual drive; a self-impulsion; a tendency; an intermeddling.

Ymyrath, v. a. (ymyr) A mutual driving; a making one's self busy; an intermeddling.

Pub fol a fyn ymyrath.

Every fool seeks for intermeddling.

Discretion XL 2.

Ymyrawl, a. (ymyr) Apt to intermeddle.

Ymyrgar, a. (ymyr) Apt to be intermeddling.

Ymyriad, s. m. (ymyr) An intermeddling.

Ymyrth, s. m. (gyrth) The state of being touching against or repelling; a mutual appulse.

Ymyrthawl, a. (ymyrth) Tending to be touching or appulsive; mutually touching.

Ymyrthiad, s. m. (ymyrth) A being touching; mutual appulsion.

Ymyrthu, v. a. (ymyrth) To be touching one's self against; mutually to touch or run against.

Anian ai ymyrth a'i ymyr.

Nature will not be repulsive to its cause.

Adage.

Ymyrthwr, s. m.—pl. ymyrthwyr (ymyrth—gwr) One who touches or runs against.

Ymyru, v. a. (ymyr) To drive on mutually; to instigate one's self; to be pursuing; to be intermeddling.

Cas a ymyro ar bob peth heb achaw.

Useful is he who intermeddles with every thing without occasion.

Adage.

Sores Cai wrth Arthwr; nid ymyrwy Cai yn rhaid gyd ag ef a hyuyl allan.

Cai was offended with Arthur; Cai did not concern himself to assist with him from thence forward.

H. Caihuch—Mabingyn.

Ymyrus, a. (ymyr) Apt to be intermeddling.

Ymyrwr, s. m.—pl. ymyrwyr (ymyr—gwr) One who pursues or concerns himself.

Ymyryd, v. a. (ymyr) To drive one's self on; to drive mutually, to tamper, to intermeddle.

God ymwith ymyron cyn ymyryd arul.
Leave off contention before it is meddled with.
Usterheben 17. 14.

Ymyyagafnâd, s. m. (yagafnâd) A self-lightening, a mutually lightening.

Ymyyagafnân, v. a. (yagafnân) To lighten one's self, to lighten mutually.

Ymyyagafniad, s. m. (yagafniad) A lightening one's self; a mutually lightening.

Ymyyagafnas, v. a. (yagafnas) To lighten one's self, to lighten mutually.

Ymyyagar, s. pl. aggr. (yagar) That carry on secretion; the bowels.

Ymyyagargoel, s. f. (yagar—coel) Haruspicium, divination by examining of entrails.

Ymyyagariad, s. m. (ymyagar) A self-separation, a mutual separation.

Ymyyagariaw, v. a. (ymyagar) To separate one's self; to separate mutually.

Ymyyagaroedd, s. pl. aggr. (ymyagar) The bowels.

Ymyyagethriad, s. m. (yagethriad) A being instigating, a mutually goading.

Ymyyagethru, v. a. (yagethru) To employ one's self in instigating, to be mutually goading.

Ymyyagrain, s. m. (yagrain) Self-prostration; mutual state of prostration. v. a. To prostrate one's self; to be mutually prostrate.

Torfoedd ymyygryn tarf ymyygrain.

The boats of terror put to flight so as to cause a mutual prostration.
Cynddelw.

Ymyyagroiniad, s. m. (ymyagrain) A prostrating one's self along; a being mutually prostrating.

Ymyyagrciniaw, v. a. (ymyagrain) To prostrate one's self; to be mutually grovelling.

Ymyyagrytiad, s. m. (yagrytiad) A being wriggling one's self.

Ymyyagrytiaw, v. a. (yagrytiaw) To be wriggling one's self.

Ymyyagrytiaw, v. a. (yagrytiaw) To wriggle.

Ymyyagwŷ, s. m. (yagwŷ) The employing one's self in snatching; a mutual snatch.

Addyng myyag ymyyagwŷ ffrwyg;
Addura mawr yn mawr crogwŷ.

Instruction in the confusion of the mutual scramble of the ferocious; felony is fair in the opinion of him who deserves a halter.
Hyswel Yderyn.

Ymyyagwyd, s. m. (yagwyd) To shake one's self, to shake mutually.

Dyna y byd yr ych'chwi yn ei fawrta, ehai efe; ac attolwg cymerwch yr ffrân i ohono; ac ar y gair efe ymyyagwyd oddi-wythys.

Lo that is the world, which you do magnify, said he; and I beseech you take my portion of it; and on the word he shook himself away from them.
Ellis Wyn, B. Cwg.

Y myyddoedd—wels yr oeddynt yn crynu; ac yr hollf rymas a ymyyagwynt.

The mountains, behold they were trembling; and all the hills were shaken.
Jeremi 4. 24.

Ymyyagydiad, s. m. (ymyagwŷ) A being snatching, a mutually snatching.

Ymyyagydiu, v. a. (ymyagwŷ) To be snatching, to be mutually snatching.

Ymyyagytiaid, s. m. (yagytiaid) A self-concussion, a concussing mutually.

Ymyyagytiaw, v. a. (yagytiaw) To shake one's self, to produce a mutual concussion.

Ymyslotiad, s. m. (yslotiad) A being dabbling or slopping one's self in water.

Ymyslotian, v. a. (yslotian) To be slopping.

Ymyslotiaw, v. a. (yslotiaw) To employ one's self in slopping or dabbling in water.

VOL. II.

Ymystwyraw, v. a. (ystwyraw) To agitate one's self; to stretch one's self, as in the act of recovering from drowsiness.

Ymystwyriad, s. m. (ystwyriad) Pandiculation.

YN, s. m. r. The state of being in, contained, or included. prep. In, at; in the way of; for, for the use of; into. pron. Our. If yn be put before verbs and adjectives, it forms the expressions denominated participles and adverbs. Yn tori, breaking; yn fuan, quickly: Os gweli yn dda, if thou seest good; yn awr, at present; yn lleigus, by and by; yn y man, yn y lle, presently.

Arf glew yn ei galon.

The weapon of the brave is in his heart.

Adage.

Adfyd a ddaw a dyng yn ei law.

Adversity comes with instruction in his hand.

Adage.

Gallwg ya yd gwyi yd gur.

Sight in such as can see is lovely.

Adage.

Gwell bwrh ya gartref no llyu yn allreuf.

Better a cottage for a home, than a palace to resort to as a stranger.

Adage.

Ac yn iach bellach i'r hel;

Ac yn iach gawn sebel!

And adieu at length to the triumph; and adieu the loud rejoicing.

L. G. Cwili, m. ei fah.

Llyma ya gobath ni, ac yn amddiffys, ac ya llawenydd, ac yn bresol.

Behold our hope, and our defence, and our joy, and our king.
Gr. ab Arthur.

Yna, adv. (yn—a) There, in that place; then, at that time: there now! lo!

Yna y mae fy enaid glan,

A'm eilyll yma allan.

In there is my pure soul, and my phantom here without.

D. ab Gwilym, tŷn hared Morfdd.

Yna o hon y gwelan anaele ymollyngasau.

Then from the top of the dreadful sleep we let ourselves down.
Ria Wyn, B. Cwg.

Ynad, s. m.—pl. t. on (wn—ad) That is wary or deliberate; a judge.

Fan farnwr tri aliter—

Bernad Daw an dym i wnebid

Y nefoedd, yn nefawd yndi.

When the three multitudes shall be judged, God will be judging our being conveyed to the blessed society of heaven, agreeably to the attribute of judges.
Cynddelw.

Ynadaeth, s. m. (ynad) The office of a judge.

Ynaeth, adv. (yn—aeth) Then, thereafter.

Yndid, s. m. (wn) Energy, vigour, force.

Eld yndid ynao.

Let vigour go into him.

Adage.

Ynddo, pronem. prep. (yn) In it; in him. Yn-ddof, in me; ynddot, in thee; ynddi, in her; ynddem, in us; ynddoch, in you; ynddynt, in them.

O bydd mawr cerddedawr o allud ar y ffordd, pa dŷr bynwg y mawr ynddo, efe a ddyly dalu 24 o ebedw.

If a traveller who is a foreigner shall die on the road, whatsoever land he dies in, he ought to pay twenty-four pence of heriot.
Welsh Laws.

Ynedd, s. m. (wn) Energy, vigour, force.

Ynfer, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (yn—mer) An influx, a confluence, the fall of one water into another. It is generally called Cymer and Aber.

Cad yn rhyd Alciad, cad yn yfer.

A battle in the ford of Alciad, a battle in the confluence.
Talliesin.

Ynfyd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yn—myd) That is furious or mad, that is foolish. a. Furious, frantic, mad, foolish.

Y dynion hys, ni ddylhwr credau en tystiolaeth: caeth, mad, byddar, ac ynfyd canorthwyr, neu ruthrawg.

These persons, their testimony is not to be believed: a slave, a mate, a deaf one, and one insane under restraint, or that is frantic.
Welsh Laws.

Yng, a. m. (yn) That is close or near upon; a bare touch or slight hint.

Yngau, s. m. (yng) Intimation. a. a. To intimate.

O gwallt, rho i gwall ras;
Ac i anghall nac yngau.

If thou canst, give a share to the discreet; and to the indiscreet give no satisfaction. O. Gwynedd.

Yngauawl, a. (yngau) Intimating, hinting.

Ynganiad, s. m. (yngau) A closely whispering; a hinting or intimating.

Yngauon, v. a. (yngau) To utter indistinctly, to whisper; to intimate, to hint.

Yngawg, a. (wng) Being proximate or near.

Yngawl, a. (wng) Being close or near upon.

Yngder, s. m. (wng) Closeness, or nearness.

Yngdra, s. m. (wng) Closeness, proximity.

Yngenyd, v. a. (yngau) To intimate, to hint.

Ynghyach, adv. (wng—cyrch) Imminently.

Ynghyd, adv. (cyd) In contact, together. Mysed ynghyd, to go in contact.

Yn Llŷnarth gwelais i ffrwydr
Gwyr ynghyd, a gwlad heb ddadllyd,
Rhaer rhwng mawr heb ffrith.

In Llŷnarth I saw the turmoil of men together, and blood to the knees, from the great tumult of the sea of Britain. Llywarch Hen.

A nath ynghyd, nath i'r byd.

That is gone together it is gone into the world. Adage.

Ynglych, adv. (cylich) About, round, in compass.

Phl ni myn:
Nid arsel gyrn
Ei grynhoed;
Yn he hynod,
Ynglych ei gwyl
Gwylid corpien.

Verily he will not have: not the white adorning his bands; instead of the henn, around his temples were ash. Y Brwd Madam of Gwalther.

Yngiad, s. m. (wng) A rendering close or near.

Ynglais, s. m. (wng—llais) A confined voice, a voice of distress.

Ynglef, s. m. (wng—llef) A cry of distress.

Odd ddoe i Ddugwylid ddodi ynglef.

It was yesterday that Ddugwylid had to utter the shriek. D. O. Cychi.

Yngleisaf, v. a. (ynglef) To cry confinedly.

Yngleisiad, s. m. (ynglais) A speaking or uttering with difficulty.

Yngleisaw, v. a. (ynglais) To speak or to utter the voice with difficulty.

Yngnad, s. m.—pl. s. on (wng—nad) A judge.

Yngneidiad, s. m. (yngnad) The acting as a judge.

Yngneidiaeth, s. m. (yngnad) The office of a judge; legislature; judicature.

Tair colofn gwlediek Yng Prydain—rhith gwlad, teyrnodd, ac yngneidiaeth, betwydd ddodda Prydain all hedd mawr.

The three foundations of government of the Isle of Britain—the voice of the country, monarchy, and legislature, according to the regulation of Prydain son of Aedd the Great. Trynodd.

Yngneidiaw, v. a. (yngnad) To act as a judge.

Yngneidiawl, a. (yngnad) Belonging to a judge.

Yngnis, s. f. (wng—guis) An epithet for a shoulder.

Gwyn wrth Llywau ad wyllt, malthwyr,
Er ynydd ar ynydd;
A chae he mawr yn ei ddolwg.

Gwyn by Llywau did he watch last night with the sheep on his shoulder; and as he was my cop he did not retreat. Llywarch Hen.

Yngo, adv. (wng) Hard by, or near, here.

Yngod, adv. (yngo) Hard by, or near, here.

Rhidd a fodd, heb llyd i fodd,
Rhidd wrth y bobi yngod.

A wolf he will be, without an obstacle for it, ayere to the people here. Llywarch Hen.

Ewig—
A ddolwg o'm fridd yngod.

A hind has cleaved from my park hard by. Iwan Dyf.

Yngogiad, s. m.—pl. yngogiaid (yngawg) A neighbour, a proximate.

Gores yngogiaid gelfi;

Gores amyllog moch.

The best as neighbours are goats; the best in confinement are swine. Adage.

Yngreg, a. (wng—rhég) Of narrow gift; stingy.

Yngres, s. m. (wng—gres) Violence, arduency.

Yn llwyn o yngres gwres.

Being full of the ardency of heat. Tallies.

Dau ddragon yn yngres.

Two dragons in violence. Gwalchmai.

Ynga, v. a. (wng) To close upon, to straiten.

Yngus, a. (wng) Of a close or narrow quality.

Yngwrth, adv. (yn—gwrth) Suddenly, unexpectedly.

Yngwrth orthochodd angs!

Unexpectedly the conquest of death! Leulu Morris.

Yngyrth, s. m. (wng—gyrth) A close push.

Anhygar ei bar, borygl brys yngyrth,
A'fwr angsu dilyn.

Unlucky his shaft, the danger of hasty onset, that causes certain death. Simon Ufford.

YR, s. m. r. That is distant, past, out or from; that is opposite or against. prep. For, with respect to. art. The, used for y, preceding words with vowel initials: It is also used adverbially, as—Yr oedd gwr a'i enw Ioan, there was a man whose name was John.

Cerdd doeth yr enillion.

Let the wise love the remains of patently. Adage.

Mai y tan ya yr aelwyd.

Like the fire in the hearth. Adage.

Ci a hettio heb ffrith ni bydd da ar yr an.

A dog that hunts every beast will not be good for any one. Adage.

Fan goller yr hnos,
O'r gogledd daw eton.

When the fine weather shall be lost, from the north it will come again. Adage.

After another yw yr arfer waelid ya y byd.

To be in the habit of no habit is the worst habit in the world. Adage.

Yrth, s. m.—pl. s. ton (yr) A touch; a stop, obstacle, let, or hindrance. a. Impeding. Mae efe yn siarad yn yrth, he is speaking lispingly. Sil.

All morth mawr mor de;
All yrth, all yrth ee.

Like the great expanse of the south sea; like the concussion, like the fall of stars. Gwalchmai.

All yrth gyrth ya gwrthfynnant;

All gwyrdd ymbered an hared amant bre,
Bron yr Erw y galwau.

A second shock of onset they sought against us; a second vehement conflict round the fall circumference of a hill, Bron yr Erw, which they call. Ll. F. Nock, i Llywelyn II.

Yrthiad, s. m. (yrth) A touching; a stopping.

Yrthlaw, v. a. (yrth) To touch; to stop.

Yrthwech, s. m. (yrth) An impediment, a stammer.

Gwedd gwedy rhydd yrthwech.

After extreme smoothness generally comes a rut. Adage.

YS, s. m. r. That is, that arises or issues out; that proceeds; that is active, violent, or consuming; a combustible principle. It is a common prefix in composition.

Ys, v. (ys, s.) Is, hath, a being, existeth. Ys id? Is there? is it? be there?

- Arfer no doddŷ ys troch.
Custom is mightier than law. Adage.
- Amledd cybydd ys tiodi arno.
The abundance of the miser is poverty to him. Adage.
- Medŷ ys gawod o woddwedd hŷ.
Reproach is attendant on long widowhood. Adage.
- Bodd Eichwyth ys gwylch gwlaw,
Moes Mawdawg y ddaew;
Dylŷal Cynon yno ei gwynaw.
The grave of Eichwyth the rain doth drench, the plain of Mawdawg beneath him; him Cynon ought to mourn. E. Beddau Miliwyr.
- Ys id yn y boly hwn blaew!
Ceiniald cyniald, disgwiald ya nharin
Rhag oedwyr cad barawd!
Is there in this leathern bag some meal's dangers of depredators, falling once in conflict before the warrior of ready battle. H. Bran, Mabinogion.
- Ysawdy, a. (ys) Consumable, or ignitable.
- Ysawl, a. (ys) Consuming, or devouring; caustic.
- Ten ysawl, consuming fire.
- Ysach, s. m. (bach) A grapple, or a clawing.
- Ysachawl, a. (ysbach) Grappling; rumpling.
- Ysbachiad, s. m. (ysbach) A clawing; a rumpling.
- Ysbachu, v. a. (ysbach) To claw; to rumple.
- Ysag, s. f.—pl. t. an (bag) A talon.
- Ysagawg, a. (ysag) Having claws or talons.
- Ysagawl, a. (ysag) Like a talon or claw.
- Ysbagu, v. a. (ysag) To claw, to clutch.
- Ysbawd, s. f.—pl. ysbodau (pawd) A blade, a blade-bone, a shoulder-bone; a shoulder. Ysbawd mollt, pafais mollt, pafais defad, a shoulder of mutton.
- Ysbledd, s. m. (bledd) That is got by rapacity.
- Ysbledda, v. a. (ysbledd) To gather spoil.
- Ysbleddach, s. m. (ysbledd) Spoil, prey, or booty.
- Y brenŷn agas: cyfarch, a goruchafiaeth, ac ysbleddach drwgwddawl!
The monarch death: I greet thee pre-eminence and eternal spoil! Ella Wyn, E. Cwag.
- Ysblenyddiad, s.—pl. t. an (ysplenydd) A raying.
- Ysbrig, s. m.—pl. t. ion (brig) A sprig.
- Ysbrigaw, v. a. (ysbrig) To produce sprigs.
- Ysbrigawg, a. (ysbrig) Full of sprigs.
- Ysbrigawl, a. (ysbrig) Tending to yield sprigs.
- Ysbrigiad, s. m. (ysbrig) A sprigging.
- Ysbrigyn, s. m. dim. (ysbrig) A sprig, a twig.
- Ysbril, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ys—bril) A bat. Dyfed
- Ysbrychiad, s. m. (brychiad) A speckling.
- Ysbrychu, v. a. (brychu) To speckle, to blur.
- Ysbryd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pryd) That is intelligent, that is mental; a spirit.
- Gwas ei llafer lla yn ei ysbryd,
Ysbaid fyr fydwyl fod yn mhenyd;
Gwas a ei yn nghanu yn nghymlegd Cain
Cyrychiawg, lygriad coedy!
Woe to him who labours not a benefit in his spirit, during the short woody space being in penance; woe to him who goes into iniquity in a course similar to Cain the first rebellious, a perfidious corruption! Meliyr ab Gwalchmai.
- Mae rhyw nerth yn mysg dynion, yr awr hon, nad oedd o'r blaen;
mae rhyw yspird rhyfodd yn gwrtholaw.
There is some power, at present, among men, which was not heretofore; there is some extraordinary spirit working. Morgan Llwyd.
- Ysbrydawg, a. (ysbryd) Having a spirit.
- Ysbrydawl, a. (ysbryd) Spiritual, or ghostly.
- Ysbrydiad, s. m.—pl. ysbrydiadaid (ysbryd) An intelligence, a spiritual agent.
- Ni aethon drwy deyrnas yr wybr, lle yr oedd holl ddryg ysbrydawl yn trigaew.
We went through the kingdom of the air, where all the evil intelligences had their abodes. Merchawg Cwyrddad.
- Ysbrydiaeth, s. m. (ysbryd) Spirituality.
- Dyben cerdd yw gwelŷu y deall, dyddawu y bryd, ac yr ysbrydiaeth.
The intention of poetry is to improve the understanding, to delight the mind and the spirit. Barddas.

- Ysbrydlawn, a. (ysbryd) Spirited, full of spirit.
- Ysbrydlondeb, s. m. (ysbrydlawn) Spiritfulness.
- Ysbrydonedd, s. m. (ysbrydlawn) Spiritfulness.
- Ysbrydloni, v. a. (ysbrydlawn) To render spiritual; to become spiritual.
- Ysbrydlonrwydd, s. m. (ysbrydlawn) Spiritfulness.
- Ysbrydoldeb, s. m. (ysbrydawl) A spiritual state.
- Ysbryddolder, s. m. (ysbrydawl) A spiritual state.
- Ysbrydoledig, a. (ysbrydawl) Spiritualized.
- Ysbrydoledd, s. m. (ysbrydawl) Spirituality.
- Ysbrydoli, v. a. (ysbrydawl) To render spiritual; to spiritualize.
- Ysbrydoliad, s. m. (ysbrydawl) Spiritualization.
- Ysbrydoliaeth, s. m. (ysbrydawl) Inspiration, the working of the spirit.
- Ysbrydoliaethu, v. a. (ysbrydoliaeth) To spiritualize, to render spiritual.
- Ysbrydolrwydd, s. m. (ysbrydawl) A spiritual state.
- Ysbrydos, a. (ysbryd) Spiritual, spiritual.
- Ysbrydusaw, v. a. (ysbrydus) To render spiritual; to become spiritual.
- Ysbrydusedd, s. m. (ysbrydus) Spiritiveness.
- Ysbur, s. m.—pl. t. iau (bur) The pedestal or base of a pillar; a short post or supporter of a shelf, in ancient houses, projecting into the floor, in the form of a skreen, and used to put by such victuals as is in present consumption.
- Ysbwrial, s. m. aggr. (bwrw) Refuse, trash, sweepings, rubbish.
- Ysbwriaia, v. a. (ysbwrial) To make rubbish.
- Ysbyd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (osb) Hospitality.
- Ysbydaeth, s. m. (ysbyd) The practice of receiving guests, hospitality.
- Ysbydawl, a. (ysbyd) Relating to the receiving of guests.
- Ysbydiad, s. m. (ysbyd) A receiving of guests.
- Ysbyda, v. a. (ysbyd) To receive guests.
- Ysbydwr, s. m.—pl. ysbydwyr (ysbyd—gwr) The master of an hospital.
- Ysby, a. (bys) Noticeable; manifest, evident.
- Ysbyawl, a. (ysbys) Tending to manifest.
- Ysbysiad, s. m. (ysbys) A specifying.
- Ysbysoil, v. a. (ysbysawl) To render manifest; to become special or particular.
- Ysbysoiliad, s. m. (ysbysawl) Specification.
- Ysbyrsrwydd, s. m. (ysbys) A specification, notice, or information.
- Ysbysu, v. a. (ysbys) To specify, to give notice.
- Ysbyswr, s. m.—pl. ysbyswyr (ysbys—gwr) A specifier, a declarer.
- Ysbysydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysbys) A specifier.
- Ysbytty, s. m.—pl. t. an (ysbyd—ty) A hospital.
- Ysdawr, s. m. (dawr) That is of concern or an object of care or anxiety.
- Ysdiff, s. m. (diff) That forms a spout or jet.
- Ysdiffiad, s. m. (ysdiff) A spouting out.
- Ysdiffiaw, v. a. (ysdiff) To spout or to jet out.
- Ysdiffi, s. m. (ysdiff) That spouts or spirts.
- Ysdiffiawg, a. (ysdiffi) Full of spouting or jetting s. f. The cuttle-fish.
- Ysdill, s. m.—pl. t. ion (dill) That folds or plait.
- Ysdilliad, v. a. (ysdill) A making a plaiting.
- Ysdillaw, v. a. (ysdill) To form a fold or plait.
- Ysdori, s. f.—pl. t. an (ysdawr) What is of concern or in mind; a matter of record.
- Ysdoriad, s. m. (ysdori) A relating as history.
- Ysdoriaw, v. a. (ysdori) To relate a story.
- Ysdoriawl, a. (ysdori) Historical, historic.
- Ysdragiad, s. m. (dragiad) A dragging about.
- Ysdragiaw, v. a. (dragiaw) To mangle, to drag

Yadwrddiad, s. m. (dwrddiad) A threatening.
Yadwrddiaw, v. a. (dwrddiaw) To threaten.
Yadwrddiwr, s. m.—pl. yadwrddiwyrr (dwrddiwr) A threatener.
Yadyferiad, s. m. (dyferiad) A distillation.
Yadyferion, s. pl. aggr. (dyferion) Distillations.
Yadyferu, v. a. (dyferu) To distill, to drop.
Yadyfnig, a. (dyfnig) Obstinate, stubborn.
Yadyfnigaw, v. a. (yadyfnig) To act stubbornly; to become obstinate or stubborn.
Yadyfnigrwydd, s. m. (yadyfnigr) Stubbornness.
Ysedig, a. (ys) Corroded; consumed; oxidized.
Ysenyd, s. m. (enyd) A space of time, a while.

*Byd effridf droe wledydd;
 Bethyd yr ysenyd ydyd.*

A world of numerous changes over countries; a confused world for a good while hath been. Lly. ab Ior. ab Emyfed.

Ysta, s. f.—pl. ysfeydd (ys—ma) A spot devoured or consumed; a feeding place; a sheep walk; an itching.

*Dwg yst, lle'r wyd, gnefale,
 Dan rodiaw a dringaw drail.*

Bear an itching, where thou art, slender shank, while perambulating and climbing of thorns. T. Prye, i'r dryn.

Ysfa, s. f.—pl. t. au (ys—man) A consuming place; a biting place; an itching. Mae yn cedi ysfa, it causes an itching.

Yag, s. m. (ys) A tendency to act, or move, or to separate.

Ygadan, s. pl. aggr. (cad) Herrings; also called penwaig, or empty heads.

Ygadenyn, s. m. dim. (ygadan) A herring.

Ygaen, s. f.—pl. t. au (caen) A sprinkle.

Ygaeniad, s. m. (ygaen) A sprinkling.

Ygaennu, v. a. (ygaen) To sprinkle, to spread.

Ygafael, a. m.—pl. t. au (cafael) That is taken; capture, prey.

*Manred gymined, mawr ygaefael,
 Y rhag Caez Lwydroed, neu ddeg Moriall
 Fyntheccaat mawr a phen Gwral.*

Briskly pacing for combat, a great booty, before the fortress of Grey-wood, but not Moriall taken! fifteen hundred line, and the head of Gwral. Meigran, m. Cynddylan.

Ygafaeliad, s. m. (ygafael) A capturing.

Ygafaelu, v. a. (ygafael) To capture.

Ygafaelus, a. (ygafael) Predatory, rapacious.

Ygafaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (cafaeth) A booty, a board.

Ygafaethawl, a. (ygaeth) Rapacious.

Ygafaethiad, s. m. (ygafaeth) A making a booty; a boarding.

Ygafaethu, v. a. (ygafaeth) To make a booty; to lap up a board.

Ygafu, s. m. (cafu) A light heap or body; that is light or easy; a stack of corn. Marw ygaflu, a death-bed; a resignation to death, or a death-bed song.

Ysfa, s. m. (cafu) Light, volatile; fickle.

Ygafu y deeth, ygaflu yr aeth.

Lightly it came, lightly it went. Adage.
Gloewach fyddant y saint yna neithwailh no'r haul, ac ygaflu-ach o fuaner fyddant no mudiwl.

The saints will be then seven times brighter than the sun, and lighter of motion than thought. Euclidius.

Ygafnâd, s. m. (ygafnâu) A lightning.

Ygafnâwl, a. (ygafnâu) Tending to be light.

Ygafnaidd, a. (ygafu) To render light.

Ygafnâu, v. a. (ygafu) To make light, to make easy; to become light.

Ygafnder, s. m. (ygafu) Lightness; levity.

Ygafndra, s. m. (ygafu) Lightness; levity.

Ygafndreir, a. (ygafu—treir) Of light order; lightly arrayed, lightly armed.

Ygafnodd, s. m. (ygafu) Lightness, levity.

Ygafniad, s. m. (ygafu) A making light.

Ygafnleddf, a. (ygafu—lleddf) Softly yielding.

Ygafnwydd, s. m. (ygafu) Lightness, levity.

Ygafnu, v. a. (ygafu) To lighten, to make light; to make a light heap, to stack corn; to become light.

Ygaffell, s. f.—pl. t. au (caffell) A ledge, edge, rim, or brow. Dyna se yn edrych dan ei ygaffell, there he is looking stily, or under his brow.

Efe a'm cipiai i ymbell bell y tu schaf i'r castell, ac ar ygaffell o rywyl gwya gorphwyaem.

He snatched me far and far above the castle, and on the edge of a white cloud we rested. Elle Wyn, B. Cwsg.

Ygaffellawg, a. (ygaffell) Having a ledge.

Ygaffelliad, s. m. (ygaffell) A ledging.

Ygaffellu, v. a. (ygaffell) To form a ledge.

Ygal, s. m. (ysg) Froth, foam, or scum.

Ygain, s. m. (cain) A sprinkle. a. Sprinkling. v. a. To sprinkle, or to spread out.

Rhodddhawg farbwag farch ygalu.

A red-stained knight with a spattering steel. Cynddelw.

Bradw ygwedd bryd ygalu wrth luf.

With a frail shield his front gleaming at the onset. Cynddelw.

*Yn rhith claddwyd chae,
 Clod ygalu yn aer.*

In the semblance of a bright sword, spreading flame in conflict. Cynddelw.

Cad ygalu cad ddysgog.

Bounty scattering in battle unshaken. Prydydd Dychem.

Ygalcne, s. f.—pl. ysgalcneiau (calne) That branches or forms a branch.

Ygaing, s. f. (caing) That forms a branch. Ysgaing o edaf, a skain of thread.

Ygais, s. m. (cais) That is attempted or essayed.

Ygall, s. pl. aggr. (call) The thistle. Ygall gwynion, ygall mair, ygall brithion, milk thistle; ygall duon, black thistle; ygall bendigaid blessed thistle; ygall y penwr, the teasel; ygall y bludd, ygall gwylltion, spear thistle; ygall campen, field eryngo; ygall y moch, laeth ysgall, llymchfyd, sow-thistle; ygall y meirch, marchyggall, endive.

A be yggall ni fed weith.

Who soweth thistles will not reap wheat. Adage.

Ygallaid, a. (ysgall) Like a thistle.

Ygallawg, a. (ysgall) Abounding with thistles; of the nature of thistle. Llystau ygallawg, acanacious plants.

Ygallen, s. f. (ysgall) A thistle: ygallen ddu, black chameleon thistle; ygallen ddraenwen, common carline thistle; ygallen foglynnawg, sea eryngo; ygallen fwyth, melancholy thistle.

Ygant, s. m. (cant) That forms a curve or whirl.

Ygar, s. f.—pl. t. ion (car) A separate part, a part, portion; or share; a piece, or fragment; a separation, a divorce.

Ygar, v. a. (car) To separate, to divide; to divorce; to cast off.

Ygarant, s. m.—pl. ysgeraint (ysgar) One that is separated or parted; an adversary.

*Piau y bodd hwn? Edd Brant
 Y rhwng llewya a lledant;
 Bodd gwyr gwae i ysgeraint.*

Who owns this grave? The grave of Brant, between the horizon and a slight ravine; the grave of a man the woe of the enemies. B. Bradden Mynyrr.

Ygaredd, s. f. (ysgar) A spread, a dispersion.

Ygareddawl, a. (ysgaredd) Dispersing, scattering.

Ygareddu, s. m. (ysgaredd) Separation, dispersion.

Ygaredig, a. (ysgar) Separated, divided.

Ysgerddigath, s. m.—pl. t. an (ysgerddig) Separation; a scattered state.
Ysgerdd, s. m. (ysgar) Separateness.
Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ysgar) Separation.
Ysgerioeth, s. m. (ysgar) A separation.
Ysgeru, v. a. (ysgar) To separate, to part.
Ysgerm, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (gar) An outery.
Ysgermau, v. a. (ysgaru) To keep up a continual outcry or shouting.
Ysgermau, s. m. (ysgaru) Shouting, screaming.
Ysgermau, s. f.—pl. t. au (ysgaru) The being employed in an outcry or shout; the work of shouting; a skirmish.

Mace a new 'ysgermau' a wain'.

A battle and also skirmishes they would go through. L. S. Cest.

Ysgermiad, s. m. (ysgaru) A shouting.
Ysgermu, v. a. (ysgaru) To set up a shout.
Ysgerth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (carth) Offscouring.
Ysgerthawg, s. m. (ysgarth) Excrementitious.
Ysgerthawl, s. m. (ysgarth) Excremental, excretive.
Ysgerthiad, s. m. (ysgarth) Excretion; a scouring out, or purging.
Ysgerthlyd, s. m. (ysgarth) Tending to expel or to purge.
Ysgerthu, v. a. (ysgarth) To purge out, to expel.
Ysgeru, v. a. (ysgar) To separate, to part.

Nid ygar newyn a ddiol.

Hunger will not part from idleness. Adage.

Ysgerfydd, ade. (gad—hydd) Peradventure, perhaps.
Ysgau, s. m. (can) That is hollow or scooped; a scoop. a. Scooped.
Ysgaw, s. m. aggr. (caw) Elder wood, elder.
Ysgaw y ddalar, cor-ysgaw, ysgaw Mair, gwaed y gwyr, dwarf-elder.

Tri pheth a gyswddir ar y gwaw,
 Gwydd, ac ygwll, ac ysgaw.

Three things increase in the rain, grass, and thistle, and elder. Adage.

Ysgawd, s. m. (cawd) That rises over, a shade.

Gnawd rwyf yn bell Bell rirawd,
 Gnawd ysgawd ysgawd ar gwa ysgawd.

Like the effect of the ear in the brain is the liquor of Bell, like a light shade on the back of a shadow. Tallies.

Ysgawen, s. f. (ysgaw) An elder-tree. Ysgawen y gors, or cor-ygawen, water-elder.

Ysgawl, s. m. (ysg) Abounding with activity. Ysgawl gwyth, wrath is active.

Ysgawl ddygymodd llawd gymare.

Violently descended the tangle of the concourse. Tallies.

Gogwa—
 Py ysgawl oddaf
 Pyn dderchad nef:
 Pwy fa forch lwyf
 O ddair byd swyr.

I have an idea what was the carrying patience when heaven was upheaved; what was a soul cast from earth to sky. Tallies.

Ysgawn, s. m. (cawn) A light body. a. Light.

Ysgawn lwyth a glad.

The light load will accommodate. Adage.

Ysgawn i newn ysgawn i mae.

Light is entering, light is egress. Adage.

Ysgawndad, s. m. (ysgawndu) Alleviation.
Ysgawndawl, s. m. (ysgawndu) Tending to lighten.
Ysgawndu, v. a. (ysgawn) To lighten; to become light; to become volatile.

Ysgeru, v. m. (cecrun) A bickering, a brawling.
Ysgeru, v. a. (cecrun) To be bickering.

Ysgeru, v. a. (cecrun) Bickering, brawling.
Ysgeru, v. m. (cecrun) A bickering, a brawling.
Ysgom, v. a. (ceom) To bicker, to quarrel.
Ysgedd, s. m. (ys—cedd) The sea kale.
Ysgeriad, s. m. (ysgeriad) A throbbing; a shaking by laying hold of the throat.
Ysgeriad, v. a. (ysgeriad) A shaking by laying hold of the throat; a shaking roughly.
Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. ysgeriad (ysgeriad—gur) A throbbler, one who shakes roughly.
Ysgeriad, s. f. (ysgeriad—torf) A spreading hat.

Ysgeriad torfod rithordad mair.

The spreading hat of the poet by his own was turned. L. P. Mack.

Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. t. an (ysgeriad) A spreading out; a sprinkling; a squinting.
Ysgeriad, v. a. (ysgeriad) To spread abroad; to spit, to step; to sprinkle; to squint.

Yn y gwyl y tan hachar yd ysgeriad o'r arth.

Then was seen the glowing fire sprinkling from the arm. Adage of Brecknock.

Ysgeriad yd yd
 O do yd yd.

They would spread out in a flame high from the arm. Tallies.

Ysgeriad yd yd
 O do yd yd
 Yd yd yd yd yd
 Yd yd yd yd yd

Triph would come from about the head of Bomer; Bomer will harmonize; their praise will spread abroad. Tallies.

Ysgeriad, s. m. (ysgeriad) Sprinkling; squinting.
Ysgeriad, v. a. (ysgeriad) Scattered; sprinkled.
Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgeriad) A scatterer; a sprinkler; a squinter.

Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. ysgeriad (ysgeriad—gur) A scatterer; a sprinkler; a squinter.

Ysgeriad, s. m. (ysgeriad) A whirling about.

Ysgeriad, v. a. (ysgeriad) To whirl about.

Ysgeriad, s. m. (ysgeriad) Whirling, whisking.

Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. ysgeriad (ysgeriad—gur) One who whisks about.

Ysgeriad, s. m. (ysgeriad) An endeavouring.

Ysgeriad, v. a. (ysgeriad) To be endeavouring.

Ysgeriad, s. m. (ysgeriad) Endeavouring.

Ysgeriad, s. m.—pl. ysgeriad (ysgeriad—gur) One who attempts or endeavours.

Ysgeler, s. m. (cel) Atrocious, villainous, malicious, detestable; obscene.

Ysgelerdawl, s. m. (ysgeler) Atrociousness.

Ysgelerder, s. m. (ysgeler) Atrociousness.

Ysgelerdra, s. m. (ysgeler) Flagitiousness.

Ysgeleredd, s. m. (ysgeler) Flagitiousness.

Ysgeleriad, s. m. (ysgeler) A rendering flagitious; a becoming scandalous.

Ysgelera, v. a. (ysgeler) To render flagitious; to become atrocious or flagitious.

Ysgelynllys, s. m. (celyn—llys) The ribwort. It is also called estyllenlys.

Ysgellog, s. f. (ysgall) Wild succory.

Ysgemydd, s. m. (cam) A curve, the outside edge of any thing that curves.

Tri ysgemydd newn Ysg Prydys: Gheru mab Chygher.
 Morion mab Togh, a Gogon Gledgyth.

The three hammers in of battle of the Isle of Britain: Gheru son of Gledgyth, Morion son of Togh, and Gogon Agonyth.

Ysgemydd ddiwydd ddiwydd a Llythys.

A celebrated circle equally prominent with Llythys. Adage of Gogon.

Yd gwyn lwyd, yd gwyn lwyd,
 Yd gwyn lwyd lwyd,
 Yd gwyn lwyd lwyd,
 Yd gwyn lwyd lwyd.

Bring much heat, like a daisy, burning like the dew of a sun; being heat on its curving edge, being long to cut up a man. Adage of Gogon, a Llythys.

Yageth, s. m. (ceth) Morphew, or dandriff.
Yagededl, s. f. (cenedl) A generation, a tribe.

*Yager diffiddid and uch deffyn
 Yager yagededl ychewall cythwyn.*

The departing of the protection of the good-omened will spread the quickly flying report of the family.
Bin. ab Gwalechmwyd, t. Llynolyn II.

Yagededlawg, s. (yagededl) Generating.
Yagededliad, s. m. (yagededl) A generating.
Yagededlu, v. a. (yagededl) To generate.
Yagediad, s. m. (yagen) A generating of scales;
 a generating of dandriff.

Yagedliys, s. m. (ys—cân—llys) Hemispheric liver-green.

Yagentyn, s. m. dim. (yagent) A caperer; a buffoon.
Yagentynald, s. (yagentyn) Buffoon-like.

Yagenn, v. a. (yagen) To generate scales; to generate scurf or dandriff.

Yager, s. f.—pl. yagyr (car) A kind of stone which breaks into bars.

Yagerbwad, s. m. (yagar—pwd) A skeleton, a carcase; emurion.

Samson—a dove t. elych yagerbwad y llaw.

Samson turned to humiliate the carcase of the lion.

Barnwyd 14. s.

Yageth, s. f.—pl. t. au (ceth) That pushes or repels; a spear.

Hyder gynhell ar freitball fannwyd, hi nodi mai yageth a ac yogydd.

With a confident impulse towards the hammer staff, there will mark not spear nor shield.
Aneurin.

Yagethiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (yageth) Propulsion;
 repulsion.

Yagethin, a. (yageth) Propulsive; repulsive.

Yagethr, s. f.—pl. t. au (cethr) That drives.

Yagethwag, a. (yagethr) Iterating, driving.

Yagethwael, a. (yagethr) Iterating, driving.

Yagethriad, s. m. (yagethr) An iterating.

Yagethrin, a. (yagethr) Iterative; impulsive.

Yr oddi ddrwydd melli yagethrin yn rhwygaw y mwg ddrwy would y mwg melli yn ei ddrwy.

There's drift of impulsive lightning—repels the thick black smoke, which the horrid gulf threw out.
Edo Wyn, B. Cwyr.

Yagethu, v. a. (yagethr) To iterate, to impel.

Yagethu, v. a. (yagethr) To push; to repulse.

Yageuad, s. m. (yagan) A hollowing, a scooping.

Yageuaw, v. a. (yagan) To hollow, to scoop.

Yageuawl, a. (yagan) Hollowed, scooped.

Yageueg, s. f.—pl. t. au (yagan) A scoop.

Yageuegiad, s. m. (yageueg) A scooping.

Yageuegw, v. a. (yageueg) To scoop out, to hollow.

Yagewlu, a. (yagaw) Being of elder wood.

Yagewyll, s. pl. aggr. (yagaw) Oziers; twigs.

Aderyn a'—

Eagylt hanes yagewyll blydd.

A bird with its wings the tops of young oaks.

H. ab D. ab Ien. ab Rhys.

Yagewyll y mwg gwydd

Ac yn y gwallt agin gwydd.

Twigs form a leafy circle, and in the work the tend of woods.

D. ab Edmund, t. Gw. Idris.

Yagewyllawg, a. (yagewyll) Having twigs.

Yagi, s. m.—pl. t. od (yag) Exertion; a clearance, a cutting off; a parer, a clearer; a bat, either for play or to beat clods; a paring knife; an instrument for cutting up mole hills, with handles like a plough, guided by one person and drawn by another. Cenall yagi, a strike of depredation.

Edad yn eogyryn,

Eogyryn, yn llaw,

Llaw yn yagi,

Yagi yn meddydd.

Liquor in golden horns, golden horns in hand, hand in labour, labour in society.
Tullerius.

Yaglad, s. m. (yagi) A clearing, a cutting off.

Yagiaw, v. a. (yagi) To cut away, to pare, to clear; to bat, to beat clods.

Yagiawl, a. (yagi) A paring, or a slicing.

Yagiell, s. f. (yagi) A scud of fine weather.

Yagien, s. f. dim. (yagi) A cutter, a parer, a chopper; a scymitar; a large knife; a grafting knife; a wooden knife for cutting of batter; a turner's spring or bath; a tall awkward woman.

Nis lidd cledl mae yagien.

Her sword nor scymitar will kill him.

D. Mowbray.

Yagig, a. (cig) Carnivorous, flesh-eating.

Yagil, s. m.—pl. t. iau (cil) The state of being behind, as on horse-back; a recess.

Yagilbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (yagil—pren) The stent in the traces of a horse.

Yagiliad, s. m. (yagil) A setting behind; a going or riding behind; a recession; a throwing behind.

Yagiliaw, v. a. (yagil) To set behind; to lay or throw aside; to go behind; to ride behind on horseback.

Yagiliwr, s. m.—pl. yagiliwyr (yagil—gwr) One who sets behind; one who takes behind on horseback.

Yagin, s. f.—pl. t. au (cin) A robe made of skin with the fur on it, a pelisse.

Rhita Gwyr a wael lldo yagin o farfae brennodd.

Rhita the Giant made for him a robe of the heads of kings.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Yaginaw, v. a. (yagin) To dress in a robe.

Yaginawg, a. (yagin) Having a robe, gowned.

Yaginawr, s. m.—pl. yaginawron (yagin) A robe.

Yaginawr parha—

Yogwyl, mwg brennodd fannir.

An immense robe of scarlet, the hue of the gleaming of flames.

Ed. P. Moch.

Yaginen, s. f. dim. (yagin) A robe, a gown.

Yaginiad, s. m. (yagin) A dressing in a robe.

Yaginydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yagin) A robe-maker;

Yaginyddiaeth, s. m. (yagin) The trade of a robe-maker, a pelisse-maker.

Yagip, s. m.—pl. t. iau (cip) A quick snatch.

Yagipiad, s. m. (yagip) A snatching away.

Yagipaw, v. a. (yagip) To snatch away.

Yagipiad farf—

Yagwylr hwyll beidr haul.

It would snatch off a beard of a wandering course like the sun beams.
H. R. Gack Sgwyl, t. Gwyl.

Yagipiawg, a. (yagip) Snatching, rapacious.

Yagipiawl, a. (yagip) Snatching, rapacious.

Yagipiedig, a. (yagipiad) Being snatched.

Yagipiolrwydd, s. m. (yagipiawl) Rapaciousness.

Yagiw, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ciw) A screen or shelter;

a cousin in the third degree.

Yagwiad, s. m. (yagiw) A screening, a sheltering.

Yagwiaw, v. a. (yagiw) To screen, to shelter.

Yaglawring, s. m. (clawr) Glue, cement.

Yaglawringaw, v. a. (yaglawring) To glue.

Yaglawringiad, s. m. (yaglawring) A gluing.

Yaglem, s. f.—pl. t. iau (clem) A slice, a slice.

Yaglem glaw o'r crwmnew cron.

A good slice of the brittle sharp ice.

D. ab Sgwyl.

Yaglemiad, s. m. (yaglem) A slicing, a slicing.

Yaglemiaw, v. a. (yaglem) To slice, to slice.

Yaglemawl, a. (yaglem) Slicing, or slicing.

Yaglemiwr, s. m.—pl. yaglemiwr (yaglem—gwr)
 One who slices.

Yaglemydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yaglem) A slicer.

Rhiagyn o wr—

A gen ion fal yaglemydd.

A skeleton of a man, with a sharp chin like a slice.
Grown William.

Yaglen, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ysg—llen) A sex.

Yaglenawg, a. (ysglen) Having a sex.

Yaglenawl, a. (ysglen) Sexual, belonging to sex.

Yagleniad, s. m. (ysglen) A forming a sex.

Yaglent, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ysg—llent) A slide, a slippery drift, as of ice.

Yaglentiad, s. m. (ysglen) A making a slide.

Yaglentiauw, v. a. (ysglen) To form a slide, to slide as upon the ice.

Yaglentfawl, a. (ysglen) Sliding, like a slide.

Yaglentfwr, s. m.—pl. ysglentfwr (ysglen—gwr) A slider on the ice.

Yaglin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (glin) A knob, a knot.

Yaglinaw, v. a. (ysglin) To form a knob.

Yaglinen, s. f. dim. (yaglin) A knot in a tree.

Ogyl lawnwed heb yaglinen.

A branch, of true blood, without a knot.

S. Tudyr.

Yagliniad, s. m. (yaglin) A forming a knob.

Yagloen, s. f. dim. (cloen) A maiden, a damsel.

Yaglofen, s. m. dim. (clofen) A slip, a spray.

Yaglofeniad, s. m. (yaglofen) A branching.

Yaglofenn, v. a. (yaglofen) To cut a slip.

Yaglyf, s. m.—pl. t. ion (glyf) That seeks prey.

Yn nharfag yn nharfag Saxon,
Yn nharfag cyhoedd cyngreilion,
Yn nharfag awerys gwrw gwon,
Yn nharfag lla, a lla ysglydon,
Cyrru cennynt, cerbydau caru welwion ar dir,
Ar derfyn Caer Lleuon.

In a tumult on the Saxons' boundary, in the conspicuous hosts of mutual strugglers, in the violent pursuit by an ardent hero, in the turmoil of a host and scream of birds of prey, horns resounded, the pale-hoofed steeds scudded over the land, on the limit of Caer Lleuon.
Cynnddelw, m. O Gwynedd.

Yaglyfaeth, s. f.—pl. t. au (yaglyf) Depredation.

Yaglyfaethawl, a. (yaglyfaeth) Depredating.

Yaglyfaethiad, s. m. (yaglyfaeth) A depredating.

Yaglyfaethu, v. a. (yaglyfaeth) To depredate.

Yaglyfaethus, a. (yaglyfaeth) Predatory.

Môr yaglyfaethus a bardud.

As rapacious as a kite.

Adage.

Yaglyfiad, s. m.—pl. yaglyfiad (yaglyf) A depredator, a ravager.

Yaglyfiad bid gweiddad.

Let the depredator be craftily bold.

Adage.

Yaglyfiannawl, a. (yaglyfiant) Depredating.

Yaglyfiannu, v. a. (yaglyfiant) To depredate.

Yaglyfiant, s. m. (yaglyf) Depredation.

Yaglyfiaw, v. a. (yaglyf) To depredate.

Yaglyfied, v. a. (yaglyf) To depredate, to spoil.

Yaglyfiedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yaglyfiad) A ravager, a depredator.

Yaglyfiwr, s. m.—pl. yaglyfiwr (yaglyf—gwr) A rapacious one; a snatcher.

Yaglyfu, v. a. (yaglyf) To take forcibly, to snatch, to depredate.

Cyrridwen yn dawed i mewn ac yn gweled ei llafor yn gollodig, yaglyfu rhyddi a tharaw y dall Morfael ar ei ben a wael.

Cyrridwen coming in and seeing her labour lost, what she did was to snatch up a staff and strike the blind Morfael on his head.
Hanes Taliesin.

Yaglymawl, a. (clymawl) Tending to knit.

Yaglymiad, s. m. (clymiad) A forming a knot.

Yaglyme, v. a. (clyma) To form into a knot.

Yagnawd, a. (ys—cnawd) Being habitual.

Yagnodawg, a. (yagnawd) Having a habit.

Yagnodawl, a. (yagnawd) Tending to habituate.

Yago, s. m. (yag) A going or starting aside; a winter habitation, or the Aandref.

Yagoad, s. m. (yago) A going or starting aside.

Yagöawl, a. (yago) Tending to start aside.

Yagob, s. m. (cob) That bears away.

Hennant methiant ddaw i tl.

A hyn's dderymddad;

Rhaw arned fyn a yagob

I'w drol o bob dderyd.

Old age of decrepitude will come to thee, and that without ceremony; that will on thee bear a sway to turn thee from every vain pursuit.
Idem. S. Hywel.

Yagobell, s. f.—pl. t. i (yagob) A saddle.

Yagodawg, a. (yagawd) Sheltered, shadowed, frequenting shades. s. m.—pl. yagodogion; One of the shades, one of the woods; a person in disguise; a hobgoblin; a Scot; otherwise called Gwyddel, Celt, and Celtiad.

Gwyddyl, diefny ddon;

Yagodogion, dynion hollfwr.

The Gwyddellians, black devils; Scots, men void of nerve.
Idem.

Yagodawl, a. (yagawd) Sheltering, shadowing.

Yagodi, v. a. (yagawd) To shelter, to shadow.

Yagodig, a. (yagawd) Sheltered, shaded.

Yagodigaw, v. a. (yagodig) To frighten by disguise; to be frightened.

Yagoeg, a. (coeg) Empty, vain, frivolous.

Yagoegl, v. a. (yagoeg) To make empty; to become empty or frivolous.

Ysagoegiad, s. m. (yagoeg) A rendering empty; a becoming empty or frivolous.

Ysagoegy, s. m. dim. (yagoeg) A coxcomb, a fop.

Yagoel, s. f.—pl. t. ion (coel) That is to be credited, or relied upon.

Ygoellad, s. m. (yagoel) An inducing a belief.

Ygoellaw, v. a. (yagoel) To induce a belief.

Ygoew, a. (yago) Apt to fly backwards and forwards; full of motion; wavering.

Ygoewain, a. (yagoew) Full of fickleness.

Ygoewan, s. f. (yagoew) A fickle or wavering one.

Ygoewi, v. a. (yagoew) To waver; to fly backwards and forwards.

Yagog, s. m.—pl. t. ion (cog) A sudden motion, a stir. v. a. To stir, to start.

Mae gwlle yn yr cwylyls i yagog; ond nid oes mor cwylyls gwlle gwlle i ddyddwylle.

There is power in the will for stirring; but there is not the will with the power to return.
Morgan Llwyd.

Mawr yw—

Nid yagyg or modur yw.

He is dead; he will stir no more for all the doctor's art.
Dr. S. Conn.

Yagogawl, a. (yagog) Tending to stir, starting.

Yagogedig, a. (yagog) Being stirred; started.

Yagogi, v. a. (yagog) To wag, to stir, to move.

Yagogiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (yagog) A stirring.

Mae rhai wedi ymgorio erioed yn y cartad, drwy ysgogid y cwylyls, yr hwn sydd yn eu gwsgara i'w gwriddio a'u hysgu ei hun.

There are some who have ever borne themselves in that host, through the working of the will, which scattereth them like seeds out of itself.
Morgan Llwyd.

Yagogydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yagog) A stirrer.

Yagogyn, s. m. dim. (yagog) A fickle one.

Gwela i'w yagogyn rhyngwag, a llaith rhyddid a'u wylt o'i gysyllt.

I could see many strutting fop, who might winnow beams by the wind of his train.
Idem. S. Conn.

Yagol, v. a. (yago) To turn or start aside; to shun; to go aloant; to avoid; to escape.

Ygol, s. f.—pl. t. ion (col) That matures; a school.

Tri harddwch gwlad: yagobawr, o'dd, ac yagol.

The three ornaments of a country: a barn, a smithy, and a school.
Idem.

Ysgol, s. f.—pl. t. ion (côl) That rises up in a point; a peak, a pointed rock; a ladder. It is the same with calon and coffa; and it forms the names of some precipices, as Ysgolion Duon, in Caermarthenshire; and Nant yr Ysgolion, in Montgomeryshire.

Trefnallt wern uffern—
Trefred i bryfed, lle yd ymbrofan;
Troch heol ysgol esgar boethfan.

Thou didst prepare the slough of hell, a habitation for worms, where they struggle together; a broken path of the precipice of the fiery place of separation. Carnodyn.

Ysgolhaid, s. (ysgol) Appertaining to a school.

Ysgolâig, s. m.—pl. ysgolêigion (ysgol—aig) A scholar; a clerk, a clergyman; a parish clerk. Ysgolâig y ddinas, the town clerk.

Ysgolawr, s. m.—pl. ysgolorion (ysgol) A scholar.

Ysgoldy, s. m. (ysgol—ty) A school-house.

Ysgoleigdawl, s. m. (ysgolâig) Scholarship.

Ysgoleigdra, s. m. (ysgolâig) Scholarship.

Ysgoleiges, s. f. (ysgolâig) A female scholar.

Ysgoleigiad, s. m. (ysgolâig) A schooling.

Ysgoleigiaeth, s. m. (ysgolâig) A schooling.

Ysgoleigiaw, v. a. (ysgolâig) To school.

Ysgoleigiawl, a. (ysgolâig) Scholastical.

Ysgoleigiwr, s. m.—pl. ysgoleigiwyr (ysgolâig—gwr) A schoolman.

Ysgoli, v. a. (ysgol) To school, to give schooling.

Ysgoliad, s. m. (ysgol) A giving a schooling.

Ysgolp, s. m.—pl. t. iau (colp) A sharp pointed spar or wagget, a wooden pin. It is also called colp, and aseth.

Ysgolpen, s. f. dim. (ysgolp) A sharp spar.

Ysgolpiad, s. m. (ysgolp) A fastening with a wooden pin or wagget.

Ysgolpiaw, v. a. (ysgolp) To pin, or to wagget.

Ysgolydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgol) A schoolmaster.

Ysgor, s. f.—pl. t. au (côr) That encircles; a circular entrenchment; a fortification; rampart; or bulwark.

Ysgor ymddifyn pan ymddifder gwlad.

A bulwark of defence when he guards a country. Cynddelw.

Trais ar ysgwyd rhag ysgor Dinteiwr.

The shield was borne down before the camp of Dinteiwr. Cynddelw.

Ysgor gadw at gadwla llyfder.

A protecting bulwark that protected not cowardice. Cynddelw.

Blawdd eagar ysgor yn ddifidith;
Balch eryr barna llyr Lledidith.

He will blast the rampart of the foe to ruins; a towering eagle with the front of llyr Lledidith. Cynddelw, i O. ab Madawg.

Ni llefala neb trais trws ei ysgor;
Ni chymhwyl neb twyll tyllu ei ddor.

No body dares any trespass over his wall; no body will devise a fraud to break through his door. Llywelyn Fardd.

Ysgorawg, a. (ysgor) Having a surrounding fence or rampart, an epithet for a ship.

Ysgorawl, a. (ysgor) Relating to fortification.

Ysgorodd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (côrdd) That encircles as a retinue.

Ysgorfa, s. f.—pl. ysgorfeydd (ysgor) A place of defence; protection, defence.

Gwyr a oeth Caltirnech gan wawr,
Wy heb llydys ysgorfa ysgwydwr;
Crau cyrchant cyn hynl trelawr,
Yn gyfaen hi taran twrf seawr.

Heroes went to Caltirnech with the dawn, to whom there was no protection from shields; blood they would seek before the course of the ebbing tide, loud in the front like thunder the din of shields. Aneurin.

Awen pan ddéfrau
Am ddeudwydd ddina
A'm bechedd ara,
Am oesau ysgorfa.

The muse when it flows, in happy days and in my tranquil life it shall be the protection of ages. Taliesin.

Ysgori, v. a. (ysgor) To form a circular camp.

Ysgoriad, s. m. (ysgor) An encompassing with a

VOL. II.

rampart; an entrenching or forming a circular camp.

Ysgorn, s. m. (ysg—orn) Scorn, contumely.

Al hyddar wyl, fy arharied,
Al ysgorn heb geislaw gwad!

Art thou deaf, my love, or is it scorn, without seeking a denial. D. ab Gwilym.

Ysgorniad, s. m. (ysgorn) A scorning, a slighting.

Ysgorniaw, v. a. (ysgorn) To scorn, to slight.

Ysgornlyd, a. (ysgorn) Scornful, slighting.

Ysgort, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ysg—or) A harsh noise; a report; a jar; a twang; a rap.

Ar ysgort megys y gwn.

With a report as of the gun.

D. Nanmor.

Dwy Went a g'w hwyd awyr

Ysgort gwn yn mysg swart gwyr.

The two Gwent will hear through the air a report of a gun among a guard of men. Rhy. Brydydd.

Ysgortiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ysgort) A making a report, an explosion; a jarring.

Ysgortiaw, v. a. (ysgort) To make a report.

Ysgortiawl, a. (ysgort) Apt to make a report.

Ysgorwg, s. m. (ysgor) That forms a screen round.

Ysgorydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgor) One who forms a rampart or camp.

Ysgotiad, s. m.—pl. ysgotiaid (ysgawd) One of the shades, or of the woods; a Scot.

Ysgotiaith, s. f. (ysgawd—iaith) The Scottish or Gwyddelion tongue.

Ysgoth, s. m. (coth) A purge, or a voidance.

Ysgothawl, a. (ysgoth) Purging, or voiding.

Ysgothfa, s. f.—pl. ysgothfeydd (ysgoth) A privy.

Ysgothi, v. a. (ysgoth) To void by a purge, to scour.

Ysgothiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ysgoth) A purging.

Ysgra, s. m. (cra) That is harsh or dry.

Ysgrab, s. f.—pl. ysgreban (cra) What is drawn up or puckered; a scrip.

Ysgrabin, a. (ysgrab) Tending to pucker.

Ysgrabiniaid, s. m. (ysgrabin) A puckering.

Ysgrabiniaw, v. a. (ysgrabin) To pucker.

Ysgrabiniawl, a. (ysgrabin) Puckering.

Ysgrabiniawr, s. m.—pl. ysgrabiniwyr (ysgrabin—gwr) A puckerer.

Ysgrabwth, s. m. (ysgrab) That is in a heap.

Ysgrad, s. m. (cra) That is rigid or stiff.

Ysgrâell, s. f. (ysgra) The sea-swallow.

Ysgrâen, s. f. dim. (ysgra) A sea-swallow; also called moruennol. Ysgrâen ddu, the black tern.

Ysgraf, s. m. (craf) That scrapes or scratches.

Ysgrafell, s. f.—pl. t. i (ysgraf) A currycomb; a grater; a rasp.

Ysgrafelliad, s. m. (ysgrafell) A currying.

Ysgrafellu, v. a. (ysgrafell) To curry, to scrape.

Ysgrafellwr, s. m.—pl. ysgrafellwyr (ysgrafell—gwr) A carrier; a scraper.

Ysgrafellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgrafell) A currier, or a scraper.

Ysgrafen, s. f.—pl. t. au (ysgraf) A scraper.

Ysgrafena, v. a. (ysgrafen) To go a begging.

Ysgrafiad, s. m. (ysgraf) A scraping.

Ysgrafin, v. a. (ysgraf) To scrape; to grate.

Ysgraff, s. f.—pl. t. au (craff) That is sharp; that makes an impression; also a ferry.

Ysgraffin, a. (ysgraff) Apt to scratch or graze.

Ysgraffiniad, s. m. (ysgraffin) A scarification.

Ysgraffiniaw, v. a. (ysgraffin) To scarify.

Ysgraffiniawl, a. (ysgraffin) Scarifying.

Ysgraffiniwr, s. m.—pl. ysgraffiniwyr (ysgraffin—gwr) A scarifier.

Ysgrain, s. m. (crain) That is crawling.

Ysgraw, s. f. (craw) That forms a crust.

Ysgrawen, s. f.—pl. t. i (ysgraw) A crust.
 Ysgraweniad, s. m. (ysgrawen) An incrustation.
 Ysgrawennu, v. n. (ysgrawen) To incrustate.
 Ysgrawiad, s. m. (ysgraw) An incrustation.
 Ysgrawiaw, v. a. (ysgraw) To incrustate.
 Ysgrawling, s. m. (ysgraw) Cement, glue.

Y rhew—las grolawu, fel ysgrawling.
The ice of cruel touch, like glue. D. ab Gwilym.

Ysgrawlingaw, v. a. (ysgrawling) To glue.
 Ysgrawlingiad, s. m. (ysgrawling) A gluing.
 Ysgre, s. f. (cre) That makes a crying.
 Ysgread, s. m. (ysgre) A making a crying.
 Ysgreaw, v. a. (ysgre) To make a crying noise.
 Ysgreawl, a. (ysgre) Crying, or craving.
 Ysgrech, s. f.—pl. t. ion (crech) A scream, a shriek. Ysgrech y coed; a jay; also called ysgrechog.

Ysgrechawg, a. (ysgrech) Full of screaming.
 Ysgrechliad, s. m. (ysgrech) A screaming.
 Ysgrechian, v. a. (ysgrech) To scream, to shriek; to chatter as a jay.
 Ysgrechlaw, v. a. (ysgrech) To scream, to shriek.
 Ysgrechlawl, a. (ysgrech) Screaming, shrieking.
 Ysgrechlawr, s. m. (ysgrech—gwr) A screamer.
 Ysgrechlais, s. m. (ysgrech—llais) A screaming voice.

Ysgrechlef, s. m. (ysgrech—llef) A screaming voice.
 Ysgrechlefiaw, v. a. (ysgrechlef) To utter a screaming noise or chattering.

Ysgrechleisiad, s. m. (ysgrechlais) A making a screaming noise.

Ysgrechleisiaw, v. a. (ysgrechlais) To make a screaming noise.

Ysgrechleisiawl, a. (ysgrechlais) Of a screaming or shrieking voice.

Ysgrechleisiawr, s. m.—pl. ysgrrechleisiawyr (ysgrechlais—gwr) One who screams.

Ysgrechog, s. f. (ysgrech) A jay or culist.

Ysgrepan, s. f. dim. (ysgrab) A wallet, a scrip.

Ysgrepana, v. a. (ysgrepan) To collect into a bag; to go a begging; also called cardota, hel bywyd, and cerdded tai.

Ysgrepaniad, s. m. (ysgrepan) A scripping.

Ysgrepanu, v. a. (ysgrepan) To put in a bag.

Ysgretan, s. c. dim. (ysgrad) Any lean or lank looking animal; the sea-swallow; also called gwracken, and ysgracen.

Ysgrew, s. f. (ysgre) That is full of loquacity.

Ysgrl, s. f.—pl. t. ion (cri) A shriek, or scream.

*Diarheb llydyst dori
 Dy cagrair won wedi ysgrl.*

It is a proverb that they broke thy white shank after the shriek.
L. G. Celti.

Ysgriad, s. m. (ysgrl) A shrieking, a screaming.

Ysgriaw, v. a. (ysgrl) To make a screaming.

Ysgriawl, a. (ysgrl) Screaming or shrieking.

Ysgribiniad, s. m. (cribiniad) A raking together.

Ysgribiniaw, v. a. (cribiniaw) To rake together.

Ysgrif, s. f.—pl. t. ion (crif) A writing.

Ysgrifaw, v. a. (ysgrif) To notch; to write.

Ysgrifawl, a. (ysgrif) Relating to writing.

Ysgrifed, s. f. (ysgrif) A writing; a manuscript.

Ysgrifen, s. f. dim. (ysgrif) A piece of writing.

Ysgrifenawl, a. (ysgrifen) Relating to writing.

Ysgrifenedig, a. (ysgrifen) Being written.

Ysgrifeniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ysgrifen) A writing.

Ysgrifennu, v. a. (ysgrifen) To write, to pen.

Fel ysgrifennau Dew wir saw pob dyn ar ei daleu, pa leu cawdd deffydd mygw i lawb a'i coeddi!

If God had written the true name of every man on his forehead, where could there have been found stilt for a mask for every one who should seek for it! Adams.

Ysgrifenawr, s. m.—pl. ysgrifenawyr (ysgrifen—gwr) A writer.

Ysgrifenydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgrifen) A scribe, a writer, a secretary.

Ysgrifenyddiaeth, s. m. (ysgrifenydd) The trade or profession of a writer.

Ysgrifiad, s. m. (ysgrif) A writing, a scribbling.

Ysgrifiyfr, s. m.—pl. ysgrifiyfran (ysgrif—Byfr) A manuscript.

Ysgrifwr, s. m.—pl. ysgrifwyr (ysgrif—gwr) A writer.

Ysgrog, s. m. (crog) That is hung or swung.

Ysgrogell, s. f.—pl. t. i (ysgrog) A drawbridge.

Ysgrogl, v. a. (ysgrog) To suspend, to impend.

Ysgrogiad, s. m. (ysgrog) A suspending.

Ysgrubl, s. m.—pl. t. od (crubl) A beast.

Ysgrubl diried yn eiddad.

A miscreant bawled on the outside.

Adams.

Ysgrubliad, a. (ysgrubl) Being beast-like.

Ysgrublawg, a. (ysgrubl) Abounding with beasts.

Ysgrubliad, s. m.—pl. ysgrubliad (ysgrubl) A beast, a brute creature.

Ysgrud, s. f.—pl. t. ion (crud) A frame; a skeleton; a carcase.

Ysgrud fed draig Seisgllw.

A silent corpse is the potent leading chief. Edwin Wen.

Ysgrudiad, s. m. (ysgrad) A making a frame; a making a skeleton.

Ysgrudiaw, v. a. (ysgrad) To make a frame, to form a skeleton; to make a carcase.

*Ysgrud glod glerwyd fed faldard;
 Ysgrud gryd graiddawl hawl hydgraw.*

The chief will make a skeleton of the heroism of the weakly glory; he will about a shroud of the vehement claims of the brave.
Cynelidon.

Ysgrudiawl, a. (ysgrad) Belonging to a frame, belonging to a skeleton.

Ysgruth, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ysgruth) A full speed. Mae ef yn myned ar ei ysgruth, he is going on his full pace.

Ysgrwd, s. m.—pl. ysgrwydion (crwd) A carcase. Hen ysgrwd, an old wretch.

*Pa ddiell enaid—
 Ysgrwd wag is y fagyr;
 Os gwyb, myn i fagyr, als gwyb.*

What the condition of the soul, whether happy, the empty carcase beneath the wall knows not, upon my faith. S. y Cant.

*Ni roir pen an o'r coed
 Er ei ysgrwd.*

Not the head of one of the locks will be given for his carcase. S. y Cant.

Ysgrwdiad, s. m. (ysgrwd) A carcaseing.

Ysgrwdlaw, v. a. (ysgrwd) To make a carcase.

Ysgrwth, s. m. (crwth) A heap or bulk; a pile.

Ysgrwydr, s. m. (crwydr) A straying course.

Ysgrwydraw, v. a. (ysgrwydr) To make a wandering journey.

Ysgrwydrawl, a. (ysgrwydr) Of a wandering tendency.

Ysgrwydriad, s. m. (ysgrwydr) A making a straying journey.

Ysgryd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (cryd) A shiver, a quake.

Ysgrydian, s. m. (ysgryd) A shivering.

Ysgrydian, v. a. (ysgryd) To keep shivering.

Ysgrydianawl, a. (ysgrydian) Shivering.

Ysgrydianu, v. a. (ysgrydian) To be in a constant shivering or shuddering.

Ysgrydiant, s. m. (ysgryd) A shivering.

Maint tydi yn sgwagwr yr ysgrydiant.

So great is the desperation will be the rapidation. Pethen.

Ysgrydaw, v. a. (ysgyrd) To shiver, to quake.

*Ysgryd gryd rhyd graid chrothian
Ysgryd wlyd ar wlyd y mettan.*

The shawl will re-quake before the vehement parreyor of the pumpered carcase over the carcase feast.

Cynddaleu, i O. Cyfrillawg.

Ysgrydiawl, a. (ysgyrd) Shivering, quaking.

Ysgrydu, v. a. (ysgyrd) To shiver, to quake.

Ysgrydwr, s. m.—pl. ysgrydwyr (ysgyrd—gwr)
A trembler.

Ysgryn, s. m. (cryn) A trembling, a shiver.

Ysgrynawl, a. (ysgryn) Tremulous, quaking.

Ysgrynedig, a. (ysgryn) Trembling, quaking.

Ysgryniad, s. m. (ysgryn) A tremulation.

Ysgrynnu, v. a. (ysgryn) To cause a trembling.

Ysgrytian, v. a. (ysgrwd) To keep wriggling, to write the body, as to allay an itching.

Ysgrythiad, s. m. (ysgrwth) A going all of a heap;
a tumbling about on the ground as animals do.

Ysgrythu, v. a. (ysgrwth) To tumble in a heap, to tumble about as horses and other animals do.

YSGRYTHYR, s. f.—pl. t. an. The Scripture.

Ysgrythrawl, a. (ysgrythyr) Scriptural.

Ysgrythriad, s. m. (ysgrythyr) A making use of the Scripture, a quoting Scripture.

Ysgrythyru, v. a. (ysgrythyr) To make use of the Scripture, to quote Scripture.

Ysgrythyrydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgrythyr) A scripturist.

Ysguall, a. (cuall) Of a furious or fierce nature.

*Ar erechwydd ethyw gwall
O frau marchwag ysguall!
A fydd wrth Uries arall!*

Upon the intrusion there came a disappointment from the dread of a terrific knight: Will there be another compared with Uries!

Llywarch Hen.

Ysgub, s. f.—pl. t. au (cub) A sheaf; a besom.

Haudd rhifaw yr ysgubau ar fawr gwr dhwg.

It is easy to reckon the sheaves on the field of an idle man.

Adage.

Ysgubedd, a. (ysgub) Bundle-wise; like a whip;
like a sheaf; like a broom.

Ysgubaw, v. a. (ysgub) To whisk, to whip; to sweep.

Ysgubawl, a. (ysgub) Sweeping, brushing.

Ysgubawr, s. f.—pl. ysguborian (ysgub) A place for corn in the sheaf, a cornyard; a barn.

Cyaf y llygwr yr odyu no'r ysgubawr.

Sooner will the kiln be burnt than the barn.

Adage.

Ysgubedig, a. (ysgub) Being swept with a broom.

Ysgubell, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (ysgub) A whisk, a small bundle; a besom; a brush. Ysgubell o lysiau per, a bunch of aromatic herbs.

Ysgubellaidd, a. (ysgubell) Like a whisk:

Ysgubellau, s. f. dim. (ysgubell) A small whisk.

Ysgubellig, s. f. dim. (ysgubell) A small besom.

Ysgubiad, s. m. (ysgub) A sweeping.

Ysgubion, s. pl. aggr. (ysgub) Sweepings.

Ysgubolion, s. pl. aggr. (ysgubawl) Sweepings.

Ysguboran, s. f. dim. (ysgubawr) A small barn.

Ysguboriad, s. m. (ysgubawr) A putting in a barn.

Ysguboriaw, v. a. (ysgubawr) To put in a barn.

Ysguborig, s. f. dim. (ysgubawr) A small barn.

Ysguborwr, s. m.—pl. ysguborwyr (ysgubawr—gwr) A barn-keeper.

Ysgubwr, s. m.—pl. ysgubwyr (ysgub—gwr) A sweeper with a besom.

Ysgubwraig, s. f.—pl. ysgubwraigodd (ysgub—gwraig) A female sweeper.

Ysgubydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ysgub) A sweeper.

Ysgubyddes, s. f. (ysgubydd) A female sweeper.

Ysgud, s. m. (cud) That rounds or whirls.

Ysgudaw, v. a. (ysgud) To send about; to whisk.

Ysgudawl, a. (ysgud) Scudding, whisking.

Ysgudell, s. f.—pl. t. i (ysgud) A dish, a platter.

Ysgudellaidd, s. f.—pl. ysgudellaiddau (ysgudell)
A dishful.

Ysgudelliad, s. m. (ysgudell) A dishing.

Ysgudellu, v. a. (ysgudell) To put in a dish.

Ysgur, s. m. (cur) That is impulsive.

Ysguraw, v. a. (ysgur) To make an impulse.

*Yn egsuraw hawl haudd adawes,
Yn egsur i bawb am beues.*

In impelling a chain easily he gave a pledge, being a foe to every body for a country.

Lt. P. Much, i Rodri.

Ysgurawl, a. (ysgur) Impulsive, repulsive.

Ysguriad, s. m. (ysgur) An impulsion.

Ysgutyll, s. m. dim. (ysgud) A scudder.

Ysgutyll yn cymall caid.

A scudder gathering the battle together.

Id. ab Gwilym, i gyllwng du.

Ysguth, s. m. (cuth) A scud, a sudden whisk.

Ysguthan, s. f.—pl. t. od (ysguth) A woodpigeon.

Nerth ysguthan yn ei hdaedd.

The strength of a wood-pigeon in her wings.

Adage.

Ysguthaw, v. a. (ysguth) To scud, to whisk.

Ysguthell, s. f.—pl. t. od (ysguth) A scudder.

Dawl ysguthell o ddolletya caruam i newn, tas ddydded a chrynn.

There came in a scudder of a wry-footed imp with pouting and trembling.

Ellis Wyn, D. Cwag.

Ysguthiad, s. m. (ysguth) A scudding.

Ysgw, s. m. (cw) Guard, care, or safeguard; refuge. v. imper. Regard, take care.

Ysgwad, s. m. (ysgw) A guarding, a taking care.

Ysgwaeth, s. m. (ysgw) Guardianship; refuge.

Ysgwaetheroedd, adv. (gwaeth—er—oedd) The more the pity.

Ysgwaw, v. a. (ysgw) To guard, to take care.

Ysgwawl, a. (ysgw) Guarding, care-taking.

Ysgwd, s. m. (ysg) A thrust, a push, a jet, a drive, an impulsion; a step, a stifle. Ysgwd metin, a mill jet.

Ysgwdawl, a. (ysgwd) Pushing, impulsive.

Ysgwdiad, s. m. (ysgwd) A pushing away.

Ysgwdu, v. a. (ysgwd) To make a push, to thrust.

Ysgwdwl, s. m. (ysgwd) That pokes or pushes.

Ysgwer, s. f. (ysgw) A kind of musical composition, so called.

*Fer, par ysgwer, oes chine mawr foliant
Mor feirys gŵs leunant!*

Melodious, melodious the ysgwer, is there a tune greatly famed so sweet to youth?

L. G. Cech, i Ysgwr fach.

Ysgwfi, s. m. (cwf) That closes upon or holds.

Ysgwfi, s. m.—pl. ysgwyfion (ysgwfi) A grapple, a snatch; a scuffle.

Ysgwl, s. m.—pl. ysgwyfion (cwl) An exerescence;
a knob, or knur; a scab.

Ysgwl de yn mlaen oegi dar.

A black exerescence on the top of an oak branch.

Id. ab Gwilym.

Ysgwn, s. m. (cwn) That rises or soars.

*Mis cwnn cod enyd rhag ysgwn;
Na thalawg mynydd, na mynyddwn.*

Treasure will not be accumulated by the hasty before the exalted one; nor by the boor with long hair, nor that is cropt.

Cynddaleu, i O. Cyfrillawg.

Cyfarfa ysgwn ag angharat nor.

The exalted one met with the dispersed ones of slaughter.

O. Cyfrillawg.

Ysgwn, a. (cwn) Rising, uplifting, raising.

Gair teulu yn ysgwn.

The word of a family uplifting.

Adage.

Oswaw ysgwn enyd yn mlynnwydd.

The uplifted spear fixing in the field's slaughter.

Cynddaleu

4 Q 2

Ysgwrn Meinid yn sgwddian.
 The towering confagurator in the battle field. Cynddelw.
Cad tagen ysgwrn ysgwyd Bril.
 The rule of battle with the upflited shield of Belk. Cynddelw.
Gal ysgwrn ysgwyd anghyfan,
Garw eagar yn ysgwrn Gadian.
 A foe with upflited shield anentire, furiously he scatters in the field of Cadfan. Cynddelw, i H. ab Owain.
Oedd ysgwrn, oedd tua tabarth ei darian.
 It was upflited, it was broken, the border of his shield. D. Llwgwrn Maw.
Deuran-waw terwyn a tores bar dygwra,
Fas ysgwrn eargores.
 Two hundred ardent spears the accumulating wrath did break, when eminently he escaped. Li. P. Mech.
Ys gwyr hi hydr ein gormail,
Ysgwrn dalka dan ysgia dril.
 She knows the drift of our vexation, on her flying journey under a covert of leaves. D. ab Owain, i'r cwm.
Ysgwr, s. m.—pl. ysgyr (cwr) A spike, a splinter; a bough or a branch; also violence.
Haw bieldidd lieldidd lloch ar ysgyr.
 The claim of the wolf the gleaming slaughtering on the pike. O. Cyfeiliung.
Neum gwant ysgwr o gwr dy god?
 Am I not wounded by a spike from the corner of thy bag? Llywarch Hen.
Ar ysgwr o'r asfian ydd oedd corn cana mawr.
 On a branch of the apple-tree there was a large blowing horn. H. Gervais—Mabington.
Nac sgurd freydr, nac ysgwr,
Nac ysgwydd gorwydd, na gwr—
 Nor the flying battle, nor spike, nor the shoulder of a steed, nor man, will obstruct thee. D. ab Owain.
Ysgwriwg, s. m. (ysgwr—llwg) A rustle, crackle
Ysgwriwgach, v. a. (ysgwrwg) To rustle; to crackle; to rattle, to clatter, to clash.
Ysgwrn, s. m. (cwrn) That juts or runs out.
Ysgwt, s. m. (cwt) A scud, a tail, a bottom. Ysgwt y gysaken, a mischief maker.
Ysgwth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (cwth) A push, a thrust.
Ysgwthiad, s. m. (ysgwth) A propulsion.
Ysgwthiaw, v. a. (ysgwth) To push, to impel.
Ysgwthiaw, a. (ysgwth) Propulsive, pushing.
Ysgwthiwr, s. m.—pl. ysgwthiwr (ysgwth—gwr)
 An impeller.
Ysgwthr, s. m.—pl. ysgythrion (ysgwth) A carving, engraving, or cutting into; a cut out or from; a paring.
Ys ysgwthr tryder,
Ys ysgwrn daryr,
Ys lloch ar ny'n lloch.
 In the lepping of tumult, in the exalted preparation, gleamingly he protected us. Li. P. Mech.
Ysgwyd, s. m. (ysg) A shake, a flutter. v. a. To shake, to flutter. Ysgwyd llaw, a shake hand; ysgwyd law, shake hand; ysgwyd aden, to flutter a wing.
Ysgwyd, s. f.—pl. t. au (ysgw) A shield, a target.
Llodw ysgwr ysgwyd bydduan.
 Asbes the structure that was the shield of hosts. Cynddelw.
Oedd ysgwrn ysgwyd twa.
 Upflited was the broken shield. Cynddelw.
Ys rhith rhyu ysgwyd,
Rhag ysgwrn byrnwyd.
 In the multitude of a terrible shield in front of a rising tumult. Cynddelw.
El ysgwrn gyanif,
El ysgwyd yn gyanif.
 His rising conflict, his shield in toil. Cynddelw.
Gryn ysgwrn ysgwyd wyarid.
 The rising energy of the gory shield. Llyged Gwr.
Aer ysgwr aer ysgwyd oedd.
 The stay of slaughter with a golden shield was he. Bladdyn Fordd.
Ysgwydadwy, a. (ysgwyd) That may be shaken.
Ysgwydaw, v. a. (ysgwyd) To use a shield.

Ysgwydawg, a. (ysgwyd) Having a shield.
Ysgwydawl, a. (ysgwyd) Belonging to a shield.
Ysgwydwr, s. m. (ysgwyd) A shield, a target.
Neum rhoddes i Rm Rhyddolwr
Can't baidle chent ysgwydwr.
 Have I not been gifted by Rhm the Magificent with a hundred swares, and a hundred shields? Llywarch Hen.
Ysgwydedig, a. (ysgwyd) Shaken, or agitated.
Ysgwydfa, s. f. (ysgwyd) A shake; a toss.
Ysgwydfoch, a. (ysgwyd—bolch) With notched shield.
Ysgwydfrith, a. (brith) With a variegated shield.
Ysgwydfrw, a. (brw) With a broken shield.
Ysgwydfrwr, s. m. (ysgwyd—bwrw) A cast of shields, an aggregate of shields.
Ys apid gwyth gwaithdodd ddargan
Ar llwrw ysgwydfrwr ysgytion.
 In the day of wrath a conquering leader amidst the shivered throng of shields. Cynddelw, i O. Gwynedd.
Ysgwydiad, s. m.—pl. ysgwydiad (ysgwyd) One that bears a shield.
Pan ddolow pair trachwres trochial
Par trwy far trwy fydd ysgwydiad,
For clear assewr weiniald,
Pand rhagddaw be flew be Sgwyd!
 When calmed the ardent impulse of the plunging of the spear through wrath through a myriad of shieldmen, the chief, equilly the bearer of the buckler, before him was there not a glorious thronging! Li. P. Mech, i D. ab Owain.
Ysgwydrwy, s. f. (rhwy) A shield border.
Rhudd em fy nryllow;
Aur fy ysgwydrwy.
 Of ruddy gem my wreath; gold my shield border. Taliesin.
Ysgwydwas, s. m.—pl. ysgwydweis (ysgwyd—gwas) A shield-bearer.
Ysgwydwr, s. m. (ysgwyd—gwr) A shield-man.
Ysgwydwyn, a. (ysgwyd—gwyn) White-shielded.
Canad gwastad ysgwydwyn. Cyfeilw Rhodda.
Ysgwydydd, s. m. (ysgwyd) A shield-bearer.
Ysgwydd, s. f.—pl. t. au (cwydd) A shoulder.
Gorwen fy ysgwyd ar fy ysgwydd i drals;
Cerale ni gelaie gyfen awydd.
 White topt my shield on my shoulder for conquest; I loved what I did not obtain, notwithstanding what there might be of avidity. H. ab Owain.
Ysgwyddaw, v. a. (ysgwydd) To shoulder.
Ysgwyddawg, a. (ysgwydd) Having a shoulder.
s. f. That has the whole shoulder; a shoulder, as of mutton; a gammon.
Ysgwyddawg y derchafed i gwrall i gwrall lloerol.
 The heave shoulder I did receive from the children of lornet. Llewelyn 7. m.
Ysgwyddawl, a. (ysgwydd) Scapulary; shoulder.
Ysgwyddiad, s. m. (ysgwydd) A shouldering; a jutting out; a jostling.
Ysgwyddlian, s. m. (ysgwydd—llian) A shoulder-scarf; an ephod.
Ysgwyddwag, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ysgwydd—gwing)
 A shoulder-scarf; an ephod.
Ysgwyf, s. m. (cwyf) A thin covering or sprinkle; scum.
Ysgwyfan, s. c. (ysgwyf) A sprinkle. Tafu ysgwyfan o lo dresto, throw a sprinkle of coals over it.
Ysgwyfawl, a. (ysgwyf) Generating scum.
Ysgwyfen, s. f. dim. (ysgwyf) A sprinkle; a thin scum.
Ysgwyfiad, s. m. (ysgwyf) A scumming.
Ysgwyfa, s. f. (ysgwd) A shake; a stirring.
Ysgydiad, s. m. (ysgwd) A shaking; a stirring.
Ysgydiaw, v. a. (ysgwd) To shake; to stir.
Na ddoda dy baidler mewn cwmwlwst gariad: ysgyd ymleth ar-gyrd, drwy ymarfer a gorchyrudd ddaem.
 Place not thy affection upon carnal love; shake off shoddiness, through the being accustomed with good occupations. Marchant Crispred.

Yagydiawl, a. (yagwd) Shaking, agitating.
Yagydig, a. (yagwd) Apt to be shaking.
Yagydigaw, v. a. (yagydig) To cause a shake.
Yagydiwr, s. m. (yagwd—gwr) A shaker.
Yagydw, s. m. (yagwd) That is made to shake or stir. v. a. To be made to shake.

*El yagydw am egor at ddiid
 Yagydwaw llistadlhwir llistadl.*

He comes to shake about the dwelling of his grandaie a sheld glittering with high polish.
L. P. Mech, i Rodri.

Yagydwad, s. m. (yagydw) Agitation.
Yagydwawl, a. (yagydw) Being agitated, shaking.
Yagydwyd, v. a. (yagydw) To cause a shake.
Yagyfain, a. (yagwf) That abounds with involutions, that is convoluted; pulmonary.
Yagyfaint, s. f. (yagyfain) The lights; the lungs; also the strangles.

Tri rhyw yagyfaint y sydd; yagyfaint, a gwyn yagyfain, a du yagyfain.

There are three sorts of pulmonaria; inflammation of the lungs, white pulmonaria, and black pulmonaria.

Maddygyniaeth.

Yagyfala, a. (cyfal) Being in an uniform state; unemployed, being at ease, being at leisure; careless. Ystafell yagyfala.

Myned a wni i le dirgel yagyfala i ddwyn bechedd ddwywawl.

He went to a private place that was secure, to lead a pious life.

Hanes G. ab Cynan.

Ede a darawd y fyddia; canys y fyddia odd yagyfala.

He smokes the host: for the host was secure. Barnwyrr a. 11.

Yagyfalaad, s. m. (yagyfala) A rendering easy or secure; a becoming safe.

Yagyfalaû, v. a. (yagyfala) To render easy, to render secure; to become at leisure.

Yagyfalaûch, s. m. (yagyfala) A state of ease or composure; security.

Yagyfar, s. f.—pl. t. au (yagwf) An auricle, an ear.

Yagyfar waeddgur yddigam.

A wry-necked flap full of noise. D. ab Owilym, i delym lodei.

Yagyfarlynyg, a. (yagyfar—llyn) Having stained ears.

Sarled bresin Aber Ffraw fal hyn y tellr: can maw wrth bob cantref a fo lldo: a tharw gwyn ygyfarlynyg wrth bob can maw ondalynt; a gwialen aer gyho ag ef el hun, a chwa franed a'i fye llychyn, a chwa dored ag ewin smoth rhy smoth naw mynydd.

The insult face of the king of Aber Ffraw in this manner shall it be said: a hundred time for every cantref that belongs to him; and a white bull with red ears to every hundred kind of them; and a gold rod as long as himself, and equal in roundness to his little finger, and as thick as the nail of a husbandman who has been a husbandman for nine years. Welsh Laws.

Yagyfarn, s. f.—pl. t. au (yagyfar) An ear.

Y gwn ystafell bla o'r gwartheg aarhath cyanfar ag a fo cyhyd on rora ag ea bygyfarn.

The groom of the chamber claims of the captured cattle as many as have their horns and ear of equal length. Welsh Laws.

Yagyfarnawg, a. (yagyfarn) Abounding with ears. s. f.—pl. yagyfarnogod. That is large-eared, a hare; also called ceinach, and cath eithin. Yagyfarnawg y mor, the gurnard.

Rhaid pwyaw llawer llyw cyn cilio yagyfarnawg.

It is necessary to beat many a bush before a hare is started.

Adage.

Yagyfarnawg ty heile ddolef, am el bod yn cadw el helynt er mael i fo yr ymild arai.

The hare is a cry chase, because that she keeps her course however great the pursuit of her may be. Cyfrith Hela.

Yagyfarnogaid, a. (yagyfarnawg) Like a hare.
Yagyfeiniad, s. m. (yagyfain) A forming of lungs.
Yagyfeiniaw, v. n. (yagyfain) To furnish or form lungs; to get the strangles.
Yagyfeiniawg, a. (yagyfain) Having lungs; pulmonary; having the strangles.
Yagyfeiniawl, a. (yagyfain) Pulmonical.
Yagyfeiniilyd, a. (yagyfain) Pulmonarious.

Yagyfeiniwst, s. m. (yagyfain—gwst) Pulmonaria.

Yagyflaid, v. a. (yagwf) To snatch hold.

Yagyflgar, a. (yagwf) Apt to snatch hold.

Yagyflgarwch, s. m. (yagyflgar) Rapaciousness.

Yagyflgi, s. m.—pl. yagyflgwn (yagwf—cl) A worrying dog.

Yagyflin, a. (yagwf) That is laid hold of. Bars yagyflin, shew-bread.

Yagyfliad, s. m. (yagwf) A snatching hold.

Yagyflu, v. a. (yagwf) To snatch hold.

Pan ydoedd Achel yn mynu tyau arfas Trolius i amdano, aycha Menon yn dawed ac yn yagyflu corff Trolius.

When Achilles was about to pull the armour of Troilus from off him, so Menon coming and snatching away the body of Troilus. H. Dared.

Yagyflwr, s. m. (yagwf—gwr) A snatcher.

Yagyfrang, s. m. (cyfrang) That comes in contact

Yagyfrith, a. (cyfrith) Being of uniform aspect.

Yagyl, s. m. (yg) That is thin or edged.

Yagylf, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ygylf) That is taken or held by the beak; prey.

Yagylfiad, s. m. (yagylf) A beak-snatching.

Yagylfiaw, v. a. (yagylf) To snatch with the beak

Yagylfu, v. a. (yagylf) To snatch with the beak.

Yagymmod, s. m. (cymmod) That is accordant.

Yagymmodawl, a. (yagymmod) Accordant.

Yagymmodi, v. a. (yagymmod) To unite together.

Yagymmodiad, s. m. (yagymmod) Accordance.

Yagymyn, s. m. (cymyn) A felling or hewing.

Yagymyngyf, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yagymyn—cyf) A chopping-block.

Yagyn, s. m. (cyn) An ascent, rise, or mount.

Yagynawl, a. (yagyn) Ascending, or rising.

Yagyniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (yagyn) Ascension.

Yagynial, v. a. (yagyn) To be ascending.

Rhag bron Buddryre Brain-dwyre wybr yagynial.

Before the course of victory the hovering crows ascend in the sky. Anwyn.

Yagynn, v. a. (yagyn) To ascend, to mount.

Yagynwil, s. m. (yagyn) That uplifts or raises.

*Ys canaf i'r yagynwil,
 A droes y pmon o'r pwll.*

I will sing to the spilitter, that turned the five ages from the pit. Harri Hic.

Yagynydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yagyn) A mounter.

Yagyrrch, s. m. (cyrrch) That tends towards.

Yagyrrchawl, a. (yagyrrch) Tending to, gravitating.

Yagyrrchiad, s. m. (yagyrrch) A tending towards.

Yagyrrchiant, s. m. (yagyrrch) Gravitation.

Yagyrrchlam, s. m.—pl. t. au (yagyrrch—llam) A leap towards.

Yagyrrchlamawl, a. (yagyrrchlam) Apt to leap or bound towards.

Yagyrrchlamiad, s. (yagyrrchlam) A leaping towards.

Yagyrrchlamu, v. a. (yagyrrchlam) To leap towards.

Rhyw i fab yagyrrchlamu.

It is natural for a youth to run forwards.

Adage.

Yagyrrchu, v. a. (yagyrrch) To tend to; to gravitate.

Yagyren, s. f. dim. (yagwr) A split piece of wood, a splinter; a stave.

Yagyrenig, s. f. dim. (yagyren) A small splint.

Yagyrlion, s. pl. aggr. (yagwr) Staves, splinters.

Rhodde Daw ym llyw y llafn waedll, a'i yagyr Yagrlion yn ngwl.

God furnished my chief with the blood-stained blade, and his shaft of shivers in the conflict. Einion Wan.

Yagyrlioni, v. a. (yagyrlion) To cleave into splinters; to shiver; to stave.

Yagyrlioniad, s. m. (yagyrlion) A splintering.

Yagyrlionyn, s. m. dim. (yagyrlion) A splinter.

Yagyrlnw, s. m. (yagwrn) A snarl, or a grin.

Ygyrnygwyl, a. (ygyrnyg) Searing, prising.
Ygyrnygiad, s. m. (ygyrnyg) A searing.
Ygyrnyga, v. a. (ygyrnyg) To sear, to grin.
Ygyrwydd, s. pl. egr. (ygyr—gwydd) Cleft wood. Pont ygyrwydd, a bridge of split timber; cylchau ygyrwydd, hoops of split wood.
Ygyryd, s. m. (ygyr) That consists of branches, spikes, or points; that is rough or harsh. a. Full of ruggedness.

Devils, wr du ygyrdd.

Choose, thou black rough man.

H. Duf.

Y cawr ac y widdon a gyrhynt leodd ygyrdd.

The giant and the hag were resorting to rugged places.

Robinog.

Ygytfa, s. f. (yagwd) A concussion, a shake.
Ygytliad, s. m.—pl. t. au (yagwd) A concussion.
Ygytlan, v. a. (yagwd) To keep shaking violently.
Ygytliaw, v. a. (yagwd) To shake violently.
Ygytliawl, a. (yagwd) Concussive, percussive.
Ygytliwr, s. m.—pl. ygytliwyr (yagwd—gwr) One who shakes violently.

Ygythawl, a. (yagwth) Jetting, or spouting.

Ygythiad, s. m. (yagwth) A spouting out.

Ygythyr, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yagwth) A fang; a tusk.

Gweth pob un o'r ygythredd, dey few, a deagled wrth; mayn heryl y dannedd yst.

The value of every one of the fang teeth, two cows, and forty pence; for they are the guards of the teeth.

Welsh Laws.

Rhaid iml oclhi fy mhen, ac eiliaw fy marf: ygythyr Ygythrywn Pen Bodd a fyna i ddiol.

It is necessary for me to wash my head, and to shave my beard: the tusk of Whitestock the Supreme Bear I will have to share.

H. Cuckoo—Mabynogion.

Ygythradwy, a. (ygythyr) That may be lopt.

Ygythrawd, s. m. (ygythyr) A cut off, or gash.

Ygythrawg, a. (ygythyr) Having tusks or fangs.

Ygythrawl, a. (ygythyr) Catting; lopping; carving; engraving.

Ygythreddant, s. m.—pl. ygythreddaint (ygythyr—dant; a fang tooth.

Ygythredig, a. (yagwthyr) Cut out; carved.

Pennfetha euraid ygythredig o awydd draig.

A golden helmet carved with the figure of a dragon.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Ygythredd, s. m. (ygythyr) The state of being projected or jutting out.

At wrth dy orchymyn di yr ymyrdd yr cryn—ac yr cryn—ar ygythredd y graig?

Is it at thy command that the eagle doth rise up, and that it resteth on the pinnacle of the rock?

Job 20. 26.

Ygythriad, s. m.—pl. t. au (yagwthyr) A cutting; a carving; an engraving.

Ygythra, v. a. (yagwthyr) To cut away, to lop, to shed; to carve; to engrave.

Ygythred yma rylch o new radi yr enyilion, mwy y parhyno i bob gradd yn briawd.

Let him come here a circle of the nine orders of angels, as it may appertain to every order in particular. Cyssegrlan Fuchedd.

Ygythrwyr, s. m.—pl. ygythrwyr (ygythru—gwr) A cutter; a carver; an engraver.

Ygythrydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ygythru) A cutter; a lopper; a carver; an engraver.

Ygythu, v. a. (yagwth) To jet or spout out.

Ygywen, s. m. (cy—gwen) That is fair or bright.

Yshiliad, s. m. (liliad) A spawning.

Yshiliaw, v. a. (hiliaw) To deposit spawn.

Yshwylad, s. m. (hwyliad) A making a course.

Yshwylaw, v. a. (hwyliaw) To take a course.

Yd, adv. (ys—d) There is, there may be; it may be.

Ysiad, s. m. (ys) A consuming; a devouring.

Ysiamawl, a. (ysiant) Tending to consume.

Ysiannu, v. a. (ysiant) To make a consumption.

Ysiant, s. m. (ys) A consuming; a devouring.

Ysid, adv. (ys—d) There is; it may be.

Ysid or least of tryder.

There is on every one his anxiety.

Adage.

Harold yr ynydd cailt byr. Yd cailtch byr yd iau cailtch.

It is easy for me to obtain that. Though thou mayest obtain that, it may be thou wilt not obtain it.

H. Cuckoo—Mabynogion.

Ysig, a. (ys) Inflammatory, fretting.

Ysigaw, v. a. (ysig) To inflame; to fret.

Thredd ysigaw hen gylch.

It is easy to fret an old one.

Adage.

Ysiglawd, s. m. (ysig) A bruise, a contusion.

Ysigfa, s. f.—pl. ysigfeydd (ysig) A bruise, a crush.

Ysiglad, a. m. (ysig) A bruising; a contusion.

Ysigiedig, a. (ysiglad) Bruised, or crushed.

Ysigwr, s. m.—pl. ysigwyr (ysig—gwr) A bruiser, or one who makes a contusion.

Yslab, s. m. (llab) That is lengthened out, or distended.

Yslabi, s. m. (yslab) A manikin, a slattern.

Yslabiad, s. m. (yslab) A forming a slab.

Yslac, a. (llac) Disinct, slack, or loose.

Yslachad, s. m. (yslachn) A making slack; a slackening, a becoming slack.

Yslachn, v. a. (yslac) To make slack, to slacken.

Yslacawd, s. m. (yslac) A slack or loose state.

Yslaciad, s. m. (yslac) A slacking; a loosening.

Yslaciaw, v. a. (yslac) To slack; to loosen.

Yslaciwr, s. m.—pl. yslaciwyr (yslac—gwr) A slacker; a loosener.

Yslacwydd, s. m. (yslac) Slackness, looseness.

Yslafan, s. m. (llafan) The laverplant.

Yslaif, s. m. (glaif) A slash; a slice, or cut.

Yslam, s. m. (llam) That leaps or bounds. a. Skipping or leaping.

Gwneithur gwith pobam ag of.

To make hasty work of it.

Adage.

Yslamawl, a. (yslam) Tending to rebound.

Yslamiad, s. m. (yslam) A making a rebound.

Yslamu, v. a. (yslam) To make a bound.

Yslan, s. m. (glan) That is pure, clean or immaculate. a. Immaculate.

Yslanadd, a. (yslan) Of a clean, or pure nature.

Yslaniad, s. m. (yslan) A rendering pure.

Yslanu, v. a. (yslan) To render immaculate.

Yslapiad, s. m. (yslab) A slapping; a flapping.

Yslapiaw, v. a. (yslab) To slap; to flap.

Yslath, s. f.—pl. t. au (llath) A rod; a perch.

Yslabawg, a. (yslab) Lanky, gawky. Yslabawg: ddynes, a slattern of a woman.

Yslabr, s. m. (yslab) That is lanky.

Yslabren, s. f. dim. (yslebr) A slattern.

Yslabyn, s. m. dim. (yslab) A lanky thing.

Yslacawd, s. m. (yslac) The state of being slack, or out of tone; a slight indisposition.

Ysaled, s. f.—pl. t. i (lled) A drag, a dray.

Ysaledfen, s. f.—pl. t. i (ysled—men) A drag-cart.

Ysleifiad, s. m. (yslaif) A slashing, a slicing.

Ysleifiaw, v. a. (yslaif) To slash, or to slice.

Ysleifiawl, a. (yslaif) Slashing, or slicing.

Ysleifiwr, s. m.—pl. yslleifiwyr (yslaif—gwr) A slasher, a slicer.

Ysleifyn, s. m. dim. (yslaif) A slash, or a slice.

Yslepan, s. f.—pl. t. au (yslab) A trap.

Ysletan, s. f.—pl. t. au (ysled) Any flat body or vessel, a flat, a flat-bottomed boat; a flat boat peculiar to some of the creeks in Wales, now growing out of use.

Yslib, s. m. (llib) That is glib or smooth.

Yslipan, s. m. (yslib) A burnish, or a polish.

Yslipaniad, s. m. (yslipan) A burnishing.

Yalipannu, v. a. (yalipan) To burnish, to polish.

En wy! at gwir a ddywedd arwst ti, i gwyddet yalipannu cledydu yn dda!

Well now! is it true what is said of thee, that thou knowest how to burnish swords in a good manner? H. Culbach—Mabwngton.

Yalipannwr, s. m.—pl. yalipannwyr (yalipan—gwr)
A burnisher, a polisher.

Yalipannwr choddysu gorau y byd wyf i, chel Cal.

The best burnisher of swords in the world am I, said Cal.
[H. Culbach—Mabwngton.]

Yalod, s. m. (llod) A paddle; a dabble.

Yalotiad, s. m. (yalod) A paddling, a dabbling.

Yalotian, v. a. (yalod) To paddle; to dabble.

*Rhyddia, mod rhyddia i'n rhed,
Isel atter i'olotian,
Ar hyd gwir tîdus.*

Once, like above for our share, of low stop to paddle along the top of the waves. T. Prys.

Yalotiwr, s. m.—pl. yalotiwywr (yalotian—gwr) A paddler, a dabbler.

Yalwch, s. m.—pl. yslychau (llwch) A slough.

Yamach, s. m. (mach) A buffet; a ramble.

Yamacht, s. m. (ysmach) A buffet; a ramble.

Ysamachtad, s. m. (ysmacht) A buffeting.

Ysamachtaw, v. a. (ysmacht) To buffet, to ramble.

Ysamachtwr, s. m.—pl. ysamachtwyr (ysmacht—gwr) A buffeter, one who rambles.

Ysma, s. m. (mal) That is light or fickle.

Ysmala, s. (ysmal) Light, fickle; droll, waggish, humorous, whimsical.

Ysmalâd, s. m. (ysmala) A rendering humorous or droll; a becoming droll.

Ysmalâw, a. (ysmala) Of a droll tendency.

Ysmalâs, v. a. (ysmala) To act with humour; to become droll or humorous.

Ysmalâwch, s. m. (ysmala) Levity; drollery, waggery, humour.

Ysmaldawd, s. m. (ysmal) Drollery, humour.

Ysmalder, s. m. (ysmal) Drollery, waggery.

Ysmalrwydd, s. m. (ysmal) Waggishness, drollery.

Ysmeityn, s. m. (meityn) A space, a while; a good while. Er ysmaityn, a good while since.

Ysmiciad, s. m. (ysmig) A blinking, a winking.

Ysmician, v. a. (ysmig) To blink; to ogle.

Ysmiciaw, v. a. (ysmig) To blink; to wink.

Ysmiciawl, a. (ysmig) Blinking; winking.

Ysmiclwr, s. m. (ysmig—gwr) A blinker; a winker.

Ysmig, s. f. (mig) A blink or wink, an ogle.

Ysmiglad, s. m. (ysmig) A blinking; an ogling.

Ysmigiaw, v. a. (ysmig) To blink; to ogle.

Ysmigwat, s. f. (ysmig—gwat) A blinking ailment;
dumps. *Mac yr ysmigwat arno, mac ef yn glaf
o ysmigwat*, he is in the dumps.

Ysmot, s. m.—pl. i. iau (mod) A patch, a spot.

Ysmotad, s. m. (ysmot) A dappling, a spotting.

Ysmotlaw, v. a. (ysmot) To dapple, to spot.

Ysmetya, s. m. ddu. (ysmot) A small spot or patch; a hare's scent; also called cwt, cwtyn, and cwtawg.

Ysmud, s. m. (mud) Emotion, instigation.

Ysmudal, s. c.—pl. ysmudeion (ysmud) That causes emotion; that instigates.

Ysmudaw, v. a. (ysmud) To cause emotion.

Ysmudawl, a. (ysmud) Instigating; motive.

Ysmudiad, s. m. (ysmud) Instigation, emotion.

Ysmudwr, s. m.—pl. ysmudwyr ysmud—gwr)
One who moves; an instigator.

Ysmwca, v. a. (ysmwg) To collect a little smoke, to dim, to be dimmed.

Ysmwch, s. m. (ysmwg) A little puff of smoke,
fog, or mist.

Ysmwcan, s. c. dda. (ysmwg) A little volume of smoke, fog, or mist; fog.

Ysmwciad, s. m. (ysmwg) A dimming with smoke, mist, fog, or vapour.

Ysmwciaw, v. a. (ysmwg) To dim with smoke,
Mac y drych wedi ysmwciaw, the glass is become dim.

Ysmwciawl, a. (ysmwg) Somewhat smoked.

Ysmwg, s. m. (mwg) That generates smoke.

Ysmwll, s. m. (mwll) That is close and damp.
a. Sultry and damp.

Ysmwllach, s. m. (ysmwll) Close damp weather.

Ysmwt, s. m. (mwd) That is round or squabby.
a. Squabby. Twyn ysmwt, a bottle nose.

Ysmygawl, a. (ysmwg) Tending to smoke.

Ysmygad, s. m. (ysmwg) A dimming with smoke.

Ysmygw, v. a. (ysmwg) To dim with smoke.

Ysnid, s. f.—pl. t. an (nid) A snout or beak; a drop at the nose; a snipe.

Ysniten, s. f. dda. (ysnid) A snout; a drop at the snout.

Ysnoden, s. f.—pl. t. i (noden) A fillet, band, riband or lace; a head band, a hair lace; a muslock, also called edwyn dederydd. Ysnoden gorhi, rhwymyn, a swaddling band; ysnoden y mor, sea-thongs; ysnoden mawr, English gallingale.

Ysnoden aur a gwa carth.

A gold lace with a hamper gown.

Adage.

Ysnodenaidd, a. (ysnoden) Like a fillet or lace.

Ysnodenawg, a. (ysnoden) Having a fillet, band, or riband; filleted, laced.

Ysnodenawl, a. (ysnoden) Filleted, laced.

Ysnodeniad, s. m. (ysnoden) A filleting, a lacing.

Ysnodeniig, s. f. dim. (ysnoden) A handlet.

Ysnodenn, v. a. (ysnoden) To fillet, to bind with a lace or riband; to belace.

Ysnodenwr, s. m.—pl. ysnodenwyr (ysnoden—gwr) A dealer in fillets or laces.

Ysnodenydd, s. m.—pl. t. ien (ysnoden) A dealer in fillets, laces, and ribands.

Yso, adv. (ys—o) Is thence; it may be thence.

Ysoldeb, s. m. (ysawl) A consuming state.

Ysoli, v. a. (ysawl) To render consuming; to cauterize.

Yspaid, s. m. (padd) That is exhausted, or spent.

Yspaddawl, a. (yspadd) Tending to exhaust.

Yspaddiad, s. m. (yspadd) An exhausting.

Yspawdu, v. a. (yspadd) To exhaust, to empty.

Yspai, s. m. (pai) That is clear or visible.

Yspaid, s. m. (paid) A cessation, an intermission;
a term or space of time. Tros yspaid iair blynydd, for the space of three years.

Yspaidd, a. (paidd) Being emptied or exhausted.

Yspail, s. f.—pl. yspelliau (pail) A spoil or prey.

Nid yspail ond gwynn.

There is no spoiling like that of wind.

Adage.

Yspaidh, s. m. (paidh) That is open or clear; a prospect, a scene, a view, a vision.

Yspant, s. f.—pl. yspellniau (pant) That is involving or inclosing; a flake.

Yspar, s. f.—pl. ysperi (par) A spear, or pike.

*Llestraw ysb caraw, ysperi weyll.
Llid Pyl arf drydyll, arfard Rhodri.*

A smooth hand giving gold to guests, with blades of spears wrought as Pyl, with weapons broken in three, and spoke of Rhodri. D. ab Gwilym.

Ysparawg, s. (yspar) Having a spear or pike.

Yspardun, s. f.—pl. t. au (ysper—tun) A spur;
also called ethy. Yspardunau y marchawg, the larkspur.

Yspardaned, s. m. (ysparden) A spurring.
Yspardunaw, v. a. (ysparden) To spur.
Yspardunwr, v. m.—pl. yspardunwyr (ysparden—gwr) One who uses a spur.
Ysparth, s. m.—pl. t. au (parth) A separation.
Ysparthiad, s. m. (ysparth) A separating.
Ysparthu, v. a. (ysparth) To separate, to part.
Yspas, s. m. (pas) That is in the act of passing.
a. Passing; probationary.
Yspawr, s. m.—pl. ysporian (pawr) That is used as fodder; the refuse of fodder.
Yspeiad, s. m. (yspai) An exploring, a spying.
Yspeiant, s. m. (yspai) An exploration.
Yspeiaw, v. a. (yspai) To explore; to spy.
Yspeiawd, s. m. (yspai) An exploration.
Yspeiawl, a. (yspai) Exploratory; spying.
Yspeiawr, s. m. (yspai) That is visible.
Yspeidiad, s. m. (yspaid) An intermission.
Yspeidiaw, v. a. (yspaid) To make an intermission; to form a space of time; to desist.
Yspeidiawl, a. (yspaid) Intermittent.
Yspeienna, v. a. (yspeiant) To prowl about.
Yspeiliad, s. m. (yspail) A spoliation.
Yspeienddyn, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yspeiant—dyn) A person who prowls about.
Yspeiliata, v. a. (yspeiliad) To be pilfering.
Yspeiliatan, v. a. (yspeiliad) To be pilfering.
Yspeiliaw, v. a. (yspail) To spoil, to ravage.
Yspeiliawd, s. m. (yspail) A spoliation.
Yspeilidig, a. (yspeiliad) Spoiled, ravaged.
Yspeiliedydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yspeiliad) Ravager.
Yspeiliota, v. a. (yspeiliawd) To be pilfering.
Yspeiliwr, s. m.—pl. yspeiliwyr (yspail—gwr) A spoiler, a ravager.
Yspeinniad, s. m. (yspant) An involving or enclosing; a shelling.
Yspeinniaw, v. a. (yspant) To involve, to enclose, to shell. Yspeinniaw ffa, to shell beans.

Yspeinniaw Rhys ab Eilon
A oera sein yr oer hon.

The enveloping of Rhys the son of Eilon renders the voice of this generation dismal. L. O. ColAl.

Yspeinwydd, s. m. (ys—pan—gwydd) Box-wood.
Yspeiorad, s. m. (yspeiawr) Exploration.
Yspeiorawl, a. (yspeiawr) Exploratory.
Yspeiori, v. a. (yspeiawr) To explore.
Yspeithiad, s. m. (yspaith) A looking about.
Yspeithiaw, v. a. (yspaith) To look about.
Yspeithiawl, a. (yspaith) Relating to a looking about; exploratory.
Yspeithig, a. (yspaith) Tending to look about.
Yspeithigaw, v. a. (yspeithig) To form an open prospect or view.
Yspel, a. m. (pel) An exposition; expulsion.
Yspeliad, s. m. (yspel) An exposing.
Yspeliaw, v. a. (yspel) To expose; to expel.
Yspeiwr, s. m. (yspel) A gall, a rub, or fret.
Yspeiawd, s. m. (yspelw) Exulceration.
Yspeiwl, v. a. (yspelw) To gall, to be galled.
Yspell, s. m. (pell) That is far or long.

Yr cryr a ddywodd: mi a ddeuthym yma er ysbell o amser.—
The eagle said: I am arrived here for this long space of time. H. Culbach—Mabingation.

Yspelliad, s. m. (yspell) A rendering distant.
Yspella, v. a. (yspell) To render distant.
Yspennydd, s. m. (yspant) That involves. a. Involving; overwhelming.

Llary yspar yspennydd ei sid;
Llew wrth aer, a llwyr wrth circhid.

A mild one with a spear of overwhelming bound; a lion in the slaughter, and a yielding one to the stirrer. Ll. P. Moch, i Rodri.

Ysperyl, s. f. (peryl) A leg bone, or the tibia.

Yspicell, s. f.—pl. t. au (yspig) A dart.
Yspicella, v. a. (yspicell) To throw darts.
Yspicellad, s. m. (yspicell) A darting.
Yspicella, v. a. (yspicell) To throw a dart.
Yspig, v. f.—pl. t. au (pig) A spike, a spine.
Yspigaw, v. a. (yspig) To spike; to prick.
Yspigawd, s. f.—pl. yspigodau (yspig) A spindle, a spigot.
Yspigawg, a. (yspig) Full of spikes or prickles.
Yspigawgli, s. pl. aggr. (yspigawg—gli) Spinnage.
Yspigydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yspig) The titmouse; also called yepigydd bach.
Yspil, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pil) A dribblet.
Yspilyn, s. m. dim. (yspil) A little matter, a dribblet. Mae arno ryw yspilyn bach i mi, hec oves me some small trifle.
Yspin, s. m.—pl. t. ion (pin) A spine, a prick.
Yspinan, s. m. dim. (yspin) That is spinous; a gooseberry-bush.
Yspinawg, a. (yspin) Abounding with prickles.
s. f. The squincy.
Yspinc, s. m. (pinc) That is smart or trim.
Yspincyn, s. m. dim. (yspinc) A finch; it is also called pinc.
Yspinen, s. f. dim. (yspin) That is spinous; any prickly plant.
Yspinglairch, s. m. (yspin—clairch) Bridegroom.
Ysplan, a. (plan) Clear, bright, splendid.
Ysplanu, v. a. (ysplan) To elucidate, to explain.
Ysplanawl, a. (ysplan) Luminous, lucid.
Ysplander, s. m. (ysplan) Brightness, splendour.
Ysplandra, s. m. (ysplan) Brightness, clearness.
Ysplanedig, a. (ysplan) Being brightened.
Ysplanedd, s. m. (ysplan) Brightness, lucidity.
Ysplaniad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ysplan) A brightening.
Ysplenydd, a. (ysplan) Lucid or luminous.
Ysplenyddu, v. a. (ysplenydd) To irradiate.
Ysplent, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (ysplan) A slippery place or slide; a sheet of ice.

Rhaid eu gryn, am oerod eu rheymau, fr yspiant llaw yr ngwyd yr ia trawyddawl.

They must be driven, because of the coldness of their darts, to the great sheet of ice in the region of eternal frost. Ellis Wyn, B. Comp.

Ysplyg, s. m.—pl. t. ion (plyg) A splice.
Ysplygawl, a. (ysplyg) Spliced, infolded.
Ysplygiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ysplyg) A splicing.
Ysplygu, v. a. (ysplyg) To splice, to infold.

Da oedd ysplygu y cyghaneddiad o'u hamryw feddau.

It were well to enfold the concatenations with their various sorts. Gr. Rhodri.

Yspodol, s. f.—pl. t. au (yspawd) A slice or spatula.
Yspodoli, v. a. (yspodol) To spattle; to beat with the flat side of any thing; to slap.

Yspodoliad, s. m. (yspodol) A spattling; a slapping.

Ysponc, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ponc) A jerk, a jet, a spurt; a skip or quick bound.

Taraw, o'm amwyd dyrru.
Thir ybanc, toros y byn.

Striking, from my mischievous whim, three jerks, the last broke. D. ab Gwilym, fr. dth.

Ac ysbonc y wmbach.

And the snarl of the delicate lip. Llondedd, fr. eum.

Ysponciad, s. m. (ysponc) A sudden jet or bound, a twitch; a smack.

Ysponciaw, v. a. (ysponc) To bound sharply; to smack; to jerk, to jet.

Yspori, v. a. (yspawr) To feed; to eat fodder.

Ysporiad, s. m. (yspawr) A feeding; the eating of fodder, a foddering.

Ysporiaw, v. a. (yspawr) To eat fodder.

Ysporion, s. pl. aggr. (yspawr) Refuse of fodder.
Ysporion, v. a. (ysporion) To produce refuse or leavings of fodder.

Ysporth, s. m.—pl. t. ion (porth) Sustenance.
Ysporthaw, a. (ysporth) Supporting, sustaining.
Ysporthell, s. f.—pl. t. i (ysporth) A provision basket or pannier.

Ysporthen, s. f. dim.—pl. t. i (ysporth) A basket or pannier.

Ysporthi, v. a. (ysporth) To support or sustain.

Ysporthiad, s. m.—pl. ysporthiad (ysporth) A sustainer or supporter.

*Cyfarclaf—
 I blwyf cryr, arf gwanod a gwed
 A gwyddgw ysporthiad.*

*I will greet the warriors of the eagle, the weapon of a happy country with blood, and the feeder of the wild dogs.
 Ll. F. Mech, i D. ab Owain.*

Ysporthiadawl, a. (ysporthiad) Of a supporting or sustaining tendency.

Ysporthiansawl, a. (ysporthiant) Yielding sustenance or support.

Ysporthianaw, v. a. (ysporthiant) To produce sustenance or support.

Ysporthiant, s. m. (ysporth) Sustenance, food.

Ysporthion, s. pl. aggr. (ysporth) Refuse of fodder.

Ysporthion, v. a. (ysporthion) To make leavings of fodder.

Yspred, v. st. aggr. (pred) Outcasts; refuse.

*Yr eidd—e eidd—
 Yspred o anybryddod.*

*There was a fold of goats, outcasts of mere phantoms.
 Or. ab Idris at Tudy.*

*Fe dal yr Arddwyd fr yspred
 A wneith y wneithred dywyll.*

*The Lord will requite the crew who committed that dark deed.
 Lewis Morris.*

Ysprudd, a. (prudd) Moping, stupid, or dull.

Yspruddach, s. m. (ysprudd) That is of a dejected aspect, a moper, a stupid one.

Yspwng, s. m.—pl. t. an (pwng) A light tuft, such as the tops of reeds; sponge.

*Oned yd gych cyngwyr o'i gynnwyl pwng.
 Maf pa gych fflandd fflandd yspwng.*

*Rebated for him to attack perversive in his overwhelming rage, so when the flaming fire fared an inflammable covering of reeds.
 E. ab Medwyn at Rhawdd.*

Yspwy, s. m. (pwyr) A rebuff, or a repulse.

Yspwyad, s. m. (yspwy) A rebuffing, repulsion.

Yspwyaw, v. a. (yspwy) To rebuff, to repulse.

Yspwyll, s. m. (pwyll) A mental faculty.

Yspwyllaw, v. a. (yspwyll) To ratiocinate.

Yspwylliad, s. m. (yspwyll) Ratiocination.

Yspwyllus, a. (yspwyll) Ratiocinative.

Yspwys, s. m. (pwys) That is impressive or weighty. a. impressive, imposing. Gwraig yspwys, and gwraig dwys, a wedded wife, or a spouse.

Mae yspwys ysbys ochrys ochers.

*The imposing conduct of the conspicuous terrific party.
 Cynddelw.*

*Rheol gwyll—
 Dy o yspwys i blesher.*

*The ruling of the outrageous is of weight to Jasper.
 L. G. Codd.*

Yspwysaw, v. a. (yspwys) To impress.

Yspwysawl, a. (yspwys) Impressive, imposing.

Yspwyslad, s. m. (yspwys) An imposing.

Yspydd, s. m. (pydd) A jutting, or run out.

Yspyddad, s. m. aggr. (yspydd) That runs out; that expels; that is projecting; a hawthorn.

Yspyddad mawr, Rhaiet uch y pwyll.

*The hawthorn surrounded by obstacles, with pain at his head.
 Talcott.*

Yspyddaden, s. f. dim. (yspyddad) One that is armed or protected; hawthorn, white-thorn.

VOL. II.

Yspyddaid, a. (yspydd) Jutting; prickly; harsh, sharp, repulsive; protected. Mae o yn dywedyd mwr yspyddaid, he is speaking so wildly. Sil. Heirdd yspyddaid, refugee bards.

Yspyddaw, s. m. (yspydd) A running out; a repelling or guarding; protection.

*Parawd yspyddaw i eubyd Prydale,
 Udd pyddaw ei wryd,
 Maredad—*

*Of ready protection to the refugees of Britain, a chief of state's form, Maredad.—
 Ll. F. Mech, m. M. ab Cynan.*

Yspyddiad, s. m. (yspydd) A jutting out.

Yspyddu, v. a. (yspydd) To jut, to run out.

Ysran, s. f.—pl. t. an (rhan) A dividend.

Ysranawl, a. (ysran) Forming a dividend.

Ysranlad, s. m. (ysran) A making a dividend.

Ysranu, v. a. (ysran) To make a dividend.

Ysrath, s. m. (rhath) That is rubbed.

Ysrathawl, a. (ysrath) Productive of friction.

Ysrathiad, s. m. (ysrath) A causing a friction.

Ysrathu, v. a. (ysrath) To cause a friction.

Ysrith, s. m.—pl. t. ion (rith) That is apparent.

Ysrithiad, s. m. (ysrith) A making apparent.

Ysrithiaw, v. a. (ysrith) To make apparent.

Ysrwydd, a. (rhwydd) Tending to facilitate.

Ysrwyddaw, v. a. (ysrwydd) To render facile.

Ysrwyddawl, a. (ysrwydd) Of a clearing tendency

Ysrwyddiad, s. m. (ysrwydd) A rendering facile.

Ysawd, s. m. (sawd) That combines or forms.

Yssig, a. (ys—sig) Shattered, crushed, bruised.

Yssigaw, v. a. (yssig) To shatter, to crush, to bruise. Yssigaw byddinoedd, to crush armies.

*Yr hawdd—
 Tynnu tua eu mur,
 Tofing eu llaw,
 Tofnoedd disgwr,
 A'h hysiga.*

*In Saxony towers with their broken walls, tumult their tall, hosts told of inactivity will crush them.
 D. Benfryn.*

Ysigawl, a. (yssig) Tending to shatter or crush.

Ysigdawl, s. m. (yssig) Shatteredness, bruisedness; confusion, a crushed state.

Ysigiad, s. m. (yssig) A shattering, a crushing, a bruising; a confusion.

Ysigwr, s. m.—pl. ysigwyr (yssig—gwr) A shatterer, one who bruises, or makes a confusion.

Ysodi, v. a. (ysawd) To render combined.

Ysy, s. m. (ys—sy) That has existence, or has entity. adv. That is, that be.

Ysydd, s. m. (ys—sydd) That has existence, or that has entity. adv. That is, that be.

Na seuthya ni bellach, canya awr ac addod ysydd awr, ag a fo mwy, os nydd: dyro iai dy farch.

*Do not shooting at us any more, for the harm and ruin that is upon thee, as to what more may be, if thou wilt; give us thy daughter.
 H. Chuluck—Mabington.*

Ysyddawl, a. (ysydd) Causing of existence.

Ysyddiad, s. m. (ysydd) A causing of existence.

Ysyddu, v. a. (ysydd) To cause to be, or exist.

Ysyddyn, s. m. dim.—pl. t. od (ysydd) That is occupied; a tenement.

Ysyddynawl, a. (ysyddyn) Under occupation.

Ysym, adv. (ys—sy—ym) That is to me, that is of mine.

*Ysym hoddw pen y mla,
 Ys y wneid ydd edwla.*

*What might be mine this day ending the month, in the entertainment I have left it.
 Llywarch Hen.*

Ysym argwydd gwdd.

*There is to me a powerful lord.
 Cynddelw.*

Yst, s. m. (ys) That exists; that proceeds; that is active or ardent.

Ystac, s. m.—pl. t. ian (tag) That is reared; a heap; a stack.

Ystac, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (ystac) A standard; a heap; a measure of capacity, equal to 5½ bushels, used in Glamorgan; but in the neighbouring parts it is called Tel; and Ystaca is used as a measure of length.

4 R

Ystaciad, s. m. (ystac) A forming a standard; a forming a heap; a stacking.

Ystaciaw, v. a. (ystac) To form a standard; to form a heap; to stack.

Ystad, s. m.—pl. t. au (tad) That is continuous or proceeding; state, condition.

Ystadawl, a. (ystad) Being continuous or even.

Ystaden, s. f. dim. (ystad) A measure of length; a stadium.

Ystadiad, s. m. (ystad) A forming a position.

Ystadi, s. m. (ystad) That is continuous, that is proceeding, or that is uninterrupted.

Ystadi cad cynnygydd.

The threatenor of the induction of battle.

Tellurion.

Ystadledd, s. m. (ystadi) A continuous state.

Ystadiad, s. m. (ystadi) A rendering continuous.

Ystadiu, v. a. (ystad) To remain, to stay.

Ystaen, s. m. (taen) That is spread out; that is sprinkled over; a stain; also tin. a. Out-spreading; stained.

*Nid
Rhwyd ystaeu yn rhydu;
Rhwyd adar y ddolwr dda.*

The mist, an outspreading riddle diffusing rust; the nest of the birds of the sable earth.

Ystaenald, a. (ystaen) Tending to overspread; of a staining quality; like tin.

Ystaenawd, s. m. (ystaen) The state of being spread, sprinkled, or stained.

*Rhag gwyar ar graud,
Afar ystaenawd.*

Against gore on flesh, a dismal staining.

Tellurion.

Ystaenawl, a. (ystaen) Tending to spread, of a staining quality; belonging to tin.

Ystaenawr, s. m.—pl. ystaenorion (ystaen) A tinner, or a worker of tin.

Ystaeniad, s. m. (ystaen) A spreading out; a staining; a working of tin; a tinning.

Ystaeniaw, v. a. (ystaen) To spread over; to stain; to tin.

Ystaeniwr, s. m.—pl. ystaeniwyr (ystaen—gwr) One who stains; a tinner.

Ystaenu, v. a. (ystaen) To cover with tin.

Ystaenydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ystaen) A tinner.

Ystaf, s. f. (taf) That is spread, extended, or laid out; that is stretched out or laminated.

Ystafell, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ystaf) A chamber, an upper room; a bedchamber.

*Nid a fedraf ystafell;
Das o wair; nid oes ei well.*

I can form a chamber: a haystack; there is not its better.

D. ab Owlym.

Ystafelliad, s. f.—pl. ystafelleidiau (ystafell) A chamber-full, a room-full.

Ystafellaidd, a. (ystafell) Like a chamber.

Ystafellawg, a. (ystafell) Having a chamber; having a room, or a cell.

Pedair ar agoriad fydd obediwr gwr ystafellawg; dwydeg cel-lawg yw obediwr gwraig ystafellawg; ac i arglydd y tir y'bo yr ystafell arno y telir.

Twenty-four pence shall be the heriot of a man having a cot; twelve pence is the heriot of a woman having a cot; and to the lord of the soil whereon the cell may be stall it be paid.

Welsh Laws.

Ystafelliad, s. m. (ystafell) A chambering.

Ystafellu, v. a. (ystafell) To form a chamber.

Ystafellwas, s. m.—pl. ystafellweision (ystafell—gwas) A chamberlain.

Ystafellwr, s. m.—pl. ystafellwyr (ystafell—gwr) A chamber-man.

Ystafellwraig, s. f.—pl. ystafellwreigedd (ystafell—gwraig) A chamber-woman.

Ystafellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ystafell) A chamberlain, a groom of the chamber.

Pwy gyd a mi! Pwy! A das neu ddi o'r ystafellyddion a ch-rychyd arno.

Who along with me! Who! And two or three of the chamberlains looked at him. Brachnodd S. 22.

Ystafellyddes, s. f.—pl. t. au (ystafellydd) A chambermaid.

Ystafellyddiaeth, s. m. (ystafell) Chamberlainship.

Ystagiad, s. m. (tagiad) A causing a choking.

Ystagu, v. a. (tagu) To suffocate, to choke.

Ystain, s. m. (tain) That spreads or expands.

Ystal, s. f.—pl. t. on (yst—al) A stock or produce, a stall; a frame on stone pillars for corn racks.

*Aeth i'r cor ystor ac ystal oesodd,
Gwasd i'w ymawg Mathriall.*

Went to the circle in the transverse and the stock of agnes, the blood of the prince of Mathriall. W. Cyman.

Ffynodd, celydd ystal; Ffynau'n Nhywys a Phenol.

He prospered, he extended a stock; prospering in Tywyn and Penol. Edward Fyfe.

Ystaliad, s. m. (ystal) A producing a stock.

Ystalm, s. m. (talm) A determined space; a good while, a good space.

Ystalmiad, s. m. (ystalm) A forming a determined space; a determining.

Ystalmu, v. a. (ystalm) To form a determined space; to form a conclusion; to determine.

Ystale, v. a. (ystal) To form a stock; to obtain produce.

Ystalw, a. (ystal) Being made productive.

Ystalwyn, s. m.—pl. t. i (ystaliw) A stallion.

Gwarch ystaliwys gwrwy a llo dol, a cheng rwyg o'i fann ar arall yn ei ol.

The value of a stallion is a stud that he can cover, with a brand more before him than another behind him. Welsh Laws.

Ystalyndd, a. (ystaliw) Like a stallion.

Ystan, s. f. (tan) That is spread or laid out.

*Eistedd 'n au ystan nwyd,
Trio fydd cyn y tolon' fydd.*

Sitting in one spread of coldness, a troll there will be before they carve any victuals. S. ab Hywel Gwyn.

Ystanc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (yst—anc) That is strait; that confines; a pile; a holdfast; a bracket; a wooden hook nailed to a wall. Ystanc cryfol, a horse block; ystanc i wastatun awr, a pile in the ground to keep up a causeway.

Ystanciad, s. m. (ystanc) A piling; a propping; a bracketing.

Ystanciaw, v. a. (ystanc) To pile; to prop; to pin; to bracket.

Ystang, s. m.—pl. t. au (yst—ang) That is strait; that straitens or bounds; a stang or perch, used as a measure; in some parts of South Wales it is 18 feet; in others 21 feet; and it is also a square measure: in Cardiganshire it is 160 square rods 13½ feet each: in Pembrokeshire it is a quarter of a Welsh acre, and contains 160 yards by 16 yards.

A'i ystang a waseth angau.

And his spear has depth accomplished.

D. Rhys.

Ystangiad, s. m. (ystang) A straitening, a fastening; a limiting; a measuring the space of an ystang.

Ystangu, v. a. (ystang) To straiten, to pin; to limit; to measure out the space of an ystang.

Ystarn, s. m.—pl. t. au (tarn) Saddle; a pack-saddle.

Gwoddw, mai ystarn ar gefn breich.

Fitting, like a saddle on the back of a cow.

Adams.

Ystarnawg, a. (ystarn) Having a saddle.

Ystarniad, s. m. (ystarn) A saddling.

Ystarnu, v. a. (ystaru) To saddle; to put on a pack-saddle.

Y bwrddwr llyn a ddyr, y pân y parawstrawd, ddwaleid ei farch: o'r holl grynol aed y ddwaleid; ac ei ystarnu, ac ei ddwyn iddo ac ei ystarnu arno, pan farchoco.

The judge of the palace ought to have, from the chief groom, his horse made complete, from the first till to the last; and to have the saddle put on, and brought to him with the saddle on, when he rides.

Welsh Laws.

Ystarnwr, s. m. (ystarn-gwr) A saddler.

Ystau, s. m. (tau) That is silent or calm.

Ystawd, s. f.—pl. ystodion (tawd) A course, a race; a layer; a swath of hay or corn, laid with a scythe. Ystend ianias, course of nature.

Mae efo wedi terfynu—y dygwylledas anghyffredin cydd yn ddaemwain yn ystawd rhaglenioeth.

He has determined the uncommon accidents that happen in the course of providence.

Ier. Owein.

Ystawi, s. m.—pl. ystafion (tawf) That is regulated or ranged; a warp, in weaving.

Ystawiad, s. m. (ystaw) A rendering silent.

Ystawl, s. f.—pl. ystollon (tawl) A stool. Ystawl fair, the lesser century.

Ystawl, dwy gainlawg a dâl.

A stool, its value is two pepee.

Welsh Laws.

Ystawr, s. f.—pl. ystôran (tawr) What covers; any resin; rosin.

Ea gwyafyd yw cyfoeth, dyb annoeth bob awr Hyd elawr, wan ystawr, yn wastad.

Their habitation is wealth, a foolish notion, continually to the day, a frail covering.

D. Williams.

Ystefais, s. f. (ystaf) The roof of the mouth.

Ystefiad, s. m. (ystain) A causing a spread.

Ystefianw, v. a. (ystain) To cause to spread.

Ystel, s. m.—pl. t. ion (tel) That stretches.

Ystelc, s. f.—pl. t. iau (telc) That is shrinking; a lark; a loiter.

Ystelciad, s. m. (ystelc) A causing a shrinking; a larking; a loitering.

Ystelcian, v. a. (ystelc) To go in a shrinking manner; to lark about; to loiter.

Ystelciaw, v. a. (ystelc) To go shrinkingly; to lark; to loiter.

Ystelciwr, s. m.—pl. ystelciwyr (ystelc—gwr) A larker; a loiterer.

Ystelf, s. m.—pl. t. od (ystel) That is rigid; a blockhead.

Ystelfiad, s. m. (ystelf) A rendering rigid.

Ystelfu, v. a. (ystelf) To render rigid or stiff.

Ysteliad, s. m. (ystel) A stretching, a causing a spring or elasticity.

Ystellaw, v. a. (ystel) To stretch; to spring.

Yn Myrwr wedi y mas'n wir;

Dros ddy-wind yr ystelfir.

It is Myrwr it is in truth; over two countries it will be made to extend.

L. G. Cuth.

Ystelyw, s. m. (ystel) That is stretched out.

Ystem, s. f. (tem) That forms a round spread; a base, a stem.

Yster, s. m.—pl. t. ion (ter) That is ardent.

Ysteraig, a. (yster) Apt to produce ardency.

Ysteraiglawg i Craig

For and ysteraig.

Abounding with broken stones, by the side of a rock, the post tree is not of an ardent quality.

Talliesin, Cad Godden.

Ysterc, s. f.—pl. t. ian (terc) That makes a jerk.

Ysterciad, s. m. (ysterc) A making a jerk.

Ystercian, v. a. (ysterc) To be jerking out.

Ystercianw, v. a. (ysterc) To jerk, throw, or mount up, as a football.

Ysteriad, s. m. (yster) A rendering ardent.

Ysterialwyn, s. m. (yster—Hewyn) A meteor.

Ystern, s. m.—pl. ystyrn (tern) That produces ardency or motion; that is sharp or active. a. of an active or sharp tendency.

Corwen stryfawr

Ysternwef a llyw—

Corwen pan yw ystern;

Pan yw llywedd gwrn.

I know the regulation between heaven and earth: or else why it is of an active quality; the alder why it is of a purplish hue.

Talliesin.

Hwyl yw yr all praw, cistaw cam,

Oer ei ystern, a roid stream.

This is the second taste, an adverse mere of cold impulses, which then had set upon us.

Rhyr Goch Rhyr.

Ysternu, v. a. (yster) To render ardent or vivid.

Ystid, s. f.—pl. t. au (tid) That forms a wreath.

Ystid zoch, ys da dy got.

A red wreath, thy memory is good.

D. ab Gwilym, i geinach.

Ystidaw, v. a. (ystid) To form a chain.

Ystidiad, s. m. (ystid) A rig-ma-roll.

Ystig, a. (yat) Assiduous, persevering.

Ystig, da da yw ystig dydd ei dda a'i ddaw yn ddi.

Consider that man's wealth is not uninterruptedly good should his God be displeased.

Dr. S. Cant.

Ystigaw, v. a. (ystig) To act with assiduity, to persevere; to become assiduous.

Ystigiad, s. m. (ystig) A persevering; a becoming assiduous; a sticking close to work.

Ystigrwydd, s. m. (ystig) Perseverance, assiduity, diligence, close application.

Ystigl, s. f. (ystig) A stile. Ceredigion.

Ystlin, a. (yst) Of a tendency to be or to act.

Ystinos, s. m. (ystin) The asbestos.

Ys y gwrdd—ar metyn—

A gale dyn ac yllaw.

In the girdle, yellow gold will a person seek, and asbestos.

R. Goch, Bryri.

Ystle, s. m. (ystyl) That is impulsive; that is extreme; a flight or retreat; kindred.

Carannawd, cymhwys arad,

Alwen dy ystle o gad;

Gnawd men ar ran cybuliad.

Carannawd, there being a constraint on thee, Alwen thy retreat from battle; a mark is natural on the brow of a combatant.

Llywarch Hen.

All dydd brawd, brawd ystle.

Like the day of judgement, terrific the course of retreat.

Gwalchmai.

Ystlen, s. f.—pl. t. i (yat—Hen) A sex, a kind.

Cyfring dros ofanedwyl waelplaw ystlen.

Intercede for the devoted females.

Dafydd Idu, a Hiraedd.

Ystlennaid, a. (ystlen) Sexual; kindred.

Ystlenawl, a. (ystlen) Sexual; kindred.

Ystlom, s. m. (ystyl—om) Excrement, ordure.

Ystlomi, v. a. (ystlom) To void excrement.

Ystlomiad, s. m. (ystlom) A voiding excrement.

Ystlwn, s. m. (yst—llwn) Connection; kindred.

Ystliwyd, s. m. (yst—llwyd) Grey or hoary.

Ystliwyn, s. m. (yst—llwyn) A insuriant grove.

Am y rhyllyr yd

Tu a'r ystliwyn tir ystliwyd.

Often of superior quality thou art towards the lively grove of land of dusky growth.

Iwan Tew.

Ystlym, s. m.—pl. t. od (yat—llym) A bat.

Nid diffailth ond ystlym.

There is nothing so filthy as a bat.

Adage.

Ystlynnawl, a. (ystlwn) Connected; related.

Ystlyned, s. f. (ystlwn) That is connected, associated, or in communion.

Ac ym Rheu gwyn gwyn ystlyned wyf i.

And to my blessed Creator a feeble communion have I.

Rhyrion ab Gwalchmai.

Ystlynedd, s. f. (ystlwn) Connection, kindred.

Ni bu oedlaid beidd o'r ystlynedd.

Beide have not been of needy life from his connection.

Gt. ab Gurgunus.

Ystlyniad, s. m. (ystlwn) A forming a society; a forming a relationship.

Ystlynnu, v. a. (ystlwn) To associate; to form a connection, or kindred.

Ystlys, s. f.—pl. t. au (ystyl) A side, a flank.

Cadarn a chrochwn eadylat oc y ddyw ystlys; ond ar y ddyw lantys a gafal y fuddysodeth.
Mighty and furious were they of the two sides; but at length lantys obtained the victory. Chwilydd y Llangyfan.

Ystlysawl, a. (ystlys) Lateral, or sided.

Ystlysboet, s. m. (ystlys—post) A side-post.

Ystlyddid, s. f.—pl. t. au (ystlys—tid) A side chain, the trace of draught harness.

Ystlygam, a. (ystlys—cam) Lob-sided.

Ystlygamiad, s. m. (ystlyagam) A bending laterally; a rendering lob-sided.

Ystlygamu, v. a. (ystlygam) To be lob-sided.

Ystlygell, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (ystlys—cell) A side-chamber, a cell.

Ystlygerdded, v. a. (ystlys—cerdded) To walk by the side; to walk sideways.

Mae yn ystlygerdded a gwirionedd.

It is going parallel with truth.

Adage.

Ystlyglawdd, s. m.—pl. ystlygloddian (ystlys—clawdd) A flanker, in fortification.

Ystlysiad, s. m. (ystlys) A forming a side; a rendering lateral; a sideling.

Ystlysu, v. a. (ystlys) To tend to one side.

Ystlyswaith, s. m. (ystlys—gwaith) A lateral work, a work that flanks.

Ystodl, s. a. (ystawd) To dispose a course, range, or layer; to form a swath.

Ystodiad, s. m. (ystawd) A disposing a course, a ranging; a forming layers or swaths.

Ystodawl, a. (ystawf) Tending to regulate or dispose in order; warping.

Ystofen, s. f. dim. (ystof) A warping tray.

Ystofi, v. a. (ystof) To regulate, to dispose; to warp thread or yarn for weaving; it is also called dyllwax. Ystofi y gwaith, to regulate the work.

Arwybwr taerfar yn lori cadde, Cadarn-frwydr ystofi.

*A hero with an ardently watchful spear breaking through battles, disposing a mighty conflict. *Llygod Gwr, i Llywelyn III.

Ystofiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ystawf) A regulating, a disposing; a warping.

Ystofiawd, s. m. (ystawf) Regulation, disposition; the act of warping yarn.

Ystofiawdr, s. m.—pl. ystofiawdron (ystofiawd) A regulator; a warper.

Ystofiawdr gwydd yn ddiol.

The combiner of wood that is faultless.

D. ab Gwilym, i hel fedi.

Ystofwr, s. m.—pl. ystofwyr (ystawf—gwr) One who regulates or puts in order; a warper.

Ystol, s. f.—pl. t. ion (tol) That involves; that covers or includes.

Ystola, s. f. (ystol) A scarf, an ephod; a wrapper, a loose gown, a stole.

Gwelynt wr lreanc yn eiddod dr y ta ddiol; wedi rhy wileg mewn ystola gaeol.

*They beheld a young man sitting on the right side, being clad in a shining vest. *W. Salisbury.

Ystolc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tolc) That is hollow or indented by pressure.

Ystolciad, s. m. (ystolc) A forming a hollow or indenting by punching; a butting.

Ystolcian, v. a. (ystolc) To butt repeatedly.

Ystolciaw, v. a. (ystolc) To make a depression or indenting by butting.

Ystor, s. m.—pl. t. au (tor) That forms a bulk or heap; a store.

Ystorad, s. m. (ystawr) A forming of resin.

Ystoraeth, s. f. (tornaeth) That is a produce; that is productive or plentiful; a store.

Ystoralld, a. (ystawr) Resinous, or like resin.

Ystoraew, a. (ystawr) Resinaceous, resinous.

Ystordyl, s. m.—pl. t. au (ystor—ty) A storeroom.

Ystordyn, s. m. dim. (tor—dyn) A trigger in bowling; a mark to jump from.

Ystoreithiad, s. m. (ystoraeth) A rendering productive; a forming a store.

Ystoreithaw, v. a. (ystoraeth) To render productive or yielding; to form a store.

Ystori, v. a. (ystawr) To cover with resin; to do with resin.

Ystoriad, s. m. (ystor) A forming a store.

Ystoriaw, v. a. (ystor) To treasure up, to store.

Y dechbas a ystoriad wybedoth.

*The wise men do treasure up knowledge. *Disarhobion 12. 24.

Ysturm, s. f.—pl. t. ydd (torm) A tempest, a storm.

Ysturm o ffynwys dyrrale.

A storm from the bosom of the vast.

D. ab Gwilym.

Blodd'i a' dechbas—

Ystymawr yr ysturmodd.

A shout thou wouldst give, thou trumpet of the storm.

M. ab Iago Fr. gwydd.

Ysturmaw, a. (ysturm) Stormy, tempestuous.

Ysturmiaid, s. m. (ysturm) A raising a storm.

Ysturmiau, v. a. (ysturm) To raise a storm.

Ysturmws, a. (ysturm) Stormy, tempestuous.

Ystwrwr, s. m.—pl. ystwrwyr (ystor—gwr) A warehouseman.

Ystrad, s. m.—pl. t. au (trad) A flat, a vale, a bottom, or valley, formed by the course of a river. It forms the names of many places in Wales; as Ystrad Yw, Ystrad Tywi, and the like.

Lleu dda gwynnawr yn gwynnawr Rhyg.

An Dwyll, dech ystrad.

*Two towers were dale in leaving of the Angles, about Twyffort, a pleasant vale. *Cyfrillan.

Ystradaidd, a. (ystrad) Like a vale or dale.

Ystradawl, a. (ystrad) Belonging to a vale.

Ystraff, s. f. (traff) That stirs about or strews.

Ystradawl, a. (ystraff) Strewing; wasteful.

Ystraffiad, s. m. (ystraff) A strewing; a wasting.

Ystraffu, v. a. (ystraff) To strew, to lavish.

Ystraffwr, s. m.—pl. ystraffwyr (ystraff—gwr) A strewer, a lavisher, a waster.

Ystrail, s. m.—pl. ystreilion (traig) A buckle.

Ystrail, s. m.—pl. ystreilion (traig) A tum.

Ystrail, s. m.—pl. ystreilion (traid) That is drawn, trailed, or turned over; a mat.

Ystrain, s. f. (train) A tribe; a crew, a breed.

Gochei yr ystrain, beware of the breed.

Ystram, s. f.—pl. ystremydd (tram) A frame.

Ystram y drws, the door-frame; ystram y ffenestr, the window-frame.

Ystranc, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tranc) A trick, a wife.

Ystranciad, s. m. (ystranc) A playing tricks.

Ystranciaw, v. a. (ystranc) To play tricks, to quirk. March yn ystranciaw, a horse shewing vicious tricks.

Ystranciawl, a. (ystranc) Apt to play tricks.

Ystrancus, a. (ystranc) Apt to play tricks.

Ystraul, s. f. (traul) That is diminished.

Ystraw, s. m.—pl. t. eu (traw) That is progressive; that is advanced or matured.

Arlywydd o'r hen pen pob ystraw;

Arlywydd pob ddiolch yn y ddiol.

*The Lord from above is the head of every congregation; the lord of every house of grace his glory is to come to glory. *Llywelyn Gŵyl, m. Llywelyn III.

Ystrawd, s. m.—pl. ystrodion (trawd) That makes a course or transit.

Berdd Rhyf—

En gwedd m'm gw.

Ar ystrawd, ar ystraw.

*The forest bared, their praise will not bring me to flourish, nor on a course, nor on a station. *Taliesin.

Ystrawiad, s. m. (ystraw) An advancing.

Ystrawm, v. a. (ystraw) To advance; to educate.
Ystre, s. f.—pl. t. on (yst—rhe) A course.

Cymyd aber rhyg ystre.

The tumult of a conflict hushes the course. Ascuria.
 Cymodd! Owrn egyptu ar ystre.

The disposition of Owrn is to mount upon the course.

Ascuria.

Odd dffus ar ystre. Llywarch Hen.

He was a belmark on the course.

Pa wing giew yr ystre. Llywarch Hen.

When a hero arrays the course.

Cawodd Gwennllan, gwyn llyw ar
 Cawoddy llyw llywch ystre.

The ramparts of Gwennllan, fair as the sparkling of stars, the lovely fair one the splendor of the course. L. P. Moch.

Dy feld a'rh reuodd a ddech real,

Diddiddeg larchwag farchwag ystre.

Thy mound and thy wealth thou wilt wisely distribute, thou distinguished rider of the steeds of the course. D. Dafydd, i Llywelyn 111.

Ystred, s. f.—pl. t. i (tred) A village. Dasthast traw yr ystred, thou hast come through the villages, said to a drunken person. Sil.

Ystref, s. f.—pl. t. i (tref) That forms a dwelling.

Ystrefiad, s. m. (ystref) A forming a dwelling.

Ystrefu, v. a. (ystref) To form a dwelling.

Ystreiglaw, v. a. (ystrai) To turn; to roll.

Ystreigllaw, s. m. (ystrai) A turning.

Ystreillach, s. m. (ystrail) A trundling along. Mi
af diaben ystreillach, I will go topsy-turvy.

Ystreilliad, s. m. (ystrail) A trundling along.

Ystreilliaw, v. a. (ystrail) To trundle along.

Ystrem, s. m. (trem) That forms a scene; that is exhibited or displayed. Geiriau ystrem, magical words.

Ystremiad, s. m. (ystrem) A forming a scene.

Ystremiaw, v. a. (ystrem) To form a scene.

Ystrem, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ystrem) A dash, a stroke; a trick, a charm, witchery.

Ystrempiad, s. m. (ystrem) A dashing; a tricking; a charming, a bewitching.

Ystremplaw, v. a. (ystrem) To dash; to stroke;
 to trick; to charm; to bewitch.

Ystremplawl, v. a. (ystrem) Dashing; charming.

Ystremplwr, s. m.—pl. ystremplwyr (ystrem-gwr) A tricker; a bewitcher.

Ystres, s. f.—pl. t. i (tres) That forms a wreath.

Y Nedd—

Ystres frutha nroth frutha.

The snake, a variegated chain of afflicting bites. Iwan Gethin.

Ystresawl, v. a. (ystres) Forming a wreath.

Ystresiad, s. m. (ystres) A forming a wreath.

Ystresu, v. a. (ystres) To form a wreath or chain.

Ystrew, s. m.—pl. t. au (trew) A sneeze.

Ystrewi, v. a. (ystrew) To sneeze, to sternutate.

Ystrewiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ystrew) A sneezing.

Ystrewluch, s. m. (ystrew—lluch) Snuff.

Ystrewlys, s. m. aggr. (ystrew—llys) Sneez-wort, tansy; water tansy.

Ystrin, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (trin) That causes strife or bustle. v. a. To cause strife.

Gwne elynion, bilion baid,

Ac ystrin gwastroudd.

Woe to him, a vexatious crew, and to cause a strife woe to strangers. T. Pryi, i Gledydd.

Ystroddur, s. f.—pl. t. iau (ystrawd) The framework of a saddle or of a packsaddle; a pack-saddle; the saddle of draught harness.

Ystroddwm, s. m. (ystrawd) A roundabout.

Ystrwy, s. m. (trwy) That passes through.

Ystrwyad, s. m. (ystrwy) A forming a passage.

Ystrwyaw, v. a. (ystrwy) To form a pass through

Ystrwyth, s. m. (trwyth) That is pervasive.

Ystrwythaw, v. a. (ystrwyth) To saturate.

Ystrwythiad, s. m. (ystrwyth) A saturation.

Ystrych, s. m. (trych) That forms an opening.

Ystrychawl, v. a. (ystrych) Having a scope.

Ystrychiad, s. m. (ystrych) A forming a scope.

Ystrychu, v. a. (ystrych) To form a scope.

Ystryd, s. f.—pl. t. oedd (tryd) That is trodden or travelled; a street.

Ystryd anhytryd yr hen,
le dalar sent warden!

An unpleasant way is this, under ground neighbours go!
D. ab Iwan Dda.

Ystrydawl, v. a. (ystryd) Belonging to a street.

Ystrydeb, s. m. (ys—try—deb) Stereotype.

Ystrydebn, v. a. (ystrydeb) To stereotype.

Ystrym, s. m.—pl. t. oedd (trym) A main stream,
 a current, a channel; also called rhin.

Ystrym y r Noder Edmwnd,
A yr y morwyr o'r awnt.

Master Edmwnd is a stream that will drive the sailors from the moor. Gwilym Iwan.

Ystryw, s. f.—pl. t. iau (tryw) Penetration, sub-tility; finesse, craftiness, stratagem, device; a trick. Mac efo yn llawn o ystrywiau drag, he is full of bad tricks.

Y sawl ni redia dodwydd yr
Ys of drag ystryw gyngor.

Happy is such as walks not according to the counsel of bad vice. Edm. Pryi, Psalm 1.

Ystrywgar, v. a. (ystryw) Subtle; full of finesse, device, or tricks; wily.

Nid ystrywgar oed ystyfnawg.

There is nothing so apt to see quick as a hare. Adge.

Ystrywgarwch, s. m. (ystrywgar) Craftiness.

Ystrywiad, s. m. (ystryw) A devising schemes.

Ystrywiaeth, s. m. (ystryw) A using subtlety; a using finesse or stratagem; a plotting; a devising or imagining.

Ystrywiau, v. a. (ystryw) To act with craft or cunning; to devise, to invent.

Yn Aber Ystryw yn ystyfnawg gwyth,
Gwath Faddon ynddellu,
Gwagral bewb rhingdaw.

In Aber Ystryw devising wrath, appearing as in the battle of Bedon, every body would disperse before him.
Cydeleu, i H. ab Owain.

Ystrywiau, v. a. (ystryw) Full of craftiness.

Y ddyddiad—

Ou drag yn ystrywiau well,
Drow o' gynhadu, drag arall.

Both parties, if had the one, of crafty falling, ponder out of his reach, had in the other. H. D. ab Iwan.

Ystrywiawl, v. a. (ystryw) Plotting, devising.

Ystrywus, v. a. (ystryw) Crafty, wily, cunning.

Ystum, s. m.—pl. t. iau (tum) A shape, form, gait, or fashion; turn, bend, or curve. Gario
dy ystumiau di, strange are thy looks; derbyn ystum, to receive a turn, a term in coursing.

Flawn yn gadno,
Cyngal ystumiau;
Flawn yn fectus,
Mai na thychyru.

I fled as a raynard, of even-paced turns; I fled a marten, so that it availed not. Tall. sin.

Ystumgar, v. a. (ystum) Flexible; well-formed.

Ystumgarwch, s. m. (ystumgar) Flexibleness.

Ystumiad, s. m.—pl. t. au (ystum) A giving a shape, form, or fashion; a situation.

Ystumiau, v. a. (ystum) To form, to shape, to mould, to fashion; to bend.

Ystumiau, v. a. (ystum) Having a form, shape or mould; having a bend.

Ystumiau, v. a. (ystum) Tending to form or to fashion; pliable, sinuous.

Ystumiw, s. m.—pl. ystumiwyr (ystum—gwr)
 One who assumes shapes.

Ystun, s. m. (tun) That is irritating.

Ystunad, s. m. (ystun) Instigation, irritation.

Ystunaw, v. a. (ystun) To instigate, to irritate.

Macromedial, cythrethid, yn sefnewt Hydrigedion mawrwl
Ayn a chysyrtu degardant amhwyll, chwastus, a chyffellorai.

The breath of devil is irritating the corruptions of the mind of man with vehement impulses of madness, lust, and crime.
C. Edwards, H. y Fydd.

Ystunawl, a. (ystun) Instigating, irritating.

Ystwc, s. m.—pl. ystycolau (two) A shallow wooden vessel, a pail, a bucket, also a shock of corn.

Ystwyll, s. m.—pl. ystyfyllau (ystwf) That keeps up or suspends; a log, a stock; a holdfast; a staple; the knocker of a door.

Yr ystwyll hwn a'r hwn draw,
Mwy gorddyllogol am daww
Eiwa'n lly, a dwy'r awn.

The stock that is here, and this one there, more congenial round them would have been the triumph of a host, and the path of melody. Llywarch Hen.

Ystwg, s. m. (twng) A putting down; a depression. v. a. To put down; to depress.

Yr ab fab ym rhwyf ry, gwaeth ystwg
Ar ei estronion, yn drud ehwng.

The only son of my lord completely caused a depression on those entrusted to him, an awful event. E. ab Madoc Rhodri.

Ystwr, s. m. (twr) That makes a raling; a stir.

Lleis! 'dwr, fal lleis! 'dwr,
Awr doet, gwa'n slender yr dya.

The least noise, as the note of a bird, on a painful moment, causes trouble to a man. L. Hopkin.

Ystwrriad, s. m. (ystwr) A making a bustle.

Ystwrllaw, v. a. (ystwr) To make a bustle or stir.

Ystwy, s. m. (twy) That causes a stop, a check.

Ystwyad, s. m. (ystwy) A checking, a curbing.

Ystwyal, s. f.—pl. ystwyall (ystwy) A cudgel.

Ystwyaliad, s. m. (ystwyal) A cudgelling.

Ystwyahu, v. a. (ystwyal) To cudgel.

Ystwyaw, v. a. (ystwy) To check, to restrain.

Ystwyawl, u. (ystwy) (checking) restraining.

Ystwyll, s. m.—pl. i. an (ystwyl) That exists in the gloom; an epithet for the star of the Epiphany; the Epiphany. Dydd ystwyll, twelfth day.

Ystwyrr, s. m. (twyr) That is agitated; that is stretched out.

Ystwyrrain, v. a. (ystwyrr) To cause a continual agitation; to be stretching.

Ystwyraw, v. a. (ystwyrr) To agitate; to stretch out as to recover from lassitude.

Ystwyrawl, s. (ystwyrr) Apt to be agitated; stretching as recovering from lassitude.

Ystwyrgam, s. (ystwyrr—cam) Obliquely stretched.

Ystwyriad, s. m. (ystwyrr) A rendering agitated;
a stretching out.

Ystwyth, a. (fwyth) That is springing; flexible, pliant, supple, limber.

Ystwythad, s. m. (ystwyth) A making pliant.

Ystwythaid, s. (ystwyth) Apt to be pliant.

Ystwythaw, v. a. (ystwyth) To render elastic; to render flexible or supple; to become elastic;
to grow flexible or pliant.

Ystwythawl, s. (ystwyth) Of a pliant nature.

Ystwythder, s. m. (ystwyth) Elasticity; flexible-ness, suppleness, pliancy.

Ystwythdra, s. m. (ystwyth) Elasticity, pliancy.

Ystwythedig, a. (ystwythad) Being made pliant.

Ystwythedd, s. m. (ystwyth) Elasticity; pliancy.

Ystwythiad, s. m. (ystwyth) A rendering pliant, flexible or elastic.

Ystwytholdeb, s. m. (ystwythawl) Pliancy.

Ystwythwr, s. m.—pl. ystwythwyr (ystwyth—gwr)
One who makes pliant or elastic.

Ystycald, s. m.—pl. ystycaldian (ystwe) A painful.

Ystycyll, s. m. (ystwe) A signal of safety.

Y collau de—
Ystycyll yn cynnau cad.

The black cock, a signal collecting a host. D. ab Gwilym.

Ystyfarnach, s. pl. agfr. (ystwf—arn) Utensils.

Ystyfyllawg, a. (ystwfllw) Having stocks; stapled.

Cist ystyfyllawg, a stock chest; a great chest with a raised lid, hutch, or bin, that has pedestals.

Ystyfyllgi, s. m. (ystwfllw—ci) A dog with a leg fastened to him.

Ystyfylliad, s. m. (ystwfllw) A stocking or legging;
a suspending by a staple.

Ystyfyllu, v. a. (ystwfllw) To prop with a stock or log; to fasten with a staple.

Ystyl, s. m. (yst—yl) A cause of activity.

Ystyr, s. m.—pl. i. ion (yst—yr) That gives existence, form, or figure; that gives similarity; sense, meaning. ade. As may be deemed.

Tri chyferlynhad doethineb: awen, ystyr, ac ymgh.

The three concomitants of wisdom: genius, study, and reason.
Ceryn ab Gwynedd.

Ystyrbell, a. (ystyr—pell) Of profound import.

Tri pheth blaenwag ar gerdd: ystyrbell ieth, a gwybodaeth wyr, a chyfarfod gelyddyd.

Three things that are forth in work: profoundly critical language; and sweetly lucid ideas, and accurate art. Rhydderch.

Ystyrbyll, a. (ystyr—pwyll) Of important consideration or meaning.

Ystyredig, a. (ystyr) Being considered or studied.

Argwydd, iwrwddau fy newddi yn ddydd,
Biddi glwllau yn ystyredig.

Lord, hearken kindly to my prayer, be thine ears attentive unto Dof. Deu, a Hwdd.

Ystyrgar, a. (ystyr) Apt to reflect, considerate.

Nhi ystyrgar ond awenau.

There is none so apt to consider as the inspiration. Ade.

Ystyriaeth, s. m.—pl. i. an (ystyr) Reflection.

Tri chynfodollon doethineb: deall, ystyriaeth, ac ddydd.

The three origins of wisdom: understanding, reflection, and instruction. Ceryn Hen.

Tad doethineb yr awen, a'r fath yn ystyriaeth.

The father of wisdom is memory, and his mother is reflection.
Ade.

Ystyriaethawl, a. (ystyriaeth) Having consideration or reflection.

Ystyriaethiad, s. m. (ystyriaeth) A using consideration or reflection.

Ystyriaethu, v. a. (ystyriaeth) To use consideration, to use reflection.

Ystyriannawl, a. (ystyriant) Considerate.

Ystyriannu, v. a. (ystyriant) To use consideration.

Ystyriant, s. m. (ystyriant) Consideration.

Ystyriaw, v. a. (ystyr) To consider; to regard, to take notice.

Cyfarfod ym Rhos,
Ystyriaw awen,
Cy'n ddyddig awen,
Cy'n no Chyrdwren.

I will enquire of my Creator, meeting upon Isafon, who derwent the state of necessity, before Cyrdwren. Taliesin.

Ystyriawg, a. (ystyr) Having consideration.

Ystyriawl, a. (ystyr) Considerate; sentimental.

Ystyried, v. a. (ystyr) To consider, to reflect.

Tri pheth a ddyddi dya ar ystyried: o ba le y ddech, ym mla le mae, ac i ba le yr ei.

Three things ought a man to consider: from what place he is come, to what place he is, and to what place he goes. Rhys.

Ystyriedig, a. (ystyr) Considered, studied.

Ystyriedigaeth, s. m. (ystyriedig) Consideration.

Ystyriedeb, s. m. (ystyriawl) Considerateness.

Ystyrioli, v. a. (ystyriawl) To render considerate;
to become considerate.

Ystyriwr, s. m.—pl. ystyriwyr (ystyr—gwr) One who considers or reflects, a studier.

Ystyrmant, s. m.—pl. i. an (ystyr—mant) A jaws-harp.

Y gwynt—
Ystyrmant yr ystyrmant.

The wind, the trumpet of the storm. E. ab Gwilym.

Ystyw, s. m. (tyw) That spreads out or about; a settlement.

Ystywawu, s. f. (ystyw) Stays, a pair of stays.

Dwy ystywau pedair celalawg a dahant.

Two stays fourpence are thy worth.

Welsh Laws.

Ystywan, s. m. (ystyw) A settling, a flattening.

Ystywaniad, s. m. (ystywan) A settling; a flattening.

Ystywanu, v. a. (ystywan) To settle; to belabour.

Ystywell, a. (ystyw) Stedfast; manageable.

*Begha bren, did ystywell,
A'n cyfnewidh a fo gweli.*

Wooden creek, be steady that thou mayest support me the better.

Llywarch Hen.

Ystywelliad, s. m. (ystywell) A making stedfast.

Ystywellu, v. a. (ystywell) To make steady.

Ysu, v. a. (ys) To hanker, to itch; to corrode; to consume, to devour, to eat. Mae fy nyman yn gou em dy deraw, my fists are itching for striking thee.

Ni ddyly drwg fely namyn drwg yu.

A bad stomach ought not to devour badly.

Adage.

Yswad, s. (gwad) A throwing down, a falling flatly

Yswadan, s. m.—pl. t. au (yswad) A stroke, a slap.

Yswaetheroedd, adv. (ys—gwaeth—er—oedd) It is worse for what was, the more the pity.

Yswail, s. m.—pl. yswellion (yswall) That ejects; that is thrown out, ejected, or wasted.

Yswain, s. m.—pl. yswainoedd (gwain) An esquire; an armour-bearer.

Yswain aur-adain ydyw.

A golden-winged page is he.

Byrryn Cyfrillanog.

A'n yswain a'n hys o'n hys.

And thy esquire with thy blade before thee.

Iolo Goch.

Yswatiad, s. m. (yswad) A squatting down.

Yswatiaw, v. a. (yswad) To squat, to lie flat.

Yswatiwr, s. m.—pl. yswatiwyr (yswatiaw—gwr) A squatter.

Yswbwb, s. m. (wbwb) A tossing about; a hubbub. interj. Confusion!

Yswbwb! heb! anybwr ydych!

Hi a adwaen dich arfer.

Confusion! a pack of ignoble people ye are: I know your custom.

D. ab Gwilym.

Yswbwiad, s. m. (yswbwb) A tossing about; a rumpling.

Yswbwiad, v. a. (yswbwb) To toss about, to tumble about; to rumple.

Yswbwbwr, s. m.—pl. yswbwbwyr (yswbwb—gwr) One who tosses about, a rumpler.

Yswelliad, s. m. (yswall) An ejecting, or casting out; a wasting; a brawling.

Yswelliaw, v. a. (yswall) To eject, to cast out; to waste; to bicker.

Yswellydd, s. m.—pl. t. ion (yswall) One who ejects or casts out; a brawler.

Ysweliniad, s. m.—pl. ysweliniad (yswain) An esquire, an armour-bearer; a page.

Myned a oragynat ar eu trued, a gwadw eu mairch gan eu hysweliniad; a gadau Arthur yn eu blaen a oragynat.

Go they did on their feet, and leave their horses with their pages; and letting Arthur to be before them was what they did.

Gr. ab Arthur.

Yswid, s. m. (gwid) That makes a quick turn.

Yswidw, s. f. dim. (yswid) That is made to twirl or hop about; the titmouse.

Yswigw, s. f. dim. (gwig) A titmouse; also called yswidw, and yswidw.

A'r yswigw h'r seiglad.

And the titmouse on a banquet.

Philip Emlyn.

Yswil, a. (gwil) Bashful, abashed; timid.

Yswilder, s. m. (yswil) Bashfulness, timidity.

Yswildra, s. m. (yswil) Bashfulness, timidity.

Yswiliad, s. m. (yswil) An abashing.

Yswiliaw, v. a. (yswil) To induce bashfulness; to be abashed.

Yswitiad, s. m.—pl. t. an (yswid) A chirping.

Yswitian, v. a. (yswid) To chirp, to make a small noise.

Yswitiaw, v. a. (yswid) To chirp, to twitter.

Yswr, s. m.—pl. yswyr (ysw—gwr) A consumer.

Yswyddu, s. f. (gwydden) A privet tree.

Yswymbren, s. m.—pl. t. i (gwyym—pren) A quiver for arrows.

Yswyr, s. m. (gwyrr) That dawns; the east.

Yswyrain, a. (yswyr) Eastern or oriental.

Yswyth, s. m. (gwyth) That pervades; that aches.

Yswythysg, s. pl. aggr. (yswyth—pysg) The cramp-ray, the torpedo.

Ysyn, s. m. dim. (ys) That is all in agitation.

Mae wedi mynad yn ysyn gwyth.

He is become a wild firebrand.

Adage.

Ysywaeth, adv. (y—sy—gwaeth) That is the worse, the more the pity.

Yta, v. a. (yd) To collect corn; to beg for corn.

Ytoedd, v. (m. of ydoedd) That was, was, were; she, it, was or were. Pan ytoeddwn, when I was.

Ytyw, v. (m. of ydyw) That is, is; he is, she is, it is.

YTH, s. m. r. That tends to stretch out or to be continuous.

Yw, v. (yw, s.) Is; be; it is. Pwy yw? Who is it?

Angen rhyw angen yw.

Want of kind is want indeed.

Adage.

YW, s. m. r.—pl. t. ydd. That exists; yew tree.

Bangor Ebor, a Bangor Henllan,

Ydd or clodfa clyd ywydd.

The minister of Ebor, and the minister of Henllan, they be for celebrity for sheltering yews.

Gr. Brycheiniog.

Ywen, s. f. dim. (yw) A single yew tree.

AN OUTLINE
OF
THE CHARACTERISTICS
OF THE WELSH, AND
ITS UTILITY IN CONNECTION WITH OTHER Ancient Languages,
FOR DEVELOPING THE PRIMITIVE SPEECH OF MANKIND.

BY
W. OWEN PUGHE, D.C.L. F.A.S.

DENBIGH:
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY THOMAS GEE.

1832.

AN OUTLINE

OF

THE CHARACTERISTICS

OF THE

Welsh, &c.

THE language of the Cymry, or Welsh, is limited, at the present time, to express the wants of a population, amounting in number to about six hundred thousand, which inhabits the mountains of Wales.* This language, in the course of the long period of its existence, extended over the most considerable part of Europe; and it still remains spoken, with more or less variety of dialect, by about four millions of the inhabitants of the western parts of France, under the name of the Breton; and also in Lusatia, and other districts of the north of Germany, under the name of Wendish,† being the connecting link between the Welsh and the various Slavonic dialects. It has largely contributed to the formation of other tongues, which have supplanted it, through several subsequent periods, in different countries.

There are many peculiar characteristics in the Welsh language which are well deserving the attention of the learned; and from this consideration, some account of them becomes a pertinent appendage to my Dictionary: I shall therefore endeavour to convey to the reader a general idea of the subject, with as much precision as I am able, and as far as the brevity of this sketch will admit.

The investigation may be conveniently included under the five following heads:

1. The structure and character of the Welsh language, with its dialects.
2. Its alphabet, with an analysis of its literal mutations.
3. Its stability shown, by comparing its present state, with what, from proofs, it was in other periods, with examples of different evidences of the high antiquity of its formation.
4. Its three primary branches, with the extent of their difference.
5. Its affinity with other languages, as a corroborative evidence of its being spoken by the first inhabitants of Europe, and who migrated out of Asia, as is evident, from a comparison with the oriental languages.

* The population of Wales, according to the official returns, in 1831, amounted to upwards of 600,000.

† Some interesting particulars respecting the Wendi may be seen in the CAMBRO-BRITON, vol. iii. pp. 433, 477.

I. THE STRUCTURE OF THE WELSH, OR LANGUAGE OF THE CYMMRY.

This is a subject that is highly deserving the attention of the philosopher; as it abounds with some remarkable phenomena, and, perhaps, peculiar to itself, which may greatly contribute to illustrate the original formation of speech.

I consider the most prominent peculiarity of the Welsh tongue to be, that it has for its basis, nearly two-thirds of all the possible variety of simple or elementary sounds, each of them being the appropriate or fixed symbol of one simple idea. Upon these radical and indigenous principles depends the whole of its structure, regularly combined, so that, by having an accurate knowledge of the import of the ideas symbolized by those elements, we become considerably advanced towards learning the signification generally of all the compounded words in the language.

What I have here pointed out is an excellence, which can be but imperfectly appreciated by those who are acquainted only with languages that are not formed upon their own intrinsic materials: therefore, it may be necessary to enter into a particular illustration of the subject. And, in the first place, the following table of the elementary words will be useful for accomplishing the design in view.

Class 1, of elementary words.

a e i o w y

ae ai au aw—ei en ew—ia ie io iw—oe oi ow—wi wy—yw=23.

Class 2, of elementary words.

ab ac ach ad add af aff ag ang al all am an ar as at ath—ob ec ed edd ef eff eg eng el ell em en er es eth—ib ic ich id idd if iff ig iag il ill im in ir is it ith—ob oe oeh od odd of og ong ol oll om on or os ot oth—ub uoh ud udd uf uff ul ull um un ur us ut uth—wb wch wd wdd wf wff wg wng wl will wm wn wr wa wt wth—yb ych yd ydd yf yff yg yl yll ym yn yr ys yth=109.

Class 3, of elementary words.

ba be bi bo bu bw by—ca ce ci co cu cw cy—da de di do du dw dy—fa fe fi fo fu fw fy—ga ge gi go gu gw gy—ha he hi ho hu hw hy—lla lle li lo lu llw lly—ma me mi mo mu mw my—na ne ni no nu nw ny—pa pe pi po pu pw py—rha rhe rhi rho rhu rhw rhy—sa se si so su sw sy—ta te ti to tu tw ty=91.

Total 23 + 109 + 91 = 223.

The number of elements in the foregoing table amounts to two hundred and twenty-three. Out of these, seventy-eight are words of defined and common acceptation; that is to say, they are used as names for some actions, qualities, or things.

Of the remaining one hundred and forty-five elements, I do not know that any are used simply and unconnectedly as absolute names ; but in their combined forms we may discover them to be signs of abstract ideas ; and by which it may be inferred, in what manner they originally stood absolutely for the names of things, like the others.

Out of the last mentioned number of one hundred and forty-five, there are fifty-one which may be classed under the denomination, given them by Horne Tooke, of "little winged words ;"* and which perform the various functions of pronouns, articles, conjunctions, and prepositions.

Deducting those fifty-one symbols, we have ninety-four still left to be designated ; and these are not discoverable in their individual capacities, but enter into combinations, and serve as prefixes and affixes.

In the first compartment of the table are seen the vowels, standing singly, and also connected together in couples. These vowel sounds are symbols in themselves, or words having significations, of which it is important to obtain an accurate knowledge. Notwithstanding this, some philological theorists have asserted, that these vowel sounds are in themselves symbols of no ideas ; and that, being of no consequence as to meaning, they may be used one for the other, promiscuously, in the analysing and comparing of languages.†

The vowels, in a general sense, are words significant of action, or of motion, either past, present, or future : and this faculty they even preserve, in various degrees, when they are combined with other powers.

Illustrations.

The word a implies action or motion ; also what is present, or objective ; and continuity, or accompaniment. Whatever functions it has to perform in speech, they originate from the attributes here detailed as belonging to it. In the structure of the Welsh tongue it performs the functions of the words and, that, with, do, did, does, in English.

By the word e is expressed that which is past, gone, or distant ; and therefore it is used as the pronoun for the third person masculine.

The vocable i is a word that has respect to the future, and it implies to, towards, into, unto ; and, as a pronoun, it represents the first person.

By the vocable o is indicated the past ; and thus it implies of, from, out of. As a pronoun it stands for the third person neuter.

The remaining three vowels, u, w, y, are derivatives, as being inflections of the primary vowels. It is only the last, or the y, that stands as a word unconnected with other powers ; and it serves to point out an object ; and therefore it is a definitive article, answering to the in English.

The important functions performed by these primary elements of speech, in the vocable class, demand some additional illustration ; and this may be obtained by attending to the following examples.

* From the Homeric expression, εκα προεστα.—

† Theorists thus forget the difficulty they would have to encounter in finding what affinity there could subsist, for instance, between the words bed, bad, bid, bud ; bit, bet, bat, but, and others, of similar consonants.

Examples of vowel-words in construction.A e i o—

Going is he into out of.

A e o dy i dy—

He goes from house to house.

I ba le yr ei di?—

To what place art thou going?

Af i do y ty—

I will go to the roof of the house.

A ei di o dy le?—

Going wilt thou go out of thy place?

or

Wilt thou go from thy place?

Ai da i ti a yw da i mi?—

Is it good for thee that is good for me?

Ti a ei er dy lw.

Thou--going--wilt go for the sake of thy oath

Cu yw hi i ti, a da i mi.

Dear is she to thee, and good to me.

Ni bu da i ni a fu da i ti.

It has not been good for us that has been good for thee.

A ei di yno?

Going, wilt thou go there?

A a hi i ei thy?—

Going, will she go into her house?

Pwy a a yno?

Going, who will go there?*

The vowel w, which is a mutation of o, discovers a very peculiar faculty, or power, in the termination of words, for it describes a state beyond what is expressed by the past participle.

Thus gwedd, connection, order or trim, when formed into gweddw, is a state beyond connection, or a widow.†—Again, wl is moisture; and uwl what has been divested of moisture; that is, embers, or cinders; and further, a, motion, by having w joined to it, becomes aw, a fluid, or water; and that is, instead of moving or flowing, it is become the element that is flowing. The same may be said of the following words:

Ban—banw	Ca—caw	Gwas—gwaew	Llan—llanw
Ble—blew	Del—delw	Gwel—gwelw	Lli—lliw
Cad—cadw	Du—duw	Her—herw	Llad—lladw
Car—carw	Da—daw	Hel—helw	Rhe—rhow

also of several other words.

* Yno, there, means a place out of view, or distant; as ywa, there, implies a place in view, pointed at, or present.

† The English words, a wedded state and a widow, are derived from one common original—the Welsh gwedd: for the initial of gwedd in many forms of construction becomes quiescent.

The remarkable discrimination of time, action, and position, in the vowel words, is retained even when they are combined with other powers, producing articulate sounds; yet this principle may be often so subtle as to elude common observation, in words composed of several elements; but in simple words it is plainly discernible.

EXAMPLES.

Ta, that spreads, or is in continuity.
Te, that is spread or extended.
Ti, that is in, that is in prospect; thou, thee
To, that is outer or over; a covering, a roof
Tu, that is lateral; a side; a region.
Tw, that rises out or up; drive: sway.
Ty, that is about or including; a house.

A clear knowledge of these elements, or seeds of language, and of their significations, opens to the mind a prospect for speculation, wherein many very curious phenomena may be discovered; and respecting which the following general hints may satisfy or amuse the cursory observer of the mechanism of language.

A radical word denoting some abstract idea becomes the name of a thing, which has its predominant characteristic described thereby: thus to, that is over, or as an exterior, becomes the appellation for a roof;* and ty, which is an inflection of to, signifies a house.

This principle extends also to words of the first order of compounds: thus, for instance, the word tan, a compound of the two elements, ta and an, abstractedly implies an expanding principle; and as the name of the greatest agent of expansion, it signifies fire. The word dal, compounded of the elements da and al, means abstractedly what is held out, or borne, and a bearing; it also denotes a leaf.† But, in these two, and in similar instances, in order to preserve the characteristic difference between the abstract and the appropriated significations, each class has its peculiar inflections and terminations: thus tanu and taenu are to expand, and taniaw is to fire; again, dala is to hold or bear, and deiliaw is to foliate, and deila is to accumulate leaves.

All the elementary words of the Welsh tongue are to be explained in the same manner as the foregoing examples; and, according to a few simple rules, their powers and meanings, when they enter into various combinations to form longer words, may be discovered; the component parts of which longer words must therefore be pregnant with their several primary ideas. And, as before observed, they extend to the compass of about two-thirds of all the possible simple articulations; for that reason, no sound, or articulation can be uttered, but what is significant of some meaning in the language now under consideration, unless it may happen to be one of the number pointed out as not retained therein. This is a circumstance, which to persons who may only be acquainted with such languages as, by intermixture or other causes, have been deprived of their original simplicity of character, can scarcely be represented with due effect; such languages, for instance as the Greek, the Latin, and all the modern ones; but, on the contrary, a speaker of these mixed tongues utters many of the longest words, the component parts whereof separately convey to his mind no meaning whatever.

* The form of the letter τ, in some ancient inscriptions, represents the gable end of a house; there being a line crossing the perpendicular from the two points of the sloping top; and indeed its general form sufficiently preserves the resemblance.

† The Hebrew letter ד is called daleth, which also means a leaf; and so the Welsh daleth and deiliaeth mean foliation: and the same letter in the Arabic alphabet was called dal. The form of the letter д in most alphabets represents a leaf; and in some ancient inscriptions the fibres of the leaf are delineated.

By having a correct knowledge of the elementary keys, briefly noticed here, many of the intricate arcana even of modern languages may be opened; not excepting those that have undergone every kind of commixion, like the French and the English, the intricacies of which are impenetrable by all other means.* The power, that has been explained as belonging to the vowel words of the Welsh language, for instance, is seen to govern in the formation of the past, the present, and the future, of the English verbs.

With the exception of the Welsh and its sister dialects of the Celtic, there is not one of the European languages that has preserved the benefits resulting from being constructed upon the significant elements which are here under consideration; and yet these elements, in a greater or lesser number, can easily be proved to pervade all languages, but destitute of any abstract import annexed to them in those languages that have suffered intermixon; and the number of elements, any way preserved in such mixed languages, is very small, as may be seen in the following table.

A table of elementary words in mixed languages.

	Nouns.	Pronouns, Prepositions, &c.	Total.
Greek.....	4	40	44
Latin.....	5	40	45
German.....	4	27	31
French.....	6	33	39
English.....	7	31	38

Should the same criterion be applied to the Oriental languages, which all allow to be more ancient than those that are analysed above, a very different result will appear, and that result stands in them as follows.

	Nouns.	Pronouns, Prepositions, &c.	Total.
Hebrew.....	35	30	65
Arabic.....	100	48	148
Persian.....	81	41	122

* The English word love is preserved in the Welsh, with its primary meaning, which is a lick with the tongue, being the way in which animals shew their fondness; and the verb, to love, is in the Welsh to lick with the tongue. The primary import of heaven, hymen, and cream, is the same; and this may be thought rather strange. But let it be recollected, that heaven, or himmel, is the expanse over-head; and hymen, (though, in aftertimes, a little deity,) meant originally a veil; and cream is the top of milk: and the verb to heave is from the same root.

Two thousand years and upwards have passed away since the Hebrew was a living language, as spoken in its purity*: much of it is, therefore, undoubtedly lost; and of the portion of it preserved, with respect to a great many words, the exact and primitive significations are not known. Had it been otherwise, a critic, well versed in that tongue, would be able probably to show a greater number of simple sounds, as signs of ideas, to be preserved therein, than I have produced, as still existing in the Welsh. But, even as we have the Hebrew in ruins, it exhibits the very remarkable fact, that 88 of its elements, out of the whole number of 65, which we now discover in it, have an identity of signification and functions with those in the Welsh.

In the next place, by examining the other more ancient languages of the East, and still spoken, there are of elementary words, agreeing in like manner with the Welsh, in the Arabic 63, and in the Persian 61.

Though the several European tongues, exhibited in a foregoing table, have not preserved the elementary words, as signs of abstract ideas, or as names of things; nevertheless, such elements are distinctly discoverable as contributing largely to the structure of them all; and on that account they are deserving of very particular attention from those who investigate the principles of language. And the result, which is above brought to the view of the reader, is of itself very conclusive evidence of the descent of the several nations of the world from one common origin. It may serve, also, as an unerring index, by which may be pointed out the nature and form of the primitive language of mankind, which has ceased to exist, as entire, prior to every record of history, though we discern more or less remains of its ruin in all subsequent combinations of speech. And, aided by this index, we obtain a glance at that original language, leading to a conviction of its being in its construction far more perfect than has been hypothetically conceived, as the perfection of speech, by the profoundest philosopher of ancient or modern times.

The structure of the Welsh language more particularly analysed.

The first form which the elementary words takes is, when any two of such words are combined together, the first with a consonant initial, and the other with a vowel; the first element is then a qualifying prefix to the other, which is the object.

Words of this first combination are either short or long monosyllables, as the vowel of the first element happens to be short or long. Thus, the y, being a short vowel, and dropped in the combination, forms tda, which

* The Hebrew ceased to be a living language about four hundred and fifty years before our era, when the Chaldee, closely resembling it in idiom and genius, but differing in some characteristics, was substituted in its stead. Hence from that period, the Old Testament is found to be written only in the Chaldee.—H. P.

† Many learned writers, and, among the number, Grotius, are of opinion, that the primitive language was entirely lost in the confusion at Babel. It is, however, far more probable, as above intimated, that it was partially retained in all the new dialects, and most perfectly in the Hebrew. Yet it should be noticed, that this distinction has been claimed for the Syriac, the Arabic, the Coptic, the Ethiopic, the Armenian, and others, by their respective champions.—H. P.

word is from ty and an, the first vowel disappearing by such a formation; and a, being a long vowel, forms tan, a word compounded of the elements ta and an. All similar words, or those of the first combination, claim our particular attention, as being to be depended upon in etymological researches and comparisons, like bâr, bar, càr, car, càn, can, and others; and, being a class of the first formed words, they are therefore most likely to be found diffused through the various languages of the earth*. Words under the primary combinations are generally signs of ideas more precise and unequivocal than the elements themselves, when they are separately made use of; for the latter being of general import, a nice discrimination is requisite to fix upon a word in a different tongue, which shall preserve their subtle meanings.

Another class of monosyllabic words of the first combination is, that where the short vowel y disappears, so that two consonants come together either in the beginning or in the ending of such words. They are like the following;—

Brad, bran, bardd, barn, cras, carn,—braint, brunt, plant, trawst,—cain, main, cwyn, mwyn, swyn, trwyn, plaid, plwyf, ffrawd, ffroyl.

Words of the second form of combination are dissyllables, and consist of two elements, each preserving its original form entire; and such are the following:

Adar, anaw, arad, awel, awyr—bala, bara, delo, derw, ewin, elo, isel, iwin, ogof, ofer, ufel, uho, sylw.

The elementary words, with the above three classes of their combination, comprehend the substance of the language; as all other kinds of words are farther combinations, by prefixes of various functions, or by postfixes, for the formation of verbs, adjectives, and the several distinctions of nouns. And these are so numerous, and in so many ways connected, as to give the language a copiousness of expression beyond all others, and almost unlimited.

A primary source of the copiousness above mentioned, is the great number of qualifying prefixes in the language, and which are, unlike what we find in other languages, capable of being universally applied to qualify all nouns, adnouns, and verbs.

There are fifty-two simple prefixes; and these may be compounded, so as to make altogether about three hundred: thus any radical word, whether in the form of a noun, adnoun, or verb, should such a thing be required, may be modified in form and sense three hundred ways.

A few examples may suffice for the illustration of these prefixes: Lled, is breadth or expanse; lledawl, expanding; lledu, to expand.

Amledu, to expand about.

Ymledu, to expand one's self.

Goledu, partly to expand.

Gorledu, to over expand.

Dyledu, to be expanding.

Tryledu, to expand through.

* Thus the word hen, old, is common to the Welsh, the Armenian, and the Burman languages.

Traledu, to expand extremely.

Arledu, to expand on the surface.

Diledu, to unexpand.

Afledu, to cease expanding.

Adledu, to re-expand.

Cyaledu, to expand equally.

Amymledu, and ymamledu, to expand one's self about.

Goamledu, partially to expand about.

Goymledu, partly to expand one's self.

Gorymamledu, to expand one's self about extremely.

Diymledu, to cease expanding one's self.

It is in consequence of the copiousness of the language, that some peculiarities of dialect are to be found in different parts of Wales; for that variety is principally produced by the use of many synonymous modes of expression. Hence also has arisen the poetic dialect, which generally is very unlike the speech of common life; and especially, as it appears in the poetry of some of the early periods, and in none more so, than in the remains of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Indeed in the poetry of these eras so freely are the transcendental prefixes made use of in addition to singular modes of construction, that a person, acquainted only with the speech of common life, would almost conclude the other to be altogether a distinct language. There can scarcely be a greater dissimilarity, and at the same time in one language, than between the mode by which the moderns would express the ideas in the following expressions:—

Dychymmriw tôn amlw am lân ;

The billow of many hues will be spraying itself together about the shore.

Dychymer ufeliar bar ;

The sulphur fire will be taking to itself rage.

Dymgwaddoles Duw dofn awen ;

I have been endowed of God with a profound genius.

Caraf drachas Lloegr ;

I love the extreme enmity of England.

Rhymdoddy ddawn ;

There was given of talent to me superabundantly.

Dadlidia ;

Divest thyself of wrath.

2. ON THE ALPHABET, AND THE ORIGIN OF WRITING AMONG THE CYMMRY.

The articulations of the Welsh language are represented by sixteen radical letters, four vowels and twelve consonants, to denote so many primary sounds; and from these are derived twenty-seven secondary letters, eight vowels, and nineteen consonants, which are mutations or modified powers of the radicals, under certain circumstances of combination, as signs of the same number of secondary sounds.

From the two classes of radical and secondary letters is derived the system of literal mutation, which is more peculiarly Welsh, and forms a prominent portion of its grammatical principles; a system that displays the aptitude which the radical letters possess of changing their sounds, as before observed, thus requiring, by a modification of their forms, as many secondary characters as equal the number of their mutations. But, since an original alphabet, of which a description will be given in the sequel, has fallen into disuse, the mutable characteristic of the letters is become more difficult of explanation than otherwise it would have been to those who are unacquainted with our language. And, though this principle of literal mutation, according to fixed rules, is now peculiar to the Welsh, yet the effects of such an aptitude in some of the letters, both consonants and vowels, to change their sounds, is observed to pervade all languages, more or less; but, in the Welsh, it regulates many of its fundamental forms of construction, as well with respect to syntax, as to the composition of words.

There are nine out of the twelve radical consonants which are susceptible of being affected by the principle of mutation, or which have their sounds changed under certain forms of construction; and, for representing such sounds, so many modifications of the primary letters are used in forming the secondary ones.

The mutable consonants are c, p, t, —b, d, g, —ll, m, rh: and these are reducible to three classes, each class consisting of three letters. Those of the first class are c, p, t; which undergo three modifications each; that is, they take a soft, an aspirate, and a light sound. The letters of the second class are b, d, g; and these assume a soft and an aspirate sound. The third class consists of ll, m, rh; and they have each one mutation, from being aspirates, by becoming soft.

Thus the letters c, p, t, by being softened, sound respectively like g, b, d; by being aspirated, they sound as ng, mh, nh; and their light sounds are like ch, ph, and th.

The letters b, d, g, by being softened, assume sounds like f, dh, and i, (or quiescent); and, by being aspirated, they sound as m, n, and ng.

The remaining three letters, ll, m, rh, by losing their inherent aspirate character, sound as l, f, and r.*

* The system of literal mutation, it is certain, formerly prevailed in most tongues, and its remains are still to be traced in several. In the Welsh alone, however, is it preserved as intimately connected with the grammatical construction of the language. The following table of the mutation of initial letters, in Welsh, will perhaps be acceptable here, as reducing to a compressed form the observations above made.

Mutable Letters,	c	p	t	b	d	g	ll	m	rh
Soft Mutations,.	g	b	d	f	dd	—	l	f	r
Aspirate,.....	ng	mh	nh	m	n	ng
Light,	ch	ph	th

It would be curious to trace the rhins of this system as they are to be found in other languages; but space does not suffice in the compass of a note. A short collation of words

Some tribes of the Britons, the Cymry more particularly, from very remote antiquity, were possessed of a characteristic alphabet, containing all the appropriate and necessary signs for representing every modification of sound in their language; and which alphabet, as implied by the method of writing it, was denominated COELBREN Y BEIRDD, or Stave of the Bardic Symbols. The forms of the letters consisted of straight perpendicular strokes and angles, as all curves were necessarily excluded, in consequence of their being written, or cut across the sides of squared pieces of sticks; and these sticks, or staves, after having been so written upon, were put into a frame-like form, and so inserted, as to admit of being turned round, to facilitate the reading of the inscription on all the sides; and this aggregate of staves was called a Peithlynen.

Allusions to such a method of writing on sticks very frequently occur in the voluminous remains of the poetry of the bards of Wales of all periods; and this is an important evidence of its existence from the most early times.* To such evidence may be added another of at least an equally decided character; and which is, that the Coelbren y Beirdd is preserved among many other curious remains, collected under the sanction of several congresses of the bards, convened in the course of the fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth centuries, by the Nevilles, the Herberts, and other noblemen and gentlemen of South Wales; and the last of these congresses was held in the year 1681, at Bewpyr Castle, in the county of Glamorgan, wherein all the prior collections were blended into one, examined, and sanctioned by the procurator of Sir Richard Bassett.† For the more complete verification of the genuineness of the bardic alphabet, a third important proof to be referred to is, the inscriptions on ancient stone monuments. Amongst those preserved in Camden's Britannia, several may be seen, having the Bardic characters occasionally intermixed with those that are generally Roman: such are the l in legion, the s in filius and ejus; also the ff, p, f, and the t.‡

The invention of the Bardic Alphabet was particularly convenient and useful in a pastoral state of society, such as the Historical Triads describe to have been that of the Cymry;§ and, as the only necessary tool was a knife for preparing the sticks, and for cutting letters thereon, such an invention might have been, and probably was, of universal usage wherever the in various languages, ancient and modern, that appear to have undergone this process, may be seen in the Cambro-Briton, vol. i. p. 407. H. P.

* Writing on sticks is alluded to in Ezekiel xxxvii. 16—20. "Son of man, take thee one stick and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, &c." Also, Numbers xvii. 2—"Take of every one of them a rod—write thou every man's name upon his rod."

† A more particular account of those bardic meetings is prefixed to Owen's translation of the Heroic Elegies of Llywarch Hen, prince of the Cambrian Britons, printed in 1793.

‡ See Gibson's edition of Camden, vol. ii. pages 1007, 1030, 1031, 1038, and 1458. Ancient graves were also discovered, in 1821, at Pentrev Voelas, in Denbighshire, whereon, among others, the peculiar character for the s (r) is to be seen, in the word ejus.

§ It may be doubted whether a state of society, strictly pastoral, according to the popular acceptance of the term, was ever known to the Cymry. The Coelbren y Beirdd, or Bardic Alphabet, above alluded to, will be seen in the subjoined comparative table. It has also appeared in other publications. In the CAMBRO-BRITON, vol. i. p. 241, may be seen the derivative as well as the radical letters, amounting altogether to forty-four. H. P.

by the Cymmry in the sixth century, it will be sufficient to lay the few following extracts from the works of the bards of that period before the reader, as being the familiar speech of the present day, to obtain his assent to the first fact; and then some of the names of places in Britain, as given by the Romans, and still preserved, may, without going farther, suffice as to the other point, as corroborated by some collateral evidences in the sequel of this sketch.

Familiar Welsh Phrases from the Bards of the Sixth Century.

TALIESIN.

Gwelais wyr gorfawr,
A ddygyrchynt awr,
Gwelais waed ar lawr :
Rhag rhuthr cloddyfawr
Glesynt esgyll gwawr.

I have seen men pre-eminent,
who were assembling to the shout,
I have seen blood on the ground :
from the rush of swords
they tinged with blue the wings of the dawn.

Addwyn aeron yn amser cynhauf;

Pleasant the fruits in the time of harvest;

Arall addwyn gwenith ar galaf.

another pleasure—wheat on stalk.

Màn y mae meillion,
A gwlith ar dirion;
Màn y mae cerddorion.
Yn gywair gyson—
Cain bid eu gofalon
Gan Wledig gorchorddion.

Where there are trefoils,
and dew on lands;
where there are minstrels in accordant harmony—precious be their anxieties with the Sovereign of supreme circles.

Enaid Owain ab Urien
Gobwyllid ei Ren ei raid :

The soul of Owain the son of Urien may his Lord compassionate his necessity;

Rheged udd ei cudd tom las,

the chief of Rheged that is hidden by the green mound,

Nid oedd fas ei gywyddaid.

not low was his panegyric.

ANEURIN.

Mal pan ddel medel ar freith-hin

As when there comes a reaping in fair weather

Y gwnai Marchleu waedlin.

would Marchleu cause a stream of blood.

Pan grysiat Caradawg i gad,
Mal baedd coed trychwn trychiad.

When Caradawg arrayed for conflict like a boar of the woods an upturning tearer,

Tarw byddin yn nhrin gymyniad,
Ef lithiai wyddgwn o'i angad :

a bull of the host in the felling toil, he would allure wild dogs from his hand :

Ys wy fy nhyst, Owain fab Eulad, there be my evidence, Owain the son of Eulad,

A Gwrien, a Gwyn, a Gwriad,
O Gattræth gymyniad.

and Gwrien, and Gwyn, and Gwriad.
from the felling of Cattræth.

Gwyr a grysiast, buant gydnaid,	Men have arrayed themselves, they have together leaped,
Hoedlfyrion, maddwon uch medd hidlaid;	short-lived ones, drunken ones over purified mead;
Gosgordd Mynyddawg, canawg yn rhaid,	the retinue of Mynyddawg, adorned with gold in a strait,
Gwerth eu gwledd o fedd fu eu henaid.	the price of their feast of mead has been their soul.
Yn nydd gwyth adwyth oedd ei lafnawr,	In the day of wrath his blades were devastation,
Pan grysiat Cynon gan wyrdd wawr.	when Cynon had arrayed with the green dawn.
O gywrysodd gwragedd gwych y gwnaethant	From the contention of women gallantly they have caused
Llawer mam a deigr ar ei hamrant.	many a mother with a tear on her eyelid.

LLYWARCH HEN.

Yr aelwyd hon, neus cudd glesin?	This hearth, is it not hidden by green sward?
Yn myw Owain ao Elfin	in the life of Owain and Elfin
Berwasai ei phair breiddin.	its cauldron had boiled venom.
Tawel awel ti hirglyw:	Gentle gale, far art thou heard:
Odid a fo moledyw,	scarcely shall there be that is praise-worthy,
Nam Urien, can nad yw!	after Urien, since he is not!
Y ddeifen hon neus cynnired gwynt,	This leaf so buffeted by wind,
Gwae hi ei thynged:	woe to her her fate:
Hi hen, eleni gawed!	she is old, this year was she born.

Examples of British Names of Places in Roman Authors, and still in use.

Mona, Anglesey, in Welsh Mon. It is pronounced long, as if written Mene, Aberconovium, Aberconwy, or the Efflux of the Conwy, in Carnarvonshire.

Aberavonium, Aberavan, or the Efflux of the Avan, in Glamorganshire.

Abergavennium, Abergavenni, the Efflux of the Gavepi, in Monmouthshire

Avona, or Auvona, the Avon river; one in Somersetshire, one in Wiltshire, and another in Worcestershire. Avon is the common term for a river in Welsh; therefore I conceive that those rivers in England, if correctly written, should be Avon, like the river in Glamorganshire.

Avalonia, or Glastonbury, which the Welsh call Ynys Avallen, or the Island of the Apple-tree, Caledonia, the woody parts of Scotland, or the Forest of Caledonia, which the Welsh call Coad Celyddon, or the Wood of the Coverts. And this name is synonymous with Celtica, Scotia, and Goidheli, or Gwyddeli.

Ceretia, Cardiganshire, called by the Welsh Ceredigion.

Corinium; Cirencester, called by the Welsh Caer Corun.

Conovium, the river Conway, called by the Welsh Conwy, or the Dart Stream.

Deva, the river Dee, passing by Chester, and the Dee at Dundee, in Scotland. The Welsh name is Dwyv. Hence the inhabitants near the Deva or Dwyv were called Ordovices, or the dwellers on the Dwyv; or, as the Welsh would stile them, Arddwygywys.

Demetia, Pembrokeshire, called in Welsh Dyfed.

Damnonia, Devonshire, which the Welsh call Dynafat.*

Esa, or Osea; the Esk, in Devonshire and in Scotland, and the Usk in Monmouthshire, the Welsh name for which is Wysg.

Menovia, the district where St. David's is situated, called Mynydd in Welsh.

Nidum, the Neath river in Glamorganshire, which is called Ned in Welsh.

Tava; the name of several rivers, synonymous with Tain; therefore the Welsh call the Thames, Tain and Tav; and the Tyne in Devon and Northumberland is called Tau; as well as the Fay and the Esk, in Scotland. Tav and Tain mean the spreading stream.

In addition to what has been here brought forward to prove the antiquity of the Welsh language in its present state; there is another most remarkable evidence: and it is, that the people of Wales and of Britany are able at this day to converse together;† yet they must have been separated from each other for upwards of two thousand years.‡ We learn from the Triads that the Cymmry migrated to Britain over the Hazy Sea from about the Elbe, where they left a memorial of their name in the Chersonesus Cimbrica; and in that neighbourhood we find the Wendi still preserving the language of the Cymmry, though not so purely as in Wales and Britany, owing to their being in a situation more liable to produce an intermixture with strangers.

From the period, when the Romans abandoned Britain, down to the present time, the Welsh language had to withstand the effects of the intimacy and encroachments of the English, which must have been more intrusive upon its stability than any thing it had to oppose during any former period of equal duration, even including the time of its being under the influence of the Latin language. If therefore the English connection has produced no change in our language during a thousand years, the inference is, that it must have undergone less alteration in any other equal period.

* This word implies, literally, deeps and hollows, which, it will be allowed, is descriptive enough of the country to which it is appropriated.—H. P.

† A vessel from Moulais, in Britany, being in the Thames, in 1820, the captain was invited to come to hear the harp, by the Cymreigyddion: One of the members, after an air had been played, said to the Breton, in Welsh,—“Dyna gannu da.” To this the Breton replied,—“Na: dyna chwara da: cawn â gennau; a chwara â thelyn.” So that the Welshman was corrected in his own speech by the stranger, thus—“No: that is good playing: it is singing with the voice; and playing with the harp.”

‡ The Historical Triads record, that the Cymmry came to Britain, and another colony of them to Llydaw, Armorica, or Britanny, from the Chersonesus Cimbrica, or Jutland. The Welsh cannot discourse with the Irish of Ireland and Scotland; therefore the latter must have separated at an earlier period from the original stock. The old name of Hamburg is Treva, and of which, as a Welsh name, the former is a literal translation.

As a collateral evidence in support of the subject before examined, the Laws of Hywel may particularly be referred to. The body of this code of ancient institutes, divested of some technical phrases and of several allusions to obsolete customs, is expressed in the familiar speech of the present time.* Names of places still left existing in England and Scotland, which are Welsh words of common use, are also good proofs, so far as they extend; for they show that portion of the language once spoken, where the names are found, was exactly the same as is now used in Wales; and by plain inference in proving a part, they prove the identity altogether. Such, for instances, are the names of Avon and Aber, which are preserved, even without a literal difference, in various parts of the island.

Again, we have manuscripts as old as the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, which prove the remarkable fact, that even the peculiarity of the dialects of the different parts of Wales then existed as we find at this day.

And lastly, next to the internal structure of the Welsh language, the primary cause of the preservation of it without a change has been probably the singular institution of bardism; and the system of poetical prosody under that institution became gradually, from the thirteenth century downwards, so very strict and mechanical as to euphony, that even the sounds and syllables intended to be expressed could not possibly be mistaken. Consequently, we know to a certainty what the ancient pronunciation of the language must have been. Besides which, its preservation unadulterated was a fundamental maxim of the Bardic system, as appears by the following triad:—

“Tri pheth a ddylai Bardd eu cynnal: yr iaith Gymmraeg, y brif farddoniaeth, a chof am bob dalonus a rhagor”

Three things which a bard ought to maintain: the Welsh language, the primitive bardism, and the memorial of every thing good and excellent.

3. ON THE THREE PRIMARY DIVISIONS OF THE LANGUAGE OF THE CYMMRY.

The three dialects of the primitive language of a great part of Europe are—the Slavonic; the Cymmyric, of which there are remains in Wales, and in Britany; and the Gwyddelig, originally spoken in Gaul and the south-east of Britain, and still spoken in Ireland and the Highlands of Scotland.†

The first people that penetrated Europe westward from the shores of

* The Laws of Hywel were compiled in the tenth century.—H. P.

† Perhaps the popular distinctions of Gothic and Celtic would embrace the three dialects here noticed, though the subdivisions, above adopted, must be allowed to be more accurate. Some excellent observations on this point, by the same writer, may be seen in the Cambrian Register, vol. i. p. 13—20.—H. P.

the Euxine, went under the general appellation of Celts, among the Greek historians; and the Romans recognised, in after ages, the wooded parts of Gaul under the same name, in contradistinction to the Gal, or open country. The generic name of Cymmry,—the Cimmerioi of the Greeks—by which the original stock was known while it remained on the sides of the Caucasus and on the Cimmerian Bosphorus, became lost among all the colonies from thence; by their assuming appellations descriptive of peculiar situations, excepting the faint traces of the Cimmerii in Italy, the Cimbri in Denmark, and the Cymmry in Britain.

Now, as the Wendi, on the Elbe, the Bretons, in France, and the Cymmry, in Wales, have so far preserved an identity of speech, as to be able to hold an intercourse one with another, whilst at the same time neither of these three nations can converse with those who speak the Irish in Ireland and Scotland, the necessary conclusion must be, that an earlier separation must have taken place between the progenitors of the Irish people of Ireland and Scotland, and the progenitors of the Wendi, the Bretons, and the Cymmry of Wales, than the separation between the three last mentioned people respectively. The inference to be drawn therefore is, that the ancestors of the Irish people, though of the same original stock as the Cymmry, who migrated towards the Elbe, in the north of Germany, must have separated themselves from their brethren by taking a rout from the shores of the Euxine, following the course of the Danube, and eventually spread colonies over Gaul and Italy.

It must be owing to the proximity of the ancestors of the Irish people to the Romans that there is a greater affinity of character between the Irish dialect and the Latin, than there is between the Welsh and the Latin; for the Romans formed no settlements in Ireland, so as to produce that affinity, which is much more evident than what can be traced between the Welsh and the Latin, though the Romans remained in Britain about five hundred years. In addition to this remarkable fact, there is another equally so, which is, that the Welsh language has a far greater resemblance to the Greek than to the Latin, in its characteristics, which leads to the conclusion of there having been an intermixture of the progenitors of the Cymmry and of the Greeks, in some period prior to all historical record, by which the manner of that intermixture can be satisfactorily explained.

At about what era that the more central mass of the Celts, or Woodmen, of Europe began to be distinguished under the appellation of Slavonians would be difficult to determine satisfactorily; but it is pretty evident that they must have originated from that branch of the Cymmry before mentioned, as having had an intimate connection with the Greeks, before their

† The name of Celt was the most appropriate that could be applied by the first colonies to themselves; and, no doubt, it was applied by themselves, and so the Greeks got it. The meaning of Celt is a covert, from Cel, a shelter; and it is applied to woody places, as opposed to Gal, an open place or plain. Celt would necessarily be a name of frequent use among first colonies, as is now the case in America, where woodmen is the term applied. It is remarkable, that all the old synonymes of Celti, Celyddon, Gwyddeli, and Ysgodi, or Ysgodogion, are still preserved in Welsh, being the originals of Celtica, Caledonia, Gwethelia, and Scotia.

progression into the north of Germany; and that the other branch of the Cymmry, which penetrated into Gaul and Italy, had not the appellation of Sclavonians applied to any of its colonies. Under the name of Sclavonic are comprehended the several dialects spoken in Dalmatia, Albania, Carniola, Croatia, Servia, Poland, Russia, and Lusatia, with other small districts in the neighbourhood, by the people called Wendi. And this last dialect is the connecting link between the Welsh and the Sclavonic dialects.

In the South-east part of Britain an extensive colony established itself, known to the Cymry under the appellation of Lloegrwys, and the territory inhabited by this people was called Lloegr, which is now the name given by the Welsh to all England, notwithstanding its being brought under the sway of the Saxons and Angli. Our Triads of History record that the Lloegrwys originally came to Britain from Gascony, that is, from Celtio Gaul; where they left traces of their name on the river Liger, or the Loire, as well as in the North of Italy, which we recognise in Liguria.* Names of places in Lloegria still preserved, and of men, as given by Roman authors, warrant the inference before drawn, and the Lloegrwys of Britain, and the Liguri of Celtic Gaul and of North Italy, spoke a dialect, whereof the present Irish is the remains. So that the Lloegrwys were probably the first people that settled in Ireland, with whom subsequent colonies of Belgians from the South of Britain intermixed, as mentioned in our old chronicles.

There is reason for supposing that the dissimilitude between the Irish and the Welsh languages has been increased by an intermixture or some other cause as affecting the former in Ireland, one third of the words of which only is recognised in the Welsh tongue, as words in common use. It deserves to be noticed that the Irish people, owing to some cause not easily accounted for, have greatly altered the pronunciation of their language since the first use of letters among them, and arising principally from their causing a great many of the sounds in their words as written to be quiescent. Thus most Irish words preserved in the Welsh would not be understood by a Welshman, when spoken by a native of Ireland, though readily understood when committed to writing: for every word is distinctly pronounced in Welsh as written, without variation or exception.

Like the rendering of sounds quiescent, as above mentioned, is the Irish, what causes the dissimilitude of dialect between the Welsh and the Sclavonic, in all its varieties, is the vitiating of the letters t, th, and d, in the latter by a mutation, into sounds represented by sch, tz, dz. This mutation of t and d into tz and dz is rather common in the pronunciation of the Irish;

* The Triadic record, here alluded to, describes the Lloegrwys as one of the "three social" tribes of Britain: the other two are the Cymmry and Brython.—H. P.

† The patronymic name of the Irish, in their own tongue, as well as in the Welsh, is Gaoidhel, or Gwydhel, which the Welsh pronounce as if written Goithel, but the Irish pronounce it Gael. And the Irish who write on their own history, in this age, take the liberty to write the name Gäel, to the discredit of their history, with a view of identifying the Irish as the descendants of the Gauls.

‡ Yet, by selecting phrases, identities such as this may be found: "O Dda! hwnidh mi mi fbein mar dhuin asaf." "O Daw! boddaf fi fy hun mál dyn gwyrdd." O God, I will drown myself like a gentleman.

and not unfrequently the Welsh use it in familiar talk. When an Irishman swears, he pronounces his Men diawl as if written Mon diawl, which is the Myn diawl of the Welsh, and the Mon diable of the French. And the Welsh word Meddyliau, cogitations, is pronounced Medzolie by the Wendi; Mezoulion by the Bretons; but the Welsh pronounce their words as if written Matholia or Medhotia. In the Albanian dialect Vladica, or Wladica, signifies a Bishop; but Gwledig, in Welsh, is a supreme one over a country, in a general sense, and often applied by the poets to the Deity; as Iolaf Wledig nef, I will adore the Supreme of heaven. Here, Iolaf Gwledig nef would be the phrase, independent of the literal mutation; but the g takes its soft sound, or becomes quiescent.

4. THE AFFINITY BETWEEN THE WELSH, OR CYMMRAEG, AND OTHER LANGUAGES, AS A CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE OF ITS ORIENTAL ORIGIN, AND OF ITS BEING SPOKEN BY THE FIRST INHABITANTS OF EUROPE.

This is a very important topic, and upon which the true history of the origin of nations principally depends; for, though much has been said and written upon it, the light elicited thereby has been so very faint and imperfect, that little knowledge and information has been thereby obtained. Indeed, it is what would require a perseverance in labour so intense for its accomplishment, as almost to deter any one from the undertaking, even though possessed of the requisite qualifications. The outline of such a work has been laid down, though imperfectly, by E. Lhwyd, in his Archæologia Britannica; and it has been so far advanced by Gebelin, in his Monde Primitif, as sufficiently to discover, that the Greek and Latin, with the modern languages of Europe generally, are derived, for the most part, from a common origin, and which common origin, though improperly, is denominated the Celtic, and of which the language still spoken in Wales, owing to some fortuitous circumstances, preserves the most uncontaminated remains. If the extraordinary writer last-mentioned had had the advantage of acquainting himself with the whole compass and characteristics of the language, which he took as the basis of his superstructure, he would have accomplished every thing that could be desired; but, as such advantage did not fall to his lot, the work remains to be finished by some other Gebelin who may arise to do justice to this curious and interesting subject. All that I profess to do here, however, is merely to state the case, and, by way of estimate, to exhibit a few general observations, accompanied by some necessary examples for the illustration of it, with a view of being serviceable to future inquirers.

The following vocabularies of the affinities, existing between the Welsh and the Hebrew and Greek languages, must be considered only as specimens, and that generally with respect to their primitive words only. Connections equally close might be proved between the first-mentioned tongue and the Sanscrit; and in the next place, it might be shown, that about one half of the primary words of the French and English consist of the remains of the speech of the original population of Europe, commonly denominated Celts, blended with the Teutonic or Gothic.

EXAMPLES OF HEBREW AND WELSH AFFINITIES.

The extinction of a primitive language has been asserted in a former section of this work ; and we find, in Genesis xi. the scene of that event laid at Babel, and the cause assigned for it to have been the dispersion of mankind. It may be pertinent to offer one or two remarks here, in support of the proposition, that the Hebrew tongue, notwithstanding all that has been said to the contrary, had its origin, like others, in the confusion of the first language.

Men had not multiplied so greatly, after the flood, as to be compelled to form themselves into separate communities, or at least to acquire national distinctions, at the era of the confusion of Babel ; and, from the tenour of the history given of that confusion, we are plainly to infer the implication of the whole of the human race therein. But, towards obtaining a clearer view of the subject, we shall be aided by recurring to the subjoined table of a few leading dates, subsequent to the epoch of the flood, A. C. 2348.

EVENTS.	Years after the flood.
The confusion of language	101
The birth of Abraham	352
The birth of Isaac	452
The death of Shem	502
The birth of Moses	775

Or the following dates may be taken.

Shem lived until the age of Isaac was ..	50
Isaac lived until Levi was	60
Levi lived until Amram was	41
Amram lived until Moses was	40

Thus, it appears that Shem died only two hundred and seventy-three years before the birth of Moses, or that only four generations intervened between them. Again : by examining the above dates, we observe, that Shem lived four hundred years after the dispersion from Babel ; and, Shem being the patriarch of all the families then on the earth, it cannot be well supposed, that the building of the tower could have been projected without his concurrence. Had it been otherwise, the primitive language must, undoubtedly, have been preserved by him in its purity until his death, and by his descendants, through two hundred and seventy-three years, to the time of Moses ; so that, in that case, he and they must have spoken Hebrew. But there are the remains of the first language discoverable in the composition of all the ancient tongues, which collectively prove them to be formed from the ruins of an original one now lost ; and this original language, as those ruins prove, was, in every respect, far more perfect than the Hebrew, or any other known language.

On a comparison being made between the Welsh and the Hebrew, we do not, at first sight, discover any great connection between the two languages ; though, by a closer examination, we recognise their common origin ; and this apparent dissimilitude is, perhaps, principally to be accounted for, from that system of construction, in the Hebrew, of blending the prepositions, conjunctions, pronouns, and other particles, with the primary words, either as prefixes, or as postfixes; whereas they preserve their separate stations, in the Welsh. The affinity might also appear more manifest, if the Hebrew had remained better preserved as a living language: for, as that is not the state wherein we find it, we may suspect many niceties of pronunciation, without adverting to words and phraseology, to have been lost, notwithstanding the precautionary adoption of the masoretic points, both in respect to the vowels, as also the mutable consonants.

א

אז, greenness, verdure; pleasantness.
אח, exclamation of pleasure, or of pain.

אח, or אחי, one of the same kindred or kind; a brother.

אל, or איל, strength, power; virtue; an epithet applied to the Deity, and to any being or thing that is great.

אל, a negation; not; nothing.

אל, אלה, a plural pronoun; these.

אל, a ram.—אילים, idols.

אל, a deer, male or female; that is, a buck or a doe.

איש, a being, a person, a man: יש, to be.

אלה, a curse, or ban; an oath.

אלף, to teach; to manage, to rule.

אלף, a kine, or one of the cattle kind; also a thousand. אלפים, or אלופים, cattle or bullocks.

און, און, vigour, strength; labour.

און, און, affliction, grief, sorrow.

און, און, virtue, or good quality.

און, און, an object of worship in Egypt, and in Canaan.

אין, אנה, אין, an interrogative particle as to time or place: when, where; here; there.

אין, not; nothing, nonentity.

אנס, to press, to molest, to trouble.

אף, fie! ha! denoting dislike.

אץ, to urge, to press forward, to drive on.

אר, a river; light, lucidity.

אר, to flow, to run as a fluid.

Ov, that is elementary; crude, raw.

Och, a forcible utterance; a moan; oh! alas!

Ack, a root, a stem; lineage, kindred; by, near, at.

El, what has in itself the power of motion; a moving principle; an intelligence; a spirit; an angel.

All, other; another; extra or outward; very, most.

Eill, they, those: eill dau, they twain.

Ell, what is out or divided: ellyllon, goblins.

Al, influence; harmony; power: el-ain, a musical being, a fawn.

Oes, a space of existence, or being; an age.

Llw, elw, hylw, a curse, an oath.

Alawu, to energise, to endow, to enrich.

Alav, pl. alavoedd and elyv, cattle, also chattels. Like Aleph, the Welsh use mil for an animal, and for a thousand.

Yni, vigour, energy, strength; force.

Hoen, effusion; hue; liveliness.

Han, that proceeds from, or that is derived.

Huan, the sun, from Hu, that is pervasive. On, in Egypt, was called by the Greeks Heliopolis.

Yn, yna, yno: yn, in; yna, in there; yno, in such a place; there; then, at such a time or place.

Aa: na: an, prefix of negation; and na, is no.

Aanos, to pursue, to drive, to molest.

Wft! fie! wft iti! fie upon thee!

Aethu, to point, to sharpen; to urge; to vex.

Air, brightness, splendour, lucidity.

Arw, to emit; to utter; to utter a sound.

אש, fire : to set on fire, to consume.

אם, a verbal particle, or adverb, is, there is.

אחז, to come, to arrive, to reach to.

אחז, a pruning knife; or cutter.

Ys, that consumes; ysa, to consume, to burn.

Oes, there is. A oes yma nob? Is there any body here?

Atlu, to proceed or to go : dathu, to come.

Acth, that is sharp, or pointed; a point.

ב

באר, a well, or pit. See בר

בית, a house, a dwelling.

בטן, the belly, or the stomach.

בכה, to weep, to moan, to lament.

בל, to mix, to blend; to confound.

בל, the idol of Babilon; Belus.

בול, a stump of a tree, or a stem.

בול, decay, or withering; October.

בלה, to decay, to waste, to wear out.

בלי, corruption, decay, waste.

בלע, destruction, ravage ruin.

בן, that is reared, that is built; a son

בנה, to build, to erect, to rear.

בניה, a structure, a building.

בנין, a structure, a building.

בר, to purify, to clean; to be clean.

בר, גור, a pit, a well; a grave.

בר, corn; a child, a son. ברה, corn, bread.

ברי, clearness, the pure matter of the heavens.

ברית, purification, or a cleansing.

ברא, to create. ברא: אלויים, the Aleim created.

ברך, to honour, as in bending the knee; to bless.

Bwr, a trench, an entrenchment; a vallum.

Bwth, a hut, a cottage, or a booth.

Poten, a paunch, a belly, a stomach.

Beichlaw, to cry aloud, to roar, to scream.

Boli; cyboli, to mix, to commix.

Bel, that breaks out, a peak; a budding.

Bwl, a rotundity; a hole, or stem.

Pall, ruin, decay; failure; a miss.

Pallu, to decay; to fail; to miss.

Beli, havoc, devastation; war.

Bela, havoc, ravage; tumult; war.

Ban, high, lofty; a height, a peak.

Banu, to elevate; to exalt; to rear.

Banaeth, what is raised or reared up

Banan, dybanan, what rears; a builder; an ant.

Briaw, to render excellent; to dignify.

Bwr, a trench; an entrenchment.

Bara, bread; bar, a summit, a top.

Bri, excellency; dignity, honour.

Briaeth, excellency; the giving dignity.

Peru: e berai clye, the powers created, or created.

Parchu, to revere, to respect, to honour; to confer honour.

ג

גמות, loftiness; raging, as of the sea

גאל, to redeem, to buy off; to avenge

גאל, a redeemer; an avenger.

גורל, to greatness; to grow great or large.

גורל, greatness; dignity, honour.

גדר, to fence, to enclose, to hedge.

Gwyak, a swell out; wrath, indignation.

Gal, to render clear, open, or free.

Gal, a conspicuous station; that breaks out; a foe.

Gwyddoli, to render cognitive, or conspicuous.

Gwyddawl, that is conspicuous, or present.

Godreu, to form a skirt, border, or rim.

גבר, a fence, or an enclosure.
גו, a body, the whole person.

גוי, a body of people, a nation.
גלה, what rolls along, up and down, or to and fro; any rotundity in form or motion; and often it is compounded into גלגל.
גלה, to roll, to turn, or to wheel.
גן, to defend, to fence, to protect;
also a shelter, a place sheltered.
גר, to make strange; to sojourn.

גרר, a sojourner, a stranger.
גת, a press, as for grapes or olives.

דא, to fly, as birds do.
דג, to be fruitful, to multiply, to increase.
דג, fish, from their great increase.
דגן, corn, or grain of any sort.

דגון, fertility. To this idol the Philistines attributed all their plenty.
דר, plural דרים, paps; love.
דיו, ink, for writing with.
דח, דחה, to drive, force, urge, or expel.

דל, דלה, a leaf; the thin part of a door; a lid, a cover: the letter ד, or D

דל, poor, low, meek, humble.
דלי, a bucket, or a pail.

דמן, dung, a heap of dung.

דן, to judge, to rule, to order, to govern. And with the formative מ, דמן, one who has power to judge;
a lord, or master; and it is also written דמון or דמני, a dispenser of virtue.

דור, דור, space, or time, a round of life;
an age, a generation.

דשן, to make fat, to become fat.

דת, statute, law, or appointment.

Godre, a skirt, a border, a rim.

Ciw, compact; what is compact. Ys-gion.

Ciwed, a multit^ם; a tribe; a rabble
Gele, that moves or rolls along; that oozes; a leech, from its rolling motion. Gel, aptness to move, flow, or ooze; a leech.

Geleu, to move with a rolling motion
Ganu, to contain, to include. Gan, capacity; a mortise.

Gweiriaw, to break out, to stray:
Gwair, a stray.

Gweirawr, one who roves or strays.
Gwth, a press; a push; a thrust.

Dawu, to come or move towards.

Dwgu, to bear; to produce, to yield

Dwg, that is full or perfect; a bearing Dwgon, a continuity of bearing; to produce.

Dwgan, a bearing or producing agent,
a producer.

Did, diden, a pap or a nipple.

Du, black; a black; ink.

Techu, to cause to sculk; to sculk.

Dal, dalaeth, deiliad; dal, a leaf;
dalaeth, foliage; deiliad, a leafing,
or foliation.

Del, churlish, dogged; obdurate.

Dalai, that holds; a receptacle.

Tomen, a heap of dung, a dung-hill.

Doniaw, to dispense, in any way; to endow, or to enrich; addonai, one who has to dispense a virtue or gift; one who has a virtue or endowment. It is formed from the prefix a an dawn, a gift.

Dor, what overspreads, a covering;
the leaf of a door.

Dwysaw, dwysain, to make dense, to be dense.

Dedd, and deddf, statute, or rule of action.

חב, חבה, to give, to bring to.

חר, חרה, to praise, to give thanks.

חוי, an exclamation expressive of grief.

חי, heigh; alas! oh! ah! woe!

Hybu, to get onward; to recover; to get before.

Hoddi, hoddiauw, to render easy or accessible.

Hwi, to set up a halloo; a halloo.

Hai, excitement; hurry, haste! hir

זו, hwa, a demonstrative pronoun, and adverb.

הר, hori, to be big, to grow big; she bigged with, she conceived.

הר, hori, a mountain, a hill.

הרי-גבנונים, hori-gabnonim, a mount of several heights.

הרי-טרף, hori-teref, mountains of prey.

הרה, hori, one pregnant, plural horai, horai, חריות.

Hon, hwn, hyn: hon, this female; hwn, this masculine; hyn, this thing; hyna, that thing.

Hori, to become round or bulky: dyhorai, she became bulky, or paunched.

Hawr, what is distended or swelled out.

Hawr gofanyaw, a swell of several heights.

Horori tarf, protuberances of scaring.

Horai, koren, one that is swelled out. Pl. Horoeidd, and korod, tikes.

י

זב, zab, to flow, to gush, to bubble out.

זג, zag, liquor, also a husk, or shell.

זה, zhe, compound of זה and זו—a demonstrative pronoun; it; this; that; here.

זהר, zher, clear, bright; a clear sky; clearness.

זהל, zhele, to be afraid. A serpent.

זל, zale, profusion, squandering; waste.

זמ, zame, to imagine, to think, to devise; whim, fancy—to seem: זומים, whim, fancy, conceit: זומים, Deut. ii. 20. Imaginers.

זון, zune, to feed, to provide; store, provision.

זון, zune, store, provision, victuals.

זנה, zane, to fornicate, to whore.

זונה, zane, a harlot: זונות, whoredoms.

זע, ze, to move, or shake, to be agitated.

זרא, zera, loathsome, repulsive, offensive.

זרה, zera, to disperse; to winnow.

זר, zere, מור, a stranger.

זר, zere, a rim, a bandlet; a crown.

Swyf, scum; yeast, swyfav, to form scum.

Sug, liquor, juice; what is sucked.

Sy, and Sydd, is: pwysy glaf? who is ill: pwysydd yma? who is here.

Pa elw sydd? What profit is there.

Ser, stars, the starry system: Serw, sparkling.

Sychwylaw, to turn or roll aside: Sychwyl, a whirl off.

Sil, that is produced; spawn, seedling; issue.

Symtaw, to consider the magnitude of a thing; to consider: sym, size, magnitude: symaeth, a state of ease, or enjoyment: somsymiaid, illusory seemers.

Swyn, a preservative: swynaw, to apply a preservative.

Mysyn, that is put by; that is protected.

Synu, to cause sensation; to cause consternation.

Synai, that causes concern: Synoeidd, dreads.

Sangu, to trample; to tread, to pace.

Sar, a repulse; insult, offence.

Saru, to throw off, to repulse; to insult.

Sarai, mysar, that is thrown or pushed off.

Ser, sert, that tends round; a bill-hook.

ח

חב, chab, to lay up close, to hide.

חדל, chale, to cease, to desist, to leave.

Cub, a bundle; cubaw, to make into a heap.

Gadel, gadw, to desist, to leave; to forsake.

- חרל, the world, or the universe.
 חרר, a recess, a retired place; a chamber.
 חוה, Eve, the first woman.
 חוה, to look upon, to see: to contemplate.
 חוה, חוון, חוון, a vision, a sight that is shown.
 חוה, חוה, any hooked, prickly, or bushy stuff, briar, thorn; a clasp, a fibula; a bracelet.
 חוה, חוה, to tie up, to bind; to restrain.
 חוה, to live, or to have life.
 חי, life; living, lively, vivacious.
 חיה, חי, a living creature, an animal.
 חך, the palate; the mouth.
 חל, חלל, to break in upon, to violate: wounded, smitten; slain.
 חלה, to hurt, to annoy, to grieve; to be sick.
 חלי, sickness, illness, malady.
 חול, the sand or beach of the sea.
 חלצ, חלצ, the loins. Kings shall come out of thy loins.
 חומה, חומה, a wall, a mound. The waters were a wall on the right and on the left.
 חמד, to desire, to long after; to take pleasure in: also desire.
 חמק, to turn aside: חמקי, the joints of the thighs.
 חמש, five, from the number of the fingers, and their use in counting: also חמשה, חמשה, five.
 חנן, חנן, to be kind, gracious, or favourable.
 חן, kindness, grace, or favour.
 חונן, one that is kind, gracious, or merciful.
 חנון, kindly disposed, gracious merciful.
 חין, graceful, comely: חין ערכו, his comely body.
 חנון, חנון, supplication.
 חנה, to pitch a tent, or to encamp.
 חנה, חנה, a pitching, or encamping.
 Gwadal, that is fixed, firm, or established.
 Cader, a strong hold, or fortress; a chair.
 Chwyfai, that exerts motion, that has motion.
 Gwyddaw, to become perceptible or present.
 Gwydd, knowledge; presence: gwyddon, a knowing one, a perceiver; one having presence.
 Cwuch, that is wrinkled; a knitting of the brows, or a frown.
 Cadw, to keep, to guard; to save.
 Chweiaw, to be volatile, brisk, or lively.
 Chwai, ertness; alert; brisk; nimble, quick.
 Chwaiai, that is recipient of motion, or activity.
 Ceg, a mouth, an inlet, or outlet.
 Cwll, what separates; a stomach: cyllu, to separate, to divide.
 Cwl, a fault: cwlau, to hurt; to become sick.
 Cwli, a weak state, sickness.
 Chwal, a spread, a dispersion.
 Coludd, bowels, or entrails.
 Cwm, a rounding or rising up, the sides of hills forming a hollow.
 Cymmodi, to be sociable; to reconcile; to covenant.
 Cameg, what is bent; a felly: camegu, to form bends or fellies.
 Cymmys, and cyfys, from cy and bys, the finger in conjunction: also cymmysai, and cymmysaeth.
 Cwynaw, cwynain, to utter complaint.
 Cwn, one that attracts, a chief; kind, gracious.
 Cwnon, a kind or gracious one.
 Cwnain, attractive, kindly disposed.
 Cain, bright, fair: ei gain gorff o.
 Cwynan, the uttering plaints, a complaint.
 Chwaenw, to come abruptly, or by chance.
 Chwaen, chwaena, a hap, a start; a pitch.

חנית, a spear, a halbert, a pike.
 חסר, a turning from ; חסר הוא, it is a bad or wicked thing.

חסר, goodliness ; mercy : חסרו, its goodliness, his love, or good will.
 חסות, מחסה, shelter, refuge, safety.

חפה, to cover over : חפרו, they covered.

חוף, a sea-port, where ships are under cover.

חפץ, to be in a hurry, or flurried.

חפץ, to delight in any thing, to fancy.

חפץ, delight ; frankness ; willingness.

חוף, what is divided ; a field ; a street :
 חוף, על פני, upon the field.

חר, to heat, to kindle, to incense.

חרי, חרון, חרון, heat, anger, or ire.

חריים, חוריים, noble or illustrious ones : בן חוריים, a son of nobles.

חרס, the solar fire ; the sun.

חרס, some hot fiery humour.

חש, חוש, to hurry, to hasten ; חוש, haste, stay not. חשי, hurry, haste.

חת, חתה, to sink down, to bring down or under ; to reduce ; to cast down.

Conad, conaeth, a point ; a shaft.

Casedd, hatefulness, hatred ; an odious thing.

Cysed, what tends to assuage ; a quiet state, quietude.

Cysaeth, mychysaeth, security ; quietude.

Cyfu, to compass, to hem in, to surround.

Cwff, that hems in or encompasseth.

Chwyfan, to flutter ; to heave ; to hover.

Hoffeddu, hoffi, to render delightful ; to like.

Hoffedd, delight ; endearment, fondness.

Cwys, a division ; a gore ; a farrow ;
kul pen y cwys, the cover of the farrow head.

Chwerwi, to become bitter ; to exarbitter ; to incense.

Chwern, that is acrid ; a bitter ; bitter, severe.

Cawri, great ones of strength, or stature ; giants ; mab cawri, son of mighty ones.

Gwres, sun heat ; ardency ; fever.

Gwres, heat, inflammation ; fever.

Chwysu, to sweat : chwysa, be thou in a sweat ; chwys, chwysi, sweat.

Coth, an ejection ; cothi, to eject, to cast out, to expel, to force out.

ט

טב, good ; goodly, fair, sweet, pleasing, profitable, regular, in order.

טהר, clean, clear, pure, refined ; also clearness.

טח, to overlay, to daub, to plaster ; a daub, a plaster.

טח, the inside : טחות, inward parts.

טיש, mud, mire, or clay.

טור, טיר, טור, a row, a rank, a range.

טל, dew, or fallen vapour.

טלל, to cover, to envelop, to enclose.

טף, little children, or youngsters.

טיר, a castle ; a habitation, a town, a village.

טרא, to break in pieces, to snap a bit, to tear.

טרא, that is chased ; prey, or spoil.

Tef, that tends to spread out ; an even spread ; a spread, or layer.

Ter, subtle, pure, clear, refined, transparent, clarified.

Tawck, that rises or stretches over ; vapour, haze : tecki, to cover with haze.

Teck, a hidden place ; a sculk, a lurk

Tud, ground, soil ; a surface, a region

Tor, a bulge, a swell out, a prominence.

Til, a minute particle, a grain.

Telu, to expand over : telu haf, summer covering.

Twf, growth, growth in the aggregate

Twr, a tower ; twf, a habitation ; a town.

Tori, to break, to fracture ; to cut.

Tarf, expulsion ; a seere, a drive, a flight.

יָבֹן, to grieve, to vex, to afflict.
יָבוֹן, grief, sorrow, or affliction.
יָד, יִיד, to cast, to put forward; to handle; to shoot, to throw, to cast
יָד, a hand, or the fore limb.
יָד, a banner, a monument; a trophy
יָלַל, to cry out, to exclaim, to howl
יָנָה, a dove; an emblem of love.
יָצַר, the ' mutable, to form, to fashion

יָצַר, one who formeth, a fashioner.
יֵשׁ, is, or are; there is, there are.

יֵתֶר, overplus, remainder; excellence;
also a string, as of a bow, a cord.

Igiaw, igiam, to sob, to sigh deeply.
Igian, a sobbing, or a sighing deeply
Id, that is stretched out; a point:
idiaw, to push out; to render acute
Adaf, a hand, what takes hold.
Id, that is drawn or stretched out.
Wylaw, to cry, to weep, to wail.
Ion, a source, or origin; the Lord.
Saeru, to act as a wright, joiner, or mason.

Saer, a wright, a carpenter, a mason.
Oes, there is; is there? A oes yma neb? Oes.

Eithr, that is besides or over; an exception; except; but.

כָּבֵד, weight; glory, weighty; heavy

כָּבֵד, the liver, the organ so called.
כָּבַשׁ, to bring under, to keep in subjection, to subdue.

כֶּרֶךְ, a pitcher, a bottle, a jar, a jug.
כֶּרֶךְ, destruction, ruin, ravage.

כִּירוֹן, supposed to be a dart: Joshua put it out as a sign to an ambuscade כֹּחַ, masculine, and כִּי, feminine, a restrictive particle: thee; thine; there; here; so.

כִּי, restriction, used as a particle; why, wherefore, so, therefore; but; if; because.

כֹּהֵן, a priest; a minister of God; also of a king.

כָּלַם, to restrain, to withhold, to confine.

כָּלִי, כלִי, confinement; a prison.

כָּלִי, any piece of work, or thing done: a tool, an instrument: כָּלִי בֵּיתְךָ, the utensils of thy house.

כָּן, some insect that settles in the skin; louse.

כָּן, right, fixed, stable: adverb, so.

כָּנַם, to heap, to gather, to collect together.

כֶּסֶם, כֶּסֶם, a covering; a covered place

כָּסֶל, the flank, or loins, the haunches
כָּפָה, a curvity, or bending over; the bottom of the foot; the hollow of the hand; a vault.

כֶּפֶס, a stem, a stock, as of a tree.

Cyfoeth, power, dominion; wealth, riches.

Cyfaed, a coming or rising together.

Cyfasu, to bring down together, to subdue together.

Ced, a receptacle to keep any thing in Cid, havoc, ravage, destruction.

Cudyn, a flowing lock of hair or wool, a flowing ringlet.

Cw, a rounding; quick motion; wherefrom, whence; at or in what place, where.

Cy, a particle denoting a mutual act, or quality, or effect. Cy gynted, as quick.

Cwyn, a setting in motion, or agitating; a plaint, a complaint.

Ciliaw, to draw back, to recede; to drive back.

Cilfa, a retired place, a recess, a retreat.

Celfi, tools, instruments, or utensils: also any trifling things: celfi dy foth, the utensils of thy house.

Chwain, fleas, from their nimbleness.

Can, sight; brightness; because; for; as; with; of.

Cynnwys, to concentrate; to contain; to admit.

Cas, a being separated; a castle; hate, envy.

Cesail, the arm-pit, the bosom; a cove
Caf, what curves inward; a grapple, a grasp, a rake with bent prongs; a snatch.

Cyf, a stock, a stem, a stump, or boll

- כפול, coupled or double ; כפול, a couple.
 כריס, soldiers keeping guard by their going round ; patroles.
 כר, to dig, or to delve ; to turn the ground.
 כחה, to break, to bruise, or to wear to pieces ; to dissipate ; a wearing away.
 כחן, a coat, or vesture ; raiment : Xituv.
 Cwpol, a junction, or joint ; a couple
 Cor, a round, a circle ; cori, rounds, circles : cor, is also a crib, or stall
 Cori, to turn ; to form rounds or circles.
 Cothi, to cast off, to throw off, to eject, to squirt : a throw off : a squirt.
 Coden, what envelopes ; a bag ; ced-en, a shaggy coat.

ל

- לא, not ; nay ; nothing. לא צר, not oppressed.
 לאט, to cover, or to conceal : to suppress, to be silent.
 לבא, לביא, a lion, male or female.
 לחש, to burn, to set on fire.
 לו, to wrest, to turn aside, to distort ; to depart : perverse.
 לוח, לוח, a slab, a plank, a table : לחת, tables, or slabs.
 לחי, the flat part or side of the face.
 לש, to drop, to hang as a drop : a drop ; also dropping, pendant.
 בלש, cautiously.
 לט, some rich gum ; what drops.
 ליש, a lion, from לש, to temper the chops, as a sign of greediness.
 לכר, to take, to catch, to lay hold on.
 לכר, a taking, or catching ; a trap.
 לו, to lodge, to stay, to harbour at a place.
 לע, to swallow, to gulp : the swallow.
 לץ, to repeat ; to explain : to interpret
 לץ, and לרץ, a repeater ; an interpreter, or explainer.
 לש, to temper ; to knead, or work about.
 לשר, moisture ; juice of plants ; fresh oil.
 לשן, to tongue ; to abuse ; to prattle.
 לשון, לשון, the tongue ; language ; Arabic, Lisan.
 Llai, lesser, less ; it is used for lleia, smaller : llai sar, less offence.
 Llethu, to press flat : to overlay or press down.
 Lleibai or lleibiai, that licks up.
 Lliidiaw, to inflame ; to grow angry.
 Llysu, to bar out, to put aside, or to reject. Llys and llysiad, rejection.
 Llech, a flat stone, a slab : also a squat, a sculk : llechoedd, llechan, and llechi, slabs, flat stones.
 Llechoedd and llechi, the side of the face, the temple.
 Lled, that is prone or flat : a flat : lleddu, to make flat ; to become flat
 Llydd, that is diffusive : that is poured out.
 Llwy, that is cleared or cleaned : that clears or cleans out.
 Llochiadu, to mound, to pen up, to fold.
 Llochiad, a forming a mound or dam, a penning up.
 Llen, a cover, a veil : lleu, to cover, to veil.
 Llyngu or llyncu, to swallow : llong, the swallow.
 Llithiaw, to allure, to train : to read a lesson.
 Llith, that is given as nurture, a lesson. Llithion, one who allures ; a trainer, a lecturer.
 Llws, mucilage, slime : llwsu, to yield mucilage, to slime.
 Llysaid, a slimy state, mucilage.
 Lleisoni, to produce a voice ; to form the voice.
 Lleison, the organ that forms the voice.

מאד, strength, might ; greatness : adverb, very much : entirely.

מאס, to abhor, to despise : to reject, to cast off.

מנ, מנג, to melt away, to dissipate,
to dissolve.

מנר, what is excellent, or precious :
thus, pleasant things are מנרים.

מנר, מנר, to mete, to measure.

מנר, מנר, a measure.

מה, מי, how ? what ? who ?

מהר, to hasten, to speed, to be quick ;
also one that is hasty or rash.

מט, מטט, to slide, to slip aside or asunder : thus, בל מט, is, they cannot be moved.

מל, to cut, to chop, to chop off, to cut down, to bray, or to bruise.

מל, מלל, to speak, to talk : מלה, a word.

מל, to cut off the top ; to circumcise.

מול, plural. מלים, circumcised.

מולת, circumcision, that is a baring
the top.

מול, מול, opposite to, near to, over against.

מלא, to fill, to fill up : to complete :
fulness.

מלה, to salt, to season with salt : salt,
or saltiness.

מלחה, pervaded by salt ; barren.

מלאכה, work, affair to be managed ;
affair, business.

מלאך, an agent, a messenger ; an angel.

מלך, to have supreme power, to reign,
to rule.

מלך, a sovereign, a king, or a prince :
also the title of an object of worship—Moloch.

מלכנ, a brazen image of Moloch, so named, probably from its form of a bust.

מלכה, the queen of heaven, the ruler of heaven ; the moon.

מלוכה, ממלכה, מלכות, a kingdom ;
reign.

מלך, sweet, of a sweet savour or smell

Med, that is full, perfect, or mature :
as far as to the full ; to, unto, as far as.

Masu, to depart ; to swoon, or to faint away.

Mygu, to become smoke ; to smoke ;
to suffocate.

Myged, reverence, honour ; grandeur ;
glory : mygedion, grand things.

Medu, to render extended, full, or perfect.

Med, medai, that is full or perfect.

Mae, there is ; is there ? what is ?
where is ?

Meru, to flit, to drop : mer, that is dropped off or parted ; a drop.

Mudaw, and symudaw, to flit, to move, to quit ; also ymmod, motion ; and ymmodi, to move.

Malu, to bray or break small, to grind ; malu ewyn, to chafe, to foam at the mouth, as a horse doth.

Malu, to liken : to joke ; to utter levity.

Moeli, to make bare or bald the top or head.

Moel, bare, bald : plural moelion,
bald ones.

Moelaeth, the act of making bare or bald.

Moll, that surrounds, closes upon, or includes.

Mola, to concrete matter, to form gum.

Molochi, to raise a ferment : moloch, ferment. Prydain arfoloch, Britain in a ferment.

Molochw, that has passed through a ferment.

Maeloca, the act of trafficking, or a merchandising.

Maloch, one that is light or volatile.

Maelychu, maelogi, to act as a manager, or trader.

Maelawg, maelwg that has means of power, that has abundance ; that has traffick.

Maelgwn, the summit or head of power : the name of a king of Wales, who died A. D. 542.

Maelocai, a teeming one : that tends to increase.

Maelogaeth, a state of teeming or abundance.

Melys, sweet, dulcet : a sweet.

מנה, to dispose into classes or ranges, to sort.

מין, מינא, מין, a species, or kind; likeness, or appearance; a peculiar thing; a particle like hoar, which the Israelites on seeing, called out הוא מין! it is a species of itself; as they knew not what it was מניכ, plural, a sum or quantity of money.

מין, מינא, kind, or species: למינו, after his kind.

מני, an object of idolatry: a drink offering to מני, that number; therefore מניח, I will number you to the sword. Isaiah lxx. 11.

מני, to rule, to order: what is regular, rule, order.

מסח, מסס, to melt, to dissolve, to loosen: a soft or melting mood; voluptuousness.

מסך, to mix, or to intermingle.

מץ, מרה, to squeeze, to press together, to crush, to squeeze out; also a squeezer.

מצא, to find, to meet with, to come upon; to supply; to be present: to succeed.

מריא a fattening; plural מריאכ

מש, משש, to feel, to handle, to take hold: משח, to take or draw out: to remove.

מח, מחח, to die: מחי, I die.

מח, a dead person: מחיים, mortals.

מחח, pleasant, agreeable, sweet.

נר, comfort, or solace; joy; ease. נחה, to make a moaning, to grieve.

נח, נחי, נח, a lament, a moan, a wail.

נח, to run as a stream, to flow; to run: a stream.

נח, a home, a dwelling a habitation.

נץ, to shoot out, to fly out or upon.

נחח, to cut in pieces; to dissect.

Moni, to individualize, to become a separate one.

Mon, a separate or isolated being: man, a spot, a speck; a place: man, what consists of small particles: manion, small particles of any thing: man yw fo, a speck it is, or yw fo man, it is a spot.

Mwnai, that is formed of or having ore; money.

Mynw, an individual; a person, a body.

Mewn, an intellect, mind, or soul: also a mythological personage, stiled Mewn mab teirgwaedd, or Menw the son of three cries.

Mynu, to will, to exert volition; to obtain.

Maru, to volatilize; to swoon, to faint.

Mawedd, a volatile state; voluptuousness.

Mygu, to mix, to intermingle, to blend.

Matku, to render flat or even; mathru, to tread or trample: that is flat, spread out, or even.

Meddu, to possess, to own, to have, to have command of: to be able.

Merydd, a fattening; plural meryddon.

Moes, conduct, behaviour; civility: moesa, to give, or to confer: to hand.

Metku, to fail; to become inert: methwyf, I fail.

Meth, a failure; a state of inertness.

Mwythawg, tender; soothed; pampered; softening.

Naid, a refuge, or a sanctuary.

Neuaw, to wish earnestly, to long, to pant.

Nes, a pant, or an earnest wish.

Nar, that tends out; that is forward: abortion.

Naf, a hollow; a place of rest; heaven.

Nwyth, a drift; a whim: nwythaw, to do a freak.

Naddu, to chip; to cut with any tool.

ו

סבך, to entangle; to perplex, to vex.

סבך, a tangle; a thicket, or brake.

Sybachu, to draw in a heap, to shrink up.

Syback, that is drawn in a heap.

סב, סוג, סיג, scum, dross, or dregs.	Soeg , that is seethed; draff; grains of malt.
סגר, to enclose, to shut up; to confine.	Segrw , to enclose; to put apart; to secrete.
סגר, what encloses; a caul; a border.	Segr , that keeps apart; that is enclosed.
סד, סדר, to lay a foundation, to found; to advise: to ordain.	Sodi , to fix, to constitute, to implant; to limit.
סר, סדר, foundation, or base; council; secret.	Sawd , tendency; juncture; extremity, limit.
סח, סחה, to sweep, or to brush off any thing.	Syckw , to dry; to grow dry; to wipe.
סס, to turn aside: a turn aside, plural, ססיס, those that turn aside.	Swydaw , to intimidate, to awe: swydtion , intimidated or scared ones.
סך, סכה, סכך, to cover over, as a tent; to shelter; a covering; a shelter, a covert.	Swckw , to envelope the point of a thing, as a cone: swckw esgid , to toe-piece a shoe.
סך, that covers, or is covered; a shelter, a covert; also written סוך.	Swck , a snout; a soc, or share of a plough: swck esgid , point of a shoe.
סכת, plural סכת, a booth; a tent.	Swckai , that envelopes in the form of a cone.
סכל, to be thoughtless, foolish, or silly.	Siglaw , to waver, to act with fickleness.
סכל, thoughtless, foolish, silly: a fool.	Sigl , a waver, a shake or rocking; a wag.
סכלות, thoughtlessness, folly, stupidity.	Siglaeth , a state of wavering or fickleness.
סל, סלה, to exalt, to elevate, to raise.	Sylw , to gaze. Sylla, sela , behold! lo!
סלם, a ladder, a gradual raise.	Sylam , that serves for a step or a stride.
סע, סעה, to move along, or to proceed.	Sangu , to tread, to trample, to tramp along.
סער, to stay, or to prop; to strengthen: also a stay or prop.	Sangadu , to make a step: sangad , a pace, a tread, a trampling.
סר, to turn aside, to turn off; to take a huff.	Sdri , to offend; to become sulky, to sulk.
סר, סור, סורר, one that revolts, or turns off.	Sor , a sulk: sorai , one that sulks or revolts.
סרה, a turning away; revolt; aversion.	Sor , a sulk; sullenness; aversion.
סח, to stir up, to irritate; to entice: also a stirring up, or irritation; enticement.	Sythw , to render erect or stiff: erectness, rigidity; erect, stiff; rigid.
סחו, winter, or the cold season.	Sytha , that causes stiffness or rigidity

ע

ער, to set, appoint, constitute, or fix: an appointment; a set portion, or an allotment; a witness; any length of time: ער, מני, of old.	Oedi , to set a time, to make an appointment; to delay: Oed , a set time; age; an appointment; ym oed y dydd , during the day: plentyrn blwydd o oed , a child of a year old.
ער, ערי, עור, to, unto; yet; whilst: כל עור, all the while.	Hyd , to, unto, until; whilst: hyd yma , as far as here; o hyd , all the while.
ערה, an assembly; a putting off; protest; testimony, evidence.	Oedi , a setting of time; an appointment; a putting off; or delaying.
ערי, plural עריים, an ornament.	Eddi , flue; fringe: also thrums.

ערן, delight; delicacy; delicate, nice.

ערן, the name of a country; Eden.
על, עלה, to be up or upon; to ascend.

על, above, up, over, on high.

על, עליון, on, upon: near by.

על, עול, a yoke. לא עלה עליה על, which no yoke hath come upon.

עלה, עולה, what ascends; burnt offering.

עלה, a leaf; also a branch.

ענן, to cloud: a cloud: ענני ענן, when I cloud a cloud.

עץ, plural עצים, a tree; wood.

ער, ערה, to pour out, to stir up, to rouse.

ער, a stirrer up, a rouser, a mover.

ער, plural ערוה, a juicy plant; papyrus.

ערב, Arabia: Arabia is a peninsula.

ערב, the evening, or night-fall.

עשק, to press down, to oppress; also a pressure, or oppression.

עת, a time or season of any thing.

עוה, to distort, to wrest, to writhe.

עורר, עורר, an he goat; a ram; from the idea of their pushing.

Addwyn, what is fair; delight: becoming; kind.

Addwyn, that is intellectual.

Hulaw, to cover, to deck, to spread over.

Hul, a cover; a coverlet; a mat.

Hul, hulyn, what covers; a coverlet.

Hwyl, a course; regimen, order; plight, or state; also a sail.

Hulai, that tends to cover, or to overspread.

Hulai, that tends to cover, that forms a cover.

Haenen, a stratum; a sprinkling; a covering: pen haenwyf haenen.

Gwydd, a shrub, a tree: a wood.

Gweiriao, to shoot out; to make hay.

Gwafr, that shoots out, is brisk, or luxuriant; hay.

Gwyr, that is luxuriant or verdant; verdancy.

Gwyrth, that juts out; a peninsula.

Gwyrfa, the place of declination.

Gwasgu, to press, to squeeze: gwasg, a press; pressure.

Gwaith, course, turn, or time; season

Gwaethu, to deteriorate, to hurt.

Gwthiad, that butts, or pushes: a pusher.

D

פגור, a carcase, or a dead body.

פז, to be stiff; to be dense; to be strong.

פז, that is dense; solid metal; solid gold.

פוח, to blow, to give wind; to vent.

פחד, to be amazed; to surprise, to astonish.

פחד, amazement, surprise, dread.

פיר, destruction, ravage, havoc, ruin

פלג, to divide, to sever, to share.

פלג, a division, a distribution.

פלר, it is rendered torches.

פלת, to separate, to sever; to divide

פנה, to turn to, to turn about.

פנה, a turning, a corner: the פנות, chief of the tribes of Israel: a corner stone פנתהו.

פני, in regimen פני, the face or fore part.

פניאל, face of God, a place so called

Pegor, a pivot; a dwarf; a pert little body.

Pwysaw, to weigh; to press, to weigh down.

Pwys, weight, pressure, moment.

Puchaw, to pant; to sigh: puch, a pant.

Puchadu, to make a panting: to sigh.

Puchad, a producing a panting; a sighing.

Pyd, that sinks or falls in; a pit, a snare.

Pellogi, to render of remote state.

Pellwog, a distant or remote state.

Peiliad, a brandishing, a gleaming.

Pellu, and pellau, to render distant.

Penn, to head; to come to head or end.

Pen, a head, a front: an end or extremity: penaeth, a chief, or principal: a corner stone, maen penartha

Pen, a head: a front: an end: a fore part.

Pen-i-el, a head or front to a spirit.

- פסח, to halt, to limp, to be lame.
פסח, the passover; but literally a halting at, or stopping at.
פר, to break, to fracture; to cut off.
- פר, a bullock: plural פרות, kine; and פריז, bulls.
פור, a lot, destruction: plural פורים: to throw down: to break.
פזיר, a boiling pot, or a kettle.
פרד, to separate, to divide, to part off.
- פרס, a village, or open town.
- פרך, It is rendered rigour: the Egyptians made the Israelites serve with rigour.
פרץ, to break forth, to burst, to spread abroad: a breach, a breaking forth: a destroyer: Mount Perizim.
- פריץ, one that bursts forth; a robber
- פרש, to spread, stretch out, or extend פרש, a rider, upon any animal.
פש, to increase, to grow big: that is great, or of weight. בפש פאר, with great extremity.
- פשתח, flax, the filament of the plant.
- פסע, to stride, to take a step; to march: also the stride by which we step: a step.
פח, a bit, a morsel, a mouthful.
- פח, a hinge, that part of the body on which it turns, the hip; fickle; sudden.
פח, to slide, to slip, or to glide.
- פחח, פחי, easily turned; fickle; simple.
פחן, it is rendered the asp, or adder.
פחח, to open, in a general sense; to loose; to grave, to engrave; to carve: a laying open; an engraving; a carved work: an aperture; a door.
פחל, to twist, to twine together.
- פחל, a twist; a cord; a thread; a lace.
פחח, to open, to explain; to interpret, to expound dreams, or oracles: an opening, or expounding.
- Pesychu, to intermit; to cough.
Paswch, and peswch, an intermittent effort: a cough.
Peri, to graze, from pawr, what is grazed.
Porai, that grazes, a grazing animal: porcion, grazers.
Burw, a cast, a throw; a woof; a tally: to cast, to throw down.
Pair, a cauldron, or a boiler.
Paredu, to make a partition, to partition.
Pres a resort: a covert: pres y ci, a dog-kennel.
Parch, awe, respect, reverence, honour: parchu, to be in awe; to respect.
Preiddiau, to make a booty of cattle, to predate: praid, a herd; a booty of cattle, to predate: praid, a herd; a booty of cattle: mynydd preiddiau.
Preiddiai, one that hunts for prey; a depredator.
Pwysaw, to protrude: pressu, to hurry
Pwysai, one that urges or presses on.
Pwysaw, to weigh: to press: to oppress: pwys, weight, pressure: my-ned wrth bwys, to go on leisurely; peth o bwys, a thing of moment.
Peisiaeth, coating: peiswyn, chaff of oats.
Pysang and mysang, a trample: py-sangu and mysangu, to trample.
- Peth, a thing; a small quantity, a little; some.
Pwyth, that runs in; a point; a turn; an angle, a stitch; a requital.
- Pwythaw, to thrust in; to form an angle; to stitch.
Pwythaid, having a tendency to thrust in.
Python, a period or circle of time.
Peithwchu, and peithwgu, to make clear or open: peithwch, and peith-wg, that is open or clear; that abounds with openings, as a comb; hunting ground.
Pwythyllu, to form interstices or intertexture.
Pwythell, an interstice, an intertexture.
Peithori, to lay open, to explore. The Gauls called the priests of Apollo pateræ: peithorau, expounders.

ז

זר, a side; a turn; a hunt; בזרוח, in the side thereof.

זיר, זירח, that is aside, store, provisions; a hunting: also one that hunts.

זריח, a laying by, or in wait, a skulk

זרק, exact, righteous; just: righteousness: to render exact, to justify זרקח, exactness, righteousness, justice.

זריק, one that is exact or just; a just man; one that can justify.

זוח, to be dried up; to desiccate: such a hue as a dry wind gives: pale, white.

זוח, dry; white, pale: a dry wind.

זוחח, a drought: that is dry, dry.

זוחח, to laugh, to deride; to sport.

זין, זיון, a title; a way-mark; a sign

זלל, a shadow: shelter: זלמות, shadow of death: the plural of זלם, an image, is זלמות.

זום, to be empty; to fast: זום יום, fasted a fast: זומים, robbers.

זום, the being empty: a fasting.

זמא, to hunger; to thirst: emptiness, thirst, or hunger.

זמח, to bring to nothing; to vanish, to waste, to consume.

זער, to step, to go along; to march.

זער, זערה, זערע, a stepping; a march, a treading, a pacing.

זעה, a throwing down, or prostrating; a travelling.

זעע, tread to tread; he made two cherubims of זעע, mutual movement.

זר, to vex, to afflict, to straiten, to press together; to bind up.

זר, זורר, זורר, that afflicts, that oppresses, an enemy: vexed: straitened, close, narrow, bound up.

זר, some cutting tool; a knife: a flint

Sid, a turn; a rim; a circle; a wind, a reel.

Sidai, a recipient of turns or courses; one that winds about.

Sidiaw, to wind about: a winding about.

Sodig, that is fixed or constituted: sodigaw, to render fixed or exact.

Sodica, that is fixed or implanted.

Sodawog, that is implanted or exact: one that is fixed or exact.

Sycku, to dry; to be dried, to desiccate; to wipe: hia syck, dry weather.

Syck, dry, parched: syched, thirst, drought.

Syck-syck, drought upon drought.

Swochoca, to make mouths, to grimace

Senw, a mark, sign, or stigma.

Sel, a distant sight or glance: seth, a gaze, a beholding, a view: seth meth, a sight of annihilation.

Somi, to produce emptiness; to balk, to disappoint.

Som, a vacuity, or a void; a balk.

Soma, to gather emptiness: emptiness, a void state.

Somaethu, to produce emptiness, or a void state.

Sangu, sangadu, to step; to trample.

Sangad, sangiada, ymsangiad, mysangiad, a treading, a trampling.

Sangu, to trample, to tread upon.

Sang-sang, tread to tread, of mutual tread, or stepping together.

Sardu, to throw off; to abuse; to insult, to offend; to injure.

Sar, that is on or along; that is apt to cast down; fury, rage; insolence: offence: disgrace, reproach

Ser, that tends to enclose; a bill, or bill-hook.

פ

קבל, to receive, to accept, to obtain.

קבל, an engine of war; a grapple.

קב, to hollow out; to dent, to pierce

קב, a vessel of measure, as is supposed; a cob.

קבה, the maw; the belly, or paunch.

Cafael, to get, to obtain, to have.

Gafael, a hold, a gripe, a grapple.

Cibaw, to form a vessel, shell, or pod

Cib, a vessel; a shell, a pod: cibyn, a peck measure.

Cwb, a concavity; a cote, or kennel; a hut.

קר, to bend or bow down the head.
קו, קו, a line, a string, a cord.

קל, to abate: to see if the waters
חלו, were abated; lightness, vileness; despised, vile.
קלט, to contract, to shrink.

קלע, to sling; a sling; what is slung,
also a slinger: a hanging.

קום, קום, what is raised or set up; a rising up; a statue: an image;
also one that rises up, an insurgent; to raise up; to arise; to stand up, to fix.

קנ, קנה, a reed; a cane; a pipe; a stalk.

קנ, קנה, to get, to acquire, to obtain;
to purchase.

קנה, קנן, to lament, or to bewail.

קונה, קונה, one who acquires or gets;
a buyer.

קונה, lamentation, or complaining.

קנא, zeal: envy, jealousy: one that is zealous; an envious one.

קנא, one full of zeal; a jealous one.

קריה, קריה, in regimen קריה, plural קרייה, a wall: בקיר החומה, on the battlement of the wall.

קרן, to shoot forth, to cast rays or horns; to have horns.

קרן, a horn; a ray, or beam; a shoot

קש, stubble, bits of straw, or any refuse

קשה, to be rigid, hard, or stiff; to be cruel; to harden.

קשי, rigidity, stiffness, stubbornness.

קש, a bow, for shooting with.

רא, to look; to see, to perceive.

ראי, the look; a gazing-stock; מרא, a mirror.

ראש, the head; a chief; a point;
priority: principal, head, chief.

ראש, to sum up: a sum total; account.

ראשית, the chief or first; a beginning.

רב, to strive, to contend; to make words.

Cwyddaw, to fall, to lapse; to tumble
Caw, a bine, a bind, a tie, a band, a bandage.

Ciliaw, to retreat; to retire; to chace, to drive away: cil, a recess;
a flight, a retreat.

Caledu, to harden; to grow hard or dense.

Gollwng, to let go; to loosen: a departing point; a loosening.

Cwm, a rounding together; a hollow, by the rising of the sides: the sides of hills forming a dingle; a deep valley: cwmaw, a buttock; a kive.

Cawa, what is empty; canes, reed-grass.

Canu, to have in possession or with:
to be with.

Cwynaw, cwynain, to complain, to lament.

Canai, a recipient of possession.

Cwyna, a reiteration of complaint.

Ceina, a glancing cautiously: ceiniaw ni lwydd, it is useless to pry.

Ceinai, one that looks suspiciously.

Caer, a wall or mound; a fortified camp; a fort, a fortress; caer sidi, the ecliptic.

Corni, to be formed as a horn; to have a horn.

Corn, any pointed projection; a horn;
a roll.

Cws, cwsur, refuse of corn and straw

Casaw, to be severe; to be at enmity, to hate.

Casi, hatred; envy: cesair, hard snow, hail.

Cisaeth, that is by the effect of a touch or twang.

Rheiaw, to ray, to gleam, to radiate.

Rhai, a ray, a glance, or a gleam:
rheiaeth, radiation.

Rhys, a start, offset: a beginning.

Pen Rhys, in Wales, and Start
Point, in England, are synonymous names.

Rhesu, to place in a rank, or row:
rhes, a row, a rank.

Rhysaeth, the act of putting on a start.

Rheibaw, to snatch violently, to clutch.

- רב, strife, contention, quarrel. Rhaib, greed, voracity: a snatch, or clutch.
 רבח, to increase; to multiply; to grow large. Rhyfu, to enlarge, to swell out, to puff.
 רב, that is large or big: great, large: much; enough. Rhyf, that enlarges or swells out; a puff; pride: rhyf, rhy, too much, excess, extreme.
 רב, multitude; greatness. Rhyf, the state of being beyond or over: excess.
 רבץ, to lie or squat down; to repose. Rhybysaw, to over-press, to preponderate.
 רבץ, a reposing, a squatting down. Rhybys, over-pressure, preponderance.
 רגל, to foot, to trace by the foot. Rhuglaw, to move on briskly: to clear away.
 רגל, a foot, a limb to move with. Rhugl, that is of free motion; quick, ready.
 רגן, to murmur, to mutter. Rhegain, to make a murmur: to creak.
 רגע, to be at ease, to settle, to rest; to pause. Rhygyngu, to go leisurely, to amble.
 רגע, a being easy; a pause; ease. Rhygyng, an easy or ambling pace.
 רד, to go down, to submit; to subdue, to have dominion. Rhetinio, to necessitate; to need, to render needful.
 רד, a being down; submission: down. Rhaid, need, necessity; that is unavoidable.
 רוח, wind; breath, breathing; spirit. Rhock, a forcible or rough utterance; a grunt.
 רח, to blow; to breathe, to take breath: to wind. Rhecki, to breathe forcibly; to grunt.
 רח, to triturate, to grind: a mill. Rhugu, to triturate; to rub: rhug, a rub.
 רחח, something to fan with for blowing off chaff. Rhockad, a blower, that blows roughly.
 רוחח, a breathing, or a blowing. Rhocka, a making a rough noise: a grunting.
 רוח, to wind; to smell; to stink. Rhecku, to break wind forcibly; to fart.
 רם, to raise, to lift up, to exalt; to be high. Rhamu, to rise over; to soar; to vault.
 רם, רום, high, exalted: height; exaltation; haughtiness. Rham, exalted, soaring: a rise over; a reach over.
 רמת, exaltation: praise, eulogy. Rhamaeth, the state of being over or above.
 רמח, to cast, to fling; to throw out; to report. Rhemiau, to run or thrust out, to puff out.
 רע, רעח, noise, din, or clatter. Rhinc, a continued sharp noise; a creak.
 רעח, to be with, to accompany; to manage, to feed: a companion; a friend; a mate. Rhangu, to accommodate; to render replete; to satiate: rhang, accommodation.
 רעח, רוע, a companion; a mate; also another: a shepherd; attendance; pasture. Rhangai, one that fulfils or satisfies: one that renders conducive.
 רץ, to run; to break, to crumble, to bruise. Rhedu, to run, to perform a course, to race.
 רץ, one that runs; a post; a soldier; what is made to run. Rhedai, one that runs; one that produces a running.

רצוה, to delight, to be pleased, to enjoy.

רצון, delight; will, pleasure; acceptance.

רצד, to leap, to bound, or to jump.

רש, to drive out: to inherit: to succeed.

רש, poor: ריש, poverty: רישון, driven out, expelled.

רשע, to vex: to worst: to wrong: to be wrong.

רשע, worsting: vexing: wrong, injury.

Rhwyddaw, to make easy; to become free.

Rhwyddon, a facilitating faculty.

Rhuthadu, to make a burst; to burst away.

Rhusaw, to cause to start; to start; to hesitate.

Rhus, that is started or driven out; also a fox.

Rhysangu, to over tread, to over trample.

Rhysang, an over-tread, an over-trample.

ש

שאל, שאל, the lowest state; the grave; a pit.

שאון, שואון, noise; ostentation; pomp.

שאר, to remain, to be left as a residue.

שארית, remainder, remnant.

שארית, ferment, leaven.

שב, שבו, to turn; to turn to and fro; to change: a turn, a change, return.

שבת, to cease, to stop, to desist, to rest.

שבת, cessation, rest, leisure.

שר, שרר, to harrass, to spoil, to dissipate.

שר, שרר, שור, a harrasser, a spoiler.

שרי, that causes to be set forth; a maintainer, or establisher; the all-bountiful.

שרים, heathen gods, or idols; that is, heavenly bodies.

שרים, a vale where now the dead sea is: if not so called from a temple to the stars of heaven, it might be from its immersion.

שר, to plaister; to bedaub; to lime.

שיר, lime, burnt stone; plaister.

שט, שטה, to turn or go aside, to run aside.

שטן, to stand up against; an adversary: Satan.

של, שלל, to shed; to put off, to pull off.

שלח, to be easy, quiet, or inactive.

שלו, שלי, שלום, tranquillity, ease, quiet.

Sail, a base, a ground-work; a foundation.

Son, ymson, noise, report, rumour.

Saraw, to throw off; to injure; to insult.

Sar, saraeth, a throw off; fury, insult.

Sur, an acid; suraeth, sourness: acid sour.

Sybiaw, sybwiaw, to pile or bundle together, to toss about: sybwob, a rumple.

Seibaw, seibaethu, to take respite, to rest.

Seibiaeth, respite, leisure, rest.

Swydaw, to awe, to intimidate, to scare.

Swydai, that is a cause of intimidation.

Swyddai, that has jurisdiction or office, that has service.

Sidydd, the tropics: sidoedd, revolvings; and sidion, revolving bodies.

Soddion, immersions, or sinkings. If so named from a temple, the Welsh word sidion would be descriptive of it.

Suddaw, to pervade; to moisten.

Sudd, what pervades; moisture; juice.

Swtā, to be volatile or sudden; to fly about.

Swydan, one that intimidates or scares.

Silw, to yield; to spawn; to hull grain.

Swlaw, to become flat or prone; to make flat.

Swla, the being flat, prone, or grounded.

- שטט, to throw off: to dismiss, to cast out of the hand; to release.
 שטוט, a throwing off; a discarding; a release.
 שטן, to fatten, to become fat; to make fat.
 שטן, fat; rich juice; oil; ointment.
 שונא, to hate, to dislike, to reject, to disapprove.
 שק, a sack, a bag, or pouch.
 שקל, to weigh, or to balance.
 שקל, weight: a coin so called: a weigher: and thus—משקלה is a plummet.
 שר, שרר, to regulate or order the voice; to sing: and שירה, a song.
 שרף, a burning; also a serpent.
 שרק, to hiss; to whistle, to blow.
 שט, to set, to put; to beset; to appoint: also that is set or put.
 שט, a foundation; the buttocks.
 שטי, the fixed threads in weaving; the warp.
- Symudaw*, to move, to stir, to remove; to displace.
Symud, motion, move, stir, or removal.
Seimian, seimiaw, to grease, to become greasy.
Saim, seimiant, grease, oily fat.
Sennu, to taunt, to scoff; to chide; to reproach.
Sack, a sack, or a bag: sackaid, a sackful.
Siglaw, to vibrate as a balance: to shake, to rock.
Sigl, vibration; a shake, a stir; a rocking: siglaeth, vibration.
Saer, a wright, or mason: it is curious that the Welsh word cerdd is also a craft, and a song.
Sarff, a serpent, or a dragon.
Sarugaw, to be stern, surly, or austere.
Sythu, to stiffen, to make rigid or erect; to become stiff, rigid, or erect.
Sedd, a sedate or still state; a seat.
Sythi, straight or stiff things, upshots.

n

- תכן, to fix the proportion or quantity of a thing: to establish.
 תכן, a settled quantity or proportion: a sum or tale, a total.
 תלה, to hang up, or to suspend.
 תל, a heap, a pile, a mass.
 תלי, a quiver for holding arrows.
 תר, to turn or go about, as a person turns to look about him.
 תר, one who pries about, a traverser.
 תר, a turn, order, or round: a prying.
 תור, a turtle dove, from its wheeling in flight.
 תום, תום, a whole: integrity: entirely.
- Dogni*, to settle a quantity, to proportion: to fix an allowance.
Dogn, a settled quantity, share, or proportion: sufficiency.
Telu, to put on a stretch, to strain.
Twl, what is rounded, also a toft.
Telai, that is strained; that is suspended.
Troi, to turn, to wind, to wheel, to circulate.
Trosi, one that is made to turn or wind.
Tro, a turn, a round; a twist.
Tur, a turn, or reverse; an overturn.
Twm, a bend, a turn, a form; a round heap.

EXAMPLES OF GREEK AND WELSH AFFINITIES.

There are in the Welsh several characteristics, which discover it to have a greater affinity than any other language of Europe with the Greek; and, among the most prominent of those characteristics are the following.

The Welsh and the Greek agree in containing about an equal number of vowels and consonants; that is, upon an average, there are in each a hundred vowels to every hundred consonants. The language that approaches nearest to the like proportion is the Italian, the average of vowels wherein is eighty-eight to every hundred consonants; then follow in order, the Latin, the Spanish, the French, and the English.*

There is a great variety of qualifying prefixes in both the Greek and the Welsh, but in the latter tongue more particularly; for, enumerating such as are simple and compound together, it contains upwards of two hundred and fifty, and which are of universal application to all classes of words.

A considerable identity exists in respect to the conjugation of the verbs of the two languages, but more especially in each having reflective verbs, or those denominated of the middle voice; yet with this difference, that, in the Welsh, the qualifying agent is prefixed to the root of the verb, and in the Greek inserted between the root and the various terminations. Thus ymdwyyf is, in the Welsh, I regulate myself, and τιομαι, in Greek, is I honour myself: and the root of the former is twy, and of the latter ti is the, root.

The two languages are so alike in the general sound of their words, that the first impression upon strangers, from hearing the service of the church read in Welsh, is of its being the Greek which they hear.

The primitive words of the Welsh language are capable of being compounded almost infinitely, and generally upon similar principles to those of the Greek, so celebrated for this convenient quality. Thus Βωπις, the Homeric epithet for the queen of heaven, might be expressed in the Welsh with equal elegance, by these words—buolwg, bulygad, budrem, budremant, budremiant and budremynt; or, in a plural form thus—buolygon, bulygaid, bylygadon, budremion, budremeianion, budremiannion, and budremynnion. This epithet of Βωπις discovers the poverty and inelegance of the French translation, wherein it is rendered Juno aux yeux de bœuf, which is scarcely better than beef-eyed Juno; but, in the Welsh, Juno-lygad-eidion is not quite so bad.

Again, βουκολος, a cow-keeper, has, in the Welsh, the very ancient equivalent term of Bygeilydd; and from which we might use the name of Bugeileg, or the speech of the herdsman, for the Bucolics of the poets.

Independently of the above mentioned analogies, we discover in both languages a large stock of primitive words, agreeing in sound and meaning, as is exemplified in the subjoined vocabulary.

A

'Αγγος, ἄγγειον, a vessel: αγγεια, Matt. xiv. 4—8.	Angad , angan , angeian : angeiau —a receptacle.
'Αγκαι, αγκυλαι, the arms.	Angeieu , angellau , a fore leg, a pinion; an arm.
'Αγκυρα, an anchor.	Angor , a bearing round; an anchor.
'Αδew, to please, to delight, to content	Hoddiau , to render easy: to become easy.
'Αει, always, ever, continually.	Au , a continuity of motion: the liver

* I have not made out the average in any of the Teutonic dialects, excepting the Dutch, which has a less proportion of vowels than the English.

- Ἄερ, air, the element to breath in.
 Ἄηρος, vehement, eager, or earnest.
 Αἰγιαλος, the shore, or the sea coast.
 Ἄιδης, ἄδης, hell: πῦρ σου, ἄδη τὸ νικος.
 Αἶθω, to burn, to consume by fire.
 Αἰκάλλω, a fawn, a young deer.
 Αἰξ, a she goat.
 Αἶω, to hear, to perceive by the ear.
 Αἰών, αἰώνος, an age, life.
 Ἀκτῆ, the shore, or the sea-coast.
 Ἀλειφω, to anoint, to rub with oil.
 Ἀλίσκω, to take, to seize, or to catch.
 Ἀλίω, to roll, or to turn about.
 Ἀλλοίω, to change, or to alter.
 Ἀλς, salt.
 Ἀλύω, to pine, or to languish.
 Ἀμφι, about, in a circle, around.
 Ἀνία, sadness, dejection.
 Ἀνώγω, to instigate, to spur; to command.
 Ἀρα', prayers; vows, or promises.
 Ἄρης, a title of Mars.
 Ἄρκτος, a bear, the animal so called.
 Ἀροτρις, a plougher, a ploughman.
 Ἀρόω, to plough, or to till.
 Ἀρτύω, to dress, to deck, to adorn.
 Ασπίς, a shield, or buckler.
 Ἀυλή, an area; a hall, a court.
 Αὐλος, a pipe, or flute: αὐλα, pipes.
 Αυχέω, to vaunt, to boast, to brag.
 Ἀχλύς, darkness, or obscurity.
 Αχλύνω, to grow dark, to darken.
 Ἄωρ, sky; air; the firmament.
 Ἀέθω, pungent, acrid; grievous.
 Αἰγιαλ, the bound or limit of the sea.
 Ἄδ, seed; the bardic hell: py tau, had, dy nychad?
 Ἀέθω, to be pungent; to smart; goddeithiaw, to burn.
 Εἰγell, a teeming or bearing animal.
 Εἰwig, the she of deer, or a hind.
 Οἰaw, to hear; to hearken, or to listen.
 Εἰstees, life, or the duration of life.
 Αἰgdde, a shoaling spread; the sea shore.
 Εἰiaw, to anoint, to rub with salve.
 Ηylugaw, to drag, to trail along.
 Οἰaw, to track, to leave a trace.
 Αἰleiw, allu, to alternate, to alter.
 Hal, halen, heli, halli, salt, brine.
 Αελεν, alaethu, to grieve, to pine.
 Am, about, round; for concerning.
 Annwyf, ENNUI, want of vivacity.
 Annogi, to incite, to instigate; to exhort.
 Ar, the faculty of speech: ares, speeches.
 Aerwas, a youth of slaughter: a hero.
 Arth, a bear: arthes, a she-bear.
 Aradawr, a plougher: aradwr, a ploughman.
 Aru, to plough, to till: aru tir, to till.
 Ardwya, to keep in trim, to keep in check.
 Aes, a flat; a shield: aesbaith, a flat surface.
 Gal, a clear space; dyna dy al, there is thy station.
 Awelai, any wind instrument.
 Awchiaw, to be ardent; to sharpen.
 Achlud, covert, concealment; darkness.
 Achludaw, to cover with darkness; to conceal.

B

- Βαινω, to ascend, to mount up.
 Βάθος, deepness, profundity, depth.
 Βατος, little; small, diminutive.
 Βάλανος, an acorn; a bolt; a clasp.
 Βάλλω, to throw, to dart, to fling.
 Βήξ, a cough.
 Βίος, life: age, or duration of life.
 Βώτ, a bow, for shooting with.
 Βόμβος, a buzz, a humming.
 Βανω, to elevate, to go to the top.
 Βawdd, an immersion, a drowning.
 Βach, little, small, tiny, or minute.
 Βalant, a shoot, a spray; a bud.
 Βalu, to throw out, to eject; to shoot.
 Pas, perwch, that is expulsive; a cough.
 Byw, bywyd, life, duration of life.
 Bwa, a bow; an arch: bwa cyfemmod, bow of covenant, rainbow.
 Bwmbwr, a hollow noise, a murmur.

Βορα, food, nourishment.

Βελή, counsel, or advice.

Βελέω, to deliberate, to counsel.

Βῆνδος, a hill, an ascent, or rise.

Βῶνς, an ox, kine, or cow; cattle.

Βόσκω, to graze, to feed.

Βραδύς, dull, heavy, dejected.

Βραχίον, an arm; force, or strength.

Βραχιόνιον, a bracelet, or armband.

Βράχω, to resound, to bruit; to brake

Βρύχω, to bite, to gnash the teeth; to shiver.

Βρύω, βρυσω, to bud, to sprout.

Βρώμος, a stink, a bad smell.

Βρωμύω, to stink, to smell offensively.

Βρωμώδης, stinking, of ill scent.

Βρώσκω, to eat; to browse, to graze.

Βυκάνη, a trumpet.

Βῶλος, βῶλαξ, a lump, a clod.

Βαρε, bread; food: bara miad, fritters.

Ρωυλλ, pwylla, impulse; reason, sense, wit.

Ρωυλλω, to clear a way; to deliberate

Βαν, bant, banad, a height, an ascent.

Βυ, biw, buch, buwek, an ox, or kine, a cow.

Ρεγι, to feed, to fatten, to grow fat.

Βραδω, fretting away, diminishing.

Βρατch, breichiawn, an arm; strength of arm.

Breichionen, breichionyn, a bracelet.

Βροχι, to wax fierce, to bluster, to chafe.

Βρωchu, to make a stir, or tumult.

Βρουω, brwysaw, to generate; to flourish.

Βραμ, bramiad, a breaking wind.

Βραμυ, bremiaw, bremian, to break wind.

Bremiadus, apt to break wind.

Βρωysaw, to grow heavy, or unwieldy; to get drunk.

Βυγυнай, that makes a bellowing.

Βυλ, buolog, rotundity; a round hollow body.

Γ

Γαίω, to boast, to vaunt, or to brag.

Γάλα, γαλαξ, γαλακτος, milk.

Γένεσις, Genesis, generation.

Γένος, kind, race or generation.

Γένυς, the chin, the mandible.

Γέρανος, a crane, the bird so called.

Γέρων, an old man, an old fellow.

Γλαφω, to carve, to engrave, to grave.

Γλήνη, the apple of the eye, or pupil; the eye.

Γλωσσα, γλωττα, the tongue.

Γνάθος, the mouth, the jaw, or chops.

Γόω, a sigh, a wail, a weeping.

Γόης, a cheat, trickster, or deceiver.

Γραία, an old woman, or a hag.

Γράφω, to engrave, to grave, to write.

Γύνη, γυναίξ, a woman, a female.

Γαω, gawa, to stretch, or extend out.

Γαλ, what is fair; milk: galaeth, the galaxy.

Genidas, the act or state of bringing forth.

Genad, genadaeth, a generating; a being born.

Gen, the chin: car gen, the jaw bone.

Garan, a crane, the bird so called.

Geryn, a querulous, or grumbling one.

Gleifiaw, to blade, to use a blade.

Glain, gleinai, what is pure; a gem; the pupil.

Gloth, glytha, a couch, from its form; a voluptuary.

Gnawth, gnythawd, voracity: gnythai, a devourer.

Gwae, woe; a wail, a moan; grief; a curse.

Geuus, geuawg, that is false or lying.

Geraí, gwrach, a querulous one, a hag.

Creifiaw, to notch: crafu, to scratch.

Genai, genog, that generates; geneth, a girl.

Δ

Δαήρ, a brother-in-law, a step-brother.
Δάκνω, to bite, to separate with the teeth.

Δακρυ, a tear: μετὰ δακρύον, with tears.

Δαμάω, to tame, to make gentle.
Δάνος, a gift: interest; usury, gain.
Δεκα, ten: δέκατος, tenth.
Δέρκω, to see, to look, or to behold.

Δέργμα, a look, aspect, or appearance.

Δηλέω, to deceive, to impose upon.

Δηρις, quarrel, strife, debate, brawl.
Διδάσκω, to teach: διδάσκει, teach thou.

Δόλος, deceit, treachery, artifice.
Δολώω, to deceive, to mislead, to cheat.

Δονέω, δονεύω, to shake, or to move.

Δούλος, a slave, a servant.

Δράσσω, to snatch, to lay hold.
Δρύς, δρύνος, an oak; the oak.
Δυω, two: δύο και, two woes.

Δωω, to give: δὲ εἰμι, I give.

Δωρεω, to present: δῶρον, a gift.

Daw, dawawr, a boon; a son-in-law.
Dognai, to divide into morsels: dygnoi, to bite.

Dagr, deigr, deigryn, a tear: cyda dagrion, with tears: meddu deigrion, having tears.

Dofdu, dofi, to tame, to grow tame.
Dawn, doniad, a gift, or talent.
Deg, ten: degfed, degaid, tenth.

Drycku, to make manifest; to give a look.

Drychfa, drychiad, drychiant, appearance.

Twyllaw, to deceive, to cheat, to mislead.

Deriad, a bickering, or a brawling.
Dysgu, dyddysgu, to teach: dyddysge, do thou teach.

Twyll, twyllad, deceit, cheating, fraud.
Twyllaw, to deceive, to cheat, to mislead.

Twynaw, to move, or wave about; to nod.

Dylai, dylad, that is owned or possessed.

Treisaw, to do violence; to ravish.
Dar, derw, derwen, an oak; the oak.
Dau, two, masculine: dwy, two, feminine: dwy wae, two woes.

Dodi, to give, to place: dodwyf, I give.

Dyroi, to give, to present, to bestow.

Ε

Εαρ, ηρ, the spring, the vernal season.

Εαριζω, to send the spring season.

Εγγύς, near, contiguous, or close.
Εγγιζω, to approach, to approximate.

Εδω, to eat, to take food, to feed.
Επω: ειπον: ειπε μοι, he said to me.

Εχ, from, or out of, and of.

Εἰλω, to cover, or to envelope.
Εμοι, for me, or to me.

Εν, in: ἐν ἀγορᾷ in the market.
Ενθα, adverb, there, on that side.
Ετι, as yet, yet: ἐρχονται εἰς δύο και.

Ir, that is verdant; verdant, green, juicy.

Ireiddiaw, ireiniaw, to render juicy, or green.

Wng, yngus, near, contiguous, or close.
Yngu yngiadu, yngusaw, to become near, to near.

Eidiaw, to enliven: ynu, to consume.
Ebu, to say: ebron: ebai imi, said he to me.

Ack, off; near; by: ack ei law, by his hand.

Huliaw, to cover, or to envelope.

Imi, to me, or for me.

Yn, in: yn agorfa, in an open place.
Yna, there, or in that place.

Eto, yet, again: erchwyna eto ddwy wae, two woes are yet to come.

H

- Ἦ, or: ἡ ἐκτείν, Ἔγεγρα, or to say, arise. Ai: ai ebian, agora, or to say, open.
 Ἡ, a pronoun: ἡ ὄνομα, her name. Ei, his, her, its: ei henw, her name.
 Ἡλιος, and anciently, ἥλ, the sun. Haul, the sun; also called huan.
 Ἥλια, a bridle, or a head-stall. Hoennai, hwynai, hoenen, hwynyn, a thong.
 Ἡρέμος, soft, peaceable, or tranquil. Araf, arafaid, arafus, slow, soft, gentle.
 Ἡρεμέω, to rest; to appease, to tranquillize. Arafu, arafeiddiau, arafusaw, to appease.
 Ἡσυχος, ἡσυχαιος, ease, quietude. Heddwch, heddychiad, hedd, peace, tranquility.
 Ἡσυχία, peace, rest, or quietude. Heddychiad, an appeasing or quieting.
 Ἡσυχάζω, to be at rest, to be quiet. Heddykusaw, heddychiadu, to become at ease.
 Ἡχος, ἡχώ, sound, noise, or din. Aich, eichiad, a loud noise; a scream, a roar.
 Ἡως, ἡς, aurora, the dawn, the day-spring. Eaws, eosig, the nightingale.

Θ

- Θέμελον, θεμελιον, a base, or foundation. Teml, temlon, a spread, or expanse: a seat.
 Θεός, God, the supreme being, deity. Duw, that is beyond darkness; God
 Θέρω, to warm, to heat moderately. Twyraw, to agitate; to parch; to heat.
 Θηλή, the nipple, a teat, or a dug. Telai, that is strained, or stretched out.
 Θήρ, θηρίον, a wild beast. Ter, terydd, teryn, a furious state; that is vehement.
 Θίς, a bunch, a heap, a cluster. Twys, a bunch; an ear of corn.
 Θην, a rampart, or a wall. Din, dinas, an intrenchment, a fort; a city.
 Θολός, filth, dirt; mud, or mire. Tail, dung, manure, soil, muck.
 Θόρυβος, tumult, noise, stir, bustle. Twrf, tumult, din, noise, bustle, stir.
 Θορυβεω, to make a noise, to shout. Twrfu, to make a tumult, or uproar.
 Θράνω, to break, or to fracture. Trafu, to stir; to scour: tori, to break.
 Θρώσω, θρώχω, to jump, or to leap. Trosi, tracku, to convey over, or beyond.
 Θύελλα, a storm, or a tempest. Tywyllai, that produces gloom or darkness.
 Θύρα, a door, a gate, or opening. Trwy, trwya, a passage, or a pass.
 Θῶ, θάω, to nourish, to nurse. Toi, to cover over, to cover in; to roof.
 Θῶ, θέω, to run: to fine; to do. Twya, twyaw, to put in order or form; to order.

I

- Ἰάχω, to bawl out, to make a noise. Eichiaw, to make a loud din; to scream.
 Ἰδιος, own, proper, one's own, peculiar. Biddaw, eiddo, one's own: eiddof, mine; eiddot, thine.
 Ἰς, ινός, a sinew; a fibre; strength. Gi, gien, a fine fibre or string; a nerve.

Ἰστωρ, ιστορος, learning; knowledge.

Ἰνα, preposition: ἵνα ῥυθῶ ἀπὸ, that I may be delivered from. Rom. xv. 31.

Ystyr, ystyriad, meaning; consideration.

Hynd, that: hyna y rhyddiwyf heibio, that I be loosened past, or from.

K

Καθαίρω, to purge, or to cleanse out.

Καινός, new, recent, or fresh.

Καίνω, to kill, to deprive of life.

Καίνε, slaughter, or a killing.

Κάλαμος, reed, cane, or straw.

Καλέω, to call, to implore, to crave.

Καλύπτω, to conceal, or to hide.

Κάμηλος, a camel, a dromedary.

Κάμπτω, to bend, to curve.

Καρδία, καρδιά, the heart.

Κάρηνον, κράνιον, the head; a skull.

Κατα, by, of, according to; against: κατα σὺ, with thee, κατα σὺ, with thy: καταγγέλλω, I declare: ὃν καταγγέλλομεν, whom we preach: Col. i. 28.

Καύχησις, boasting: καὶ οὖν η καύχησις

Κελλω, to land safely, to get ashore.

Κέρκος, a tail, or hinder part.

Κεύθω, to hide, to conceal, to cover.

Κεύθος, κεύθεος, a lurking-place.

Κέω, to cleave, to rend, or to rift.

Κηρός, wax: ὁ κηρός, the wax.

Κιβωτός, a coffer, a chest; an ark.

Κίρκος, a circle, or a round.

Κίσση, disgust, nausea; a magpie.

Κισσάω, to have a disgust, or hate.

Κλειω, to shut up, to close in, to enclose.

Κλείς, a key; also a bolt, or bar.

Κλίνω, to incline, to bend, to lean, to decline: κλινουσῶν, they prostrated themselves.

Κλιτή, κλισία, a tent.

Κλύω, to hear; to understand, to apprehend.

Κλυτός, famous, or renowned.

Κνάω, κνέω, κνέω, to gnaw; to vex.

Κοιλία, the belly, the stomach.

Κολλώμενος, a joining, or tying together.

Κολέω, to cut off, or to sever apart.

Cothi, cothori, to cast out, or to eject

Cain, that is clear, bright, or fair.

Ceintaw, ceintaw, ceintach, to bicker

Ceinta, ceintach, a conflict, or a scuffle.

Calaf, reed; stalk or straw of corn.

Galw, to call; to name; to summons

Celu, celiadu, to conceal, or to hide.

Camell, a curving or bending animal.

Camu, camiadu, to bend, or to curve.

Craidd, the centre, or middle part.

Corun, coronon, the crown of the head; a summit.

Cyda, along with, with; cyda thi, with thee, cyda dy, with thy: cydanghelwyf, I bring out of concealment: hwn cydanghelwn, him we declare.

Coegedd, vaunting, boasting: py gwa y coegedd?

Cella, to make a lodgement, or recess

Cwrcwd, a squat; the posterior; a cowering.

Cuddiau, to hide, to secrete, to conceal.

Cudd, cudded, a hide, a secret place.

Cenaw, to make hollow: to penetrate

Cwyr, wax: y cwyr, the wax.

Cib, cibawd, any vessel; a measure.

Cyrcâ, a round place; a resort; a meeting.

Cas, casedd, odious; hate, loathing.

Casau, to hate; to become disgustful

Cloi, to lock: to fasten with a lock; to enclose.

Clo, a knob, or boss; a lock; a close

Cleisiaw, to lie prostrate: cleisiawant, they have prostrated themselves.

Clydat, that gives shelter, that covers

Clyws, clywed, to hear; to have perception.

Clodus, renowned: praiseworthy.

Cnâi, cnawu, to gnaw, to bite: to vex

Cylla, the separating organ, the stomach.

Cylmyniad, connection, a tying together.

Cwlla, to cut, to separate to sever.

Κολωνός, a hill, a mount, a bank.

Κόχλω, to turn, or to wind about.

Κυκλος, a circle, a cycle, a round.

Κραίνω, κραινω, to perfect, to finish.

Κρέκω, κρέω, to sound, or to report.

Κρημνός, a precipice, a steep place.

Κρήνη, a spring, or fountain: also κρονός.

Κρίζω, κρίω, κρίχα, to make a sharp noise, or cry.

Κρινον, κριναν, the lily.

Κρίνα, the poor, or necessitous ones.

Κρίνον, a kind of dance.

Κρίνω, to choose, to judge, to decide.

Κρούω, to beat, to strike, or to bang.

Κυλλος, maimed, lame, or halt.

Κῆμα, a wave, or a billow at sea.

Κύμβος, a concavity, or hollowness.

Κυμβη, a boat, or a small vessel.

Κύτος, a cavity, or a hollow place.

Κύω, κνέω, to carry, also to kiss.

Κύων, a dog, an animal so called.

Κώδων, a crater; a cup, a rummer.

Κῶμη, a village; also a street.

Κωμητης, a peasant, a countryman.

Κῶνος, a cone, a figure so called.

Κωναω, to cause to kindle, to kindle.

Κωφος, a silly fool; dull; deaf; dumb.

Col, colyn, a round point; a pivot; a sting.

Cwchlu, cylchu, to circle; to round; to hoop.

Cylch, a circle, a round; a hoop.

Cyweiniaw, to make accurate, to perfect.

Creciaw, crechu, to creak; to scream

Crim, crimell, crimen, a ridge, a ledge

Cronai, that collects, or generates.

Cregu, crecu, crechu, crechian, to creak, to squeal.

Crinon, crinen, crinlys, the violet.

Crinion, brittle or dried ones; hunks, misers.

Cronen, that forms a round or circle.

Crynöi, to gather or put together.

Curaw, to beat, to strike, to throb.

Call, callus, that is divergent: tread-gall, club-footed.

Cwmai, that rises to form a hollow.

Cwm, cwman, a sinking in; a kive, a rump.

Cafu, a trough; a boat; a ferry-boat

Cwt, cut, a hovel, a shed, a sty.

Cuaw, to fondle: cu, a cleaving to.

Ci, cian, a dog: plural, cion and cwn.

Cuthwn, cothyn, what throws off, or ejects.

Cyma, cymod, cymmod, a community.

Cymydai, one of a commune; a neighbour.

Con, that ends in a point; coned,

Cynneu, cynneuaw, to kindle, to set on fire.

Cyff, a stock, a stump, a butt, a dolt.

Λ

Λᾶς, lās, a stone, a stone slab.

Λάlew, to speak; to chat, to talk.

Λάλος, a prattler, or a chatterer.

Λαδς, λεος, the people, or multitude.

Λάρω, to lap, or take with the tongue.

Λαρινδς, fat and sweet, plump, agreeable.

Λαρινέω, to fatten, to become fat.

Λαρδς, agreeable, sweet, or dulcet.

Λάτω, to revile, to calumniate.

Llech, a flat stone, or a slate.

Llotiaw, llolian, to chatter, to prate, to chat.

Llotyn, a chatterer, a jabberer, a bab-bler.

Lliaws, a multitude, a great many; a mob.

Lleibiaw, lleipiaw, lleipian, to lick, to lap.

Llerwin, nice, delicate, or fine.

Llerwi, llervinau, llervosiniau, to grow nice.

Llerw, nice, smart, delicate; fine; subtle.

Lleagu, to be or become weak; to en-feeble.

Λάω, to see ; to enjoy, to be pleased.
Λαίω, to enjoy, or to feel pleased.
Λέγω, to say ; to enjoin, or to bid.

Λέγα, to lie down, to be prostrate.
Λέσκη, idle chat, tattle or babble.
Λήγω, to cease, to make an end ; to quit.

Λήθω, λῆσω, to lie hid, to skulk.
Λιάζω, to divide, or to separate.
Λιμὴν, a harbour, port, or haven.
Λίμνη, a lake, a pool, a mere.
Διτή, a prayer, or a petition.
Λοετρὸν, washings.
Λοχὸς, an ambush, also a troop.
Λοχάω, to lay an ambuscade.

Λύθρον, blood and dust, or grime.
Λυθρῶ, to wallow in blood or grime.
Λύπη, grief, sorrow, vexation : εν λύπη.

Λύρα, a lyre, a stringed instrument.

Λύχνος, a lamp, a torch, a flambeau.

Λlyw, to guide, to direct ; to steer.
Llywiau, to direct : llywy, a paragon.
Llygu, to clear : llug, a gleam, a glance.

Llechu, to lie close, to squat ; to skulk.
Llega, llegedd, listlessness ; idleness.
Llagnu, to grow slack, loose, or sluggish.

Llethu, to press flat : llacu, to trail.
Llysu, lliasu, to part off, to separate.
Llifon, llion, a place of flooding.
Llyn, llifon, a lake, a pool, a mere.
Llith, a lure ; a lesson, or a lecture.
Llwtron, any liquid dirt, or dregs.
Lloches, a covert, a hiding place.
Llochi, llochiau, lochesu, to make a covert.

Lhetron, llwtrach, slimy matter, grime.
Llwtriau, to begrime ; to form grime.
Llipa, that is flaccid or flagging.

Llyre, a tortoise : the shell formed the lyre.

Lluch, lluchyn, llugas, a gleam of light.

M

Μάκαρ, happy, blessed, fortunate.
Μαλάσσω, to mollify, or to soften.

Μαλός, tender, soft, or delicate.

Μαμμή, μαμμα, μαμμαία, a grand-mother.

Μανός, rare, thin, fine, or slender.
Μαραίνω, to fade, to wither, to decay.

Μαρνάμαι, to fight, to combat, to battle.

Μάχομαι, to fight, to battle, to contend.

Μάχη, a battle, a fight, a combat.
Μέγας, μεγάλον, great, grand, puissant, big : Λιδασκαλε, ποία εντολή μεγάλη εν τῷ νόμῳ ;

Μέδω, to command : also μεδέω, μεδενω.

Μέθυ, μεθυος, wine, the juice of grapes.
Μέθη, drunkenness, or intoxication.

Μεθυω, to drunk : ἐμεθύσθησαν : μεθύσαν.

Μεθύσκω, to make drunk, to intoxicate

Μελίσσω, to sweeten ; to become sweet.

Μελαινο, to become black, to blacken.

Mygyr, grand ; splendid, glorious.
Mallusaw, to make soft or lax ; to grow soft.

Mall, mallus, soft or lax ; insipid ; blasted.

Mam, a mother ; mammai, a matron.

Μαν, small, fine : main, thin, slender.
Merwinaw, to grow torpid ; to be numb.

Murniau, murnofi, to obstruct ; to murder.

Macku, machofi, to endeavour to secure.

Mach, machai, security, that secures
Myg, mygawl, grand ; solemn, glorious : dyddysgolai, pa y dydyed mygolaf yn y nam ?

Meddu, to possess, to have command of.

Medd, origin of motion ; centre : mead
Meddwo, drunk ; meddwoad, ebriety.

Meddwi, to inebriate : ymfeddwasant : meddwasai.

Meddwadu, to make drunk, to intoxicate.

Melyu, to sweeten, to become sweet.

Melynu, to grow yellow, to grow swarthy.

- Μελι, melicos, honey, the food of bees. Mel, melid, honey; melys, honeyed, sweet.
- Μελιηδες, sweet, or dulcet.
- Μελισσα, a bee, or gatherer of sweets.
- Μέλλω, to delay, to defer, to put off.
- Μέλος, melody; verse or song.
- Μένος, the mind, or intelligent power.
- Μένω, to remain; to last, to wait.
- Μένος, the middle, or central part.
- Μέτρον, measure, that metes things.
- Μινυός, small, little, or slender.
- Μινύθω, to diminish or to lessen.
- Μόλος, battle and noise: also μῶλος.
- Μολυνω, to pollute, or to defile.
- Μόνος, alone, deserted, or desolate.
- Μονον, one; only, single; singly.
- Μούσα, a muse, the power of poetry.
- Μυδάω, to moulder, to wear away.
- Μυδαλίος, mouldy, musty, stale.
- Μυδαίνω, to rot, or to putrefy.
- Μύλη, a mill-stone, a grinder.
- Μύρμος, μύρμηξ, an ant; μυρμηδον, an ant-hillock.
- Μύρω, to flow, or to run as water.
- Μωρος, silly, foolish, or simple.
- Μελ, melid, honey; melys, honeyed, sweet.
- Meleidus, of the nature of honey.
- Melysai, a honey-bearer: a sweetener.
- Malu, to dally, to fondle; to trifle.
- Melawd, that is sweet, like honey.
- Menw, intellect, mind, or soul.
- Mann, to set a place; to impress.
- Medd, the origin of motion; a middle.
- Mydr, mydrai, mydryn, a metre.
- Man, manw, small, fine, tiny, petty.
- Manaethu, manweiddiaw, to make fine.
- Moloch, tumult, uproar, riot, stir.
- Molwynaw, to spot; to cover with foam.
- Mynw, that is isolated or lonely.
- Mon, monyn, that is alone: a sulky one.
- Mawsai, a recipient, of sweetness.
- Mwydaw, to become damp, to sodden.
- Mwydiolus, of a soddening tendency.
- Mwydioni, to become pulp or pith.
- Malai, that grinds or that brays.
- Myr, myrion, ants: mor, an ant: mor-ion, ants: myrfydon, a mound of ants.
- Meru, to drop; to dribble, to distil.
- Meredig, being drooping; stupid.

N

- Naiw, raíaw, raw, to dwell, to abide.
- Ναῦς, a temple: ναος τῷ θεῷ. 1 Cor. iii. 17.
- Ναῦς, a ship, or a sailing vessel.
- Νέμω, to divide, or to separate.
- Νέος, new, novel, or recent.
- Νέω, to swim, to move on water.
- Νησος, an island, or an isle.
- Νικάω, to overcome: νικα, overcome.
- Νίφω, to snow, to drop in snow.
- Νηθω, to spin, to draw out in threads.
- Νόθος, illegitimate, bastard.
- Νόος, the mind, intelligent power.
- Νύξ, night.
- Nuddi, noddau, to harbour; to take refuge.
- Neuadd, a hall, a saloon: neuadd y Ddw.
- Nawfai, nofai, a floating agent.
- Namu, to stigmatize; to except.
- Newydd, new, novel; that is new.
- Nofíaw, to swim; also to float.
- Ynys, an island: ynysig, an islet.
- Nychu, to torture; to pine: nycha, cause pain.
- Nyfu, nyfiaw, odi, bwrrw eira, to snow.
- Nyddu, to spin; to twist, or to writhe.
- Nwythus, nwydus, eccentric, freakish.
- Naws, temperament, disposition.
- Nos, night: noson, noswaith, a certain night.

O

- ’O, the article the.
- Oí, pronoun: oi eípon, they said.
- Oíγω, to open, to set open, to lay out.
- ’Όλος, a whole, all of a thing, a total.
- ’Ομιλω, to engage.
- Ον, pronoun: ὃν καταγγελλομέν. Col. i. 28.
- Y, and yr, the article the.
- Hwy, they: hwy ebynt, they said.
- Agw, agenw, to rift; agori, to open.
- Holl, oll, a whole, or all, a total.
- Ymaelu, ymaelyd, to take mutual hold.
- Hwn, this one; whom: hwn cyd-anghelwn.

G ὄνομα, a name : ἡ ὄνομα, her name.

 ὀξύς, sharp, quick, ready ; sour :
 ὀξύς οἱ πόδες αὐτῶν. Rom. iii. 15.
 Οἶν, therefore : πᾶς οἶν ἡ καύχησις
 Rom. iii. 27. Where then the boasting?
 Οἶαι, a woe, or wailing.

Εἶω, a name : εἰ εἶω, her name.
 Ἀσχεύς, keen, ardent ; greedy : asch-
us ex pedes hwynt.
 ὕνα, there ; then ; there now ! pa
yna y coegedd? what then the vaunting?
 Γῶαε, a woe, a wailing, a curse.

II

Παίω, to strike, to beat, to knock.
 Παλλῶ, to dart, to throw, or to fling.
 Παύω, to cease ; to rest, to be still.
 Πέδιλον, a shoe ; a sock, a buskin.

Πιέζω, to press, to squeeze, to crush.
 Πλέκω, to double, to fold, or to plait.
 Ποίω, to blow, to breathe, to respire.
 Πούς, ποδος, a foot : ὀξύς οἱ πόδες
 αὐτῶν,
 Πρίσμαι, to purchas, to buy : ἐκπρίω,
 to redeem.
 Πρίν, preposition ; before : πρίν Ἀβραάμ γενεσθαι, ἐγὼ εἰμι : before Abraham was, I am.
 Πρό, for, before, instead.
 Πωλέω, to sell, to offer for sale.
 Πωλος, a colt, or a young horse.

Πῶγῶ, to beat, to pummel, to thump
Peiliaw, to spread out, to radiate.
Peuaw, to pause ; to hesitate ; to pant.
Pedol, pedolan, a foot-trace ; a horseshoe.
Pwysaw, to weigh ; to press ; to ponder
Phygu, to double, to fold ; to bend.
Peuaw, to pause ; to hesitate ; to pant.
Pedd, ped, a foot : aschus ex pedes
hwynt.
Prwyaw, to attain, or to reach : eck-
brwyaw, to attain from.
Prin, scarce ; scarcely : prin y genid
Abraham, myf wyf, scarcely was Abraham produced, I am.
Prwy, a tendency forward or onward.
Peliaw, to spread out, to brandish.
Ebawl, a male colt ; eboles, a she colt.

P

Ῥαδιος, easy, facile, of free course.
 Ῥασσω, to dash against, or to rush.
 Ῥέγχε, to snore, or to breathe hard.
 Ῥέω, to flow ; to spread, to scatter.
 Ῥέω, to speak ; to tell, or to relate.
 Ῥίζα, a root, or a radix.
 Ῥιν, a nose ; as of a man or beast.
 Ῥοδανός, running, or swiftly moving.
 Ῥοῦς, a stream, or a current.

Rhwydd, rhwyddus, facile, easy of progress.
Rhysyaw, to move violently, to rush.
Rhocki, to make a rough noise ; to grunt.
Rhes, to move ; to be active ; to run.
Rhuaw, to cry aloud, to roar ; to chatter.
Rhadd, that advances, or proceeds onward.
Rhyn, that stretches out ; a point, a cape.
Rhodianus, coursing ; rhedianus, running.
Rhawd, a course, a way, a rout ; a race.

Σ

Σὰρξ, the flesh, the body.
 Σκόλοψ, a stake, post, or pale.
 Σκοτος, darkness, obscurity.
 Σκοτω, σκοτίζω, σκοταζω, to darken.
 Σκύβαλον, dung, filth, or rubbish.
 Σκυβαλιζω, to cast out filth or refuse.

SarcA, what covers ; also gear, harness
Ysgof, a sharp pointed spar or stake
Ygawd, that rises over ; a shade.
Ysgodi, ygedusaw, ygodiadu, to shade
Ygubellion, or yagubian, sweepings, refuse.
Ygubellu, ygubaw, to sweep, to use a broom.

Σταυρος, a cross ; a gallows.
Στήλη, a pillar : στέλος : στηλαι.

Στομα, στοματος, the mouth.

Ystwyrai, that writhes : a stretcher.
Ystawl, a stem ; a stool : ystolion, pinnacles.
Ystumai, the organ of shaping or turning.

T

Ταλαντον, a talent ; scales ; weight.

Τασσω, to order, or to arrange.
Ταυρος, a bull, the male of kine.

Ταχὺς, quick : ταχὺν, quickly.
Τείνω, to stretch, or to extend.

Τείρω, to beat ; to vex, or to afflict.
Τελαμὼν, a strap, or a thong.
Τέλος, the end, or termination.
Τελέω, to finish, to terminate.

Τέμνω, to cut, to cleave, to break down
Τερέω, to bore through, to perforate.

Τετθὺς, the breast, or the nipple.
Τεθῆ, τεθηνη, a nurse.
Τερην, tender, delicate, or soft.
Τιμάω, τίω, to honour, to respect.

Τραχύς, rough, harsh, or rugged.
Τρεῖς, τρία, three ; τρίτος, third.
Τρέχω, to run, to race, to strive in a race.

Τρεπλαξ, τριπλακα, triple, three-fold.
Τρύω, to break, to tear ; to push, to thrust.

Τύμβος, a tomb, a tumulus.

Τύπος, a type, figure, form, likeness.
Τυφλός, blind, deprived of sight.
Τυφλώω, to blind, to deprive of sight.

Tawl, toliant, a cast : mantawl, a balance.

Tywyssaw, to lead, or to conduct.
Tarw, that strikes or bursts through ;
 a bull.

Toc, that is short or quick ; shortly.
Taenu, to spread, to extend, or stretch out.

Taraw, to strike, to hit ; to affect.
Telamwyn, a stretch-defence or band
Telad, a straining out or to a verge.
Tehu, to put on a stretch ; to extend out.

Timynw, to break into small bits.
Trwyaw, to bore through, to pass through.

Teth, a teat ; a nipple, a dug ; a breast
Tethai, tethenai, that has a teat.

Tirion, pleasant, tender, or genial.
Tumiaw, to make a bend : twyaw, to order.

Trwch, a cut ; cutting ; rough, harsh
Tri, three ; trifed, trydydd, third.

Trechw, to surpass, to overcome, to master.

Triphlyg, threefold, or triple.
Trwyaw, to penetrate : tori, to break

Tom, tomen, a mound, or heap ; a tumulus.

Teb, a parallel state, a type, a like.
Tywyll, dark, obscure : dull, blind.
Tywyllu, to darken : dallu, to blind.

Y

Υδω, to sing, to make melody.
Υμήν, a covering, a membrane.

Hudaw, to allure, to fascinate.
Hufen, the top formed upon liquids ;
 cream.

Φ

Φάω, to shine, to glitter, to illumine.
Φάος, light ; splendour ; sunshine.
Φέρβω, to pasture, to depasture ; to feed.

Φορβη, φορβειά, pasture, or grass.
Φεύγω, φύγω, to shun, or to avoid.
Φυγίς, a fugitive ; a vagrant.
Φλάω, to smash, to break.
Φλέγω, φλεγεθω, to burn, to blaze.
Φλυω, φέω, to trifle, to act idly.

Ffaww, to render radiant or glorious
Ffawdd, radiation, splendour.
Porffw, to pasture, to depasture.

Porfa, pasture, a grazing place.
Ffoi, to flee, to run away, to retreat.
Ffoadai, a fugitive, or a vagrant.
Fflaww, to shiver, to splinter, to flaw
Ffaghu, ffaglaethu, to flame, to blaze
Ffleuaw, to radiate : ffuaw, to seem.

Φρέιρ, a well ; a ditch.
Φρίξ, the roaring of the sea.

Φωνή, voice ; report, noise or din.

Φῶρ, a thief ; a spy, or a prying one.

Ffreuer, a ditch : ffrenad, a gushing.
Ffruch, ffrock, a violent gust ; a storm.

Ffwa, respiration, breath ; a puff ; a sigh.

Ffwyr, a violent drive or chase : assault.

X

Χαίρω, to rejoice, or to be glad.
Χαλάω, to loosen, or to relax.

Χάρις, grace, favour ; love, kindness.
Χθέρ, yesterday, or the day past.

Χολή, choler, bile, or gall.

Χορός, a choir, a ball, a rout, or assembly.

Χρόνος, time, space, or season.

Chware, to play, to sport ; to be merry
Chwatu, to spread, to disperse, to separate.

Cariad, love, affection, or kindness.
Echdoe, the day before yesterday ;
doe, yesterday.

Caul, a maw ; chyle ; rennet ; curd.

Cor, a circle, a round ; a crib ; a choir.

Cronawd, a state or act of revolving.

Ω

ὠθέω, to push, to thrust, or to press

ὠλένη, the elbow, or bend of the arm ὠμός, crude, raw, undigested.

ὠδόν, ὠιον, also ὠιον, an egg.

ὠρα, time, or age ; an hour.

ὠρυω, to howl, to cry as a dog.

Gwthiaw, to push, to thrust ; to obtrude.

Elin, the elbow, the bend of the arm.

Of, uncombined ; crude, raw, fresh.

Wy, wyan, and wyyn, an egg.

Awr, an hour ; time or season.

Gawru, to howl, to scream ; to shout

ON THE AFFINITIES OF THE LATIN AND WELSH.

Those who form systems from general premises, without being duly acquainted with the characteristic features of their various component parts, would not hesitate to assert, that a considerable portion of the Welsh tongue must necessarily be derived from the Latin, in consequence of the dominion held by the Romans over Britain, for about five hundred years. What impression might have been produced upon the dialect of the Lloegrian Britons by such an intimate connexion with foreigners, it would be difficult, at this time, to determine, as the peculiar characteristic of that dialect cannot be traced, from its having been successively blended with the Saxon, the Danish, and the Norman, so as to have gradually formed the present English tongue. But, in respect to Wales, it might be urged as an argument of great weight, that the proportionate intercourse of the Romans there, must have been of too insignificant extent, to produce any change in the dialect of the natives, as none has been subsequently effected by the far more general intercourse of the English, holding a sovereignty there, and in every way a closer connexion, and through a much longer period of time. All the influence, that the Roman domination had upon our language, was the giving of currency to a few score words ; and the sway of the English has effected about as much : yet the strange words, whether from one nation or the other, have not been naturalized in the Welsh, as they still plainly discover their alien origin.

However, it is not by any means intended here to claim the smallest advantage from such argumentative objections, but, on the contrary, to state the important fact, that the Welsh language contains thousands of words in common with the Latin; yet these words can be satisfactorily proved not to have been borrowed by the Welsh from the Romans; neither could the latter people be indebted to the Britons for them. Therefore, the affinity, existing between the two languages, must be attributed to a common origin of such words, and preserved in each from a period anterior to the commencement of the history of either nation.

The Latin is, to a very considerable degree, a mixed language, being gradually formed by adventitious circumstances, whereby the original basis of its structure has been so obscured, that scarcely any of the words therein are regularly reducible to those primary elements, or radices, within itself, which are essentially the characteristics of the Welsh and other unmixed languages. Had not the Welsh a systematic combination of its words, yielding to an obvious and certain analysis, it would then stand only on equal terms with the Latin, with respect to words common to both languages; and in that case there would be no certain criterion, by which the claim of originality to such words could be awarded to either of them. This point may be illustrated by a few of those common words, traced to their primary elements in the Welsh, and which are not capable of being so analyzed in the Latin language. The following are obvious proofs:—

Latin words.

Catena
Caterva
Turba
Garrio
Garrulus

Welsh words.

Cadwen, a chain
Cattyryfa
Tyrfa
Geiriau
Geiriolus.

These words are precisely of the same signification in both languages; but it is only in the Welsh that they can be resolved to their primary elements.

The feminine noun cadwen is in the masculine form cadwyn; the en, in the former, and yn, in the latter, being general terminations for all similar nouns. Taking away these terminations, we have cadw, a keeping, a guarding, a preserving in safe custody; also, to keep, to guard, to have in custody; and cadw is derived from cad, a striving to take; also a conflict, or a battle; the simple elements forming cad being ca and ad. The plurals, most commonly used, out of several, of cadwen and cadwyn, are cadweni, cadwenau, cadwyni, and cadwynau.

The caterva is a very remarkable word, from its being so written in the Latin; because that one of its parts, terva, is plainly the Welsh word tyrva, which used to be written terva, before the y was introduced into our alphabet; and which is precisely of the same import as turba. The Welsh word is nearly of the same import, whether written catyryva or cattyryva,—the first from ca and tyrva, and the other from cad and tyrva,—and implies a troop of defence and a troop of conflict: cattyryva, in ancient numeration, expressed 100,000. The meaning of cad, a conflict, is literally an aptitude or effort to keep, having oa and ad for its elements. The word tyroa is partly explained already; but its structure may be farther defined. Twr implies a heap, a crowd, an aggregate, or accumulation; and thence comes twrv, a multitudinous noise, or tumult, and often used for taran, thunder. The w of all monosyllables becomes y, when such words are extended; and thus twrv becomes tyrva. The a postfixed gives the idea of continuity, accumulation, or collection; and such words are used both as nouns and verbs.

The Welsh primitive gair, a word, by a regular inflection forms the verb geiriau, to word, to express words, to form words, to use words. From gair, in the same manner, is formed the adnoun geiriauol, wordy, verbose, belonging to a word; and from geiriauol is formed geiriolus, apt to be wordy, full of words, or garrulous.

Some thousand Latin compound words have their similitudes in the Welsh with respect to structure and signification; and all to be analyzed, like the foregoing examples, in the latter language, thus proving, that they could not have been borrowed from the former, but that such words exist in both languages from one common origin.

CONCLUSION.

Notwithstanding all that has been hitherto written, the origin and affinities of the several nations of Europe remain in great obscurity; and the principal cause for this, where we have not the light of history to guide us, must be attributed to the want of a proper examination of the languages of those nations, so as to discover the approximate relation existing between some of them, and the contrary characters of other. As a proof of how little is generally and correctly known in respect to this subject, we need only point out that there are remnants of an original population still existing in France, in Flanders, in Germany, in two parts of Britain, and in Ireland; and who speak their ancient and common language, under diversities of dialects, and which is identified with the Slavonic; and these remnants of a primitive people are the Bretons, the Walloons, the Wendi, the Welsh, and the Gwydhelians of Scotland and Ireland. Historians have not used an appropriate and generic name for the common language of the people here mentioned; for the several appellations mostly in use, except the Slavonic, which is not very ancient, of Gallic, and Celtic, are only relevant to circumstances of locality; such as denote a dwelling in open regions, or in woods and forests. There is one name, however, which is descriptive of a generic character, and still preserved by one remnant of those nations, and used to designate itself, and also applied to it nationally, from the remotest periods of history. This appellation is used by the Welsh, who call themselves CYMMRY; and which was written Cimmerioi, Cimmerii, and Cimbri, by the Greeks and Romans.

N.B. The preceding Notes, with the Initials H.P. are by the late Mr. Humphreys Parry; and were added by him to an Edition of this Treatise published by the Cymmrodorion Society.

Rebid S.H
2001

